BOOK REVIEW DIGEST

1944

LIBRARY
OF THE
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SAN ANSELMO
CALIFORNIA

10c

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2026

https://archive.org/details/book-review-digest_1944-1945

[illegible]

BOOK REVIEW DIGEST

THE
BOOK REVIEW DIGEST

FORTIETH ANNUAL CUMULATION

MARCH 1944 TO FEBRUARY 1945 INCLUSIVE

EDITED BY MERTICE M. JAMES
AND DOROTHY BROWN

MANAGING EDITOR
SADIE BRACHFELD

Property of Graduate Theological Union
Return to
San Francisco Theological Seminary

NEW YORK
THE H. W. WILSON COMPANY
1945

Published 1945
Printed in the United States of America

This complete edition is produced in full compliance with the Government's regulations for conserving paper and other essential materials.

PREFACE

The fortieth Annual volume of the Book Review Digest contains in one alphabet information on approximately 3300 books of 1943 and 1944 imprint which have appeared in monthly issues of the Digest. Books with 1945 imprint will be found in numbers of the Digest beginning with March 1945.

There are minor changes in the list of periodicals from which reviews are clipped and digested. The one addition to the list is the Bulletin from Virginia Kirkus' Bookshop Service, designated in the Book Review Digest as Kirkus. Due to war conditions there has been difficulty in obtaining needed copies of some periodicals, and it has been necessary to drop the complete year's file of Nature. Scattered numbers of a few others have not been indexed, because they could not be obtained.

The regular members of the staff are grateful in these difficult times for the cooperation and help of several former members of our staff, and to new members who have joined us during the year.

Publications from which Digests of Reviews are made

Am Anthropol—American Anthropologist. $6. American Anthropological Association, B. Weitzner, American Museum of Natural History, New York

Am Chem Soc J—Journal of the American Chemical Society. $8.50. Charles L. Parsons, sec, 1155 16th St, NW, Washington 6, D.C.

Am Econ R—American Economic Review. Paul T. Homan, managing ed. $5; free to members. American Economic Assn, Evanston, Ill.

Am Hist R—American Historical Review. Guy Stanton Ford, managing ed. $5; free to members of the American Historical Assn. Macmillan Co, 60 Fifth Av, New York

Am J Psychol—American Journal of Psychology. $6.50. Morrill Hall, Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.

Am J Pub Health—American Journal of Public Health and The Nation's Health. $5. American Public Health Assn, 1790 Broadway, New York 19

Am J Soc—American Journal of Sociology. Herbert Blumer, ed. $5. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago

Am Pol Sci R—American Political Science Review. Frederic A. Ogg, managing ed. $5; free to members. American Political Science Assn, 450-458 Ahnaip St, Menasha, Wis.

Am Soc R—American Sociological Review. $4 (to libraries $3; to students $2.50) American Sociological Society, C. Taeuber, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C.

Ann Am Acad—Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science. Thorsten Sellin, ed. $5; free to members. 3457 Walnut St, Philadelphia 4

Atlantic—Atlantic Bookshelf of the Atlantic Monthly. $5. Atlantic Monthly Co, 8 Arlington St, Boston 16

Book Week—Chicago Sun, 400 W. Madison St, Chicago, Ill.

Booklist—Booklist. $3. American Library Assn, 520 N Michigan Av, Chicago

Bookmark—Bookmark. 50c New York State Library, University of the State of New York press, Albany

Boston Globe—Boston Globe $8.40 P.O. Box 189, Boston, Mass.

Canadian Forum—Canadian Forum. Eleanor Godfrey, managing ed. $2. Canadian Forum, Ltd, 28 Wellington St, W, Toronto 1, Canada

Canadian Hist R—Canadian Historical Review. $2. University of Toronto Press, Toronto 5

Cath World—Catholic World. James M. Gillis, ed. $4. Missionary Society of St Paul the Apostle, 401 W 59th St, New York 19

Chem & Eng N—Chemical and Engineering News. $2. American Chemical Society, Charles L. Parsons, sec, 1155 16th St, NW, Washington 6, D.C.

Chem & Met Eng—Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering. $3. McGraw-Hill Publishing Co, Inc, 330 W 42d St, New York 18

Christian Century—Christian Century. Charles Clayton Morrison, ed. $4. Christian Century Press, 407 S Dearborn St, Chicago 5

Christian Science Monitor (Atlantic ed)—Christian Science Monitor. $12. Christian Science Publishing Society, 1 Norway St, Boston 15

Class Philol—Classical Philology. $4. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Commonweal—Commonweal. Edward Skillin, jr., ed. $5. Commonweal Pub. Co, Inc, 386 Fourth Av, New York 16

Crozer Q—Crozer Quarterly. $1.50. Crozer Theological Seminary, Chester, Pa.

Current Hist—Current History. D. G. Redmond, ed. $3. Events Pub. Co, Inc, 5528 W Oxford St, Philadelphia 31

Economist. £3. Economist Newspaper, Ltd, Brettenham House, Lancaster Place, London, WC 2

El School J—Elementary School Journal, R. W. Tyler and others, eds. $2.50. Dept. of Education, University of Chicago, 5835 Kimbark Av, Chicago 37

Eng N—Engineering News-Record. $5. McGraw-Hill Publishing Co, Inc, 330 W 42d St, New York 18

Eng Hist R—English Historical Review. 32s. Longmans, Green & Co, Ltd, 43 Albert Drive, London, SW 19 ($7.50. 55 Fifth Av, New York)

Ethics—Ethics. $4. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Foreign Affairs—Foreign Affairs. Hamilton Fish Armstrong, ed. $5. Council on Foreign Relations, Inc, 45 E 65th St, New York 21

Geog R—Geographical Review. $5. American Geographical Society, Broadway & 156th St, New York 32

Harvard Business R—Harvard Business Review. $5. McGraw-Hill Book Co, Inc, 330 W 42d St, New York 18

Hibbert J—Hibbert Journal. 10s. George Allen & Unwin, Ltd, 40 Museum St, London, WC 1 ($2.50. Leroy Phillips, 178 Tremont St, Boston)

Horn Bk—Horn Book. Bertha E. Mahony, ed. $2.50. Horn Book, Inc, 264 Boylston St, Boston 16

J Geol—Journal of Geology. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

J Home Econ—Journal of Home Economics. Helen P. Hostetter, ed. $2.50. American Home Economics Assn, 620 Mills Bldg, Washington 6, D.C.

J Philos—Journal of Philosophy. $4. 515 W 116th St, New York 27

J Phys Chem—The Journal of Physical Chemistry. $10. Williams & Wilkins Co, Mt Royal & Guilford Avs, Baltimore 2, Md.

J Pol Econ—Journal of Political Economy. Jacob Viner and F. H. Knight, eds. $3.50 University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

J Religion—Journal of Religion. $4. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Kirkus—Bulletin from Virginia Kirkus' Bookshop Service. Service basis. 38 Bank St, New York

Library J—Library Journal. Karl Brown, ed. $5. R. R. Bowker Co, 62 W 45th St, New York 19

Library Q—Library Quarterly. $5. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Management R—Management Review. $5. American Management Assn, 330 W 42d St, New York 18

Manchester Guardian—Manchester Guardian. 78s. Manchester Guardian, 3 Cross St, Manchester; Guardian Newspapers, Inc, 220 W 42d St, New York

Mod Philol—Modern Philology. $5. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Nation—Nation. Freda Kirchwey, ed. $5. Nation, Inc, 55 Fifth Av, New York 3

New Eng Q—New England Quarterly. $4. M. Ellis, 200 Stevens Hall, Orono, Me.

New Repub—New Republic. Bruce Bliven and others, eds. $5. Editorial Publications, Inc, 40 E 49th St, New York 17

New Statesman & Nation—New Statesman and Nation. 32s 6d. 10 Great Turnstile, London, WC 1

N Y New Tech Bks—New York Public Library New Technical Books. 25c N Y Public Library, Fifth Av & 42d St, N.Y.

N Y Times—New York Times Book Review. $2. N Y Times Co, Pub, Times Square, New York 18

New Yorker—New Yorker. H. W. Ross, ed. $6. F-R. Pub. Corp, 25 W 43d St, New York 18

Pacific Affairs—Pacific Affairs. $2. 1 E 54th St, New York 22

Poetry—Poetry. Peter DeVries and Marion Strobel, eds. $3. 232 E Erie St, Chicago 11

Pol Sci Q—Political Science Quarterly. John A. Krout, managing ed. $5; free to members. Academy of Political Science, Columbia University, New York 27

Sat R of Lit—Saturday Review of Literature. Norman Cousins, ed. $5. Saturday Review Associates, Inc, 25 W 45th St, New York 19

School & Society—School and Society. William C. Bagley, ed. $5. free to members of the Society for the Advancement of Education. Science Press, N Queen St and McGovern Av, Lancaster, Pa.

School Arts—School Arts. Pedro deLemos, ed. $4. School Arts. Printers Bldg, 44 Portland St, Worcester 8, Mass.

School R—School Review. R. W. Tyler and others, eds. $2.50. Dept. of Education, University of Chicago, 5835 Kimbark Av, Chicago 37

Scientific Bk Club R—Scientific Book Club Review. Subscription. Scientific Book Club, Inc, 80 Lafayette St, New York

Social Educ—Social Education. $2. 1201 Sixteenth St, NW, Washington, D.C.

Social Forces—Social Forces. $4. Williams & Wilkins Co, Baltimore 2

Social Studies—Social Studies. $2. McKinley Publishing Co, 809-811 N 19th St, Philadelphia

Special Libraries—Special Libraries. $5. Special Libraries Assn, 31 East Tenth St, New York 3

Spec—Spectator. The Spectator, Ltd. 30s. 99 Gower St, London, WC 1

Springf'd Republican—Springfield Republican. $14. Republican Publishing Co, 32 Cypress St, Springfield, Mass.

Subscription Bks Bul—Subscription Books Bulletin. $2. American Library Association, 520 N Michigan Av, Chicago

Survey—Survey Midmonthly. Paul Kellogg, ed. $3. Survey Associates, Inc, 112 E 19th St, New York 3

Survey G—Survey Graphic. Paul Kellogg, ed. $3. Survey Associates, Inc, 112 E 19th St, New York 3

Theatre Arts—Theatre Arts. Edith J. R. Isaacs, ed. $3.50. Theatre Arts, Inc, 40 E 49th St, New York 19

Time—Time. Henry R. Luce and Manfred Gottfried, eds. $5. Time, Inc, 330 E 22d St, Chicago 16

Times [London] Lit Sup—Times Literary Supplement. 17s 4d. Times Publishing Co. Ltd, Printing House Square, London, E.C. 4; $4.15. The Times (London), North American Office, 280 Broadway, New York

Weekly Book Review—New York Herald Tribune Books. $1. N Y Tribune, Inc, Publisher, 230 W 41st St, New York
Name of book section was changed from Books, February 14, 1943

Yale R ns—Yale Review. Helen MacAfee, managing ed. $3. Yale Review, 143 Elm St, New Haven 7, Conn.

In addition to the above list the Book Review Digest sometimes quotes from Churchman; Cleveland Open Shelf; Columbia Law Review; Harvard Law Review; Pratt Institute Quarterly; Publishers' Weekly; Review of Scientific Instruments; Wisconsin Library Bulletin; Yale Law Journal; and other bulletins and papers.

Explanations

The descriptive note is separated from critical notices of a book by a dash.

The plus and minus signs preceding the name of the magazine indicate the degree of favor or disfavor of the entire review.

In the reference to a magazine, the first number refers to the volume, the next to the page, the letters to the date and the last figures to the number of words in the review.

Publishers' Directory will be found at the end of this number.

Book Review Digest

Devoted to the Valuation of Current Literature

Cumulation of monthly numbers March 1944—February, 1945

A.L.A. catalog, 1937-1941; ed. by Marion Horton. 306p $6 A.L.A.

016 Bibliography—Best books. Books and reading

Supplementary to the A.L.A. catalogs, 1926, 1926-31, and 1932-36 (Book Review Digest, 1938). Contains a selected and annotated list of 4,000 titles, suitable for popular library needs. Full buying and cataloging information is given, as well as Library of Congress card numbers. Classified arrangement with author, title and subject indexes.

Booklist 40:189 F 1 '44

"There is much to praise about this compilation. Merely to have reduced to a basic list of 4,000 titles the total 1937-41 output of American publishers, approximately 55,000 volumes, is no insignificant achievement. The annotations have been well chosen; some, as in the poetry section, are a delight to read. There are evidences, unfortunately, that certain important, timely subjects have been omitted or are not adequately covered in the selection." A. M. Boyd

+ — Library J 69:500 Je 1 '44 450w

"It is rather difficult to criticize a selection of books published from three to six years ago. The inclusive dates of this catalog are 1937-41. The date of publication is 1943, but the book was not received until early in 1944. Better and more up-to-date material flashes through one's mind as one examines the various classifications, but upon investigation one finds this material of later publication." P. J. Fihe

Library Q 14:264 Jl '44 700w

ABBEY, KIERAN, pseud. Beyond the dark. 235p $2 Scribner

44-2724

Detective story.

Booklist 40:305 My 1 '44

"Best of the week."

+ Boston Globe p17 Ap 12 '44 30w

Kirkus 12:31 Ja 15 '44 60w

"Something happens every minute, and all of it is terrifying and exciting." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p10 Ap 2 '44 140w

"If you aren't scared to death by the plight of the young people in this story, which is very well done, you're just getting hardened, that's all.

+ New Yorker 20:99 Mr 25 '44 70w

"Good grade."

+ Sat R of Lit 27:26 Mr 18 '44 30w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 26 '44 110w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p15 Mr 19 '44 80w

Wis Lib Bul 40:109 Jl '44

ABELL, AARON IGNATIUS. Urban impact on American protestantism, 1865-1900. 275p $3.75 Harvard univ. press [16s Oxford]

277.3 Sociology, Christian. Protestant churches—U.S. A43-3207

"The preface states that this is 'a generalized study of the religious and social effects of urban development on American Protestantism.' . . More precisely, it is a historical account of opinions, purposes, organizations, and methods emergent in more or less close connection with the effort of the Protestant churches to meet the new conditions created by rapid urban and industrial growth." Am Hist R

"The book is marred by the initial assumption—quite unnecessary as well as untrue—that the Protestant churches were concerned with the spiritual regeneration only, had no social program, and were uninterested in the poor. . . The basic defect of the work is that it takes 1900 as the close of the period to be studied and brings its account to an end just when the most interesting and important things were about to happen. . . One can forgive the author for not pressing on into the great body of material of which H. Paul Douglass' Protestant Cooperation in American Cities is typical, but it is a mistake to stop the story at 1900, and it is sheer nonsense to assert that in that year Protestants were nearing the limits of co-operation." L. A. Weigle

— Am Hist R 49:758 Jl '44 550w

Reviewed by Samuel Kincheloe

Am J Soc 50:246 N 13 '44 750w

"The vast amount of data uncovered by his research should be useful to students of the sociology of religion." M. W. Rodehaver

Am Soc R 9:440 Ag '44 350w

"The author has done a praiseworthy job in blazing a path through the woods of material which the period affords. One misses, however, a relating of the forces at work in the church to other movements powerful in this period of American society." Conrad Bergendoff

+ — Ann Am Acad 236:218 N '44 500w

Reviewed by S. C. Kincheloe

Christian Century 61:1135 O 4 '44 950w

"Mr. Abell has adequately presented the material of his investigation, but the weakness of his general historical framework prevents the book from attaining the significance which it might otherwise have had." E. S. Morgan

— + New Eng Q 17:327 Je '44 350w

ABEND, HALLETT. Treaty ports. 271p map $3 Doubleday

382 China—Commerce. China—Foreign relations. Harbors—China 44-7250

Account of the contacts of the United States with China and Japan, from the time when President Washington appointed the first American trade and diplomatic representative for the mainland of East Asia, in 1784, up to the attack on Pearl Harbor. Index.

Reviewed by Henry Murry

Book Week p9 Ag 27 '44 450w

Booklist 41:35 O 1 '44

Boston Globe p17 S 27 '44 150w

"Mr. Abend is no dry-as-dust historian, and he has plied his research with gusto, providing colorful pictures both of the early 'gilded exile' of a century back, and of later days when there was less gilt but more variety—often of a questionable sort. He has dug up a wealth of

Subject and title index at end of alphabet

ABEND, HALLETT—Continued
anecdote to which he adds interesting conclusions. Mostly these add up well." R. G.
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Ag 29 '44 500w

Reviewed by W. F. Sands
Commonweal 40:522 S 15 '44 420w

"An excellent background book of present and future value."
+ Kirkus 12:270 Je 15 '44 150w

Reviewed by W. H. Chamberlin
N Y Times p7 Ag 20 '44 900w

Reviewed by T. A. Bisson
Sat R of Lit 27:29 O 7 '44 1000w

"An understanding of this long period of ever-closer contact between West and East is immensely important for us today, providing as it does the background for our Pacific war. But unfortunately the record does not emerge very clearly from this book. The general account becomes at times highly confusing, with almost irrelevant throw-backs and previews; the descriptive sections do not always fit into the body of the book as a whole; there are parts of the story that are overwritten and omissions of far more significant material, and toward the close the pace is so rapid—less than forty pages for the last half century of our Far Eastern policy—that the overall picture is thrown badly out of focus." F. R. Dulles
— + Weekly Book Review p2 S 3 '44 850w

ABRAHAMS, LEWIS. It's all politics; il. by Fred L. Packer. 306p $2.50 Curl

324.27 Politics, Practical. Corruption (in politics). U.S.—Politics and government—20th century 44-40194

"An unsensational exposé of the inner workings of the American political system, by a New York lawyer and specialist in election laws. Discussion of lobbying, election fraud, unfair registration methods, is followed by an imposing series of word portraits of political monarchs from Boss Tweed to Mayor Hague. Concluding thesis is that an informed public opinion plus a realistic approach on the part of reformers, having already changed the political picture for the better in such cities as New York and Cincinnati, can have the same effect elsewhere. Numerous cartoons." (Booklist) Bibliography. No index.

Booklist 41:84 N 15 '44

Kirkus 12:414 S 15 '44 120w

Reviewed by F. S. Adams
N Y Times p35 O 29 '44 260w

ABRAHAMSEN, DAVID. Crime and the human mind. 244p $3 Columbia univ. press

364.34 Criminal psychology A45-403

"'This book introduces the reader to the present-day psychologic viewpoints on criminology through the medium of comprehensive historical review of the development of this subject as it has occurred in several countries and schools of thought.' Dr. Nolan Lewis thus describes the latest volume of Norwegian-born Dr. Abrahamsen, who came to this country after his country was invaded, and is now psychiatrist of the Psychiatric Clinic, Court of General Sessions, New York City." (Scientific Bk Club R) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Katherine Sanders
Book Week p3 Ja 21 '45 230w

"This is a book that should be of absorbing interest to the lay as well as the professional reader."
+ New Repub 111:846 D 18 '44 150w

"From a background rich in study and fruitful accomplishment, Dr. Abrahamsen has produced a readable volume dealing with many facets of criminology and the treatment of abnormal individuals. Illustrating the theories are many case histories that point the moral in an interesting way."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 15:3 D '44 360w

ABRAMS, TALBERT. Essentials of aerial surveying and photo interpretation. 289p il maps $3 McGraw

526.91 Surveying, Aerial. Photography, Aerial 44-6813

"The primary purpose of this new book is to bring together the many outstanding lectures and demonstrations conducted by the staff of the Abrams School of Aerial Surveying and Photo Interpretation in their capacity as instructors in the numerous photogrammetric training schools organized for the U.S. Marine Corps and the ESMWT program. From this background has been developed a concise-up-to-date book that gives a lucid description of present-day methods of map making and of the operation of modern photogrammetric equipment." (Publisher's note) Glossary. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:652 Ag '44 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:47 Jl '44

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p19 Ag 13 '44 40w

ABT, ISAAC ARTHUR. Baby doctor. (Whittlesey house publication) 310p $2.50 McGraw

B or 92 Physicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Infants—Diseases SG44-25

Autobiography of a Chicago pediatrician. Dr Abt was born in Wilmington, Illinois, in 1867 and went to Chicago to live in 1875. He received his training in Baltimore and Chicago, and has been in practice over fifty years. His book is filled with stories of his cases, stretching over that time. Index.

"Told in a clear and straightforward manner and in the simple language of a man who has had to speak to children all his life and who had to win their affection and the confidence of their mothers to become the great and beloved doctor that he is. Here is a history of medicine told simply so that everybody can understand it, and told without oversimplification so that a physician can read it with profit." Israel Davidsohn, M.D.
+ Book Week p4 F 27 '44 320w

Booklist 40:233 Mr 1 '44

Kirkus 11:567 D 15 '43 140w

"A modern mother will not find in 'Baby Doctor' a manual of child care but plenty of reason to be glad for the protection afforded by pediatrics today." Elizabeth Duval
N Y Times p8 Ap 9 '44 600w

ACHELIS, ELISABETH. Calendar for everybody. 141p $1.50 Putnam

529.5 Calendar 43-17591

"Explanation of the need, form, and advantages of the World calendar, a revised 12-month civil calendar. Historical survey of European and American calendars, including the proposed 13-month calendar, introduces the discussion." Booklist

Booklist 40:228 Mr 1 '44

N Y New Tech Bks 29:4 Ja '44

"Her arguments are presented in a thoroughly logical and persuasive manner which deserves a considered reading on the part of the public."
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 2 '44 60w

ACKER, HELEN. Three boys of old Russia; il. by Zhenya Gay. 258p $2.50 Nelson

920 Tolstoi, Lev Nikolaevich, graf—Juvenile literature. Gorky, Maxim, pseud (Alexei Maximovich Pyeshkoff)—Juvenile literature. Chaliapin, Feodor Ivanovich—Juvenile literature 44-3620

Biographical sketches of the boyhood and youth of three famous Russians: Leo Tolstoy, Maxim Gorky, and Feodore Chaliapin. For grades seven to nine.

Booklist 40:343 Je 1 '44

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 27 '44 100w

Reviewed by A M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:290 Jl '44 110w

"With so much that is good, unfortunately the mood of the book is set by the painful ghostlike portraits, suggesting death masks, drawn by Zhenya Gay."
+ — Kirkus 12:198 Ap 15 '44 130w

"Well-told biography. . . With the present interest in Russia and its renewed emphasis in school curriculum, this book should serve a useful purpose with children ten to twelve years old." M. M. Clark
+ Library J 69:504 Je 1 '44 100w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
N Y Times p10 Je 4 '44 240w

ACKERMAN, LLOYD. Health and hygiene: a comprehensive study of disease prevention and health promotion. 895p il $5 Cattell

613 Hygiene. Medicine, Preventive SG44-7

"The author has attempted to provide a book that appeals to mature minds in all walks of life. . . After introductory chapters on the hygienic concept and the causative agents in health, disease, and death, the author treats of the evolution of health concepts and practices, and evaluates these. Next follow chapters on parasitism and hypersensitiveness, nutrition, emotions and the intellect, and the hygiene of the sexual life. Lastly he treats of the exogenous poisons and physical agents in their relation to health." Am J Pub Health

---

"The author is to be commended for presenting clearly both sides of controversial questions. The frequent use of technical terms that are not familiar to the general reader leads to the suggestion that a glossary be added to this excellent treatise." E. C. Schneider
+ Am J Pub Health 34:797 Jl '44 270w

"I found nothing in this book contrary to accepted medical knowledge and opinion. I was impressed by the considerable space given to mental hygiene, not all of which is precisely in accord with my own view of things, but which is certainly not subversive or dangerous." Karl Menninger
+ Sat R of Lit 27:26 My 13 '44 1500w

ADAIR, JOHN. Navajo and Pueblo silversmiths. 220p pl diagr. $4 Univ. of Okla. press

970.673923 Navaho Indians—Art. Pueblo Indians—Art. Silversmithing 44-7567

"The history of Navajo and Pueblo silver craft has been reconstructed as a prelude to a study of the sociological significance of the craft. 'I have attempted to depict the importance of silversmithing in Navajo and Pueblo culture. The book falls into two distinct parts. The first presents the study of Navajo silver. The second gives an examination of the art of silvermaking at the pueblo of Zuñi, which is the only pueblo where the craft is extensively practiced, concluding with a short survey, mainly of a historical nature, of the art in the other pueblos.' " (Preface) Names of workers, glossary, and bibliography in appendixes. Many photographs.

Booklist 41:38 O 1 '44

Springf'd Republican p8 Ag 18 '44 300w

"When the tourist returns once more to the silent canyons of sheer red sandstone walls, and to the isolated pueblos, this volume should be on his 'must' list for information concerning Indian jewelry. It will give him valuable pointers on how to purchase good items, and it will certainly give him a more definite appreciation of the workmanship of those Indian craftsmen whose products, at their best, are equal in excellence to those of the finest silversmiths of any land." Arthur Woodward
+ Weekly Book Review p6 D 24 '44 750w

ADAMS, CLEVE FRANKLIN (JOHN SPAIN, pseud). Crooking finger. 202p $2 Reynal 44-4182

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p9 My 14 '44 90w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p12 Ap 23 '44 100w

"If you want to be scared silly, this may well do the job."
New Yorker 20:88 Ap 29 '44 80w

"Gets by."
Sat R of Lit 27:29 My 6 '44 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p11 My 7 '44 120w

ADAMS, CLEVE FRANKLIN (JOHN SPAIN, pseud). Evil star. 204p $2 Dutton 44-4100

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p9 My 14 '44 100w

"A lively yarn, even though it is a bit cockeyed." Isaac Anderson
+ — N Y Times p12 Ap 30 '44 120w

"Readable toughie."
Sat R of Lit 27:33 Ap 22 '44 40w

"The showdown is as explosive as the most blase crime yarn addict could desire. Recommended by your reporter as all that a detective story should be. But imagine—triplets!" B. I.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 30 '44 170w

"Lively, but somehow the synthetic ingredients refuse to jell." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p14 Ap 23 '44 120w

ADAMS, DOROTHY (MRS JAN KOSTANECKI). We stood alone. 284p il $3 Longmans

B or 92 Poland—Social life and customs
44-6780

An American woman, wife of the son of the rector of Cracow university, describes her European studies, her marriage, the death of her husband in a plane accident, and her return to America with her young son at the beginning of the second World war. The book also gives a picture of the life and customs in Poland during the period between two wars.

"Simple, true and strangely moving book." Rulka Langer
+ Book Week p8 O 1 '44 550w

Booklist 41:19 S '44

Reviewed by Elizabeth Watts
+ Boston Globe p17 S 6 '44 200w

"We Stood Alone will be of particular interest and value to those American readers who feel alien and bewildered when they come to the tangled story of political misunderstanding and military struggles that involve Poland. . . During fourteen years of married life, the author came to understand and love the Polish people; and her book contains an eye-witness's comments on the events which preceded Russia's invasion of Poland. Historical in substance, the book is wholly personal in style and tone, and the author presents it to the public hoping that it will serve to clear up misconceptions about the country and the people described." Joseph McSorley
+ Cath World 160:186 N '44 280w

Christian Science Monitor p10 D 16 '44 850w

"Dorothy Adams has told her story well. It is much more intimate than is indicated in this review. Personally, and for the nation she came to know and love, it is a tragic story. It indicates some of the precious human values which will be at stake in the rebuilding of a war-torn world."
+ Commonweal 40:472 S 1 '44 700w

Commonweal 41:21 O 20 '44 50w

Kirkus 12:293 Jl 1 '44 190w

ADAMS, DOROTHY—Continued
"Recommended as a sympathetic view of a Poland little understood." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 69:696 S 1 '44 110w

"A deified memory may be appealing, but a skilled propagandist would have realized that a country without faults is no more credible than a perfect man." Mary Poore
N Y Times p19 S 24 '44 360w

"Miss Adams makes a sincere attempt to say what she, as one articulate individual, can say in Poland's behalf. Though she touches occasionally on political and economic conditions, she is, however, most successful in giving a picture of the daily lives of her family and their friends, of the details of home furnishings, social functions, and family affections of a people of whom Americans know so little." Stephen Naft
+ Sat R of Lit 27:26 S 30 '44 500w

"It is the Poland of her personal relations of which Miss Adams writes, and this is Poland at its best. She married into a very intellectual and charming family, and her friends were people keenly alive to their responsibilities as Poles and as Christians. Furthermore, her life was apparently spent mainly in the great cities where Polish efforts to combat poverty, ignorance and disease were most successful. If this is an idealized picture, it is, nevertheless, a tribute to the country and its people that a foreigner should learn to love them so deeply, and should be so eager that others share her understanding and admiration." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 31 '44 380w

"To any one who shares Dorothy Adams's preconception of Poland as a melancholy waste of poverty-stricken ignorance, this book should be as persuasive as the actuality became to her." Mary Ross
+ Weekly Book Review p4 S 3 '44 950w

Wis Lib Bul 40:146 N '44

ADAMS, FRANK RAMSAY. When I come back. 286p $2.50 McBride
44-5094

A novel of the present war in which "a city in New England adjusts itself to the crisis; a long separated husband and wife make a fresh start, and the younger generation meets its destiny with valor. Among the attractive figures are a Quaker brother and sister; he is a doctor and she is a nurse in training." Weekly Book Review

---

"Usually such superficial plotting can be partially forgiven by the pertness with which it is presented—but Adams writes about like Dreiser without any of his power, and the least the reader can say is that he is not borne liltingly from page to page. There are a couple of Quaker youngsters who add a bizarre touch and are amusing when they swear at each other while using 'thee' and 'thou.' Also Bill Dineen is a very likable, disillusioned and tippling newspaperman, though I suspect I have met him before." Edith Roberts
Book Week p11 My 28 '44 270w

Booklist 41:21 S '44

"A panel of a small town at war with typical people and problems in contrast and conflict, and a presentable, if non-distinctive-handling thereof."
Kirkus 12:104 Mr 1 '44 110w

"Mr. Adams has been writing successful short stories, novels and plays for over twenty years. This is one of his less happy productions." N. P. Lowenstein
— N Y Times p19 Je 11 '44 140w

" 'When I Come Back' is truly a 'story book' and will pass the time for readers who are finding too much serious literature coming from the publishers."
Springf'd Republican p4d My 21 '44 290w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p12 My 21 '44 70w

ADAMS, FRANKLIN PIERCE. Nods and becks. (Whittlesey house publication) 246p $2 McGraw 818 44-9158

A collection of brief essays, paragraphs, jingles, extracts from diaries, which have appeared over the initials F. P. A. in the Herald Tribune, the New York Post, and the New Yorker during the last two decades. An introductory chapter tells how F. P. A. came to be one of the "experts" on Information Please.

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p2 O 29 '44 130w

Booklist 41:104 D 1 '44

"This thoroughly enjoyable compilation may be picked up, read, put down . . . but dollars to doughnuts it will be picked up for rereading."
+ Boston Globe p12 N 22 '44 200w

"Ideal bedside book—perfect escape reading for the strenuous life."
+ Kirkus 12:390 S 1 '44 140w

"It is still a pleasure to read Mr. Adams' paragraphs, so exact, economical, and pointed, so full of good sense and wit."
+ New Yorker 20:54 D 30 '44 50w

Reviewed by Gerald Johnson
Weekly Book Review p2 Ja 14 '45 650w

ADAMS, HENRY. War of 1812; ed. by H. A. DeWeerd. 377p maps $3 Infantry journal
973.52 U.S.—History—War of 1812 A44-5430

This volume of excerpts from Henry Adams' nine-volume History of the United States, 1801-1817, tells the story of the War of 1812, chiefly in its military aspects. Index.

Reviewed by E. D. Branch
Book Week p6 S 10 '44 270w

N Y Times p4 Ag 13 '44 240w

"This volume should be read and pondered over by all Americans. It is not only salutary history, but also American literature at its best." Donald Armstrong
+ Sat R of Lit 27:23 S 9 '44 550w

Reviewed by R. A. Brown
Springf'd Republican p10 S 22 '44 280w

ADAMS, HENRY HITCH. English domestic or homiletic tragedy, 1575 to 1642. 228p $2.50 Columbia univ. press
822.09 English drama—History and criticism. Religion in literature A44-280

Account of the development in English drama of the moral-religious tragedy, which covers the years 1575 to 1642. During these years the hero of the drama was usually a person of lowly station, differing from the classical tragedy which dealt with the misfortunes of the high born. Bibliography. Index.

"In this careful analysis of a dramatic form hitherto not adequately studied, Dr. Adams has contributed an interesting chapter to the history of popular education in religion and morals as well as to the history of English drama."
+ Christian Century 61:49 Ja 12 '44 300w

"A scholarly account, richly illustrated."
+ Theatre Arts 28:383 Je '44 20w

ADAMS, JAMES DONALD. Shape of books to come. 202p $2.50 Viking
810.9 American literature—History and criticism 44-9991

Essays forming a survey of American literature since 1900, by the American author and critic who edited The New York Times Book Review from 1925 to 1943. Partial contents: The heavy hand of Dreiser; The tough guys; Main street and the dust bowl; The songs for a people; Roots for America; The shape of books to come. Index.

"The single word which best characterizes J. Donald Adams and his influence on American literature is 'integrity.' Through the postwar period of disillusion and dismay Adams, as editor of the New York Times Book Review until 1943, remained steadfastly one of our most clear-sighted and imperturable commentators on the literary scene. And certainly no man has believed more firmly in the affirmations of our democratic culture." Hudson Strode

+ Book Week p10 N 26 '44 500w
Booklist 41:121 D 15 '44

"This is the sort of book I'd like to be able to write about the books published in America during the last twenty five years. Perhaps for that reason, I found it absorbingly interesting. . . A valuable addition to modern criticism."
+ Kirkus 12:464 O 1 '44 450w

"Recommended for general purchase." H. S. Taylor
+ Library J 69:998 N 15 '44 80w

"Obviously Mr. Adams's book will be considered positive, wholesome, and wise. But it almost makes at least one reader homesick for the days before Huxley met Gerald Heard, the days before Mr. Douglas and Mr. Cronin were heard of, the days when Franz Werfel was a poet, the days when Lawrence and Joyce slapped the philistines where it hurts. Mr. Adams edited the New York Times Book Review from 1925 to 1943; hence the fact, unfriendly readers may think, that what he chiefly knows about books past, present, and to come, is their shape." E. R. Bentley
Nation 159:660 N 25 '44 360w

"'The Shape of Books to Come' is controversial and well worth reading. The weakest part is the commentary on poetry. Luckily Mr. Adams does not dwell on this subject. It does not seriously mar an otherwise stimulating and intelligent work." Robert Hillyer
+ — N Y Times p5 N 19 '44 850w

"If his literary history seems to me a trifle shaky here and there, Mr. Adams utters many revealing dicta on men and books in his central chapters." H. M. Jones
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:25 D 2 '44 1150w

Reviewed by Marshall Bragdon
Springf'd Republican p6 D 2 '44 600w

"Of all the books that Mr. Adams has read of late years probably 'The Opinions of Oliver Allston' by Van Wyck Brooks has come nearest to eliciting his approval, since its attitude is closely akin to his own. Like Mr. Brooks he is inclined to blame writers of fiction for an undue preoccupation with the sordid and painful sides of life and to distrust writers of criticism who group themselves in special coteries. The charge of oversimplification may easily be preferred against both Mr. Brooks and Mr. Adams, and it may be said of them in common that they neglect the critic's obligation to investigate the deep-lying causes of the conditions that they deplore. Yet it may be urged in their defense that only very recently has the critic come to be regarded primarily as a clinical specialist." G. F. Whicher
Weekly Book Review p5 N 26 '44 1050w

ADAMS, JAMES TRUSLOW, ed. Album of American history: Colonial period. 411p il maps $7.50 Scribner

973 U.S.—History—Colonial period. U.S.—Social life and customs—Colonial period (44-706)

"This is a picture book covering the history of our country from the day Columbus almost set foot upon our shores to Cornwallis' surrender and the rush of migration over the Alleghenies. Around 1,600 pictures are included. Many of these are extremely rare or practically unknown. . . As far as possible contemporary records of the historic scene are used. . . Supplementing these are the pictures by men who were not exactly eyewitnesses but close to the period. . . Besides the factual captions there is a running commentary of about fifty words to a page." N Y Times

---

"It is a real look, a visual look into America of another day. This is a book to own, to keep on your bedside or library table, rather than on your bookshelves." A. C. Spectorsky
+ Book Week p4 Mr 12 '44 260w
Booklist 40:265 Ap 1 '44
Bookmark 5:11 Mr '44
Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 13 '44 480w

"This imposing volume announces itself on the flyleaf as 'related' to the Dictionary of American Biography and to Scribner's Dictionary and Atlas of American history. . . The Album, however, lacks any index and contains many pictures—such as photographs of old trees, natural scenery, and wild animals—which would have no place in a reference work. It is, in fact, an attempt to tell the history of colonial America through pictures; and it has been edited 'with a view to presenting a panorama of the life of the times rather than with the thought of showing every house, or implement or piece of furniture that is usually considered historically important.' In broad outline this intent has been carried out: the pictures do convey a lively panorama of colonial life. But the book has been put together in such a manner as to irritate the reader at every turn." E. S. Morgan
— + New Eng Q 17:459 S '44 900w

"Since there are hardly more than 20,000 words in the commentary, it should have been carefully thought out. There are too many offhand remarks, inaccurate or misleading. One is puzzled to know why certain statements are made. . . Having made this unfavorable comment on the text, I would like to say how valuable and stimulating a collection of pictures this is. A few hours' more work would have made this a magnificent picture book, not merely a book with magnificent pictures" Esther Forbes
+ — N Y Times p3 F 27 '44 1000w

"A badly organized, badly edited, badly printed, and badly presented collection. . . It would seem difficult to take material of such interest and make it dull, very dull, but that is just what Mr. Adams and his associates have done. There is no index, either. An uninspired example of book-making."
— New Yorker 20:82 Mr 4 '44 90w

Reviewed by F. T. Howe
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 26 '44 550w

"The Album of American History is recommended for home use or for libraries and schools needing additional illustrative material for circulation. Because it lacks an index, recommendation of it as a reference book is withheld pending completion of the set."
+ — Subscription Bks Bul 15:25 Jl '44 800w
Time 43:99 Mr 13 '44 1100w
Times [London] Lit Sup p419 Ag 26 '44 120w

"The enthusiasm of any one who opens this 'Album of American History' is guaranteed. I cannot imagine a household of growing children without it. I cannot imagine a man, once his nose is in its pages, ever surrendering it to insistent wife or curious offspring until he has studied every picture and read every caption from Columbus's landing to the view of Detroit in 1794." Richardson Wright
+ Weekly Book Review p4 F 27 '44 1200w
Wis Lib Bul 40:53 Ap '44

ADAMS, JAMES TRUSLOW. The American; the making of a new man. 404p $3 Scribner

973 National characteristics, American. U.S.—History 43-51259

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

"This is a vast array of specific historical facts skillfully woven together into a narrative of the history, not of the American, but of Americans. . . The volume is an excellent background for any student of regionalism, in spite of some perhaps necessary stereotyping. Actually a trade book, it might well have been written as a textbook on the development of American nationality." S. H. Britt
+ Am Soc R 9:453 Ag '44 250w

"This latest in the long and distinguished series of James Truslow Adams' historical studies leaves me, I must confess, with a sense of letdown. Whatever have been his shortcomings in the past, they have never been of the kind which stem from the want of an original and provocative mind. In The American, though, I miss the high buoyancy which has heretofore transfused Adams' writing. For once, I am sorry to say, there is nothing new in either his material or his approach." A. B. Miller

ADAMS, J. T.—Continued

Ann Am Acad 233:238 My '44 270w

Bookmark 5:14 Ja '44

Cleveland Open Shelf p1 Ja '44

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:494 Ap '44 20w

Reviewed by Oscar Handlin
New Eng Q 17:319 Je '44 1000w

"Mr. Adams appears to have written this book in a spirit of relaxation. Drawing upon his extensive knowledge of American history, he gives the reader the benefit of points of view derived from years of writing, travel and reflection. Perhaps this somewhat easygoing approach has been responsible for a number of errors of fact which, while not particularly serious in themselves, have needlessly marred a book which is on the whole very well worth reading." W. E. Stevens

+ — Pol Sci Q 59:109 Mr '44 800w

"Those acquainted with Adams' earlier works will find little new in the interpretations. His appraisal of New England life and influence is much the same. He follows closely the Turnerian conception of the frontier and its influence. He emphasizes again and again the significance of the 'American Dream.' He seldom allows himself consciously to be influenced by newer economic interpretations. This is particularly true in his discussion of the Constitution." H. U. Faulkner

+ — Social Educ 8:231 My '44 500w

Reviewed by D. W. Brogan
Spec 172:552 Je 16 '44 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p362 Jl 29 '44 300w

ADAMS, JAMES TRUSLOW. Frontiers of American culture; a study of adult education in a democracy. 364p $2.50 Scribner

374 Education of adults. Education—U.S. 44-4661

"[This book] seeks to interpret the entire American experience in adult education as an important manifestation in the development of a folk culture within the nation." (Foreword) Partial contents: Education by living; The new America; The adult education jumble; The growth of talk; Women demand their share; Adult education for workers; Institutions and adult education; University extension; The government steps in; Adult education after the war. Selected bibliography on adult education. Index.

Booklist 40:351 Je 15 '44

Reviewed by R. J. Purcell
Commonweal 40:259 Je 30 '44 700w

"This is a sprightly book, written with freshness and enthusiasm and in a conversational vein. Adult educators will welcome the first section, which, although largely an extension of his Epic of America, vigorously and specifically demonstrates the relationship of adult education to our historical development. The final, somewhat hurried, summary of present-day practices will be enjoyable reading for the general reader, but it lacks the profound understanding of purposes and methods which is to be found in other writings on the subject, notably the survey of the Literature of Adult Education by Beals and Brody." S. A. Edge

+ Library Q 15:79 Ja '45 900w

"A highly readable work of broad social meaning." E. F. Goldman

+ Nation 159:160 Ag 5 '44 600w

"This is one of the best of the many books Mr. Adams has written. He is a historical idea-man who is at his best when philosophizing and generalizing. The topic of adult education and its role in American life affords him wide scope and he employs it admirably. Anyone interested in 'post-war planning' will find this volume vigorously written, absorbing and challenging, whether or not he agrees with its conclusions. It is a rare example of the application of history to the understanding and solution of current problems." Carl Bridenbaugh

+ N Y Times p20 My 28 '44 750w

"Mr. Adams has shown us what he could have done, as he did in discussing women in adult education, workers' education, etc.; had he devoted more time and thought to an evaluation and fuller description of adult education, rather than seek to write another chapter in his 'Epic of America,' the book would be richer in value. It's Mr. Adams's breezy style . . . his recognition of the practical distinctions and problems in the program, his keen insight into the birth of forms of adult education, his sound treatment of inadequacies in adult education in early American history, and his general appraisal of present forms of the program, that make the book interesting reading." Harold Fields

+ — Sat R of Lit 27:13 Je 3 '44 1450w

School & Society 59:352 My 13 '44 80w

"An interesting and occasionally exciting book. It is best in appraising the 19th century ingredients of what we now call adult education. Approaching the present, he loses the special advantage of the historian—familiarity with finished events—and professional caution deters him from some laymen's cocksure diagnoses of today's tangle and tomorrow's trend. Yet this is a book that a great many people would find both entertaining and suggestive, if they do not require tidy classifications and definitions." Marshall Bragdon

+ — Springf'd Republican p6 My 27 '44 800w

"Mr. Adams is correct in recognizing adult education as a jumble of activities. He is right, too, in keeping the amateur approach, but he is too good a historian to expect us not to be uneasy at the intrusion of his own personal feelings. The book will be read with pleasure by all interested in American social history, with impatience by those conversant with current trends and thoughts in the field, even when they agree with him most." W. S. Lynch

+ — Survey G 33:461 N '44 320w

Reviewed by G. W. Johnson
Weekly Book Review p12 Je 11 '44 650w

Wis Lib Bul 40:106 Jl '44

ADAMS, NICHOLSON BARNEY. Heritage of Spain; an introd. to Spanish civilization. 331p pl $4; educ ed $2.50 Holt

914.6 Spain—Civilization 43-17428

Historical survey of Spanish literature, music, art, and architecture from the days of the Roman occupation to the 1930's. The author is professor of Spanish at the University of North Carolina. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Bergen Evans
Book Week p7 Mr 12 '44 310w

Booklist 40:269 Ap 1 '44

"There nas been room—more than room—for a review of Spanish cultural achievement. This is it."

Commonweal 39:546 Mr 17 '44 750w

Current Hist 6:357 Ap '44 60w

Foreign Affairs 22:664 Jl '44 20w

"Scholarly critical appreciation, concise arrangement and handling of material, good illustrations, bibliography and index—for good background material for individual or group study of the country. I know of no other like it."

+ Kirkus 12:93 F 15 '44 110w

"Author is authority on Spain and his original style and wit make history seem very alive. Books about Spain are in great demand and this book will fill a very special need. Very full bibliography, good index and numerous well-chosen illustrations. Highly recommended." H. P. Bolman

+ Library J 69:158 F 15 '44 70w

"Professor Adams is urbanely yet warmly aware that his book has a missionary role. Without departing from the canons of academic exposition he writes with a lively and quiet wit—and the contagious enthusiasm of one who knows and loves the things whereof he treats." B. D. Wolfe

+ N Y Times p7 Mr 5 '44 800w

"'The Heritage of Spain' reviews in brief but remarkably clear style 2000 years of Spanish history. Art, literature, politics, climate, science and several other aspects in a condensed outline that is at once informative and provocative. The reader experiences the satisfaction of learning, realizes the limitations of the information, and finds himself being carefully directed toward more complete sources in every field." S. M. Gross

+ Springf'd Republican p8 D 7 '44 300w

Wis Lib Bul 40:53 Ap '44

ADAMS, PERRY. On such as we. 288p $2.50 Bobbs

44-3342

Story of a charming but utterly shameless woman, whose drunkenness and promiscuity very nearly wrecked the life of a dutiful, college-age son, until he decided to take things into his own hands. The main characters are Americans, but the scene is Switzerland.

"If there is anything more odious than comparison it is perhaps guessing, but I cannot resist the speculation that the author is still young in years, for there is a kind of youthful hypersensibility in the treatment of the sophistication with which he deals—which is even reflected in the title, taken from the Yale Whiffenpoof song about 'poor little lambs who have lost our way.' There are moments though, when his touch is sure, notably when he goes frankly into the farcical, as with Toon, the mathematics coach, and his absurd passion for Fable." Peter De Vries

— + Book Week p9 Ap 2 '44 550w

"Obviously the book is intended as a psychological study with deep undertones and a frothy surface. Its light and lengthy conversations are choppy and realistic, but seem no more portentous than most cocktail bar talk." Beatrice Sherman

— N Y Times p12 Je 4 '44 180w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p13 Ap 23 '44 140w

ADAMS, RAMON F. Western words; a dictionary of the range, cow camp and trail. 182p $3 Univ. of Okla. press

427.9 Cowboys. English language—Slang. Americanisms 44-40294

"A collection of almost three thousand words and phrases connected with the cattle business. . . Extended discussions of the origins of such terms as 'maverick' and 'dogie.'" New Yorker

"Ramon F. Adams, a businessman of Dallas, Tex., with a liking for cattle country folklore and a passion for Westernisms, has rounded up some 3,000 words and phrases of cowboy lingo that will edify scholars and philologists and delight lay readers like myself." Peter Quinn

+ Book Week p4 D 24 '44 310w

Booklist 41:165 F 1 '45

"Mr. Adams' book . . . is a fine performance." Ernest Haycox

+ N Y Times p29 Ja 14 '45 700w

New Yorker 20:54 D 30 '44 40w

"Mr. Adams has performed a major service for everybody interested in the West in this splendid dictionary, and he has further endeared himself to readers by allowing a favorite word to lead him into some yarn of the cow camp. His book totes a double threat for it can be read for sheer pleasure as well as being invaluable as a reference volume." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p4d D 17 '44 600w

ADAMS, SAMUEL HOPKINS. Canal town. 466p $2.75 Random house

44-40112

Palmyra, New York, in 1820, is the scene of this novel. Young Dr Horace Amlie comes to Palmyra, imbued with the instincts of a crusader. His effort to clean up the town, with its dysentery and malaria among the canal workers, does not add to his popularity. But it is a rare case, involving the daughter of Palmyra's wealthy Genter Latham, which for a time proves Horace's undoing.

"The plot is the least important element of the novel. What counts is the elaborate, colorful, and affectionate portrait of a canal town in its growing pains. Obviously Mr. Adams has not only gone back to the sources but has lived with them for a long time before writing his account of a young doctor setting up his practice." W. D. Edmonds

+ Atlantic 173:125 Je '44 420w

"Few can surpass Adams in the spinning of a fast-moving yarn, and 'Canal Town' gives new evidence of his skill. There is something more, however, than a gossamer romance, for the historical background is built with meticulous and obviously authentic detail—thorough enough to be convincing but not complicated enough to become ponderous or to impede the rapid flow of the narrative." Jack Conroy

+ Book Week p3 Ap 30 '44 550w

Booklist 40:318 My 15 '44

"Walter D. Edmonds has blessed the volume by lending Mr. Adams the notes upon which he based his own Erie novels, and Mr. Adams has used them and the results of his own research to write knowingly, but blithely and good-humoredly, one of his best books." Ray McPartlin

+ Boston Globe p17 Ap 26 '44 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '44

"This is Samuel Adams' most important book since Gorgeous Hussy."

+ Kirkus 12:82 F 15 '44 300w

"Based on half-forgotten records and family legends, author has 'written a historical novel devoid of historical characters.' A good tale with an air of freshness and originality." J. C. Shipman

+ Library J 69:354 Ap 15 '44 110w

Reviewed by Catharine Brody

N Y Times p6 Ap 23 '44 500w

"Mr. Adams knows his Erie lore so well and has boned up so thoroughly on American medical history in the early part of the last century that nobody who reads the book can fail to learn a good deal about what life in general and the practice of medicine in particular was like in a boom town a century and a quarter ago. . . Don't let all this emphasis on local color and medical research make you shy off, for Mr. Adams has cranked out the smooth sort of story we have learned to expect of him."

+ New Yorker 20:78 My 20 '44 180w

"Mr. Adams's sure hand on the plot, his knowledge of human nature and the taste of the readers, pulls the story out of the occasional doldrums of 'cuteness.' His villains are strongly delineated and actuated by very human motives, his minor figures are picturesque and drawn with gusto, even his sympathetic characters come alive with personal crotchets and idiosyncracies." Carl Carmer

+ Sat R of Lit 27:26 Je 10 '44 450w

"One weakness in the book is the building up of curiosity, for more than 200 pages, as to how Dr Amlie could have made such an incredible error in the diagnosis of such a simple situation. The difficulty is eventually resolved by dragging in one of the rarest of all phenomena known to medical science. (There is even a footnote attesting to the actuality of the circumstances which lie back of the story.) The author's use of outlandish fact as a basis for narrative progression seems artistically naive, to say the least. Mr Adams writes very well in one particular. The novel is highly successful in depicting the conflict of mass interests, the emergence and recession of individual leaders, in short, the whole pattern of social and economic conflict." G. L. Joughin

+ — Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 30 '44 450w

"Amlie's romance with Dinty Jerrold, who as child and woman gave him her heart's devotion, is charmingly told. The book catches the flavor of the times in detail of background,

ADAMS, S. H.—Continued
characterization and manner of its telling. While it is a little overlengthy, it rarely lags in interest once the battle between Amlie and Latham becomes a personal one." Rose Feld

+ — Weekly Book Review p6 Ap 30 '44 700w

ADAMS, SCOTT, comp. O.P. market. 129p $2.50 Bowker

655.56 Booksellers and bookselling—Directories 43-18542

"A subject directory to the specialities of out-of-print book trade." (Subtitle) "A tool for order departments and other book buyers. The first half of the book is an alphabetical subject list of several hundred entries, indicating the dealers who specialize in each. This is followed by a directory of dealers, and a short list of firms who search for books." (Booklist)

Booklist 40:178 Ja 15 '44

"Mr. Adams' book discloses much information difficult to secure by the harder method of experience. . . In spite of [certain] shortcomings in the arrangement, Mr. Adams' book should be in the hands of every order librarian. Its use will help to solve many difficulties in connection with finding some of those elusive out-of-prints." Lawrence Heyl

+ — Library J 68:1014 D 1 '43 750w

ADDIS, HUGH. Dark voyage. 199p $2 Dodd 44-6375

Detective story.

"Best of the week."

+ Boston Globe p15 Ag 2 '44 60w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p21 Jl 23 '44 150w

"Good."

+ Sat R of Lit 28:40 Jl 22 '44 50w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p16 Jl 23 '44 110w

ADLER, MORTIMER JEROME. How to think about war and peace. 307p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

172.4 Peace. International cooperation 44-1144

"Author of How to Read a Book, professor of law at University of Chicago, has written a necessary guide for intelligent comprehension and criticism of the hundreds of books which have been (and will be) published about peace and postwar planning. He presents vital questions that affect both us and the generations to be and analyzes them by the historical method." Library J

Reviewed by J. S. Roucek

Ann Am Acad 233:228 My '44 500w

Reviewed by K. M. Landis, D. P. Sherman, S. I. Hayakawa, and Harold Marr

Book Week p2 F 13 '44 1750w

Booklist 40:225 Mr 1 '44

Bookmark 5:3 My '44

"As will be anticipated, Mr. Adler writes with a clarity almost mathematical. He finds points of agreement between the reasonably optimistic and the not unreasonably pessimistic. In the course of his discussion he sets down many things worthy of being remembered and pondered and quoted. In fact each of these twenty-four chapters provide material for profitable discussion by temperate men." Joseph McSorley

+ Cath World 159:470 Ag '44 270w

"The book deserves wide attention, for it will channel the thoughts of intelligent readers along lines of world security. Despite the admonition of Clifton Fadiman in a foreword, this is not a 'hard' book to read."

+ Current Hist 6:261 Mr '44 160w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:489 Ap '44 50w

"Even if one fails to agree with a conclusion, Mr. Adler's main object has been achieved; for the book is not a blueprint of the future, but a tool to stimulate thought about it. . . Recommended." H. G. Kelley

+ Library J 69:116 F 1 '44 80w

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr

Nation 158:658 Je 3 '44 1550w

"Mr. Adler's new book is even more of a curiosity than I had been led to expect. The reviews called it pretentious, but they didn't explain that most of the pretension lay in the author's attempt to revive a method of thinking and writing that hadn't been practised widely for more than two centuries. Essentially the book is an exercise in scholastic logic, presented in the almost geometrical style that used to be reserved for discussions of the Infinite and the sex life of angels. Mr. Adler, however, is dealing with the prospects of peace after the present war; and this contrast between manner and matter makes you think of a navy chaplain delivering his battle sermon in medieval Latin." Malcolm Cowley

— New Repub 110:504 Ap 10 '44 480w

"This is a challenge that anyone who is seriously interested in peace in our time and the years to come must accept. It leads to a brilliant exercise in plain and fancy thinking, during which Mr. Adler lays low one popular illusion after the other by the simple process of requiring precise definitions of all the terms used in the discussion." P. J. C. Friedlander

N Y Times p1 F 13 '44 900w

New Yorker 20:87 F 19 '44 110w

"We have a favorable report to make on this book, but it is going to be no easy job to persuade you it is worth your time. For if ever a book seemed deliberately calculated in advance to rub a reader the wrong way, this is it. The title is such a masterpiece of repulsion, such an uncomfortable specimen of arrogance and poor taste that it is almost impossible to believe that any book representing such poor judgment in this respect could reasonably be expected to exhibit better judgment in the burden of the book itself—especially with a book dealing with nothing less than the most universally complex problems of all time, exclusive, of course, of the mystery of life itself." Norman Cousins

+ — Sat R of Lit 27:10 Mr 18 '44 950w

"Read this book with an emphatic pen or pencil in hand. From beginning to end you will want to mark passages that hit you right between the eyes. Or you will, if you are willing to think with concentration on the all important subject of war and peace. Don't expect any easily conjured panaceas, however, for Dr. Adler has thought too long on the problem to propose any sentimental or superficial plan for the post-war world."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 15:2 Mr '44 500w

Springf'd Republican p7e F 13 '44 1050w

Reviewed by W. R. Huntington

Survey G 33:222 Ap '44 460w

Time 43:102 Mr 20 '44 700w

"If the author could have pruned his book down to its essentials, I think both the nature of what he is trying to do and the value of doing it would be more apparent. His insistence upon a long view is useful; certainly his warning against both the over-optimism which expects universal peace in our time and the over-pessimism which refuses even to aim for what it regards as forever unattainable is of the first importance. The challenge which he delivers to the way in which words are being used, his insistence upon definitions of peace and non-peace, is equally important." Walter Millis

+ — Weekly Book Review p3 F 20 '44 1950w

Wis Lib Bul 40:52 Ap '44

ADRIANCE, ROBERT IRVING. Using the wealth of the world; a text in economics. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 429p il $1.88 Little

330 Economics. U.S.—Economic conditions 43-12206

Textbook in economics for high school students. Author is head of Social Studies department, East Orange High school, New Jersey. Index.

Reviewed by A. B. Schmidt
Social Educ 8:143 Mr '44 400w

"It is up-to-date, well-illustrated, and the teaching aids for each chapter should prove useful to teachers. The index is quite good."
+ Social Studies 34:335 N '43 30w

ADSHEAD, GLADYS L. What Miranda knew; pictures by Elizabeth Orton Jones. [44p] $1.50 Oxford 44-9755

Tiny picture-story book describing the lonely old man and woman and their cat who lived in a little house and missed their children, who were all grown up. Then miraculously there appeared two small babies, and a flock of little angels to care for them, and everybody was happy.

"You could scarcely find a more endearing story or more charming pictures than in this tale of an elderly couple who miss the sound of young voices around the house and the patter of small feet." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p10 D 10 '44 160w
Booklist 41:141 Ja 1 '45

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 D 11 '44 70w

"An enchanting book."
+ Kirkus 12:519 N 15 '44 150w

Reviewed by Olive Brain
Library J 70:72 Ja 15 '45 70w

"Definitely for an adult to use with children. Not recommended for library purchase." K. H. McAlarney
Library J 70:72 Ja 15 '45 40w

"The story is negligible but the pictures have charm and more humor than the text. Small children will enjoy the gaiety of Miranda's antics and the activities of the angel nurses as they care for their charges." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p10 D 31 '44 130w

"Here is a picture-book to charm the eye and tug at the heart: Christmas will not see one more delicious." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 D 10 '44 300w

AESOP. Fables; il. by Emery Kelen; ed. and rewritten by Elizabeth Stones. (Hyperion bk) 71p $2.50 Duell 398 Fables 44-9756

Aesop's fables retold and newly illustrated for children in grades two to five.

Booklist 41:156 Ja 15 '45
Kirkus 12:450 O 1 '44 40w

"With the original and amusing pictures in bright colors by Emery Kelen, this edition should appeal even to children who might not otherwise be attracted to Aesop. Perhaps, not a 'must,' but certainly a welcome addition to any library." J. D. Lindquist
+ Library J 69:1050 D 1 '44 50w

AGUIRRE, JOSE ANTONIO DE. Escape via Berlin. 361p $3 Macmillan
946.6 Basque provinces. Spain—History—Civil war, 1936-1939. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, Basque 44-9621

"Account of experiences of the President of the Basques in escaping from Europe to the United States via South America. Much of the material was part of his diary kept during his exile. Preceding it is a short review of the history of the Basques. Following is a valuable discussion of world politics today and of the place of the United States in foreign affairs. Author is member of the faculty of Columbia University and keen observer of trends of thought here and abroad." Library J

Reviewed by R. R. Plant
Book Week p3 D 17 '44 550w
Booklist 41:104 D 1 '44
Boston Globe p31 N 29 '44 80w

"This is a remarkably colorful and vivid story which not only recites a series of exciting adventures among friends and enemies who could not always be easily distinguished, but also reveals some of the political intricacies in which an anti-Franco Spaniard found himself involved in nazi-dominated Europe."
+ Christian Century 61:1418 D 6 '44 230w
Christian Science Monitor p14 N 17 '44 370w

Reviewed by Alfredo Mendizabal
Commonweal 41:280 D 29 '44 650w

"A readable and entertaining book."
+ Kirkus 12:393 S 1 '44 120w

"Recommended for large and medium-sized libraries and smaller ones with adequate book funds for books on world affairs." E. S. Brown
+ Library J 69:812 O 1 '44 90w

"Dignified and uncommonly well-written book." Ralph Bates
+ Nation 159:722 D 9 '44 330w
New Repub 111:814 D 11 '44 160w

"His book, like his life and that of his people, is based upon an implicit belief that man's better nature can be counted on in the end to draft a peace and shape a world that is worthy of it. It is this undertone of social hope heard even amid the terror of his flight that makes 'Escape Via Berlin' a moving and meaningful book." B. D. Wolfe
+ N Y Times p3 N 19 '44 900w

"The most remarkable escape story that has yet come out of the war. . . His story has depth, it has elevation, and it has truth. In brief, a highly civilized book by a highly civilized man."
+ New Yorker 20:91 N 18 '44 230w

"Dr. de Aguirre's powerful plea for a sincere Catholicism which fights for liberty assumes a new importance at this time when the Spanish question has again become an international question and this country's relations with Argentina have reached a crucial point." H. B. Kranz
Sat R of Lit 27:26 N 18 '44 750w

Reviewed by R. S. Scott
Springf'd Republican p4d D 10 '44 460w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
Survey G 34:24 Ja '45 430w

"In the great manhunt that followed in 1940 upon the Nazi eruption into and through France to the Pyrenees—and somewhat beyond—there could hardly have been a more notable quarry than Jose Antonio de Aguirre, the president of the Basques. His extraordinary book sets a new high in this war's literature of escape." Jay Allen
+ Weekly Book Review p5 N 19 '44 1750w

AHERN, ELEANOR. New washday. 137p il spir pa $1.50 Barrows
648.1 Laundry 44-40131

"Whether the job involves a family washing or merely a gentle sudsing of gloves and lingerie, this handbook details the proper methods of washing various materials and describes the soap preparations which may be safely used for each." Christian Science Monitor

Booklist 40:352 Je 15 '44

Reviewed by Helen Henley
Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 13 '44 70w

"This book giving recommendations for home laundering of different types of textile articles is intended for use of the housewife and is non-technical. For the purpose for which it is intended, the subject of fabrics and their washing characteristics is well covered. The book, however, has various shortcomings. More attention should have been paid to the subject of the softness of hardness of the water used in washing. The discussion of bleaching is also inadequate. Chlorine bleaching should be done only under carefully controlled conditions, always in a heavy suds bath." D. S. Lyle
+ — J Home Econ 36:659 D '44 200w
Kirkus 12:229 My 15 '44 130w

AIKEN, CONRAD POTTER. The soldier; a poem. 32p $1 New directions
811 44-51024

A single long poem, tracing the history of the common soldier down thru history to modern times. It points the moral that there can be no lasting peace until we have achieved self-mastery.

"Conrad Aiken's fine poem, timely as the latest military advance on the Western front, is concerned with the timelessness of the soldiering profession." Leo Kennedy
+ Book Week p6 D 24 '44 360w

"Conrad Aiken's panorama of human history is curiously insubstantial, the single constant dimension being time. Even then it is not the philosopher's time, nor the physicist's. His dream-constants are very different from the intellect's abstracts, and neither can perform the other's functions. . . Although here and there the poem recalls Latin verse, and here and there the wintry Anglo-Saxon, rhythmically the compelling echo is Browning's Saul. The contrasts between The Soldier and Saul are startling and funny, and deeply disquieting." Margaret Avison
— + Canadian Forum 24:241 Ja '45 480w

"Adroitly conceived, adequately stated, but not appealing. Large libraries only." E. L. Lewis
Library J 69:812 O 1 '44 70w

"Traces of Eliot appear, but the general awed and tear-choked tone is of the civilian onlooker who, in time of war, is compelled to write something flattering about Mars to relieve his anxiety and cheer himself up."
New Yorker 20:54 D 30 '44 50w

AIKEN, MRS JANET RUTH (RANKIN). Commonsense religion; Isaiah 54. 115p $1.25 Quarry bks, Ridgefield, Conn.
289.9 Religions (proposed, universal, etc.) 43-13702

"[The author] envisions and advocates a personal relationship with God that is at once realistic and imaginative. . . Mrs Aiken seems to have an anthropomorphic concept of God, yet to believe in Him (she dislikes the capitalized pronoun) as an abstract entity. One thing is definite: Mrs Aiken is scornful of 'organized' religion. The suggestion that organization has adulterated or supplanted Christianity is not original, but the author makes a fetish of disorganization while tilting at dogma, theology and the orthodox view of sin. Yet she places considerable emphasis on the importance of visions, prophecy and even the personal power of healing. When she discusses the social and economic implications of religion, she reminds one of the theories of Henry George mixed with the abstraction perfectionism of Brook Farm." Springf'd Republican

Christian Century 60:919 Ag 11 '43 20w

"Her ideas are at times difficult to grasp, and more difficult to present in brief. To this reader they suggest an abstract of religion rather than a practicing faith, though to her they seem vital and personal. . . 'Commonsense Religion' is probably a good example of one's partial inability to communicate and explain intuitive beliefs. Certainly in expounding her faith the author is sometimes dogmatic, sometimes confusing. Yet she writes with force and distinction, and readers with a taste for such discussion may find stimulus in her book." L. S. M.
+ — Springf'd Republican p6 F 2 '44 230w

AIRCRAFT annual, 1944; ed. by David C. Cooke. (V 1) 288p il $3 McBride
629.13 Aeronautics—Yearbooks (43-51350)

"Review of recent aeronautical activities. Chapters on various phases of military aviation, American air transport, new aircraft, and manufacturing. . . No index." Booklist

Booklist 40:158 Ja 1 '44
Library J 69:31 Ja 1 '44 20w

AKERS, SUSAN GREY. Simple library cataloging. 3d ed rev 197p $2.25 A.L.A.
025.3 Cataloging 44-40150

"Changes in cataloging dictated by the use of the preliminary second edition of the A.L.A. catalog rules, the fourteenth edition of the Dewey Decimal classification, the fourth edition of Sears's List of subject headings, and the availability of printed catalog cards from H. W. Wilson company have resulted in this revised edition of a convenient library tool. A short section on the process of withdrawing books has been added." (Booklist) For earlier editions see Book Review Digest, 1927, 1934.

Booklist 40:391 Jl 15 '44

"The book is logical in its arrangement and scholarly in its execution. Miss Akers has made a real contribution to the literature of library science." Evelyn Elliott
+ Library J 69:878 O 15 '44 340w

"While its service 'as collateral reading in the early stages of first-year cataloging courses' is listed as the author's third and last purpose in writing, the earlier editions have proved to be a dependable source for clarifying the thinking of beginning students who not infrequently find the complexities of the study confusing. The publication of a third edition, more than twice the length of the first edition of 1927, further confirms the position the manual is accorded." Dorothy Charles
+ Library Q 15:88 Ja '45 850w

ALBERT, ARTHUR LEMUEL. Fundamentals of telephony. 374p il $3.25 McGraw 621.385 Telephone 44-912

The book is designed for beginning students and telephone workers. Material in the first four chapters, on basic electrical theory, sound, speech, and hearing, is condensed from the author's Electrical Fundamentals of Communication (Book Review Digest, 1943). The remaining material is on telephone transmitters, receivers, sets, manual and dial systems, circuits, problems of transmission, etc. Contains review questions. Index.

Booklist 40:228 Mr 1 '44

"Will be very useful."
+ Library J 68:959 N 15 '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:12 Ja '44

ALBRAND, MARTHA. Endure no longer. 340p $2.50 Little 44-3607

Novel of life in Germany during the years 1914 to 1932. It is the story of a daughter of a Prussian officer and a beautiful mother whose money came from "trade." Frederica was torn between the intolerance of her stuffy father, and the gentleness and understanding of her grandfather, and finally left home to make a name for herself. When Frederica's Jewish husband is shot by a band of Nazi hoodlums, she tries to carry on alone, but finally decides to leave Germany.

"If Mrs. Albrand believes, as was once believed widely, that the Prussian spirit is what is wrong with Germany, she has not furthered her cause with this book. None of the Germans, not even the workers herein, has anything better to offer. In fact, if anything is proved it is that a future Hitler will have as easy a time taking over the country as had the present one. My own belief is that 'Endure No Longer' is an earlier, prewar book by Mrs. Albrand and one which it was a mistake to publish, particularly at this time. I would prefer to believe that she did not write it." D. B. Hughes
— Book Week p13 Ap 23 '44 650w
Booklist 40:304 My 1 '44

"'Endure No Longer' is not particularly well constructed as a novel, but it deserves reading and it makes a singular appeal because of its total lack of bitterness or empty-witted polemic."
+ — Commonweal 40:42 Ap 28 '44 400w

Kirkus 12:81 F 15 '44 350w

"In her new book, as always, Martha Albrand tells a good story, with sincerity and imagination and holds the reader to the end. But this novel is straight fiction and must be judged by other standards than skill in contrivance and maintenance of suspense. . . 'Endure No Longer' is well thought out as to plot and the author brings to the writing of the story enough personal experience of pre-war Germany to make the background vivid and factual. This essay at clinical appraisal does not fall short of the mark through lack of grasp on the author's part. Miss Albrand's writing is warm and clear. But she only skims the surface of her material. She is too quick, too general, too pat." Catherine Maher

+ — N Y Times p6 Ap 23 '44 500w

"This novel makes for interesting reading and Frederica's turbulent life is but a reflection of the unrest which was sweeping Germany during the years of peace." H. J. Sloan

+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 23 '44 400w

"I have no means of knowing how actual are this book's pictures of life among the Prussian aristocracy, of the mêlée in the post-war Germany of inflation and unemployment, the rising tide of Nazi outrage. The story is lively and arresting; but it leaves you disturbed as to what the future could be for any decent people in Germany." Mary Ross

+ — Weekly Book Review p6 Ap 23 '44 800w

Wis Lib Bul 40:110 Jl '44

ALDRIDGE, JAMES. Sea Eagle. 310p $2.50 Little 44-1736

Angus Burke, an Australian left behind when the Allies evacuated Crete, makes his way from one hideout to another in his efforts to reach the sea and the war in Africa. With the aid of the Greek, Nisus (Sea Eagle) Burke finally makes his escape, after helping in a Metaxist revolution.

"The peculiar strength of this masculine book is in its ability to transmit first understanding, then humor, then the fiercest loyalty, man to man, so that under the vicious fire of the machine guns on the beach the truth is demonstrated that all wars, all rebellions, are one this spring." Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 173:127 Mr '44 300w

"A truly penetrating and understanding novel of this war's fighters against Fascism. It is a fine achievement on that score alone; yet he has also given us one of the most moving and exciting stories the war has produced." A. C. Spectorsky

+ Book Week p1 F 13 '44 1400w

Booklist 40:235 Mr 1 '44

Reviewed by N. E. Monroe
Cath World 158:601 Mr '44 90w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 20:399 S '44 80w

"A profoundly stirring story of bodily and spiritual adventures, indelibly inscribed on the reader's mind by stinging prose stripped of pretentions and amenities. A worthy successor to this young war correspondent's first novel, Signed with Their Honour [Book Review Digest, 1942]. Recommended for adult readers." H. S. Taylor

+ Library J 69:117 F 1 '44 70w

Reviewed by Charles Marriott
Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 17 '44 130w

"We could ask more of James Aldridge than he has given us in his second book on the war in Greece. The first was 'Signed with Their Honour,' an awkwardly told but honest and moving story about a squadron of English aviators killed to the last man. 'The Sea Eagle' is even more awkwardly told, sometimes to the point of utter incoherence, and it has no compensating virtues except a burning sympathy with the Greeks in their double fight against the invaders and against the tyrants at home." Malcolm Cowley

— New Repub 110:216 F 14 '44 360w

Reviewed by G. W. Stonier
New Statesman & Nation 27:228 Ap 1 '44 250w

" 'The Sea Eagle' is a better polemic than a story, a better thriller than a novel. The fact that Mr. Aldridge has chosen a Greek for protagonist—and counter-pointed with the monolithic British types he knows more intimately—has further limited his scope. For all his brilliant descriptions of war to the death, and all the crash of his big scenes, he cannot quite endow his hero with a third dimension. . . But 'The Sea Eagle' is a first-rate account for all of that. . . [It] is a bang-up adventure story, and its author is too good an adventure writer to neglect his set-up." William Du Bois

+ — N Y Times p6 F 13 '44 800w

"The quality that sets this book apart from all the other war stories we are reading is the pervading sense of dispassion and timelessness which Aldridge gets into it. That and the general quality of the writing, which is high, but chiefly that. . . Aldridge's story does not seem as real today as the stories our best correspondents are turning out—and I am not forgetting he is a soldier—but it may perhaps seem realer in some future anthology of war, where contemporaneity will matter less than the distillation of danger and courage and death, the stuff of war." N. L. Rothman

+ Sat R of Lit 27:18 Mr 4 '44 600w

Reviewed by Kate O'Brien
Spec 172:252 Mr 17 '44 600w

"The novel is an exciting and sweeping epic of revolt. It is a grand story, and the grandeur is produced by the objectivity, the Old Testament directness of its telling. The language, cast so as to give the effect of translating the Greek of the speakers, is fluid and flexible and fine. The characters, those desperate men in revolt, are alive and important. They, their cause and their devotion to it are such stuff as myths are made from. In our own world and for our time, this novel is an epic of heroes." Lee Varley

+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 20 '44 600w

" 'The Sea Eagle' certainly holds one's respect. The scene has a certain hard power, an atmosphere of resolve and doom which is not easily conveyed without heroics, has in fact been rendered in cool, truthful fashion, and there are brief, terrible incidents which imprint themselves sharply upon the imagination. Yet although it is as strongly felt as the earlier book and worth reading, 'The Sea Eagle' comes nearer failure than might have been hoped."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p125 Mr 11 '44 900w

" 'The Sea Eagle' is a swift-moving book, a noteworthy war adventure story. There are no women to slow its relentless pace, and what little sermonizing Mr. Aldridge has he saves for the last few pages. This book comes as a sharp reminder of the people of a brave island that was given up too easily and forgotten too soon." Herbert Kupferberg

+ Weekly Book Review p6 F 13 '44 700w

ALEGRIA, FERNANDO. Lautaro; tr. from the Spanish by Delia Goetz; il. by Juan Oliver. 176p $2 Farrar

Lautaro, Araucanian chief—Juvenile literature 44-7517

Historical novel for young people. "In the winter of 1550 Pedro de Valdivia, while administering Spanish discipline to an understandably resentful tribe of Chilean Indians, took as his personal page the captive son of an Araucanian chief. Some three years later the page Lautaro, scarcely twenty years of age, faced his master in battle and administered a bloody defeat to the invaders. Thus began an insurrection which pushed the Spanish back and further back, almost out of Chile. It failed because of the apathy of the lowland Indians, and Lautaro died with his cause, but he and his followers wrote an epic chapter in the history of Chile." N Y Times

ALEGRIA, Fernando—Continued
Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p20 N 26 '44 250w
Booklist 41:61 O 15 '44
Horn Bk 20:477 N '44 120w

"Vividly told, exciting reading."
+ Kirkus 12:374 Ag 15 '44 140w

"The strained, awkward style, the lack of penetration into the savage mind, the absence of any life in characterization make it difficult, dull reading to anyone save those rare children passionately interested in South America." G. M. Williams
— Library J 69:1006 N 15 '44 70w

"Cruelty, slaughter and bloodshed are not minimized in this account of struggle against the Spanish. Recommended for large and special collections." A. M. Anderson
Library J 69:1006 N 15 '44 70w

"This account of that amazing warrior won the juvenile prize in the Second Latin American Literary Prize Competition. Older boys will find it a stirring story."
+ N Y Times p6 N 12 '44 120w

"In a time when Americans, young and old, are trying to understand their neighbors to the south, the story of Lautaro should be a valuable introduction to Chile's history and its literature. It is the record of a glorious past for the young people of today. It is, moreover, an example of the sharing of their literature by the children all over the world." B. W. Shaffer
+ Sat R of Lit 27:30 N 11 '44 450w

"This won the prize for young people's books in the second Latin American Literary Competition; it is pure narrative, free and flowing. I don't know how that will affect a generation of young folks conditioned to radio history chopped up into inch-long bits of dialogue, but I hope for their sakes they give it a chance. For it is as romantic as a border ballad: it has personal combat, glory with gestures and a boy hero leaping out of history." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ja 28 '45 400w

ALFORD, LEON PRATT, and BANGS, JOHN ROBERT, eds. Production handbook; staff ed, George E. Hagemann. 1676p il $7.50 Ronald

658 Industry—Organization, control, etc. Employment management 44-9810

"Standard handbook on production principles, procedures, methods and techniques. Among the subjects are production control, purchasing, material control, storekeeping, quality control, inspection, plant layout, time study, operations analysis and standards, wage-plan design, job analysis, manufacturing costs, principles of management, materials handling and classifications and symbols." Library J

Library J 69:1001 N 15 '44 60w

"Indispensable for production executives and industrial libraries."
+ Management R 33:37 Ja '45 140w

ALLAN, DOUG. Lightning strikes once. 285p $3 McBride

910.4 Adventure and adventurers [44-47185]

Mr Allan, who conducts a radio program Thrills and chills from everywhere, here retells some of the stories of adventure told him by explorers, soldiers and adventurers in all parts of the world.

Reviewed by John Norcross
Book Week p12 N 26 '44 400w
Kirkus 12:391 S 1 '44 130w

"The adventures are thrilling in themselves, but they are so badly told that much of the thrill is lost. A serious fault in this book is that the table of contents fails to mention the names of the persons whose experiences are narrated." I. A.
— + N Y Times p18 N 26 '44 120w

"There is naturally some unevenness in quality and interest, but most of the pieces are highly entertaining. Mr Allan lets his guests tell their stories while he provides excellent continuity." J. T. C.
+ Springf'd Republican p6 D 14 '44 220w

ALLEE, MARJORIE (HILL) (MRS W. C. ALLEE). The house; il. by Helen Blair. 181p $2 Houghton 44-8096

Sequel to the Great Tradition (Book Review Digest, 1937). Merritt Lane returns to the University of Chicago for further study and joins a group of young men and women living in a cooperative house. Their troubles begin when they plan to admit a Chinese girl to the house. For older girls.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p5 N 12 '44 230w
Booklist 41:79 N 1 '44
Reviewed by H. L. Binsse
Commonweal 41:128 N 17 '44 20w
Kirkus 12:301 Jl 1 '44 90w

"Author handles unexpected happenings and reactions on individuals skilfully. Some of the same characters appeared as students in The Great Tradition. Sincerely and thoughtfully written." K. H. McAlarney
+ Library J 69:1005 N 15 '44 80w

"A fine story. . . Racial discrimination, getting a job or losing one, making adjustments to each other, and finally the part that each one will play in the war that comes—those are the situations which Merritt Lane and her friends cope with according to their backgrounds and capabilities." E. M. M.
+ N Y Times p16 N 12 '44 120w
Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 O 15 '44 500w
Wis Lib Bul 40:149 N '44

ALLEN, ADAM, pseud. See Epstein, Samuel

ALLEN, CARLETON KEMP. Democracy and the individual. 110p $1 (3s 6d) Oxford

321.8 Democracy. Representative government and representation 44-2616

"A good deal of wisdom on the subject of democracy has come out of Oxford in recent years, mainly out of Balliol. To that fertilising flow the Warden of Rhodes House adds a contribution modest in volume but rich in merit. The working principles of democracy, and the extent of the State's right to limit the liberty of the individual, are examined with . . . a most salutary common sense, notably in Dr. Allen's discussion of the justification for control in such matters as drinking, gambling and addiction to drugs. It is to this question of the degree of liberty to be claimed by the individual in an organised State that Dr. Allen, who clearly fears that an excess of zeal in planning may lead to unreasonable curtailments, directs his whole argument. His declaration that 'there is no unit of existence except the individual, and for him and by him and through him all systems of government exist' is uncompromising—and incontrovertible." Spec

---

"A pleasant well-written essay on democracy by the Warden of Rhodes House, Oxford. It could have been written by any well-meaning cultured professor who has never left his study to come down into the arena of action. . . However, it is good reading—if you have time." G. D. G.
+ Canadian Forum 24:71 Je '44 80w
Foreign Affairs 23:4 O '44 20w

"While one or two of Dr. Allen's observations on democracy in America could be contested, his little book can be recommended unreservedly, in particular as providing a most necessary incentive to clear thinking on one of the most vital issues of the day. A democratic faith needs something more solid than sentiment to rest on. No democrat after reading Dr. Allen can lack an intellectual basis for his faith."
+ Spec 172:108 F 4 '44 210w
Times [London] Lit Sup p38 Ja 22 '44 1300w

ALLEN, EDWIN BROWN; MALY, DIS, and STARKEY, S. HERBERT. Vital mathematics. 478p il $1.80 Macmillan

510 Mathematics 44-3465

"This book, for the upper grades of the senior high school, purposes to provide an understanding of the rudiments of the mathematical disciplines commonly taught in the elementary and secondary schools." School & Society

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:605 Jl '44 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:8 Ja '44

School & Society 59:255 Ap 8 '44 40w

"On account of the concentrated nature of the material in branches other than arithmetic, this book would be of advantage principally to superior students in the upper years of the high school and to ambitious persons who wish to learn the technical uses of mathematics in a short time. It might also be used by advanced classes in mathematics to review and to integrate the various branches of the subject, and it should be valuable as a means of providing mathematical training for personnel in the Army and the Navy." C. H. Schutter
+ School R 52:439 S '44 1300w

ALLEN, HAROLD BOUGHTON. Come over into Macedonia. 313p il map $3 Rutgers univ. press, New Brunswick, N.J.

309.1495 Macedonia—Social conditions. Rehabilitation, Rural. Agriculture—Macedonia 44-51358

"Macedonia . . . needed help in the years immediately following the First World War. The backlash from the ill advised and ill timed Greek effort to swarm into Asia Minor . . . led to the jamming of more than a million refugees into Macedonia in 1922. Near East Relief did notable work in meeting immediate needs. The enterprise was taken over and enlarged by the Near East Foundation, which developed the venture from one of relief to one of rehabilitation. Mr. Allen was educational director from 1928 to 1938. Attention was given to agriculture, industry, education, road-building, health and sanitation. The foundation furnished initiative, expert leadership and planning, and a certain amount of money." Christian Century

Reviewed by C. E. Black
Am Hist R 49:777 Jl '44 240w

"The best things in the book are the few pages describing the community and the social life, typical not only of the Macedonians, but of the rest of the Balkan people. On the basis of the reviewer's most intimate personal knowledge and experience, the above-mentioned descriptions are perfectly correct, truthful, and objective." B. D. Panov
+ Am J Soc 50:157 S '44 500w

Reviewed by H. N. Howard
Ann Am Acad 232:189 Mr '44 400w

"Men like Allen and his Greek staff will rebuild what barbarians have torn down. 'Come Over Into Macedonia' is shining proof that it can be done. And not only in Macedonia." Gustave Bernard
+ Book Week p6 D 26 '43 500w

Booklist 40:180 Ja 15 '44

Christian Century 60:1537 D 29 '43 230w

"One wishes that Mr. Allen had had the benefit of a literary collaborator or that more care had been taken in the editing of his work. It is pedantic in tone and there are many irrelevancies, though these faults cannot detract from the essential worth of the book as a case history of social progress and as a blueprint for the future." H. M.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p10 Mr 11 '44 430w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:500 Ap '44 30w

"The book might have satisfied a wider circle of readers had it attempted rather more and had omitted some of the more personal narrative, but its value in relation to European problems of the coming years is undoubted." A. G. Ogilvie
+ — Geog R 34:500 Jl '44 1050w

"One of the most fascinating features of this book is the author's way of placing his collaborators in the foreground. If Americans and local people inspired by them can do as well as Mr. Allen and his group—not on the small scale of Macedonia, but on the large scale of entire countries—we have every reason to face the world of tomorrow with confidence. The blueprint is contained in this book, and the inspiration." Emil Lengyel
+ N Y Times p16 Ja 30 '44 370w

"The book contains some regrettable shortcomings. First, where the attempt is made to provide a short historical background it has been so over-simplified that it borders on falsification. Second, where literary finesse is attempted the result invariably is disappointing. Third, transliteration of modern Greek causes the author to produce some curious words, such as 'eikon' (p. 142) for the more simple 'icon'. Shortcomings of this nature should not discourage the specialist and the student. There is much to be learned by those who will guide post-war relief." S. G. Chaconas
+ — Pol Sci Q 59:153 Mr '44 420w

Reviewed by J. C. Appel
Social Studies 35:281 O '44 600w

Reviewed by R. S. Scott
Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 23 '44 600w

ALLEN, HERVEY. Bedford village. 305p $2.50 Farrar

44-2461

Second volume in a series of historical novels about life in the American colonies. In the first volume, The Forest and the Fort (Book Review Digest, 1943) the story of Salathiel Albine's capture by Indians and his escape to Fort Pitt was told. In this, Sal's story is continued from November 1763 to the autumn of 1764, during which time he learns the ways of the white man from the frontiersmen—soldiers, doctors, lawyers, and traders—who are his friends. The clearing at Bedford Village, in the mountains east of the present site of Pittsburgh, and the surrounding country, is the scene.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 173:125 My '44 750w

"'Bedford Village' is a beautiful book, but it does not quite measure up to the standard previously set by Allen. The threads connecting the two volumes are not spun smoothly, and some of the author's side remarks relating to present-day affairs are out of place. . . If 'The Forest and the Fort' was almost perfect in its beauty, 'Bedford Village' is still a masterpiece, in spite of some minor shortcomings." Otto Eisenschiml
+ — Book Week p5 Mr 19 '44 480w

Booklist 40:270 Ap 1 '44

Bookmark 5:18 Mr '44

Christian Science Monitor p11 My 6 '44 600w

"I liked this better than The Forest and the Fort."
+ Kirkus 12:21 Ja 15 '44 240w

"Recapitulatory prelude makes this novel complete in itself. Highly recommended." H. G. Kelley
+ Library J 69:262 Mr 15 '44 70w

"Any American who wishes to explore the history of his origin will find 'Bedford Village' a stimulating experience—despite its stretches of overflowing local color, which the author has simply neglected to mold into workable fictional form. This criticism is set down advisedly. 'Bedford Village' can hardly be reviewed as a novel, though the publisher's blurb assures us that it may be read as such; when it takes its proper place in the completed whole, it may well appear as a muted but important transition. For the present, we can only accept its vivid high-lights gratefully—and admit that it lacks much of the excitement of its predecessor." William Du Bois
+ — N Y Times p3 Mr 19 '44 1100w

ALLEN, HERVEY—Continued

"The novel has the admirable documentation for which Mr. Allen can be counted on and the action rolls along smoothly and cheerfully, but people who are looking for anything comparable to the excitement of 'Anthony Adverse' will be awfully let down."

+ — New Yorker 20:94 Mr 25 '44 180w

"This is altogether a worthy successor of Mr. Hervey's first novel in his series, and despite some prosy passages in the descriptive pages, and some rather juvenile bits of action in the adventurous pages, it will appeal to a wide body of readers as enjoyable and instructive. That it will fit artistically into the long narrative the author has planned remains to be demonstrated, for nothing like the full outlines of his great structure are yet visible." Allan Nevins

+ Sat R of Lit 27:8 Mr 25 '44 700w

Time 43:102 Ap 3 '44 550w

"With all his invention and narrative skill, Mr. Allen does not quite bring the scene or the story to life. The picture he draws is informed and sympathetic, graphic in detail, without achieving what in the last resort is to be described as the semblance of reality. Still, 'Bedford Village' has its interest, and those who do not ask for more than a conscientious and well-made romance of the colonial period of the American frontier can give will find it pleasantly exciting and instructive."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p5 Ja 6 '45 900w

"Here again Mr. Allen has combined salty humor, tenderness, an unusual gift for story telling and a vast knowledge of American frontier life. Moreover, he has managed to keep his story always moving, without sacrificing to that movement anything of characterization or evocative detail." Jennings Rice

+ Weekly Book Review p2 Mr 19 '44 750w

Wis Lib Bul 40:70 My '44

ALLEN, MERRITT PARMELEE. White feather; decorations by C. B. Falls. 196p $2 Longmans

44-6035

Civil war story for older boys in which Beau Craigen, a Kentucky mountain boy, fought with Morgan's raiders, and redeemed himself in the eyes of his stern mountaineer grandfather, who had once given him a white feather, to symbolize cowardice.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney

Book Week p15 O 22 '44 230w

Booklist 41:27 S '44

Christian Century 61:1054 S 13 '44 20w

"Good and stirring tale." F. C. Darling

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 O 26 '44 90w

"The story moves rapidly with abundance of conversation and lively action." A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 20:377 S '44 90w

"An historical novel well furnished with a good plot, interesting characters, adventure, mystery, and realistic battle descriptions."

+ Kirkus 12:279 Je 15 '44 190w

"Authentic historical novel that pictures objectively the heart-rending conditions of the period, the divided loyalties, greed and ignorance, and the rashness, gallantry and heroism. Recommended for ages twelve to sixteen." E. M. Gordon

+ Library J 69:701 S 1 '44 80w

School & Society 60:239 O 7 '44 40w

"The chief criticism this reviewer has of the book is that the main characters are portrayed as being a little too good most of the time, as having only the highest motives for their acts, the most admirable self-control under all circumstances, and the most unusual bravery and courage in the face of all of the difficulties they encountered. For the young reader, however, this will not be a serious drawback to the novel, the other qualities of which offset this defect, if such it be."

Social Studies 35:381 D '44 240w

Springf'd Republican p4d O 29 '44 60w

"The Battle of Shiloh is not only the high spot of the book, but a real contribution to understanding Civil War history. As the campaigns of that war are now so widely accepted as the first appearance of strategy characteristic of modern times, the book has a new timeliness. But its charm lies in the contagious gayety of youth in adventure, its dedication to a personal leader, and its flame of devotion when that leader fulfills its dreams." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p4 S 3 '44 350w

Wis Lib Bul 40:149 N '44

ALLEN, WARREN DWIGHT. Our marching civilization; an introduction to the study of music and society. 112p $2.50 Stanford univ. press

781.5 Music and society. Marches (music)
43-11565

"This work is a plea for the application of the principles of music to the problem of world organization. . . There are certain 'principles,' asserts the author, which pervade both music and society. The 'virtuoso' principle dominated both music and politics in the nineteenth century. The polyphonic principle, which represents co-operation and integration, manifested itself in polyphonic music simultaneously with the co-operatively built Gothic cathedrals. The author concludes that some system of world order, such as proposed by Ely Culbertson, derives support from the symphonic principle and that Vienna, where the symphonic style achieved its richest development, must still be reckoned with as the nerve center of the world federation. The peace can be won only if we act 'in the spirit of the great symphonists—Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, and Washington, Lincoln, and Roosevelt.' " (Am J Soc) Index.

"This work is announced as a fragment of a larger project on music and society. Let us hope that there is still time for the remaining volumes to be directed into more functional, and less heroic, channels." J. H. Mueller

Am J Soc 49:284 N '43 370w

"Providing frequent flashes of insight, the book is vitiated by treatment which, however suggestive, remains speculative rather than scientific. Since we are told that this volume is merely a detour from a major work in preparation on music and society, it may be that nothing was intended beyond suggesting a few provocative ideas. We may well expect of the larger work a significant contribution to the sociology of art." A. S. Tomars

Am Soc R 9:576 O '44 500w

"His knowledge of cultural and political history is here displayed in exceedingly sketchy fashion. However this book is to be classified, its claim to be a contribution to the history of music is not to be taken seriously."

— + Christian Century 60:897 Ag 4 '43 110w

ALLIS, MARGUERITE. All in good time. 309p $2.75 Putnam

44-3241

A village in the Litchfield hills of Connecticut shortly after the Revolution closed is the scene of this novel. Job Hubbard, a clockmaker and Elvira Stone, his wife, are the central characters. The evil Gideon Leete, whose god was money, dogged Job's fortunes but Job and his Elvira were staunch in their loyalty and courage, and in time Job succeeded in spite of Gideon.

Reviewed by Leo Shapiro

— Book Week p7 Ap 16 '44 320w

Booklist 40:318 My 15 '44

"Better paced than her earlier The Splendor Stays or Not Without Peril; and equally sound Americana."

+ Kirkus 12:49 F 1 '44 180w

"Like the clocks Job makes so skillfully by hand, the plot moves with the steady ticking-off of each day's events, recounted in the salty vernacular of the period. Yet there is restraint in the writing, a restraint that reflects the deep-rooted reticence of the New England make-up. It all adds up to a satisfying novel about the kind of people who, in resolutely carving out their own destinies, shaped the destiny of our country, too." Andrea Parke

+ N Y Times p15 Ap 16 '44 280w

"Well written, 'All in Good Time' is rich in historic feeling and background, excellent in character portrayal, combined in an engrossing story." H. L. Mitchell

+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 30 '44 280w

"If one has to pick a single phrase which would embody the essential qualities of Miss Allis's writing, no better choice could be made perhaps than 'sturdy integrity.' It applies equally well to her style and to the men and women who people her books. . . It is a rich feast that awaits the discerning reader." Jennings Rice

+ Weekly Book Review p2 Ap 9 '44 850w

ALMEDINGEN, MARTHA EDITH VON. Frossia. 358p $2.50 Harcourt [9s 6d Lane]

44-40080

"Frossia is Euphrosynia, who was the daughter of a celebrated jeweller in Petersburg and had noble connexions on her mother's side. At the Revolution all the members of her family chose to commit suicide simultaneously, but Frossia herself was avid of life and proved her courage by going on alone from Kiev to Petrograd. There, apparently during the civil war, which she ignored, and in the years afterwards she worked out her own salvation." Times [London] Lit Sup

Reviewed by Leo Shapiro

Book Week p1 Ap 30 '44 650w

Booklist 40:318 My 15 '44

" 'Frossia's' quality is charm and you cannot explain charm without destroying it. You can only say that it is there and urge others to discover it for themselves." Ray McPartlin

+ Boston Globe p17 My 10 '44 280w

"This disjointed book—it can hardly be called a novel—gives us a series of portraits drawn disgustingly to life of commissars, students, factory workers, prostitutes, keepers of houses of ill fame, fake-prophets."

— Cath World 159:284 Je '44 180w

"Rarely does one encounter a novel as rich and liberating to the spirit as this one. Its author, a Russian woman who has an extraordinary command of English, follows the Russian pattern of novel writing, so that her work is rather sprawling in outline but has depth as well as breadth and, above all, shares that sense of compassion for human frailty which permeates the novels of Dostoevsky and Tolstoy."

+ Christian Century 61:903 Ag 2 '44 190w

"Admirable book. It is real, convincing, and exciting. . . Through tragic scenes of destitution, relieved by many examples of true nobility, Frossia moves forward, buoyed up only by her faith in her great and much-loved country." Harold Hobson

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 10 '44 110w

Commonweal 40:19 Ap 21 '44 430w

"This book will almost inevitably have a hurdle to take in that it stresses a period which those sympathetic to Soviet Russia would rather forget. But it has an authentic ring of history."

+ Kirkus 12:48 F 1 '44 200w

Reviewed by J. L. Ross

Library J 69:262 Mr 15 '44 70w

"A fuller picture of Russia and of the peculiarities of the Russian temperament than is generally given by novels with a political colouring. Frossia . . . is not without charm, and there is a good deal of humour in the way she holds her own with Soviet officials, but the chief interest of the story is in what may be called background incidents." Charles Marriott

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 30 '43 120w

"The moral of the book is admirable, and profound, for the great social issues of revolution and reaction can best be understood as part of an eternal war between life and death. . . The weaknesses of Frossia as a novel are largely technical, the writing is flat and undistinguished, the situations are too repetitive and many of the minor characters are too slickly and superficially presented. The book is too long, and induces a certain weariness, an irritable 'Yes, yes,' as the message is rammed yet again triumphantly home. But this is a book of distinguished thought and a variety of true feeling which no technical errors can disguise." Philip Toynbee

+ — New Statesman & Nation 25:340 My 22 '44 600w

"On the whole Frossia fails us. Through her we apprehend the deep spiritual acceptance which informs a great deal of Russian thinking. But we can never believe wholly in the girl herself. In her search for complete selfless service to humanity, she must have found sharp clashes in her own temperament; the senses are not stilled automatically by the application of the Golden Rule. The author suggests Frossia's inward struggles; she does not come to grips with them." Isabelle Mallet

+ — N Y Times p7 My 7 '44 550w

"It is so refreshing to read a book about Russia by a Russian who does not indict one particular economic system to the glorification of another that there is possibly danger of overrating this satisfying story of a girl, without political convictions, who lives through the revolution and comes happily out of it. . . In less expert hands, the girl's courageous acceptance of one tragedy after another might appear improbable, but Miss Almedingen manages to make the endurance of her heroine seem a credible expression of simple moral stability."

+ New Yorker 20:77 My 20 '44 180w

"Miss Almedingen . . . an émigré who left Russia as a youngster (and she has acquired an astonishing command of the English language since), now has written a novel as Russian in spirit as any piece of writing can be. A victim of the great upheaval herself, she has given as creditable and self-evident a picture of early Soviet life as any this reviewer has seen. It is not an overly workmanlike novel. Wordy dialogue cramps the narrative. The lovable heroine perhaps remains too true to type throughout the book. But the type she represents is so convincing, and so general, that Miss Almedingen's story would be an important book were it even much less well done." Robert Pick

+ Sat R of Lit 27:70 Ap 15 '44 750w

"I have read Frossia slowly, and every night, closing the book, and glad not to have ended it yet, I have pondered how I could most exactly convey to other possible readers the curious satisfaction, the peace, which I have felt in reading it. Peace, I think most writers at least would agree, is the special gift of the great Russian novels—that peace which comes, not from facing facts, but from being made a part of them, and in the process at once stimulated by their intractability, and comforted by their transience. . . I search my memory, but cannot think when in recent years we have been given in England a novel so satisfactory, so generous, so true to individual vision and emotion." Kate O'Brien

+ Spec 170:412 Ap 30 '43 700w

Time 43:95 My 1 '44 1100w

"The author is immensely serious throughout and builds up an elaborate picture of the mental distress and confusion of the early years of the Revolution—or at least of the special sort of distress experienced by characters like her heroine. The picture has its point and is often instructive. But Frossia herself, it must be confessed, unfailingly right-minded and on the side of the angels, with an intrepid zeal for denouncing the enthusiasts of the proletarian idea to their faces and a leaning towards exaggeratedly dramatic and egotistical cogitations, is rather a bore. More objective description and smaller doses of Frossia's self-communings would have sharpened the interest of this earnest and painstaking book."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p197 Ap 24 '43 240w

"The author skillfully interweaves the stories of her numerous characters—always vivid, sometimes poignant and invariably true to the life of that period. One can see that she knows what she is writing about—that she herself has lived through it all. And she manages to bring out something good and lovable in nearly all of her people, despite their shortcomings and the sordidness of their lives." Irina Skariatina

ALMEDINGEN, M. E. VON—Continued

+ Weekly Book Review p3 Ap 30 '44 1300w

Wis Lib Bul 40:70 My '44

"Politics are transitory and subject to change without notice, but holy Russia endures and Russians are wonderful people. Frossia knew that instinctively. How she put her knowledge into a philosophy of life and so survived a revolution in spite of much sorrow and many hardships makes Frossia one of the fine books of the year." Orville Prescott

+ Yale R n s 33:766 summer '44 300w

ALMSTEAD, FRANCIS E., and others. Radio; fundamental principles and practices. 219p il $1.80 McGraw

621.384 Radio 44-6693

"This book gives students the foundation training in radio needed for immediate practical work in the Armed Forces and industry and for advanced radio training. Beginning with the electron theory, it explains basic principles of radio and their practical applications in the simplest terms, familiarizing the beginner with all the fundamentals—theory, equipment, operation, instruments, terms, and the mathematics needed to solve radio problems." Publisher's note

Booklist 41:102 D 1 '44

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:605 Jl '44 20w

ALOFSIN, DOROTHY. Stream of Jewish life. 360p il $1.75 Union of Am. Hebrew congregations

296 Jews—Juvenile literature 44-481

Story of Jewish institutions, activities, and personalities, intended to help Jewish young people, of high school age, to understand the continuity of Jewish customs. Fictional form has been used in order to interest young readers. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 40:261 Ap 1 '44

"A fictional framework is skillfully employed to quicken the young reader's interest and enliven the narrative, but the substance is sound and solid. The material includes some things that Christian youth do not particularly need to know, but the general picture and the spirit of it all would be a wholesome influence for them."

+ Christian Century 61:114 Ja 26 '44 70w

ALSPACH, RUSSELL KING. Irish poetry from the English invasion to 1798. 146p $1.75 Univ. of Pa. press

821.09 Irish poetry—History and criticism 43-14456

The author states that his purpose is twofold: "To tell the story of the poetry written in English in Ireland that can with justice be called 'Irish' during this period; and to show how the stories of Irish mythology and the material of Gaelic poetry were put into English poetry during the 16th, 17th and 18th centuries." (Springf'd Republican)

"The author of this book has discharged with exceptional competence the specific task he undertook. . . Among the book's merits is the chapter on Charlotte Brooke, in which the importance and significance of her work are duly recognized." B. M. Kelly

+ Cath World 158:216 N '43 550w

Reviewed by Padraic Colum
Sat R of Lit 27:20 Je 17 '44 1150w

"The scholarly treatment and intensive study which the author gives to his subject recommends the book to students of English and Gaelic literature."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 26 '44 90w

ALTROCCHI, RUDOLPH. Sleuthing in the stacks. 279p il $3.50 Harvard univ. press

804 Literature A44-2609

A volume of essays on literary subjects. "Rudolph Altrocchi, professor of Italian literature at the University of California narrates his experience in proving that certain annotations supposedly in the handwriting of Tasso were actually 19th century forgeries, and analyzes in detail an obscure early picture of Dante." (Book Week) "For the rest, the book is composed mainly of the re-creations of an indefatigable source-hunter whose acquaintance with story-motifs is so broad that he is unable to admit that there can be anything new under the literary sun." (N Y Times)

"Prof. Altrocchi writes so frankly of his hobbies, with so much humor and pleasant personal detail that there is much enjoyable reading in 'Sleuthing in the Stacks' even for the person who knows little or nothing about the field of the researches described." J. T. Frederick

+ Book Week p2 Jl 16 '44 270w

"All these investigations lead the scholar-detective into more fields of knowledge than a conservative devotee of research would ordinarily trust himself to enter, but by calling upon his friends who are experts in matters in which he confesses his own incompetence, he manages to pull through with surprisingly few errors, even though the reader may at length grow weary of the flippant style and the excessively large number of non-existent or very rare words. But these are relatively minor points, and the forgiveness which the author craves for such errors (p.xiii) will probably be willingly granted, since they will be counter-balanced, in the opinion of most readers, I believe, by the interesting stories he relates." Marian Harman

+ — Library J 69:810 O 1 '44 600w

"To the unsympathetic bystander these discursive essays might almost represent the reductio ad absurdum of literary source-investigation, but they are nevertheless fun to read. It can never be sufficiently deplored that so few academic men can deliberately write unacademically and get away with it. Professor Altrocchi is carried away in his zeal to be companionable." R. D. Altick

N Y Times p22 Jl 23 '44 440w

New Yorker 20:64 Jl 29 '44 50w

"The book is full of unlimited scholarly research, and an acute reasoning worthy of Dr. Holmes. It is often very interesting in its breadth of learning with its varied and recondite facts, and it is sometimes amusing. But it lacks directness and simplicity in the telling, and would have benefited immeasurably by the omission of repetitious details." E. L. Tinker

+ Sat R of Lit 27:18 Ag 26 '44 390w

Weekly Book Review p14 O 1 '44 350w

Wis Lib Bul 40:145 N '44

AMADEO, SANTOS PRIMO. Argentine constitutional law. 243p $3 Columbia univ. press [20s Oxford]

342.82 Argentina—Constitutional law A44-101

"In this scholarly treatise the author devotes particular attention to the role the Argentine courts have played in maintaining the federal system and protecting the rights of the individual. He also indicates the many points of contact between Argentine and American constitutional history and practice." (Foreign Affairs) Selected bibliography. Index.

"The author's style is clear, and the entire volume bears evidence of careful workmanship. It may not be the last word on Argentine constitutional law, but in all probability it will stand as the accepted authority for a number of years." A. F. MacDonald

+ Am Pol Sci R 38:385 Ap '44 1050w

"This little volume is a welcome and useful study. It is also an ironic commentary, although the irony is doubtless completely unintentional. At a time when the Argentine Government is moved by as great a wave of Yankeephobia as in many years and when the Argentine people bid fair to be swept into the same current, this study comes along to demonstrate in compelling fashion how great has been the dependence of that same government and people on the constitutional inspiration, the political structure, and the judicial pattern of the United States." R. H. Fitzgibbon

+ Ann Am Acad 236:189 N '44 400w

Current Hist 6:260 Mr '44 50w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:503 Ap '44 30w

"Professor Amadeo's book constitutes a pioneering enterprise in several respects. It seems to be the first detailed case study in Latin American constitutional law available to lawyers of the United States. It also constitutes the first contribution by a Puerto Rican scholar to inter-American comparative law, a field to whose cultivation Puerto Rico would seem to be more clearly called than any other part of the Americas." Max Rheinstein

+ Harvard Law R 57:739 My '44 1450w

"Valuable monograph. . . Within the technical limits the author has done an excellent job by digesting the Argentine sources, continuously relating them to United States parallels. He demonstrates that, in normal times, Argentina painstakingly observes the rule of law befitting a constitutional state of a liberal tradition. Only the experts are able to appreciate the considerable volume of work which has gone into the book. But in other respects it does not quite live up to expectations." Karl Lowenstein

+ — Springf'd Republican p10 D 9 '43 850w

AMERICAN COUNCIL ON EDUCATION. Commission on teacher education. Teachers for our times. 178p $2 The council

371.1 Teachers, Training of

"The introductory report on a recent nationwide study of the kind of training provided for prospective teachers in colleges, universities, and teacher institutions. Starting with an analysis of the contemporary social situation in the U.S., it goes on to consideration of the functions and responsibilities of the school, and the kinds of teachers needed to meet these responsibilities." Booklist

Booklist 41:7 S '44

"This book is excellent for those professionally interested in teacher education and is not too academic for the layman whose support is so essential to the functioning of education, and who believes, as the Commission holds, that the purpose of teacher education is to produce good teachers, that excellence in a teacher is relative to the tasks that he ought to perform, and that those tasks should be determined with reference to the changing needs of children and the society in which the teaching is to be done." Loretta Hubertz

+ J Home Econ 36:594 N '44 200w

School & Society 59:144 F 19 '44 40w

AMERICAN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION. American library laws. See Foutts, J. C., ed.

AMERICAN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION. Board on salaries, staff, and tenure. Classification and pay plans for libraries in institutions of higher learning. 3v pa v 1 $1.25; v2 $1.75; v3 $2.50; set $5 The association

023 Libraries, University and college. Librarians—Salaries, pensions, etc. 43-15866

"[This] publication meets the need for a self-evaluating guide for college and university libraries. . . Issued in three volumes, beginning with the first volume they treat respectively: Non-Degree-Conferring Institutions, Degree-Conferring Four Year Institutions, and Universities. Each volume is divided into four parts: (1) Classes of Libraries, (2) Classes of Departments, (3) Personnel Specifications and Clerical Services, and (4) Standards of Education, Experience and Pay for Personnel Grades. In order to facilitate use, a different colored paper has been used for each section. . . The objectives of the study as set forth in the introduction are: (1) To develop classification and pay plans for libraries in institutions of higher education, and (2) To establish certain minimum personnel standards for these libraries." Library J

Reviewed by W. P. Kellam

Library J 69:163 F 15 '44 550w

"Granted the framework within which the committee worked, the reports are wholly admirable. The steps to be taken in building up an individual plan are indicated briefly and precisely. The job descriptions are full and suggestive of relationships that need careful integration in every library. There is a nice appreciation of the differences introduced into organization by the mere fact of size. Used with the discretion that the committee wisely recommends, the relevant volume would be a convenient aid to any person or group responsible for devising a new plan or for revising an old one." R. A. Beals

+ Library Q 14:178 Ap '44 900w

AMERICAN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION. Committee on post-war planning. Post-war standards for public libraries; Carleton Bruns Joeckel, chairman. (Planning for libs, no 1) 92p pa $1.50 A.L.A.

027.4 Libraries 43-13370

"The Committee has stated the standards for library service in both general and statistical terms. Thus the commonly used per capitas and proportions which have in the past been the sole measure of public library service are supplemented with additional qualitative and quantitative standards which help to place the statistical measurements in better perspective. . . Public library objectives are followed by a section on general standards of service and measurements of achievement. Standards of library government and administration, size and area, finance, buildings, book collection, personnel and technical processes follow." Library J

"Librarians, city officials, state and local planning boards will find these standards essential in evaluating library service on local, county and state levels." J. T. Wheeler

+ Library J 68:1047 D 15 '43 800w

"This book is clear, concise, and authoritative. Conclusions of the authors sound like practical suggestions of experienced librarians. Even a slight undertone of evangelism for the public library adds to the interest and value of the document." C. H. Chatters

+ Library Q 14:163 Ap '44 900w

AMERICAN library association catalog, 1937-41. See A.L.A. catalog

AMERICAN MERCURY (periodical). American mercury reader; ed. by Lawrence E. Spivak and Charles Angoff. 378p il $3 Blakiston

810.8 American literature—Collections 44-7502

"The American Mercury, which Mencken founded (with George Jean Nathan) in 1924 and edited for nine years, is this year marking its twentieth anniversary. In recognition of that chronological milestone, Lawrence E. Spivak (the Mercury's present publisher) and Charles Angoff have edited this volume, selected fifty-odd 'distinguished articles, stories, sketches, poems and cartoons' from the 'more than two thousand pieces' which appeared during The Mercury's first twenty years. Their aim has been to include 'something from every period in the magazine's life,' to offer 'representative material rather than just "the best." ' " N Y Times

Booklist 41:56 O 15 '44

"The writing is consistently good—quite a few pegs above the month-to-month level of average magazine fare. It could hardly be otherwise, considering the caliber of the contributors. . . High spots, to this reviewer, are O'Neill's terrible drama of miscegenation, 'All

AMERICAN MERCURY—Continued
God's Chillun Got Wings,' and Saroyan's beautifully simple personal essay, 'Myself Upon the Earth'." Richard Match
+ N Y Times p30 O 15 '44 600w

AMERICAN PSYCHIATRIC ASSOCIATION. One hundred years of American psychiatry. 649p il $6 Columbia univ. press [40s Oxford]
616.8 Psychology, Pathological. Insane—Care and treatment A44-1921

Presents the history of the first hundred years of the American psychiatric association, founded in Philadelphia in 1844. The text by thirteen leading authorities, is substantially the history of American psychiatry. The contributors are: Gregory Zilborg, J. K. Hall, R. H. Shryock, H. E. Sigerist, Winifred Overholser, S. W. Hamilton, J. C. Whitehorn, H. A. Bunker, William Malamud. Index.

"This big book is a lot of reading; but it is very interesting and may have practical value for students in pulling together an abundance of related but scattered data in the frame of psychiatric discussion with supporting bibliography. The index is very helpful." J. A. Kindwall
+ Ann Am Acad 236:213 N '44 750w

"This work is a major contribution not only to our medical history but to our social history as a whole. It is full of meat and interest for the general reader." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p2 S 3 '44 350w

Reviewed by W. A. R. Leys
Christian Century 61:1025 S 6 '44 550w

"Through this survey one gets a synthetic picture of the gradual development, along with the history of particular phases of psychiatry. . . An exceptionally handsome piece of bookmaking."
+ Kirkus 12:273 Je 15 '44 230w

Reviewed by M. F. Ashley Montagu
N Y Times p12 D 17 '44 280w

ANDERSEN, HANS CHRISTIAN. Fairy tales; tr. by Jean Hersholt; il. by Fritz Kredel. 297p $3; (Heritage reprints) $1.95 Heritage
398.2 Fairy tales 44-40084

"Excellent translation of twenty-five familiar Andersen stories by the Danish-American actor, Jean Hersholt, who owns one of the most famous of Andersen collections." Library J

Booklist 40:324 My 15 '44
Bookmark 5:18 Ag '44

"We are fortunate in this new edition of 'Andersen's Fairy Tales' so sympathetically selected and translated by a fellow Dane. . . He has worked a long time on this translation for American readers and has written a perfectly delightful introduction to tell us more about the poor cobbler's son whose own life was like a fairy tale. Fritz Kredel's illustrations are scattered through the book, simply drawn, softly coloured, very appealing. The Heritage Press may well be proud of this book." F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Mr 9 '44 140w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:46 Ja '44 10w

"The volume has dignity and beauty. It is of a size and balance to rest comfortably in the hand—very important in the case of a favorite author—and the drawings by Fritz Kredel take the form of witty comments on the text, thoroughly in character and always to the point." Margery Bianco
+ Horn Bk 20:164 My '44 550w

"The good printing, the gay cover and the delightful illustrations by Fritz Kredel make of the book not only a collector's item but one which we think will be popular with children also." J. D. Lindquist
+ Library J 69:72 Ja 15 '44 50w

"Lovers of fine book-making will enjoy Mr. Hersholt's and Mr. Kredel's book. Sturdily bound, clearly printed and filled with the peculiar magic that never fails to stir the mind of youth, it is a valuable addition to any child's library—and a volume to be treasured through the years." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p18 F 6 '44 340w

"Comparing this translation of the famous stories with earlier ones is a thrilling pastime. Hans Andersen is so deeply a part of our heritage that we are sensitive to change. Some things in this translation will shock certain people. Others will please them. The English that Mr. Hersholt uses is free, often colloquial. . . Just the same there is a quality in Jean Hersholt's translation that will make it live. His approach is simple and direct, his wording fresh and vital. Obviously, the tales have lived with him since early childhood in the language in which they were written. They are a part of his proud Danish inheritance." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 27:25 Mr 11 '44 650w

"The beloved classics of all time are richly illustrated by Fritz Kredel in color. This is a gay and beautiful book for a child's treasure, now and always." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 26 '43 90w

ANDERSEN, HANS CHRISTIAN. Thumbelina; tr. by Paul Leyssac; il. by Oscar Fabrès. [48p] $1.75 Pitman 44-373

"Twenty-three full-page illustrations in four colors and thirteen in black and white by Oscar Fabres interpret in modernized form this well-known story of Hans Christian Andersen." Library J

Kirkus 12:143 Mr 15 '44 40w

"The exquisite illustrations are so perfectly reproduced that they look hand painted. This fragile book cannot be used successfully in public libraries, not even in parents' rooms, where books are circulated, unless pre-bound." B. W. Bell
Library J 69:307 Ap 1 '44 70w

ANDERSON, CLARENCE WILLIAM. Heads up—heels down. 144p il $2.50 Macmillan 798.2 Horsemanship

Beginners' handbook on horsemanship. Contains practical advice on such aspects as selecting a horse, grooming, caring and riding a horse. There are helpful sketches for the beginner. Suitable for grade seven and up.

"This is an excellent handbook for the beginning horseman of any age. It is also good reading for anyone who'd like to know more about horses, and it has the crowning touch of the superb C. W. Anderson drawings." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p11 Ja 14 '45 230w
Booklist 41:156 Ja 15 '45

"Clearly, concisely written by one who knows his subject."
+ Kirkus 12:344 Ag 1 '44 90w

"Highly recommended for junior and senior high school ages if material of this kind is needed. Also suitable for adult use." Claire Nolte
+ Library J 70:71 Ja 15 '45 60w

"An excellent manual for beginners, this is also a helpful book for the young equestrian who, like all true horsemen, would know more." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p21 Ja 21 '45 160w

" 'Heads Up—Heels Down' is a primer of horsemanship, but a primer on a broad base. The child who reads it and follows its suggestions will have made tremendous strides toward becoming a horseman in the fullest sense of the word." Martin Gale
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 21 '45 300w

ANDERSON, EDWIN P. Audels marine engineers handy book; a practical treatise for marine engineers, all grades, firemen, oilers and machinists, covering modern marine engineering in all branches. 1258p il $4 Audel
621.1 Marine engineering 43-17126

"Presents in question-and-answer form a compact treatment of such subjects as boilers;

steam, Diesel and gas engines; turbines; pumps; refrigeration; lubrication; pipefitting and insulation; deck machinery; propellers; and marine electrical practice. Following each chapter is a section entitled 'Calculation in practice' which consists of examples and their solutions. These problems, amounting to several hundred, are of a type usually found in license examinations. The last two chapters are devoted to license requirements for engineers of steam and motor vessels, and to specimen examinations." N Y New Tech Bks

Library J 69:31 Ja 1 '44 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:65 O '43

ANDERSON, EDWIN P. Audels refrigeration and air conditioning guide for engineers, servicemen, shop men and users. 1242p il $4 Audel

621.56 Refrigeration and refrigerating machinery. Air conditioning 44-8020

"Practical manual on basic principles, servicing, operating and repairing household, commercial, industrial refrigeration and air conditioning." Library J

Booklist 41:134 Ja 1 '45
Library J 69:1001 N 15 '44 20w

ANDERSON, MAXWELL. Storm operation; a play in a prologue, two acts and an epilogue. 126p $2.50 Anderson house; Dodd

812 World war, 1939—Drama 44-6454

A play in three acts with prologue and epilogue, telling a story of an American army sergeant in the fighting in North Africa.

Booklist 41:38 O 1 '44

"This play by one of America's leading playwrights has many fine sections of soldier language but the love story robs it of any distinction. Unlikely to be much produced so this is recommended for American drama collections only."
Library J 69:1000 N 15 '44 40w

"Maxwell Anderson's 'Storm Operation' failed in the theater, unlike his previous war play, 'The Eve of St. Mark.' It is even harder to read than to witness. . . Come war or peace, a play must have a clear, advancing story." W. P. Eaton
— Weekly Book Review p10 O 8 '44 100w

ANDERSON, PAUL B. People, church and state in modern Russia. 240p $2.50 Macmillan [6s Student]

261.7 Church and state in Russia. Russia—Religion 44-5045

An analysis of the problem of religion in Soviet Russia, written as "an effort at understanding the interrelationships between people, church and state, as they have developed since 1917." Contents: The riddle of religion in Russia; The legal position of religion; The people and their church; Marxism and religion; Adaptation of the church to Soviet conditions; Religion and socialistic construction; "Freedom for anti-religious propaganda"; The patriarchal church and other churches; Russia during the patriotic war; A Christian basis for cooperation with Russia. Index.

"Stalin's statement to Father Orlemanski that Soviet persecution of the Catholic Church is 'inadmissible and precluded' make a book on religion in modern Russia particularly timely just now. . . Not so lucidly written as N. S. Timasheff's 'Religion in Soviet Russia' this book is far less biased in its documentation and interpretation." William Card
+ Book Week p3 Je 18 '44 360w
Booklist 40:384 Jl 15 '44
Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 8 '44 250w

Reviewed by Helen Iswolsky
Commonweal 40:450 Ag 25 '44 350w

Reviewed by J. C. Scammell
Crozer Q 21:362 O '44 600w
Foreign Affairs 23:13 O '44 30w

"The author writes out of intimate knowledge of the people and the Orthodox Church, and is a great admirer of both. One could wish he had been somewhat more objective in regard to those factors in the Church responsible for the reaction. But what he has done is admirable from an historic viewpoint."
+ — Kirkus 12:191 Ap 15 '44 170w

"Valuable contribution which will interest everyone concerned with the Russian question." G. W. Wakefield
+ Library J 69:501 Je 1 '44 110w

"This is no mere academic treatise for Mr. Anderson. He has known Russia and the Russians first-hand since 1917. He saw the revolutionary demonstrations in Russia that year. He even attended the historic Soviet at Smolny Institute on November 7. His welfare and editorial work for the YMCA has kept him in close and continuous touch with Russians of all classes and their political and religious leaders." H. C. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 27:15 Je 10 '44 750w

"Mr. Anderson gives a very valuable account of the relations between Church and State since the revolution, and quotes in extenso from the more important of the relevant documents. His book is a useful contribution to an understanding of the modifications of policy which have been, and in all probability still will be, made both by Church and State." Godfrey Wilkinson
+ Spec 172:84 Ja 28 '44 500w

Reviewed by Sherwood Eddy
Survey G 33:509 D '44 320w

"This is an informed, cogent and very fair-minded study of the position of the Church in Russia since 1917."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p218 My 6 '44 850w

ANDERSON, ROBERT GORDON. Biography of a cathedral. 496p $4 Longmans

282.44 Paris. Notre Dame (cathedral). France—Church history 44-9848

"The living story of man's most beautiful creation, with glimpses, through the centuries, of the pageant that led to Notre Dame." (Subtitle) The arrangement is chronological and covers the whole history of Notre Dame de Paris, from 52 B.C. to 1239 A.D., with a short final chapter on the twentieth century. Index.

Reviewed by Katharine Kuh
Book Week p6 D 31 '44 390w
Booklist 41:145 Ja 15 '45

"Inevitably a comparison will be drawn between Anderson's book and 'Mont-Saint-Michel and Chartres.' Thereby the newer work will suffer. For it is not as compact, not as centered upon its subject as is the other. Then, too, its style has not the naturalness of Henry Adams's. Yet there are virtues enough which remain. It is no small merit that Robert Anderson has produced a piece which kindles in the hearts of others the warmth he feels himself for Our Lady's shrine that is the soul of Paris." H. G. J. Beck
+ Commonweal 41:258 D 22 '44 420w
Kirkus 12:531 N 15 '44 240w

"All libraries will want this panorama of religion, history, philosophy and art filled with absorbing detail and blended to make a tapestry of the life around and about the great cathedral. It is a significant book." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 69:998 N 15 '44 70w

"In attempting to summarize this excellent book we will say that it is evidently both a labor of love and a hymn of love, addressed, at once, to a great church, a great city and a great civilization. Without being profound in any troublesome sense of the word, it is deeply felt and most eloquently written. Mr. Anderson has a certain gift for historical narrative, especially the important gift of clothing the reliquary bones of church history with the splendid hues of the liturgical vestments and blazing windows which he so greatly admires." Cuthbert Wright
+ N Y Times p4 D 10 '44 700w
Springf'd Republican p6 D 20 '44 500w

ANDERSON, R. G.—Continued
"For the satisfaction of my Puritanical conscience I must first note a few objections to a very fine piece of work. I like—in moderation—historical romance; I do not like romanced history. Mr. Anderson does—and I have no doubt that once more he will have the readers, in serried ranks, behind him. . . I had to indicate my points of disagreement with the author. But, this unpleasant duty performed, I must say that I read the book with intense interest." Albert Guerard
+ — Weekly Book Review p8 Ja 21 '45 1200w

ANDERSON, VIOLET, ed. See Canadian institute on public affairs. United nations today and tomorrow

ANDRES, PAUL GERHARD; MISER, HUGH J., and REINGOLD, HAIM. Basic mathematics for engineers. 726p il $4 Wiley
510 Mathematics 44-4957

"This text presents the mathematics required for the intelligent pursuit of elementary engineering courses and serves as a preparation for a course in the calculus. It contains those topics from algebra, trigonometry, and analytic geometry which are needed to meet this dual objective. The book is intended to be used with students who have had at least two years of high school mathematics. However, it is completely self-contained except that it relies upon the usual simple facts from arithmetic and geometry. . . Since the purpose of the book has been to relate mathematics as far as possible to its engineering applications, use has been made of engineering symbols and terminology, and numerous illustrations, graphs, examples, and exercises from engineering." (Pref) Index.

Chem & Met Eng 51:190 Ag '44 50w
Library J 69:461 My 15 '44 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:26 Ap '44

"Little attempt is made to depart from mathematical argument to physical or engineering illustrations in these chapters. The treatment is elementary (even rudimentary); the explanations are clear and lucid, and sufficient exercise material of suitable difficulty is provided to serve the purpose of the authors as expressed in the preface. The book also seems well adapted (as was intended) to serve as a text within its field for home study without the guidance of a tutor." H. E. Hartig
+ R of Scientific Instruments 15:267 O '44 600w
Special Libraries 35:100 Mr '44

ANDREWS, JOHN PAUL. Gliding and soaring. 190p il $2.75 McBride
629.13231 Gliding and soaring 44-9347

The managing editor of Air News and Air Tech, writes about the use of the glider as an air training vehicle in the Youth training program. Discusses gliding in all phases, as a sport, and as an educational project. Has a short history of flight without power, and a list of gliding records. Lavishly illustrated.

Booklist 41:165 F 1 '45
Library J 69:1001 N 15 '44 90w

"Lavishly illustrated with scores of photographs, many of which are of great historical value, and with several well-executed diagrams, this zestful volume is a well-rounded exposition of the art of silent flight. . . The book will prove invaluable to all would-be gliders, as well as more experienced devotees of non-powered aircraft, and undoubtedly will do much to spread interest in aeronautical training for American youth."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 15:4 D '44 90w
Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 14 '45 60w

ANDREWS, MATTHEW PAGE. Social planning by frontier thinkers. 94p $1 Smith, Richard R.
300 Social sciences 44-3758

A satire on social planning and planners written in the form of "minutes of a social problems class for adults." The Leader or Professor brings up for discussion many of the proposals for economic betterment advanced in recent years and the discussions which follow are made up largely of quotations from recent writings by so-called "advanced thinkers." Quotations are not tagged with the authors' names but a bibliography of sources is appended.

Booklist 41:35 O 1 '44

"When a historical scholar of some repute draws upon his work to discredit all social planning for the future, there is a serious question of intellectual honesty. Stating differences of opinion is one thing. Disposing of those with whom one does not agree through innuendo and malicious lampooning is something else. Matthew Page Andrews, who has done considerable research in early American history, has written a maliciously unfair book." C. D. Kean
— Springf'd Republican p8 Je 1 '44 440w
Wis Lib Bul 40:124 O '44

ANDREWS, PHILLIP, and ENGEL, LEONARD, eds. Navy yearbook. 376p il $4.50 Duell
359 Warships. Airplanes, Military (44-7554)

Statistics, naval chronology, and photographs of the fighting ships and naval aircraft of the United States, Great Britain, Russia, France, Italy, Germany, Japan and other smaller countries. Contains a list of recent war losses. Index.

Reviewed by W. H. Fetridge
Book Week p14 O 22 '44 360w
Booklist 41:10 S '44

"It is ideal for the layman who wishes a quick history of the Navies now in conflict and a means of identification of ships that figure in the news."
+ Boston Globe p15 Ag 2 '44 40w
Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 14 '44 600w
Kirkus 12:367 Ag 15 '44 210w
"Text and photographs excellent." L. A. Eales
+ Library J 69:605 Jl '44 40w
Library J 69:1003 N 15 '44 70w

"The 'Navy Year Book' falls short of accomplishing its purpose—if I interpret its purpose correctly. There is one exception—the historical summaries of the leading navies, which are the best of their kind that I have ever read. They are accurate, concise, full of life, and form a worthwhile innovation in books of this type." F. J. Bell
— + N Y Times p12 S 17 '44 380w
Reviewed by Walter Millis
Weekly Book Review p40 N 12 '44 180w

ANGELO, VALENTI. Rooster club; il. by [the author]. 150p $2 Viking 44-7664

Nino, a little Italian-American boy is the youngest member of the Rooster Club, a Boy Scout troop. The story describes Nino's fun and excitement on hikes and in other scout doings, from harvesting beans to learning to sail a boat.

Booklist 41:79 N 1 '44
Cath World 160:280 D '44 20w
Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p4 N 16 '44 100w
Horn Bk 20:480 N '44 120w

"Valenti Angelo tells stories that ring true of Italian-American boyhood not lacking in adventure. As straight fiction, he lacks something. But there is a quality to his writing—a sincerity to his picture of life that wins friends."

+ — Kirkus 12:373 Ag 15 '44 110w

Reviewed by P. D. Edie
Library J 69:866 O 15 '44 30w

"Recommended for the fourth to sixth grades." V. W. Schott
+ Library J 69:884 O 15 '44 70w

"The many admirers of Nino in Valenti Angelo's book by that name and its sequel, 'The Golden Gate,' will be happy to meet him again in 'The Rooster Club,' the youngest member of a group of Boy Scouts who hike, camp, sail and help harvest beans, with gusto, vigor and good humor." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p26 N 5 '44 190w

"It is a story that is fresh and honest, often almost poetically beautiful in its wording. And because Valenti Angelo made the book, it is beautiful in design and format. The trees, the animals, the boys themselves are all American." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 27:31 N 11 '44 200w
Weekly Book Review p20 N 12 '44 300w

ANGOFF, CHARLES. Palestrina, savior of church music; il. by William Brady. 64p $1.50 Ackerman

B or 92 Palestrina, Giovanni Battista Pierluigi da 44-45999

"A sympathetic biography of Giovanni Pierluigi da Palestrina told for adults as well as for young people. The sixteenth century composers and their patrons are the characters and the struggle to establish and preserve the purity of church music the theme." Sat R of Lit

"Interesting reading for younger folk, or even for oldsters who, having heard some of the great master's music, might be curious to know what manner of man he was." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p6 D 31 '44 110w
Sat R of Lit 27:48 N 11 '44 30w

ANTHONY, SUSAN BROWNELL (MRS H. H. COLLINS). Out of the kitchen—into the war; woman's winning role in the nation's drama. 246p $2.50 Daye

331.4 Woman—Employment. World war, 1939—Women's work 43-16860

"As a solution to problems and adjustments in the home life of women workers, the author suggests more carefully and realistically planned housing and the organization of low-cost housekeeping services. She quotes facts and figures and expands her idea more fully than Miss Hawes does in Why women cry. The author is a newspaperwoman and grandniece of the American equal rights leader of the same name." Booklist

Booklist 40:177 Ja 15 '44

"The style and spirit of the book is journalistic, rather than an attempt to portray, as objectively as possible, prevailing discrimination against women in industry. This mood of presentation lessens the effectiveness of the book. Its purpose is to impress thoughtful people with the need of American women having equality with men as they work for wages, whether our country is at war or enjoys peace." E. R. Groves + — Social Forces 22:349 Mr '44 160w

"This is a manifesto; it is also a highly readable study of a situation in which Americans may be uncomfortably surprised to find how they stand in relation to other countries."
+ Weekly Book Review p44 N 14 '43 280w

APEL, WILLI. Harvard dictionary of music. 824p il $6 Harvard univ. press

780.3 Music—Dictionaries A44-5729

"Dispensing with biography, Dr. Apel offers a dictionary of terms and subjects, and, especially, a concise historical and bibliographical handbook of the terminology and concepts of modern musical scholarship. Although addressed also to amateurs and for them worth the pains its use sometimes requires, the work fits most precisely the needs of students and specialists in historical musicology." Library J

"The new volume by Willi Apel is significant because the material is worked out from a modern standpoint, in the light of recent musical research. . . Not content with hiding behind an ancient misprint, Mr. Apel scrutinizes each musical fact anew, using fresh data, logic, and common sense. The result is a highly satisfying book of musical knowledge, in which basic definitions are given with fine intellectual integrity, and musical facts are carefully separated from plausible deductions or subjective theories." Nicholas Slonimsky
+ Christian Science Monitor p13 D 30 '44 700w

"A very valuable contribution and essential for music libraries where any historical work is done." R. S. Angell
+ Library J 69:998 N 15 '44 110w

"An outstanding virtue of the book is its well chosen, up-to-date bibliographies. In this respect it is almost alone among musical dictionaries in English. Any student wishing to investigate a particular subject is given an excellent start, not only by what the Dictionary itself states but by the further material to which it judiciously draws attention. Another signal virtue is Dr. Apel's attempt to correct widely circulated errors, not merely by giving the right information but by calling attention to the mistakes and warning the reader against them. Useful also is his pointing out where undue importance has commonly been attached to unimportant matters. Some readers will doubtless be irked by the strong German cast of the book. There are many more definitions of terms from the German than from any other foreign language. But we feel that if Dr. Apel has sinned in this respect, he has sinned in the right direction." Gustave Reese
+ Sat R of Lit 28:19 Ja 20 '45 1000w

APENSZLAK, JACOB, ed. See Black book of Polish Jewry

APTHEKER, HERBERT. American Negro slave revolts. 409p $4.50 Columbia univ. press

326.973 Slavery in the U.S. Negroes 43-16241

"Historians of the pre-Civil war period have never agreed on the question of the attitude of the Negro toward his bondage. Some have maintained that there was much restlessness and great dissatisfaction among the slaves. Others have insisted that the Negro was docile and content with his lot. In this study the author emphasizes the well known fact that there was a constant and widespread fear of slave revolts in the South. He also points out what is not so well known, that there were approximately two hundred and fifty revolts and conspiracies in the history of American Negro slavery. In some of these the Negroes were assisted by the poorer whites." (Social Studies) Bibliography. Index.

"This volume is clearly the result of tireless industry and tremendous research. The elaborate documentation and the extensive and valuable bibliography of source and secondary material both bear witness to the long path the author has followed. . . [However] it is quite evident that the author does not know the South of the period of slavery, nor yet does he know slavery as it was. He has overlooked the sources that would have informed him and discounted the secondary works based upon those sources. Instead he has studied the picture painted by Garrison and his disciples." J. G. de R. Hamilton
— + Am Hist R 49:504 Ap '44 700w

"This book, which treats a neglected phase of the Negro's adjustment to American life, is an important contribution to the literature on the Negro. Although it deals with the slavery period, it contains much information which might aid our thinking today concerning the so-called 'adjustment' of the Negro to his subordinate status in the South." E. F. Frazier
+ Am J Soc 49:374 Ja '44 700w

APTHEKER, HERBERT—Continued
Reviewed by W. W. Sweet
Christian Century 61:272 Mr 1 '44 340w

"The book itself is like an iceberg nine-tenths submerged in footnotes and inhospitable to landing parties, since it is written in a ruggedly academic style; but it contains a mass of neglected information." Malcolm Cowley
New Repub 110:352 Mr 13 '44 480w

"This carefully written and well-documented account is an important addition to American historiography. . . The teacher will find this book useful not only because of its contribution to pre-Civil war history, but also because of the background which it presents for one of our real modern problems." W. H. Mohr + Social Studies 35:92 F '44 390w

ARABIAN NIGHTS ENTERTAINMENTS. Arabian nights; il. by Oscar Fabres; ed. and rewritten by Rosa Van Rosen. (Hyperion bk) 71p $2.50 Duell 44-47956

"Seven favorite tales from The Arabian Nights, including 'Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves,' 'Aladdin' and 'The Magic Horse' retold with a modern flare but without sacrificing the original story. Illustrated by Oscar Fabres with cartoon-like drawings in color." Library J

Cath World 160:280 D '44 20w

Kirkus 12:450 O 1 '44 50w

Reviewed by V. W. Schott
Library J 69:1105 D 15 '44 60w

ARCHER, LAIRD. Balkan journal. 254p il $3.50 Norton

940.542 Eastern question (Near East). World war, 1939—Greece. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 44-3434

The author has lived in Greece for many years, for thirteen years as Director of the Near East Foundation. His book is composed of excerpts from his diary from June 1934, to August 1941, and deals chiefly with political and international affairs of the period.

Reviewed by H. N. Howard
Ann Am Acad 235:139 S '44 180w

Reviewed by Ernest von Hartz
Book Week p3 Ap 30 '44 400w

Booklist 40:301 My 1 '44

Bookmark 5:15 My '44

Christian Century 61:498 Ap 19 '44 80w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 22 '44 400w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:665 Jl '44 30w

"An important book."
+ Kirkus 12:89 F 15 '44 130w

Reviewed by Leigh White
Nation 158:685 Je 10 '44 550w

"The book's charm lies in its author's closeness to the common people of the Balkan countries as director of the Near East Foundation, which gave him opportunities rarely shared by foreign correspondents. On the other hand, his political insight into what happened in the Balkans during his residence is fragmentary and frequently naïve."
+ — New Repub 110:770 Je 5 '44 180w

"It's a book no man with a soul will ever forget. It's the story of a little land of great people; people who have been crushed and now are being starved, but people who revived, for a disillusioned and despairing Europe, the unquenchable spirit of liberty and independence." Robert St. John
+ N Y Times p1 Ap 9 '44 1450w

"Mr. Archer makes no tremendous revelations and has a disconcerting habit of using two journalistic clichés where one might easily do, but, by recording the little events of daily life, particularly during the German occupation, he draws a detailed and very moving picture of Greece during that tragic era."
+ — New Yorker 20:90 Ap 8 '44 110w

"Mr. Archer is not a maker of phrases. He does not display his wares with anything like showmanship, but when he comes to the scenes of the invasion and the rally for national defense, his simple prose, in my judgment, cannot be improved upon." Stephen Bonsal
+ Sat R of Lit 27:11 Ap 22 '44 1050w

Reviewed by R. S. Scott
Springf'd Republican p6 My 15 '44 440w

"Mr. Archer's eyes and ears were wide open. His heart was, too. In pointed, informative diary entries, he projects the Balkan peoples' long nightmare through the appeasement years into the grim reality of the Axis invasion and occupation of their lands." Louis Adamic
+ Weekly Book Review p12 My 7 '44 600w

ARCINIEGAS, GERMAN, ed. The green continent; a comprehensive view of Latin America by its leading writers; tr. from the Spanish and Portuguese by Harriet de Onís and others. 533p $3.50 Knopf

918 Latin America. Spanish-American literature—Collections 44-6768

"Germán Arciniegas has gathered materials from all the literatures of Latin America to compose a self-portrait of its lands as seen by their historians, biographers, essayists, novelists and thinkers. Only poets and dramatists have not been called upon, but there are always enough overtones of poetry and enough elements of drama in Latin-American prose to make the omission almost unnoticeable. . . Only two pieces, and the brief introductory essays to each section done by Germán Arciniegas, were written especially for this book. The rest is part of that perpetual exploration of their land, self-critical examination of its destiny and perpetual dialogue with the authors' own souls, which make up so much of the substance of Latin-American writing and set upon it its local seal and stamp of universal significance." N Y Times

"The appearance of 'The Green Continent' marks a step forward in providing United States readers with relevant material about Latin America. Compiled by a man of vast erudition who has delved with remarkable success into the fields of the social sciences and literature, this anthology reflects both his sociological and literary concerns. . . Arciniegas' volume is a fine introduction for beginners; and it is also a thought-provoking outline for connoisseurs who will undoubtedly think of all kinds of possible alternative selections to illustrate each of his categories." Angel Flores
+ Book Week p4 S 3 '44 500w

Booklist 41:18 S '44

"Not definitive, but comprehensive,—not written for United States audiences but for their own people, these selections have been chosen for style as well as content and present a worthwhile picture of South America as South Americans know it."
+ Kirkus 12:331 Ag 1 '44 170w

"In many ways this book is a model of anthology making. The idea on which it is based . . . will be welcomed by readers no longer content to take their information about the southern continent out of the pill boxes of itinerant journalists. The method is interesting. . . What should result, if the pieces are carefully selected and the cement judiciously applied, is one of those mosaics in the best Spanish tradition, made of words instead of tiling, to be enjoyed both for the beauty of its individual bits and for the scope of the picture they produce. . . Two mechanical changes would have helped the reader. The individual pieces need precise dating under their titles. . . One also longs for another format. Nothing better illustrates the inadequacies of modern publishing than the dress in which this transcendent scrapbook appears." Mildred Adams
+ — Nation 159:440 O 14 '44 950w

"Here is an anthology so revealing and absorbing that one wonders why it was not thought of sooner. . . Most of the selections are culled from good, some from great, writing. . . The anthologist himself belongs to the company from which he has selected, so that his introductions, ranging from the slight and obvious to brilliant syntheses of much of the best in the book, have the air of having been written as much for his fellow-intellectuals as for the North American reader." B. D. Wolfe

+ N Y Times p3 Ag 20 '44 1200w

"Mr. Arciniegas has done a particularly able job of editing and should be awarded a solid-gold good-neighbor medal for assembling an anthology that can be lifted by just one man."
+ New Yorker 20:64 Ag 26 '44 130w

"As a whole the book can be earnestly recommended to all those who want to know more about our neighbors to the south. Some of the articles smack of Rotary-cum-Cook's Tours. But most of them give, in their own words, a view of Latin America by Latins that the ordinary reader will get nowhere else. One might wish for a description of that 'very loyal' and ancient shrine of Antigua. Some of our Negroes will squirm at the essay 'Poor Nigger,' by Rómulo Gallegos. But choosing thirty selections to tell such a many-faceted story has not been easy and no editor can please everyone. The book is the best possible antidote for those who know too little and talk too much about Latin America. As a reference book it would be helped by an index." Norman Taylor
+ Sat R of Lit 27:64 O 14 '44 1100w

Time 44:98 S 4 '44 550w

"As to which are the best of the selections, opinions will depend somewhat on the taste and interests of individual readers. But no reporting in the book surpasses that of Martin Luis Guzman in his remarkable revelation of the bluff and sinister Villa; unless it be the searingly vivid glimpses of strife in the accursed Chaco desert by the young Bolivian journalist Augusto Cespedes in the sketch called 'The Well.' . . 'The Green Continent' is not only a comprehensive introduction to Latin America, it is a liberal education as well." Hudson Strode
+ Weekly Book Review p2 Ag 27 '44 1250w

ARDREY, ROBERT. Worlds beginning. 244p $2.50 Duell

A story of the future of America after the Second World war. In first person narrative a journalist of the 1960s, tells the story of postwar boom, followed by inflation, economic stagnation, despair, and then, when all seemed lost, of the birth of a Big Idea, a new way of solving economic problems which in time brought peace and prosperity to all.

Reviewed by Wendell Johnson
Book Week p6 O 8 '44 550w

Kirkus 12:306 Jl 15 '44 210w

Reviewed by Margaret Owen
Library J 69:761 S 15 '44 70w

Reviewed by J. H. Preston
New Repub 111:573 O 30 '44 140w

"All told, the author's Big Idea is better than the manner in which he presents it. Yet the book that emerges is fresh, tough, cocky, exciting, shot through with the exuberance of discovery. However he does it, with stiletto or meat cleaver, ad-copywriter's slogans or heroic analogies, reiteration either plain or fancy, Mr. Ardrey clears a path for the reader through the jungle of economics and brings him out, flushed and panting, to a new world in the making." Carlos Baker
+ — N Y Times p3 S 24 '44 950w

"Mr. Ardrey's book is very disappointing. It is disappointing because he has chosen a fresh and exciting subject to write about, because he has written very eagerly and with considerable force, and because he has come up with a narrative confused in character, without focus." N. L. Rothman
Sat R of Lit 27:24 O 21 '44 650w

Reviewed by Harry Daum
Springf'd Republican p4d O 22 '44 500w

"Mr. Ardrey has thought earnestly about the dangers our society will face when we are free to turn once more to the problems of peace. He writes with vigor and sincerity. But he has written too much of an economic treatise for it to be a good novel and, I'm afraid, too much of a novel for it to be a good economic treatise." Jennings Rice
+ — Weekly Book Review p8 O 1 '44 650w

AREY, JOHN STUART. There was no yesterday. 208p $2.50 Doubleday [9s Eyre]
44-3240

"The theme of [this novel] is 'when doctors disagree,' the story, with much bacteriological detail which rings true, being about an outbreak of paratyphoid in a Welsh coast village. It is full of attractive people and landscape." Manchester Guardian

Reviewed by Marion Strobel
Book Week p6 Ap 2 '44 360w

"Better integrated, better resolved than his first, Night Duty, this is a second doctor's story by a young English medic, a nice combine of romantic and medical incident. . . For rentals largely—nicely done."
+ Kirkus 12:25 Ja 15 '44 120w

"Very satisfactory addition to the shelf of light novels about doctors." Emily Garnett
+ Library J 69:203 Mr 1 '44 70w

Reviewed by Charles Marriott
+ Manchester Guardian p3 D 10 '43 40w

"Though not a profound book, 'There Was No Yesterday' is written with an insight and understanding of the doctor's particular problems that lift it from the class of popular 'medical' fiction. Without sacrificing any of the entertaining clichés of the genre, Mr. Arey has drawn a sympathetic and believable portrait of the young doctor of today, learning at the same time the worth and insignificance of individual life." Nona Balakian
+ N Y Times p5 Ap 2 '44 550w

"Like Mr. Arey's earlier 'Night Work,' [American title: Night Duty, Book Review Digest, 1943] this is a good and interesting novel, intelligent, lively and conspicuously assured in manner. It is made up of diverse elements, which are fitted together more smoothly and with a more persuasive effect of organic unity than may have appeared possible."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p617 D 25 '43 280w

"'There Was No Yesterday' is a forceful and sincere study, and its indictment of a medical martinet is balanced by a tribute to the doctors who check the danger he has failed to meet."
+ Weekly Book Review p11 Ap 9 '44 130w

ARGALL, PHYLLIS. My life with the enemy. 290p $3 Macmillan

B or 92 World war, 1939—Japan. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, English 44-621

Autobiographical study of a young Canadian woman, who spent most of her life, up to 1942, in Japan. She had been missionary and educator, and was a member of the staff of Japan News-Week, an anti-Axis paper, when she was arrested and imprisoned by the Japanese. Thru the good offices of Ambassador Grew she was able to get passage on the first Gripsholm, and is now married to an American, and lives in this country.

Booklist 40:211 F 15 '44

Christian Science Monitor p14 F 3 '44 700w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:503 Ap '44 30w

"Alert, enlightening reading, which blends the personal with the international aspects."
+ Kirkus 11:564 D 15 '43 160w

"Humorous and grim through varying degrees of intensity. Not a source book on Japan but an addition to the growing group of personal histories reporting life in our time." J. H. Berthel
Library J 69:30 Ja 1 '44 60w

"Phyllis Argall has skillfully selected everyday incidents of her twenty-six years in Japan to give a fair and illuminating appraisal of our foe. She offers a liberal education in Japanese

ARGALL, PHYLLIS—Continued
thoughts and deeds, with modesty and a sense of humor that places 'My Life With the Enemy' high on the list of Far Eastern reading." John Goette
+ N Y Times p16 F 6 '44 650w

"Her newspaper work naturally got her into trouble, including a stay in a Japanese prison camp, and it is this part of her experience that she is most interested in telling about. Her earlier and quieter adventures make much better reading, and, had she not treated them so sketchily, she might have written something more than just another foreign correspondent's book."
+ New Yorker 19:78 Ja 29 '44 110w

"The author presents an interesting and highly personalized account of the events preceding Pearl Harbor and her treatment as a prisoner. As a journalist, however, Miss Argall suffers from an acute and lasting attack of 'embassy eyes,' an affliction common to most American and British journalists, in Tokyo." Andrew Roth
+ — Pacific Affairs 17:351 S '44 280w

"Unhappily, Miss Argall's writing lacks color. Thus, what could have been an exciting autobiography, as rich in personal experience as in a description of Japan at war, becomes another book on the Orient. But for what it does contain, the book is of interest and value." Mark Gayn
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:8 Ap 8 '44 400w

"Miss Argall makes no claim to objectivity. In writing this book her intention appears to be a general indictment of Japanese politics and militarism. It is possible to be sympathetic with this aim and still wish that in carrying it out Miss Argall had been more apparently aware of the human problems and attitudes that underlie such political institutions and suicidal aggression. It is possible also to sympathize with Miss Argall's personal suffering and still regret the bitterness that leads her, too often, to the contradictions, rash generalizations and vituperation that weakens her indictment. Miss Argall must have the material for a book of great interest and value. It is to be hoped that now that she has gotten this one off her chest she will sit down and write the other." Helen Mears
Weekly Book Review p6 F 6 '44 950w
Wis Lib Bul 40:37 Mr '44
Reviewed by Hugh Byas
Yale R ns 34:157 autumn '44 490w

ARMSTRONG, WARREN. Battle of the oceans; the story of the British merchant marine; with a foreword by Sidney R. Fremantle. 336p $2.50 Liveright [12s 6d Jarrolds]

940.545 World war, 1939—Naval operations. Merchant marine—Great Britain 44-8161

Account of the British merchant marine in the present war. The author is an English newspaper man, who has also been a seaman. No index.

"This is informative and forcefully written, but would be better if arranged in chronological order. His nimble leaps backward and forward in time tangle up an otherwise exemplary presentation of facts."
+ — Book Week p6 Jl 9 '44 90w
Foreign Affairs 23:8 O '44 20w
Kirkus 12:157 Ap 1 '44 130w

"Many stories of heroism. Book is intended for English public, and American readers are likely to find it too British. Large libraries." G. W. Hill
Library J 69:501 Je 1 '44 100w

"For all the interesting facts which Mr Armstrong has assembled to champion the sacrifice of the seaman and his social and economic security after the war, this is a maddeningly incoherent book. The author knows his subject. . . But his style is anything but smooth, and he never gets down to a decision on whether he is writing an official history based on navy communiques, a series of personal sketches of mariners yarning in delightful little port taverns, or presenting a social thesis for after the war. The result is a scrapbook amply rewarding to the researcher but too disjointed for general appeal." G. W. B.
Springf'd Republican p6 Je 14 '44 440w

"The book is somewhat disjointed; but a single thread runs through it—faith in British seamen."
Times [London] Lit Sup p26 Ja 15 '44 120w

ARNHYM, ALBERT A. Comfortization of aircraft. 347p il $7.50 Pitman

629.13822 Airplanes 44-47867

"Based on author's articles in Aero Digest and other periodicals dealing with technical data and calculations on the ventilation, heating, soundproofing, lighting, seating and other features of aircraft design in relation to passenger comfort in both civilian and military airplanes. For the designer, manufacturer and engineer." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 41:147 Ja 15 '45
Library J 70:33 Ja 1 '45 50w
Reviewed by J. M. Juran
N Y Times p36 N 26 '44 30w

"Gathers together much data on the methods of eliminating discomforts of flying. It treats of such topics as ventilation, heating, soundproofing, sleeping facilities, meals and entertainment. These data, together with the accompanying tables and calculations will doubtless make this a widely used book." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 14 '45 150w

ARNO, PETER. Man in the shower. [105p] $2.50 Simon & Schuster

741.5 Caricatures and cartoons. Humor, Pictorial 44-8536

Collection of cartoons by Peter Arno, most of which have appeared in the New Yorker.

Boston Globe p32 N 29 '44 30w

"A sure gift item for home consumption and for the boys overseas."
+ Kirkus 12:416 S 15 '44 70w

"Arno has been credited with satirization of the Stork Club set. Many of his subjects fall inevitably into this dubious category. But it seems inaccurate to tag Arno himself with this narrow label. His humor, at its best, has a wider, more profound appeal; he satirizes man, not simply the inmates of the Stork Club." Calder Willingham
+ N Y Times p5 O 22 '44 110w
New Yorker 20:84 O 28 '44 70w
Reviewed by W. R. Benet
Sat R of Lit 27:17 D 9 '44 90w

"The book includes the series in which Mr. Arno gives the classics a whirl, but we prefer the contemporary stuff, with the expression on the face of a traffic officer's horse just about tops." Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p5 D 3 '44 200w

ARTHUS, MAURICE. Philosophy of scientific investigation; tr. from the French, with an introd. by Henry E. Sigerist; foreword by Warfield T. Longcope. 26p 75c Johns Hopkins press

501 Science—Philosophy 44-5619

"This brief essay, originally written as a preface to a monographic study, expounds with admirable vigor and charm the conception of experimental method which was characteristic of Claude Bernard and the French school of physiology. The author was an eminent experimentalist in his own right, and occupied the chair of physiology at the University of Lausanne with unusual distinction for twenty-five years. The essay is full of wise observations on the conduct of experimental investigations, and contains much inspiring advice to those beginning their scientific careers." J Philos

"We owe a real debt of gratitude to Dr. W. T. Longcope, Professor of Medicine, and to Dr. Henry E. Sigerist, Professor of the History of Medicine at Johns Hopkins, for recognizing the scientific and literary value of this gem. Their ardent sponsorship and Sigerist's colorful translation provide its very appropriate setting." C. E. Smith

+ Am J Pub Health 34:796 Jl '44 360w

+ J Philos 41:165 Mr 16 '44 200w

ASHBURN, FRANK DAVIS. Peabody of Groton; a portrait. 444p il $5 Coward-McCann

B or 92 Peabody, Endicott 44-9372

Biography of Dr Endicott Peabody, founder and former headmaster of Groton. The book includes selections from Dr Peabody's letters. Index.

Reviewed by Ellery Sedgwick
Atlantic 175:128 Ja '45 650w

"As you would expect, it is an honest picture. The vagaries, the prejudices and blind spots are there, just as much as the real goodness, the deeply Christian spirit. . . However much you may smile at the oddities of the period piece, its robust honesty leads you to examine your own conscience." H. L. Binsse
+ Commonweal 41:154 N 24 '44 850w

"Competent and pleasing job. . . The market will be almost wholly Grotonians."
+ Kirkus 12:473 O 15 '44 120w

Reviewed by H. M. Jones
N Y Times p6 N 5 '44 1100w

"The author writes in a reverent whisper, like a man telling his beads in church, and it is only in the letters that Peabody shows signs of coming to life. For Old Boys only."
New Yorker 20:86 N 4 '44 50w

"Mr. Ashburn . . . tells an appealing and lively story of an unusual man, attempting an unusual task and accomplishing it in an unusual way." H. B. Washburn
+ Springf'd Republican p4d D 10 '44 340w

"Frank Ashburn has written with intimate knowledge. Subordinating his gift for appraisal, he has chosen to have the Rector's correspondence carry the burden of the story. For the casual reader this makes heavy going. But alumni of Groton will not be casual in reading about a man who left his stamp on all of them." W. G. Avirett
+ Weekly Book Review p18 D 10 '44 500w

ASHLEY, CLIFFORD WARREN. Ashley book of knots. 620p il $7.50 Doubleday

677.7 Knots and splices 44-6788

Illustrated encyclopedia presenting over 3900 knots, describing how to tie them, who uses them, where the knot comes from, and illustrating them in some 7000 drawings. Bibliography. Index.

"Even if you are not interested in knots now you will be if you come into possession of this book—and if ever there was a way to thwart the devil by giving employment to idle hands, knot tying is it." John Metzenberg
+ Book Week p8 Ag 13 '44 180w

Booklist 41:54 O 15 '44

"There is a fascination in this book you can't resist even though you never tie up anything more than a casual bundle."
+ Boston Globe p15 Ag 2 '44 100w

Boston Globe p31 N 29 '44 40w

Commonweal 41:22 O 20 '44 50w

"Clifford Ashley is probably the world authority on the subject, so this should be—for experts—the definitive book."
+ Kirkus 12:112 Mr 1 '44 210w

Library J 69:461 My 15 '44 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:45 Jl '44

Reviewed by Richard Match
N Y Times p14 S 10 '44 240w

"Here's a book which, if accompanied by a piece of twine, ought to keep a lot of people happily occupied from now until Christmas. . . Just about the best piece of escape literature that has come along in some time."
+ New Yorker 20:64 Jl 29 '44 100w
Time 44:104 Ag 14 '44 280w

Reviewed by Baron Ireland
Weekly Book Review p3 Ja 21 '45 600w

ASHLEY-MONTAGU, MONTAGUE FRANCIS. Edward Tyson, M.D, F.R.S, 1650-1708, and the rise of human and comparative anatomy in England; a study in the history of science; with a foreword by George Sarton. 488p il $5 Am. philosophical soc.

B or 92 Tyson, Edward. Anatomy—History 43-10848

"Edward Tyson (1650-1708) was a pioneer of those detailed studies of animal forms which, two centuries later, led to that view of the organic world summarized by the word 'evolution.' His most notable work was in the department of comparative anatomy—which he was the first so to name—and in its sub-department of physical anthropology. So far as Britain is concerned he may justly be called the father of both these sciences. His contributions have seldom been appreciated adequately even by specialists. Professor Ashley Montagu, remarkably well equipped for his task, has unearthed with great energy and persistence almost everything worth knowing concerning Tyson." Times [London] Lit Sup

"Although much that the author has resurrected from oblivion may have little interest for the average reader, he does render the history of science a service by placing his subject in a better light than he has enjoyed for a couple of centuries. To those interested in evaluating the worthies of the past, this monograph will be invaluable." H. L. Shapiro
+ Am Anthropol 46:407 Jl '44 340w

"The story is well, if somewhat diffusely told; it is extensively, although not always accurately documented, and it has considerable virtue as first-rate bibliography and—for a biography—an unusually complete index. The book is well printed and the Philosophical Society deserves credit for having sponsored a book of this unusual character in these times." J. F. Fulton
+ Am Hist R 50:159 O '44 400w

"Despite failings of over-enthusiasm the book is well documented, well written and well produced. It contains much new knowledge and is a definite contribution to the history of science, though oddly incomplete since it contains no adequate analysis from the point of view of comparative anatomy of the unpublished dissections by Tyson, the drawings of which are enumerated. This is a rather serious omission from so detailed and extensive an attempt to claim his deserved position for a great scientific investigator."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p33 Ja 15 '44 600w

ASHTON, HELEN (MRS ARTHUR JORDAN). Joanna [Eng title: Joanna at Littlefold]. 320p $2.50 Samuel Curl, inc, 70 5th av, N.Y. [8s 6d Collins]

44-6988

The story of an English woman, Joanna Shearwater, who is suddenly faced with the problem of making her way in a world at war. Her husband wanted a divorce, her son was a flyer, with little time for his bewildered mother, and Joanna had no home. In the little English village where she sought refuge Joanna found her answer.

— Book Week p8 Ag 13 '44 230w

Cath World 160:189 N '44 180w

"Eminently readable feminine novel of rural England in wartime."
+ Kirkus 12:260 Je 15 '44 130w

"Miss Ashton, as always, deals with essentials, and portrays personalities and places alike with an acute perception and an incisive economy." Wilfrid Gibson
+ Manchester Guardian p3 O 23 '42 110w

"Somewhere in her essentially sincere study Miss Ashton has blurred the picture. . . Miss Ashton is truly eloquent when describing the desperate courage of the French people on the eve of occupation, or the quiet resignation of a young pilot who knows he has only a short life to live. But her story could have been twice as interesting with a more definite point of view." Nona Balakian

ASHTON, HELEN—Continued
— + N Y Times p5 Ag 20 '44 480w

Reviewed by E. K. P. Stokes
Sat R of Lit 27:11 Ag 12 '44 450w

"It is pleasant, unexacting reading. Miss Ashton has a nice air of veracity and now and then touches in a character sketch with neat, unmalicious humour. But the substance of the tale is thin, the scope of its war-time sympathies restricted."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p521 O 24 '42 480w

"Few novels have given us a better picture of a rural England in time of war, and the minor figures—as Joanna comes to know them and share in their problems—are drawn with warmth and admiration. The folks of Littlefold, which is between Sheepbridge and Lambscot, are good to know." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 6 '44 450w

ASPDEN, DON. Barney's barges; il. by Henry C. Pitz. 192p $2 Holiday
44-8707

Barney's barges were the little American ships which attempted to defend the Tidewater country during the War of 1812. This story is told by young John Rutledge, horse-boy on a Tidewater ferry, who played his part in the war. For junior high school age.

"There is a lacing of humor in the writing and plenty of human interest. . . A grand story of the tide which turned the fortunes of the war and made America a country, instead of just 'a mess of states.' The Henry Pitz illustrations are good, as always." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p24 N 12 '44 200w
Booklist 41:110 D 1 '44
Cath World 160:281 D '44 30w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 Ja 11 '45 90w

"One would have to be blasé and hardened not to get a thrill out of this stirring blend of adventure and history in a fine tale of the defense of Fort McHenry, in the War of 1812."
+ Kirkus 12:405 S 1 '44 160w

"Don Aspden has created a colorful living picture of the citizen's army that was finally welded together to fight for liberty. . . Recommended for use with boys and girls of junior high school age." Elizabeth Burr
+ Library J 69:887 O 15 '44 70w

"Moves with a grand sweep of action. The characters live; the battle scenes unroll with motion-picture clarity. Terse prose wastes not a word, yet there is a strong impression of pity and comprehension for the unready patriots who fumble their way to ultimate heroism. To label 'Barney's Barges' a book for boys is to do it less than justice. It is a book for all Americans who are not too old to thrill to their country's glorious past." N. B. Baker
+ N Y Times p7 N 12 '44 80w

"There are some excellent characters in this lively, fast moving story. . . It is an attractive looking book, well planned and well illustrated." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 27:34 N 11 '44 450w

ASWELL, MRS MARY LOUISE (WHITE), ed. It's a woman's world. See Harper's bazaar

ATKINS, JOHN WILLIAM HEY. English literary criticism: the medieval phase. 212p $3 Macmillan [12s 6d Cambridge]

801 Literary criticism. Anglo-Saxon literature—History and criticism. English literature—History and criticism [A44-1294]

"This is the third volume of Professor Atkins's series dealing with the history of literary criticism, the first two having been devoted to the Greek and Greco-Roman phases of the subject [Book Review Digest, 1934]. This book . . . deals with the development of the critical sense and critical literature during the Middle Ages, especially in England." Cath World

"Professor Atkins' book has great if somewhat pedestrian value. . . The serious student of the medieval period and of literary criticism in England will find it interesting, informative and of course scholarly." J. D. R.
Canadian Forum 24:95 Jl '44 700w

Reviewed by B. M. Kelly
Cath World 159:566 S '44 650w

Reviewed by Richard McKeon
Mod Philol 42:59 Ag '44 1250w

"In this admirable book, charming both for its matter and for its style, Professor Atkins supplements the two volumes he has already given us on Greek and Græco-Roman criticism; and so thoroughly does it deal with a little-known subject that a reviewer has really not much more to do than to express his gratitude to the author for the pleasure it has given him, and to recommend all students of English literature to make themselves acquainted with it as quickly and as completely as possible." E. E. Kellett
+ New Statesman & Nation 27:370 Je 3 '44 1550w

"If any criticism can be made of Mr. Atkins's valuable and interesting book, it is of the occasional lecturer's mannerism of too often excusing his subject, and weakening his conclusions by double negatives, and the rather obvious reminder that it all has historical significance. The use of shorter paragraphs would make it easier on the eye." H. J. Paris
+ — Spec 172:248 Mr 17 '44 750w

"An interesting treatment of what might have been thought an unpromising theme."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p82 F 12 '44 1000w

ATKINSON, MARGARET F. How to raise your puppy; il. by [the author]. [60p] $1.75 Greenberg

636.7 Dogs—Juvenile literature

"In the form of broadcasts from Station GROWL it tells what a puppy needs (including 'you to love and play with') and reduces his upbringing to seven simple rules from how to pick up your puppy to how to bathe him and get along with him. All this is accompanied by pictures so laughable they impel action. Details are brought out in both words and pictures." Weekly Book Review

Booklist 41:156 Ja 15 '45

"Book covers everything a small child needs to know about care and training of a young dog. Also, much information that adults will welcome. Clever pictures dramatize instructions in how to pick up a puppy, what and when to feed him, how to housebreak, train and care for him. Long picture-book size. Looks like ages six to eight, but will be used by all." Gertrude Andrus
+ Library J 70:35 Ja 1 '45 80w

"If this book went with every gift pup, life would be sweeter for dogs, families owning them and the neighbors." M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 7 '45 100w

AUDEN, WYSTAN HUGH. For the time being. 132p $2 Random house
821 44-7545

This volume contains two long poems: "For the Time Being—a Christmas Oratorio" and "The Sea and the Mirror—a Commentary on Shakespeare's The Tempest."

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Book Week p6 O 15 '44 230w
Booklist 41:74 N 1 '44
Christian Science Monitor p13 O 21 '44 50w

"Both [poems] are highly philosophical, highly satirical works, witty, difficult, and intellectual. Auden's virtuosity makes him interesting to poets; his great capacity to think in modern terms makes him interesting to intellectuals. Portions of these are so brilliant that they may well become a permanent part of English literature."

+ Kirkus 12:425 S 15 '44 180w

Reviewed by Harry Levin
New Repub 111:347 S 18 '44 1350w

Reviewed by Mark Schorer
N Y Times p4 S 17 '44 950w

"This elaborate work [the oratorio] has an interest, an intellectual validity, an emotional range so rare that it should be read with the seriousness and attention it deserves. That it has been seriously composed, as opposed to being thrown together for effect, is as evident after a tenth reading as after a first." Louise Bogan

+ New Yorker 20:77 S 23 '44 850w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley
Poetry 65:202 Ja '45 2200w

"As a lyric poet the quality of his best verse is closer to Tennyson's than it is to Hopkins's or to Keats's; Mr. Auden's verse has its eye and its ear to the moment of its publication with much the same conscious timing that Tennyson's verse possessed, it has the same ease of manner and lightness of tone, and Tennyson wrote at the height of fashion for his day with something of the same facility that Mr. Auden writes today. Beyond this, all resemblance ceases." Horace Gregory

+ Sat R of Lit 27:48 D 2 '44 750w

Time 44:99 S 11 '44 1100w

Reviewed by Ruth Lechlitner
Weekly Book Review p4 O 1 '44 1100w

Reviewed by Louis Untermeyer
Yale R n s 34:345 winter '45 500w

AUGUST, JOHN, pseud. See De Voto, B. A.

AULAIRE, MRS INGRI (MORTENSON) D', and AULAIRE, EDGAR PARIN D'. Wings for Per [il. by the authors]. [40p] $2.50 Doubleday

44-8309

When he was a little boy Per lived on a farm in Norway. The farm was high upon a ledge, but even then Per longed for wings, so he could fly like the birds. After the Nazis destroyed much of his homeland Per escaped, came to America, and learned to be an aviator. At last Per had wings.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p23 N 12 '44 130w

Booklist 41:93 N 15 '44

Boston Globe p36 N 29 '44 50w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '44 110w

Horn Bk 20:492 N '44 80w

"I feel sure that seven and eight year old boys who long to fly, will love it."

+ Kirkus 12:479 O 15 '44 130w

"A tremendous conception for young children, a difficult thing to attempt, it has on the whole been well carried out." M. C. Skinner

+ Library J 69:861 O 15 '44 140w

"Difficult to judge age interest. One expects such a picture book to be for younger children, but the story is for fourth- or fifth-graders." M. F. Cox

Library J 69:1048 D 1 '44 70w

"This is all more vivid and believable than recent D'Aulaire contributions. Five to nine-year olds will find something here to satisfy their sense of what the war is about."

+ N Y Times p6 N 12 '44 120w

New Yorker 20:83 D 16 '44 50w

Sat R of Lit 27:32 N 12 '44 40w

"For the first time the D'Aulaires give us a book whose pictures, beautiful as ever, will not all be carefully examined before the story is begun. The first page of this story sets one reading for its sake, glancing as he goes to see how well the large lithographs, in colors or monotint, express it, but leaving their careful examination until he has seen 'how it comes out.' . . The color lithographs are broad, free treatments of landscape and character, childlike in simplicity, universal in appeal." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p6 N 12 '44 350w

AUSTIN, MRS MARGOT. Lutie; il. by [the author]. [40p] $1 Dutton

44-6370

Lutie was a small mountain boy who got into grave difficulties on his first attempt to connect with school. He made a brave try to reach the school, but a rainstorm interfered. Finally the school came to him.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p11 O 8 '44 180w

"The lively Austin pictures of animals and boy keep alive the interest of the younger brackets of this group, while the dialect and situations are easier for the older ones to comprehend. And it makes good, dramatic, funny, reading."

+ Kirkus 12:319 Jl 15 '44 90w

"Recommended." J. E. Wooster

+ Library J 69:763 S 15 '44 70w

"The many admirers of Peter Churchmouse will miss in Margot Austin's latest story the spontaneity and extraordinarily childlike quality which distinguished her earlier books. 'Lutie,' [is] written for somewhat older children than those who delight in 'Peter Churchmouse,' 'Gabriel Churchkitten' and 'Trumpet.' . . The idea is somewhat labored and the drawings, though lively and amusing, lack the originality and charm of those in the Peter Churchmouse stories." A. T. Eaton

N Y Times p12 S 3 '44 160w

"The pictures are the best part of the book and the young should enjoy them immensely." W. H. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 27 '44 120w

"It is good fun all the way, and small boys and girls at the picture-book age will receive it as warmly as they did Miss Austin's preceding fantasies." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p4 S 3 '44 250w

AUSTRALIAN INSTITUTE OF INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS. Australia and the Pacific. 203p $2.50 Princeton univ. press

327.94 Australia—Foreign relations A44-2151

"Australian views on wartime changes and postwar readjustments, especially in the Pacific, are here presented to North American readers by qualified Australians. . . The essays contained in this volume present social, political and economic facts, analyze their bearings on future problems and policies, introduce various proposals that have been made for the safeguarding of peace, prosperity and social justice." Christian Century

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan
Ann Am Acad 235:141 S '44 400w

Booklist 40:388 Jl 15 '44

Christian Century 61:670 My 31 '44 110w

Christian Science Monitor p12 S 2 '44 500w

Current Hist 7:53 Jl '44 60w

Foreign Affairs 23:15 O '44 20w

Nation 158:743 Je 24 '44 250w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan
Weekly Book Review p20 N 5 '44 350w

AVERILL, ESTHER. Adventures of Jack Ninepins; il. by [the author]. 63p $1.75 Harper

44-8723

Jack Ninepins was little Charlotte's favorite toy; he was the handsomest of the nine brothers in a box of ninepins. When Charlotte sailed for France, Jack managed to get dumped into New York harbor and followed her ship across the ocean. Later he found Charlotte again in Paris.

Booklist 41:93 N 15 '44

AVERILL, ESTHER—Continued
Reviewed by H. L. Binsse
Commonweal 41:127 N 17 '44 20w

"Here is a fresh, imaginative undertaking with a background of the Atlantic Ocean, its gulls, its seals, its porpoises and its whales, and a reassuring glimpse of Paris and the river Seine from which the persistent Jack is rescued by one of the fishermen along the banks." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 20:471 N '44 100w
Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:480 N '44 100w
Kirkus 12:399 S 1 '44 90w

"A fresh, new story about a toy. . . The many little pictures are attractive and there are some delightful touches in the story." M. C. Skinner
+ Library J 69:863 O 15 '44 40w

"A model of narrative simplicity. . . Jack, simple, modest and determined, will be a hero to boys and girls of six to nine years and to adults who read about him to even younger children." G. E. Andrus
+ Library J 69:1104 D 15 '44 70w

"Story does not have much point, and the slight plot seems forced. Do not recommend." R. O. Bostwick
— Library J 69:1104 D 15 '44 30w

"Esther Averill tells this adventurous saga with quiet humor; we believe in Jack Ninepins as we believe in the Tin Soldier and the Darning Needle of Andersen. The pictures have spontaneous charm and clarity that children find very satisfying." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p18 D 17 '44 150w

"This is a perfect book to put under the Christmas tree." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 27:30 N 11 '44 270w

AVERILL, ESTHER. Cat club; or, The life and times of Jenny Linsky; il. by [the author]. 31p $1.50 Harper

Cats—Legends and stories 44-3239

Simple little story about Jenny Linsky, a small black cat who lived with Captain Tinker in an ivy covered house that had a garden where the Cat Club met. Shy Jenny wanted to join the club but it wasn't until she learned to do something special that her wish was granted.

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 My 29 '44 190w
Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:207 My '44 60w

"A fanciful but charming book."
+ Kirkus 12:170 Ap 1 '44 100w

"Slight but gay and amusing to eight-year-old. Illustrations in black, white and red by the author are amateurish but in key with the book." E. W. Turpin
Library J 69:307 Ap 1 '44 70w

"This tale will endear itself to the younger boys and girls because of its gay absurdity, and the drawings, which present scenes from the life of Jenny and her cat acquaintances quite as a child might imagine them." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p20 Je 18 '44 170w

"Many, many people knew Miss Averill through the Domino Press in Paris, before the war. It was her press that published 'Powder' and 'Flash' and Rojankovsky's 'Daniel Boone.' In this little book, with its delightful drawings, black with a touch of scarlet, we meet her as author and artist. It is difficult in a review to define the charm that she has brought to its making. Here are humor and gaiety, the power to make a small world—and a small cat—important and interesting. Here are good taste and good judgment and experience." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 27:74 Ap 15 '44 320w

"Perfectly absurd and charming." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p9 Je 4 '44 190w

AVIATION RESEARCH ASSOCIATES, incorporated. Illustrated aviation encyclopedia; editor, Norman V. Carlisle; consulting eds: Leslie E. Neville [and] Reginald M. Cleveland. (New home lib) 236p il 69c Garden City pub. co.

629.1303 Aeronautics—Dictionaries 44-3420

"A dictionary giving brief definitions of aeronautical terms, rather than an encyclopedia. Although it includes many technical terms, its distinctive feature in comparison with other recently published aeronautical dictionaries, is the inclusion of a considerable number of cant and slang terms such as brolly, dust bin, erk, godunk, jaywalkers, kiwi, Mae West, pigs, and stack-up." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 40:320 My 15 '44
N Y New Tech Bks 29:19 Ap '44

AVIATION RESEARCH ASSOCIATES, incorporated. Types of planes; il. by Thomas F. Lubé. (Young America's aviation lib) 63p $1 Harper

629.13334 Airplanes—Juvenile literature 44-25

"Compact little volume giving elementary facts about planes. Explains how each type is designed to fulfill best its particular function. Each plane illustrated. Simple diagrams give differences in wings, propellers and interior arrangement. Easy to read and good for acquiring lay knowledge of some aircraft fundamentals." Library J

Booklist 40:288 Ap 15 '44

"Air-minded children, as young as eight or nine, will be helped to identify different kinds of planes by these clear, concise descriptions, authentic photographs and diagrams." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 20:212 My '44 30w
Kirkus 12:144 Mr 15 '44 90w

"Usefulness depends on amount of material already at hand and on how much background the young reader already may have acquired." Georgene Gifford
Library J 69:405 My 1 '44 70w

AVIATION RESEARCH ASSOCIATES, incorporated. See also Chapelle, G. L. M.

AVISON, GEORGE. Uncle Sam's army, how it fights; il. by the author. 40p $1 Macmillan

355 U.S.—Army—Juvenile literature 43-17773

Line drawings and brief descriptive text show twenty-three branches of our army and their duties. Contents: Infantryman; Rifleman; Ranger; Ski trooper; Paratrooper; Motorcyclist; Sapper; Engineer; Machine gunner; Motorman; Cannoneer; U.S. Army insignia; 'Medic'; Walkie-talkie; Cavalryman; Tankman; Aerial radio operator; Aerial gunner; Bombardier; Aerial navigator; Aerial photographer; Anti-aircraft gunner; Military policeman.

Booklist 40:200 F 1 '44
Bookmark 5:7 Ag '44
Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:46 Ja '44 40w

"A handy informative book for all ages." M. F. Cox
+ Library J 69:34 Ja 1 '44 50w

"Any book that shows uniforms and accouterments of our soldiers to a small boy is sure of welcome, but this should have a specially good one." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ap 2 '44 220w

AVISON, GEORGE. Uncle Sam's marines; how they fight; il. by the author. 40p $1 Macmillan

359.96 U.S. Marine corps—Juvenile literature 44-8399

"This text is for almost any age, but the vigorous, graphic illustrations tell the story of the Marines for boys who are too young to get it from a text. It illustrates all the phases of training and fighting, including the fliers and the 'Dogs of War.' " Sat R of Lit

Booklist 41:93 N 15 '44

Cath World 160:282 D '44 20w

Commonweal 41:257 D 22 30w

Kirkus 12:451 O 1 '44 30w

Reviewed by Miriam Snow

Library J 69:937 N 1 '44 40w

Sat R of Lit 27:44 N 11 '44 40w

"The double page spread of the marine corps insignia is of particular interest to young and old." M. K. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p4d O 15 '44 50w

AVISON, GEORGE. Uncle Sam's navy, how it fights; il. by the author. [40p] $1 Macmillan

359 U.S. Navy—Juvenile literature 44-6240

Drawings and brief descriptive text outline the work of the men in the United States navy at war, and the various kinds of ships and planes and submarines on which they are stationed. For young readers.

Booklist 41:27 S '44

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 20:380 S '44 80w

"The illustrations are clear and exact as to detail and the text is simple and concise. A book for any boy, young or old." K. H. McAlarney

+ Library J 69:701 S 1 '44 60w

"A splendid little book that gives a clear idea of how the navy is manned, and how some of our ships look and their function. The illustrations are especially good, taking the reader directly to the spot on board." A. B. T.

+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 20 '44 70w

"The text is brief and pointed, spending no space in explaining words you can look up for yourself. A boy at the eight-to-twelve age to which the book is offered will, if he has relatives in the Navy, either know by this time what a pelorus is, or a theodit or a synoptic chart, or will be inspired by their mention to find out. The scenes showing PT boats and submarines in action, and the closeups of operation of various instruments are more informing than descriptions." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p6 Jl 16 '44 250w

AXELRAD, JACOB. Anatole France; a life without illusions, 1844-1924. 480p $3.75 Harper

B or 92 France, Anatole 44-7656

A biography of the great French writer, based on extensive reading of published material as well as on examination of unpublished material, letters, diaries, etc. and on conversations with people who knew France. Bibliography. Index.

"It has often happened that a more judicious appraisal of a famous writer or artist begins to emerge about twenty years after his passing. Such an appraisal was due in this case, and we have it in Jacob Axelrad's well-balanced and well-informed Anatole France. Here is no romanticizing or white-washing; but sincere admiration and understanding are everywhere evident. . . The central portraits—Maître Anatole and Mme. de Caillavet—are convincingly and clearly drawn, and the subsidiary figures receive attention proportionate to their significance." S. C. C.

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 O 3 '44 650w

"A competent and comprehensive chronicle of the man and his work."

+ Kirkus 12:270 Je 15 '44 170w

Reviewed by F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 69:696 S 1 '44 80w

Nation 159:532 O 28 '44 300w

"This distinguished biography is the kind which can result only from a man's long and single-minded devotion to his subject. Although time alone will determine whether or not it is to be the definitive life of Anatole France, certainly it is a thorough, scholarly and unusually readable piece of work." R. D. Altick

+ N Y Times p7 S 17 '44 1000w

"Mr. Axelrad tells us all we need know of the facts of France's life, and even though they are presented in a semi-fictional manner, it is good that they have finally been brought together. Whenever Mr. Axelrad tries to write critically of France's works, however, he misses badly, and there are times, as in his description of France's efforts to get elected to the French Academy, when he appears to pull his punches. He also manages now and then to strike off a far from lucid sentence. An earnest job but a pedestrian one."

+ — New Yorker 20:82 S 16 '44 140w

"A substantial biography, trustworthy in all essentials, packed with significant details, and written to entertain as well as to inform. It is a conscientious, thoughtful piece of work, done with love, and marred but faintly by scattered minor slips of fact and language." B. R. Redman

+ — Sat R of Lit 27:13 N 18 '44 1350w

"The style is as confusing as the organization. Many sections are a labored parody of France's own work. The rhetorical, pedantic balance and antithesis are often absurd. Luckily, France's reputation will rest on what he himself has written." Lee Varley

Springf'd Republican p6 N 14 '44 440w

"It is difficult to speak in clear tones of a book which does not strike a clear note. The subject is of engrossing interest. The author has brought to his task the two great virtues of diligence and love. The work is eminently readable—for those who can stand romanced biography; it contains a wealth of information, and is somewhat careless in the use of its riches; it is penetrating—with blind spots; and sympathetic—with jarring undertones. One thing it is not, and could not be: it is not 'definitive.' " Albert Guerard

+ Weekly Book Review p12 O 15 '44 1400w

AYDELOTTE, FRANK. Breaking the academic lock step; the development of honors work in American colleges and universities. 183p $2.50 Harper

378 Colleges and universities—Honors work 44-2475

"This book is an examination and appraisal of a variety of typical plans for the use of the honors system in the colleges and universities of our country. The experience of one hundred and thirty institutions has been drawn upon. . . A supplementary feature of the volume is the discussion of the possible application of honors work in secondary schools. . . Dr. Aydelotte was responsible for the initiation of the honors system at Swarthmore College of which he was President from 1921 to 1940. He is now the Director of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, New Jersey." Publisher's note

Booklist 40:262 Ap 1 '44

"A book for any public or college library, readable as well as authoritative." G. E. Brown

+ Library J 69:116 F 1 '44 60w

School & Society 59:191 Mr 11 '44 20w

"Dr. Aydelotte reports on his own experience as President of Swarthmore and on the results of a survey made by members of the Swarthmore faculty. This part of the study is interesting and was well worth making. But far more interesting is the general discussion of the place in a democratic educational system of special teaching for the exceptionally gifted and for those below mediocrity. . . What is needed for educational advance is critical and informed enthusiasm. Here it is in abundance." D. W. Brogan

+ Spec 172:482 My 26 '44 700w

Reviewed by G. L. Joughin

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 19 '44 900w

"Mr. Aydelotte, in the writing of this book, has not only made a great contribution to the history of higher education in America between the two world wars but he has also pointed the direction toward the reconstruction of liberal education in this country." L. W. Jones

AYDELOTTE, FRANK—Continued
+ Survey G 33:258 My '44 230w
Wis Lib Bul 40:106 Jl '44

AYLING, KEITH. Bombers. 194p il $2.50 Crowell
623.746 Airplanes, Military. World war, 1939—Aerial operations 44-4793

"Written for military men and lay readers. The chief characteristics of the principal American and British types are described, along with some of the exploits in which they have figured in World War II. There is a short chapter on the Russian bombing force and a somewhat detailed analysis of Axis bombers." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"Adequate—reliable."
+ Kirkus 12:175 Ap 1 '44 40w
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:605 Jl '44 50w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:40 Jl '44

AYLING, KEITH. They fly to fight; the story of airborne divisions. 191p il $2.50 Appleton-Century
356.16 Parachute troops. Airborne troops 44-4377

Description of the paratroopers and the airborne soldiers flown into battle by airplanes—the advance striking forces which are playing such an important part in the present war. Gives data on qualifications, training, glider planes, pilots, supplies, support from other branches, etc.

Booklist 40:379 Jl 1 '44

"Definitely 'thin'—lacking in incident and illustration. Perhaps it is too soon for that to be available, and all this is intended to be a background book on the branch of service. But it seems a little flat."
Kirkus 12:207 My 1 '44 70w
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:605 Jl '44 50w

"The book holds one's interest throughout, though it is far from an exhaustive treatment of the subject." F. S. Adams
+ N Y Times p14 Je 11 '44 400w

AYRES, CLARENCE EDWIN. Theory of economic progress. 317p $3 Univ. of N.C. press
330.1 Economics 44-5187

"A new way of thinking about economic problems in terms of the economic life process. For the price theory of value the author substitutes a conception of value drawn from technology itself, from which with compelling logic he derives the policy of abundance. . . Alexander Meiklejohn says: 'I have no hesitation in saying that this book seems to me unusually significant. It is original both in content and in style. Ayres is always vigorous, independent, and surprising. But, more than ever before, this book is an expression of mature and well-considered judgment of the conflicting tendencies which run through our social theorizing. I don't know any treatment of intellectual method in the social field that seems to me so fruitful in suggestion, so worthy of careful reading.' " (Publisher's note) Mr. Ayres is Professor of Economics at the University of Texas.

"Dr. Ayres is very positive in his convictions, and he seems to hold an exceedingly low opinion of most other economists. Moreover, some readers will take issue with some of his rather sweeping statements and conclusions. He is probably correct in thinking that the book will not be entirely convincing to those whom he calls 'the case-hardened economists,' and he is certainly correct in thinking that the book is not one for the general reader to peruse while reclining in a hammock. Nevertheless, Dr. Ayres presents his arguments in an interesting and scholarly fashion on the whole, and the book is well worth reading." R. H. Blodgett
+ — Ann Am Acad 236:206 N '44 950w

"One of the most exciting and stimulating books I have read in many years. . . I am not qualified to pass judgment on Prof. Ayres' economic theories as such. I am not sure that his philosophic assumptions and conclusions are incontrovertible, or that he has wholly avoided the error of which he so forcefully accuses others—that of mistaking a new word for a new idea. But I can say of his book that it is courageous, largely consistent, and richly suggestive. It may indeed be a great book, in the sense—which Prof. Ayres himself would recognize—that great books are those which voice and illuminate at a strategic moment the general thinking of mankind. Certainly it exemplifies the kind of broad and deep analysis which is prerequisite to effective planning today." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p2 Jl 2 '44 650w
Booklist 40:384 Jl 15 '44
Christian Science Monitor p12 S 30 '44 900w

"The book is written in a spirit of optimism for the future and has a distinct bearing on worldwide post-war questions."
+ Current Hist 7:53 Jl '44 60w

"One of the keenest evaluations of contemporary theory that has ever been written." B. B. Seligman
+ New Repub 110:794 Je 12 '44 700w

"One can but wonder to whom this book is addressed. The lay reader is unlikely to make much out of it, not because it is, as the author intimates, 'closely' reasoned, for it is not. It is diffuse, goes off on digressions just when the reader thinks the author is about to make his point clearly, and abounds in half-truths, undocumented charges, straw men, and distorted logic of the 'have-you-stopped-beating-your-wife' variety. If addressed to economists, the style is thus singularly ill advised. There is crying need for the reorientation of economics and economics teaching with the general theory of value and values, but it can hardly be said that Ayres has approached this difficult task with proper humility of spirit or that he has greatly contributed to the purpose he has in mind." A. B. Wolfe
— Pol Sci Q 59:622 D '44 1250w

"Mr. Ayres is a man of wide learning, or at least of wide allusions. He has at least dipped into a lot of the 'classical' economic volumes of the last decades, and can talk knowingly of painting, music, inventions, folklore, and philosophy. . . He seems constantly delighted by his own cleverness, and is certain that his own outlook is as up-to-date as it can possibly be, while other economists still grope in the mists of outworn superstition. He seems, indeed, less eager to understand economics than to prove that others have not understood it. . . At times he affects a tone of Olympian detachment and scientific exactness, but will break out suddenly with something vehement, then return to his Olympian mood and complain that 'Economic controversy now seems to be rising to a higher pitch of violence than ever before.' " Henry Hazlitt
Sat R of Lit 28:38 Jl 22 '44 650w

"Meaty, thought-provoking, at times confusing and controversial treatise." E. F. Baker + — Survey G 33:466 N '44 550w

B

BACHMEYER, ARTHUR CHARLES, and HARTMAN, GERHARD GUSTAV FREDERICK, eds. The hospital in modern society. 768p $5 Commonwealth fund
362 Hospitals SG43-1

"This large volume of readings, collected primarily from the transactions of hospital associations and current hospital magazines during the period 1930 to 1940, was assembled especially for students of hospital administration who are preparing to enter the field professionally. . . The 145 articles by ninety-eight authors are arranged in twenty-nine chapters. They contain a historical review of hospitals, discussions of hospital service from a community viewpoint and of various phases of hospital operation, and consideration of health insurance and public health. . . The editors, well known as hospital administrators and educators of hospital administration, do not pretend that their book is 'an exhaustive compilation of all the significant material in these fields.' Neither do they offer it as a textbook from which one may learn the techniques of administration. The book, however, does afford a springboard of perspective into more intensive study." (Survey) No index.

"The strength of this book lies not only in its inclusion of carefully selected reading material on varied subjects, but also in the provision at the conclusion of each chapter of a substantial list of 'References for Further Reading.' . . It should serve as a ready aid and guide to hospital administrators, and their assistants, hospital department heads, trustees, and others concerned with hospital administration." C. F. Wilinsky

+ — Am J Pub Health 34:541 My '44 360w

"Books published in the field of hospital administration are rare. This worthy collection of articles fills a distinct need and is a 'must' on any list of those building even a small library in this field." J. A. Hamilton

+ Survey 80:359 D '44 400w

BACKUS, OLLIE L. Speech in education; a guide for the classroom teacher. 358p il $2.75 Longmans

371.927 Speech 43-7118

"This work, discussing 19 'problems' of speech, is addressed specifically to prospective classroom teachers with the hope that it will contribute toward the improvement of classroom instruction." (School & Society) Partial contents: Recognition of speech defects; General techniques of rehabilitation; Special techniques of rehabilitation; Speech improvement. Index.

School & Society 57:580 My 15 '43 40w

"Dr. Backus has made an interesting, if somewhat dogmatic, contribution to the literature of speech pedagogy—a book which will doubtless be welcomed by speech teachers and be read by classroom teachers as an assignment. It is thoroughly organized and broad in its sweep, with intensive consideration of problems in certain areas. It contains much information of value to the classroom teacher who will read it. Speech in Education might well be called 'education in speech,' a much-needed education which will pay high personal and social dividends." Louise Abney

+ — School R 52:379 Je '44 1150w

BACON, MRS FRANCES ELIZABETH (ATCHINSON). Kitty come down; pictures by Eloise Wilkin. 32p $1 Oxford

Cats—Legends and stories 44-3751

Story of the little black kitten Lollypop, beloved of the Morrow children. One day Lollypop was chased up a tree by a dog and then couldn't find courage to come down. It took three days of coaxing and much fish used as a lure to get the kitten back into the arms of its sorrowing family.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p4 Je 4 '44 140w

Booklist 40:323 My 15 '44

"Slight story, but it tells of an incident that is familiar to every little boy or girl who has a pet kitten, so it is sure to strike a familiar chord in the five and six year old who isn't quite ready to read it alone."

Kirkus 12:217 My 1 '44 130w

"Highly interesting to young children both for story and familiar scenes in illustrations." M. L. Goodwin

+ Library J 69:504 Je 1 '44 70w

Reviewed by M. C. Skinner
Library J 69:864 O 15 '44 50w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
N Y Times p10 Je 4 '44 160w

New Yorker 20:56 Jl 8 '44 60w

"Eloise Wilkin's elfish humor and gay common sense in picture making combine to give children and cat a lively realism: Lollypop will have friends." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p5 My 7 '44 160w

BACON, LEONARD. Day of fire. 86p $2 Oxford

811 World war, 1939—Poetry 44-45

"A collection of lyrics on themes growing out of these days of war, by a poet who is known as a Pulitzer prize winner and as a brilliant satirist." Springf'd Republican

Bookmark 5:9 Mr '44

Reviewed by Pearl Strachan
Christian Science Monitor p10 My 6 '44 180w

Reviewed by Milton Hindus
Poetry 64:39 Ap '44 330w

"Certainly Leonard Bacon is best known for swift and sharp barbs against his fellow men, but these poems are more in line with 'Sunderland Capture' in that they have a greater interest in the problems of man, rather than in his foibles. . . The technical variety of these poems will be interesting to readers of poetry, especially the skillful two and three foot lines." Lee Varley

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 23 '44 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p395 Ag 12 '44 120w

"Leonard Bacon's strength is in meditative and reflective cadences. He muses on the causes which have brought us to our present pass, seeing man as 'the slave of his false thought and falser senses,' and his weakness in the fact that 'we have lost the lovely earth' and have cut ourselves off from 'the stream of things.' He himself finds a sustaining power in the undying life of natural forces." Elizabeth Drew

+ Weekly Book Review p11 Mr 5 '44 270w

BAILEY, ALBERT EDWARD, ed. The arts and religion. 180p pl $2.50 Macmillan

701 Art and religion 44-8013

"Comprises the 1943 Ayer Lectures, given at Colgate-Rochester Divinity School. The book is made up of an introduction and four chapters, in each of which one of the noted authors analyzes the relation of religion to the special field of art in which he is most interested. Dr. Bailey discusses sculpture and painting; Professor Conant, architecture; Professor Smith, music; and Professor Eastman, drama." (Publisher's note) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

"The lectures go beyond present-day Christianity to draw upon archaeological findings and to present, from an art student's point of view, many varieties of religious belief and practice, familiar and strange, old and modern. The illustrations add considerable value to the text. The tone is that of reasonably objective scholarship, and one gathers that the authors have not been entirely oblivious to the forces that have tended to modify religious orientations in recent times." W. J.

+ Book Week p12 O 1 '44 230w

Booklist 41:55 O 15 '44

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 62:50 Ja 10 '45 500w

"The painting and sculpture section, by Mr. Bailey, and the analysis of pre-Renaissance Christian architecture, by Mr. Conant, are both well written and satisfactory. The section on music, by Dr. Smith, while containing a great deal of information, and an attempt to be practically helpful in coordinating music and worship in Protestant churches, is somewhat diffuse and lacking in literary form." Barry Byrne

+ — Commonweal 40:617 O 13 '44 500w

"The effect of the whole book is salutary upon the receptive mind and heart of anyone who still yearns for a more effective way to live religiously and to lead others into the beautiful and inspiring throne room of God, where courtesy is more than a mannerism, and where dignity is a mark of respect." R. E. Keighton

BAILEY, ALBERT EDWARD, ed.—Continued
+ Crozer Q 22:89 Ja '45 700w

"These lectures, originally delivered to theological students, deserve wider attention from the clergy, as well as from those interested in any of the arts and their association with religion."
+ Kirkus 12:251 Je 1 '44 90w

BAILEY, MRS BERNADINE (FREEMAN). The youngest WAC overseas; il. by Connie Moran. 248p $2 Messner 44-4736

Continuation of the adventures of Terry Thompson, heroine of The Youngest Wac (Book Review Digest, 1943). In this book Terry goes overseas, first to Iceland, then to England. For older girls.

"The book has the gay, light touch girls like and I'm sure 'The Youngest Wac Overseas' will make still more friends for Terry Thompson." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p4 Je 4 '44 230w

"A flimsy story, poor characterization."
— Kirkus 12:118 Mr 1 '44 130w

"Clean, light fiction, full of enthusiasm for the Women's Army Corps, giving interesting side lights on their activities without being tediously informational. Effectively illustrated with drawings by Connie Moran. Recommended for young people's collections and older juveniles." Maude Adams
+ Library J 69:655 Ag '44 70w

"Author shows appreciation and enthusiasm for the WACs but her style of writing is mediocre and her emphasis on Terry's romantic interests detracts from the value of the book. Undoubtedly, a better book on the subject will be written. Not recommended." L. E. Cathon
— Library J 69:655 Ag '44 60w

BAILEY, CAROLYN SHERWIN (MRS EBEN S. HILL). Pioneer art in America; with lithographs by Grace Paull. 221p $2.50 Viking 44-9352

"This is the final book of a series that has brought the arts and crafts of their own country vividly to American boys and girls. In story form, with charming illustrations, it tells of people who created beauty from Mordecai Lincoln, the smith, to Grant Wood the painter." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 41:110 D 1 '44

"An excellent book, sustaining the high standard of her work."
+ Kirkus 12:437 S 15 '44 130w

Reviewed by M. M. Smith
Library J 69:1106 D 15 '44 90w
Sat R of Lit 27:48 N 11 '44 40w

"Altogether it is a book for reading and for reference which children will enjoy and a grown-up collector will respect."
+ Weekly Book Review p10 N 12 '44 350w

BAILEY, CLYDE HAROLD. Constituents of wheat and wheat products. (Am. chemical soc. Monograph ser) 332p il $6.50 Reinhold
543.1 Wheat

"Mainly a survey of the knowledge of the substances present in wheat. Sample chapter titles are: Prolamins of wheat; Nucleic acid; Starch; Lipids, phospholipids and sterols; Minerals; Vitamins of wheat and wheat products. Generally speaking, such topics as the bio-chemistry of the living wheat plant, the processing of wheat and wheat flour, and the chemistry of baking are omitted. The literature of the subject is covered fully by means of footnote references and extensive author and subject indexes." N Y New Tech Bks

"The book is adequately illustrated with graphs and replete with tables. The author and subject indexes will be found very helpful. This book should appeal to students, in general, of wheat, flour, milling, and baking. The reviewer knows of no other book covering this field and he is sure most readers will feel grateful to C. H. Bailey for the painstaking far-reaching researches which have made this volume possible." J. A. Le Clerc
+ Chem & Eng N 22:846 My 25 '44 550w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:304 Ap 1 '44 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:13 Ja '44

BAILEY, GILBERT P. Boot; a marine in the making; phot. by Edward J. Freeman and John H. Birch, Jr. 131p $2.50 Macmillan
359.96 U.S. Marine corps [43-18248]

An account of a United States marine in the making, by one who has been thru it. The author takes a civilian and follows him thru his course of training, up to the day when he is ready for battle. Glossary.

" 'Well Done' must be the signal to be hoisted for the photographs by Corp. Freeman and Pvt. John H. Birch. The illustrations in 'Boot' are the best I have ever seen of Marine recruit training." C. L. Fordney
+ Book Week p6 Je 18 '44 400w
Booklist 40:371 Jl 1 '44

" 'Boot' has humor and comic relief. It also has an awareness of the meaning of all this grim business. . . This is decidedly in the top shelf of war books. And a good half of its impact comes from the superb photographs by Corp E. J. Freeman and Pfc J. H. Birch, Jr."
+ Springf'd Republican p4d My 21 '44 330w

"Corporal Bailey is gay and informative in this account of a civilian's initiation into the traditionally proud fighting fraternity, and the numerous full-page photographs are admirable."
+ Weekly Book Review p12 My 28 '44 200w

BAILEY, HENRY CHRISTOPHER. Cat's whisker. 223p $2 Doubleday
44-47149

Detective story.

Boston Globe p15 D 13 '44 60w

"Fair—but diffuse in style and execution."
Kirkus 12:459 O 1 '44 90w

"Reggie, in fine form, proves equal to the job in an ingenious and well worked-out puzzle."
+ New Repub 111:702 N 27 '44 90w

"The story is rambling and incoherent, and it exhibits Reggie Fortune at his cryptic worst." I. A.
— N Y Times p16 N 26 '44 80w

"Fortune naturally comes up with the solution, which he presents in his curious and elliptical style, by now almost entirely devoid of pronouns. An intricate story, expertly worked out but overburdened with recapitulations."
+ New Yorker 20:100 N 11 '44 90w

"Mr. Fortune and Lomas of C.I.D. rib each other pleasantly and work together successfully in slightly over-stuffed tale. Good Fortune."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:31 N 18 '44 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p41 N 12 '44 100w

BAILEY, HENRY CHRISTOPHER. Queen of spades [Eng title: Slippery Ann] 231p $2 Doubleday [8s 6d Gollancz] 44-3157

Detective story.

"All the makings of a fine plot are here—a hint of black market doings, possible espionage and a great deal of local skulduggery. But somehow it doesn't quite come off." Elizabeth Bullock
+ — Book Week p10 F 6 '44 200w
Bookmark 5:20 My '44

"Crime Club item—and a good 'un."
+ Kirkus 12:8 Ja 1 '44 40w

"The story is told by the hop-skip-and-jump method, as though it were not complicated enough without this device." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 F 6 '44 100w

"You may be troubled by a slight nausea caused by Mr. Clunk's personality, but you'll have to admit that this is a perfectly fair puzzle and intricate enough to occupy your mind thoroughly."
+ — New Yorker 19:84 F 5 '44 90w

"Not the best Bailey."
Sat R of Lit 27:37 F 5 '44 50w
Times [London] Lit Sup p245 My 20 '44 90w

"This has a complicated plot, rather jumpy action suitable to Mr. Bailey's mannered prose and a believe-it-or-not conclusion that needn't worry the confirmed Bailey follower. As we all know, Bailey stories mustn't be skipped." Will Cuppy
+ — Weekly Book Review p12 F 6 '44 240w

BAILEY, KENNETH P. Thomas Cresap, Maryland frontiersman. 322p il $4 Christopher
B or 92 Cresap, Thomas. Maryland—History 44-47159

"This biography of the Maryland frontiersman is an authentic story of the conflict waged for many years between Pennsylvania and Maryland over the question of the boundary line between the two. Thomas Cresap, a hot-headed, stubborn Yorkshire man who settled in Maryland early in the eighteenth century, insisted that his land was within this colony though it was far north of the fortieth parallel claimed by Pennsylvania as her southern boundary. The defense of his claims involved the two colonies in official disputes for many years. . . When after the peace of 1763 the Home Government sought to restrain the westward migration of the American settlers, Cresap, with Washington, was a leader in defying its authority, which bold and determined opposition was one cause of the American Revolution." Crozer Q

"It is a good story—almost ruined by the telling. The book has little literary merit to commend it and no critical evaluation of sources. Though well documented from colonial court records, materials in the British Museum, original letters and journals, many mistakes appear." R. E. E. Harkness
— + Crozer Q 22:87 Ja '45 500w

"Dr. Bailey does his best to smother his hero's little idiosyncrasies in a blanket of pedantic, dry-as-bones prose, but the cantankerous old pioneer wriggles out, his own unblushing and unregenerate self, in every paragraph." Thelma Purtell
N Y Times p10 Ja 21 '45 280w

BAILEY, THOMAS ANDREW. Woodrow Wilson and the lost peace. 381p il maps $3 Macmillan
940.3141 Peace conference, 1919. Wilson, Woodrow. Versailles, Treaty of. European war, 1914-1918—U.S. 44-6237

"Bailey's specific purpose is to give 'a critical analysis of the part played by the United States in the making of the world settlement of 1919, with particular attention to Wilson and to American public opinion,' and to point out some mistakes that were made then which ought not to be duplicated now." Christian Century

"This is no revolutionary indictment, but a rather conservative and by no means unsympathetic effort to explain our failure, in 1919, to attain ideals which Professor Bailey holds in common with President Wilson. It is a praiseworthy effort, but fails of greatness because, in the opinion of this reviewer, the author's text is too slight to sustain his conclusions. The simple narrative of Wilson at the Peace Conference, with its thumbnail sketches and anecdotes, neither reveals the man nor comes to grips with the basic issues with which he had to contend. It does not extend or revise our knowledge of Wilson sufficiently to enable us to judge either his motives or his actions with any greater certainty than heretofore. It merely registers one more well-informed concurring opinion in some practical decisions which, it would seem from current trends of policy, had already been made by Wilson's successors." A. W. Griswold
+ — Am Pol Sci R 38:1236 D '44 750w

Reviewed by Irving Stone
Book Week p3 Jl 30 '44 310w
Booklist 41:14 S '44

"Though Bailey does not hesitate to criticize Wilson . . . he is no less admirer than critic, seeing the greatness of the man, the loftiness of his ideals and the ultimate rightness of the main principles for which he contended valiantly but indiscreetly, and so in vain. His book is an interpretation rather than a detailed narrative of the work of the peace conference and the reactions of American opinion to it. As an aid to learning from a 'bastard armistice' and a false peace some things that we need to know now, it is one of the best." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 61:877 Jl 26 '44 900w
Current Hist 7:229 S '44 100w
Foreign Affairs 23:9 O '44 70w
Kirkus 12:209 My 1 '44 280w

"An invaluable book for all major libraries." G. O. Kelley
+ Library J 69:553 Je 15 '44 140w

"Professor Bailey's book which is certain to be of special interest today, is by no means in the hero-worshipping vein. Bailey sees many, many mistakes in his careful survey of our part in the peace, a good share of them primarily Wilson's. Although written without the least malice, his book somehow reads like a bill of indictment." Richard Hofstadter
New Repub 111:251 Ag 28 '44 850w

Reviewed by R. L. Duffus
N Y Times p5 Jl 16 '44 500w
New Yorker 20:63 Jl 29 '44 180w

"What shall be said of this interpretation of Wilson and the lost peace? It is characterized by some shrewdness and perspicacity and buttressed by adequate scholarship. It concerns itself sometimes with issues of genuine importance, more often with matters trivial, irrelevant, or too complex for the simple analysis here proffered. It fails entirely to concern itself with those fundamental issues to which Mr. Lippman has recently called our attention—the issue of a world organization versus regional understandings, of self-determination versus economic integration. It is conspicuous for its failure to do justice to Wilson, to appreciate his fierce sense of righteousness, his magnanimity, his splendid vision. It is a provocative book, but it is a book unworthy of its great subject." Henry Commager
— + Weekly Book Review p5 Jl 23 '44 1900w

"Professor Bailey has written an interesting and important book, designed primarily not to uncover the results of fresh research but to reinterpret Woodrow Wilson's personal relationship to the making of peace in 1919. It is a comprehensive swiftly moving narrative, beginning with a skilful summary of Wilson's policy during the war years, entering into greater detail with the armistice, and ending with the President's embarkation for home after the signing of the Versailles Treaty." Charles Seymour
+ Yale R n s 34:158 autumn '44 900w

BAIRD, ALBERT CRAIG, ed. Representative American speeches: 1943-1944. (Reference shelf) 360p $1.25 Wilson, H.W.
815 Speeches, addresses, etc. (38-27962)

"Representative American Speeches: 1943-1944 is the seventh in an annual series. This year's collection, like the earlier volumes, attempts to furnish examples of the types of speaking done in the United States, such as deliberative or congressional, persuasive and hortatory, educational, entertaining, forensic (courtroom), pulpit and radio. The aim further is to select speeches, the ideas, language and structure or other characteristics of which are of interest and application to students of speech." (Pref) Partial contents: Message to Congress, by F. D. Roosevelt; British-American cooperation, by

BAIRD, ALBERT CRAIG, ed.—Continued
Winston Churchill; Orchestrated hell, by E. R. Murrow; The fall of Rome, by F. D. Roosevelt; America's foreign policy, by Sumner Welles; Foreign policy of the United States, by Cordell Hull; America and the postwar air world, by C. B. Luce; The meaning of the home front, by R. G. Swing; Against Roosevelt's tax bill veto, by A. W. Barkley; Free enterprise, by H. W. Wriston; In the service of freedom, by Walter Lippmann; Acceptance speech, by T. E. Dewey; The function of a political party, by W. L. Willkie. Biographical notes. Cumulative author index, 1937-1938 to 1943-1944.

Booklist 41:125 D 15 '44

"Valuable for students of speech and as a source book of contemporary thought."
+ Christian Century 61:1320 N 15 '44 30w

BAIRD, ALEXANDER T., ed. One hundred cases for survival after death. 224p $3 Ackerman [10s 6d Laurie]

133.072 Spiritualism. Psychical research 44-9591

A compilation of one hundred accounts of incidents which apparently point to survival after death, grouped under such headings as dreams, haunted houses, apparitions, deathbed visions, etc.

Reviewed by H. M. Sherman
Book Week p22 N 26 '44 300w
Springf'd Republican p6 O 30 '44 400w

BAKER, ELIJAH. Introduction to steel shipbuilding. 242p il $3; text ed $2.25 McGraw

623.823 Shipbuilding 44-945

"Highly technical textbook for shipbuilding classes, 'designed to give the student with a high-school education or the equivalent' an understanding of the ship's hull as a whole and to enable him to understand the relationship of the many shipyard trades to the finished ship. Drawings have been simplified. Problems; bibliography: p.229-230." Booklist

Booklist 40:228 Mr 1 '44
Library J 69:118 F 1 '44 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:11 Ja '44

BAKER, GEORGE. The Sad Sack. [237p] il $2 Simon & Schuster

940.5497 World war, 1939—Humor, caricatures, etc. 44-7951

Personal history of a G.I. Joe (known as Sad Sack) told in 115 cartoons from the pages of Yank magazine.

Reviewed by August Derleth
Book Week p10 N 5 '44 280w
Booklist 41:56 O 15 '44
Boston Globe p32 N 29 '44 50w
Commonweal 41:22 O 20 '44 40w
Commonweal 41:261 D 22 '44 60w
Kirkus 12:426 S 15 '44 110w
Reviewed by Margaret Marshall
Nation 159:620 N 18 '44 90w

"Sad Sack is the congenital corporal's victim, the fellow with a permanent hold on the dirtier end of the stick, moving through an incredible military career in a drift of potato peelings. He emerges as one of the outstanding figures of World War II, a fate he will accept as philosophically as any other." Isabelle Mallet
+ N Y Times p7 S 24 '44 100w

"Sgt. Baker's Sad Sack is one of the heroes of this war, endlessly buffeted by fate and constantly hotfooted by man, and this book will probably make him as much of a favorite with civilians as he is with soldiers."
+ New Yorker 20:79 S 30 '44 90w

"Many efforts are being made to keep up the morale of our Army. USO shows travel about bringing entertainment to our fighting men. Red Cross workers distribute doughnuts and cheer to them, while earnest chaplains look after their spiritual welfare. Yet to my mind nothing has done more to lighten the load of our lonely, homesick youngsters than Yank's weekly comic strip. The Sad Sack has become an Army institution. . . During the last war Bairnsfather's Old Bill crawled out of The Better 'Ole and brought a little gaiety into Flanders Field. Now Baker's Sad Sack raises a laugh in the midst of 'blood and sweat and tears.' " S. J. Woolf
+ Sat R of Lit 27:56 O 14 '44 550w
Springf'd Republican p4d O 15 '44 170w

"There is no way to enjoy the Sad Sack's history other than looking at the record, and this volume—more than a hundred of the cartoons—supplies that. An attempt to describe what makes the drawings funny lands you behind the eight ball, which is where the Sack is most at home. Each tells a story that needs no words."
+ Weekly Book Review p12 S 24 '44 300w

BAKER, HARRY JAY. Introduction to exceptional children. 496p il $3.50 Macmillan

371.9 Children, Abnormal and backward. Children, Gifted. Child study. Education of children 44-1195

An introductory course to the study of exceptional children. "For teachers who expect to specialize in some field of exceptional children, it is designed to give an over-all view of the entire field. . . It is intended also as a reference book for school administrators, supervisors, principals, teachers in service, and for physicians, psychologists, social workers, and others who deal with exceptional children. . . Questions and Topics for Discussion at the end of each chapter." (Pref)

"The book is a useful one, and will give some conception of the problems to be faced by teachers and school authorities with respect to the types of children to be taught in our schools. The reader, however, must be on his guard to realize that all these different groups are to be treated differently. There is to be no such conception as mass education for all; something the unthinking may not fully appreciate. . . Dealing with all the classes mentioned together in one not very large volume, with anything like adequate treatment for each, is an immense undertaking; one that requires no little audacity." Harry Best
Am Soc R 9:454 Ag '44 400w
Booklist 40:277 Ap 15 '44

"The large scope of the book makes it impossible to give full discussions of many topics. However, the excellent organization, the simple presentation, and the point of view of this publication combine to make it a real contribution. In this respect it serves the purpose for which it was written." H. M. Robinson
+ El School J 44:434 Mr '44 850w

"The book is somewhat diffuse because it is meant to serve as a text for people of such varied backgrounds as teachers, school administrators, physicians, psychologists, and social workers. The bibliographies and the practical suggestions from successful clinical experience should be of value for teachers both of regular classes and of exceptional children." S. F. West
+ J Home Econ 36:522 O '44 250w

"Administrators, supervisors, principals, teachers in service, physicians, psychologists, and social workers who deal with exceptional children will find it a useful reference book."
+ School & Society 59:79 Ja 29 '44 60w

BAKER, MRS NINA (BROWN). Garibaldi; il. by Louis Slobodkin. 315p $2.50 Vanguard

B or 92 Garibaldi, Giuseppe 44-9772

Biography of the Italian patriot, Garibaldi, written for junior and senior high school pupils. The author takes him thru all the phases of his adventurous life—from his early trials and failures, thru his exiles in Brazil and this country, his liberation of Sicily and Naples, to his old age. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p7 D 24 '44 250w

Booklist 41:141 Ja 1 '45

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 D 28 '44 100w

Kirkus 12:453 O 1 '44 90w

"Boys will like the spirited, daring Garibaldi presented here and at the same time absorb some valuable historical facts about Italy." E. E. Frank.
+ Library J 70:36 Ja 1 '45 70w

"Garibaldi's rampageous early exploits as a kind of professional but wholehearted revolutionary in South America should guarantee the immediate interest of 'teen-aged readers, while this account of his long, oft-interrupted struggle to liberate and unite Italy illumines the political background of a country which very much needs our understanding now. Not the least of Mrs. Baker's qualifications as a biographer is her ability to inspire affection for the man as well as honor for the hero." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p16 N 12 '44 100w

"This is a biography to be read with the heart in the mouth, the way it was written. Indeed, this is the only way of writing by which to carry through the career of Garibaldi, incredible embodiment of youth's dream of a romantic hero."
+ Weekly Book Review p16 N 12 '44 430w

BAKER, NORTH, and BOLTON, WILLIAM. Dead to the world. 246p $2 Doubleday 44-2892

Detective story.

"This is a holding story, good suspense, good story interest, and a touch of romance which almost disrupts the process of law."
+ Kirkus 11:561 D 15 '43 80w

"With a little more experience Danny Michaels may turn out to be one of our better medical sleuths." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 F 20 '44 100w

"Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:35 F 19 '44 30w

"The story moves briskly, the plot is better than average, the humorous touches are mildly entertaining."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 27 '44 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p10 F 27 '44 230w

BAKER, RACHEL (MININBERG). First woman doctor; the story of Elizabeth Blackwell; il. by Corinne Malvern. 246p $2.50 Messner

B or 92 Blackwell, Elizabeth—Juvenile literature SG44-81

Biography of Elizabeth Blackwell, whose battle to become a doctor was fought during the 1840's. She was the first woman to graduate from a medical college, the first woman to enter an American hospital as an interne, the first woman to be enrolled on the Medical register of Great Britain. She also was the founder of a great woman's hospital, and founded the first school of nursing in America. For upper grades and high schools. Index.

"This tale of a great soul fighting a victorious battle against bigotry and obscurantism deserves to be read widely." Israel Davidsohn, M.D.
+ Book Week p6 Ap 9 '44 550w

Booklist 40:306 My 1 '44

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:211 My '44 120w

"Well written, in a genial, easy style." G. M. Williams
+ Library J 69:464 My 15 '44 80w

"A stirring [account] not only for those young girls who are going through the inevitable Florence Nightingale stage of ambition, but for all who would understand the long, hard struggle which lies behind the present vocational opportunities freely offered to women." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p11 Jl 2 '44 150w

New Yorker 20:60 Jl 8 '44 130w

"Projected against a background of nineteenth century society and its prejudices, Elizabeth Blackwell emerges from this story endowed perhaps not with the genius of Marie Curie, but with the same determination, the same high moral qualities. It is a rich record." B. W. Shaffer
+ Sat R of Lit 27:76 Ap 15 '44 380w

"Written for older teens, this book reaches a wider audience. It is the only adequate presentation of the work of Elizabeth Blackwell; of its part in our social history, especially in the ferment of the 'woman movement,' no intelligent American can afford to be ignorant. It is here presented with dignity and authority; of itself it can't help being lively." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Je 4 '44 500w

Wis Lib Bul 40:88 Je '44

BALCHEN, BERNT, and others. War below zero; the battle for Greenland; foreword by H. H. Arnold. 127p il $2 Houghton

940.542 World war, 1939—Greenland 44-5037

"In the summer of 1941, an expedition led by Colonel Bernt Balchen, veteran flier and explorer, sailed under secret orders for Greenland. Their mission was to establish the northernmost American air base in the world. They discovered that the Germans already had a weather station there in daily communication with Berlin. This station Colonel Balchen's men destroyed, May 25, 1943." (Publisher's note) Besides Colonel Balchen's account of his experiences, the book contains Captain Monteverde's account of his crash on the icecap, as told to Major Oliver La Farge; and a first-person account of the mass crash landing of six planes and twenty-five men on the icecap on July 4th, 1943.

"All the stories in 'War Below Zero' are inspiring tales of man's humanity to man and of man's ability to survive wherever he is able to set his foot." W. F. Morse
+ Book Week p3 Je 18 '44 320w

Booklist 40:373 Jl 1 '44

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook
Current Hist 7:322 O '44 90w

Kirkus 12:204 My 1 '44 260w

"This personal narrative by men in the Armed Forces gives the reader an excellent picture of the daily life and activities of our fighters in the far-off arctic. Written in popular style. Recommended for all public libraries." M. E. Clark
+ Library J 69:402 My 1 '44 60w

"Having so many authors makes 'War Below Zero,' like the Greenland ice cap, choppy. Nevertheless, one gets the feel of this land where 'a deep breath will shrivel your lungs' and where the heroism of men like Balchen has kept open the ferry route to England against incredible odds." Marcus Duffield
Nation 158:739 Je 24 '44 300w

Reviewed by Russell Owen
N Y Times p7 Je 18 '44 480w

Springf'd Republican p4d Je 18 '44 390w

"It's a grim study, a primal tale of men battling a glacier and winning at least a partial victory. It proves once again that courage and steadfastness are qualities by no means limited to the battle-field." Herbert Kupferberg
+ Weekly Book Review p2 Jl 2 '44 750w

Wis Lib Bul 40:109 Jl '44

Reviewed by F. W. Bronson
Yale R n s 33:760 summer '44 140w

BALDWIN, FAITH (MRS HUGH HAMLIN CUTHRELL). Change of heart. 280p $2 Farrar 44-7189

Story of the conflict between two beautiful women—mother and daughter. The mother was a world celebrity and completely selfish; the daughter, altho a fine and clever girl, was still vulnerable, until her mother interfered in her plans for marriage with a young aviator. With her eyes completely opened to her mother's machinations, Carol went ahead with her plans and married her aviator.

BALDWIN, FAITH—Continued

Kirkus 12:264 Je 15 '44 90w

"By now Miss Baldwin is so smooth in contrivance that one cannot but admire her craftsmanship. Such a ticklish job of skating and steering is not easy. . . I think she deserves every cent she makes." Catharine Brody
+ N Y Times p30 O 29 '44 200w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p14 Ag 27 '44 200w

BALDWIN, FAITH (MRS HUGH HAMLIN CUTHRELL). He married a doctor. 279p $2 Farrar 43-18239

Story of a modern marriage, and of a woman doctor who hesitated between two careers—that of physician or housewife. The time is the present.

Booklist 40:253 Mr 15 '44

Kirkus 12:1 Ja 1 '44 70w

"The characters are fully developed, and they reach a conclusion which is adult and realistic. This is one of Miss Baldwin's more thoughtful studies of the marriage problem." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p16 Ja 16 '44 200w

BALDWIN, LELAND DEWITT. God's Englishman; the evolution of the Anglo-Saxon spirit. 265p $3 Little [12s 6d Cape, J]
942 Great Britain—Civilization. National characteristics, English. Anglo-Saxon race 43-18277

A study of the development of the national characteristics of the English and, in a broader sense, the Anglo-Saxon, from the days of the Vikings and Normans who conquered England, to the two great wars of the twentieth century.

Booklist 40:194 F 1 '44

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:500 Ap '44 20w

"Because it is a very personal record of spiritual struggle, not all of Mr. Baldwin's readers will agree with conclusions. But all will agree that author is sound, spirited, fair and witty and that his book is worth reading—and well worth buying for all libraries." K. T. Willis
+ — Library J 69:70 Ja 15 '44 110w

"This interesting and, in a good sense of the term, entertaining book is the work of an American and could only be the work of an American. For, although it is an appraisement of the English achievement written in terms that would have pleased Milton by their spirit, if not by their content, it is soaked through and through with American conceptions. . . Englishmen—and non-Englishmen—will find in Mr. Baldwin a lively narrator, a vigorous commentator, and a prophet whose equipment of faith is one of the things needed in the world today." D. W. Brogan
+ Manchester Guardian p3 D 29 '43 250w

"Professor Baldwin writes in the best tradition of academic scholarship and has packed his book with information, but the only time he comes close to describing the real grain and texture of the English character is when he quotes long passages from Santayana's 'Soliloquies in England.' "
New Yorker 19:67 Ja 22 '44 90w

Reviewed by R. E. Roberts
Sat R of Lit 27:28 F 12 '44 1450w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 23 '44 600w

"In the later chapters of his friendly and humorous essay Mr. Baldwin has many critical reflections to offer, which are robbed of offence though not of force by his readiness to include in most of them his own branch of the Anglo-Saxon race. He sees a spirit of the English-speaking peoples, which can be explained only in terms of the life that has been lived in these islands from the immemorial past to the eighteenth century, and of which the England and the America of to-day afford equally valid interpretations."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p577 D 4 '43 600w

"For two-thirds of its length this is without doubt the wittiest, shrewdest, saltiest book perpetrated upon the English by an American in many years. It is as ruthless as Margaret Halsey's 'With Malice Toward Some,' but it is not feline. Indeed, it's urbanity, its suavity and its erudition are largely responsible for its effectiveness. . . If the last third of the volume does not quite fulfill the promise of the earlier part, it is due to the fact that Mr. Baldwin is himself too thoroughly American not to have been overwhelmed and bemused by the record of the English since 1940. He cannot be flippant, indeed, he cannot be quite intelligent, about the heroic." G. W. Johnson
+ — Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 23 '44 1700w

BALINT, NICHOLAS G., ed. Meet your allies in war and peace. 110p il $1.50; pa $1 Int. univ. press
940.5332 United nations, 1942- 44-5461

Fundamental facts about all the United Nations, from Australia to Yugoslavia. Each country is allotted from one to three pages; arrangement is alphabetical. Photographs.

"This little book will be found enjoyable and genuinely illuminating for young readers as well as old. It has my most sincere recommendation." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p4 Je 18 '44 270w

Kirkus 12:230 My 15 '44 70w

BALLOU, ROBERT OLESON, ed. World Bible. (Viking portable lib) 605p $2.50 Viking
290 Sacred books. Religions 44-4542

"A certain amount of condensation and a more compact format have turned Mr. Ballou's The Bible of the World (1939) into this more convenient and somewhat cheaper volume which appears in the 'Viking Portable Library' series. It is made up of selections from the sacred writings of the world's great religions, with an excellent brief introduction to each section. Extracts from the Jewish-Christian Scriptures occupy considerably less than half of the 600 pages." (Christian Century) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1939. Glossary. Index.

Reviewed by Ralph Peterson
Book Week p9 My 28 '44 290w

Booklist 40:392 Jl 15 '44

Christian Century 61:594 My 10 '44 80w

Kirkus 12:114 Mr 1 '44 170w

BANE, SUDA LORENA, and LUTZ, RALPH HASWELL, eds. Organization of American relief in Europe, 1918-1919; incl. negotiations leading up to the establishment of the Office of director general of relief at Paris by the allied and associated powers; documents sel. by [the editors]. (Hoover lib. on war, revolution, and peace. Publication) 745p $6 Stanford univ. press 940.477873 European war, 1914-1918—Hospitals, charities, etc. Reconstruction (1914-)
44-186

The volume is composed of documents arranged chronologically to show the organization of the American relief administration and Children's relief bureau, activities of the Allied railway mission, Remittance plan, Coal mission, European technical adviser's missions, and European children's fund. Contains "Relief in retrospect," and "We'll have to feed the world again," by Herbert Hoover. Index.

"Except for Mr. Hoover's valuable prefatory observations, challenging and helpful as far as they go, this volume of source material is almost without notes or explanatory topical introductions such as would, if they could have been supplied, greatly assist the reader to interpret and to convert the raw material into history. What does not get into such correspondence and memoranda is often more important than what is preserved in the files. This reviewer was connected with one minor project concerning which a number of documents are assembled in this volume, namely, the Inter-Allied Danube River Commission; and he doubts whether any reader who has nothing before him but these papers could properly understand what did or—more significant—what did not happen within the province of that commission. Yet one or two pages of explanation would have sufficed to relate the documents to the larger pattern of events during the spring and the summer of 1919. Someone, perhaps at Stanford, would confer an additional favor on the students of relief in Europe if he would collect notes and comments from some of the many persons who worked with the American Relief Administration and who are still living." Henry James

Am Hist R 49:721 Jl '44 550w

Reviewed by John Lindberg
Ann Am Acad 232:201 Mr '44 550w

Booklist 40:248 Mr 15 '44

Commonweal 40:69 My 5 '44 30w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:495 Ap '44 30w

BANER, SKULDA VANADIS. Latchstring out [il. by David Hendrickson]. 277p $2.75 Houghton

44-3390

Reminiscences of a year or two in the childhood of a little Swedish-American girl living in northern Michigan. Swedish customs, transferred to America, provide the background for the story, but the most charming part of the book is the understanding between the little girl and her father.

"A solid, unfaked, true-ringing masterpiece of childhood reminiscence as homely and wholesome as gingerbread and checkered tablecloths, as blandishing as the South Wind, as invigorating as the piney scent of the North Woods." Jack Conroy

+ Book Week p3 Ap 2 '44 600w

Booklist 40:304 My 1 '44

"'Latchstring Out' is nostalgia for a segment of America lived amid a nostalgia for European traditions. It is a remembered child's eye view of America's growing pains. It has the beauty of a rose growing in an ash heap. Its occasional vulgarity will surprise but won't shock you."

+ Boston Globe p17 Ap 12 '44 280w

Kirkus 12:47 F 1 '44 180w

"This could have been just another 'little girl' story, but Skulda Banér has made the tie between father and daughter moving without sickly sentiment. She has given it humor and pace." Andrea Parke

+ N Y Times p20 Mr 26 '44 480w

Reviewed by Edrie Van Dore
Springf'd Republican p8 Ap 7 '44 440w

"Miss Banér is evidently young enough to remember her childhood in vivid nuance, both of detail and emotion, and not yet old enough —or perhaps just too wise—to sentimentalize it. Writing with zest of Stumpastina's explorations of life, she gives one the pleasure of almost first-hand acquaintance with a promising youngster and a fresh sense of how immensely vital are the beginning years." F. H. Bullock

+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ap 2 '44 600w

Wis Lib Bul 40:70 My '44

BANNING, MRS MARGARET (CULKIN), and CULKIN, MABEL LOUISE. Conduct yourself accordingly. 191p $2 Harper

170 Conduct of life. Etiquet 44-6118

Study of the ethics of good manners and courtesy, rather than a book on etiquet. Contents: American manners abroad; How well behaved are we? Are manners inherited? The contagion of conduct; The teaching of democratic conduct; Self-made behavior; The effect of the war on American conduct; International behavior; Preview of conduct in the post-war world. Bibliography.

"Though the book is written a bit pompously, the ideas are, on the whole, sound. Give it to a teen-ager. That's the time for them to begin thinking in this fashion and they won't mind the wording."

+ — Book Week p7 Jl 23 '44 100w

Booklist 41:6 S '44

Kirkus 12:212 My 1 '44 120w

"Putting etiquette for the moment aside, this timely, greatly needed report and warning on the manners of America goes deeper than shifting conventions and touches the springs of good conduct. Itself a model of good manners, it carries conviction much further than the sort of scolding that sets up immediate self-justification; it presents cold-blooded facts with warm-hearted, sympathetic understanding."

+ Weekly Book Review p16 Ag 20 '44 400w

Wis Lib Bul 40:123 O '44

BANNON, LAURA. Gregorio and the white llama; pictures by [the author]. 44p $2 Whitman, A.

44-9332

Gregorio was a little Indian boy, living in the mountain country of Peru. The story describes in text and pictures Gregorio's gay adventures with his family, but most important of all, with the white llama, who had a great admiration for bright-colored hats.

"Both pictures and story shed a fascinating light on the customs of that little-known, mountainous land." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p4 N 12 '44 150w

Booklist 41:141 Ja 1 '45

Kirkus 12:400 S 1 '44 90w

"A delightful addition to the books on Peru." Elizabeth Johnson

+ Library J 69:1048 D 1 '44 70w

"Gregorio has a very definite, boy-like personality of his own, and his troubles with the white llama are very funny. These two facts give the story its validity and make it more than just a vehicle for carrying details about life in a small corner of South America."

+ N Y Times p7 N 12 '44 80w

BARBEAU, CHARLES MARIUS. Mountain Cloud; il. by Thoreau MacDonald. 300p $4 Caxton printers

44-7132

A French Canadian trader, working for the Hudson Bay company, met a beautiful half-breed Indian girl, and in order to marry her became a member of the Wolf tribe. After a year of happiness his Indian wife died, leaving him a son, and the remainder of the story describes the Frenchman's attempt to wean his son away from Indian customs, and his failure.

"This simple story is charmingly told. The native sagas of the Indians are unforgettably impressive, the songs poetic even in their rhymeless English versions. The apt illustrations by Thoreau MacDonald add greatly to the value of this book, which is warmly recommended to anyone who wishes to take an armchair vacation into an exotic wonderland." Otto Eisenschiml

+ Book Week p2 Ag 6 '44 310w

Reviewed by Eleanor McNaught
Canadian Forum 24:143 S '44 350w

Kirkus 12:189 Ap 15 '44 110w

Reviewed by E. G. Eastman
+ Springf'd Republican p6 S 11 '44 220w

BARBOUR, THOMAS. That vanishing Eden; a naturalist's Florida. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 250p il $3 Little

574.9759 Natural history—Florida. Florida—Description and travel 44-9632

The vanishing Eden is the state of Florida. The author, an American naturalist, describes his own experiences in Florida, and his reaction to the ruthless spoiling of the state by unwise systems of drainage, burning over land with resultant loss of humus, and the vanishing of much interesting native flora and fauna. Index.

BARBOUR, THOMAS—Continued

"Barbour writes brilliantly on his friends, the undefeated Seminoles. He comes to the defense of white egrets, and otter and alligator and deer. And he makes you feel as William Bartram, author of 'Travels,' must have felt a century and three quarters ago when he explored the blossoming wilderness of orchids, giant springs, wild citrus fruit and fauna beyond compare. And as Bartram inspired Coleridge, possibly Barbour will inspire current creative writers. His material is beyond the imagination of casual tourists busily despoiling a once beautiful state." Sterling North
+ Book Week p2 N 19 '44 360w
Booklist 41:119 D 15 '44

Reviewed by Jean Pinanski
Boston Globe p13 N 22 '44 390w
Kirkus 12:462 O 1 '44 170w

"Dr. Barbour's book is the benign and penetrating comment of a scientist; yet it offers the reader a moral, no less important because it is implied rather than stated. In its faithful portrayal of the majestic tranquillity of nature, the serene functioning of natural law, the smooth operation of checks and balances when undisturbed by uncontrolled human greed, there reposes a lesson for the better ordering of society." Stetson Kennedy
+ N Y Times p8 D 3 '44 400w

"Mr. Barbour writes as a naturalist, for naturalists; he assumes that you appreciate the importance of saving a rare sub-species of deer; that you will share with him his thrill when he actually sees dinosaur bones lying at the bottom of a pool. That you will understand how he loved, when a boy, to hear the alligators bellowing in the springtime in the marshes of the St. Johns River. I for one shared each page of his experiences with warm interest and there should be many others—'Floridians' and winter visitors to the peninsula, as well as naturalists—to enjoy this easy and delightful record of Mr. Barbour's Florida, past and present." D. C. Peattie
+ Sat R of Lit 27:10 D 23 '44 360w

"An informal, entertaining, and instructive potpourri of geologic history, fossil discoveries, Seminole Indians, hurricanes, devastating fires, and gastronomic delights."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 15:4 D '44 360w

"It is recommended to all who would like a change of scenery and an escape from war news." W. B. Kirkham
+ Springf'd Republican p4d D 10 '44 410w

Reviewed by E. W. Teale
Weekly Book Review p2 D 3 '44 1400w
Wis Lib Bul 40:158 D '44

BARCUS, THOMAS RANKIN. Carnegie corporation and college libraries, 1938-1943. 59p pa Carnegie corp. of N.Y.

027.7 Libraries, University and college
43-11450

"In this brief report the assistant to the chairman of the Advisory Groups completes the record of the work of the Advisory Groups on Academic Libraries set up over fifteen years ago by the Carnegie Corporation. The report should be read with and in the light of William Warner Bishop's Carnegie Corporation and College Libraries, 1929-1938. . . Mr. Barcus' well-written report is concerned with the years 1938-43 and describes the interest of the Advisory Groups in the libraries of teachers colleges, colleges for Negroes, smaller state colleges, and technological colleges. It reports the procedure of the Advisory Groups in determining types of institutions to be assisted and in selection of specific institutions in each type. The work of the centralized book-purchasing office is briefly described." Library Q

Reviewed by H. M. Lydenberg
Library J 68:586 Jl '43 750w

Reviewed by R. W. McEwen
Library Q 14:177 Ap '44 700w

BARGER, HAROLD, and SCHURR, SAM H. Mining industries, 1899-1939; a study of output, employment and productivity. 452p $3; to subs gratis Nat. bur. of economic research

338.2 Mining industry and finance. Mining engineering
44-3218

"The authors first present a study of several functional operations of the entire mining industry. These phases include output and employment, followed by an analysis of the resultant productivity. Technical changes in the industry are then appraised to determine their relationship to productivity. In a subsequent section of the book, six major industries—namely: bituminous coal, Pennsylvania anthracite, petroleum and natural gas, iron mining, copper mining, and stone quarrying—are analyzed to determine the effect of the technological changes on the productivity record of each industry. The summary chapter deals with the principle of diminishing returns and the continuous struggle of technical development versus depletion of resources." Ann Am Acad

---

"As a display of the colorful array of devices that the resourceful statistician has at his disposal this volume is impressive. In addition, the authors have applied their handicraft to the most reliable basic data that are available and have provided a convenient summary of the long-time trends of production and employment that should be useful to students of mineral economics. Finally, the study is well contrived and skillfully put together. Apart from these undeniable virtues, the book cannot be regarded as a significant contribution to the literature on mineral economics." H. O. Rogers
+ — Am Econ R 34:626 S '44 700w

"Obviously, the book represents one of the best jobs of summarizing the output, employment, and productivity of the mining industries in the United States, ever completed." H. F. Hynes
+ Ann Am Acad 235:162 S '44 550w

BARKER, GEORGE. Sacred and secular elegies. (Poets of the year) [32p] $1 New directions

821
44-890

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

"Mr. Barker presents seven 'secular' and five 'sacred' elegies; my own spiritual insight is not sufficiently keen to detect the dividing line, though I note, in passing, that the secular ones contain stanzas of, usually, five lines, and that the stanzas of sacred ones are twice as long. Pretentious, emulous, nervous, excited, compulsive—all the adjectives I am inclined to apply to Mr. Barker's language can be summed up in the single one, vain. Where does it get you?" Rolfe Humphries
N Y Times p17 F 13 '44 280w

"Barker's ear is impeccable; we get none of those lumps of sound that no listener can assimilate, so usual in poets who cannot write by ear. He is dealing, moreover, with reality, although at about a ninth remove, and shimmerings of actual people and events show through the verbiage from time to time. He is full of emotion and given to a sort of suppressed religious enthusiasm. His intellectual orientation to his material, as the textbooks put it, is, however, rather weak." Louise Bogan
+ — New Yorker 20:82 F 26 '44 200w

"At his best Barker's elegies (his most successful poetry so far) have a life and power all too rare in modern poetry. The sacred elegies are better than the secular, and also read better as a related sequence. The final climax is a worthy conclusion to this unusual volume. These poems have demonstrable faults of organization and a certain unnecessary breathlessness in the sequence of imagery: but they are exciting, and they are poetry, and the critic comes to the last line of the book with his pulse beating faster." David Daiches

+ — Poetry 64:37 Ap '44 550w

Reviewed by Ruth Lechlitner
Weekly Book Review p9 Ap 9 '44 80w

BARNE, KITTY (MRS ERIC STREATFEILD). Three and a pigeon; il. by Stuart Tresilian. 206p $2 Dodd

44-2356

A London doctor, bombed out of his home, takes his own children and a resourceful London slum girl to live in a country studio. The children meet Emile, a Belgian refugee boy who trains carrier pigeons, and his employer, the supposed innocent chicken farmer. The children pool their knowledge and succeed in catching a black marketeer. For older girls.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p14 My 21 '44 170w

Booklist 40:272 Ap 1 '44

"A lively mystery of present day England; a delightful picture of children and their adaptability to war conditions." F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 13 '44 160w

"Good adventure story, the mystery rational, wholesome humor and fine character delineation. The 'black market' is perhaps more real to English children than to ours. A corking good story for girls twelve and up." K. H. McAlarney
+ Library J 69:265 Mr 15 '44 110w

"For boys and girls of 8 to 12 the result is delicious entertainment, for Kitty Barne spins a lively tale and heightens it with a sense of comedy which has its basis, as does the best comedy, in human characterization. Even the pigeons, about which we learn some fascinating lore, have distinct personalities." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p23 Ap 30 '44 210w

"There are humor and action enough here to make this a 'find' for both boys and girls. To more experienced minds it is a fine record of the qualities that have brought the people of England through these last tragic years. Miss Barne does not speak of these qualities. She presents them in terms of daily living. Her characters are both convincing and endearing. In one sense this is a war story. In another it is just a good tale made more exciting by an incident that only war could have produced." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 28:33 Ja 13 '45 400w

"The story maintains an interest heightened by the part the pigeons play. The characters of the children, no two alike, are clear and lively, and Ivy is a credit to slum London's wit and wisdom." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Mr 5 '44 350w

BARNES, RALPH MOSSER. Work methods manual. 136p il $1.75 Wiley

658.5 Job analysis. Motion study 44-3399

A guide for supervisors, foremen, and workers, on the principles of work organization and motion economy. How to do the job with greater economy and efficiency, with less effort. The author is Professor of Industrial engineering and Director of Personnel, College of Engineering, University of Iowa. Index.

Booklist 41:11 S '44

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:204 Mr 1 '44 30w

"In this manual Professor Barnes provides a practical, condensed and nontechnical explanation of the techniques and rules for improving both shop and office production methods. It might well be described as a miniature edition of the motion study section of the author's previous popular book, Motion and Time Study." C. H. Cox + Management R 33:214 Je '44 550w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:6 Ja '44

BARNES, ROBERT BOWLING, and others. Infrared spectroscopy; industrial applications and bibliography. 236p $2.25 Reinhold

535.84 Spectrum, Infra-red. Spectrum analysis—Bibliography 44-4173

"A unified discussion of the infrared spectrometer and its application in the work of an industrial research laboratory is presented for the first time. The physical basis of infrared spectroscopy is the fact that the infrared absorption spectrum is truly characteristic of the absorbing compound. The applications of this fact to the identification of compounds, recognition of specific chemical bonds, and qualitative and quantitative analysis of mixtures are outlined. . . A very pressing need is met by the bibliography which forms the third part of the book. This bibliography lists over 2,700 references in the style of Chemical Abstracts. An author index and a subject index are included." Chem & Eng N

"This book presents a striking example of the bringing together of two fields of scientific research for the solution of difficult industrial problems. . . It is hoped that the authors will soon be able to amplify this volume, giving more space to instrumentation and the interpretation of spectra. Also it would be advantageous to increase the library of spectra of pure compounds to a considerable extent." J. H. Coulliette
+ Chem & Eng N 22:847 My 25 '44 400w

"Probably little information aside from the author's systematic work is yet available, and critical comparison must be postponed until the method finds more widespread use."
Chem & Met Eng 51:189 Jl '44 130w

"The material in the volume, with the important exception of the bibliography, was previously published in Industrial and Engineering Chemistry (Analytical Edition); its publication in book form is a distinct service to those working in and those considering the application of infrared spectroscopy." B. L. Crawford, Jr.
+ J Phys Chem 48:428 N '44 400w

Library J 69:462 My 15 '44 60w

"While this presentation of infra-red spectroscopy can hardly be regarded as the one for which industrial and chemical spectroscopists have been waiting, it must be regarded as a very valuable contribution. The greatest compliment to the authors remains that practically everybody has a copy and those who do not have one want one." H. H. Nielsen
+ R of Scientific Instruments 15:258 O '44 350w

BARNETT, GRACE TRELEVEN, and BARNETT, OLIVE ELIZABETH. Mystery at Yogo creek; pictures by the authors. 160p $2 Oxford

44-2096

Mystery story for boys and girls of ten to fourteen. The scene is a ranch in Montana.

"The story is well written and credible." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 20:206 My '44 60w

"A good yarn. Recommended more as a western than as a mystery."
+ Kirkus 12:98 F 15 '44 100w

Reviewed by V. W. Schott
Library J 69:264 Mr 15 '44 70w

"This well-written story vividly pictures ranch life and young people who rise nobly to the occasion when thrown on their own resources. . . Swiftly moving and with a well-handled plot." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p27 Mr 19 '44 200w

"Grace and Olive Barnett have worked out a kind of Western mystery for twelve-year-olds, so attractive that their names on the cover of a new one arouse both memory and expectation." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Mr 26 '44 250w

BARNOUW, ADRIAAN JACOB. Land of William of Orange. 104p il $2 Lippincott

914.92 Netherlands—Juvenile literature 44-2740

A description of the Netherlands, covering the geography of this low-lying land, a brief outline of its history, and a survey of Netherlands life, industry and culture as it was before World War II.

Booklist 40:306 My 1 '44

"Much history and information are pressed into the readable, interesting 'Land of William of Orange.'" F. C. Darling

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 My 29 '44 130w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 20:211 My '44 80w

"A timely book... The phonetic pronunciation key of all important Dutch names and places is another valuable feature. Good for the 9-12 group particularly if presented by an adult."

+ Kirkus 12:172 Ap 1 '44 110w

Reviewed by A. M. Anderson

Library J 69:464 My 15 '44 70w

"Though somewhat less spontaneous and pleasing in style than Eric Kelley's 'The Land of the Polish People,' 'The Land of William of Orange' presents a well-rounded picture of a gallant country."

+ — N Y Times p21 My 21 '44 120w

Sat R of Lit 27:29 Je 10 '44 320w

"Occasional interjections in conversational style seem a bit out of place, and lack of an index lessens the value of the book for reference, but it will be a pleasant addition to any library, personal or public." P. H. S.

+ — Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 9 '44 110w

"Nine-to-thirteen is nominally the age range of this illustrated guidebook for home travelers, but older members of the family will read it and learn from it." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p5 My 7 '44 220w

Wis Lib Bul 40:71 My '44

BARNOUW, ADRIAAN JACOB. Making of modern Holland; a short history. 224p maps $2.75 Norton

949.2 Netherlands—History 44-40181

Short history of Holland, from the beginning of the Christian era to the present, written by the Queen Wilhelmina professor of history, language, and literature of the Netherlands at Columbia university. Index.

Reviewed by M. D. Irish

Am Pol Sci R 38:1245 D '44 280w

"The author gives evidence of having read much material on the course of political history, religious development, social customs, literature, and art. Three excellent maps and a useful index enhance the value of this little work. But the absence of any documentation and bibliographical references is to be regretted." Albert Hyma

+ — Ann Am Acad 237:219 Ja '45 360w

Booklist 41:56 O 15 '44

"A tightly sketched and snugly framed view of The Netherlands from the rough age of the Dukes of Burgundy to the smooth-running days of Queen Wilhelmina."

Christian Science Monitor p12 N 18 '44 100w

"By a professor of international standing, this is a succinct and orderly history of Holland, with additional information on her literature and arts, her religious struggle and social reforms... A very good 'Short History.'"

+ Kirkus 12:316 Jl 15 '44 170w

"In a reading program this book would fit neatly between Motley and Van Loon. Recommended for small library purchase." F. A. Boyle

+ Library J 69:760 S 15 '44 70w

N Y Times p38 D 3 '44 550w

BARNOUW, ADRIAAN JACOB, and LANDHEER, BARTHOLOMEUS, eds. Contribution of Holland to the sciences; a symposium; with an introd. by P. Debye. 373p il $3.50 Querido, inc, 381 4th av, N.Y. 16

914.92 Netherlands—Intellectual life. Science. Social sciences 44-2314

Symposium in which twenty scholars discuss the contributions of Holland to such fields as theology, philosophy, psychology, sociology, law, the arts, and sciences. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by H. S. Lucas

Am Hist R 49:688 Jl '44 700w

"Wherever this attractive volume is intelligently read on the western side of the Atlantic it will decidedly deepen our appreciation of great and outstanding contributions made through many centuries by Holland and the Dutch—the world over—to knowledge and to scholarship, and generally toward the advancement of learning and of civilized living." M. B.

+ Am J Psychol 57:598 O '44 320w

"Few people will be interested in this volume as a whole. A small country like the Netherlands, moreover, has not made important contributions in all of the twenty different fields. The essays, therefore, vary greatly in content and significance. All are brief and constitute no more than introductions to the subjects." Amry Vandenbosch

Ann Am Acad 233:233 My '44 450w

"It is an honorable record—an amazing one for so small a country. The Dutch are, in fact, a great people with a little homeland."

+ Christian Century 61:82 Ja 19 '44 80w

Reviewed by W. K. Frankena

J Philos 41:251 Ap 27 '44 180w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:11 Ja '44

"The strong individualism of the Dutch is evident throughout these surveys... All of these phases of Dutch activity are here dealt with by specialists, and the reader is given an excellent idea of how much a relatively small country has contributed in a little more than the past 400 years to the scientific development of the modern world. Certainly a group to whom we already owe so much deserves all the help we can give them to make possible their full collaboration in the world to come." W. B. Kirkham

+ Springf'd Republican p10 Ja 28 '44 500w

Reviewed by Walter Hendricks

Weekly Book Review p7 F 6 '44 280w

BARON, SYDNEY S. One whirl; il. by George Grosz; with an introd. by Mortimer Hays. 132p $1 Capitol

940.5496 World war, 1939—Humor, caricatures, etc. 44-2218

Satire on appeasement in all its manifestations. Its message seems to be that when the war has ceased and peace has been declared the peoples of the world will not wait for the diplomats to decide on how the world should be run—they will probably take matters in their own hands and run it.

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy

Book Week p10 F 27 '44 440w

"Although the satire is occasionally labored, Mr. Baron has written an effective warning and indictment. The book contains twenty-seven line drawings by George Grosz, who with a wonderful resiliency has managed to express twice in a generation the savage shock of betrayed and outraged humanity."

+ New Repub 110:421 Mr 27 '44 150w

"Except for the happy ending, Mr. Baron's peace conference confirms all our worst fears, and as such it makes good, pessimistic reading. His satire is aimed not only at appeasers of all shades, but also at armchair peace-planners who feel that their Anglo-Saxon blood gives them the right to decide What Shall We Do With Europe." Marjorie Farber

+ N Y Times p3 Ap 2 '44 550w

"The effectiveness of this fantasy about a peace conference on a battleship in the middle of the Atlantic is marred by Mr Baron's tendency to switch from the satirical to the serious at unexpected intervals. In spite of the defects, 'One Whirl' is well worth the half hour or so it takes to read it." M. R. B.

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 12 '44 220w
Time 43:101 F 14 '44 280w

BARRETT, MONTE. Sun in their eyes; a novel of Texas in 1812. 319p $2.75 Bobbs 44-8027

A historical novel dealing with the early days of violence in Texas in the second decade of the nineteenth century.

"Barrett is a perplexing writer. Now and then a paragraph will come along that displays rather brilliant insight and keen observation of human character. Serious readers will find them tantalizing blossoms. But these wither away in the author's routine descriptions and in the labored formality of a good bit of his dialogue." George Wiswell
— + Book Week p4 O 8 '44 310w
Kirkus 12:325 Ag 1 '44 170w

"Mr. Barrett writes with gusto of the early revolt of Texas-Americans against Spanish power in the Southwest. His writing has a fluency and speed which have lately seemed lacking in historical novels. Whatever his fast-moving plot does for the readability of the book, it seems to have somewhat limited his examination of Texas history." Calder Willingham
+ — N Y Times p22 O 15 '44 280w

"'Sun In Their Eyes' is an absorbing, stirring story of pioneering conquest, driving ambitions, petty intrigues and great visions." M. L. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d D 17 '44 440w
Weekly Book Review p8 S 24 '44 100w

BARRETT, RICHMOND BROOKS. Truant. 336p $2.75 Dutton
44-6747

Character study of a quiet, retiring boy, brought up by erratic grandparents and a gentle, futile aunt. The boy turns out to be a good tennis player, but a mix-up with the sophisticated wife of another tennis player brings Jonathan to a momentous decision.

Boston Globe p17 S 27 '44 330w

"An original plot and background; good reading."
+ Kirkus 12:412 S 15 '44 170w

"Though characterizations well handled, novel is unconvincing and in spite of background, not a sport story. See no popular demand." G. W. Hill
— + Library J 69:698 S 1 '44 80w

"The author, a shrewd and experienced journalist and novelist, has decided to deal here with a strange family group, a decaying household. Its scion is the book's central character. There is enough background of emotional conflict to warrant his inability to form a satisfactory human relationship. None the less, this reader cannot go all the way with the book jacket, which claims that here is 'a perceptive character novel by a distinguished writer.' Its romance often seems garish and sticky and many of the emotional scenes seem studied and unreal—for all of Mr. Barrett's bounce, for all his shrewd wing shots and service aces." E. S. Holsaert
+ — N Y Times p16 S 24 '44 240w

"The book may lack breadth, but it is sharply and intelligently written."
+ — New Yorker 20:78 S 9 '44 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p4d Ja 21 '45 160w
Weekly Book Review p8 S 24 '44 350w

BARRON, HARRY. Modern synthetic rubbers. 2d ed rev & enl 355p il $6.50 Van Nostrand [28s Chapman]
678 Rubber, Artificial [44-4432]

Second edition of a British work first published in 1942. "Sixty-one pages have been added to the first edition. All but three of the chapters have been expanded to take account of the new developments when the synthetic programs were stepped up in 1942 in the United States. Much of the added material consists of tables and summaries of articles from the rubber and chemical journals of that year. A new chapter has been added on ethyl cellulose." (N Y New Tech Bks) Indexes.

"Just about every phase of the industry is covered by Mr. Barron. The economics of these new materials are discussed at length. Raw materials come in for their share of attention. All of the elastomers that are now made on a commercial scale in the United States are treated, methods of manufacture, characteristics and applications." J. A. Lee
+ Chem & Met Eng 51:205 My '44 250w
Library J 69:462 My 15 '44 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:12 Ja '44

BARRY, JEROME. Lady of Night. 186p $2 Doubleday
44-2707

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p10 Mr 26 '44 90w

"A plethora of suspects, convincingly built up, but the field narrows down when another attempt at murder brings the final suspect into the open. Adequate."
+ Kirkus 11:561 D 15 '43 60w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p9 F 27 '44 120w

"Better than average."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:35 F 19 '44 30w

"Mr. Barry's work has spells of what could be goofiness, but we think he does it on purpose—having, perhaps, a taste for the slightly grotesque in humble life." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p14 F 20 '44 200w

BARTH, KARL. The church and the war; tr. by Antonia H. Froendt; with an introd. by Samuel McCrea Cavert. 49p $1 Macmillan
940.53152 World war, 1939—Religious aspects. War and religion. Reconstruction (1939-) 44-4147

"A Swiss theologian has written a message to American Christians on the role of the church in wartime and in postwar reconstruction. Some of the material appeared in Foreign Affairs and some in Christendom." Booklist

Booklist 40:374 Jl 1 '44
Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 8 '44 300w

Reviewed by C. E. Batten
Crozer Q 21:370 O '44 350w

"A book which will be helpful to ministers and other Christian leaders, particularly Protestants anxious to orient their congregations concerning the place of the Church today."
+ Kirkus 12:252 Je 1 '44 130w

"While the little book contains many interesting remarks, and while its skeptical attitude towards American Protestantism is probably justified to a large extent as far as the attitude toward European problems is concerned, the document as a whole is less impressive than Dr. Barth's open letters to the Christians of France and Britain. He seems to be embarrassed rather than helped by the way the questions are asked of him; his theology appears often obscure; political and ecclesiastical prejudices seem to dim his historical vision; and his ignorance concerning the spiritual life in the United States deprives this work of the directness and clarity which characterized his other contributions to the international situation." O. A. Piper
+ — Survey G 33:466 N '44 400w

BARTIMEUS, pseud. See Ritchie, L. A.

BARTLETT, MRS ELLA (HERBERT) ed. See Herbert, V. Songs for children

BARTLETT, ROBERT MERRILL. They work for tomorrow. 144p $1.50 Assn. press; Revell

920 U.S.—Biography 44-2964

"Brief accounts of the lives and ideas of fifteen persons of importance in various fields of public life. Among them are Wendell Willkie, Cordell Hull, Henry A. Wallace, Pearl Buck, Louis Adamic, Mordecai Johnson, Charles P. Taft." Christian Century

"The author shows generous sympathies and evidently has no private or party ax to grind."
+ Christian Century 61:20 Ja 5 '44 50w

Reviewed by T. F. Opie
Churchman 158:17 Mr 15 '44 90w

Foreign Affairs 23:4 O '44 10w

"These are not searching or critical portraits, but they make interesting and optimistic reading."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 6 '44 600w

"To those already familiar with the ideas and careers of these people, the book offers little that is new. It does a service, however, in bringing within the compass of a comparatively few pages the essential concepts of this group of rather widely representative leaders of contemporary progressive thought." H. W. Hintz
+ Survey G 33:262 My '44 90w

BARTLETT, RUHL JACOB. League to enforce peace. 252p $2.50 Univ. of N.C. press

341.1 League to enforce peace. International cooperation 44-5804

"A careful, competent analysis of the development in this country of the sentiment for a league to enforce peace, of the steps by which the United States was largely instrumental in the establishment of a League of Nations and of how the Senate then betrayed the other nations by making a separate peace with Germany and refusing to enter the League." (Library J) Index.

"This is one of the most important books on American politics published since the last war. It is an outstanding example of sound historical research that will have a wide popular hearing. No student of politics can afford to miss it, and those who are deeply concerned that we shall not lose the peace again will put it high on their list. It is an absorbing story and one that is as pregnant with importance for the future as it is timely." D. F. Fleming
+ Am Pol Sci R 38:1015 O '44 500w

"Professor Bartlett's scholarly and informing volume is very useful in setting us straight on the matter of the background of the League of Nations in this country." H. E. Barnes
+ Ann Am Acad 236:172 N '44 800w

Booklist 41:35 O 1 '44

"Anyone with a deep concern for securing concerted support for a world organized for peace cannot afford to miss this book. It is recommended, however, only to those with a faith equal to any discouragement. The author is a professor of history in Tufts College; the record is therefore documented with a scholar's thoroughness, and it presents a trail of ultimate futility that is sickening. This outcome has high sociological significance because the record of the League to Enforce Peace right up to its final debacle was one of almost incredible success." Vernon Nash
+ Christian Century 61:1135 O 4 '44 900w

Foreign Affairs 23:9 O '44 20w

"Well documented but concisely written and easy to follow. A book in which librarians can successfully arouse interest and a tragic story that citizens today should have fresh in their minds. Recommended." Thelma Brackett
+ Library J 69:353 Ap 15 '44 100w

"A revealing, dispassionate study, openly pro-Wilson."
+ New Repub 111:198 Ag 14 '44 190w

Reviewed by M. J. Boyer
Social Educ 8:278 O '44 450w

Reviewed by Cyril Clemens
Springf'd Republican p4d S 10 '44 650w

Reviewed by G. W. Johnson
Weekly Book Review p3 Jl 9 '44 1100w

BARTLETT, VERNON. Tomorrow always comes. 159p $2 Knopf [5s Chatto]

940.531 World war, 1939—Peace 44-1043

"Between two excellent editorials on the state of the world and the challenge of the future, Mr. Bartlett, who is one of Britain's best newspapermen and an anti-Munich M. P., has sandwiched a cautionary 'diary of the future,' which was serialized recently in The Nation. Beginning with the collapse of the German army in southern Austria, he follows an exciting sequence of events down to the peace conference, which he leaves unfinished, but not without gloomy comments on the inter-Allied dissensions that are threatening to wreck it." New Repub

"The book is highly recommended for those anxious to become acquainted with the problems and dangers of the immediate future and the hectic period awaiting us at the time of the armistice." Harold Ettlinger
+ Book Week p6 Mr 12 '44 370w

Booklist 40:231 Mr 1 '44

Canadian Forum 24:21 Ap '44 350w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:660 Jl '44 20w

Kirkus 12:32 Ja 15 '44 160w

Manchester Guardian p3 D 12 '43 260w

"A generous, an entrancing book; and a wise one, although a little hesitant in tackling the main cause of evil. Bartlett himself is not quite free from the 'global insularity' that goes with English speech. At any rate, he is vastly ahead of our governments." Albert Guerard
+ Nation 158:370 Mr 25 '44 850w

Reviewed by George Mayberry
New Repub 110:325 Mr 6 '44 350w

"Mr. Bartlett makes some sombre prophecies, but his realistic idealism leaves an effect which is the reverse of depressing."
Spec 172:204 Mr 3 '44 350w

" 'Tomorrow Always Comes' is well worth reading. If anyone thinks this is pure fantasy, let him look at another new book, 'Unfinished Business' by Stephen Bonsal, the Versailles conference diary of President Wilson's interpreter and consultant. Containing many details not published before, Mr Bonsal's daily record is not unlike Mr Bartlett's dark imaginings. Taken together they are a resounding admonition to us all." Marshall Bragdon
+ Springf'd Republican p6 F 19 '44 800w

"Shrewd and candid little volume."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p508 O 23 '43 700w

BARTMAN, MARK. Yank in Africa; il. by Diana Thorne. 32p $1.25 Whitman, A.

Dogs—Legends and stories 44-5495

Story about a pet dog smuggled aboard a transport by a soldier going to French Morocco. The dog is trained to obey commands and finally saves his patrol from the enemy. For young children.

"The Diana Thorne pictures, in two color reproduction, are perhaps a little on the pretty-pretty side for a book made to order for small boys. Timely value plus dog hero makes this very saleable."
+ — Kirkus 12:277 Je 15 '44 90w

"It gives a taste of the real thing, yet brings no horror to the reader. Exciting to intermediates." Marguerite Jester
+ Library J 69:654 Ag '44 30w

Springf'd Republican p4d Jl 2 '44 80w

BARTON, BETSEY. And now to live again. 150p $1.75 Appleton-Century

615.851 Disabled—Rehabilitation, etc. Psychotherapy 44-9641

Ten years ago, when the author was sixteen, her back was broken and her legs paralyzed in an automobile accident. In this book she describes her own way back to a normal life, and gives practical hints for the rehabilitation of others so afflicted. Her personal philosophy and faith, which has helped her to face life crops up thruout the book. List of suggested readings.

"Her story is most valuable as a personal testament of faith, written from that deepest well of all—suffering. . . Besides being an admirable personal testament, 'And Now to Live Again' is crammed with valuable therapeutic material."
+ Book Week p28 N 12 '44 140w
Booklist 41:106 D 1 '44
Boston Globe p31 N 29 '44 50w

"Sincerely given—a challenge to straight thinking on a subject that will be constantly before the public, this should prove of constructive value. Even the occasional touch of sentimentality does not come wholly amiss."
+ Kirkus 12:364 Ag 15 '44 170w

"This is not a mere 'uplift' book. Miss Barton is in accordance with the best practices and principles of psychosomatic medicine and she only regrets that they were not used in her case until after the lapse of several years. Her volume is full of advice, remarkably wise from one of her age, about the mental attitude and the physical attack that are desirable for a crippled or disabled person, and the role to be played by his family and friends. For such an individual, this book is sure to be useful and may prove a life-saver." B. B.
+ New Repub 111:813 D 11 '44 270w

"Miss Barton envisages Centers for re-education where the techniques of physical and economic independence would be taught. She suggests as a model the Institute for the Crippled and Disabled, in New York. Not all the handicapped will be as introspective or as mystically receptive as Miss Barton. But all will respect the complete integration she has achieved in her victory over disaster—and the fact of her victory." Richard Match
N Y Times p4 N 5 '44 550w

"The book has wisdom and eloquence, and there are passages which touch the emotion like poetry that tells too much. And aside from its personal revelation, it is a thoughtful study of the psychology of rehabilitation and the practical value of training the physically handicapped. What it says should be the knowledge of every family to which a wounded soldier returns."
+ Weekly Book Review p18 N 19 '44 200w
Wis Lib Bul 40:157 D '44

BARTON, SAMUEL GOODWIN, and BARTON, WILLIAM HENRY. Guide to the constellations. 3d ed 80p il $3 McGraw

523.89 Constellations 43-18405

"Written for the beginner and devoted to observations without the aid of instruments. Charts and descriptive text show how to locate the constellations and principal stars. Some elementary principles of astronomy are discussed, and some myths connected with the stars are recounted. This edition has not been extensively revised. A photograph of the Milky Way, and three new tables have been added, and the bibliography has been enlarged." (N Y New Tech Bks) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1928.

Booklist 40:214 F 15 '44
N Y New Tech Bks 29:21 Ap '44

BARUCH, BERNARD MANNES, and HANCOCK, JOHN MILTON. Text of official report and related documents: War and postwar adjustment policies. 131p $2; pa $1 Am. council on public affairs

338.91 U.S.—Economic policy. Reconstruction (1939-)—U.S.

"Text of the official report made to the director of the Office of war mobilization on industrial readjustment in the United States. The report and supplementary statements cover such topics as termination of war contracts, surplus property disposal, financing, and disposal of government property in industry. These proposals are a frank statement by business and industry of their desire to reconvert to an unhampered private enterprise immediately after the war. A widely discussed document." Booklist

Booklist 40:245 Mr 15 '44

"Messrs. Baruch and Hancock carefully avoid any implication that government debts or deficits are national benefits or that the wealth of the nation can be increased by destroying its assets. They warn against the influence of pressure groups—class, industrial, or geographical—and point out the limitations of public works. Above all they stress the necessity of good administration. To these and to most of their other conclusions and recommendations this reviewer gratefully assents, and mildly hopes that the appropriate governmental authorities will speedily take the steps necessary to put them into effect." R. S. Tucker
+ Pol Sci Q 59:304 Je '44 1100w

BARUCH, MRS DOROTHY (WALTER). Primer for and about parents; Parents can be people. 262p $2.50 Appleton-Century

649.1 Parent and child. Children—Management 44-8737

"Discussion of the reactions, conflicts, and attitudes of parents and children, from prenatal impressions through many of the perplexing problems of babyhood and childhood. The concluding chapters deal with some of the particularly pressing problems of today—the variety of adjustments faced by the working mother, the problem of the adopted child and the pitfalls of the step-parent, the questions of intolerance and social distinctions." (Publisher's note) Index.

"I hope Dorothy Baruch gets the lusty cheers she deserves for writing 'Parents Can Be People.' It is such sound good sense from first to last and it debunks so many of the myths which make it difficult for parents to get along with their children. . . All parents are not problem parents, but all parents have problems which this book will help to clarify; it will help to bring understanding, instead of self-doubt, to the adventure of parenthood." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p6 N 5 '44 360w
Booklist 41:86 N 15 '44

"Modern in feel—unfortunately not so tailored as to style as it should be—this is definitely a help for the home, and for parents of children of any age."
+ Kirkus 12:361 Ag 15 '44 130w

"Recommended."
+ Library J 69:881 O 15 '44 110w
Springf'd Republican p6 Ja 23 '45 200w
Weekly Book Review p23 Ja 14 '45 150w

BASCH, ANTONIN. Danube basin and the German economic sphere. 275p $3.50 Columbia univ. press

330.94 Danubian countries. Germany—Economic policy. Europe—Economic conditions 43-17095

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

"The Danube Basin has long been the happy hunting ground of the proponents of regionalism, both political and economic. In this group Dr. Basch will be classed as a moderate. Recognizing the advantages which might accrue to the peoples of this area from joint action, particularly in commercial policy, he nevertheless finds none of the recent proposals for federations and customs unions satisfactory; nor does he bring forward any concrete proposals of his own. This does not mean that the book lacks constructive ideas, but rather that the author is more concerned with emphasizing the principles which should govern the relation of the states of southeastern Europe than with tracing the outlines of new international institutions." P. W. Bidwell
Am Econ R 34:893 D '44 750w
Am Hist R 49:534 Ap '44 30w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn
Am Pol Sci R 38:570 Je '44 700w

BASCH, ANTONIN—Continued
Reviewed by H. J. Morgenthau
Am Pol Sci R 38:1234 D '44 450w

"The book is excellent; it contains a wealth of information without which no student can really understand the problems of the European southeast. It is in no attempt to detract from the value of Dr. Basch's volume that one or two gaps must be pointed out. The author does not seem to pay sufficient attention to the failure of the western democracies to size up the Balkan problem and to apply remedies. . . In recommending remedies for the future, Dr. Basch seems to look too deep into the eyes of the past." Emil Lengyel
+ — Ann Am Acad 232:187 Mr '44 550w

"An illuminating piece of work."
+ Current Hist 6:69 Ja '44 140w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:500 Ap '44 40w

Reviewed by George Kiss
Geog R 34:501 Jl '44 550w

Reviewed by W. J. Cahnman
J Pol Econ 52:366 D '44 700w

Reviewed by T. Prager
New Statesman & Nation 28:440 D 30 '44 900w

"Though Dr. Basch's study is timely, it is not written for the layman. His prose is pedantic, dull, cramped by charts, clearing payments, export, and import tables, etc. Not one human being appears in the book; the reader must imagine the Danubians behind the statistical barricades. But this documentation is solid blueprinting." Frederick Gruin
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:26 F 12 '44 650w

"Intended for the serious student rather than the casual reader, this very important treatise contains information and deductions basic to the solution of the complicated problems of postwar Europe."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 15:4 Mr '44 120w

"This well-documented work achieves the distinction of being filled with trade and financial statistics and yet making very interesting reading. . . The author's personal background well prepared him for the task of writing such a book." W. C. Langsam
+ Social Educ 8:234 My '44 500w

"By this time intelligent Americans must have become aware of the axiomatic nature of this proposition: our participation in a world order depends upon an understanding of Europe, and our comprehension of Europe can never be complete until we can find an answer to the riddle that represents the Danube Basin. Antonin Basch, a distinguished Czech economist and industrialist, now resident in this country, has written a book that is indispensable reading for those who recognize the nature of American responsibilities in the postwar." L. M. Hacker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Mr 12 '44 1050w

BASSETT, SARA WARE. Heart's haven. 204p $2 Doubleday
44-6033

Belleport, Cape Cod, at the present time, is the scene of this gentle story. Sally Chase and her indomitable helper, Mrs E. C., contrive an unofficial canteen for the soldiers from a nearby camp. As they enlarge their borders to take in a soldier's wife and baby, then a wounded homeless boy, the home becomes known as the Haven. And romance came to Sally during that memorable summer.

— Kirkus 12:180 Ap 15 '44 70w

"Widely known for the flavor and authenticity she brings to her stories by right of heritage, the author is at her best when describing the natives of the small village of Belleport and letting you listen in on their gossip and salty philosophizing." A. P.
+ N Y Times p10 Jl 9 '44 200w

"Home-keeping readers who yearn for a glimpse of their favorite Cape Cod village will enjoy 'Hearts Haven' especially."

+ Springf'd Republican p4d Jl 30 '44 110w

BATCHELLER, MRS TRYPHOSA (BATES). France in sunshine and shadow. 202p $2.50 Brentano's bk. store

940.5344 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939—France 44-4641

"Account of an American woman's escape from Paris after the Nazis had occupied the city. . . The author, a writer and concert singer, maintained her dignity in the face of the invasion, yielding not an inch to the conquerors. There were times, even, when she outfaced them, and succeeded in outmaneuvering them by sheer character." Christian Science Monitor

Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 24 '44 750w

Weekly Book Review p12 My 14 '44 200w

BATCHELLER, MRS TRYPHOSA (BATES). Soul of a queen. 280p il $3 Brentano's bk. store

B or 92 Marja Ludwika, queen consort of John II Casimir, king of Poland 44-1538

"A fictionized biography of Marie de Gonzague, the beautiful duchess of Nevers who became queen of Poland in 1645. The life of this interesting and too-little known French woman lends itself admirably to the literary form the author has selected, for it contains all the ingredients of romance—love, war, sorrow, intrigue, great personages and violent deaths." Springf'd Republican

"The proud and piteous story of the green-eyed queen has been told by Mrs. Bates-Batcheller entertainingly and with great enthusiasm for her subject. The reason for the tone of uncritical admiration lies in the author's conviction that historians have hitherto failed to do justice to this woman, who was not only beautiful but intelligent and devout." W. K. R.
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 F 12 '44 600w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 23 '44 410w

"It is scarcely fair to this sympathetic, well studied life of Marie de Gonzague, twice Queen of Poland, to call it fictionized biography, as its jacket does. Fiction here goes no farther than telling what people said when they were alone, or thought without saying, a trick to which other popular biographers have accustomed us: otherwise the style is that of an Edwardian memoir by an admiring friend. The result is curiously attractive, particularly to the public to whom the book is addressed—those who never heard of Marie de Gonzague before." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p16 Ja 23 '44 500w

BATES, ESTHER WILLARD. Edwin Arlington Robinson and his manuscripts. 32p $2.50 Colby college lib, Waterville, Me.

B or 92 Robinson, Edwin Arlington 44-5365

"This is an address delivered before the Colby Library Associates on October 15, 1943. Miss Bates was from the summer of 1913 to the end of Robinson's work his chief copyist. . . During a part of this time she was in personal contact with him in the summers at the MacDowell Artists' Colony at Peterborough, New Hampshire. Her comments on the poet's personality, based upon this acquaintance and drawn largely from her letters written to her mother at the time, supplement usefully the picture presented in Rollo Brown's Next Door to a Poet. They reflect his whimsical, understating manner, his sensitive yet tenacious spirit, his work habits, his preferences among his own poems, and his reflective, sideways humor." New Eng Q

Reviewed by Milton Ellis
+ New Eng Q 17:323 Je '44 420w

"It is astonishing, really, how much Miss Bates' book suggests: how crammed it is with the perceptive phrase, the vivid recollection, the fetching anecdote, so that the man and his work are brought close and clear. If that definitive biography ever comes along, it will absorb Miss Bates' monograph; and the point is, it will need to." W. T. Scott

+ Poetry 65:209 Ja '45 1550w

BATES, HERBERT ERNEST (FLYING OFFICER X, pseud). Fair stood the wind for France. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 270p $2.50 Little

44-40119

A British bomber, returning from a mission over Italy, crashed in occupied France. The members of the crew managed to escape via the underground route, all but the pilot who was too ill. He was cared for by a family of French peasants, whose innate goodness made such an impression on him that when he finally left France he took with him the daughter of the family, as his wife.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 172:125 O '43 110w

"The author's forth-right style makes for clear and easy reading, the quality of the writing is well above average, and a sense of the dramatic is present and satisfying." F. N. Litten
+ Book Week p4 My 21 '44 320w
Booklist 40:341 Je 1 '44
Bookmark 5:18 My '44

"'Fair Stood the Wind for France' is going to be read by a vast number of people. For the next month or two, folk who ask if you have read any good books lately are likely to mean this one." Ray McPartlin
+ Boston Globe p19 My 31 '44 290w
Cath World 159:476 Ag '44 180w

"A holding story—stark and sustaining interest—less intricately plotted than some of the stories of escape, but with greater literary quality and emotional values."
+ Kirkus 12:121 Mr 15 '44 170w

"Brilliantly perceptive, skillfully dramatic." H. S. Taylor
+ Library J 69:460 My 15 '44 80w

Reviewed by Charles Marriott
Manchester Guardian p3 N 10 '44 270w

"The first half of the book is rather slow going, but in its later pages it becomes very thrilling: the scenes in the inn at the Vichy border, in the hideously demoralised 'bad town' in the south, and in Marseilles, are told with excellent craftsmanship." Henry Reed
+ New Statesman & Nation 28:374 D 2 '44 180w

"The author of this book has served with the RAF. What he has to say about the French people—of their mode of life in a conquered land—has a plausibility that suggests a closer view of the real facts." Fowler Hill
+ N Y Times p6 My 28 '44 400w

"Readable and absorbing as it all is, part of it is readable as writing that aspires to be literature, and succeeds, while the remainder of it is readable as fiction of the now popular escape-from-German-occupied-territory school. One can have no quarrel with the author's choice of subject, or with his handling of it through the better part of his narrative; it is only when he slips from sincerely thoughtful writing into an overworked and somewhat slovenly pattern that one suffers disappointment and is moved to protest. After which one reads on, still pulled by the tow of the yarn, but on a different level. Fortunately however—and let it be emphasized—the change occurs late." B. R. Redman
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:18 My 20 '44 950w

"Mr. Bates's new novel is a well-made tale of the perils and sufferings endured by the crew of a Wellington bomber who are forced down in occupied France in 1942. . . The thing is done with great care and in close detail, and many people will read it with interest; but admirers of Mr. Bates's earlier work may be puzzled by the laboriousness and the dull texture of the writing." Kate O'Brien
+ — Spec 173:488 N 24 '44 130w

"The most engrossing novel that has come this reader's way in a long time. . . [It] is a gripping narrative, a finely conceived love story, and a sensitive revelation of the human spirit; it would seem ungrateful of any reader to expect more in a single book." R. N. Fuller
+ Springf'd Republican p4d My 28 '44 600w

"There are nice things in the novel, as was only to be expected, but they are fewer and altogether less individual in stamp than might have been hoped for. Mr. Bates has always been happier with the short-story form than with the full-length novel, but the extended short story which he has given us on this occasion is disappointingly close to the magazine variety."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p533 N 4 '44 420w

"Mr. Bates who is currently serving with the R. A. F. has written a goodly number of books in his thirty-nine years; but probably none matches 'Fair Stood the Wind for France'. Telling a genuine adventure story and a mature love story side by side is no mean feat, but Mr. Bates has done more, for he has combined them into a picture of the agonized world of today." Herbert Kupferberg
+ Weekly Book Review p3 My 21 '44 950w
Wis Lib Bul 40:110 Jl '44

BATES-BATCHELLER, TRYPHOSA. See Batcheller, T. B.

BATHE, GREVILLE, and BATHE, DOROTHY. Jacob Perkins, his inventions, his times, and his contemporaries. 215p il $5 Hist. soc. of Pa.

B or 92 Perkins, Jacob 43-18168

"This volume brings together for the first time, for the student of American industrial and engineering history, all of the factual material relative to the life and work of one of the most ingenious of our early inventors. Scattered references to Jacob Perkins [1766-1849] have appeared in history books for many years, with particular emphasis on such spectacular inventions as his high-pressure steam engines and steam-operated cannon, or his more practical nail-making machinery and his introduction of steel engraving for the prevention of banknote forgery. None of these references, however, gives the remotest concept of the man's wide versatility in the mechanic arts or of his stupendous activity for over fifty years." Am Hist R

"The book is beautifully arranged. Its composition, full documentation, and the clear, sharp illustrations are most satisfying to the student of engineering history and also to the narrative historian, especially, in the word pictures of the business, manufacturing, and professional environments in which Perkins moved. These sketches bridge nicely the lapses in continuity in the story of Perkins' personal and domestic life, concerning which comparatively little information was found." Carl Mitman
+ Am Hist R 49:760 Jl '44 550w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:21 Ap '44

BATTEN, JOSEPH MINTON. John Dury: advocate of Christian reunion. 227p $2.50 Univ. of Chicago press [15s Cambridge]

B or 92 Dury, John A44-1775

A biography of John Dury, a seventeenth century clergyman, who promoted the idea of unity among the Protestant churches of Germany, Poland, the Netherlands, Scotland, Sweden, Denmark, France and England. "In his opening chapter Professor Batten describes the legacy of the sixteenth to the seventeenth century, both in the desire for a 'Catholic Protestantism' and in the emergence of a hardening Protestant scholasticism. . . Chapter II is devoted to Dury's ancestry and early life, which included exile with his father in Holland at the age of ten (1606), subsequent contact with the Pilgrim group and the protagonists in the Calvinistic controversies. . . Chapters III to VIII are devoted to his efforts at 'ecclesiastical pacification.'" (Crozer Q) Bibliography. Index.

BATTEN, J. M.—Continued

"An age in which it is counted a merit to have the ecumenical mind ought to erect a monument to John Dury. This book is it. He has had biographies before, but none recently and none comparable with this for thoroughness of research and documentation and for a balanced judgment concerning the man and his work." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 61:950 Ag 16 '44 1250w

"An eminently readable account of John Dury's fight, largely single-handed, to secure the unity of non-Roman Christianity on the basis of an organic ecclesiastical union—and his failure. The book should be read not only for its own intrinsic historical value, but also as a commentary on G. K. A. Bell's, Documents on Christian Unity—both series." F. W. Buckler

+ Crozer Q 21:341 O '44 1000w

BAUER, WILLIAM WALDO. Contagious diseases; a guide for parents. 2d rev ed 188p $2.50 Knopf

616.9 Infection and infectious diseases. Children—Diseases SG44-146

New edition of a work first published in 1934 (Book Review Digest, 1934). "In offering parents this revised guide to the problems of contagious diseases in their homes, it is possible, because the book has been completely reset, to present not a mere revision but a complete overhauling and rewriting, including the presentation of many points not touched upon in the first edition and the elimination of much obsolete matter." (Pref)

"This guide for parents is carefully written, is scientifically accurate, and is in understandable language. It will soon find a useful place for itself." W. R. Ames

+ Am J Pub Health 34:1195 N '44 270w

Booklist 41:154 Ja 15 '45

Springf'd Republican p6 D 4 '44 330w

BAUM, VICKI. Hotel Berlin '43 [Eng title: Berlin hotel] 250p $2.50 Doubleday [9s 6d Joseph, M]

44-3663

The biggest hotel in Berlin, in 1943, is the scene. The former magnificence is gone, but there is still a pretense of keeping up the amenities. Gestapo leaders, visiting diplomats, a German general mysteriously back from the Russian front, the current leading actress, officers, and a tortured young hero of the Underground, are among the characters. The death of the General and a big air raid closes the story.

"Although Miss Baum makes an occasional attempt to explain 'the German people,' the chief interest of Hotel Berlin '43 lies in its profusion of incidents and coincidences. It may be argued that too many people have too violent crises in their affairs. Perhaps the escape of Richter, in a comic-opera uniform, is excitement enough for one book. Perhaps one spiritual awakening a day is all that can be expected in any group. But Miss Baum maneuvers her people with such skill, and relates their adventures with such energy, that only the most ungrateful of readers would refuse to be entertained." Phoebe-Lou Adams

Atlantic 173:127 Je '44 420w

"Vicki Baum's new novel is neither propaganda nor a compilation of atrocities committed by the henchmen of the Nazi hierarchy. It is, however, the most dramatic interpretation of Nazi Germany and the German people which I have read. It combines the gripping power of a dramatic novel with an acute portrait of Festung Europa today." H. L. Reich

+ Book Week p1 Ap 2 '44 1450w

Booklist 40:304 My 1 '44

Reviewed by Elizabeth Watts

Boston Globe p17 Ap 26 '44 200w

Kirkus 12:79 F 15 '44 180w

Reviewed by J. D. Beresford

Manchester Guardian p3 Je 23 '44 100w

Reviewed by Thelma Purtell

N Y Times p4 Ap 2 '44 600w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman

+ Sat R of Lit 27:26 Ap 22 '44 700w

"Miss Baum gets a large bouquet for her technique; she pushes over, or aside, any obstacle that gets in her way with the ease and ferocity of a champion all-in wrestler." John Hampson

Spec 172:600 Je 30 '44 250w

"There is nothing subtle in the novel, but Miss Baum has written with broad bravura strokes, an exciting, engrossing and revealing story, possessing all the ingredients of an escape novel, combined with salty and considered analysis of the peculiar qualities which make up German mind and mettle." L. S. Munn

+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 9 '44 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p317 Jl 1 '44 360w

"Aside from the fact that you have no ticket stubs in your hand and no usher guides you to a seat, this is almost the same as being in a theater. The exits and entrances, the nice timing and quick shifting of scenes, the stage pauses and shrewd balance between what might be true and what obviously is artifice—it's all very neatly and effectively managed. The method is one that suits Vicki Baum's temperament and talent, and for this novel there could be none better." Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p6 Ap 2 '44 430w

BAXTER, BERNICE, and CASSIDY, ROSALIND FRANCES. Group experience; the democratic way. 218p $2.50 Harper

301.153 Group work. Leadership 43-17953

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

"As a statement of group-work philosophy, the book has much to recommend it. It is a clear statement of the trends which group work must follow to achieve democratic outcomes; and, as such, it deserves a wide audience—especialy among educators. However, the group worker who is seeking practical aids in meeting his everyday problems or who is searching for deepened insights into the social forces which confront him will not find much assistance in this book. On the one hand, the discussion remains at a high level of generality." B. L. Neugarten

+ — Am J Soc 50:238 N 13 '44 350w

Booklist 40:226 Mr 1 '44

"Group Experience will serve as a valuable reference for teachers and club and youth-organization leaders. Rating charts and scales for evaluating interests and leadership qualities, included in the appendixes, are of interest. The bibliography is excellent, covering books, pamphlets, and articles on development of group leadership." M. M. Lynch

+ J Home Econ 36:361 Je '44 150w

"Group Experience — the Democratic Way describes face-to-face situations in which democratic techniques have been developed. The inclusion of situations involving adults adds interest and conviction to the work. The story of democracy at work in block organization under the civilian defense programs heartens me. . . The book is well documented and provides considerable source material and references for persons wishing to study the problems of democratic leadership." L. A. Kirkendall

+ Social Educ 8:190 Ap '44 300w

"Two thirds of this moving volume is devoted to the group and its leadership. . . The authors maintain that the face-to-face group is a medium for the development of the individual, which they designate as democracy's first concern. They under-emphasize the part that can be played by the group in meeting the needs of society, especially in the face of this national crisis in which individuals are being sacrificed. . . The book classifies and briefly describes methods of studying individuals in groups, but there is no attempt at critical evaluation. The need for such a future study seems evident to this reviewer." W. I. Newstetter

+ — Survey 80:61 F '44 330w

Wis Lib Bul 40:33 Mr '44

BAXTER, WILLIAM JOSEPH. No inflation coming! 84p $1 Int. economic research bur.

332.414 Inflation (finance). Prices 45-939

"The control of American price level rests with the engineer, chemist, and scientist, and not with the banker or the Government is the thesis of the author, who predicts drastic deflation in stock prices, farm values, real estate, and commodities." Chem & Eng N

Chem & Eng N 22:2217 D 25 '44 40w
— New Repub 112:61 Ja 8 '45 200w

BAYER, OLIVER WELD. No little enemy. 185p $2 Doubleday

44-3885

Tom Bonbright, political cartoonist, is sent on a war bond tour thru the middle west. Six chorus girls and a beautiful actress are part of the proceedings, but murder and saboteurs take a hand, and the sequel is exciting and dangerous.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p13 Ap 23 '44 90w
Booklist 40:432 Je 1 '44
Kirkus 12:30 Ja 15 '44 40w

"Good characters and pleasant writing make this a superior story of intrigue on the home front." E. H.
+ New Repub 110:690 My 15 '44 60w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p14 Mr 26 '44 120w

"Fortunately for the story, Bonbright is accompanied by an English actor, some chorus girls, a home-front hero, an actress, and her press agent, all very well depicted. They go a long way toward averting serious slumps in the action."
+ — New Yorker 20:100 Mr 25 '44 70w

"Good stuff."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:24 Mr 25 '44 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p15 Mr 26 '44 100w

BAYLISS, MARGUERITE FARLEE. The Bolinvars. 384p $3 Holt

44-40371

A romantic tale of New Jersey and Virginia in the second decade of the nineteenth century. The chief characters are two young men, the narrator from New Jersey, and his cousin, Hugo, heir to a Virginia estate. About Hugo's birth there is a mystery to be solved.

"Had it come off, it would have been a tour de force. But this tale of Devereux Bolinvar of Lowmont and his Byronic cousin, Bois Hugo Bolinvar of Loudoun County, is both dull and improbable. The plot concerning the mystery of Hugo's birth is absurd; the basic facts are unconvincing, the development involved, the solution unsatisfactory." Arthur Meeker, Jr.
— Book Week p4 F 20 '44 400w
Booklist 41:108 D 1 '44
Boston Globe p35 N 29 '44 300w

"Parts of the narrative read like a well planned mystery. The author demonstrates the value of the traditional method of telling a story and the use of a well considered style." N. E. Monroe
+ Cath World 159:186 My '44 110w

"This is perfect escape reading even for those who know and care little for the sportsman paradise depicted. . . Grand winter evening entertainment."
+ Kirkus 12:4 Ja 1 '44 260w

"Mrs. Bayliss' early nineteenth century tale of bravery, strength and chivalry will carry the reader far away from a mechanized age of war and terror. The romantic Bolinvar's love of horses and hounds should erase—for the reading time—every present-day worry about gas and tire shortages." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p6 D 3 '44 450w

"The book will undoubtedly be enjoyed by those who don't want to think about the war; it will be enjoyed even more by those who don't want to think at all."
New Yorker 20:104 D 2 '44 110w

"The reader will follow with interest the fascinating story of the lives of two young men which begin so far apart and in the end are strangely interwoven. This is throughout an exceedingly well-written story and reaches its peak in a smashing climax." H. J. Sloan
+ Springf'd Republican p4d D 10 '44 210w

"It reads like a blend of Black Beauty, The Stockbreeder's Manual and The Three Musketeers."
Time 44:87 D 25 '44 500w

"Marguerite Bayliss writes with a kind of witchery difficult to describe and creates an atmosphere of breathless suspense that belongs to the great romantic tradition. . . Although the plot of 'The Bolinvars' is thin, this fact passes almost unnoticed because of its haunting melodious prose and because of a compelling preoccupation with the characters. . . Those who revel in manifestations of sex will find no vicarious satisfaction in this romance. Here action sweeps like a high, clean wind; for with gentlemen of the chase, it is never ladies first. I would have said that I was long past the age when a book could have held me so completely spellbound." R. Y. Williams
+ Weekly Book Review p4 D 3 '44 750w
Wis Lib Bul 40:160 D '44

BAYNE, JOSEPH BRECKINRIDGE. Bugs and bullets. 256p il $2.75 Smith, Richard R.

940.4763498 European war, 1914-1918—Medical and sanitary affairs. Physicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. S G 44-138

An American doctor describes his work in the Balkans during the first World war. He was stationed at a hospital in Bucharest, even after the Germans occupied the city. His later experiences included work with the Red Cross, during which time he distributed stores and worked in field hospitals during the typhus epidemic in Rumania.

Booklist 40:386 Jl 15 '44

"[Dr Bayne] seemed, himself, to lead a charmed life and the recounting of his many escapes from injury and disease, produces a story as thrilling and far more unusual than the pro-professional 'thriller.' " Muriel Combs
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 27 '44 280w

BEARD, CHARLES AUSTIN. The republic; conversations on fundamentals. 365p $3 Viking

342.73 U.S.—Politics and government
43-14333

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

Reviewed by Max Lerner
Am Pol Sci R 38:781 Ag '44 1650w

"As an instructive tool for courses in what used to be called 'civics,' The Republic is unparalleled. It achieves that rare balance between scholarship and problem-directed earthliness relished by most students." Gwynne Nettler
+ Am Soc R 9:117 F '44 350w

"This book, unconventional in form and stimulating in presentation, is an outstanding contribution to the contemporary discussion of the national scheme. It is in the public interest that it have as wide a reading as possible." R. H. Gabriel
+ Ann Am Acad 232:203 Mr '44 500w
Bookmark 5:4 Ja '44

"Despite good features the book has a fundamental weakness, in that the author refuses to state, as the Declaration of Independence states, that men 'are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights.' Instead of taking that position, which gives man inherent rights and a dignity which no government can take from him, the author avows, 'All human rights rest on the moral standards of the community and the nation—on habits, sentiments, and practices favorable to the expression and enjoyment of such rights. But as such habits,

BEARD, CHARLES AUSTIN—Continued
sentiments, and practices change, concepts of natural rights also change.'. . Speaking plainly and critically, that is exactly the sort of philosophy which became acceptable in Hitlerite Germany." Paul Kiniery
— + Cath World 158:597 Mr '44 650w

"I said this was a notable book—it is more, it is a noble book. While it would be misleading to suggest that any large proportion of the American electorate are Robert and Susan Smyths, still if that saving element who have the interest and the capacity for attention to read—and reread—The Republic would do so, the prospect for our weathering the most massive crisis that our prosperity and institutions have ever encountered would be, one is bound to believe, improved considerably. The book is a worthy successor to the Federalist and comes to this day as opportunely as that greatest product of American political thinking came to its day." E. S. Corwin
+ Columbia Law R 44:283 Mr '44 1300w

Current Hist 6:162 F '44 80w

Reviewed by T. R. Powell
Harvard Law R 57:579 Ap '44 1400w

"The dialogues have a ring of reality. The protagonists, Robert Smyth and his wife, Susan, assume definite personalities, and the casual visitors to this discussion group seem alive, even though definitely 'typed.'. . Dr. Smyth feels that Beard has given him a 'kind of well-seasoned pessimism'; Mrs. Smyth feels that it is a 'kind of well-reasoned optimism.' Whether or not the reader fully accepts Beard's 'human ultimates,' such divergence of opinion is testimony to the provocativeness of the book." I. L. Gordon
+ — School & Society 59:159 F 26 '44 1150w

"The basic teachings of The Federalist concerning constitutional government are here expounded with the Olympian serenity of a past master at 'political fundamentals.' For whatever one may think of Charles A. Beard's views in particulars, there can be little question that he towers today as the grand old man of the study of American politics in historical perspective. In this preoccupation with American constitutional experience lies both the strength and the limitation of his treatment." C. J. Friedrich
+ — Yale Law J 53:370 Mr '44 1850w

BEARD, CHARLES AUSTIN, and BEARD, MRS MARY (RITTER). Basic history of the United States. (New home lib) 508p maps 69c Garden City pub. co.

973 U.S.—History 44-7045

"This distinguished new book represents a distillation of more than forty years of the cooperative study, observation, and thought of the authors—foremost historians of our day—portraying vividly how our great society came into being, how and why it developed, and what physical, social, military, political, economic, intellectual, and spiritual events and circumstances produced the American civilization in which we now live and work." School & Society) An enlarged edition [554p] has been published by Doubleday, Doran at $3.50 (Library of Congress card, 44-9200).

Reviewed by H. U. Faulkner
Ann Am Acad 237:232 Ja '45 600w

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p2 Ag 6 '44 550w

Booklist 41:14 S '44

Booklist 41:91 N 15 '44

"One of the most remarkable features of this book is its price. It seems almost impossible that an original book of about 500 pages, by reputable authors, well printed and substantially bound, could be sold at retail for such a low price. It is impossible for this reviewer to imagine a greater bargain in the world of books. Another and perhaps even more remarkable feature is the soundness of the contents of the book." Paul Kiniery
+ Cath World 160:86 O '44 360w

Christian Century 61:1105 S 27 '44 450w

"Charles Beard regards history as the conflict of ideas and interests evolving and involving in time. It seems to me that this conflict and its periodic, tentative, and pragmatic resolutions are moving in an area profoundly alien to the wishes of the Beards. But I do not see why that fact ought to disqualify the Beards from having an audience. In the meantime it is, surely a wonderful thing that millions of Americans can read their own history at so small a cost." Francis Downing
Commonweal 41:105 N 10 '44 650w

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook
Current Hist 7:321 O '44 900w

Kirkus 12:269 Je 15 '44 130w

Reviewed by G. O. Kelley
Library J 69:648 Ag '44 90w

Reviewed by E. F. Goldman
New Repub 111:696 N 27 '44 1700w

"From Charles Beard, America's most distinguished historian, and his wife, Mary Beard, who holds the same rank among women historians, comes an impressive short work which rounds off a lifetime of brilliant studies of American civilization." Adrienne Koch
+ — N Y Times p1 Ag 6 '44 1600w

"Perhaps, all in all, the best one-volume history that has ever been written about the United States."
+ New Yorker 20:81 O 28 '44 90w

Reviewed by Dixon Wecter
Sat R of Lit 27:7 N 4 '44 1800w

+ School & Society 60:95 Ag 5 '44 80w

"The authors perform a useful service in presenting Taft and Hoover in a friendlier light than is customary with most historians. But to do so they have felt it necessary to scale down Theodore Roosevelt, Wilson, and Franklin D. Roosevelt. The inconsistencies of Wilson and Franklin Roosevelt are carefully chronicled, but those of Hoover just as carefully ignored. To this reader the analysis of events since 1932 is hardly fair. Despite its flaws it is a splendid piece of work and it is fortunate that its low cost will bring to a great number of Americans a gifted interpretation of their history." Michael Kraus + — Social Educ 9:45 Ja '45 650w

Social Studies 33:335 N '44 30w

Time 44:98 Ag 21 '44 1300w

"It would be an exaggeration to suggest that the Beards present an interpretation of our recent foreign policy in terms acceptable, let us say, to Mr. Lippmann, or that they abandon themselves to any enthusiasm for the foreign policy of President F. D. Roosevelt, but it can be said that there is an objectivity here which seemed to be lacking in some of their earlier books. The Basic History is a notable achievement in condensation—shrewd and discriminating in the selection of facts, thoughtful in their interpretation, magisterial in their presentation. It is, all in all, the best short history of the United States yet written." H. S. Commager
+ Weekly Book Review p3 Ag 6 '44 1400w

Wis Lib Bul 40:127 O '44

BEARD, JAMES. Fowl and game cookery. 196p $2 Barrows

641.665 Cookery (poultry). Cookery (game) 44-4560

"Directions for cleaning and preparing almost every kind of edible bird and fowl for the table." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 40:335 Je 1 '44

J Home Econ 36:659 D '44 20w

"There are succulent, mouth watering recipes—I'm going to experiment liberally in the months ahead. There are stuffings and sauces. And the best practical aspect of the whole is the recognition of the shortcomings of the present day larder, and the frank inclusion of substitutes."
+ Kirkus 12:193 Ap 15 '44 120w

BEATTY, RICHMOND CROOM, ed. Vanderbilt miscellany, 1919-1944. 397p il $3.50 Vanderbilt univ. press

810.8 American literature—Collections 44-5109

"This book contains the work of faculty members as well as students, and includes poems and essays in addition to stories. For more than 20 years the Vanderbilt campus has been a major center of creative writing and thinking, not only for the South but for the nation as a whole. 'A Vanderbilt Miscellany' provides a highly desirable historical synthesis of this writing and thinking." Book Week

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p2 Jl 9 '44 550w

"While the poetry section is relatively feeble—outside of the four poems by Allen Tate, the four poems by Robert Penn Warren, and the two poems by Randall Jarrell—the fiction by 'Vanderbilt authors' old and new has been chosen for the same high quality as is shown in the essays. The stories by Warren, Jesse Stuart, James Still, are, as might be expected, good, and there is fine promise in the work of Walter Sullivan (class of '45), and three recent graduates, Ethel Moore, Walter Snell and Cecil Woods. Here is neither the sentimentality of Southern apologists nor the simplicity of Northern reformers. Even at their most bitterly critical these stories are always about human beings." Marjorie Farber
+ — N Y Times p4 My 28 '44 200w
Reviewed by J. G. Fletcher
+ Sat R of Lit 27:17 Je 17 '44 1200w

BEATY, JOHN YOCUM. Mountain book. 239p il 90c Beckley-Cardy
551.43 Mountains—Juvenile literature
44-6735

"Similar to the author's River book [Book Review Digest, 1942]. Under the guidance of their uncle two boys climb Going-to-the-Sun Mountain in Glacier National Park and learn a great deal about mountain structure, the action of glaciers, mountain resources and wild life." Wis Lib Bul

School & Society 60:47 Jl 15 '44 40w
Wis Lib Bul 40:148 N '44

BECHDOLT, JOHN ERNEST, and MERWIN, DECIE (MRS JOHN ERNEST BECHDOLT). Dulcie and her donkey [col. il. by Decie Merwin]. 71p $1.50 Dutton
44-6372

Four short stories about a little girl named Dulcie, and the small adventures which came her way. For very young readers.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p24 N 12 '44 130w

"The early 19th century pictures by the authors, in soft yellow, blue and pink, and the introduction of unexpected rhymes, give distinction to this small book of stories that would have little appeal for those preferring modern tales."
Kirkus 12:320 Jl 15 '44 90w

"Not a necessity but a pleasant addition to the easy book selection." K. H. McAlarney
+ Library J 69:701 S 1 '44 80w

"The springlike gaiety in the pictures is refreshing, and the early nineteenth-century clothes in which the artist has dressed her characters adds to their charm. The tales occasionally break into rhyme in a light-hearted fashion that is in harmony with the drawings and with happy little Dulcie and her adventures." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p26 N 5 '44 180w
Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 O 1 '44 220w
Wis Lib Bul 40:161 D '44

BECK, SAMUEL JACOB. Rorschach's test; v. 1, Basic processes; foreword by Willard L. Valentine. 223p il $3.50 Grune 137.8 Personality tests. Rorschach, Hermann
(44-3779)

"In essence the book is a manual of rules for classifying the responses to the Rorschach ink blot figures in accordance with Rorschach's terminology. It does not go beyond this basic step into the interpretation of these responses—a task which will be undertaken in a forthcoming volume. Each chapter deals with a separate aspect of the scoring process and the various underlying principles are clarified by the presentation of thousands of responses which have been classified by the author. The realization of the contention of the large group of Rorschach specialists that the technic is essentially an objective, scientific method will certainly depend upon the general adoption of some explicit system of scoring such as this book describes." Am J Pub Health

Reviewed by L. D. Long
Am J Pub Health 34:995 S '44 180w
School & Society 59:256 Ap 8 '44 40w

BECK, WARREN. Final score. 227p $2 Knopf
44-6922

Character study of an American fascist, living in a midwestern city. Bill Hutten started out as a football hero, became a second-rate demagog, married a woman who was his superior mentally and socially, represented the forces of reaction, was mixed up with bad politicians, and ended a suicide.

"As a novel, 'Final Score' does not stand on the same plane as Beck's shorter pieces do as short stories. Nevertheless, it is eminently worth reading; it is not a great novel, it is not even an auspicious novel; but it is interesting with the fascination that all psychological explorations have, and it is more than competently done by a young man whose writing talent is certain to grow with the years." August Derleth
+ — Book Week p3 Ag 27 '44 400w
Booklist 41:21 S '44
Kirkus 12:354 Ag 15 '44 190w

"Mr. Beck unfortunately tells his story through the minds of a pair of close spectators at Hutten's rise instead of casting it into direct action—a method which reduces the dramatic effectiveness of his novel and makes it somewhat tedious. Nevertheless, 'Final Score' is a firm and thoughtful American psychological-political document." Diana Trilling
+ — Nation 159:304 S 9 '44 180w

"Warren Beck's first novel reveals an intelligent and interesting writer. But—to borrow a phrase once applied to E. M. Forster—he shows little novelistic appetite: he solves his sociological problems better than his novelistic ones. We see Bill Hutten at a double remove—as if through two panes of glass: not one but two narrators are employed to tell his story. And while the mystery of his personality is pursued with all the zeal of an Ahab hunting Moby Dick, the reader shares too little of the mystification and none of the suspense. If Bill Hutten, clearly a problem, had been more of a character, his problem would be even more interesting than it is." Marjorie Farber
— + N Y Times p4 Ag 20 '44 440w

"The book, which employs the 'Lord Jim' method of narrative dialogue, is a psychological autopsy of the big shot, conducted over highballs immediately after his funeral, with his former press agent doing the heavy talking. Easy reading, despite the quotes-within-quotes which are an inevitable by-product of this technique."
New Yorker 20:63 Ag 26 '44 180w

"A more ambitious and timely subject could scarcely be undertaken. If Beck had succeeded in bringing it off he might have produced a first-class documentary novel; and even in his failure he has brought to the problem enough of honesty and vigor to make a provocative story of it. The reasons for failure are two: the narrator, Parker, and the subject, Hutten." N. L. Rothman
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:25 S 30 '44 650w

"A bright lively, short novel." A. H. Fuller
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 20 '44 500w

"Whether you accept Mr. Beck's allegory or not, the fact remains that 'Final Score' is an entertaining, thoughtful picture of the inflation and deflation of a hero. Gazing back at some of our idols, you may recognize Bill Hutten

BECK, WARREN—Continued
as something less than a stranger." Herbert Kupferberg
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 20 '44 750w

BECKER, CARL LOTUS. Cornell university: founders and the founding. 240p il $2.75 Cornell univ. press [16s 6d Oxford]

378 Cornell university 44-195

"Six lectures delivered at Cornell university on the Messenger foundation in the year 1943, in recognition of the 75th anniversary of the opening of that institution in the year 1868: together with fifteen interesting but hitherto unpublished documents relating thereto . . . with which is included an address entitled 'The Cornell Tradition,' delivered on April 27, 1940, in recognition of the 75th anniversary of the signing of the charter." (Subtitle) Bibliography.

"The book is written with the lively grace that marks all of Professor Becker's work and illuminated with shafts of humor. The author's thorough investigation has brought to light new and valuable material on the history of Cornell. But perhaps the greatest merit of the book lies in the penetrating judgment with which events and persons are appraised. The review of the Morrill Act and the New York land grant and the characterizations of Ezra Cornell and Andrew D. White command unqualified admiration." W. P. Rogers
+ Am Hist R 49:509 Ap '44 550w

"Another fine history of an institution is 'Cornell University: Founders and the Founding.' . . Carl Becker's humor and wisdom add ever greater value to a book which is in the highest degree interesting and worth reading." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p2 Jl 30 '44 130w

Reviewed by Cyril Clemens
Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 19 '44 130w

BECKER, CARL LOTUS. How new will the better world be? a discussion of postwar reconstruction. 246p $2.50 Knopf

940.53144 Reconstruction (1939-). World politics. Economic policy 44-2444

Trenchant discussion of the post war period, which is divided into eight leading questions, with their answers. Contents: What is wrong with the world we have; Can we return to normalcy; Can we abate nationalism and curb the sovereign state; Can we abolish power politics and end imperialism; What are we fighting for; What kind of collectivism do we want; What kind of international political order can we have; What kind of international economic order can we have.

"This volume is a stimulating essay on the subject of post-war reconstruction. The author diagnoses the present state of the world, with special attention to nationalism, sovereignty, power politics, and imperialism." C. E. Merriam
+ Am Pol Sci R 38:556 Je '44 750w

Reviewed by Read Bain
Am Soc R 9:704 D '44 550w

Reviewed by J. S. Roucek
Ann Am Acad 233:227 My '44 650w

Booklist 40:338 Je 1 '44

Bookmark 5:11 My '44

Christian Science Monitor p8 Je 17 '44 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '44

"Professor Becker, one of America's most respected historians, has managed within the covers of this modest book to compress a vast amount of good common sense. His erudition and his capacity for lucid and arresting expression have enabled him to set forth clearly in these pages the proper historical background against which any realistic 'peace planning' must be projected. He deflates much current wishful thinking and starry-eyed Utopianism, but without surrendering to pessimism or defeatism." R. G. Woolbert
+ Foreign Affairs 22:655 Jl '44 60w

"This book should help clarify a great many people's thinking. The position taken is a sound, middle-of-the-road one, without being wishy washy or on the fence."
+ Kirkus 12:37 Ja 15 '44 200w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley
New Repub 110:504 Ap 10 '44 700w

"Professor Becker's book is a primer in responsible thinking. If there is one single book that every man, the sophisticated and the simple-minded, the student and the practical man, should read, here it is. It comes in good time in a crucial year of domestic and international decisions. . . There are few readers who will not put this little book away made wiser by the arguments it presents, and happier by the unostentatious way in which the job has been done." Hans Kohn
+ N Y Times p4 Mr 19 '44 1200w

Reviewed by Edmund Wilson
New Yorker 20:77 Ap 15 '44 600w

Reviewed by R. J. Sontag
Pol Sci Q 59:439 S '44 750w

"In the Niagara of books about the war and the post-war world, Professor Carl Becker's deserves to receive a good many stars. It should appear well towards the top of any short list of required reading." Norman Angell
+ Sat R of Lit 27:8 Mr 18 '44 2000w

"A remarkable book." M. H. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 12 '44 900w

"Equally at home in the history of the old world and of the new, sparked with imagination and common sense, Professor Becker has written a book which deserves to be widely read. In a welter of important books about the post-war world this stands out as one of the few which are truly great and are indispensable to an intelligent approach to the problem." R. A. Brown
+ Survey G 33:363 Ag '44 450w

Time 43:99 Ap 10 '44 500w

"This is the Becker who wrote that superb book on the Declaration of Independence away back in 1922; which is guarantee enough that the new one is well done. Among the enormous number of books about the post-war world it is, in fact, the injection of a strong current of common sense into a torrent of flap-doodle. Plenty of Americans will not like it at all; and they are the ones who ought to read it first." Gerald Johnson
+ Weekly Book Review p1 Mr 12 '44 1200w

Wis Lib Bul 40:68 My '44

Reviewed by Leo Gershoy
Yale R n s 33:733 summer '44 700w

BECKER, JOHN. Negro in American life; sponsored by the Council against intolerance in America; with a pref. by Lillian Smith. 53p il $2.50; pa $1 Messner

325.26 Negroes

"Pictures and simply stated text present the Negroes as a people capable and willing to share in the life of the nation. This is a primer on better interracial understanding." Booklist

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p7 D 31 '44 180w

Booklist 41:133 Ja 1 '45

Kirkus 12:543 D 1 '44 170w

"Excellent material somewhat spoiled by poor reproduction in the case of photographs and the inevitable black background of this printing process." E. T. Dobbins
+ — Library J 70:71 Ja 15 '45 80w

"As the country plans and prepares to live again in what is hoped will be a thriving post-war period, America knows that the so-called race problem must be cleared up, that she must first put her own house in order and practise the democracy she preaches. This abbreviated source book should be of immense help in the attempt to make this hope for a peaceful and prosperous future a living reality." H. H. Smythe
+ New Repub 112:126 Ja 22 '45 420w

Reviewed by John Desmond
N Y Times p26 Ja 14 '45 180w

BECKWITH, EDMUND RUFFIN, and others. Lawful action of state military forces; with a foreword by Hugh A. Drum. 216p $3; pa $1.50 Random house

355.351 U.S.—Militia. Military law 44-3771

"The book begins with a description of the types of state forces, the federal and state laws which authorize their organization, and the obligation of the citizen to serve in the organized militia. There follows a chapter on the unfamiliar constitutional power of the state to wage war, without any action by Congress, against an invading enemy. . . The book proceeds to discuss the occasions for active duty, such as tumult, riot, and insurrection, orders to active duty, the detention and search of persons by the troops, control of the population and military use of property, with complete clarity of statement and a wealth of concrete examples. . . The final chapter, dealing with military justice, is designed as a guide to the discipline and court-martial procedure which under the practice of most states is assimilated into the federal system." Harvard Law R

"The authors of this book are the first to explore completely the very difficult subject of the military power of the several states. They have succeeded in organizing a mass of confused and often conflicting materials into precise statements which encompass both the general principles of law and the specific rules of action applicable to state troops." J. W. Henderson

+ Harvard Law R 57:593 Ap '44 1100w

"It is not safe for a common lawyer to say that the book ought to be in the hands of every state soldier; that involves the expression of an opinion in the field of military policy. But it is safe to say that, if it is good for a given state soldier to know the law of his profession, he ought to have this book. The authors who have set out into the unmapped wilderness of their subject and given their services, and the publisher which has done its part at cost, deserve the thanks of the country for their patriotic enterprise." E. J. Dimock

+ Yale Law J 53:373 Mr '44 1450w

BEEBE, ELSWYTH THANE (RICKER) (MRS WILLIAM BEEBE) (ELSWYTH THANE, pseud). Yankee stranger. 306p $2.50 Duell

44-8139

A romantic, historical novel of the Civil war. Some of the characters are descendants of those in Dawn's Early Light (Book Review Digest, 1943).

Reviewed by Taylor Caldwell

Book Week p12 O 1 '44 430w

Booklist 41:78 N 1 '44

" 'Yankee Stranger' is good company for an Autumn evening by the log fire."

+ Boston Globe p17 S 13 '44 140w

"Delightful drawn picture of civilian life behind the front—not too prettified. Pleasant entertainment."

+ Kirkus 12:287 Jl 1 '44 150w

Reviewed by George Conrad

Weekly Book Review p6 S 17 '44 250w

BEEBE, WILLIAM, ed. Book of naturalists; an anthology of the best natural history. 499p il $3.50 Knopf

574.082 Natural history 44-9634

Anthology of writings, ancient and modern, on natural history. The book is divided into parts, the first for naturalists before Darwin, the second for Darwin and those who followed him. Each part has an introduction by the editor, and short biographical notes about each naturalist. Selected bibliographical material.

"It is, of course, impossible to give more than a hint of the real message, the meaning and significance of the writings of such men as Darwin, Wallace, Thoreau, Huxley, Fabre and many others in the few pages allotted to each writer in this volume. But this anthology will have served a useful purpose if it will send many of its readers to the library for some naturalist's books." Leonard Dubkin

Book Week p8 N 26 '44 230w

Booklist 41:103 D 1 '44

"Stimulating reading for the unscientific, for anyone wishing to sample, in perspective, the many facets of this science."

+ Kirkus 12:489 N 1 '44 150w

"Dr. Beebe can re-create imaginatively the exciting life of a parasite in a tadpole's intestine with the same zest with which he makes world broadcasts from the bottom of the ocean or draws meticulous descriptions of the habits of birds from Borneo head-hunters. For such an anthology as this he is the ideal editor. Much of his work has been in the great tradition of writers like Gilbert White and Thoreau and W. H. Hudson whose literacy and sympathy and imagination have steadily increased popular interest in intelligent observation of the natural world. But Dr. Beebe has the added authority, as many of the others have not had, of his directly scientific contributions." R. G. Davis

+ N Y Times p7 D 10 '44 1200w

"Mr. Beebe's collection suffers from the scrappiness characteristic of most anthologies, and specialists are bound to quarrel with some of his choices, but, as a sampler, his volume is all that it should be."

New Yorker 20:93 N 18 '44 130w

"Perhaps a reviewer should not accept for review an anthology in which he finds a selection from his own work. But if the reader will allow me to make exception of the few pages that I wrote (which must blush to find themselves in the company of Aristotle and Darwin!) then I may assure you that I greatly enjoyed this omnibus of natural history writings. . . All in all it will make excellent reading for anyone interested in birds, mammals, insects, and outdoor nature generally." D. C. Peattie

+ Sat R of Lit 28:29 Ja 13 '45 400w

"Every naturer will want this book and will read it. It is a book without monotony or sentimentalism about butterflies in the spring-tra-la. It is a book with authentic liveliness from which we can renew strength. Nature literature can never wear out. The 'Book of Naturalists' will be much worn." W. G. Vinal

+ Springf'd Republican p4d D 24 '44 700w

BEERY, JOHN REPLOGLE. Current conceptions of democracy. 110p $1.85 Teachers college

321.8 Democracy 44-6488

"This Ph.D. dissertation makes a unique contribution to the literature on the meaning of democracy. It reveals the major points of agreement and disagreement in the interpretations of 'ordinary' people who use the word." (School & Society) Selected bibliography.

Reviewed by H. M. Magid

J Philos 42:55 Ja 18 '45 210w

School & Society 59:432 Je 17 '44 50w

Social Studies 33:335 N '44 40w

BEIM, MRS LORRAINE (LEVEY), and BEIM, JERROLD. Igor's summer; il. by Kurt Wiese. 62p $1 Russian war relief, inc, 11 E. 35th st, N.Y.

44-703

"How a Russian schoolboy spent his vacation in a brigade, working on the Timoshenko Farm. The experiences of eleven-year-old Igor and his friends, as they learned how to cultivate vegetables, are often lively and amusing, as well as informative. Before the summer was over they found that everyone can be a soldier, working on the crops, no less than on the battlefront." Horn Bk

---

"The boys are naturally drawn and the Russian's devotion to his country well pictured." A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 20:206 My '44 70w

"Conditions are not so rough as in the first-hand account of war-working children in Ar-

BEIM, LORRAINE—Continued
kady Gaidar's 'Timur and His Gang,' with which this story will be compared, and the children have not the engaging brashness of those in his book. But fellow feeling gives the story warmth, and along with some idea of collective farming an American child gets from it a salutary sense of the value of forgetting one's self and even one's competitor in going all out for a high cause in common." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Mr 19 '44 350w

BEIM, MRS LORRAINE (LEVEY), and BEIM, JERROLD. Sasha and the samovar; pictures by Rafaello Busoni. [68p] $1.75 Harcourt
44-40173

Sasha was a small Russian boy who wanted to help win the war. He was too little to join his father and brothers in the army, or to drive the cows home, or manage a truck or tractor, but he wasn't too small to take the samovar out into the fields and make tea for the workers. For grades one to three.

Booklist 41:43 O 1 '44
Kirkus 12:340 Ag 1 '44 90w
Reviewed by M. C. Skinner
Library J 69:864 O 15 '44 50w

"It is a slight but appealing story of Russia today and has some educational value. The numerous black-and-white drawings by Rafael Busoni are lively and suitable." M. F. Cox
+ Library J 69:884 O 15 '44 50w

"The simple, yet colorful text, the exquisite drawings and the large type make this an outstanding book for beginning readers." M. L. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d O 29 '44 90w

"Many lively robustly Russian farm scenes are pictured. Sasha is like every little boy who wants to help, and the cooperative spirit that brings these men and boys, women and girls, old and young, into one warmly felt effort, shows without overemphasis what has made history in Russia." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 S 24 '44 250w

BEISTLE, MRS ALDARILLA S. I spy; pictures by Mary Alice Beistle. [14p] spir $1 McKay 44-7592

A little girl and her mother sit under an umbrella on the lawn and play a game of I spy. The book is printed on heavy cardboard, illustrated in color, and has spiral binding. For use with very young children.

"The chief value of this is that it is a sort of picture puzzle book, where the child can identify objects in the picture to answer the questions in the text. It can be expanded with little effort on the part of the parent, to include more objects than the text takes into consideration."
+ Kirkus 12:398 S 1 '44 80w

"The 'I Spy' idea is used to locate certain objects in the pictures. Its use as a circulating book is questionable because of the spiral binding and cardboard paper." M. F. Cox
Library J 69:884 O 15 '44 60w
Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p5 Ag 27 '44 120w

BEITMAN, MORRIS N. Practical radio for war training. 336p il pa $2.95 Supreme publications
621.384 Radio 43-12300

"Theory of electricity and radio, practical radio repair, adjustment, operation and alteration. No previous knowledge is assumed. For home study, preinduction radio courses and for servicemen." Library J

Booklist 40:108 D 1 '43
Library J 68:959 N 15 '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:30 Ap '44

"It is a good book to have for one with little previous knowledge of radio who wishes to become familiar with the practical side of it or for the teacher who wishes to get suggestions for a different approach to the subject from those presented in most of the standard elementary textbooks or manuals."
+ R of Scientific Instruments 15:94 Ap '44 350w

BELDEN, JACK. Still time to die. 322p $3 Harper
940.548173 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 44-7649

The author of Retreat with Stilwell (Book Review Digest, 1943) here recounts his experiences and reactions in battles in China, North Africa, and Italy.

"'Still Time to Die' is a powerful and moving book, in spite of obvious flaws. One may question whether the references to Clausewitz are really helpful or merely fashionable. Belden does not always handle the English language carefully, and he sometimes over-writes. His book is not too well organized. But these are minor faults in what is certainly one of the best books to come out of the present war." Willard Waller
+ — Book Week p3 S 24 '44 400w
Booklist 41:38 O 1 '44

"Reading it makes one think worse of the people who make wars and exploit them in their own interest, and better of the men who fight them, but without romanticizing them either. Besides, the book presents one competent correspondent's record of some of the most important actions of this war."
+ Christian Century 61:1170 O 11 '44 150w
Kirkus 12:358 Ag 15 '44 170w

"Book has a point of view worth considering, but would be criticized on many library shelves because of liberal use of back-alley-fence words." Thelma Brackett
Library J 69:696 S 1 '44 90w

"Mr. Belden's book is a series of vignettes of the battles he has been in throughout the world. . . They are extraordinarily vivid pictures, for he has a gift of picking out the details that make scenes come alive; one gets the feel and the smell of battle; one shares the terror in the hearts of the men. Some readers may wince at his frequent references to bodily functions and his use of four-letter words; some may be perturbed by the overtone of bitterness that runs through the book. But war is ugly, and Mr. Belden is writing a realistic and at times powerful portrait of it." Marcus Duffield
+ — Nation 159:358 S 23 '44 240w
Reviewed by Agnes Smedley
New Repub 111:433 O 2 '44 1250w

"Jack Belden's 'Retreat With Stilwell,' published last year, was one of the most vivid pictures, though a curious one, compounded of contempt, admiration and an atmosphere of disaster and idyllic romance. . . His new book of experiences . . . is episodic and the narrative breaks off frequently just as it approaches its climax. . . But Mr. Belden is an interesting writer. When he wishes to report 'conventionally' he can do so with strength and clarity. And some of the more impressionistic chapters on China communicate to us with exceptional force the nature and dimensions of the ordeal of the Chinese people." Byron Dexter
+ — N Y Times p3 S 17 '44 1300w

"To Mr. Belden there is nothing glamorous about war. His description of it in all its obscene ugliness and ugly obscenity is tough, hard-boiled, and uninhibited. It will shock the prudish and the squeamish and his book will probably be hard to buy in Boston. But the reader will come close to forming an accurate estimate of the meaning of combat because Mr. Belden has tried to write 'not like a reporter or a historian but as an artist.' In this he has achieved a notable measure of success." Donald Armstrong
+ Sat R of Lit 27:31 S 23 '44 850w
Reviewed by R. N. Fuller
Springf'd Republican p4d S 24 '44 440w

"An absorbing and provocative book. . . If any one wants to know what modern war amounts to in real sensory, palpable images, this book is a source which can be compared to no other published account. Only the newsreels can compete with this kind of narrative, and even they are pale and shadowy compared to the flow of color, sound, smell and intestinal-level emotion Belden has poured out in this book." Joseph Barnes

+ — Weekly Book Review p4 S 17 '44 1100w

Wis Lib Bul 40:145 N '44

BELFRAGE, CEDRIC. Faith to free the people. 317p $2.75 Dryden

B or 92 Williams, Claude Clossey 44-7421

"Not at all a religious book in the traditional sense. It is less about conscience and the world beyond the sky than it is about poverty, human exploitation, southern share-croppers and 'native fascists' in Detroit. All of this is told through the life of Claude Williams, director of the People's Institute of Applied Religion. Williams, born a prejudiced poor white of the Tennessee hills, through reading and bitter experience became a broadly gauged humanitarian, crusading for social change, for 'applied religion.' Belfrage has made this unique biography as intimate as a novel. It supersedes South of God [Book Review Digest, 1941] (part of the same story by the same author) and brings the account up to date." Library J

"It's a grand, a burning, story, but don't read it unless you are prepared to have your religion and your social philosophy put on the spot." Jarvis McCurdy

+ Canadian Forum 24:188 N '44 650w

"It is not only a story of a brilliant mind bringing deep social meanings out of the Scripture, and a tale of matchless faith and courage, but also a depiction of the worst social evils of the 'Bible Belt,' brought into startling contrast to the gospel when it is preached without concern for conventions, institutionalism or any ulterior purpose." A. W. Taylor

+ Christian Century 61:1418 D 6 '44 750w

"This is a remarkably well-told life story of a remarkable preacher. Claude Williams will probably never be ranked as one of the great Christian leaders of America, for he is too uncompromisingly forth-right in the way he embodies his principles in direct action. But he should be known as the great Christian he is and as one of the outstanding champions of the cause of the underprivileged, particularly that of the share-cropper in the South and that of the Negro, North and South."

+ Kirkus 12:498 N 1 '44 290w

Reviewed by L. D. Reddick

Library J 69:648 Ag '44 110w

"A half-dozen popular novels come to mind whose clergymen-heroes struggle against the hypocrisy and the hollowness of much that passes for religion. In few of these works of fiction do we find such drama, heartache and suspense." L. H. Robbins

N Y Times p34 O 29 '44 650w

BELL, BERNARD IDDINGS. Altar and the world; social implications of the Liturgy. 148p $1.25 Harper

264.035 Lord's supper. Sociology, Christian 44-2630

"Meditations on Christian truth and power evidenced in church liturgy. The development follows the liturgy in the Book of Common Prayer of the Episcopal church but many of the analyses and interpretations will also challenge or guide members of other denominations. Bibliography precedes contents page." Booklist

Booklist 40:277 Ap 15 '44

Christian Century 61:371 Mr 22 '44 150w

Reviewed by W. L. Caswell

Churchman 158:21 Ap 15 '44 70w

Reviewed by H. A. Reinhold

Commonweal 40:210 Je 16 '44 480w

"None can fail to respond to Dr. Bell's searching analysis of our contemporary civilization expressed in the vigorous and trenchant language which the author commands."

+ Kirkus 12:63 F 1 '44 180w

Wis Lib Bul 40:66 My '44

BELL, MARGARET ELIZABETH. Danger on Old Baldy; il. by Hamilton Greene. 224p $2 Morrow

44-6433

Adventure-mystery story of Alaska and Japanese spies, salmon fisheries, and mountain climbing. For older boys.

Kirkus 12:300 Jl 1 '44 90w

"Should be popular with ages eleven to fifteen." Sonja Wennerblad

+ Library J 69:764 S 15 '44 60w

"The plot is well handled, the characters have humor and reality, the background is thoroughly authentic and shows us in vivid fashion a country of special interest to us today." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 Ja 7 '45 140w

"Boys and girls will like it for its plot and action, for the humor and realism of its characters. Mike and Ole and Long Paul fit perfectly into their environment." M. G. D.

+ Sat R of Lit 27:30 S 23 '44 230w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p5 S 17 '44 300w

BELLAIRS, GEORGE. Death stops the frolic. 164p $2 Macmillan

44-374

Detective story.

"It's a smooth, discerning tale—and a highly entertaining one." Elizabeth Bullock

+ Book Week p10 F 6 '44 150w

Kirkus 11:560 D 15 '43 70w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p12 F 13 '44 120w

"First class."

+ Sat R of Lit 27:26 Ja 29 '44 40w

"Beautiful sleuthing puts the story at the top of any list."

+ Time 43:104 F 7 '44 40w

"A Grade A detective tale in the best British tradition." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p14 Ja 30 '44 280w

BELLAIRS, GEORGE. Murder of a quack. 166p $2 Macmillan [5s Gifford]

44-8552

Detective story.

"Pleasant reading."

+ Boston Globe p17 O 11 '44 30w

Kirkus 12:309 Jl 15 '44 50w

"The identity of the murderer becomes evident to the reader a little too soon to provide the suspense that a good detective story should have, but the last chapters offer an interesting variation on a time-worn device. This, together with some excellent characterization, atones for the fault mentioned above." Isaac Anderson

+ — N Y Times p17 S 24 '44 120w

"Pleasant."

+ Sat R of Lit 27:30 O 7 '44 40w

"It is very readable."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p129 Mr 11 '44 80w

"Quaint villagers and other quiet fun relieve the intense deducing of this recommended British article. Sure-fire, that's Mr. Bellairs." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p16 S 24 '44 130w

BELLAMANN, HENRY. Victoria Grandolet. 281p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

43-16087

"An egocentric, middle-class New England girl marries into an old Louisiana family, bound inescapably by tradition. The story, what there is of it, concerns not so much Victoria's

BELLAMANN, HENRY—Continued
relation to her husband and his people as the intensity of her feeling toward their fabulous ancestral home and the dead-and-gone Grandolets who have lived there." New Yorker

---

"'Victoria Grandolet' is being boosted as a profound psychological novel. I found the psychological study adequate and rather elementary, certainly not unusual—and insufficient compensation for reading a banal book." A. C. Spectorsky
— Book Week p1 Ja 2 '44 1250w
Booklist 40:165 Ja 1 '44
Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '44

"A tense and dramatic story. In many respects reminiscent of Rebecca. Literary Guild of America selection for January. Recommended for all public libraries." H. A. Carpenter
+ Library J 68:1005 D 1 '43 70w

"The outstanding quality of this book lies in the mood which the novelist creates. It is Louisiana with its swamps and miasma and the sweep of the Mississippi; it is romance and tradition and tragedy hovering over a homeplace that survives beyond the short span of human lives; it is the spirit of people who never lose their sense of belonging to the past that has shaped their destinies. Bellamann is less successful in the plot structure of his novel, especially in the final chapters." Rose Feld
+ — N Y Times p8 Ja 2 '44 700w

"The author tries hard to create a background that is strange and fascinating and a heroine of sinister complexity, but his skill simply isn't up to the task he has set himself of resolving atmosphere and characterization."
New Yorker 19:68 Ja 1 '44 90w

"There is lack of sureness of touch in the novel, and earnestness that never becomes reality and an attempt at intuitive writing which rarely escapes from vagueness. With all its protestations of mystic influence and psychic emotionalism the drama of 'Victoria Grandolet' does not become dimensional." L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 2 '44 600w

"An uneven, atmosphere-saturated novel, expertly written, distinguished by some subtle shadings in its portraits, and weakened by an over-emphasis on the romanticism of the Old South. It is noteworthy because there might seem to be no earthly reason why this story of married life should come to its unhappy end."
+ — Time 43:94 Ja 3 '44 950w

"'Victoria Grandolet' has something of the quality of an old fairy tale. It is told with sensitiveness and a fine sense of suspense. It adds exotic pictures and interesting traditions to one's imagination of the almost endless variety of ways of living in these United States. Yet the setting and the situation dominate what should be the central interest of the book—Victoria herself. Lightly sketched in, as an almost legendary figure, she remains to the reader also almost a stranger. You are likely to remember the house with its quivering crystal chandelier, rather than the woman for whom the book is named." Mary Ross
+ — Weekly Book Review p2 Ja 2 '44 600w

BELLOW, SAUL. Dangling man. 191p $2.50 Vanguard
44-3681

Purports to be the journal of a young man living in Chicago, who gives up his job, expecting to be inducted into the army. Owing to technicalities Joseph is left dangling for almost a year. His journal explains his psychological reactions to idleness, how he passes his time, his growing unrest, and finally the relief when his call comes.

Reviewed by Peter De Vries
Book Week p3 Ap 9 '44 550w

"Not very satisfying reading."
Kirkus 12:48 F 1 '44 100w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 158:454 Ap 15 '44 300w

Reviewed by George Mayberry
New Repub 110:473 Ap 3 '44 550w

"In this imaginative journal, set against fresh and vivid scenes in Chicago, the author has outlined what must seem to many others an uncannily accurate delineation of themselves." Kenneth Fearing
+ N Y Times p5 Mr 26 '44 500w

"The book is an excellent document on the experience of the non-combatant in time of war. It is well written and never dull—in spite of the dismalness of the Chicago background and the undramatic character of the subject. It is also one of the most honest pieces of testimony on the psychology of a whole generation who have grown up during the depression and the war." Edmund Wilson
+ New Yorker 20:78 Ap 1 '44 850w

"Saul Bellow is a writer of great original powers. Quite apart from the pressing interest of the material he has chosen for his book (a first novel, incidentally), he writes with obvious style and mastery, with a sharp cutting to the quick of language, with a brilliance of thought. This is a successful piece of work everywhere you examine it, and ought to be the herald of a fine literary career." N. L. Rothman
+ Sat R of Lit 27:27 Ap 15 '44 700w

"Dangling Man is a very carefully written book. As the publishers say, it is a sympathetic and understanding study of a young man struggling with his soul. It might be even more sympathetic if Author Bellow (who is not in the Army) ever seemed to suspect that, as an object of pity, his hero is a pharisaical stinker."
— + Time 43:104 My 8 '44 280w

"Perhaps this Joseph is vaguely symbolic of some failing in our modern life, but the chief impression he left on this reader was that of a spineless young man, hardly worthy of the thought and careful writing that Mr. Bellow lavished on him." Herbert Kupferberg
Weekly Book Review p11 Ap 9 '44 550w

BELMONT, IRA JEAN. Modern dilemma in art. 287p 32pl $3.75 Harbinger
701 Art. Music and color 44-9787

A volume of more or less connected essays on art, subtitled "Reflections of a color-music painter." Partial contents: Meditation after visiting a "Modern art" exhibit; Eccentricity in art; In praise of imagination; A glance at esthetics; A painter among the philosophers; A painter among the psychologists; Contra Wilenski; Why art critics?; What color-music is; Music and the fourth dimension; The film "Fantasia": an appraisal; Is art necessary?

Reviewed by Howard Devree
N Y Times p34 D 3 '44 440w
Springf'd Republican p4c N 26 '44 200w

BEMELMANS, LUDWIG. Now I lay me down to sleep. 299p $2.50 Viking 43-15465

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

"There will be readers who will lay the book down in disgust, thinking it trivial, and there will be others—like me—who read it first with suspicion, then with snorts of delight and recognition as the shafts go home. For with his malicious and irreverent wit the author is telling you that here are the extravagances of that superfluous and graceful society,—people who had money to burn and are now burning for their carelessness." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 173:125 Ap '44 330w

Reviewed by Russell Maloney
Book Week p1 F 20 '44 900w

Reviewed by C. G. Paulding
Commonweal 39:548 Mr 17 '44 600w
Kirkus 12:3 Ja 1 '44 190w

"Fantastic as they are these people are poetically true to life, and the whole thing goes with a mixture of exuberance and sly comment which is very entertaining. You say 'Preposterous!' but continue to chuckle." Charles Marriott

Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 5 '45 100w

" 'Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep' is the funniest book I have read in recent years. It also contains many passages of superb writing. Bemelmans doesn't seem to know what a literary cliché is. Parts of his book have behind them the quality and the mentality of the late Ronald Firbank—but of a less precious, more prolific Firbank, whose day begins before lunch and whose evenings are spent in the demi- rather than the beaumonde. Most writers could profit from a study of Bemelmans's prose." James Stern

+ Nation 158:314 Mr 11 '44 600w

Reviewed by Mark Schorer

New Repub 110:288 F 28 '44 310w

"If you forget the story and overlook the patches, you'll have a most wonderful time. There is a smile on every page, madness and surprise. The minor figures, who will be longer remembered than the book's hero, are as crazy as only life can produce and only Bemelmans draw them." W. S. Schlamm

+ N Y Times p5 F 20 '44 900w

"A satire which manages to be not only brashly funny but a subtle statement about human behavior in its more futile aspects."

+ New Yorker 20:82 Mr 4 '44 130w

"Mr. Bemelmans's fine sense for sense, in color or flavor, and his characteristic, ironic humor fill out a very rich book, that is more important than it pretends to be." Phil Stong

+ Sat R of Lit 27:8 Mr 4 '44 750w

Springf'd Republican p7e F 20 '44 390w

Time 43:102 F 21 '44 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p17 Ja 13 '45 420w

" 'Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep,' Mr. Bemelmans's first novel, following hard upon the giddy books of Bemelmans's travel and suchlike, is a beautiful, brilliant, wicked tour de force. Mr. Bemelmans, obviously, had great fun writing it and you are sure to have fun reading it. But 'Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep' will wring the withers of your moral sensibilities and leave you with a bitter-sweet sense of the futility of many of the goals men strive for. And since that was definitely what Mr. Bemelmans meant to accomplish, let's rate him A for perfect performance." F. H. Bullock

+ Weekly Book Review p3 F 20 '44 750w

"Ludwig Bemelmans's Now I Lay Me Down To Sleep is meant to be light, satirical, and funny, but in effect it falls sadly flat. . . It is laughable in spots; it hints at deeper meanings throughout but never makes them clear. It isn't just a poor novel, although it has been called one; it isn't a novel at all." Orville Prescott

— Yale R n s 33:xiv spring '44 110w

BENDICK, JEANNE. Electronics for boys and girls; il. by [the author] foreword by Keith Henney. (Whittlesey house publication) 148p $1.50 McGraw

621.3 Electronics—Juvenile literature 44-9281

"An introduction to electronics written in terms easily understandable to children ten and older. Its history, relationship to electricity and importance in science and industry are well described. Line drawings, a glossary of terms and an index are included." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 41:110 D 1 '44

"This is an excellent primer of electronics, of interest to any scientific minded youngster today."

+ Kirkus 12:433 S 15 '44 60w

Reviewed by Dorothea Dawson

Library J 69:1104 D 15 '44 50w

BENES, VOJTA. Vanguard of the "drang nach Osten." 183p map 50c Czechoslovak national council of America, 4047 W 26th st, Chicago 23

943.7 Czechoslovakia. World war, 1939— Czechoslovakia A44-1395

"A survey of the problems and fortunes of Czechoslovakia as a country subordinated to the Austria of the Hapsburgs and as the one that lay directly in the path of the German drive to the east. Helpful in the study of racial minorities in central Europe." Christian Century

Christian Century 61:82 Ja 19 '44 40w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:500 Ap '44 20w

BENET, LAURA. Washington Irving, explorer of American legend; il. by Harvé Stein. 293p $2.50 Dodd

B or 92 Irving, Washington—Juvenile literature 44-9705

Chronicle of Washington Irving's childhood and youth in New York city, his travels thru upper New York state and Canada, and his early trips to the continent. His later life is not included. Bibliography. No index.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney

Book Week p11 Ja 21 '45 230w

Booklist 41:126 D 15 '44

Cath World 160:281 D '44 30w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p10 Ja 11 '45 70w

"A biography as winning as the man about whom it was written—one feels that one has experienced knowing a charming man."

+ Kirkus 12:482 O 15 '44 100w

"Recommended for young people." M. D. Read

+ Library J 69:1051 D 1 '44 80w

N Y Times p16 N 12 '44 80w

"The later life, especially his years in Spain, are lacking and one feels the omission."

Sat R of Lit 27:46 N 11 '44 40w

"A pleasant book about one who kept to the end of his days the charm of childhood years, it will please not only high school age but a time of life even younger."

+ Weekly Book Review p18 N 12 '44 370w

BENET, STEPHEN VINCENT. America. 122p $1.50 Farrar

973 U.S.—History 44-4140

Short, succinct, very readable interpretation of the founding and growth of the United States. "We have tried to show, in this little book, something about the sort of people we are—something about the United States, what it believes in, how it grew, what ways of life it follows. We have not told all our history, but we have not glossed the record. We have put down faults as well as merits. We have done our best to tell the truth about the things we believe." (p. 113)

"As history this is a good prose poem. That is not to say that the late Stephen Vincent Benet was in error on dates, names, places or events. He had the cardinal facts of American history well in mind from the landing at Jamestown to Pearl Harbor. . . Benet was a poet and a great one. What he pictures here is the America he believed in, the America he hoped we might become. But as a picture of our past this water-color avoids almost everything ugly. And I am afraid it will not help us to win a better world for the common man, for it would seem to indicate that we already live in Beulah Land—or wishing will make it so." Sterling North

Book Week p2 My 28 '44 270w

Booklist 40:338 Je 1 '44

Cath World 160:285 D '44 180w

"The character of this land and its inability to accept a compromise on freedom for the individual are indicated poetically, simply, honestly. The approach is unbiased. American failures and European prejudices are dealt with frankly. This sharpens the outlines of the heroic figures and records in the historical account. The facts contained in the book invite study." P. P. S.

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 Je 15 '44 420w

BENET, S. V.—Continued

Reviewed by J. N. Moody

Commonweal 40:305 Jl 14 '44 490w

"One could wish to be able to endorse this as a memorable addition to Benet's works, but such is not the case. This is definitely one of his lesser works, designed for popular uses, ideal for foreign born and adult education, for high school students, and for use with the armed services."

Kirkus 12:160 Ap 1 '44 130w

"In lucid but simple style this short chronicle of America's history will bring to mature minds, particularly to our new citizens, an understanding of the fundamental ideals on which the United States has been built and for which it continually strives." H. R. Forbes

+ Library J 69:459 My 15 '44 90w

Reviewed by Irwin Edman

Nation 158:711 Je 17 '44 600w

"Stephen Vincent Benét was a story-teller. He was also a man of deep patriotism and of shining integrity. The tale as he tells it bears the mark of all those qualities. There may be quarreling with certain of his interpretations. There may be questions as to how free a hand he had in certain sections. For this reviewer there is some doubt as to whether he lived to finish the book, for its end lacks the lift of its beginning and seems the work of a less skillful hand. . . But those are minor complaints. A major one will almost certainly be that this is propaganda. Perhaps it is. If it is, it is of the kind that propagates faith in the essential character of the United States, pride in its past, and confidence in its structure." Mildred Adams

+ — N Y Times p6 My 28 '44 850w

"Mr. Benét was such a competent craftsman that it was almost impossible for him to turn out a less than competent job, but since more than competence is needed in the handling of such a theme as this, the book will probably be listed as one of his lesser works—which, in all likelihood, he understood it to be."

New Yorker 20:84 My 27 '44 90w

"This little book wasn't intended as a testament, but if he had written one it probably would have been something like this. For here is the America that Steve Benét knew and loved and believed in; here is the story that he had been telling for years, one way and another. He wrote this book because the Office of War Information asked him for a short interpretive history of the United States which could be translated into many languages and distributed abroad. The result, as we have it here, is less than forty thousand words, good American words which convey the flavor of his thought and his material remarkably well. Perhaps some of that flavor would be lost in translation, but the simple directness should carry over into any language. And the ideas will never be lost." Hal Borland

+ Sat R of Lit 27:8 Je 3 '44 1350w

"It is in fact hardly a book; it is rather a long essay, outlining the history of the United States. Knowing that it was intended for translation, the author made it starkly simple, restricting himself to sketching in only the broad outlines with a minimum of detail; but I am not certain that it doesn't convey more of the essential truth than does many a multiple-volume work loaded with erudite footnotes. Mr. Benet, however, was a craftsman to the finger-tips and with him simplicity never means crudity. On the contrary, this ostensible text for the kindergarten is arranged with subtle art." G. W. Johnson

+ Weekly Book Review p3 My 28 '44 900w

Wis Lib Bul 40:127 O '44

BENET, WILLIAM ROSE. Day of deliverance. 147p $2.50 Knopf

811 World war, 1939—Poetry 44-6760

Poems for a world at war: poems for Lidice, for the Greeks, for the French sailors who sank their own ships, for besieged Moscow, and for traitorous Vichy, with a few in more serene mood.

"The book needs to be winnowed, but the careful reader will not begrudge the task, for Mr. Benét is a poet we can always depend on for honest craftsmanship and often for the authentic flash." Robert Hillyer

+ — Atlantic 174:129 O '44 360w

"Never a Stephen Vincent, elder brother William Rose Benet is a boisterous, unsubtle poet whose heart is emblazoned on his sleeve as large as life. Hardly a precious craftsman, his choice of swinging metrical arrangements reminds one of Kipling, as his fighting fervor smacks of Chesterton." Leo Kennedy

Book Week p7 Ag 27 '44 350w

Kirkus 12:367 Ag 15 '44 170w

"Strongly recommended for small library purchase." F. A. Boyle

+ Library J 69:648 Ag '44 110w

Nation 159:305 S 9 '44 70w

Reviewed by F. C. Flint

N Y Times p4 S 3 '44 440w

New Yorker 20:79 S 30 '44 40w

"It is not merely as a skilled literary practitioner that Benét invites attention here. It is as a man who possesses considerable awareness of the world in which we live, who earlier than many was alert to the menace of fascism, and who says clearly many things which are in need of saying. . . Like the rhetoric of most public speeches, the verse in Day of Deliverance is more impressive in its total effect than in any single line. In 'bitter cup' and 'bloody boot,' for example, Benét has not sought to avoid the cliché, but the whole speech is still effective. Whatever the volume's weaknesses, it is good to have a poet moving in an area of public responsibility: there are already enough poets painting paper-weights and fondling their personal psychological peculiarities." Coleman Rosenberger

+ — Poetry 65:101 N '44 700w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman

Sat R of Lit 27:8 D 30 '44 600w

"A new volume of poems which commands our affectionate interest. Its title is that of a long poem with which the book opens, a poem filled with dream and hope familiar to us all. The sound of war is in this book, war for the fighter and war for the man and woman searching in rubble for broken bodies of children. There is warning here against the enemy, secret and evil, within our own gates. And always the dream of deliverance is unshaken and sure." E. M. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 20 '44 440w

"The war has simplified Mr. Benet's contemplation of life, not complicated it. There is no searching of the problem of national and international philosophy; of the nature of man and of the societies which he constructs; of the character of the creative and destructive principles in the universe. All is black and white." Elizabeth Drew

Weekly Book Review p21 O 1 '44 450w

BENNE, KENNETH DEAN. Conception of authority; an introductory study. 227p $2.65 Teachers college

301.15 Authority. Political science 44-4520

"Mindful of the numerous ramifications of his problem, Dr. Benne limits himself to an analysis of authority in its fundamental generic meaning and its major contexts. With care and with unusual toleration of alternative approaches, he discusses expert authority, rule-authority, pedagogical authority, 'external and internal authority,' and the differing concepts of authority, power, and coercion." (J Philos) Index.

"The style of the book rates well for accuracy of expression but does not make for easy reading, and the constant emphasis on the difficulty of being objective comes to seem a bit like a pose. Limitations of substance are more important. In spite of the philosophic penetration exhibited, and of the fact that the author is usually right (and the views he criticizes wrong) as far as he goes and on questions he explicitly treats, the reader who has reflected about the problems must be made uncomfortable by a failure to clarify and push home fundamental distinctions." F. H. Knight

+ — Am J Soc 50:250 N 13 '44 1800w

"The merits of this study are many, and the educational bearing of its conclusions is of considerable interest. Yet I am uncomfortable at the underlying view, shared by Benne with others, which seems to imply that authority is a species of contract. . . Apart from this, I wish the author had been a little less charitable on some occasions. Why, in spite of a certain theoretical kinship with his own viewpoint, could he not have ripped into such insufferable claptrap as J. M. Sterrett's pronouncement that authority 'is a personal relation between the wiser and better and those less wise and good'? And could he not have done himself the justice he deserves by avoiding such awkward terms as 'non-authoritarian authority'?" J. B.
+ — J Philos 41:528 S 14 '44 360w
School & Society 59:287 Ap 22 '44 30w

"Quite definitely this is not a book for the general reader. The author apparently had no desire to make it a book of wide appeal. It is directed to specialized students in the philosophy of education and educational theory." S. J. Hemleben
Social Studies 35:377 D '44 300w

BENNETT, DOROTHY AGNES. Golden almanac; pictures by Masha. 94p $1 Simon & Schuster 44-40136

Stories, verses, songs, bits of advice, and many illustrations, arranged according to season, the whole making a gay almanac for young readers. Index.

"This is a find for the child who is convalescing. The print is clear, the pictures filled with detail to be studied, and something of interest for every taste. It is also a book any teacher of children in the lower grades (first through fourth) will be glad to have on her desk for use at those moments when something brief and interesting is needed for reading aloud. It is a beautiful gift book at a very moderate price and it is one which will be read and reread." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p11 Ap 30 '44 230w
Booklist 40:359 Je 15 '44

Review by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 O 30 '44 150w

"A dream almanac, this, with stories and verses and old wives' tales, material old and new, original (written for the almanac by Dorothy Bennett) and selected from other sources. A lush book, pictures by Masha, 96 illustrations in all, and 40 of them in full color —gay, humorous, fanciful, and yet accurate enough in detail to satisfy the child who wants his pictures to fit his story."
+ Kirkus 12:117 Mr 1 '44 210w

"Children who, like their elders, take pleasure in looking ahead for joys that are to come, or in recalling the delights of a season already past, will find this, their own almanac (good for any year, since dates are not given) entertaining and satisfying." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p19 Jl 9 '44 280w

"So many things happen on each of the big pages that children can find amusement here for the twelve months of the year."
+ New Yorker 20:54 Jl 8 '44 70w

"Undoubtedly some parts of the book will serve as an invitation to further reading of a given subject, but other sections lose interest at once because of the author's talking down to her readers. The makeup of the book is interesting, being patterned somewhat after a real almanac, although much more attractive in appearance because of well-chosen type and many colorful and detailed illustrations by Masha." E. B. B.
+ — Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 23 '44 130w

"A fine long-term investment in picture books for most little children is this large-page, brilliantly colored guide to joys of a year. . . There is understanding of a child's world, outer and inner, in all [Masha] puts into these pictures, her most ambitious so far. Like a proper toy shop, there's heaven's plenty of things in them." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 My 7 '44 250w
Wis Lib Bul 40:87 Je '44

BENNETT, JEAN FRANCES. Shady hobby. 72p il $2 Bruce pub.
741.7 Silhouettes 44-3481

"This book is not intended for professionals in the field of commercial art, but for the amateur who has not had previous experience but who is interested in silhouetting as an inexpensive, highly enjoyable pastime. Silhouettes lend themselves to an unlimited range of artistic uses and the teacher can use them profitably as supplementary material for her art classes and for poster display purposes." School Arts

---

"The author is an artist with an exquisite sense of line and proportion and an appreciation of the world about her. It should be of great value to teachers of art classes and for aid in postwar display work. Definitely a hobby book. Suggest for convalescents."
+ Kirkus 12:174 Ap 1 '44 70w
School Arts 44:10a O '44 100w
Wis Lib Bul 40:84 Je '44

BENNETT, JOHN HENRY VAN SWERINGEN. So shall they reap. 274p $2.50 Doubleday 44-786

A story of the Civil war from the point of view of the Southern "poor white", who fought for the Confederacy but hated the aristocrats who made the war necessary. The chief characters are members of two families, the Mitchells and the Crombies, carrying on an age-long feud in the swamps of the Carolinas and Alabama.

"This simple story enables Bennett to show his not inconsiderable narrative gifts. He seems to be completely at home in the loam and lingo of his locale, and his pages are rich and sometimes lush with description. . . But by and large, the novel has certain weaknesses. For one thing, the language is stilted, and studded with cliches. More seriously, the plot is pretty much of a type. . . Perhaps the clue to Bennett's fundamental defect is that his hurry to get on with his story and various other motives have left him comparatively little time or inclination for subtleties and complexities of situation, character and language." Leo Shapiro
+ — Book Week p8 Ja 23 '44 360w
Christian Science Monitor p12 Je 3 '44 300w

"Fortunately, John Bennett has been content to give a sharp photograph without passing judgment on the violence and animal brutality of these people. 'A fight was a fight, and a killing was a killing; so what? Bury the dead and go home to supper.' As soon moralize about the wolf, the snake or the panther. His story is as natural as the woods where it takes place. Readers who have had enough of intellectuals, introspection and the indoors will find 'So Shall They Reap' a breath of fresh air." Ruth Boorstin
+ N Y Times p5 Ja 16 '44 400w

"The author has written a tough, violent, and action-filled narrative, but he merely skims the surface. The reader, after finishing it, is left little better informed than Sammy on the peculiar structure of Southern society and its effect upon a war which came near wrecking a nation founded upon democratic principles." P. V. Stern
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:7 Ja 22 '44 270w

"Sammy's experiences in battle are off the beaten track. I think the reader is more likely to remember what Sammy saw than how he felt, for his observations at camp, among the conscript officers and the unwilling, deserting conscripts, are certainly different from what we have been led to expect by the flower of the old South." Catharine Brody
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Ja 16 '44 550w

BENNETT, JOSEPH DEERICKS. Baudelaire: a criticism. 176p $2 Princeton univ. press

841 Baudelaire, Charles Pierre A44-5879

Critical study of the works of this nineteenth century French poet, illustrated by the French texts and new translations of about twenty of the poems.

"Bennett's study of the poems is careful and lucid. It has the especial value of extensive translations which read better in English, both as translation and, I think, as poetry, than the standard Arthur Symons version and the more current Dillon and Millay text. . . For a reader unacquainted with Charles Baudelaire, this essay is an excellent introduction." Edgar Main
+ Book Week p4 D 24 '44 400w

"The bad history and jejune philosophy are largely confined to the first thirty and the last dozen pages of Mr. Bennett's 165-page book. The body of the text contains the close and dialectical analysis of poems from 'Fleurs du Mal' that has long been needed. Alike in a deficiency of relevant historical information and in a keenness of intellect trained upon ironies and ambiguities, the analysis is the first important 'new criticism' of Baudelaire. Some will say that the reader's opinion of the book as a whole will depend on his opinion of Allen Tate's school of criticism, For my part I admire Tate himself for his own special abilities; at least he stands in direct relation to the work criticized." E. R. Bentley
— + Nation 160:78 Ja 20 '45 390w

Reviewed by Harry Levin
New Repub 111:841 D 18 '44 700w

"Through the very fact that it concerns itself honestly and thoughtfully with the qualities which are most important in poetry, the book is likely to provoke discussion and even disagreement. I myself am far from agreeing completely with Mr. Bennett on many points. I think that he underestimates the value of traditional rhetoric in a poem, that he dismisses the poetry of statement too easily. I am not sure that it is quite so simple to elevate Baudelaire above his contemporaries, certainly not above Hugo. Yet, in the main, Mr. Bennett's conclusions are sound because his method is sound. He knows what poetry is and how it works; he has gone directly to the heart of Baudelaire's poems and observed the shaping mind at work." Charles Weir
+ — N Y Times p8 D 31 '44 1000w

"In this slim, physically attractive volume, only sparsely marred by typographical errors, Mr. Bennett's approach to his subject is twofold, for he functions in two capacities: that of a critic judging a fellow writer, and that of a believing Christian judging a fellow sinner. In both roles he is eloquent, but, despite the almost inseparable mingling of literary and religious elements, I am reasonably sure that those readers who are interested primarily in Baudelaire's soul will profit more from this book than will those who are interested primarily in Baudelaire's art. . . One is worried at first by the translator's awkwardness and insensitivity, by his habit of using the English word that sounds most like the French, instead of a true equivalent." B. R. Redman
— + Sat R of Lit 28:11 Ja 27 '45 1400w

BENNETT, MERRILL KELLEY. Food for postwar Europe: how much and what? 100p pa 50c Food research inst.

338.1 World war, 1939—Food question. Food supply—Europe
44-4626

"In this pamphlet Dr. Bennett definitely achieves his double objective of answering the question 'How much food and feed, and what, will be "required" to be shipped into Greater Europe from overseas sources of supply in the year following the cessation of hostilities in Europe?' and providing 'a factual background for discussion of this question, first by picturing the food situation of Greater Europe as it was before the war, including its dependence upon imports of food and feed from overseas; and second by tracing the changes that have occurred in the food situation of the area under the impact of war, which has shrunken the imports from overseas and profoundly altered the patterns of domestic agriculture.' " Geog R

"A careful and provocative discussion of one of the world's most urgent problems." G. L. LaFuze
+ — Am Pol Sci R 38:819 Ag '44 180w

"Dr. Bennett is to be commended for his emphasis on the need to give practical or probable estimates of future requirements and trade in food products rather than to base estimates on nutritional standards of consumption. He aptly remarks that what food-importing nations 'receive may not correspond with what they need.' . . These statements are illustrative of the freshness and vigor of Dr. Bennett's analysis and predictions. On the other hand, he is ever mindful of the errors and false assumptions that he may make." J. K. Ableiter
+ Geog R 35:160 Ja '45 550w

BENTLEY, ERIC RUSSELL. Century of hero-worship. 307p il $3.50 Lippincott

151.1 Heroes. Carlyle, Thomas. Nietzsche, Friedrich Wilhelm 44-7310

"A study of the idea of heroism in Carlyle and Nietzsche with notes on other hero-worshipers of modern times." (Subtitle) The author studies the lives and works of such hero worshippers as Carlyle, Nietzsche, Wagner, Spengler, D. H. Lawrence, G. B. Shaw, and others, combining biography and critical interpretation. Bibliography. Index.

"Bentley is so scholarly in his obscure references obscurely made that the reader, poised on the brink of hope offered by page one, lies shattered in the abyss of confusion at page 300." R. J. Bender
— Book Week p4 O 8 '44 230w

Booklist 41:38 O 1 '44

Reviewed by S. L. Thrupp
Canadian Forum 24:218 D '44 500w

Christian Science Monitor p16 S 28 '44 550w

"An analysis concerned entirely with intellectual conceptions, interesting, well written, and argumentative."
+ Kirkus 12:315 Jl 15 '44 130w

"Mr. Bentley's style is delightful—clear, vigorous, and unburdened by its rich load of erudition. And yet Mr. Bentley's book is marred by a moral flaw that goes to its very heart. This is apparent in his chapter on Shaw, in which all Mr. Bentley's virtues are lacking save style. Despite Shaw's glorification of the regimes of Mussolini and Hitler, he is sharply dissociated from other heroic vitalists and defended as a protagonist of a new democracy. The reason boils down to the claim that although Shaw admires Mussolini and Hitler, he admires Stalin even more. In the light of his sympathetic defense of Shaw, one wonders what, after all, are the real grounds of Bentley's rejection of the heroic vitalists." Sidney Hook
— + Nation 159:412 O 7 '44 1450w

"Mr. Bentley could have written a sensible and modest series of essays, like the chapter on Stefan George, which is at least informative. He has written instead a pretentious and confused book. And one wouldn't even mind the confusion so much were the author not so excessively wary." Nicola Chiaromonte
— New Repub 111:526 O 23 '44 1450w

"This book is a keen—at times a brilliant—job. . . Mr. Bentley's book is absorbing and his subject certainly timely; he himself is at times a little reminiscent of Kenneth Burke. But upon the whole the book suffers a trifle from its air of being a doctoral thesis. . . Mr. Bentley's stature and ability command the utmost respect. And if these comments are too pompous, Mr. Bentley, on the other hand, has been much too precious. If his answer is that he has not tried to write this kind of book, the reply is that he should not have missed this opportunity. Instead he has made a very clever, entertaining, intellectual pleasure excursion into what is, all the same, just a morgue for political ideas." S. B. Colby
+ — N Y Times p33 O 29 '44 800w

"The author doesn't let his own democratic convictions interfere with his appreciation of the pronouncedly non-democratic men he is writing about and, even when he is in complete disagreement with them, never rants or rails. His book is as fine a critical performance as has appeared in a long time and, since he is only twenty-seven, is a fairly remarkable accomplishment."

+ New Yorker 20:78 S 30 '44 140w

"A young man has arrived. The reviewer shamelessly admits that he has been astonished, excited, charmed, and occasionally puzzled by this brilliant book. He further confesses that the rather lack-lustre title had led him to expect the sifted tailings of some academic mine. Certainly he was not prepared for thought like electricity in motion and wholly different from the static glow of St. Elmo's fire. Nor did he anticipate analysis and interpretation at once intelligently impartial and generously sympathetic." Leonard Bacon

+ Sat R of Lit 27:14 S 30 '44 650w

Theatre Arts 28:747 D '44 500w

"This is an able and interesting if somewhat inconclusive book which must represent a considerable triumph of integrity over temptation." J. W. Krutch

Weekly Book Review p5 O 1 '44 1300w

BENTLEY, GARTH. How to edit an employee publication. 200p $2.50 Harper

070.486 Employees' magazines 44-2594

Instructions for the making of an employee magazine, which include selection of personnel, format, gathering copy, production and distribution. Partial contents: The editor who makes good; Making employees company minded; Special features worth considering; Those fascinating personals; What about covers?; Buying your engravings; Layouts—and how to plan them; Buying your paper; The employee publication and the law; The employee publication in wartime. Index.

Booklist 40:277 Ap 15 '44

"Both amateur and experienced editors will find it a ready source of ideas and suggestions."

+ Management R 33:107 Mr '44 30w

BERDIAEV, NIKOLAI ALEKSANDROVICH. Slavery and freedom [tr. by R. M. French]. 271p $2.75 Scribner [25s Bles]

197 Liberty. Free will and determinism 44-4647

"This is the English translation of a book written just before the war, in which Berdyaev attacks those aspects of modern life and thought he finds enslaving the human spirit. They include most established institutions and all the popular 'isms.' . . His message is the universal message of the prophets: to assert the true end of man and expose the false valuations accepted every day by almost everybody. His own philosophy of 'personalism' is an attempt to state the central idea of Christianity: that the only reality is the life of persons." Manchester Guardian

"Among Berdyaev's writings the place of the present book is hard to assign. There are few new ideas. The familiar faults are all present—the vagueness, the clichés, the false generalizations. . . The translator has apparently struggled heroically, but many awkward passages remain. Yet this work is important in two respects. One is that in an intimate introduction Berdyaev tells the dominant motivations of his life and thought." D. D. Williams

+ — Christian Century 61:1024 S 6 '44 1250w

"Many of the theses of Berdyaev, like Sorokin's, will be gladly received by our Catholic intelligentsia, especially the ones which prop up our customary cultural pessimism, our prevailing isolationism and our negativism. We like to beat the breast of our time in ringing condemnations. The book is bound to be a success in spite of its confused and rambling tortuosity—in our ranks. It flatters our collective ego as a minority and our Ghettoish resentment. I feel it's too sweeping, too childish and too negative to redeem as prophets do. Try to finish it. It is stimulating." H. A. Reinhold

Commonweal 41:44 O 27 '44 350w

"Berdyaev is a writer with an acutely sensitive conscience who has suffered for his convictions, has read widely, and thought profoundly, and who seems frequently to have something of unusual significance to say. But it is tantalizingly difficult to discover just what this is." J. S. Bixler

Crozer Q 21:340 O '44 600w

"This is certainly original and interesting thinking, but it will be chiefly students of religion and philosophy who will be able to follow the reasoning of this truly great mind."

+ Kirkus 12:252 Je 1 '44 80w

"Berdyaev has given a profound and moving testimony, specially valuable to us of the West as coming from one nurtured in the Eastern Christian tradition. But it must be remembered that his method is declamatory more than argumentative. His language is often paradoxical and sometimes difficult. A perverse reader would not find it hard to distort his meaning, specially by taking advantage of a peculiar use of the terms 'subjective' and 'objective.'" A. D. R.

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 Je 2 '44 200w

Reviewed by H. I. Brock

N Y Times p18 S 24 '44 360w

Reviewed by Robert Bierstedt

Sat R of Lit 27:29 O 28 '44 900w

"There are a few serious weaknesses in this book, which do not, however, destroy its worth. In struggling with 'theodicy'—accounting for evil in a world under God's rule—the author seems to solve it by sundering God from history. The same tendency marks his use of 'eschatology.' . . 'Slavery and Freedom' is, however, a brilliant and stimulating contribution to philosophical thinking. It is not easy reading but it rewards the thoughtful and persevering." C. D. Kean

+ — Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 13 '44 700w

"'Slavery and Freedom' is a brilliantly written book; it is also a very timely one. For as a passionate vindication of the inalienable rights of the individual and the supremacy of man over mass, it is particularly opportune to-day, when the process of an all-round integration of man in society is carried out indiscriminately and without due regard to the necessity of observing the innate prerogatives of the human personality."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p285 Je 10 '44 360w

"I cannot convey in a few drab paragraphs the intense spiritual delight I received from this book. All professional philosophers are ultimately captured by their own logical machines; poets too often use their myths for esthetic purposes—what Boileau called 'ornements égayés,' prettifying the truth. Berdyaev unites and transcends philosopher and poet." Albert Guerard

+ Weekly Book Review p2 Ag 6 '44 950w

BERGE, WENDELL. Cartels; challenge to a free world. 266p $3.25 Am. council on public affairs

338.88 Trusts, Industrial 44-9690

"Early last year, Joseph Borkin and Charles A. Welsh published 'Germany's Master Plan,' an analysis of how the tentacles of the German cartels had fastened themselves on some of our outstanding industries. . . Mr. Wendell Berge, who has succeeded Thurman Arnold as the Assistant Attorney General of the United States in charge of antitrust prosecutions, adds to the case histories previously compiled by his coworkers. Starting with the theoretical outline he fills in his story with evidences adduced from departmental investigations into the following industries: synthetic hormones, vitamins, quebracho extract, titanium, optical instruments, among others. And an appendix indicates that the Department of Justice since 1937 has started some fifty suits, under our anti-trust laws, against American companies involved with foreign cartels." Sat R of Lit

BERGE, WENDELL—Continued

"Berge's fact-finding and publicizing make the book extremely valuable. Unfortunately, his solution, by hitting only at the outer crust of the problem, lacks power." Rita Davidson
+ — Am Pol Sci R 38:1240 D '44 600w

Reviewed by E. A. Helms
Ann Am Acad 237:226 Ja '45 450w

Booklist 41:118 D 15 '44

Christian Century 61:1449 D 13 '44 360w

Christian Science Monitor p16 O 2 '44 500w

"Jammed with facts and figures as it is, 'Cartels' is written in a lively, fighting style. More power to Wendell Berge, and a host of readers for his book." McAlister Coleman
+ Nation 159:595 N 11 '44 380w

"I wish there were a better word than 'cartel' to dramatize the system of worldwide special privilege in commerce which brought on this war and will cause another unless it is abolished, but it would be difficult to find a better book than Wendell Berge's 'Cartels' to describe the methods and effects of the system. Everybody who wants to be well informed should read it, and certainly no one who hopes to make any contribution to the settlement of postwar policy can realize that hope without a knowledge of the facts about international monopoly so clearly set forth in this volume." J. C. O'Mahoney
+ New Repub 111:466 O 9 '44 1150w

Reviewed by Louis Gottschalk
N Y Times p14 D 24 '44 700w

"Mr. Berge is to be commended for his zeal and vigilance. . . The fact is, [however], neither the Administration nor Mr. Berge has formulated a policy for handling the cartel problem; and this despite the general realization of how serious a threat to the high principles for freer world trade embodied in the Atlantic Charter and the Master Lend-Lease Agreement the cartel really is. Such being the case, one becomes a little weary of exposure alone. Mr. Berge is an exemplary public servant and deserves our gratitude; but, it must be said, his book has added little to our knowledge of the problem and nothing to our armory of weapons for confounding it." L. M. Hacker
— + Sat R of Lit 27:12 O 7 '44 600w

Reviewed by Marshall Bragdon
Springf'd Republican p6 O 7 '44 600w

BERGMANN, MRS LEOLA NELSON. Music master of the Middle West; the story of F. Melius Christiansen and the St Olaf choir. 230p il $2.50 Univ. of Minn.

B or 92 Christiansen, Frederik Melius
A44-5713

Biography of the organizer and leader of the St Olaf cloir, one of the outstanding a cappella choirs in the United States. The book is also a study of Norwegian-American culture, and is written by a former member of the choir. Lists programs of the choir. Index.

"Mrs. Bergman has done an excellent job in revealing both the personality of Christiansen and the character and background of his achievement. Her writing is warm and competent, and the book will hold very definite interest to the thousands of people who have heard Christiansen's great choir." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p2 Ja 14 '45 180w

Booklist 41:138 Ja 1 '45

"All those who are interested in the progress of music in the United States, especially in the progress of choral music, know what we owe to Frederik Melius Christiansen, but Mrs. Bergmann has done us a service by telling Christiansen's life in some detail, and by describing the steps by which he came to be one of the most remarkable apostles of good music which this country has ever known. He has done for choral music what Theodore Thomas did for orchestral music, spreading appreciation and the ambition to promote the performance of it." John Erskine
+ Weekly Book Review p10 Ja 28 '45 600w

BERGSON, ABRAM. Structure of Soviet wages; a study in socialist economics. 255p $3.50 Harvard univ. press

331.2947 Wages—Russia. Russia—Economic policy
A44-1242

"A careful, critical study of the development of wage inequalities in the Soviet Union. Even in the postwar period, when equalitarianism was strongest under 'war communism' and rationing, there were concessions to incentives. Shortage of skilled labor, some influence of trade unions and the non-utopian variety of Soviet equalitarianism contributed to its abandonment." Library J

"The book is not easy reading, because it is an array of statistical calculations and theoretical discussions. Unfortunately, Dr. Bergson did not give any definite description of concrete wages paid in various industries and their real value in comparison with the cost of living. His data generally do not go beyond 1936, being evidently limited to the time when he spent the summer of 1937 in the Soviet Union, on a fellowship from Harvard University. Nor does he give any of his own observations of labor conditions in the U.S.S.R." Paul Haensel
Ann Am Acad 234:154 Jl '44 410w

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p4 My 28 '44 70w

Booklist 40:384 Jl 15 '44

"The volume represents an objective analysis of significant but limited economic data, and the reviewer has been able to discover few points at which the language carries any emotional overtone. Although critical examination of the statistics would no doubt reveal substantial shortcomings, this is a volume which no economist, and certainly no economist interested in the remuneration of labor, can afford to overlook." C. L. Christenson
+ J Pol Econ 52:371 D '44 1300w

Reviewed by Walter Hausdorfer
Library J 69:116 F 1 '44 70w

Reviewed by H. H. F. Eulau
Nation 159:78 Jl 15 '44 420w

"A book that can evaluate dispassionately the economic techniques of the Soviet system is a rare treat. Dr. Bergson's work, while limited to an analysis of wage policy and administration is an excellent study of Russian economics."
+ New Repub 110:509 Ap 10 '44 140w

BERLIN, ELLIN (MACKAY) (MRS IRVING BERLIN). Land I have chosen. 341p $2.50 Doubleday 44-6036

The love stories of two women of very different character. One of them is the pampered daughter of Long Island society people, who does not stand up very well when it comes to a test during the depression. The second woman is a charming German actress, whose Nazi husband is stolen from her by the American woman. The time is the nineteen twenties and thirties.

"Ellin Berlin has built a fine, balanced novel around two heroines, one of whom you're going to despise, the other, admire and love. . . A thoroughly disagreeable subject, a dramatic and compelling novel." Edith Roberts
+ Book Week p3 Jl 2 '44 450w

Booklist 40:390 Jl 15 '44

"The story develops almost entirely by means of dialogue, a variety of polite conversations that sound natural enough. The author's feeling throughout is highly political, humanitarian, Christian. Her language is dignified and restrained. 'Land I Have Chosen' despite certain artistic deficiencies manifests fine sensibility."
+ — Commonweal 40:232 Je 23 '44 700w

"The book is overlong—repetitious—it merited a careful blue-pencilling to tighten matter and manner. As it stands, it suggests a rather second rate imitation of the Lanny Budd tetralogy."
— Kirkus 12:151 Ap 1 '44 230w

Reviewed by Thelma Purtell
N Y Times p6 Je 18 '44 320w

"Not adept in handling conversations and situations, there is a stilted artificiality to much of the story and Mrs Berlin has filled her pages with cliches and naively conceived situations enacted by rubber stamp characters whose personalities have been prominent in the newspapers. Nevertheless, 'Land I Have Chosen' does possess a certain eloquence which is born of the author's own belief in her preachments." L. S. Munn

— + Springf'd Republican p4d Je 25 '44 500w

"The strength of Mrs. Berlin's writing is in its honesty, in the maturity of her vision of character, her ability to be unsparing without being malicious. Its weakness is that situations, intense and often moving, are not exhausted of their drama before other complications crowd them out. The book has its lyric passages, but they are more often merely an attempt to achieve lyricism, and the subject is in itself harsh."

+ — Time 44:92 Jl 3 '44 700w

"Though lavish in its details of setting and incident, and rich in its varied if not fully developed characters, 'Land I Have Chosen' is nevertheless a novel in which ideas dominate. Mrs. Berlin reveals considerable political sensibility: she knows and understands and presents vividly what went on in the world during the period of her narrative, and what part —too often ignoble—her many characters played in it all." F. H. Bullock

+ Weekly Book Review p6 Je 18 '44 750w

BERMAN, HARRY HOWARD, and MCCRONE, HAROLD WARFIELD. Applied safety engineering. 189p $2 McGraw

614.85 Accidents—Prevention 44-1177

"Based on an industrial safety engineering continuation course and using the case history method to give more practical knowledge about the most important phases of activity. Chapters include How to make investigations; Investigation reports on the cases; How to write safety rules and regulations; How to make a safety inspection." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 40:246 Mr 15 '44

Library J 69:118 F 1 '44 30w

BERNANOS, GEORGES. Plea for liberty: letters to the English, the Americans, the Europeans [tr. by Harry Lorin Binsse]. 272p $3 Pantheon bks.

940.53 World war, 1939—. Liberty 44-4749

"Bernanos, veteran of World War I, fervent Frenchman . . . left France after the 'treason of Munich' and settled in Brazil, where he pondered his country's downfall and misfortunes. From the wilderness of the virgin forest he wrote these letters to the peoples and their leaders—the cry of an anguished conscience. The tragedy of France becomes for Bernanos a paradigm of world-wide possibilities of abdication as he reveals the psychological springs of the drama of politics: hatred, fear, conformism, mediocrity." Publisher's note

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison

Christian Century 61:805 Jl 5 '44 1400w

"In spite of his sixty years Bernanos shows all the qualities and all the defects of great big grownup children; they are heroic and unfair, they move one's emotions profoundly, but how, oh how exasperating they are! Continually one would like to approve, continually to contradict, continually to distinguish, to get away from all this black, all this white, to explain; and all the time, always, one would like to console the man himself—so close is he to tears in his fury and violence. . . It should be said that Harry Lorin Binsse may be congratulated for a brilliant translation which preserves the verve and pace and vigorous sap of the original. The task must have presented very exceptional difficulties." J. C. De Menasce

+ — Commonweal 40:206 Je 16 '44 1850w

Kirkus 12:214 My 1 '44 90w

"In these epistles Georges Bernanos shows himself master of a style of writing which has almost disappeared from English literature. These are exhortations in the grand manner—witty, brilliant, powerful in their analysis and their warning, persuasive in their appeal, reminiscent of the great sermons with which our grandfathers scourged their consciences. In the subtle and glowing translation by Harry Binsse their language provides an exhilaration too seldom met with in this journalistic age." Mildred Adams

+ Nation 159:162 Ag 5 '44 1200w

Reviewed by Alfred Kazin

New Repub 111:634 N 13 '44 400w

"This book is neither history, nor theory, nor uncontrolled feeling. Unconventional, it compels us to think deeply and ardently. It has the somber splendor of a heavy coal fire: images, unexpected, unsought, dart forth like sudden flames. Mr. Harry Lorin Binsse has done a very good job in translating this difficult, highly personal work. I believe, however, that Bernanos must have written revanche where Mr. Binsse has revenge. Revanche is not vengeance, but vindication, atonement, or, in terms of the honor code, satisfaction." Albert Guerard

+ N Y Times p26 My 28 '44 1050w

"While one may feel that Bernanos has not grasped too accurately the problems which a technical civilization will have to face in the future and that his point of view, despite differences in imagery and illustration, would be more congenial to Mr Jefferson than Mr Roosevelt, Bernanos has written a powerful and thought-provoking book." C. D. Kean

+ — Springf'd Republican p4d Jl 2 '44 950w

"His book is a searing profession of faith, curiously also one of the few optimistic books written during the war." G. N. Shuster

+ Weekly Book Review p6 Je 25 '44 850w

BERNARD, LUTHER LEE. War and its causes. 479p $4.25 Holt

355.01 War 44-8797

"Dr. Bernard examines war as a social institution, quoting the best known authors' views and analyzing them, to focus his own opinions. He discusses the causes of war and the various types of warfare through the ages. He thinks that as civilization progressed, man's dislike for war increased, but through all periods there was unanimous agreement that war in defense of legitimate values has been justified. A chapter is devoted to the future of war, including consideration of the various proposals to avert war already publicized. One of these calls for population control, and also for a policy that would reduce international commerce in favor of production for domestic self-sufficiency. In general, it is a book to provoke thought on the chief topic of the moment." (Current Hist) Bibliography. Indexes.

"Bernard's study is a broad and thorough discussion of the nature and history of war, and of the manifold causes and concepts which have perpetuated it. Those who are in charge of the courses in the field of the sociology of war will be delighted with the publication. As a textbook, Bernard's has no competition on the market, especially since Waller's War in the Twentieth Century is out of print and Quincy Wright's A Study of War is too lengthy and discoursive for that purpose." J. S. Roucek

+ Ann Am Acad 237:204 Ja '45 600w

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook

Current Hist 7:496 D '44 120w

Kirkus 12:462 O 1 '44 150w

Reviewed by D. T. Bazelon

New Repub 112:91 Ja 15 '45 700w

"If this book were more readable, it might be dangerous. Fortunately Professor Bernard has erected a formidable defense in depth between the reader and his thesis. The importance of 'War and Its Causes,' however, lies not so much in any political influence it might have as in the indication it gives that we must still contend with that practice of making the worse appear the better cause, which during the last quarter of a century, has too frequently passed for scholarship." E. W. Fox

N Y Times p4 D 31 '44 1300w

BERNARD, THEOS. Hatha yoga; the report of a personal experience. 68p il $3.50 Columbia univ. press

181.4 Yoga A44-2690

"This is a book of practice which aims to show Westerners by pictures, by careful description, and by extensive reference to Sanskrit texts what the actual experiences of a Yogi are and what those experiences accomplish. . . The author actually practiced Yoga under a teacher in India and found that it held no magic, performed no miracles, and revealed nothing supernatural." (J Philos) Bibliography. Index.

"The volume is a clear, respectful account of yoga training and claims. But if the sages of India and Tibet had any secret wisdom, it is still secret."
Christian Century 61:776 Je 28 '44 450w

"The book is of considerable value in striking through the mass of religious and supernatural barnacles which have attached themselves through the centuries to the essential practice of Yoga. . . Mr. Bernard presents Yoga as something that anyone with time, patience, and a good teacher can do." K. P. L.
+ J Philos 41:530 S 14 '44 200w

BERNHARD, MRS JOSEPHINE BUTKOWSKA. Lullaby: why the pussy-cat washes himself so often; a folktale adapted from the Polish; il. by Irena Lorentowicz. [26p] $1 Roy pubs.

398 Tales, Polish 44-5854

A Nativity legend from Poland. "It is Christmas Night: all day long crowds of villagers have flocked to the manger; it is high time the Baby had some sleep. . . Then the mother calls to a tiny tiger-cat curled in a corner, 'Come, little purry-whiskers, and put my Baby to sleep!' The little cat knows how, but he knows what to do first. Covered with soot, he keeps every one waiting till he has washed off every trace; then, nestled in the manger, he begins to purr—a Polish song with its music is given." Weekly Book Review

---

"A charming story for children at the picture-book age." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p11 Jl 16 '44 180w
Booklist 41:27 S '44
Boston Globe p36 N 29 '44 50w
Cath World 160:279 D '44 20w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 O 30 '44 200w

"Out of the heart of Poland comes a spirited Christmas picture-story book in midsummer—a book so refreshing and original, so utterly unlike any children's book we have had before as to take a new and high place of its own among children's books published in the United States in the 1940's." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 20:278 Jl '44 1100w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 20:283 Jl '44 70w
+ Kirkus 12:276 Je 15 '44 80w

"Profuse illustrations are colorful, lively and suitable. For little children. Good for storytelling." E. E. Frank
+ Library J 69:607 Jl '44 90w

Reviewed by M. C. Skinner
Library J 69:861 O 15 '44 70w

"The text is a little cumbersome in its English wording—purists, however, may read it in a Polish edition which has the same spirit-lifting pictures. These in bright, singing colors and clear black-and-white have the robust flavor of Polish peasant art and there are both humor and reverence in them." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p20 Je 11 '44 160w

"This is a new and fascinating picture book from a publisher, new to us, who has made picture books in Poland and in France. . . In this glimpse of far countries through books it is heartening to have the Polish book so gay and so beautiful. The translation is by Josephine Bernhard who gave the American boys and girls the Polish folklore in a book called 'The Master Wizard' [Book Review Digest, 1935]." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 27:29 Je 10 '44 270w

"The affectionate little book is good now and will be right on hand for Christmas year by year." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p10 Je 4 '44 250w

BERNSTEIN, MRS ANNA RUTH (EPSTEIN) (ANN TODD, pseud), and SLOCUM, ROSALIE. Time for swapping; pictures by Rosalie Slocum. 88p $1.50 Oxford

44-5993

Timothy, the visitor from England, and Linda, who appeared in Timothy Came Instead (Book Review Digest, 1941) are transplanted to a farm when Linda's uncle goes to war. The children have a good time in school, and in the "swap shop" which they set up in the farm smokehouse. For children six to ten.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p11 O 8 '44 150w

"A pleasant little real life story. . . Rosalie Slocum's pictures are not up to her best work."
+ — Kirkus 12:277 Je 15 '44 90w

"This exceedingly interesting story will be welcomed by boys and girls eight to eleven years old. Recommended." A. H. McGinity
+ Library J 69:607 Jl '44 110w

"Dealing with matters of everyday experience and simply written, it will have its usefulness for beginners in reading." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p25 Ag 20 '44 100w

BERRY, ERICK. See Best, A. C.

BERRY, THOMAS SENIOR. Western prices before 1861; a study of the Cincinnati market. 645p $5 Harvard univ. press [28s Oxford]

338.5 Prices. Cincinnati—Economic conditions A43-1287

"This book is an expansion of the author's chapter, 'Wholesale Commodity Prices at Cincinnati and in the Ohio River Valley,' in A. H. Cole's well-known collection, Wholesale Commodity Prices in the United States, 1700-1861. It is focused on Cincinnati, which early in the nineteenth century became a manufacturing center and primary Ohio river port and for a while was to the Midwest what Chicago is today. Although Cincinnati is the focal point, there are numerous data relating to Louisville, Pittsburgh and Lexington, and Dr. Berry feels that 'at least some of the most important conclusions may be extended to a good share of the West' (p.ix). The period covered is from about 1790 to 1861." Am Econ R

Reviewed by D. L. Kemmerer
Am Econ R 33:650 S '43 900w

"It is to be regretted that excessive detail and unnecessary length tend to lessen the reader's interest in this volume, which is evidently the product of years of patient and painstaking research and which contains a wealth of factual information for which students of the early economic history of the Ohio River Valley will long be grateful." W. G. Welk
Ann Am Acad 231:186 Ja '44 400w

"A comprehensive bibliography and a good index complete a work which is a substantial, valuable, and eminently scholarly contribution to the country's economic history." C. W. Wright
+ J Pol Econ 51:557 D '43 900w

BEST, MRS ALLENA (CHAMPLIN) (ERICK BERRY, ANNE MAXON, pseuds). Hearthstone in the wilderness; il. by the author. 242p $2 Macmillan

44-5434

Pioneer tale for older boys and girls. The scene is laid in northern New York state. Mercie Stark accompanies her father on his trip to their grant, in place of her brother who stays in Glens Falls to earn enough money to finish payment on the land. The stories of both Mercie and her brother are told as the two young pioneers struggle to help the family in its new venture.

Booklist 40:379 Jl 1 '44

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:287 Jl '44 110w

"I liked this better than anything Erick Berry has done since Homespun."
+ Kirkus 12:98 F 15 '44 130w

Reviewed by G. E. Joline
Library J 69:608 Jl '44 100w

"In 'Hearthstone in the Wilderness' Erick Berry has written a sensitive, thoughtful story of pioneer life in northern New York State that brings home to the reader the quiet determination and courage which not only men and women but boys and girls needed for the task of establishing a home of their own in a new country." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p12 S 3 '44 160w

"This is one of the most satisfying stories of the American pioneers that has been published in many a long day. It is satisfying not only in plot and action—there is never a dull moment in it—but in the people who move through its pages and in its attitude toward the things that matter in life—work, play, human relationships." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 27:72 Ap 15 '44 600w

"The double narrative is neatly managed, the sense of growing community spirit well maintained, as in the council following a brush fire that got out of control, when Zebedee Crook's tarnation carelessness is taken as an offense against everybody. Mercie is rapidly growing up as the story pauses: it has been gracefully told and its line drawings really illustrate." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p11 Je 4 '44 400w
Wis Lib Bul 40:133 O '44

BEST, HARRY. Deafness and the deaf in the United States; considered primarily in relation to those sometimes more or less erroneously known as deaf-mutes. 675p il $6.50 Macmillan

362.4 Deaf and dumb. Deafness 43-17957

"The present study is to some extent a revision and expansion of an earlier book, 'The Deaf: Their Position in Society and the Provision for their Education,' published in 1914 [Book Review Digest, 1914]. It examines and sums up the various problems involved in deafness and the persons afflicted with this handicap, including those who because they were born deaf or acquired deafness in infancy, have been called the 'deaf and dumb,' Part I investigates the cause of deafness and its possible prevention. . . Other chapters describe the physical and mental aspects of the deaf, their means of communication, their social and economic conditions, and organizations for their welfare. Part IV is devoted to a consideration of the education of deaf and partially deaf children. Exhaustive lists of residential, day and private schools are provided." (Survey) Index.

"The best available statistics on the deaf are presented in detail. Unfortunately they are often old and subject to considerable qualification. In some cases the dates of the data are cited in the text rather than in table titles, a practice which interferes with rapid evaluation of the tabular material. The detailed footnotes and exhaustive lists of references add materially to the value of the book as a comprehensive and highly useful source book on the deaf. It is to be regretted that the author did not give a more complete sociological analysis of the deaf in contemporary society, but the selection of the type of approach is the author's privilege." Ellen Winston
+ — Am Soc R 9:451 Ag '44 300w

"The work is encyclopedic in nature, with a rich bibliography combed from sources of all kinds in libraries not only in this country but also in England. This brief notice cannot do justice to the thoroughness of the work and its importance for anyone interested in this class of the handicapped in the United States." J. L. Gillin
+ Ann Am Acad 232:219 Mr '44 500w
Booklist 40:262 Ap 1 '44

"This book should interest physicians, teachers, nurses, social workers and parents or relatives of the deaf. Despite the vast amount of information, the book is not difficult reading. The author presents each phase of the subject, gives you all the necessary facts, and then draws the logical conclusions. His own personality and feelings toward the deaf appear constantly throughout the pages." Catharine Ring
+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 20 '44 750w

"This book is a mine of information for anyone interested in the welfare of the deaf. It is a painstaking, scientific study covering an immense amount of ground. . . This work should prove of inestimable value to all those who come in contact with the deaf—otologists, teachers, social workers, and others. It should make a valuable addition to any library as a reference volume to be consulted by parents or friends of the deaf." Louise Neuschutz
+ Survey 80:62 F '44 350w
Wis Lib Bul 40:34 Mr '44

BEST, HERBERT. Young'un. 271p $2.50 Macmillan

44-9470

"Almost a saga of the early fur-trading days of Lake Champlain soon after the Revolutionary War. The story is primarily concerned with the ingenuity of a family of children left on their own after their makeshift home was destroyed by fire, their mother burned to death and their father departed to seek new fur-trading fields." Library J

"It is [the] bright patchwork of frontier life, full of flavor and event and yet historically sound, which chiefly makes 'Young 'un' both entertaining and memorable." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p1 O 29 '44 1350w
Booklist 41:108 D 1 '44

Reviewed by Ray McPartlin
Boston Globe p15 D 13 '44 440w

"The author has made an authentic and flavorsome picture of pioneer life, with its hardships, its demands on courage and ingenuity, its narrowness of outlook and its lusty recreations. Americans who cannot take their cultural history 'straight'—and also those who can—will enjoy reading it."
+ Christian Century 61:1419 D 6 '44 170w

"The story is pleasantly episodic; its style, both rich in imagery and artfully archaic, salted with provincial idiom." O. B. White
+ Commonweal 41:403 F 2 '45 350w

"The story in the telling has much of the poetry and the essential quality of The Yearling."
+ Kirkus 12:122 Mr 15 '44 230w

"Recommended." M. E. Clark
+ Library J 69:354 Ap 15 '44 60w

Reviewed by William Poster
New Repub 112:28 Ja 1 '45 240w

Reviewed by Marguerite Young
N Y Times p7 N 5 '44 600w

"Here is a slender book as fresh, as lovely, as full of natural American color as a birch flaming in the autumn forest; a book with one of the most original and refreshing heroines to step into our recent fiction, placed in an environment as real and clear as imagination conjoined with expert study can make it." Allan Nevins
+ Sat R of Lit 27:32 D 2 '44 1050w

"An engrossing story of those days when this country and Young'Un, were growing up together. It is a completely cheerful book, one that never seeks the conventional pioneer crises." L. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d N 5 '44 450w

"It is a magical little tale, at once tender and full-blooded. It pleads no ideology, is burdened with no thesis unless it be the implicit one that life is good; yet it is so filled with warmth and wisdom and kindness, and peopled with characters so real, that to read

BEST, HERBERT—Continued
it is to have your faith in human nature restored." Jennings Rice
+ Weekly Book Review p3 N 5 '44 900w

"Mr. Best has made three children abandoned by their shiftless father the centre of his story. Their struggle with cold, hunger, debt, and all the labor of a stump farm in the woods provides the only drama and conflict in these mellow pages. The children themselves are well done, and thoroughly appealing also. This is a likable book about likable people."
+ Yale R n s 34:383 winter '45 320w

BETTENSON, HENRY SCOWCROFT, ed. Documents of the Christian church. (World's classics) 474p 95c (3s) Oxford
270 Church history—Sources A44-688

"This volume seems to contain about every important document in the history of Christianity, from the letters of Tacitus and Pliny to Newman's Tract XC and the 1920 Lambeth letter on unity 'To All Christian People.' There are the important declarations of the fathers on the person and work of Christ, the various proposed creeds . . . Luther's Theses and the official declarations of the dissenting groups, the rules of the monastic orders." Churchman

"A fine collection. . . For the student, reference to such documents as are here given is indispensable; and for the mere reader, there is much to be gained by direct contact with these source materials. . . The work is carefully indexed."
+ Christian Century 61:147 F 2 '44 200w
+ Churchman 158:17 Mr 15 '44 150w

BEYMER, WILLIAM GILMORE. 12:20 p.m. (Whittlesey house publication) 273p $2.50 McGraw Hitler, Adolf—Fiction 44-9916

" 'Strike him down, Lord!' says an angry man in South Dakota—and launches an 'amazing international movement.' Twenty minutes past the hour (in whatever meridian it is noon) anti-Fascists pause silently for fifteen seconds as they call on God to strike down Adolf Hitler. Millions send out their psychic hate-waves. Ether lanes crackle—twenty minutes past each hour. (Especially bad are the psychic blows from the Poles and Russians.) Counter-prayers are to no avail. Hitler—in the vise of a relentless trap—is seen to wilt, hour by hour." N Y Times

"Episodic and fragmentary in its structure, '12:20 P.M.' moves with rapidity, gathering momentum, to its macabre conclusion. An evening spent with it will send the reader off to bed with the glowing assurance that the incarnadined iniquities of Hitler, Himmler, Goering, et al., have been dealt with (at least by Beymer) in a very satisfactory way." R. J. Bender
+ Book Week p16 N 19 '44 550w
Booklist 41:170 F 1 '45
Boston Globe p32 N 29 '44 190w
Christian Century 61:1385 N 29 '44 250w
Kirkus 12:470 O 15 '44 170w

"As a piece of fiction '12:20 P. M.' is smooth entertainment. Beymer writes with the skill of the successful popular artist. His depictions of well-known German leaders are lucid, though perhaps conventional." C. W.
+ N Y Times p14 N 5 '44 160w

"Tolerably well written in the beginning, the narrative loses what originality it has the moment its hero, a newspaperman bent on getting the 'true story' of the Fuehrer's end, lands on European soil. . . '12:20 P.M.' has its moments of entertainment. Although dealing with the gruesome present—if one wants to call it that—it is escape reading of a sort. There must be countless thousands who would rejoice to see it turned into reality." Robert Pick
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:20 N 25 '44 200w
Springf'd Republican p4d D 24 '44 110w

"In spite of its melodramatic qualities, in spite of an intensity of pace, a mounting flood of horror, the book suffers from a certain naïvete. It is difficult to imagine, for instance, that a newspaper man would really be startled to hear that Goering was doped to the eyes. Also the episode of the great electrical storm at Kehlstein Peak, though picturesque, is—like other over-written passages—only just short of absurdity. And how some Sioux Indians get into the story has to be seen to be believed. However, standards of criticism are no more applicable here than in 'Dracula.' All is blood and thunder, a tingling of the scalp and a hammering of the pulse." Iris Barry
+ — Weekly Book Review p10 N 19 '44 550w

BEYNON, JANE. Cypress man. 268p $2.50 Bobbs
44-20858

"Tangled destiny of an erratic composer, the doctor who was his closest friend, the girl who had been in love with him and the French widow whom he married instead. The opening page tells you it will end in a murder, and the tension mounts steadily toward that climax. Whose hand will send a bullet into whose heart?" Weekly Book Review

"Miss Beynon attempts to achieve an emotional tour de force and achieves instead pretentiousness. The reader is slugged so many times with impending catastrophe that when it finally occurs the temptation is to say, 'Well, thank Heaven, that's over.'" Rachel Hastings
— Book Week p10 Ap 16 '44 300w

"Macabre touches, occasional overemphasis, for a nonetheless intriguing story of the development of murder, as violence is fed by the weakness, the egotism, the instability of a young musician."
Kirkus 12:153 Ap 1 '44 120w

"Here is a young writer of talent, who knows just where she is going, and why. Her scenes have both originality and power: the best of them (like Ran's cruel symbolism at the piano, and the moment when his wife contemptuously offers him ammunition for his 'suicide') will stick in any reader's mind. But in the last analysis her 'Cypress Man' is a better stunt than a novel." C. V. Terry
+ — N Y Times p16 Mr 19 '44 600w

"Perhaps the build-up toward violence suffers a penalty of skepticism because of the advance notice; the forewarned reader is additionally alert and the denouement lacks the impact of the inevitable as well as the shock of the unexpected. As a matter of fact, there is so much wisdom in the development of the four characters that you doubt their final disintegration." Lisle Bell
+ — Weekly Book Review p14 Mr 26 '44 150w

BIANCO, MRS MARGERY (WILLIAMS). Forward, Commandos! il. by Rafaello Busoni. 184p $2 Viking 44-7724

Adventures of Red and his small group of followers the summer they played they were commandos. They got into some difficulties, but when a big forest fire broke out, they were helpful, too. For ages seven to ten.

Booklist 41:79 N 1 '44
Cath World 160:282 D '44 10w

"Mischief and humor and a great deal of human nature are combined in this country life story by a gifted writer."
+ Horn Bk 20:483 N '44 80w
Kirkus 12:342 Ag 1 '44 110w

"Excellent book with real boy heroes." P. D. Edie
+ Library J 69:866 O 15 '44 50w

"Tale is well written and true to life. Illustrated effectively by Rafaello Busoni." E. E. Frank
+ Library J 69:937 N 1 '44 70w

"'In Captain Red and his cohorts boys of 8 to 12 will surely recognize themselves and the gang on the block. Mrs. Bianco's ambition to write a story for boys has been amply justified here. In our deep regret for the loss of that understanding heart and humorous wisdom which gave us some of our most beloved children's books of this generation we can, nevertheless, be glad that she left us this one, as true in spirit as any she ever wrote." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p16 Ja 28 '45 200w

"Margery Bianco has caught that timeless thing, the spirit of boyhood, and with skill and complete understanding, has given it today's dress. Basically, the boys are the same as they were when Thomas Bailey Aldrich wrote 'The Story of a Bad Boy.' . . There is a certain lack of robustness of plot here that may prevent boys of twelve or over from finding the story themselves; but it has so much that is familiar to them and its attitude will seem so right to them—they may adopt it, as they did 'Penrod,' as one of 'their' books." E. B. Spring

+ Sat R of Lit 27:32 N 11 '44 280w

"A story with the play-spirit of boys at the restless, exuberant, ingenious time of life centering at ten, it will be read and re-read by such boys, and makes perfect reading aloud. Do not tell these small boys that we have just lost dear Margery Bianco. For they have not. They never will. She joins their company for keeps in this book, as she did that of little children long ago in 'The Velveteen Rabbit.'" M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p6 O 1 '44 350w

BIBLE. WHOLE. SELECTIONS. The Book of books. 448p il maps $3 Knopf

220.5 44-9588

"The King James version of the Bible, abridged and with editorial comment by Wilbur Owen Sypherd, and designed and illustrated with drawings and maps by W. A. Dwiggins, is intended for readers of high-school age. . . Professor Sypherd's emphasis is on the Bible as literature and he has grouped the text under descriptive headings, such as 'Historical and Biographical Narrative' and 'The Short Story' (Ruth, Esther, Jonah), and has set the Psalms and other poetic sections in verse form." New Yorker

---

"The books of the Bible are here divided into natural groupings—historical and biographical narrative, short story, lyric poetry, dramatic and didactic poetry, the essay, the writings of the prophets and so on. Perfecting and introducing each section are Dr. Sypherd's commentaries, and so pertinent are these that they make real contributions to the young person's understanding of this greatest of literature." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p7 D 24 '44 200w

Booklist 41:126 D 15 '44

"It opens easily and stays open. Everything about the book attracts the reader. Place it where young people will come upon it naturally but surely." K. H. McAlarney

+ Library J 69:1107 D 15 '44 80w

"Any Dwiggins book has dignity, and the publishers have done a beautiful job of bookmaking. Open the volume anywhere and the pages lie flat and smooth, as they should in every Bible."

+ New Yorker 20:78 D 16 '44 270w

"Here is a beautifully designed and printed introduction to reading the Bible that takes a young person far toward closer acquaintance. It is the first 'selective' Bible with which I am in sympathy: perhaps because whatever an editor selects he seems to leave out something I consider most necessary to leave in. But I can greet this one without reversion of judgment, for the selection is made for youth, when one is far more likely to read the Bible through being caught by separate passages, or even quotations, than by being tossed into its breakers to swim ashore."

+ Weekly Book Review p12 N 12 '44 350w

BIBLE. NEW TESTAMENT. New Testament of our lord and savior Jesus Christ. 573p $3 Sheed

225.52 44-51115

A fresh translation of the New Testament by an English Catholic, Ronald Knox. The translation is based on the Latin Vulgate, the official version of the Roman Catholic church, and has been checked against the Greek original.

"That Msgr. Knox has been able to provide a translation lacking in neither dignity nor grandeur is a testimonial to both the devotion and ability brought by him to the work. He has produced a prose work of great strength, but there will be many, to whom the Bible has been not only solace and guidance, but poetry as well, who will not gladly abandon the familiar phrases of the established versions." R. J. Bender

+ Book Week p5 D 31 '44 600w

Booklist 41:145 Ja 15 '45

"The tone of Monsignor Knox's translation suggests a constant well-bred anxiety not to sound too exalted or dogmatic, like the superior mock-modest British stutter; and is in this respect probably the product—Monsignor Knox was long chaplain at Oxford—of the modern English university. But his version is in any case well worth having. To read it may clear up for us the obscurities of passages which have become part of our consciousness without our ever having properly understood them, and, by wiping the old lens of the language, revive our interest in the story of the Gospels by enabling us to see it in a more limpid light." Edmund Wilson

+ New Yorker 20:94 N 11 '44 500w

"The quiet reader of this new Englishing of the Gospels will find it hard to believe that he is not sitting at the feet of the Evangelists as they recount the wondrous story of man's redemption, for his sole benefit. As a mother might calmly tell her children of the life of Christ, the reader easily imagines that he is not reading but hearing the account—so smoothly has this master of English wrought." T. S. Hanrahan

+ Springf'd Republican p4d D 24 '44 550w

BIDDLE, FRANCIS BEVERLEY. Democratic thinking and the war. 55p $1.25 Scribner

321.8 Democracy. World war, 1939- 44-1808

"The conditions of the White Foundation lectures, of which two delivered in 1942-43 by Attorney General Francis Biddle compose this volume, require that they be delivered by a jurist or publicist specially distinguished in some branch of jurisprudence and that the lecturer present some fresh or unfamiliar aspect of his subject. The Attorney General of the United States undoubtedly qualifies as such a speaker. As for his lectures, the subject with which they deal is, broadly, the limits of the functions of government—and particularly of the Roosevelt Government." N Y Times

---

Reviewed by Robert Lasch

Book Week p2 F 27 '44 320w

Kirkus 12:116 Mr 1 '44 100w

"Perhaps the things Mr. Biddle has to say are not particularly novel. But they are useful, for, in these days of partisan debate, it is just the obvious truths which are most likely to be forgotten." John MacCormac

N Y Times p10 Ap 9 '44 550w

BIDDLE, GEORGE. Artist at war. 241p maps $3.50 Viking

940.542 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 44-5814

An illustrated war diary, by the chairman of the American War department art advisory committee. The author spent eight months with our troops in Tunisia, and on the Sicilian and early Italian fronts. His experiences are recounted both in print and in line drawings.

BIDDLE, GEORGE—Continued

"'Artist at War' is considerably more than a combined diary and sketch book. It is a wise and penetrating commentary on this conflict's effect on the individual." W. F. Morse

+ Book Week p3 Jl 23 '44 180w

Booklist 41:14 S '44

"His prose is fresh and direct, his eye that of a painter, and he has a philosopher's mind. He reports soldiers' talk verbatim, including the four-letter words. Some of his verbal etchings are stereoscopically vivid. . . The book probably conveys as much as any ordinary soldier ever sees of the sprawling destructiveness of modern war." C. M.

+ Canadian Forum 24:165 O '44 350w

Kirkus 12:212 My 1 '44 150w

"There is no glamour nor glory, but only a series of day-by-day observations and word pictures in Africa, Sicily and Italy. . . Recommended." J. A. Sohon

+ Library J 69:553 Je 15 '44 80w

Reviewed by Jerome Mellquist

New Repub 111:284 S 4 '44 300w

"It would be interesting to see the work of the other artists who have gone overseas on this assignment. The assembled work should present a picture which attains in the whole what it might lack through any individual. Mr. Biddle's work will certainly rank high in the assemblage. His sincerity of work and his undoubted courage in carrying his project through make him an example for the other artists at war." Michael Ravenna

+ N Y Times p3 Jl 16 '44 1450w

"Most of Mr. Biddle's drawings are so good that it seems unfortunate they had to be accompanied by a text which, when it doesn't sound self-conscious, reminds you of any number of foreign correspondents who have reported the war."

+ — New Yorker 20:71 Jl 15 '44 90w

"The book was written by a man who had been a combatant soldier before and who acted like a soldier in this job of reporting; and although it is written by a man who is primarily a graphic artist, and one whose mission was to make drawings of war, it is nevertheless a book that has its first and greatest importance as a book of words by an educated man. . . Those who read this book will far better understand war and warriors, the need for information at home, the need for inspiration abroad. That is a lot to say of any book, and I can say it wholeheartedly. It is a first-aid kit to the ignorant on war." Christopher La Farge

+ Sat R of Lit 27:9 Jl 29 '44 1350w

Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 23 '44 390w

"The Italian experience forms the best part of the book. Mr. Biddle is attached to an infantry battalion and records its progress north of Naples to Mignano until he is ordered back to Washington. Here he is so much a part of the outfit to which he is attached that after the more exhausting engagements he forgets to paint. But he never forgets his notes, and we get the printed instead of the painted picture. . . This reviewer has only one fault to find with the book. Mr. Biddle, referring on several occasions to his cordial relationship with the battalion to which he was attached, implies that he was thus welcomed because he was the only war correspondent the battalion had seen and that war correspondents were not generally attached to front line units. But there are between four and five thousand battalions in the Army of the United States, and it would be physically impossible to assign a correspondent to each one of them." Beach Conger

+ — Weekly Book Review p4 Jl 16 '44 1000w

Wis Lib Bul 40:127 O '44

BIDDLE, GEORGE. War drawings. (Hyperion bk) 78p $3 Duell

940.5497 World war, 1939—Pictorial works 44-47464

"For eight months George Biddle accompanied the fighting forces in North Africa, Sicily and Italy, sharing their hazards and hardships and exposing himself to the life and death routine of the common soldier. At the front Biddle made innumerable notes and sketches, and from these he has selected the material of the present book: twelve pages in full color and about one hundred drawings, each with a long caption that is often more caustic and expressive than the illustration itself." Weekly Book Review

Reviewed by Philip Hamburger

N Y Times p12 Ja 21 '45 550w

"Unconsciously, Biddle has instilled into his subjects his dark feelings and his hatred of war, and he has done this in a style strongly suggestive of the earlier work of that master of horrors, George Grosz. In this, a day-by-day record, he succeeds in conveying what was always in his mind: not the fighting and not the victories, but the weariness, misery and despair of soldiers, and the overwhelming desolation of war—and that, too, is plenty." Thomas Craven

+ Weekly Book Review p3 D 24 '44 400w

BIEGELEISEN, JACOB ISRAEL. Careers in commercial art. 276p il $2.75 Dutton

740.69 Art, Commercial 44-3615

A survey of the various types of work to be done in the broad field of commercial art from sign making and lettering jobs to stage designing, packaging and window displays. Author is Instructor, New York School of industrial art. Bibliography. Index.

"A readable and practical book for the teen-aged artist who is looking ahead." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p11 Ag 27 '44 230w

Booklist 40:299 My 1 '44

Christian Science Monitor p13 S 16 '44 100w

"An overwhelming amount of material for one book to cover, it will need to be presented by a clever art teacher or guidance counselor to be of any practical use. Mr. Biegeleisen has however included some good hints on how to apply for a job and other bits of sound advice."

+ — Kirkus 12:174 Ap 1 '44 80w

"Written with enthusiasm and in a style which tends to be breezy at times, it has sure appeal for aspiring young moderns. While the rosy side is pictured in brief sketches of famous illustrators, fashion designers, etc., the difficulties attendant on breaking into the field are not neglected." Georgene Gifford

+ Library J 69:505 Je 1 '44 110w

School Arts 44:15a S '44 120w

"Mr. Biegeleisen is especially helpful in detailing the basic qualifications demanded in each specialty, so that each career-seeker can match these against his own talents and decide accordingly. The author takes many hypothetical cases, describes the training of a typical successful artist and a failure, pictures a normal work schedule, indicates the customary range of salary and points out what one might be able to achieve in various areas of commercial art. And not least, he advises on the proper approach in job-hunting, and gives valuable suggestions as to how a specialist may find his unique kind of work." E. W. K.

+ Springf'd Republican p8 My 12 '44 280w

Wis Lib Bul 40:107 Jl '44

BIENENFELD, FRANZ RUDOLF. The Germans and the Jews [tr. by R. Herdman Pender]. 265p $2.50 Ungar [7s 6d Secker & Warburg]

296 Jews in Germany [40-35227]

"A sincere attempt to discover and weigh the fundamental causes—economic, social and otherwise—for the antagonism of Germans toward their Jewish compatriots." (Foreign Affairs) The book was first published in England some years ago.

Foreign Affairs 23:12 O '44 20w

"Long catalog of prominent names sometimes makes reading rather tedious, but adds to reference value of book. Some of Bienenfeld's historical and sociological comments are very much to the point. All the more regrettable is the fact, that American edition has not been brought up-to-date. Useful in large public libraries and in libraries stressing German problems." F. E. Hirsch

+ — Library J 69:202 Mr 1 '44 100w

BIENSTOCK, GREGORY, and others. Management in Russian industry and agriculture; ed. by Arthur Feiler and Jacob Marschak. 198p $3 Oxford

338 Russia—Economic policy. Agricultural administration—Russia 44-4107

" 'This book, an important contribution to the literature on the subject, is the first to present a detailed study of Soviet management in industry and agriculture: the distribution of functions and powers in factory and farm; the origin, status, incentives and ideology of managerial personnel.' " (Special Libraries) Glossary of Russian words and phrases. Titles of Russian periodicals. Index.

"Although the three authors do not accept a joint responsibility for the whole content of the book, but only for their respective parts, the book is fairly compact and well organized and does not involve much repetition, a result of the teamwork of the authors, or of the editors' efforts. The subject is wider than the title indicates, but presentation is limited to a relatively small space. . . Notwithstanding [its] faults, the book deserves the attention of all people interested in the economic experiment of Soviet Russia. It supplies valuable information based on objective data, interpreted by competent specialists, particularly in the part discussing industrial management. It should be studied by students of economic systems, by students in business administration, and by business men who expect to have closer contacts with the Soviet Union after the termination of the war than they have had heretofore." V. P. Timoshenko

+ — Am Econ R 34:895 D '44 1600w

Am Hist R 49:792 Jl '44 40w

Reviewed by Paul Haensel

Ann Am Acad 235:160 S '44 450w

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick

Book Week p4 My 28 '44 180w

Booklist 41:8 S '44

"In this excellent little book the authors have approached the infinitely complex problem of Soviet life from an entirely new angle. Instead of reviewing Soviet economy as a whole, and measuring its success by its aggregate effect which is the usual and not always satisfactory method, they focus their attention upon the individual plan and collective farm. . . There is another aspect to this book which makes it a very aluable contribution to our knowledge of Russia. The research group of whose collective effort the book is the product, when assigned the task of analyzing management in Russian industry and agriculture, has been wisely asked 'to ascertain facts, not to discuss words'." P. M. Brown

+ Canadian Forum 24:140 S '44 1000w

"The exposition carefully avoids all political analysis, and the effort is clearly made to be impartial and objective. . . The book is undoubtedly of great value to the student unfamiliar with the Russian economic system. But it will take arduous reading, and correlation of the facts presented, to form an adequate picture of the actual life in Soviet factories and agricultural collectives. The impression persists that had the authors been less cautious in their deductions, and had they discarded local and untypical data, the book would have gained in lucidity." N. S.

Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 1 '44 650w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:664 Jl '44 20w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 69:504 Je 1 '44 20w

Reviewed by H. H. F. Eulau

Nation 159:77 Jl 15 '44 600w

Reviewed by B. B. Seligman

New Repub 111:348 S 18 '44 850w

"A well-rounded, if somewhat sketchy, picture of the status, problems and activities of the managers of Soviet industrial plants and collective farms. The authors, all of them left-wing exiles from Russia since 1922, display familiarity with official Soviet sources on which their book is based, and (with some minor exceptions) a judicial spirit and objectivity not often to be found in recent writings on the U.S.S.R." M. T. Florinsky

+ — Pol Sci Q 59:474 S '44 500w

Special Libraries 35:100 Mr '44

Reviewed by E. J. Simmons

Survey G 33:465 N '44 320w

BIESANZ, JOHN BERRY, and BIESANZ, MAVIS. Costa Rican life. 272p il $3 Columbia univ. press

917.286 Costa Rica—Social life and customs A44-5796

"[This] report gives the high points of Costa Rican history, influences that shaped the structure of the land, class relations and attitudes, ways of making a living, art, literature, education, taste, attitudes toward religion and the Church, how boys and girls flirt, woo, marry, what maried life is like, the extent and nature of extra-marital relations, political parties, elections, flirtations of the Communist party (Vanguardia Popular) with the somewhat anti-United States Catholic hierarchy, what the Pan American Highway is likely to do to Costa Rica's future and to the attitudes toward our own country." (Weekly Book Review) Bibliography. Index.

"The book does not romanticize its theme, but gives a careful and readable account of the people of a country which is worth knowing and which has proved that Latin Americans can develop a real republic and a democratic way of life."

+ Christian Century 62:82 Ja 17 '45 180w

"Recommended for purchase because of scarcity of material on Costa Rica." E. H. Crowell

Library J 69:881 O 15 '44 40w

"The picture presented is purposely not too clear. The facts are left to make their own lights and shadows and grays. Something of a pattern has been made out of these 500 pages of first hand material by a two-page quicky of Robert Redfield in his introduction. Like most introductions it should be reread at the end." J. B. Buxton

Springf'd Republican p4d Ja 7 '45 600w

"Dr. and Mrs. Biesanz spent a year as exchange professors at the University of Costa Rica and have given us a picture of that little land such as it might take less inquisitive and less qualified observers the better part of a lifetime to acquire." B. D. Wolfe

+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ja 14 '45 900w

BIG book of Halloween entertainments. 243p il $1.50 Beckley-Cardy

394.268 Halloween 44-10672

"A collection of original, easy-to-produce plays, poems, and novelties that will meet the needs of the teacher or program director seeking a balanced Halloween program with the expenditure of a minimum of time and effort." School & Society

School & Society 60:239 O 7 '44 50w

Wis Lib Bul 40:161 D '44

BILLIG, KURT. Pre-stressed reinforced concrete. 254p il $5 F. Billig, 151-14 85th av, Jamaica 2, N.Y.

721.975 Concrete, Reinforced

"Part I of this book is largely devoted to a summary of the development of prestressed reinforced concrete from its early inception to date. . . Derivations of formulas for the complete design of prestressed reinforced concrete members subjected to pure tension and to bending are given in Part II." Eng N

"The book is a valuable tool for the engineer interested in the design of prestressed reinforced concrete structures, furnishing useful information regarding the relative advantages of different grades of steel and concrete used.

BILLIG, KURT—Continued
the evaluation of the effective amount of reinforcement, the appropriate extent of the prestress, the determination of deflection, the effect of prestress on bond, shear and principal stress, and the determination of safety factors." R. L. Bertin
+ Eng N 132:127 Mr 9 '44 240w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:62 O '43

BING, EDWARD JOHN. World of the Arabs. 324p $2.50 Little

915.3 Arabs. Mohammedanism. Eastern question (Near East) 44-3736

"This book tries to give the American reader an outline of the contemporary life, historical significance, culture, and future importance of the Arabic-speaking East, with those references to Turkey which are necessary to round out the picture. This is not a 'travel book'—that is, its object is not the mechanical description of people, places and monuments. Nor is it a 'scientific' book, in the sense of dealing methodically with the more abstract aspects of its subject. The book does strive to be informative; but its principal aim is to appraise the various aspects of the life of the huge Arab community and civilization, to which our Western world owes much." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 40:315 My 15 '44
Bookmark 5:16 My '44

"A very good start in bettering one's acquaintanceship with these people can be made by reading Edward J. Byng's 'The World of the Arabs.' Although it isn't always possible to share the author's apparently undiluted enthusiasm for the Arabs and the Turks, he goes a long way toward correcting many of the false ideas which are commonly held in the West. . . Not everybody will share Dr. Byng's apparent belief that the Arab has great spiritual resources which the West badly needs. During an 18-month stay in Arab-speaking countries from Algeria to Syria this reviewer saw little evidence of any such deep spirituality." J. G. H.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p13 Ag 5 '44 400w
Foreign Affairs 23:15 O '44 20w

"A competent survey of 'the world of the Arab,' by an acknowledged authority."
+ Kirkus 12:91 F 15 '44 180w

"Whether or not we agree with Mr. Byng is not important. It is important that his clear, intelligent and provocative presentation of the material in his book will give reader a point of departure for further reading and thinking on a question vital to us all. Recommended for adult readers." H. P. Bolman
+ Library J 69:353 Ap 15 '44 110w

"Those without knowledge of the tangled highways and Arabesque byways of the Near East will find Dr. Byng's 'The World of the Arabs' an able and useful guide. Even experienced political observers, who wistfully discourse on the role of the Near East in the twentieth century and who know the difference between the Kislah Wotania and the Wafd, will find a reading of this book not without rewards. For the author looks at the Near East from a long historical perspective and from a variety of sources brings together data rarely found in a book intended for the general reader." Albert Viton
+ N Y Times p5 Ap 30 '44 700w

"The author's conversational style and his first-hand knowledge of the countries involved make it a good guide for readers who are encountering the world of the Arab for the first time."
+ New Yorker 20:91 Ap 22 '44 60w

"Intended for the less informed general public rather than the student, 'The World of the Arabs' is a book of great value, comprehensive, tolerant, and written with scholarly simplicity. Every one who helps form public opinion and every statesman who will be confronted with East-West problems will profit by a reading. The author does not propose a solution, but he does present facts which must form a basis for solution." P. J. Searles
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ap 23 '44 900w

BINGHAM, ALFRED MITCHELL. Practice of idealism. 196p $2 Duell

940.531 World war, 1939—Peace. Idealism 44-40094

A discussion of the problems to be faced in the post-war world and how they can be solved. Contents: What are we fighting for?; Five revolutions; The second world war; The enemy within the gates; Progress at home; Peace abroad; The new world.

Reviewed by Willard Shelton
Book Week p9 My 21 '44 90w
Booklist 40:301 My 1 '44
Bookmark 5:3 My '44

"An arresting and notable book, eminently readable, and a challenge to the idealist."
+ Kirkus 12:55 F 1 '44 180w

Reviewed by A. B. Lindsay
+ Library J 69:261 Mr 15 '44 100w

Reviewed by Richard Match
New Repub 110:855 Je 26 '44 230w

Reviewed by John MacCormac
N Y Times p12 S 24 '44 440w

"Mr. Bingham sings with marvellous sweetness about 'The Enemy Within the Gates,' 'Peace Abroad,' and 'Progress at Home': the question is, however, whether you can deal with these things by the methods of a Frank Sinatra." Edmund Wilson
New Yorker 20:77 Ap 15 '44 600w

"This is, from every point of view, one of the most stirring and effective pieces of pamphleteering on post-war reconstruction which has appeared. It combines political knowledge and insight with strong moral conviction; it is written in a style which is consistently clear, vigorous and distinguished, and in less than two hundred pages it covers the main problems which confront the people of the United States with remarkable comprehensiveness. It deserves the widest possible circulation." H. B. Parkes
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ap 9 '44 1300w

BINKLEY, WILFRED ELLSWORTH. American political parties: their natural history. 407p $3.75 Knopf

329 Political parties—U.S. U.S.—Politics and government 43-14508

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

"No other history of American parties has achieved the synthesis and clarity of this volume. It amply demonstrates the value of studying the past in order to understand the present and intelligently face the future. Professor Binkley has an explicit theory of party government, and consequently his book is constructed upon a conceptual framework that makes the factual data meaningful and apposite. The publisher, however, does his author a disservice by advertising his work as 'original' and 'revolutionary.' It is rather a well-ordered handling of largely secondary source materials." Pendleton Herring
+ Am Hist R 49:483 Ap '44 700w

"The author expresses his opinions with independence and assurance, but the tone of the book is neither contentious nor opinionated. It is a careful synthesis and not a mere catalogue of parties and elections. It is, however, unfortunate that Professor Binkley's work is described by the publisher as a 'new and revolutionary concept of the composition of the great American political parties.' On the contrary, it is not new and it is not revolutionary. The point of view and the interpretation so skillfully presented have long been familiar to American scholars and have received wide acceptance among them." T. S. Barclay
+ Am Pol Sci R 38:158 F '44 750w

"Although the book is not a definitive history of American political parties, it fills a real gap in the literature of the field. Despite the publisher's claim, there are no revolutionary interpretations in a welcome addition to reference lists in courses on American government and American group opinion. It is to be hoped that the book will have a wide public reading as well, especially by the politicians." L. P. Edwards

+ Am Soc R 9:440 Ag '44 350w

Reviewed by R. F. Harvey

Ann Am Acad 233:239 My '44 500w

Bookmark 5:4 Ja '44

"Readable and stimulating book." E. C. Smith

+ Columbia Law R 44:594 Jl '44 490w

"A first-rate history of the dynamics of American politics. The author explores virgin territory in his analysis of the group composition of political parties." R. G. Woolbert

+ Foreign Affairs 22:495 Ap '44 30w

"The history of American political parties, too often divorced from reality by its students, receives a fresh and stimulating treatment in this timely volume. Following the approach of Beard and Parrington, and using the data collected by a generation of scholars inspired by them, Mr. Binkley attempts, on the basis of a broad survey of the evolution of the party structure, to analyze the nature of the system and its relation to the economic and social background. In many respects his work is the most satisfactory account of party history we have had. It contains many thoughtful conclusions and revealing observations, and offers an attractive, if not wholly convincing, framework for the political development of the United States." Oscar Handlin

+ — New Eng Q 17:117 Mr '44 1000w

"Always interesting, sometimes exciting, this book is, on the whole, well balanced and devoid of bias. Personal characterizations which are often confined to descriptive adjectives accord with prevailing scholarship. . . Adverse judgments, sometimes positive to a point of dogmatism, are usually acceptable." E. E. Robinson

+ — Pol Sci Q 59:114 Mr '44 1150w

BINNS, ARCHIE. Timber beast. 345p $2.75 Scribner
44-4725

A present-day story of the lumber industry around Puget Sound. Charlie Dow, the "timber beast" typifies the old-style hard-boiled logging operator; his two sons cannot seem to decide on their careers. Marian, their father's young second wife is half in love with Paul, the younger of the Dow brothers. When Charlie's slick business partner tried to take the business away from him, the "timber beast" put up his greatest struggle, and at long last his sons grew up.

"Archie Binns is a craftsman of long experience. From the opening page of his latest book the reader has a pleasant feeling of confidence that the performance is going off without a hitch. Hollywood scenario writers would be out of their jobs if every novelist composed his work with so unerring an eye for pace, characterization, dialogue, and other apparatus of the profession. Add the salt of social consciousness and you have the formula complete of a sure-fire hit." Milton Hindus

+ Atlantic 174:129 Jl '44 300w

"The tale is well and simply told, and makes a pleasant escape on a warm afternoon. It would also make a swell movie." F. W. M.

+ Book Week p10 My 28 '44 90w

Booklist 40:355 Je 15 '44

"Readable but not a very significant tale."

+ — Kirkus 12:177 Ap 15 '44 170w

Reviewed by Richard Match

N Y Times p7 My 14 '44 550w

"The story is interesting, the characters are drawn with skill and warmth, and the background of the Pacific Northwest is as fresh as a breeze, but the author does not sufficiently develop either of the novel's two themes—the conflict between the social philosophies of father and sons, and the unhappy situation of the young wife who finds herself in love with her stepson. One is left hoping that Mr. Binns will dig more deeply next time."

+ — New Yorker 20:77 My 20 '44 170w

"That Archie Binns knows the world of western lumbering is apparent in 'The Timber Beast.' . . But he seems a little uncertain in building his rather complicated novel against that background. Basically the plot seems simple enough. . . But there are details and implications of secondary plots in the life of yet another son and his love affairs, and in the business affairs of the Timber Beast and his partner." Edrie Van Dore

Springf'd Republican p4d My 28 '44 210w

"Despite the fact that Mr. Binns knows his background thoroughly, as earlier novels by him have attested, the book remains uneven both as to pace and characterization. In picturing life and the countryside around Puget Sound, Mr. Binns writes with warmth and evocative skill, but he shows a curious reluctance—or inability—to face the actual problems he has set himself. . . The love affair between Paul and Marian, too, remains undramatic. The fault, this time, lies in large measure in the character of Paul himself. Meant obviously to represent the unspoiled, 'noble savage,' Paul never comes to life." Jennings Rice

+ — Weekly Book Review p6 My 14 '44 600w

BIRD, DOROTHY MAYWOOD. Granite harbor; il. by Gertrude Howe. 211p $2 Macmillan 44-7511

The year after Terry Blake had been badly injured in an automobile accident, her family moved from Texas to Granite Harbor on Lake Superior. Terry was secretly afraid that she had lost courage and skill but the winter sports of the high school crowd eventually brought her back to normal.

"Dorothy Maywood Bird writes with warmth and enthusiasm about a subject [skiing] she quite evidently loves. Her characters are up-to-date and thoroughly believable and the story holds reader interest from first to last." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p11 O 8 '44 200w

Booklist 41:61 O 15 '44

"Satisfying modern fiction."

+ Kirkus 12:321 Jl 15 '44 90w

"Story starts with a bang and then slows up but is wholesome and natural, not girly-girly, but homelike and humorous with school life and boy-and-girl friendships on normal basis and incidents not overdrawn. Girls of twelve will like this story of skiing and happy high school life." K. H. McAlarney

+ Library J 69:763 S 15 '44 80w

Sat R of Lit 27:42 N 11 '44 40w

"This is a kind of story good to have, about life in an American high school in a region where sports are not altogether 'spectator.'" M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 7 '45 350w

Wis Lib Bul 40:133 O '44

BIRKENHEAD, SHEILA (BERRY) SMITH, countess of. Against oblivion. 324p il $3 Macmillan [12s 6d Cassell]

B or 92 Severn, Joseph. Keats, John 44-5715

"From their caricatures, sketches, diaries and letters, the author has reconstructed the unusual family of the English painter, Joseph Severn, now chiefly remembered as the devoted friend who attended Keats in Rome during his last illness. Told largely in dialogue, with interesting glimpses of Joseph's many illustrious friends, his charming wife and talented children, especially his artist daughter, Mary, and his own colorful career in Rome, first as a popular member of the English colony and later as British consul during a troubled period of Italian history." Library J

"The book at the outset seems to me posed, like a waxwork,—the young men with their famous names are lacking in personality. The relations between Severn and his father are neither clear nor masculine. But after Tom Keats's death, the author is no longer arranging and explaining. Keats, Brown, Haslam, and Severn have become animated, and as one

BIRKENHEAD, SHEILA—Continued
follows that heart-breaking duet of Keats's last letters and that diary-chronicle which Joseph was sending back to Mrs. Brawne and to his own family from Rome, we feel the sacrifice and see the tragedy more clearly than ever before. . . This book is valuable not for its aftermath, but as the story of a friendship, the story of a great heart and a greater poet. Once you are drawn within its warmth, the urge is irresistible to turn back to the Odes and to those most sensitive of English letters." Edward Weeks
+ — Atlantic 174:125 Ag '44 650w

"His biographer, his grandson's wife, accepts Severn's friendship with Keats as the one great incident of his life, and devotes almost half her book to it. Her picture of that sad last journey, of Keats' suffering and the anguish of his despair, drawn from Severn's letters, the only authentic source, would alone make the book worth reading, but her full picture of the amiable, generous, feckless, weak man has considerable value in itself as a piece of pure biography." Bergen Evans
+ Book Week p5 Jl 2 '44 450w

Booklist 41:19 S '44

"'Against Oblivion' is a product of care and sincerity and sympathy for all forgotten men. Lady Birkenhead has had access to fresh material, and she has written a readable, and charming, if conventional biography." Eleanor Daniels
+ Boston Globe p15 Jl 19 '44 400w

Reviewed by J. J. Reilly
Cath World 160:90 O '44 360w

"An attractive personality and a life from which he extracted interesting experiences of men and affairs do not obscure the fact that the only really significant consideration regarding Severn remains that he was 'the friend of Keats.' Lady Birkenhead has done her best for the long aftermath of that friendship, but she cannot make it important or anything much more than pleasant, gossipy anecdote. Her book, though written in a form and style approximating to the novel, is carefully documented and obviously trustworthy." S. C. C.
Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 23 '44 650w

"The book, like its subject, has great charm and it certainly serves to freshen the memory of a man who so far has been chiefly a romantic bit of stage property necessary to the romantic deathbed scene of a young genius breathing his last in a foreign land."
+ Commonweal 40:376 Ag 4 '44 1050w

"There's charm and affection and strong human interest in this biography of Joseph Severn. . . Fresh material of human and artistic interest, of appealing personalities, delightfully done. Don't overlook this."
+ Kirkus 12:135 Mr 15 '44 230w

Reviewed by M. J. Messler
Library J 69:402 My 1 '44 110w

"It was to his family and in particular his daughter Mary, herself a gifted artist, that Lady Birkenhead was first drawn. From their sketches, caricatures, and letters, she writes, 'I got to know the Severns.' Her book bears out her claim. It is their story she has told as well as Severn's, with a lightness and an intimacy which could hardly be bettered." H. I'A. F.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Je 2 '43 200w

"Lady Birkenhead writes of her grandfather-in-law in detail, and with affection. Her chapter on Lady Westmoreland testifies that she has a lively sense of character. . . Her method, fictionized biography, or biographical fiction, whatever it is called, putting speeches directly in the mouth of the characters, telling how they felt, what they were looking at, and so on, is a little irritating to begin with, especially before the Maria Crowther voyage; after that, either one begins to take it for granted and not be bothered or her manner sobers and improves." Rolfe Humphries
+ — Nation 159:134 Jl 29 '44 500w

Reviewed by Peter Quennell
New Statesman & Nation 26:61 Jl 24 '43 650w

"The story of this charming opportunist makes easy reading, but at best it is only a kind of biographical cookie, pleasant to nibble at, not very filling." Carlos Baker
+ — N Y Times p12 Je 25 '44 900w

"Lady Birkenhead tries hard to establish Severn as a person in his own right, and partially succeeds, but her semi-fictional method of telling his story, and the fact that Severn, while both talented and intelligent, was a minor figure who would have fallen into obscurity had it not been for his association with Keats, are handicaps she never quite manages to overcome."
New Yorker 20:78 Je 24 '44 180w

"This book is so nearly good that it deserves severe criticism for not being better. . . Criticism, it must be repeated, would not be worth making if this were not on the whole a very pleasant book. We may occasionally wince, but we read on. Whenever we get to the original documents we are safe, and, on the whole, the charm of the story to be told more than makes up for any literary or historical shortcomings on the part of the author." Lettice Fowler
+ — Spec 170:572 Je 18 '43 750w

"A charming account of a thoroughly likable character and his times." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Je 25 '44 500w

Time 43:99 Je 26 '44 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p256 My 29 '43 650w

"This biography of the artist friend who nursed John Keats in his last illness is Lady Birkenhead's first book. It marks the advent of a writer of unusual sensibility and charm. She is at all times in perfect command of her materials, both published and unpublished, and her tact in selecting, her power in vitalizing the episodes of her story, are all that might be wished. The result is that Joseph Severn emerges as a lively and interesting figure both before and after the six months when he gave himself with rare self-forgetfulness to the care of his dying friend. If this devotion to Keats is the one thing that has made Severn immortal, his present biographer has made him completely human." G. F. Whicher
+ Weekly Book Review p2 Je 25 '44 900w

BISHOP, SHERMAN CHAUNCEY. Handbook of salamanders; the salamanders of the United States, of Canada, and of Lower California. (Handbooks of Am. natural hist) 555p il maps $5 Comstock pub. co.

597.9 Salamanders 43-22693

Describes in detail seven families of salamanders, of the class Amphibia, found in the United States, Canada, or Lower California. For each species common name, technical name, type locality, range, habitat, size, anatomical description, color, breeding habits, etc. are given. Includes maps showing distribution. Bibliography arranged geographically. Index.

Booklist 40:228 Mr 1 '44

"This volume is a veritable monograph and should hold its own in this field for many years. . . Dr. Bishop has done a fine job in a field hitherto almost fallow, and Cornell University, through the Comstock firm, has added another to the long notable list of handbooks." William Beebe
+ Weekly Book Review p12 Ja 2 '44 550w

BISHOP, WILLIAM AVERY. Winged peace. 175p il $2.75 Viking

629.1309 Aeronautics—History. Aeronautics, Military. Aeronautics, Commercial 44-8982

Air Marshal Bishop, who shot down seventy-two German aircraft in the first World war, thus becoming the leading Allied ace, and is now one of the ranking members of the Royal Canadian air force, describes aviation from the time of the Wrights at Kitty Hawk, to the present age of the superfortress. The final section is a consideration of the future of air power.

"This is a brilliant, terrifying book by a man who pulls no punches. It should shorten the cultural lag which seems to bind our politicians to remote, safe, isolated past. Will some philanthropist kindly send a copy to every delegate at the air conference?" Sterling North

+ Book Week p2 N 19 '44 500w
Booklist 41:134 Ja 1 '45
Kirkus 12:395 S 1 '44 160w

"Recommended."
+ Library J 70:33 Ja 1 '45 70w

Reviewed by K. P. Littauer
N Y Times p1 D 17 '44 1550w

"He tells it well, with the simple authority of a man who has participated in much of it, and comes to the rather dramatic conclusion that 'the air age faces mankind with a sharp choice—the choice between Winged Peace and Winged Death.' One of the few really worthwhile books on the subject."
+ New Yorker 20:99 N 11 '44 180w

" 'Winged Peace' contains passages which fall with sledge-like blows on the complacency of the past and the smugness of the present. . . And intervening between conclusions Air Marshal Bishop weaves such a wealth of personal experience and observation that the conclusions are inescapably sound to the reader as well as the writer. 'Winged Peace' is not bashful in advocating the British viewpoint and swings without pulling any punches on the policy, or lack of policy, in the United States. This, in particular, makes it good reading for Americans since it gives us a chance to see ourselves as others see us, which is always a healthful experience. 'Winged Victory' is neither dull, vapid nor visionary." G. R. Wilson
+ Weekly Book Review p26 N 19 '44 550w

BLACK, CYRIL EDWIN. Establishment of constitutional government in Bulgaria. 354p $3.75 Princeton univ. press

949.7 Bulgaria—Politics and government A44-578

"The author lived in Bulgaria for seven years. He covers the period between 1878 and 1885, relating the difficulties of the Bulgarians in establishing a democratic state after centuries under Turkish domination. Some of the facts brought out throw light also on pre-World War tendencies of other European nations." Current Hist

"Anyone interested in the niceties of international law will be mildly shocked when the author refers to the 'autonomous tributary Principality' of Bulgaria of the San Stefano and Berlin treaties as 'an independent Bulgarian government' (p. 3) and one which, a generation after 1856, secured 'full independence' (p. 17). However, the study is an excellent critical and well-documented analysis of the problem. The author has an enviable facility in the use of Bulgarian sources and opens up much material inaccessible to most Western scholars. The appendixes include a bibliographical essay, the constitution of 1879, the statute of the council of state of 1881, the amendments to the constitution proposed in 1883, and suggestions for transliteration of the Balkan alphabet. The volume is an auspicious opening for the 'Princeton Studies in History.' " W. W. White
+ — Am Hist R 49:715 Jl '44 550w

"Beyond giving an excellent historical account of an important period in Bulgarian history, the years 1878-1885, this volume is of importance for contemporary political thought in three different respects. First, it shows the problematical character of constitution-making according to abstract principles instead of the distribution of social and political forces, upon which the vitality of the constitution will depend. . . Second, the book illuminates the political consequences which result from the antagonism between a democratic popular movement and a conservative prince who owes his position as monarch, not to the will of the people but to the decision of foreign dynasties. Finally, it sheds light upon the problems of a small nation which stands exposed to the conflicting aspirations of big powers." H. J. Morgenthau
+ Am Pol Sci R 38:402 Ap '44 230w

"Well-written, well-documented. . . Dr. Black's study of the establishment of constitutional government in Bulgaria should take its place as a basic contribution to our knowledge of a significant period in Bulgarian history." H. N. Howard
+ Ann Am Acad 233:240 My '44 410w
Current Hist 6:261 Mr '44 50w

"This is very much a scholar's book, a serious academic study, soberly written and strictly founded on documents. But though serious it is not dull." A. J. P. T.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 21 '44 200w

Reviewed by V. J. Puryear
Pol Sci Q 59:456 S '44 650w

BLACK book of Polish Jewry; an account of the martyrdom of Polish Jewry under the Nazi occupation; editor: Jacob Apenszlak, co-editors: Jacob Kenner, Isaac Lewin, Moses Polakiewicz [sponsored by Mrs Eleanor Roosevelt and others]. 343p il $3 Roy pubs.

940.54056 World war, 1939—Atrocities. Jews in Poland. Poland—History—German occupation, 1939- [44-1657]

"A carefully documented account of 'the martyrdom of Polish Jewry under the Nazi occupation,' published by the American Federation for Polish Jews in coöperation with the Association of Jewish Refugees and Immigrants from Poland. . . Here is a detailed and sober report on the systematic extermination by starvation, torture, beating, and asphyxiation in lethal chambers of hundreds of thousands of human beings." (New Yorker) Index of places and names.

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:665 Jl '44 20w
Nation 158:604 My 20 '44 130w

"Aside from being a graphic exposure of Nazi brutality to the Jewish population of Poland, 'The Black Book of Polish Jewry' may, by virtue of its richly documented data and detailed facts and figures, prove to be an invaluable source book for creative writers who might feel inclined to deal with the story of what is probably the greatest catastrophe of modern times." Walter Bara
+ N Y Times p21 Ja 30 '44 550w

"To read it and look at its photographs is sickening and almost unbearable; but everybody ought to know what is in it. . . It is important to see this book, because it is important to recognize the forces that are loose in the world in our time." Edmund Wilson
New Yorker 19:77 Ja 29 '44 200w

Reviewed by Herschel Levin
Springf'd Republican p6 Mr 29 '44 330w

Reviewed by Marcus Duffield
Weekly Book Review p18 Mr 5 '44 650w

BLACKBURN, ELBERT F. Basic air navigation. 300p il $4; text ed $3 McGraw

629.1325 Navigation (aeronautics) 44-2833

"A compact, practical treatment for students and working navigators, suitable as a classroom text and for self-instruction. The book is generously illustrated. A special feature is the reproduction of actual forms used by American air lines. Problems are based in many cases on diagrams of instrument panels. The author is Chief Navigation Instructor of the Atlantic Division of Pan American Airways." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 40:313 My 15 '44

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:1006 D 1 '43 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:9 Ja '44

BLACKSTOCK, JOSEPHINE. Island on the beam [il. by Rafaello Busoni]. 221p $2.50 Putnam

44-4341

Story of the brave island of Malta before and during the hundred days of bombardment. The hero is a Maltese boy, Pietro Mattia, who in a fit of anger nearly betrayed his beloved island, but compensated for his error and became a hero. For boys and girls of eight to twelve.

BLACKSTOCK, JOSEPHINE—Continued

"It is a beautiful story and a stirring one, and though the enemy is named, he remains an impersonal enemy, since the emphasis is placed upon human courage, rather than upon hatred. Perhaps the reader's credulity is strained a little by Pietro's miraculous rescue of David Rhodes but, since miracles happen right along in wartime, I don't see why a little one can't be allowed now and then in a story." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p4 Je 4 '44 450w
Booklist 40:359 Je 15 '44

"An absorbing story, written with vigor and deep sympathy for the noble spirit of the island people." A. M. Jordon
+ Horn Bk 20:288 Jl '44 110w

"This is a fast moving, but beautifully written story of one of the epic dramas of this war. It should be on all reading lists."
+ Kirkus 12:172 Ap 1 '44 150w

Reviewed by Isabel McLaughlin
Library J 69:607 Jl '44 70w

"A timely book that is a welcome addition to stories of the present war." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p12 S 3 '44 160w

"When count is made of children's books published in America about this war, I believe this one will stand well toward the head of the line. It proves it possible to tell young folks the truth about war and preserve the balance between understatement and overemphasis of its terrors that is required by any work of fiction intended to last. It tells the truth about the most-bombed spot on earth, but what remains in the mind is not so much the bombing as heart-quickening pride in glorious resistance to attack and siege. . . Reading it is an experience in itself." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 My 14 '44 400w

BLAIR, GEORGE WILLIAM SCOTT. See Scott Blair, G. W.

BLAIR, MORRIS MYERS. Elementary statistics, with general applications. 690p $3.50 Holt
311.2 Statistics 44-8298

"An elementary presentation of the subject intended for use as a simple reference book for students. The author stresses the fact that the book is 'prepared for those who must consume statistics rather than create them,' and with this end in view he has related the subject to everyday experience. An appendix includes glossaries of symbols and technical terms, a list of important formulas, and tables of squares, square roots, logarithms, etc." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"Clearly written elementary text, with principles explained in non-technical language, with practical examples. Tables, worksheets, graphs and diagrams."
+ Library J 69:814 O 1 '44 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:50 Jl '44

BLAIR, WALTER. Tall tale America; a legendary history of our humorous heroes; il. by Glen Rounds. 262p $2.50 Coward-McCann
398.21 Legends—U.S. 44-8461

Retells the stories of some famous American legendary heroes, including Captain Stormalong, Jonathan Slick, Mike Fink, Davy Crockett, Johnny Appleseed, Mose the New York fireman, and Paul Bunyan.

"Blair deserves a great deal of credit for his adroitness in devising a sort of folklore Esperanto which welds into a harmonious whole many diverse and multi-colored threads. What he has achieved is a common denominator of speech which preserves regional flavor and primitive vigor yet meshes these with smoothness of movement and simplicity. Collectors and interpreters of folklore who tackle a literal rendition of dialect often come a disastrous cropper and lapse into comparative unintelligibility. Blair has wisely avoided this pitfall." Jack Conroy
+ Book Week p4 O 1 '44 400w

"Good reading for young and old." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p5 N 12 '44 110w
Booklist 41:84 N 15 '44

"The fabulous achievements of the legendary heroes of folklore are here retold in a more or less continuous narrative. . . Appropriate pictures add gusto to the narrative."
+ Horn Bk 20:477 N '44 60w
Kirkus 12:344 Ag 1 '44 110w

"Will appeal to older boys and girls—even to those who are not great readers. Illustrations by Glen Rounds are exactly right for the text." J. D. Lindquist
+ Library J 69:1005 N 15 '44 70w

"Occasionally he succumbs to that awful jocosity which tends to afflict the modern teller of tall tales, but once he gets into the swing of a story he tells it with relish and vigor."
+ — New Yorker 20:84 D 16 '44 90w

"Like all true humorists, Walter Blair is not a mere gatherer of jokes and puns; his stories have a relevancy to the contemporary scene that makes itself subtly (though humorously) felt." Harold Fields
+ Sat R of Lit 27:14 O 7 '44 700w

"Mr Blair apparently has taken the very welcome view that there's been a little too much formality about America's folk lore, that there's been too much artiness and not enough good, nourishing boloney, sliced thick. Some of the heroes in his book seem to have acquired new claims to fame since they were last seen, and at least one story, that of Windwagon Smith, has been given a friendly nudge or two to lift it to legendary status. That of course is the way legends grow, and while no one would think of accusing Mr Blair of improving on nature, somebody has been stretching things a bit." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d O 1 '44 440w

"This is so much the best book about our folk-tale heroes—and children have had several good ones—it has been chosen by reviewers of the daily press as a distinguished contribution to the main body of contemporary literature."
+ Weekly Book Review p10 N 12 '44 330w

BLAKE, KATHERINE DEVEREUX, and WALLACE, MARGARET LOUISE. Champion of women; the life of Lillie Devereux Blake. 224p il $3 Revell
B or 92 Blake, Mrs Lillie (Devereux) 43-12624

"The biography of a woman who was a mid-nineteenth century novelist, but was better known as a woman's rights advocate. She was influential in securing legislation for the protection of women in New York. Written by her daughter who quotes freely from Mrs. Blake's letters and diary. Portraits." Booklist

Booklist 40:197 F 1 '44

"The book is important in the field of history. It gives an excellent picture of ante-bellum social life. This account of the suffrage struggle clearly traces the step-by-step evolution in contemporary thought. Incidentally, the book lays bare some hitherto untold jealousies within the movement, and their far-reaching effect." L. B. Hill
+ Springf'd Republican p6 D 5 '44 500w

BLAKESLEE, VICTOR FRANKLIN. Fighting ships of the U.S.A.; il. by Charles Rosner; with an introd. by William V. Pratt. new rev ed 76p $1 Random house
359 U.S.—Navy. Warships 43-14432

Revised edition bringing up to date a book first published three years ago (Book Review Digest, 1941). Contents: The United States fleet; The backbone of the fleet; Navy wings; Cruisers and smaller fighting craft; Naval bases; A ship's organization; The navy life; The making of officers; The marines and the coast guard; The navy department; Naval communications and navigation; Our merchant marine; Building a ship of the line; The navy in battle.

Booklist 40:258 Mr 15 '44

"Recommended for young people's collection as a colorful attractive summary for use as recreational reading rather than for detailed information." M. C. Scoggin
+ Library J 68:895 N 1 '43 70w

BLATZ, WILLIAM EMET. Understanding the young child. 278p $2.50 Morrow

136.7 Child study 44-4644

A manual for students, teachers, and workers with children. It forms an introduction to the psychological and physiological development of the child of nursery school age. The author is director of the Institute of child study at the University of Toronto. The book is partly based on experiences in a training center for children established in England by the author and his associates. Bibliography. Index.

"The book is not one to be read quickly for entertainment, or with the expectation of arriving at certain magic formulas. But if it is read thoughtfully, with much marking of passages to be reread and digested, the parent who is willing to take the time will be rewarded." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p9 Jl 30 '44 400w

Booklist 40:333 Je 1 '44

Bookmark 5:3 My '44

Reviewed by Frances Crowther
Canadian Forum 24:265 F '45 350w

"A popular educator of long standing and national reputation writes here of the psycho-physiological development of the child, in terms of allover patterns rather than specifics, the broad outline rather than the actual handling. . . Material . . . is not original, reflects a reasonable, but not too liberal, point of view—by a man who set the pace and the standards some years ago, and who now represents a sound middle-of-the road position. The mother with no background on the subject needs something more elementary; this is keyed rather to child study groups, P.T.A. study, teachers and those dealing professionally with young children."
Kirkus 12:133 Mr 15 '44 180w

Social Forces 23:236 D '44 100w

Weekly Book Review p23 Je 4 '44 250w

BLAU, JOSEPH LEON. Christian interpretation of the cabala in the renaissance. 167p $2.25 Columbia univ. press

296 Cabala. Christianity and other religions —Judaism A44-2939

"This study of types of Christian interpretation of the cabala represents the first attempt at an adequate, balanced treatment of Christian cabalism. . . It is the general theme of this book that the use of cabala by Christian thinkers was a fad of no lasting significance; that, no matter what type of interpretation was momentarily aided by cabalistic speculation, this type of speculation rapidly proved a blind alley. That this proved to be so is unquestionably due to the fact that during the very period in which Pico della Mirandola and John Reuchlin and their followers were attempting to utilize cabalistic thought as a basis for their deductive systems, Copernicus, Kepler, and Bruno were building the foundations of scientific systems whose value in use has proved to be so much greater than that of the old systems. Like astrology, alchemy, and other pseudo-sciences, cabala fell a legitimate victim to the development of scientific thinking." (Foreword) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 61:901 Ag 2 '44 1250w

"A work of fine and exact scholarship in a field that modern scholars know little of or naught." J. A. Montgomery
+ Crozer Q 21:336 O '44 400w

BLISS, GILBERT AMES. Mathematics for exterior ballistics. 128p $2 Wiley

623.54 Ballistics. Mathematics 44-4498

"A book on the elementary calculus and differential equations used in the theory and computation of the trajectories and their differential corrections listed in range tables for artillery fire control." (Publisher's note) Author is Professor Emeritus of Mathematics, the University of Chicago. Bibliography. Index.

Library J 69:462 My 15 '44 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:21 Ap '44

Special Libraries 35:101 Mr '44

BLOCH, HENRY SIMON, and HOSELITZ, BERTHOLD FRANK. Economics of military occupation, selected problems. 141p $1.25 Foundation press

330.19355 Military occupation. World war, 1939—Economic aspects 44-970

"This book is a general introduction to the following problems: military currency, exchange rates, banking, taxation, price control and rationing, and production control under military occupation. Besides British-American policies, it is German or Japanese experiences on which examples and assumptions are based." Ann Am Acad

---

"Probably the chief weakness of the book, at least from a scholarly point of view, is its uncritical acceptance of the correctness of Allied financial policies in the occupation of North Africa, Sicily, and Italy, and its attempt to draw a sharp contrast between the aims and methods of the Allies and of the Axis in the field of occupation finance. . . The chapter on exchange rates is particularly open to the objection of bias or naïveté. . . Parts of this review have been critical. That criticism, however, applies only to certain statements in the first two chapters of the book, and even that criticism should be considered in the light of the difficulties and handicaps under which the authors labored. They have struck out boldly in a new field. They have attempted too much too early rather than too little too late. May their number multiply!" R. A. Lester
Am Econ R 34:394 Je '44 1300w

"Past experience, such as of the last world war, is completely ignored. Nor does the book offer much that would be useful as a guide for occupational authorities; it does not even discuss the official Army and Navy regulations. Briefly, it amounts to a restatement of some elementary textbook economics, dressed up in a fashion to create the misleading appearance of relevance to policy-making and administration." Melchior Palyi
— Am J Soc 50:156 S '44 300w

"Much of the discussion in the volume is of questions and policies which will be decided by higher authority rather than by the officer in the field. Those at the higher level should find the book useful in pointing out alternative policies and the probable effects of each. The book should be read also by officers who serve in lower administrative positions, since it will give them a better understanding of the policies they are called upon to administer. The material is well organized, the problems are clearly presented, and the judgments expressed are sound." C. M. Kneier
+ Am Pol Sci R 38:601 Je '44 320w

Reviewed by Alfred Manes
Ann Am Acad 232:199 Mr '44 270w

Booklist 40:295 My 1 '44

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:491 Ap '44 10w

"The authors have given us, in this all too brief volume, a superbly organized and eminently sound treatment."
+ New Repub 110:190 F 7 '44 180w

"As an interim effort, meant for use in class-instruction, the present volume is well done and most welcome. It states many of the problems and gives some indication of how these have been met in previous operations." R. J. Saulnier
+ Pol Sci Q 59:316 Je '44 230w

BLODGETT, RALPH HAMILTON. Comparative economic systems. 845p $4 Macmillan

330.15 Economics. Socialism 44-1574

"Professor Blodgett (University of Illinois) has written a comprehensive study of economic systems by topics, rather than by systems. In other words he endeavors to consider the same subject in the light of the various systems at one time, rather than by economic periods. The second part of the volume is devoted to the discussion of Marxian socialism in its many aspects. Each chapter has a series of questions prepared on the basis of the particular topic." Current Hist

"Dr. Blodgett has written a book which gives the student a good picture of comparative economic systems as they existed when the present war moved into high gear. He has employed in this difficult field a clear, easy, and teachable style and an excellent handling of economic principles and concepts, already well demonstrated in his principles and problems books, for the benefit of those students who have difficulty in understanding the essentials of 'planned' and 'unplanned' societies." H. D. Koontz

+ Am Econ R 34:903 D '44 2050w

Reviewed by Seba Eldridge
Am Soc R 9:578 O '44 550w

"While giving more attention than do other volumes on this subject to the workings of the capitalist system, Dr. Blodgett's volume fails to deal with systems of utopian thought, and with such schools of socialist thought as those of the Fabians and the guildsmen, while the section on Marxian socialism confines itself too much to the works of Marx on the one hand and of Russian Communism on the other. Nor does the book cover, except incidentally, the important consumers' co-operative movement. . . As a whole, the book is an important contribution to the literature on important economic orders and a welcome addition to economic studies." H. W. Laidler

+ — Ann Am Acad 236:205 N '44 430w

"An excellent textbook."

+ Current Hist 6:438 My '44 110w

BLOMMEL, WILLIAM R.; WHEATLEY, BENJAMIN W., and JOHNSON, EDWIN L. Elementary rivet theory. 57p il spir pa $1 Van Nostrand

629.1341 Airplanes—Design and construction. Rivets 44-2093

"A manual for beginners in aircraft production, and for industrial and vocational schools. It covers safety rules, layout and drilling procedure, rivet computations, riveting methods, inspection and repairs." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:204 Mr 1 '44 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:11 Ja '44

BLOOM, SOL. Our heritage; George Washington and the establishment of the American union; with a biographical sketch by Ira E. Bennett. 662p il $5 Putnam

B or 92 Washington, George. U.S. Constitution. U.S.—Foreign relations 44-4953

The book is composed of four parts: a short biography of Sol Bloom; Sol Bloom on George Washington; Sol Bloom on the Constitution; and Sol Bloom on foreign affairs, with a collection of tributes to Mr Bloom from some eminent Americans. Index.

Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 5 '44 400w

"It is impossible to imagine that anyone is really going to read this huge bundle of printed paper, but even those who merely thumb through it are apt to come away with three dominant impressions—that our most important heritage is Sol Bloom, that Sol Bloom wrote the Constitution, and that the father of his country was Sol Bloom's own little boy."

— New Yorker 20:83 Je 3 '44 150w

BLOOM, VERA. There's no place like Washington. 296p il $3 Putnam

917.53 Washington, D.C.—Social life and customs 44-9314

Reminiscences of social life in Washington, during the period from 1923 to the present, written by the only daughter of Congressman Bloom. The author also describes her trips abroad, and especially her presentation at court in England, and her "discovery" of Mussolini.

Booklist 41:106 D 1 '44
Boston Globe p13 N 22 '44 200w
Christian Science Monitor p18 D 6 '44 430w
Kirkus 12:422 S 15 '44 90w

"Not a necessary purchase on a restricted budget, but a pleasant evening's reading for those interested in the human touches in contemporary cosmopolitan and diplomatic circles." M. C. Manley

+Library J 69:935 N 1 '44 110w

"Miss Bloom, in the line of duty, went to everything and met 'everybody,' and seems to have enjoyed the process. Although she writes in the style of the gossip columnists—referring to people with their nicknames in quotes and lavish with adjectives—she is never malicious. It is a good-tempered book: when she has nothing pleasant to say, she is silent except for already established villains—and these, as any reader knows, have been set up for so many knockout punches that one more is hardly news." Mary Poore

+ N Y Times p41 D 3 '44 440w

" 'There's No Place Like Washington' is a good name for a good book. . . As the daughter of Mr. Bloom, Miss Bloom had a better look at the glamorous diplomatic side of Washington than most congressmen's daughters and for that matter most congressmen themselves. She has been able to watch Washington society from a vantage point that few reach, has observed accurately, and writes well." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p4d N 19 '44 330w

"This is a book that women, particularly society women and others who entertain a lot, will heartily enjoy. . . This book would have been better had it been written before the war when the incidents about the Coolidge and Hoover administrations would seem more appropriate." Leo Cullinane

+ Weekly Book Review p18 N 19 '44 700w

BLUMENTHAL, GERTRUDE. Tit for tat Tommy; pictures by Charlotte Becker. [47p] $1.50 Oxford

44-7481

Tommy, a small boy with a habit of swapping toys, was having a good time in the country, until in one of his swaps he acquired a turtle. The turtle was always getting into things—cooking pots, father's slippers—and Tommy nearly lost his pet. A picture story book for ages four to seven.

Booklist 41:61 O 15 '44
Kirkus 12:400 S 1 '44 60w

"The adventures the turtle brings to Tommy will delight any little boy, who, probably, has at some time had very similar experiences. Many good illustrations by Charlotte Becker. Recommended." Olive Brain

+ Library J 69:884 O 15 '44 70w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
N Y Times p26 N 5 '44 110w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p5 S 17 '44 100w
Wis Lib Bul 40:148 N '44

BOAK, ARTHUR EDWARD ROMILLY. History of Rome to 565 A.D. 3d ed 552p il maps $4.50 Macmillan

937 Rome—History 44-283

"A historical text for large collections or college libraries. Partly rewritten, with new illustrations. Chronological and genealogical tables and supplementary tables." (Booklist) "The passing of thirteen years alone would seem to justify the revision of an historical text that made any pretence of keeping in touch with the results of current research in its field. But, in this case, since the appearance of the first revision, notable advances have been made in the study of Roman History, owing both to the discovery of new and important evidence and the fruitful reassessment of the old. . . In preparing this new edition, I have tried not only to make generally available the results of recent scholarly research but also to modify or discard in the light of more mature consideration what previously appeared to me to be sound conclusions. This has necessitated the complete rewriting of considerable portions of the text, and I have taken the opportunity thus offered to try to present a clearer, more readable, and, at the same time in some cases, a more detailed narrative." (Pref. to the 3d ed) Supplementary reading. Index.

Booklist 40:321 My 15 '44

"It is a pleasure to welcome the new edition of this excellent text. Like its predecessors, it gives a remarkably great amount and variety of valuable information in relatively small space, though several of the sections that formerly were unduly compressed have been expanded. In addition, there has been considerable recasting and rearranging. The result is a more readable version, which is likely to prove easier to students. Yet the most remarkable feature of the revision is its thoroughness." J. A. O. Larsen

+ Class Philol 39:142 Ap '44 400w

BOARDMAN, PHILIP L. Patrick Geddes, maker of the future; with an introd. by Lewis Mumford. 504p il $5 Univ. of N.C. press

B or 92 Geddes, Sir Patrick 44-40180

Biography, sometimes slightly fictionized, of Sir Patrick Geddes, Scotch scientist, city planner, and educator. The record of "the labors which Patrick Geddes undertook for the well-being of his fellow human beings in England, Ireland, Scotland, France, Palestine, India, Cyprus and other places is staggering. All his life he fought against slums, disease, ignorance and economic injustice. His idea of peace was, in fact, an unremitting struggle against all of these things." (Commonweal) Index.

Reviewed by C. S. Ascher

Ann Am Acad 237:239 Ja '45 650w

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick

Book Week p2 D 17 '44 140w

Booklist 41:57 O 15 '44

"Mr. Boardman has done admirably in giving the many facets of a man who has said and done so much in every conceivable direction. The one disappointing lack in his biography is any real indication as to what the Geddes conception of regional planning is. For that is the field in which Geddes is best known and has had the greatest influence. . . The author is obviously a disciple. Even so, his presentation of the Geddes idiosyncrasies is so forthright that some readers may wonder a little whether he thinks he is presenting the picture of a real genius or that of one of the most colorful and public spirited 'characters' in recent times."

+ — Commonweal 40:591 O 6 '44 750w

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook

Current Hist 7:499 D '44 80w

"Boardman is gently humorous without condescension, loyal without servility. He writes smoothly, pleasantly, with bits of romanced technique which do not seriously hurt." Albert Guérard

+ Nation 159:566 N 4 '44 300w

"Lewis Mumford has written an eloquent and true preface to the book. Philip Boardman's biography is extremely useful, but quite without analysis and written in a supposedly popular romantic style that is rather painful." Paul Goodman

+ — New Repub 111:806 D 11 '44 550w

"Until this biography appeared we had only a few short studies of Geddes. Boardman has therefore broken much new ground. To him we owe not only a full-length picture of a vivid personality but something like a critique of the doctrines that Geddes did his best to promulgate." Waldemar Kaempffert

+ N Y Times p6 O 1 '44 1300w

"Mr. Boardman has written an outstanding biography of a dynamic but obscure personality whose constructive work in sociology is not generally recognized. It is about time that justice is done to the insurgent, synthesizing Geddes, the most distinguished Scotsman of his time, and Mr. Boardman has seen to it that justice is done in a volume which is both a life history and somewhat of a critique." Waldemar Kaempffert

+ Sat R of Lit 27:60 O 14 '44 550w

Reviewed by Bruno Lasker

Survey G 33:460 N '44 600w

"There are books which achieve miraculous harmony through the very contrast between author and subject. Philip Boardman is lucid, equable, soberly smiling. In his alert pedestrian way he manages to follow Geddes's bewildering flight. He writes well, out of full knowledge and sympathy, with bits of romanced technique frankly meant to placate the Tired Business Man. He can even, in after-dinner mood, slip in a Rabelaisian anecdote (totally irrelevant) straight out of Courteline. His book is a long Epistle to the Rotarians, but it expounds the Geddesian Gospel. Heaven knows that the Rotarians and the Geddeses need one another!" Albert Guerard

+ Weekly Book Review p9 D 24 '44 1850w

BODLEY, RONALD VICTOR COURTENAY. Wind in the Sahara. 224p $3 Coward-McCann

916.611 Sahara 44-40122

An English ex-army officer, a friend of Gertrude Bell and T. E. Lawrence, spent seven years among the Arabs in North Africa. He severed all ties with his world, wore Arab dress, practised the Moslem faith, and earned his living as a shepherd. His main reason for going was to find peace of mind, and his search was successful. In this account of those years he includes a great deal of information about Arabian ways of life. Glossary.

Reviewed by W. F. Morse

Book Week p4 My 28 '44 300w

Booklist 40:339 Je 1 '44

Kirkus 12:247 Je 1 '44 150w

"The narrative rings true, with the possible exception of the Belara episode, the beautiful Bedouin girl with whom the author lived for a time; here, a Hollywood ghost may have whispered in the author's ear. The main weakness, however, from which the book suffers is the fact that its writer is not versed in Moslem history and Arabic literature." P. K. Hitti

+ — N Y Times p23 Jl 9 '44 900w

"[The author] accumulated a mass of information about the Arabs, and his book, while no 'Arabia Deserta' or 'Seven Pillars of Wisdom,' is, in its modest way, one of the most important contributions to our understanding of the Arabs since those books came along."

+ New Yorker 20:83 My 20 '44 130w

"The entire book is one of the most remarkable that has ever come out of the desert. Every word is sincere, every page displays respect and admiration for the nomads, not only as Arabs but as human beings. 'Wind in the Sahara' is the narrative a literate Moslem might tell the outside world of the life of his people." P. J. Searles

+ Weekly Book Review p4 My 28 '44 800w

BODMER, FREDERICK. Loom of language; Lancelot Hogben, editor. 692p il $3.75 Norton [15s Allen, G]

410 Language and languages. Philology, Comparative 44-40079

"Study of the origin, the growth and the present use for communication between peoples. . . It provides for the individual who wishes to learn the languages spoken by our nearest European neighbors a 'working knowledge of the indispensable elements of grammar with a basic vocabulary for self expression.'" (Library J) Index.

BODMER, FREDERICK—Continued

"On the whole this book is one which general language students have been greatly needing. The second part is the most intelligent discussion yet published of the problems of constructing a synthetic or artificial language." I. A. Richards

+ Atlantic 173:133 Ap '44 480w

Reviewed by S. I. Hayakawa

Book Week p1 Mr 26 '44 1300w

Booklist 40:279 Ap 15 '44

Bookmark 5:5 Mr '44

"The way in which it goes about its task is highly interesting and somewhat provocative to the studious reader. Whether it would be equally satisfying as a practical guide along the language road could only be proved by someone who would take the time to put it to the test. Time and hard work would both be needed, for this book is no get-rich-quick manual. It is a lengthy and extremely scholarly work which aims at breaking down the barrier between the philologist and colloquialist. It popularizes in the best sense of the world." Margaret Williams

+ Cath World 159:469 Ag '44 750w

"The value of 'The Loom of Language' lies in its capacity to ease the burden of language-learning. One may as well say at the outset that it opens up no royal road to linguistic proficiency. What it does do is to brighten that road, to show where it is leading, and to indicate where it comes from." Harold Hobson

+ Christian Science Monitor p13 Mr 18 '44

Reviewed by W. P. Sears

Churchman 158:17 Je 1 '44 90w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Je '44

"I was fascinated by the idea back of this book—and disappointed in the results. Even the Lancelot Hogben touch was insufficient to lift it from the slough of serious scholarship to a level of popularization of the subject in which my interest did not need to be aroused. Sorry! perhaps you'll feel differently."

+ — Kirkus 12:51 F 1 '44 320w

"Written by an eminent philologist and edited by Lancelot Hogben, author of Mathematics for the Million, this book is an indispensable volume for every public library." M. E. Clark

+ Library J 69:261 Mr 15 '44 80w

Manchester Guardian p3 F 23 '44 330w

"'The Loom of Language,' despite some serious shortcomings of method and of manner, is a book for the times by virtue of its intelligent discussion of linguistic problems and its resolute insistence that for the ordinarily intelligent adult there is no insuperable obstacle to the learning of several languages." George Genzmer

+ — Nation 158:484 Ap 22 '44 1150w

Reviewed by Kenneth Burke

New Repub 110:566 Ap 24 '44 1400w

"Hard reading, but extremely interesting." Leonard Woolf

+ New Statesman & Nation 27:144 F 26 '44 550w

"No truer words were ever spoken than that 'The Loom' will supply adults 'a basis for sustained study.' The length of time this study will be sustained will depend entirely upon the adults and not at all on 'The Loom,' for it is virtually inexhaustible." M. M. Mathews

N Y Times p3 Mr 26 '44 800w

"The book will be valuable to anybody occupied with language. It is full of fascinating information derived from the study of linguistics."

+ New Yorker 20:89 Ap 8 '44 230w

Reviewed by Jacques Barzun

Sat R of Lit 27:8 Jl 1 '44 2050w

"'The Loom of Language' shows the weakness and the strength of books which present a large amount of material. The average nonprofessional is tremendously impressed with the array of facts and ideas condensed within a few pages, while the specialist finds his particular field somewhat inadequately and often inaccurately treated. Since 'The Loom of Language' does not claim to be a completely scholarly study of European languages, its inadequacy can be pardoned perhaps and its inaccuracy in part at least forgiven." Margaret Woodbridge

Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 22 '44 650w

Reviewed by A. D. Sheffield

Survey G 33:258 My '44 300w

"Of this work it is difficult to assess the value, because everything depends on the state of knowledge or ignorance of the student. Unquestionably he will find many useful hints towards acquiring a foreign language."

Times [London] Lit Sup p94 F 19 '44 150w

"There is much that can honestly be claimed for 'The Loom of Language.' The student of languages who buys and reads it will get his money's worth. He will find a learned, sometimes limited, but generally interesting history of language." Christian Gauss

+ Weekly Book Review p5 Mr 26 '44 1900w

Wis Lib Bul 40:83 Je '44

Reviewed by R. J. Menner

Yale R n s 34:187 autumn '44 700w

BOECOP-MALYE, MARIE THERESE COLETTE, barones van. The king tree. 242p $2.50 Doubleday

44-40000

The scene is laid mainly in Sumatra; the story is concerned with Perez, a Dutch-Portuguese, who had married a half-caste woman, and carved a small empire for their descendants to rule over. The life of three generations is traced in Sumatra and The Hague, and ends with the death of Perez' grandson, killed by the natives because he had destroyed the object of their veneration—the king tree.

"The neither-nor tragedy of the half-caste, as well the whole story of plundering aggression and racial exploitation behind colonial development, is ably brought to focus in this novel. . . This is far from a new theme in fiction, but the author of 'The King Tree,' has conceived her conflict in careful and thoughtful terms, and what has thus far been a workmanlike but far from dazzling narrative works into a telling, artistically subtle conclusion, with explosive psychological and social implications." Peter De Vries

+ Book Week p4 Ja 16 '44 380w

Booklist 40:198 F 1 '44

"A good book can be enjoyed and a bad book can be ignored, but a novel like Baroness van Boecop's 'The King Tree' seems deliberately designed to drive the reading public to drink. It fits no classification. It is serious and it is silly. The action is violent, but the sum total is static. It is full of liquor and native mistresses and general loose living—and it is pervaded by an atmosphere of Sunday School priggishness. 'Provocative' is one word that could be used in describing it. 'Exasperating' is another." Jane Cobb

N Y Times p26 Ja 9 '44 320w

"A serious but human story." Frederick Reinstein

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 16 '44 500w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p12 Ja 30 '44 380w

BOESEL, MRS ANN STERLING. Singing with Peter and Patsy; il. by Pelagie Doane. 48p $2 Oxford

44-40139

Simple little songs, with music, teaching the pre-school child how to carry a tune by teaching him little songs about his daily life. Illustrated.

Book Week p5 Je 4 '44 120w

Booklist 40:379 Jl 1 '44

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 20:289 Jl '44 70w

"Picture book value will catch any five or six year old's attention, and the simple rhythms and melodies will fill a need for nursery school use."

+ Kirkus 12:235 My 15 '44 50w

"This is especially designed to help children learn to sing in tune, but the short little songs about familiar things and experiences will appeal to any nursery and kindergarten age group. . . Recommended for preschool and children's music collections." E. G. Mullan
+ Library J 69:555 Je 15 '44 70w

"The songs can be used on the same principle as a language record, which by playing continually gets to work in the subconscious. See, for instance, the tiny boy in this picture, buttoning his pajamas to his own easy, appropriate music. The preface tells just how to introduce the tunes to little children, at home or in school." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Je 18 '44 200w

BOGARDUS, EMORY STEPHEN. Dictionary of cooperation (including supplementary materials). 60p pa 75c Co-op. league of the U.S.A.

334.03 Cooperation—Dictionaries 44-1678

"This is exactly what its name indicates, a dictionary of names, technical terms, facts and events related to the theory and practice of co-operatives." Christian Century

Christian Century 61:209 F 16 '44 20w
Commonweal 39:549 Mr 17 '44 70w

"The dictionary, which is more an encyclopaedia in miniature, is timely and important. In one sense this publication indicates the maturing of the cooperative movement in the United States. Also, it reflects to some extent the present immaturity of the movement. Perhaps most significant, it represents a striving towards maturity, and in that striving, some wishful thinking." C. M. Smith
+ — Social Forces 22:464 My '44 550w

BOGART, WILLIAM. Murder is forgetful. 255p $2 Arcadia

44-40378

Detective story.

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p20 N 19 '44 120w

"A harmless offering." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p29 N 19 '44 70w

BOK, BART JAN, and WRIGHT, FRANCES WOODWORTH. Basic marine navigation. 422p il maps $6; kit of practice materials $1.70 Houghton

527 Navigation 44-4997

"[The book] developed out of a series of courses for the United States Army Engineer Amphibian Command, and the special aspects of air navigation are omitted. . . Particularly interesting, and important, is the chapter on emergency navigation, showing how a lifeboat may be navigated with the aid of crude and improvised instruments." (Weekly Book Review) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:699 S 1 '44 10w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:46 Jl '44

"As an introduction to the navigation of the seas it is one of the best books that have yet appeared." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p19 Ag 13 '44 100w

BOLTZ, CECIL LEONARD. Basic radio. 272p $2.25 Ronald [5s Nelson]

621.3841 Radio 44-2838

"Elementary electrical theory is dealt with simply and at some length. This is followed by discussions of valves and other fundamental devices used in radio. A British textbook. Includes questions and answers." N Y New Tech Bks

Library J 69:31 Ja 1 '44 10w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:11 Ja '44

BOND, DONALD S. Radio direction finders. 287p il $3 McGraw

621.384 Direction finding apparatus 44-5578

"Based for the most part on lectures delivered under the auspices of the Moore School of Electrical Engineering of the University of Pennsylvania to engineers on the staff of the Radio Corporation of America. The treatment is aimed at electrical engineers who plan to specialize in the theory and design of direction finders; hence the equivalent of a bachelor's degree in engineering is assumed. Although some recent developments had to be omitted for military reasons, the book is an important addition to the scant literature of its subject." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 41:11 S '44
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:605 Jl '44 60w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:30 Ap '44

"The theory portions of the book should be helpful to anyone actually engaged in direction-finder design; the entire book is helpful to anyone wishing to get himself up to date on this subject, which is bound to assume more and more importance after the war." Keith Henney
+ R of Scientific Instruments 15:263 O '44 600w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 14 '45 100w

BOND, GUY LORAINE, and BOND, EVA. Teaching the child to read. 356p $3 Macmillan

372.4 Reading (elementary) 43-11584

Outlines a program of teaching reading which "can actually [be] put into operation." "The program recommended is practical and relatively simple. The authors have outlined the indispensable teaching methods without undue elaboration or detail of procedure. The program is comprehensive. Every important phase from informal preparatory or background activities to testing achievement and diagnosing unusual cases is included." (Pref) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

"A comprehensive reading program. Many books have been written on the subject of teaching children to read, but few can be put into the hands of students and in-service teachers with the confidence in their usability with which the Bonds' book can be presented. The authors have the rare combination of practical experience in teaching, a thorough knowledge of the field, and the ability to interpret their experience and knowledge and to present a workable program. . . This book will make its best contribution as a textbook in reading methods or as a handbook for young teachers of reading." Nina Jacob
+ El School J 44:430 Mr '44 550w
School & Society 58:96 Ag 7 '43 30w

BONETT, EMERY, pseud. See Carter, F. W.

BONNAMY, FRANCIS, pseud. See Walz, A.

BONNER, MARY GRAHAM. Couriers of the sky; the story of pigeons. 82p il $1.50 Knopf

636.596 Pigeons Agr44-223

Guide to the raising of pigeons, for pleasure or for use in war. The book gives history of the pigeon, characteristics of families, care, feeding, housing, breeding and training. Contains lists of pigeon magazines and clubs.

Booklist 41:61 O 15 '44

"Should prove a valuable and useful addition to reference books on the subject."
+ Kirkus 12:406 S 1 '44 110w

"A splendid, informative and enlightening book for those interested in raising pigeons for pleasure or profit. . . A fast moving, well-told story. Recommended." Leota Herron
+ Library J 69:884 O 15 '44 70w
Sat R of Lit 27:49 N 11 '44 20w

BONNEY, THERESE. Europe's children, 1939 to 1943. ltd autog ed pa $3 The author, 117 E. 30th st, N.Y. 16; enl ed $3 Duell

940.53161 World war, 1939—Children. World war, 1939—Pictorial works 43-13308

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

"As an argument for shipping American food to the Nazi-occupied nations of Europe, this pictorial tract would be difficult to surpass. The terror of war, the starving bodies of children, the relief which the sponsors believe could be offered, without endangering the Allied war effort against Germany, are movingly presented in dramatic photographs and a brief accompanying text." W. S.

+ Book Week p9 My 21 '44 140w

Booklist 40:266 Ap 1 '44

Bookmark 5:17 Mr '44

Reviewed by Gwenyth Grube
Canadian Forum 24:22 Ap '44 420w

"Miss Bonney, though stark in her methods, is always the good reporter. You never feel that she has devoted herself to a hunt for horror. It is as if she were saying: 'Look! See what war does to the great mass of the people, particularly the children.' "

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 F 19 '44 320w

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '44

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:658 Jl '44 10w

Kirkus 12:193 Ap 15 '44 130w

"One feels the restraint in the starvation pictures. There are not many of these—only a few emaciated forms with hideously distended abdomens. But lest the most war-calloused seek to evade the purpose of her book, Miss Bonney has with biting irony captioned the most ghastly picture of them all—'the foundations of the post-war world.' For, make no mistake, Miss Bonney's superb photography is a call to action." Frances Witherspoon

+ N Y Times p8 Mr 26 '44 480w

BONSAL, STEPHEN. Unfinished business; introd. by Hugh Gibson. 313p $3 Doubleday

940.3141 Peace conference, 1919. Versailles, Treaty of, 1919. League of nations 44-40037

The author of this diary of the Paris Peace conference, was a foreign correspondent who had spent many years in Europe and was considered an expert in Balkan affairs. In 1915 he became a friend of Colonel House and later it was on the Colonel's recommendation that he was chosen "to sit with President Wilson and Colonel House and interpret for them the proceedings of secret meetings when no stenographic notes were kept and no official translations made."

"It need hardly be said that Colonel Bonsal writes well and tells his stories with verve, without using the flashy style favored by so many contemporary correspondents. Further installments from his diaries will be cordially welcomed." B. E. Schmitt

+ Am Hist R 49:685 Jl '44 800w

"A more timely book than this could hardly be imagined. In the construction of a durable and effective fabric of collective security, the world truly faces 'unfinished business'; and from a hitherto unknown source. . . We find a strong light poured on the reasons why the first effort broke down. This intimate and revealing impression of events in 1919 contains valuable sections on Vienna and Southeastern Europe, on war-ravaged Berlin, and on Washington, but its most striking pages describe what went on behind closed doors in Paris." Allan Nevins

+ Atlantic 173:129 Ap '44 800w

Reviewed by Jack Conroy
Book Week p4 F 27 '44 800w

Booklist 40:226 Mr 1 '44

Bookmark 5:11 My '44

"In view of the fact that the notes were taken in secret sessions, where no secretaries were allowed, and published without any other change than that of a slight rearrangement of dates, they form a valuable addition to the literature of the Versailles Treaty and the League of Nations, constituting, indeed an original source. . . The curious reader will search vainly in these notes for many items never set down in writing or excluded by the strict censorship of the author. Yet enough is here to throw illuminating sidelights on the business left unfinished by the statesmen who rearranged the world of Versailles." Joseph McSorley

+ Cath World 159:90 Ap '44 360w

Christian Century 61:563 My 3 '44 360w

"It would be an error to think of this volume in purely political terms, for it abounds in warm human touches, in convincing thumbnail impressions of many of the leading actors in this great tragedy. Colonel Bonsal makes no bones about his personal likes and dislikes although his tone is always calm. He pushes the reader gently in a certain direction but leaves to him the final judgment on each statesman. He is human and humane, compassionate and understanding and as convincing an apologist for the Wilson-House peace effort as could appear."

+ Commonweal 39:498 Mr 3 '44 900w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:656 Jl '44 60w

Kirkus 11:567 D 15 '43 170w

Reviewed by A. B. Lindsay
Library J 69:158 F 15 '44 100w

Reviewed by Albert Guerard
Nation 158:569 My 13 '44 600w

Reviewed by K. Zilliacus
New Statesman & Nation 28:325 N 11 '44 1200w

"Mr. Bonsal speaks to us in this timely book as a witness of the scenes and struggles of a quarter of a century ago, when the business of peacemaking tragically was left unfinished. His words are those of an observer at the spot, unchanged by the perspective of the intervening years and the lessons of recent experiences. His account has not been 'doctored'; it is an original source account now given first publication. It gains thereby, not only in authenticity but also in weight. It is published now because the problems of that day are the problems of today. World War II is only a continuation of World War I, of business left unfinished then." Hans Kohn

+ N Y Times p1 F 20 '44 2000w

"The author, who managed to be a confidential adviser to both Woodrow Wilson and Colonel House simultaneously, apparently went everywhere, saw everybody, and kept a comprehensive diary, now published for the first time. A noted foreign correspondent in his time, Colonel Bonsal has a sharp reporter's eye, an excellent sense of selection, the ability to tell a story, and something of the historian's objective point of view. Extremely interesting and, as a documentary record of the period, most important."

+ New Yorker 20:87 F 19 '44 110w

"Despite its fragmentary nature, this volume is an interesting account of peacemaking twenty-five years ago. It has, however, some highly irritating features. For one thing, despite Mr. Hugh Gibson's introductory statement that this diary is 'undoctored', the text has not been left in its original form. Frequent, and often confusing, additions have been made to the original." G. A. Craig

+ — Pol Sci Q 59:607 D '44 1200w

"A book of valuable source history. . . Bonsal wondered, as he closed his book, whether his records of bitter dissension will be of help to those who will have the responsibility when the next attempt is made to save the world from 'the plight it flounders in today.' They should be." E. G. Sisson

+ Sat R of Lit 27:26 F 26 '44 2100w

Reviewed by Raymond Wilson
Spec 173:462 N 17 '44 1100w

Springf'd Republican p7e F 27 '44 750w

Reviewed by Phillips Bradley
Survey G 33:253 My '44 400w

Time 43:99 F 28 '44 1600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p256 My 27 '44 1200w

"Colonel Bonsal presents his book with an engaging modesty. . . Yet it is a good deal more than the 'footnote to history,' which is all that the author claims for it. It is, rather, a chapter and not the least significant one in the full story of the Peace of Versailles. Colonel Bonsal was an intelligent and honest man in an excellent observation post. The main outlines of the story he tells have long been known, but if he does not alter the picture materially, he illuminates many of its obscurities and supplies a large amount of fascinating detail." G. W. Johnson

+ Weekly Book Review p3 F 27 '44 1200w

Wis Lib Bul 40:53 Ap '44

BOODIN, JOHN ELOF. Religion of tomorrow. 189p $2.50 Philosophical lib.

201 Christianity—Philosophy 43-13860

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

"J. E. Boodin, the philosopher, has here written a non-technical book which summarizes his profound thought in the vocabulary and conceptions of a well educated religious layman. In elegant prose which is adequate to a rare and precious exaltation of the human spirit, he indicates that the religion of tomorrow will be a new formulation by man of his consciousness of an eternal presence adequate to hold our social structure together." W. B. Blakemore, Jr.

+ Christian Century 61:273 Mr 1 '44 600w

"Though the author modestly says that this book is not addressed to professional philosophers, it might be optimistic to suppose that none or few of them could learn from it. It gives a relatively simple, very readable, and often poetically vivid and eloquent account of liberal religion as it is now coming to be. There is good balance as between metaphysical and ethical or sociological considerations. . . I feel impelled to pick one quarrel with this book. The author gives a somewhat truncated and, in my opinion, confused and inconsistent version of the 'redefinition of God' which he rightly says is required. . . There is a similar lack of clarity as to the problem of mind and matter." Charles Hartshorne

+ — Ethics 54:233 Ap '44 600w

"Professor Boodin does not seem especially concerned with the problems of church life and of ecclesiastical statesmanship. He deals, rather, with the essential nature and quality of the religious life as such. His book has been written to help thoughtful souls in this age of stress. . . He writes with an emotional sincerity that again and again kindles his thought into the eloquence of poetic prose." J. M. L. Thomas

+ Hibbert J 42:184 Ja '44 1650w

"This book is a highly successful attempt to state in simple, searching terms the broader religious implications of a profoundly theistic philosophy. . . The entire book is so rich that it is a thankless task to call attention to certain inadequacies. . . Dr Boodin has yet to come to grips with the meaning of the church. When he does that as effectively as this book does with the idea of man's communion with God, he will have rounded out his tremendous contribution to religion." Harold Bosley

+ — J Religion 24:143 Ap '44 550w

BOOTH, CHARLES GORDON. Mr Angel comes aboard. 207p $2 Doubleday

44-5273

Mystery and adventure tale of the sea.

"Fair."

Boston Globe p19 My 31 '44 50w

"High marks."

+ Kirkus 12:126 Mr 15 '44 90w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p10 My 21 '44 80w

New Yorker 20:84 My 20 '44 90w

"Up to snuff."

+ Sat R of Lit 27:29 My 27 '44 40w

"Mr. Booth writes rings around most of his competitors. Read this for salty romance." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p16 My 21 '44 70w

BOOTH, HAROLD SIMMONS, and DAMERELL, VIVIAN RICHARD. Quantitative analysis. 2d ed 303p il $2.50 McGraw

545 Chemistry, Analytic—Quantitative 44-1026

"In this second edition the text has been thoroughly reexamined in the light of suggestions from students and teachers. Certain passages have been clarified or expanded, and additional self-examination questions have been added. The general plan of the book, however, remains the same. In response to many requests from users of this text we have introduced problems in gravimetric and volumetric analysis. These have been grouped for discussion of principles into a simplified number of types, with appropriate explanations and examples. . . Seven additional determinations—the determination of tin in brass, the determination of loss upon ignition, nitrogen by the Kjeldahl method, antimony in stibnite, the determination of sulfur in steel, and a chapter on colorimetric analysis including determinations of manganese and molybdenum—have been added." (Pref) Index.

"Chapters are terse and brief, averaging only seven pages each. The book can be used for one- or two-term courses and, with accompanying classroom time, will give a satisfactory groundwork in quantitative analysis."

+ Chem & Met Eng 51:195 N '44 120w

Library J 69:31 Ja 1 '44 30w

BOTKIN, BENJAMIN ALBERT, ed. Treasury of American folklore; stories, ballads, and traditions of the people; with a foreword by Carl Sandburg. 932p $3 Crown

398 Folklore, American 44-4275

Material in this large volume is grouped under the headings: Heroes and boasters; Boosters and knockers; Jesters; Liars; Folk tales and legends; Songs and rhymes, with a number of subheads under each so as to include all kinds and varieties of folk tales. Indexes.

Reviewed by Sterling North

Book Week p2 My 14 '44 1100w

Booklist 40:333 Je 1 '44

Reviewed by Dorothy Hillyer

Boston Globe p19 My 31 '44 380w

"The general impression one gains is the sheer lustiness of Americana. Cowboys, 'bad men,' lumberjacks, and big Negro laborers rollick through its pages. Many of the stories are elemental in appeal; the jokes are practical jokes, the fun is gross exaggeration, the language is colloquial, dialectical, and even rough. Here is tremendous physical vitality and an urgent materialism; but here, too, is the deep heartiness, kindliness, and genuine interest in people for which Americans are known today the world over." M. J. T.

Christian Science Monitor p12 Ag 5 '44 750w

"The menfolk and the childfolk, old and young, will delight in it. Yet obscenity is, as far as this human eye could see, absent; and profanity and vulgarity minimized." E. L. Keyes

+ Commonweal 40:139 My 26 '44 210w

"A good collection of American literary life lines—the country over—that should prove an important addition to American shelves."

+ Kirkus 12:206 My 1 '44 150w

"Most important single volume of American folklore to date. . . Extremely valuable reference tool because of source details, cross-index and encyclopedic coverage of well-known material. . . Recommended for every library in and out of the United States—if you have funds for only one book a year, buy this." E. L. Lewis

+ Library J 69:459 My 15 '44 100w

"It is big in volume and it ought to be big in scholarship, for Mr. Botkin has been specializing in folklore for a couple of decades or so, looks after the interests of folksong in the Library of Congress, and this year is president of the American Folklore Society. But this reviewer will not attempt to measure his scholarship. It is one of the beauties of folklore that no one ever gets it right. . . The most one can say, therefore, is that Mr. Botkin has made some mighty interesting pickings." R. L. Duffus

BOTKIN, B. A.—Continued

N Y Times p5 My 14 '44 1100w

"Mr. Botkin has gone about his job with enormous enthusiasm, and his collection, as Carl Sandburg says in a foreword, is nothing less than encyclopedic. A little less enthusiasm, however, plus a little more editorial discrimination, might have made it an even better book than it is."

+ — New Yorker 20:91 My 13 '44 90w

"Dr. Botkin's volume might fitly have been called a thesaurus, and encyclopedia—a literary storehouse of the stories, legends, tall tales, ballads, and songs of the American people. It is a monumental tome, a Behemoth, a Paul Bunyan among books, nearly one thousand closely packed but easy to read pages. The book represents a prodigious amount of patient and persistent labor by the editor, startling imagination and daring on the part of the publishers who have invested so heavily in a lowly and as yet unrecognized bi-product of American civilization—unrecognized by the great majority of scholars, the delvers into musty records of older peoples, who find no pleasure in the often rough and raucous output of a new people in a new land." J. A. Lomax

+ Sat R of Lit 27:18 Jl 1 '44 1450w

Reviewed by Marshall Bragdon
Springf'd Republican p6 My 13 '44 650w

"There is a good table of contents and a lengthy index, but neither one will help much to find a particular story or song. And in a way that is to the book's advantage, for this Treasury of Folklore is something to be sampled at random and at ease rather than something to be studied page by page."

+ Theatre Arts 28:445 Jl '44 400w

Time 43:104 My 29 '44 400w

"The running comment throughout the book is terse, good-humored and for the most part lacking the irritating academic tone with which only too much American folklore has been burdened in the recent past by assorted professors and thesis-hunting graduate students." Stewart Holbrook

+ Weekly Book Review p1 My 7 '44 1300w

BOULTER, HILDA WIERUM. India; il. by Rafaello Busoni. (Lands and peoples) 25p $1 Holiday
915.4 India—Juvenile literature 44-40227

Small booklet offering concise information on India for young readers. Both the India of ancient times and the India of today are covered with facts concerning life and customs, traditions and history.

Booklist 41:156 Ja 15 '45

"Provides thought provoking, stimulating material."

+ Kirkus 12:511 N 1 '44 130w

Reviewed by D. M. MacDonald
Library J 70:70 Ja 15 '45 50w

"The text is brief, informal and interesting." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 Ja 7 '45 80w

BOULTON, AGNES. The road is before us. 227p $2.50 Lippincott
44-8305

Four people on a "share-the-expense" basis, start out to drive from Pittsburgh to Florida: an elderly couple, Mr and Mrs Rawl; a young newspaperman from New York; and a colored girl. On the trip from the bleak North to the warm sunny South each pursues his own train of thoughts, memories of the past, reactions to present circumstances, dimly projected plans for the future.

"Overdone as has been the flashback in recent years, here it is at its expert and superb best. Save for two violent scenes in the latter half of the book, there is no action but that of movement. Yet in the arenas of four minds, four lifetimes are gradually unfolded, while the sometimes commercial, sometimes impoverished landscape slips past. The whole journey is delicately edged with tragedy." Ralph Peterson

+ Book Week p11 O 29 '44 600w

Booklist 41:77 N 1 '44

Kirkus 12:307 Jl 15 '44 150w

Reviewed by L. R. Etzkorn
Library J 69:698 S 1 '44 80w

" 'The Road Is Before Us' is a sad, simple story, and except for a few lapses when Edgrin's stream of consciousness emerges as if he were somehow addressing a seminar in Americana, sadly and unpretentiously told. It leaves a definite hope that Miss Boulton will keep her feet on the very promising road that lies before her." Thelma Purtell

+ — N Y Times p18 O 15 '44 440w

"In their five days on the road, the characters of three of the travellers—the kindly, unselfish old man, his spoiled old wife, and the Negro woman—emerge with startling clarity in a series of pictures done not only with skill but with compassionate understanding. The fourth, the hero of the book, never seems real. . . Miss Boulton is given to too many high-sounding reflections about the past and future of the America through which her characters are passing, but all the same hers is a talent worth following."

+ — New Yorker 20:84 O 14 '44 180w

Reviewed by A. D. H. Smith
Sat R of Lit 27:28 O 28 '44 650w

Reviewed by Thomas McEnroe
Springf'd Republican p4d N 19 '44 330w

" 'The Road Before Us' catches one's imagination and is likely to haunt one's memory for a long time because the places and persons and emotions Miss Boulton etches with restraint are so often acutely real." Mary Ross

+ Weekly Book Review p8 O 15 '44 850w

BOURKE-WHITE, MARGARET. See White, M. B.

BOWEN, MRS CATHERINE SHOBER (DRINKER). Yankee from Olympus; Justice Holmes and his family. 475p il $3 Little
B or 92 Holmes, Oliver Wendell, 1841-1935. Holmes family 44-3384

Study of a family thru three generations—the Holmes family of Massachusetts. Begins with Abiel Holmes, the minister, born in 1763; continues with Oliver Wendell Holmes, the doctor, born in 1809; and ends with Mr Chief Justice Holmes, who died in 1935. Justice Holmes is the central figure, and the preponderance of the material is devoted to him, to his friends, his career, his writings, his romance with Fanny Dixwell, and his correspondence. Lists materials and sources. Index.

" 'Yankee from Olympus' is a book that deserves widest possible reading. I hope, after the original editions are exhausted, it will live long in the publishers' lists in reprint after reprint. It is a book to understand America by. Not all of America, of course, but a big, healthy segment of it as represented by one of its greatest men—and his family." S. I. Hayakawa

+ Book Week p1 Ap 16 '44 1550w

Booklist 40:282 Ap 15 '44

Bookmark 5:17 My '44

Reviewed by L. M. Lyons
Boston Globe p17 Ap 26 '44 420w

"Delightful and distinguished book."

+ Boston Globe p30 N 29 '44 50w

"A book based on a scholarly study of sources, but free from the odor of the lamp. It abounds in anecdote, and though some of the conversations attributed to the principal characters are imaginary they are plausible interpretations with a great deal of learning as well as intuition behind them." J. C. Ford

+ Cath World 159:376 Jl '44 400w

"This book is first and last a work of art. It has the structure and movement of a well-built novel rather than the undirected flow of a biography. It does not begin and stop as the record of a life must. It is the beginning, middle and end of a well-ordered Aristotelian plot. It is written at once with warmth and with reserve." H. M. Kallen
+ Columbia Law R 44:792 S '44 1100w

" 'Yankee from Olympus' is a thoroughly pleasant book about a vastly interesting American. It is written with zest and with a nice feeling for what will hold a reader's attention. Most effectively it uses what might be described as the Wagnerian technique, the repetition at climatic moments of phrases which serve as literary leit-motifs. Only a person who has been lucky enough to have been one of the Justice's intimates could say with authority whether the portrait here presented is true to life; one suspects that it is as true as such portraits ever are."
+ Commonweal 40:65 My 5 '44 1100w

Current Hist 6:513 Je '44 130w

Reviewed by J. M. Maguire
Harvard Law R 57:1118 S '44 1200w

"This book has something for every discriminating reader."
+ Kirkus 12:31 Ja 15 '44 180w

"Engrossing biography written with sympathy and imagination. . . A fine biography for general purchase." M. C. Manley
+ Library J 69:353 Ap 15 '44 80w

"Holmes is such a fascinating and dominating figure that reviewers are inevitably tempted to write about him instead of about a book about him. The allotted space is all too short to write half enough about either here. When one says that the book is worthy of the subject, this should start a trek to the bookstalls. There are words echoed from Civil War bivouacs that may not yet be heard in Boston drawing-rooms, but it is not anticipated that the book will be banned even in Boston." T. R. Powell
+ Nation 158:515 Ap 29 '44 1250w

Reviewed by D. J. Boorstin
New Eng Q 17:450 S '44 750w

"A mass of devoted work has gone into Mrs. Bowen's portrait of Mr. Justice Holmes and his background. I wish I could say that her conception of her task equaled the devotion with which she has pursued it. But it does not. She has dug up a surprising amount of fresh material, particularly about Mr. Justice Holmes's ancestors and his prejudicial career. And she has strung together all the extant anecdotes into a series of vignettes that make the book immensely readable. The large audience to whom the book has been able to bring the intimate portraits of men who seemed otherwise forbidding figures—the man of the law, and his father the man of medicine and the word, and his grandfather the man of God—will be delighted with it. But if you measure it exactingly you will find it inadequate." Max Lerner
+ — New Repub 110:742 My 29 '44 1550w

"There are few novels with characters as interesting, as clearly drawn, as wholly seen, as are the people in 'Yankee From Olympus.' " Robert van Gelder
+ N Y Times p1 Ap 23 '44 1600w

"Mrs. Bowen's own mind is too blunt, too limited, and too prosaic for her to be able to deal with the Holmeses as she has had the ambition to do. She has collected anecdotes about them and scraps from their letters and writings and embedded them in a mediocre novel—a novel which seems to me at moments to roll a yearning eye toward the movies. . . Mrs. Bowen has thus half-insights for which, I suppose, we ought to be grateful as better than no insights at all; and certainly 'Yankee from Olympus' is by no means one of the worst examples of its reprehensible kind. The attractiveness and nobility of Holmes himself come through the rather flatted chronicle, and Mrs. Bowen does give us conscientiously the facts of her subject's life with a fullness which, so far as I know, is not to be found in the memoirs of him." Edmund Wilson
— + New Yorker 20:83 Ap 22 '44 1350w

Reviewed by Lovell Thompson
Sat R of Lit 27:8 My 6 '44 2300w

" 'Yankee From Olympus' is one of several recent books on Oliver Wendell Holmes, justice of the Supreme court. It is far from being the best, although it has charms of its own. . . There seems to be no method behind haphazard paragraphs which sketch the history of the 135 years from the opening scene of Abiel Holmes at his desk in Cambridge to the deathbed on I street, Washington. This reviewer found nothing purposeful here. In fact the author missed a few boats." E. M. Tilton
Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 23 '44 700w

Time 43:99 My 8 '44 2500w

"There is assuredly nothing formal or severe about this; it is not a portrait of a judge, but of a man, warm, intimate, sympathetic, penetrating, one which finds room, somehow, for ancestors and family and friends and for historical background. It is not the whole of Holmes—who can ever hope to capture the whole of that complex and vital figure in a single study?—but what there is of it is authentic. If Holmes had had his choice, we may well believe that it is rather by this portrait that he would prefer to be known. . . It is a beautiful piece of workmanship, each piece fitted perfectly into the whole, no exaggeration, no straining for effect, not too much sentiment. Mrs. Bowen has not thought it essential to tell everything; something is left to the reader's imagination." H. S. Commager
+ Weekly Book Review p1 Ap 23 '44 2000w

Wis Lib Bul 40:84 Je '44

BOWER, WILLIAM CLAYTON. Church and state in education. 103p $1 Univ. of Chicago press

377.8 Religious education A44-1133

Short study of the need of teaching religion in the public schools. It is the author's contention that "The school, better than the home, better than any special agency, better than even the denominational church, can teach the content of religion and give children the experience of religious values involved in everyday relationships." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Ephraim Fischoff
Ann Am Acad 235:170 S '44 270w

Booklist 40:333 Je 1 '44

"Lucid little book." W. P. Sears
+ Churchman 158:17 Je 1 '44 480w

Reviewed by C. H. Moehlman
Crozer Q 21:260 Jl '44 1000w

"This short book may serve helpfully to suggest, albeit in rather general and abstract terms, some important issues consequent from the fact that, as our society becomes more fragmented, common beliefs and once honored habits of action common to people generally are dissolving." R. W. Ogan
+ El School J 44:620 Je '44 450w

"Educators will doubtless raise many practical questions about the proposal of Professor Bower and will suggest difficulties in introducing it which are not adequately considered in the book. Some church leaders who have a genuine concern for religious education will not be satisfied with the instructional program that is proposed. It is to be hoped that objectors will be sufficiently stimulated by Professor Bower to bring forward their own suggestions for an effective program. The problem is one that is crying for solution, and this book presents the most stimulating and constructive proposal that thus far has come to the attention of this reviewer." J. D. Russell
+ J Religion 24:282 O '44 600w

School & Society 59:191 Mr 11 '44 50w

BOWERS, DAVID FREDERICK, ed. Foreign influences in American life; essays and critical bibliographies. 254p il $3 Princeton univ. press

325.14 U.S.—Foreign population. U.S.—Civilization A44-4627

"The authors consider the specific social and historical role of the immigrant—one of the most important channels of foreign influence—and examine crucial instances of both this and the purely ideological type of influence in the evolution of our economic, political, artistic, literary, and philosophic mores." School & Society

Reviewed by M. E. Dillon
Am Pol Sci R 38:1242 D '44 300w

Reviewed by A. F. Tyler
Ann Am Acad 237:231 Ja '45 550w

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p2 Ja 14 '45 90w

Reviewed by Ferner Nuhn
Christian Century 61:1256 N 1 '44 750w

"Each section of the book is supplied with a handsomely detailed and descriptive bibliography. Considering its fragmentary approach to the subject, the volume presents solid nuggets of information about the impact of foreign influence on our national life."
+ Commonweal 41:39 O 27 '44 900w

Current Hist 8:71 Ja '45 40w

Reviewed by J. L. Blau
J Philos 41:669 N 23 '44 750w

Reviewed by H. M. Kallen
Sat R of Lit 27:10 D 16 '44 1200w

School & Society 60:240 O 7 '44 60w

"Essays of the uniformly high quality attained in this volume are doubly significant as the product of an academic program. The bibliographies, each centered on a special topic, are unusually successful in discarding deadwood. If this is a fair sample of the instruction being offered in our better colleges, the youth of the rising generation are being magnificently equipped to make intelligent use of their heritage." G. F. Whicher
+ Weekly Book Review p18 O 22 '44 600w

BOWKER lectures on book publishing; first series [by] Frederick A. Stokes [and others]. (Typophile chap bks) 143p $2.50 George Grady press, inc, 445 W. 41st st, N.Y. 18

655 Publishers and publishing 44-40086

"The Bowker memorial lectures were established at the New York public library in 1935 as an aid and stimulus to the study of book publishing in the United States. This first volume of the lectures in print contains A publisher's random notes, 1880-1935, by Frederick A. Stokes; Publishing since 1900, by Alfred Harcourt; Textbooks are not absolutely dead things, by Frederick S. Crofts, which treats only the field of college and university textbooks since 1900; and Subscription books, by Frank E. Compton." Booklist

Booklist 40:297 My 1 '44

"If a copy of this book could have been laid before 'RRB,' what a rare treat it would have been to stand by and hear his comments! Hearty approval for the series, warm commendation for the discussion of problems common to the book world, sincere appreciation for the tradition and standard fixed by the first four lectures, penetrating appraisal by an initiate as to the charm and taste and skill shown by designer and illustrator, by compositor and binder. No doubt as to the sincerity and the emphasis of his applause for aim and accomplishment." H. M. Lydenberg
+ Library J 69:199 Mr 1 '44 500w

BOWLEY, AGATHA H. Guiding the normal child; a guide for parents, teachers, students, and others; with a foreword by D. R. MacCalman [Eng title: Natural development of the child]. 174p $3 Philosophical lib. [8s 6d Livingstone]

136.7 Child study. Children—Management 44-3154

"The purpose of this book is to give a brief account of the normal growth and development of children from babyhood to adolescence, to indicate when and how difficulties occur, and to show how they can best be handled. It is written primarily for the student who is training to be a teacher, but it is also suitable for parents." (Introd) Glossary. Index.

"The purpose of this book is to present a brief review of the developmental patterns from birth to adolescence. The book has been written for young teachers in training, but should be useful not only to parents but to students working in the fields of pediatrics, public health, and to others who may have responsibility for the care of children." G. M. Wheatley
+ Am J Pub Health 34:1189 N '44 360w

"In spite of the fact that the book is a short one, it is packed full of information, condensation of material rather than dilution being obviously the objective of the author. . . To mention the specific details on which the reviewer might disagree with the author would seem picayunish, since, in the main, the point of view of Miss Bowley seems to be a sound one. So short a book as the one under discussion must necessarily oversimplify issues and indulge in generalizations which one might wish to see qualified. Further elaboration of any substantial numbers of points, however, might very well have defeated the purpose of the volume." H. L. Koch
+ — El School J 45:54 S '44 550w

School & Society 59:256 Ap 8 '44 30w

Social Forces 23:236 D '44 40w

BOWMAN, CONSTANCE. Slacks and callouses; il. by Clara Marie Allen. 176p $2 Longmans

331.4 Woman—Employment. Airplane industry and trade. World war, 1939—Women's work 44-7536

Account of the experiences of two young school teachers who spent their summer vacation working in an airplane factory in San Diego.

Booklist 41:84 N 15 '44

"Entertaining and amusing reading."
+ Kirkus 12:293 Jl 1 '44 110w

"An entertaining glimpse into a much-publicized part of war work which gives it more reality than newsreel flashes. Older high school girls." Eleanor Kidder
+ Library J 69:887 O 15 '44 80w

"Miss Bowman and her illustrator, Clara Marie Allen, are a couple of San Diego school teachers who spent a Summer building Liberator bombers. They have nothing particularly dazzling or awe-inspiring to report. The interest in their account of their experiences lies in the fact that what happened to them could have happened to any war worker and probably has." J. C.
N Y Times p38 D 3 '44 360w

"As illuminating and informative as it is funny." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d S 3 '44 220w

"This record of their experience should be preserved; it is detailed to a degree, but so vivaciously expressed that even an outsider steadily maintains an interest." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 S 10 '44 550w

Wis Lib Bul 40:143 N '44

BOWMAN, JOHN WICK. Intention of Jesus; foreword by Walter Marshall Horton. 263p $2.50 Presbyterian bd.

232 Jesus Christ—Person and offices 43-5968

"The purpose of this book is to present to the intelligent Christian reader, minister, or layman, a distillation of the best results of modern research into the subject treated. . . The author's thesis [is that] Jesus' culture was Hebraic, rather than Hellenic or Hellenistic, and within the limits of the Hebraic culture he took his stand squarely, knowingly, and without reservation, with the prophetic strand of that culture. . . In the course of the discussion the views of various schools of thought are presented. . . It is no purpose of this book, however, to adopt a hypercritical attitude toward the work of these schools." (Pref) Index.

"It is, as such studies go, an easy book to read, being logically organized, clearly written, as untechnical as the subject matter permits, and courteous (as Christian scholars should be, and occasionally aren't) in its disagreements with other specialists. Dr. Bowman's knowledge of the literature in his field validates itself. Also he accepts and uses an up-to-date apparatus of New Testament source and textual criticisms." G. G. Atkins
+ Christian Century 61:558 My 3 '44 650w

"A scholarly, readable, and persuasive presentation of the messianic consciousness of Jesus, backed by careful analysis of the sources and checked against alternative theories." R. C. Miller
+ Churchman 157:17 Je 1 '43 240w

BOWMAN, WALDO GLEASON, and others. Bulldozers come first. See Bulldozers come first

BOYD, MRS EUNICE (MAYS). Doom in the midnight sun. 274p $2 Farrar 44-3388

Detective story.

Kirkus 12:50 F 1 '44 80w

"The story has a good enough plot, but it is too long drawn out, particularly when it comes to the final explanation." I. A.
+ — N Y Times p16 Ap 30 '44 120w

"Enjoyable."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:78 Ap 15 '44 40w

"Good as a trip to Alaska, including the mosquitoes." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p18 Ap 16 '44 130w

BOYD, JAMES. Eighteen poems. 29p $1.75 Scribner
811 44-47229

The author of Drums (Book Review Digest, 1925) who died in 1944, left these poems among his manuscripts. They have been printed with an introduction by his friend Paul Green, and show mainly their creator's reflections on war and its consequences.

"Admirers of James Boyd will welcome this collection of his few poems. When the war came, he turned to poetry as an outlet for emotions which no other medium could express. Mr. Boyd brought to this last phase of his writing the same high artistic integrity that distinguished his novels. But he brought also skepticism. Doubt mingles with his hope that the horror of this war will not have been in vain. The poems have immediacy and Mr. Boyd speaks eloquently for the many whose minds are uneasy about the future world. The collection is first and last fine poetry." Elford Caughey
+ Atlantic 175:130 Ja '45 200w

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Book Week p6 D 24 '44 330w

"'There is no outstanding talent here, but a pleasing simplicity and ease, in what is a change of medium for a writer of historical fiction."
+ — Kirkus 12:474 O 15 '44 50w

"Boyd is urgent about a number of important issues: the anguish of war, its immolation of bright youth, its betrayal of the generous hopes of men. To my mind, he has combined imagination and an issue most successfully in 'To a Butterfly.' 'Songs for The Silent' starts well, but loses itself in dispersed intentions. The prevalent flaw is that the poet, thinking he was taking the direct road, too often got in a hurry with words. The generosity of his temper comes through in these poems, but when we close the book we find ourselves remembering James Boyd rather than what he wrote in this, his honorable last testament." F. C. Flint
+ — N Y Times p7 D 17 '44 320w

Reviewed by Robert Francis
Springf'd Republican p4d Ja 7 '45 410w

BOYLE, KAY. American citizen; naturalized in Leadville, Colorado; a poem. 15p pa 50c Simon & Schuster 811

"Her first poem in some years, Kay Boyle wrote 'American Citizen' about her Austrian refugee husband, 'Naturalized in Leadville, Colo.,' and now serving overseas with the U.S. fighting forces. Prior to becoming an American citizen, he was an anti-Fascist in his native country and survived a stint of internment in a concentration camp for his political opinions. The poem is addressed to Miss Boyle's friend, Carson McCullers, whose husband is also overseas. . . The poem is concerned with the waiting of all war wives who stay at home." Book Week

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Book Week p4 Ja 7 '45 360w

"The poem as a whole is imagined with simplicity and dignity. . . And the poem is moving, for its author's tact in words and ear for cadence carry over from her prose to her poem. This poem is the outcome not only of an honest emotion but of a literary discipline which entitles that emotion to public expression." F. C. Flint
N Y Times p4 D 31 '44 750w

BOYLE, KAY. Avalanche. 209p $2.50 Simon & Schuster
43-18112

Swiftly-paced story of a twenty-one year old girl, half French, half American, forced by her parents to leave France in 1939, who returned to her spiritual home as soon as she had come of age. From her work with children in Lyons, Fenton went on leave to the Swiss mountain village where she had spent the happiest years of her life. She went to search for the guide, Bastineau, reported dead. Caught in a network of espionage Fenton proved her right to her French heritage.

"Those who, after each good espionage tale, look forward eagerly to another will be glad to know that Miss Boyle, at least temporarily deserting the stricter field of letters, has come out with one that is a honey." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p2 Ja 23 '44 1100w
Booklist 40:183 Ja 15 '44

"The opening scene sets the tone of the whole narrative, and character, scene, conversation all blend together into a very beautiful unity. The end puts a strain on coincidence, but having been contrived to kill off the German spy and unite the lovers in marriage, it need not be looked into too carefully. The best thing about the book is its evocation of the beauty and mystery of the mountains." N. E. Monroe
+ Cath World 158:600 Mr '44 300w

"When the author is describing the village and its inhabitants, and when she moves afield to the glacier regions, she achieves an effortless command of her work, and succeeds in imparting an authentic background together with a skillfully sustained atmosphere of suspense. Shortcomings in characterization and an occasional lapse into old-time melodrama may well be excused in a narrative that certainly fulfills its avowed purpose of providing entertainment." M. W. S.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 31 '44 600w
Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '44

"Except that the long arm of circumstance is a little too ready to plunge into the midst of things at its two or three crucial junctures, 'Avalanche' slides along smoothly enough. It is reminiscent of the slickness of the formula-fiction lapped up in women's magazines. It would, or will, make a swell light movie. But, in addition, a feeling for France is there, an understanding of the flame of liberty that burns bright in that occupied land, of the aspirations that strictest regulations and privation can never suppress. That is the most notable element in what is otherwise simply an entertaining thriller quickly written and read."

BOYLE, KAY—Continued
+ Commonweal 39:357 Ja 21 '44 380w

"The vivid mountain setting and the authentic picture of the villagers smuggling supplies to the mountain fighters under the very noses of the Nazis lift it above the ordinary spy story." M. C. Scoggin
+ Horn Bk 20:399 S '44 80w

"Recommended." E. S. Brown
+ Library J 69:30 Ja 1 '44 30w

Reviewed by Wilfrid Gibson
Manchester Guardian p3 D 29 '44 150w

"Miss Boyle's excursion into French anti-Nazi activities is offensive in the extreme against the serious truth because by the introduction of italicized passages of literary exaltation and by the parade of her whole familiar bundle of literary mannerisms she pretends to more and better than pot-boiling. Reality immediately asserts itself, in all its tragic grandeur, against such an encroachment." Diana Trilling
— Nation 158:105 Ja 22 '44 120w

"The present novel, by its very limitations, has knocked out of Miss Boyle's writing a great deal of the over-mannered quality for which she has been reproached. The strict progressions of plot have held her from the forced, cerebral intimations of her other novels. But 'Avalanche' is very thin. Its characters are too one-dimensional to live outside of print. Miss Boyle is still more interested in ideas than people. And now that 'Avalanche' is on its way to enjoyable reading by devotees of Martha Albrand and Helen MacInnes, let the rest of us hope that Kay Boyle's next novel will take up the thread where 'Primer for Combat' left off." Catherine Maher
N Y Times p4 Ja 16 '44 480w

"I picked out Kay Boyle's 'Avalanche' in the hope of finding a novel worth reading, and have been somewhat taken aback to get nothing but a piece of pure rubbish. Aside from a few literary devices such as italicized 'interior monologues,' 'Avalanche' is simply the usual kind of thing that is turned out by women writers for the popular magazines." Edmund Wilson
— New Yorker 19:74 Ja 15 '44 1500w

"Taken at its simplest valuation, this is one of the most exciting stories I have read in a long while, ranking, so far as I am concerned, along with 'Rebecca' and 'Escape.' If it hasn't the careful and interwoven texture of both of these, the convincing psychological undercurrents, and, especially, as with the latter, the extraordinary analysis and convincingness of plot, it has on the other hand, well as those two books were written, Miss Boyle's beautiful and eerie command of language and sensitiveness toward scene and scenery, toward atmosphere of place and person, as if the fingertips of her mind and spirit had been filed to an almost agonizing thinness. And so nothing that she writes can be taken at its 'simplest valuation'; it is too important, actually and potentially. . . A number of Miss Boyle's admirers, unless I am mistaken, are going to rebuke her for this story, and although they are going to be right technically, they are going to be enormously wrong theoretically and practically." Struthers Burt
+ Sat R of Lit 27:6 Ja 15 '44 1100w

Reviewed by Kate O'Brien
Spec 173:584 D 22 '44 600w

"Kay Boyle, best known to American readers as a master of the short story, will now impress them by her sure skill and stature as a novelist. Her story of breathless suspense has every element needed to catch and hold the reader's taut interest. Romance, a background of awesome natural beauty clouded by war, youth's defiance and the secret bitter warfare inside Europe—these are the materials she has woven into a compact novel in which not one word is used superfluously but which still manages to be warm and vibrant with life." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 9 '44 470w
Time 43:96 Ja 17 '44 400w

"The tale is well written in a 'literary' sense, though its constant trick of italicized emotional recollection is wearisome, and the studies of various French types in the developing resistance movement are done with shrewd sense and warm feeling. For the rest, however, Miss Boyle lacks something of the unintellectual gift or knack of bold invention which an adventure story of this type requires."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p5 Ja 6 '45 360w

"Out of her deep love for France, out of her faith and hope for its rebirth as a symbol of freedom, Kay Boyle has written a story to quicken the hearts of all men and women who hold that country dear. Apart from its excellence as a moving work of fiction, apart from the sensitive writing which is her particular talent, it glows with an inner fire that is warm and challenging. . . 'Avalanche' is a rare book, beautifully balanced in emotional and intellectual concepts rooted in freedom, courage and love." Rose Feld
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ja 9 '44 850w

BOYLSTON, MRS HELEN (DORE) Carol on Broadway; il. by Major Felten. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 222p $2 Little 44-4724

The story of the experiences of two girls on Broadway in search of jobs, and of their ultimate success. For older girls.

"These Boylston books have won a substantial following, and this one—like its predecessors—is lively and entertaining, a harmless success story."
+ Kirkus 12:98 F 15 '44 80w

"It has the faults of a book written to pattern but has more body than most and will be popular with teen-age girls." Marian Cumming
+ — Library J 69:608 Jl '44 70w
N Y Times p20 Jl 16 '44 140w

"Common sense, good humor and inside acquaintance with methods of getting a toehold on the stage make this a good 'career book.'" M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Jl 2 '44 200w

BOYTON, NEIL. That Silver fox patrol; decorations by Robb Beebe. 257p $2 Longmans 44-7710

Story of a group of Manhattan boys, from very different backgrounds, who were brought together for Troop 613 of the Catholic Boy scouts.

Cath World 160:280 D '44 10w

"Story is enriched by pointers on interscout activities and adventures. Fans and scouts will like this well-written informative story because of the action, suspense and authentic atmosphere." A. H. McGinity
+ Library J 69:816 O 1 '44 70w

BRACKETT, LEIGH. No good from a corpse. 202p $2 Coward-McCann 44-20857

Detective story.

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 Mr 12 '44 70w

"Good—in its class."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:22 Mr 4 '44 30w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p15 Ap 9 '44 80w

BRADBURY, BIANCA. Muggins; with pictures by Diana Thorne. (Nursery bks) [20p] 85c Houghton 44-6128

Picture story book for very young readers about an inquisitive kitten and all the trouble he made while on his trips around the kitchen.

"No one draws cats quite so enchantingly as Diana Thorne. The Muggins of this story will be taken into many a small child's heart, to be loved—and understood." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p11 Jl 30 '44 100w

"Having watched a small girl chuckle and chuckle to herself all afternoon over Muggins' mishaps I can recommend it with confidence." F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Je 26 '44 90w

"Delightful little story with pictures."
+ Kirkus 12:276 Je 15 '44 80w

"Told in a simple, straightforward manner, which second and third graders can read, and any cat lover will enjoy. In my estimation, the kitten pictures by Diana Thorne, while charming, suffer a little in comparison with Claire Newberry's Mittens. Recommended." E. E. Frank
+ Library J 69:607 Jl '44 70w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
N Y Times p20 Jl 16 '44 140w

"A charming little book about a mischievous kitten." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Je 18 '44 70w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p5 Ag 20 '44 70w
Wis Lib Bul 40:131 O '44

BRADLEY, ALICE. Menu-cook-book. imperial ed in 1v 994p $2.49 Macmillan

641.5 Cookery. Menus

"Formerly in four volumes, this is now in one volume and includes seasonal menus for every day in the year, shopping lists to guide your marketing week by week, and hundreds of tempting new recipes—with explicit directions." Boston Globe

Boston Globe p36 N 29 '44 40w

"For those inexperienced in home-building the suggestions on stocking a cupboard, what and how much to buy, as well as how to prepare the food, can be relied on. For the more experienced homemaker and the working woman whose time is limited there are helpful suggestions for selection of foods within budget limitations. Leftovers are given effective consideration. A comprehensive work, the book recognizes wartime restrictions and points the way within those restrictions to well-balanced, pleasing meals." H. W. Lapp
+ J Home Econ 36:596 N '44 120w

BRADLEY, HARRY CYRUS, and UHLER, EUGENE HENRY. Descriptive geometry for engineers. 2d ed 266p $2.50 Int. textbook

515 Geometry, Descriptive 43-17759

"The principal change from the first edition (1937) is the addition of six chapters illustrating the application of fundamental principles to problems encountered in engineering. The separate book of completion plates published under the title Problems in Descriptive Geometry for Engineers has been supplemented with plates to be used in connection with these new chapters." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:1006 D 1 '43 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:65 O '43

BRADSTREET, RAYMOND B. Standardization of volumetric solutions. 2d ed rev & enl 151p $3.75 Chemical pub. co.

545.5 Solution (chemistry) 44-33089

"Methods of preparing standardized solutions are here assembled in a small reference volume for the analytical chemist. Several paragraphs throughout the text, and a new chapter on standard substances have been added since the photoprint edition of 1938 [Book Review Digest, 1939]." N Y New Tech Bks

"Mr. Bradstreet's little booklet contains a lot of useful information for those charged with preparation and standardization of volumetric solutions. It briefly touches the calibration of volumetric equipment, then leads over to indicators and standard substances, and then discusses standardization proceedings. A table of logarithms at the end of the booklet would normally have been helpful; however, the print is so small that it makes for difficult reading." F. C. Nachod
+ — Chem & Met Eng 51:200 O '44 100w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:652 Ag '44 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:22 Ap '44

BRADY, ALEXANDER, and SCOTT, FRANCIS REGINALD, eds. Canada after the war. 348p $4.25 (16s) Macmillan

940.5314471 Reconstruction (1939-)—Canada. Canada—Politics and government. Canada—Economic policy. Canada—Social conditions 44-4218

"These ten studies, by as many contributors, on the political, social and economic policies which Canada should pursue after the war were prepared for the Canadian Institute of International Affairs." Foreign Affairs

"As the editors point out, 'the book is not planned as an integrated programme,' and it is recognized that there are serious gaps in the study. The most serious omissions are the problems of monopolies, the possible developments in the north, and the rehabilitation of men and women returning from the services." W. J. Waines
Ann Am Acad 237:216 Ja '45 650w

"While [the book] lacks homogeneity, it is constructive and stimulating. . . There is a useful select reading guide." C. M.
+ Canadian Forum 24:65 Je '44 350w

"Although the editors' foreword is modest to the point of being apologetic, the contributors to this volume succeed in providing a number of useful guides to policy over a wide range of post-war problems. . . There is no attempt to lay down an integrated programme, but there is general agreement as to the far-reaching changes wrought by the war, and as to the central place governments will occupy in the solution of post-war problems. It is clear that Canadian postwar policies will be greatly influenced by the policies pursued in other countries, and particularly in the United States. The book is indexed, and there is a select bibliography of readily accessible material on subjects dealt with by the contributors." W. T. Easterbrook
Canadian Hist R 25:211 Je '44 1550w
Foreign Affairs 23:14 O '44 30w

Reviewed by P. E. Corbett
Pacific Affairs 17:250 Je '44 320w

BRADY, GEORGE STUART. Materials handbook; an encyclopedia for purchasing agents, engineers, executives, and foremen. 5th ed 765p maps $5 McGraw

620.3 Commercial products—Dictionaries. Building materials—Dictionaries 44-691

Fifth edition of a reference book first published in 1929. For third edition see Book Review Digest, 1937. "Over 170 pages, listing more than 150 additional materials, have been added since the previous edition (1940). The appendix contains new tables, lists of terms, and a series of maps showing world production areas. The index has also been expanded by the inclusion of more than 1,500 cross references." (N Y New Tech Bks)

Booklist 40:286 Ap 15 '44

"The book is to be recommended for its general information. Its intended audience—purchasing agents, engineers, executives and foremen—will find it a ready reference to a multitude of materials. . . The few errors, typographical and factual, noted in cursory examination will undoubtedly be corrected in a subsequent edition."
+ Chem & Met Eng 51:220 D '44 200w
Library J 69:462 My 15 '44 60w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:8 Ja '44

BRAILSFORD, HENRY NOEL. Our settlement with Germany. 160p map $1.75 Day [9d Penguin]

940.5314443 Reconstruction (1939-)—Germany 44-8157

A discussion of some of the problems which will face the peace makers after Hitler has been defeated. What shall be done about reparations? How shall Germany be governed? Should Germany be partitioned? What about education in post-war Germany? Index.

Booklist 41:74 N 1 '44

"An extremely sane and judicious discussion of the various peace proposals regarding Germany. . . This is a vital, honest and challenging book. It is based on reason and common sense. And it is essential reading for every thinking citizen. Don't miss it." G. M. A. Grube

+ Canadian Forum 24:211 D '44 750w

Kirkus 12:423 S 15 '44 300w

"In truth German 'sickness,' if sickness it be, is much more than ten years old. Whether policeman or psychiatrist can cure it may be an open, as it is certainly a fateful, question. In any event, the search for the right treatment seems to demand a more scientific temper than that of an 'act of faith' on the part of the actual or intended victims of German homicidal mania." Wickham Steed

— Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 22 '44 300w

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr
Nation 159:563 N 4 '44 350w

Reviewed by Paul Hagen
New Repub 111:465 O 9 '44 600w

Reviewed by E. W. Fox
N Y Times p7 O 8 '44 1200w

"Mr. Brailsford, one of the last survivors of old-guard English liberalism, offers a program that looks toward the inclusion of defeated Germany in the community of nations. His rather familiar arguments are presented with drive and vigor, but he does have that easy omniscience characteristic of his school, and a number of his pronouncements, such as that the defeated Germans 'will grasp for the first time what liberalism in the broad sense of the word should mean,' may well be no more than wishful thinking. Mr. Brailsford is unquestionably headed in the right direction, but whether he is on the right track is another matter."

+ — New Yorker 20:78 S 30 '44 110w

Reviewed by V. M. Dean
Sat R of Lit 27:11 O 7 '44 600w

"Only the person who is capable of looking far ahead, who can be content to build for a future neither he nor his children may see, can find anything but discouragement in this book. And the discouragement is very deep, because Mr Brailsford's arguments ring so true." Margaret Woodbridge

Springf'd Republican p4d N 19 '44 600w

"In 'Our Settlement With Germany' Mr. Brailsford discusses a question which is exercising more and more minds as the war moves to its climax. His own approach is candid, and his conclusions and convictions take little account how far they may accord with popular or conventional views. The prospect is not overstated."

Times [London] Lit Sup p122 Mr 11 '44 750w

"This book will not have a friendly reception from all its readers, especially from those who support Lord Vansittart's theories of a harsh peace. But few, if any, of those who study Mr. Brailsford's carefully considered words will fail to appreciate the knowledge and concern that have motivated 'Our Settlement With Germany.'" George Polk

Weekly Book review p3 N 19 '44 550w

BRAMHALL, MARION. Button, button. 199p $2 Doubleday

44-6031

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p9 Jl 30 '44 90w

Booklist 41:24 S '44

Kirkus 12:184 Ap 15 '44 60w

Reviewed by Beatrice Sherman
N Y Times p14 Jl 2 '44 100w

"Average opus."

Sat R of Lit 27:38 Je 24 '44 40w

"A guileless little murder mystery for the summer guest room bedside table. . . It's a dialog-loaded story with some flashes of good bright writing, and the author has shown admirable care in keeping her background material authentic." F. T. Howe

+ Springf'd Republican p4d Jl 16 '44 160w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p15 Je 18 '44 60w

BRAMHALL, MARION. Murder solves a problem. 197p $2 Doubleday

44-667

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p8 Ja 23 '44 110w

Booklist 40:253 Mr 15 '44

Bookmark 5:20 Mr '44

"The story is a bit confused at times, but it reveals a genuine talent for tale-telling and mystification." Isaac Anderson

+ — N Y Times p22 Ja 9 '44 80w

"Recommended."

+ Sat R of Lit 27:21 Ja 15 '44 30w

"Offers just enough of murder and love interest to fill comfortably a winter night's fireside reading." L. C.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 16 '44 60w

Time 43:104 F 7 '44 30w

"Marion Bramhall, a new writer, strikes us as a find for those who want plenty of love with their killings. What's more, she writes likable, sensible prose without the use of those excruciating mystery cliches and other godawful flutterings employed by many of her elders and betters." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 9 '44 130w

BRANCH, ANNA HEMPSTEAD. Last poems; ed. and with a foreword by Ridgely Torrence. 71p $2 Farrar

811 44-7346

"Chosen from material left by the poet at her death in 1937, this book of last poems by Anna Hempstead Branch has been edited and given a eulogistic foreword by Ridgely Torrence. Recalling her 'complete selflessness' and her social welfare work at Christadora House, Mr. Torrence compares her with St. Teresa. Among poets, Miss Branch was of the sisterhood of Emily Bronte and Christina Rossetti." Weekly Book Review

"Torrence suggests that Anna Branch's poetic affinities are Emily Bronte and Christina Rossetti, and while I do not think that she had the toughness of fiber of the former, the parallel with the latter has some basis. He might also have suggested that in her 'visions' and descriptions of them, Anna Branch echoed William Blake a little, in a diluted way." Leo Kennedy

Book Week p4 O 29 '44 180w

"Though fragmentary, it is all work of a fine quality." Alan Creighton

+ Canadian Forum 24:215 D '44 330w

"This slim gathering of poems . . . is definitely dated. Mystical,—in the fast fading transition of the Pre-Raphaelites, this collection adds little to Miss Branch's slight feminine gift. Even Ridgely Torrence's eulogistic introduction fails to convince that a mystical ecstasy, unless deeply imbedded in the stuff of life as was Emily Dickinson's, or hard-wrought intellectually as was Gerard Hopkins', is acceptable to modern taste. It is too sweet and too shallow."

— Kirkus 12:336 Ag 1 '44 120w

Reviewed by Ruth Lechlitner
Weekly Book Review p22 N 26 '44 300w

BRAND, CHRISTIANNA, pseud. See Lewis, M. C. M.

BRANDON, MICHAEL. Nonce. 181p $2.25 Coward-McCann
44-2358

Story of violence, starting as the study of an explorer who had sampled life in all countries, and grown weary of everything. Frustrated on the eve of one more trip to Africa, he retired to a lonely hideout on the coast of Georgia or Florida, to experiment and write. There he met and later murdered a woman as tired of the world as he was. In attempting to subject to his tyranny the woman's negro servant, a Voodoo priestess, he met his match.

"The end is melodrama of the corniest kind. Yet, in spite of myriad faults, much of the writing has power and life, and certainly it is original and uninhibited. If the book is not a hoax and there really is such a person as Michael Brandon, I'm looking forward to reading the work he turns out 10 years from now." Rachel Hastings
— Book Week p6 Ja 23 '44 500w

" 'Nonce' is a deliberately-planned sophomore teaser in voodoo rhythm, with most of the four-letter words left out." William Du Bois
— N Y Times p5 F 6 '44 460w

"For those who enjoy books about the occult, well seasoned with gore and eroticism, 'Nonce' offers an orgy of reading. One of its leading characters is a disembodied spirit, and its hero, if such he can be called, has passed most of his life in Africa studying things that Frazer left out of 'The Golden Bough.' Even the minor characters are warped by lust, avarice, cruelty and other sordid afflictions." Herbert Kupferberg
— Weekly Book Review p8 Ja 23 '44 550w

BRANSON, HENRY C. Case of the giant-killer. 249p $2 Simon & Schuster 44-20852

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p10 Ap 2 '44 90w

Booklist 40:378 Jl 1 '44

"Just fair."
Boston Globe p15 Ap 5 '44 40w

"Well done."
+ Kirkus 12:197 Mr 1 '44 60w

"Many readers will, no doubt, guess part of the solution, but there is still a surprise in store for them." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 Mr 19 '44 120w

"Unostentatious and very well done."
+ New Yorker 20:96 Mr 18 '44 50w

"Rewarding."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:26 Mr 18 '44 30w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 19 '44 190w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p15 Mr 19 '44 80w

BRANT, SEBASTIAN. The ship of fools; tr. into rhyming couplets with introduction and commentary by Edwin H. Zeydel; with reproductions of the original woodcuts. 399p $5.75 Columbia univ. press
837 A44-1790

"This is the first English translation in the original meter and rhyme scheme of Sebastian Brant's famous 'Narrenschiff,' first published in 1494. Besides being an important milestone in the history of literature, the 'Narrenschiff' presents an interesting and amusing picture of the 'folly' of human society, not only of the fifteenth century but of all times." (Commonweal) Contents: The life and works of Brant; The antecedents and genesis of the "Narranschiff"; A characterization and literary history of the "Narrenschiff"; The "Narrenschiff" as a force in literature. Bibliography. Index.

"The English rhyming couplets lean toward doggerel, but perhaps in this they truly represent the original. Brant was a sound scholar and a good homilist, but no great poet. There is a modern facsimile (1913) of Brant's first edition. It would have been welcome if the present volume had included a couple of pages of facsimile of the 1494 edition as samples of Brant's German and of the typography in which his friend Bergmann of Basel dressed it."
Christian Century 61:775 Je 28 '44 50w

Reviewed by Granger Ryan
Commonweal 40:307 Jl 14 '44 250w

"Only occasionally does the modern reader feel even the tepid outrage of the author; like him we are more often inclined to an aloof observation that glorifies our self-conscious superiority to the foolish vagaries of our fellow men. Yet, since we, too, cannot escape his annoying and irritating contacts with fools, so we cannot help entertaining the sense of relief with which we should welcome a modern Narrenschiff." R. E. Keighton
Crozer Q 21:353 O '44 600w

BRASWELL, WILLIAM. Melville's religious thought; an essay in interpretation. 154p $3 Duke univ.
B or 92 Melville, Herman. Religion in literature 43-18314

Study of the philosophy and religion of Herman Melville, based upon the evidence found in his writings. Since he was brought up in a strict Calvinistic household, Melville's interest in religious questions was understandable, and his study of religious philosophy followed him thruout his whole life. Index.

Reviewed by L. S. Mansfield
J Religion 24:295 O '44 300w

"Well-done study by professor of English at Purdue (now on leave with U.S.N.R.), whose special field is Melville. Will appeal to limited audience. For college and other libraries specializing in criticism of American authors." Emil Garnett
+ Library J 68:621 Ag '43 80w

Reviewed by F. B. Freeman
New Eng Q 17:125 Mr '44 700w

BRAUN, KURT. Settlement of industrial disputes. 306p $3.50 Blakiston 331.54 Arbitration, Industrial. Labor courts
44-4756

"[A study] of the problems and factors involved in difficulties between management and labor, and the types of social and political machinery that have been developed for their adjustment. The author is concerned mainly with techniques of adjustment which are designed to be permanent features of the country's economic structure, rather than with wartime devices, but he does include the War Labor Board because of its important place in the present scene." Christian Century

"Mr. Braun has made a valuable and most timely contribution on a subject that is of great and ever-growing concern to the American people. He does not evaluate systems or even major components of systems, and does not prescribe what in his opinion should be done in this country. Nevertheless, legislators, administrators and students will find in his book a valuable summary of basic theories and keen procedural analyses of existing agencies, which they can profitably use in developing their own conclusions as to what should be done and how it should be done. It is to be hoped that his work will be carefully studied by those who are, or will be, responsible for guiding American efforts in the settlement of industrial disputes." Domenico Gagliardo
+ Am Econ R 34:932 D '44 1000w

"The book is a systematizing and synthesizing job done wtih great skill. The most timely contribution is undoubtedly the excellent treatment of the War Labor Board, a war agency which, the author believes, is yielding experience valuable for the post-war period." C. H. Pritchett
+ Am Pol Sci R 38:1002 O '44 550w

"The book will be of use to students of labor relations in spite of its 'heavy' style. For those who are concerned in daily life with industrial relations, it can serve as a 're-fresher.' " M. L. Hoch

BRAUN, KURT—Continued
Ann Am Acad 236:197 N '44 400w

"A careful and objective presentation."
+ Christian Century 61:699 Je 7 '44 120w

"Some readers of this book doubtless will be disappointed in its discussions of the 'principles' of mediation, conciliation and arbitration. These do not strike very deeply since they are chiefly descriptive of existing agencies and their procedures. The few 'principles' actually discussed are pretty well known to persons having had even slight contact with the settlement of industrial disputes. Another shortcoming of the study is its failure to refer in any manner to the interesting and valuable experiences of Australasian governments in the settlement of disputes. Despite these weaknesses, this survey of an immensely important segment of our economy is most worth while." W. N. Loucks
+ — Pol Sci Q 59:627 D '44 550w

BRECHT, ARNOLD. Prelude to silence; the end of the German republic. 156p $2 Oxford
943.085 Germany—History 44-5920

The author, formerly a member of the German Civil service, undertakes to explain how and by what legal and constitutional means Hitler rose to power and destroyed the Weimar republic. Tho the survey closes with the Blood Purge of 1934, references to later events occur thruout the discussion. Index.

"A splendid, scholarly contribution to the understanding of German politics." W. F. Sollmann
+ Am Pol Sci R 38:1005 O '44 700w

"The remarks of the author concerning the devastating influence of a crude moral and political relativism are particularly worthy of attention. Yet the book may prove to be a dangerous product. It cannot be doubted that very soon after the end of this war the Nazis or crypto-Nazis again will produce a vast Kriegs-Unschuld-Literatur as they did after 1918. It is to be feared that the legalistic and well-meaning arguments of the author will be used by ruthless propagandists to whitewash those who are chiefly responsible for the Second World War." Oscar Jászi
Ann Am Acad 236:187 N '44 650w

Booklist 41:14 S '44

Reviewed by Otto Zausmer
Boston Globe p19 Jl 5 '44 380w

"Professor Arnold Brecht has written a very fine book. It is the best documented and most closely reasoned account of how the government of the Weimar Republic collapsed, focusing attention on the strictly governmental and constitutional processes involved in that collapse. The author himself held an important position in that government. As a high official in the Prussian Ministry of the Interior and Prussian delegate to the Federal Council, he had an unparalleled opportunity to observe from closest quarters the momentous events he writes about. He does so with a superb mastery of the legal and constitutional issues that were involved in the tragic collapse of German democracy." C. J. Friedrich
+ Columbia Law R 44:800 S '44 1000w

"Arnold Brecht's book has the merit of showing—against the will of the author—that the collapse of the Weimar democracy and the rise of nazism cannot be explained by a legalistic approach which carefully points out defects in the constitution, the rôle of proportional representation, etc. . . The industrious and well-meaning collection of facts presented by Professor Brecht makes the mystery of Hitler's success, not only against democrats but also against conservative forces, only more mysterious." Waldemar Gurian
Commonweal 40:284 Jl 7 '44 350w

Foreign Affairs 23:11 O '44 110w

Reviewed by H. H. F. Eulau
New Repub 111:50 Jl 10 '44 600w

"This book is very well informed. It deals with vital, though not spectacular, matters; it is lucid, ably written and readable. Many readers will, I believe, look upon it as one of the surprisingly small number of reliable and incisive commentaries on the import and history of nazism. Above all, it is an effective criticism of specious definitions of fascism." G. N. Shuster
+ N Y Times p4 Je 25 '44 700w

"Sound and sober, with lots of statistics, but far too heavy-footed to be of much interest except to students of the subject."
+ — New Yorker 20:79 Je 24 '44 50w

Reviewed by G. N. Shuster
Pol Sci Q 59:615 D '44 750w

"From this smoothly written and decent book two factors emerge. Dr. Arnold Brecht, who has been a high-ranking German civil servant for many years and who is now in this country, is a man of great integrity of character, excellent erudition, and considerate restraint in his judgments. His book is well documented and undoubtedly well intentioned. It is a book that every scholar dealing with German constitutional problems will read with interest and profit. But if Dr. Brecht has intended the book as an apology for German democracy, I am afraid he will not have achieved his purpose with the great majority of his readers. His book impresses at least this reviewer as perhaps the most damning condemnation of German democracy. Many passages read almost like a satire." Hans Kohn
Sat R of Lit 28:32 Jl 22 '44 600w

Reviewed by Cyril Clemens
Springf'd Republican p8 Jl 12 '44 500w

Reviewed by W. R. Deuel
Weekly Book Review p8 Jl 9 '44 800w

BRECHT, BERTOLT. Private life of the master race. 140p $2.50 New directions
792 Germany—Nazi movement—Drama

A series of scenes, supposedly drawn from the lives of typical Germans, and made into a documentary play by an anti-Nazi writer.

Reviewed by Jack Conroy
Book Week p3 N 26 '44 500w

Booklist 41:167 F 1 '45

Canadian Forum 24:243 Ja '45 280w

"Brecht has managed to keep Propaganda subservient to art. There are no Hollywood villains, and even his workers are human. The play, nearly perfect in form, is full of the grotesque touches of art. But our political script-writers seem to have been most impressed by Brecht's between-scene verses and declamations which, at least in translation, appear highly dispensable." Marjorie Farber
+ — N Y Times p6 D 17 '44 650w

Reviewed by F. C. Weiskopf
Sat R of Lit 28:12 Ja 27 '45 850w

"[The] book is of special interest to the theatre-minded, not only because it makes available a drama of arresting emotional power and vitally important content, but because it presents an example of a new and unique form of theatre. . . Mr. Bentley's essay is illuminating in its analysis of the intention and meaning of this new theatric form involving unusual presentation as well as writing methods, while Brecht's text is a major example of the theory in action."
+ Theatre Arts 29:64 Ja '45 200w

BRECKENRIDGE, MARIAN EDGAR, and VINCENT, ELIZABETH LEE. Child development; physical and psychological growth through the school years. 592p il $3.25 Saunders
136.7 Child study 43-12939

"The primary task of this book is to trace the physical and psychological growth of children through the school years, but, since 'no level of growth can be clearly understood unless its origins are also known,' the growth stages prior to the school years are included in large measure. The volume is written by a nutritionist and a psychologist, both of the staff of the Merrill-Palmer School." Am Soc R

"A useful volume for teachers, psychologists, home economists, doctors, nurses, social workers, parents, and sociologists." J. H. S. Bossard

+ Am Soc R 9:580 O '44 300w

"One of the most important features of the book is the extensive bibliography of 806 references. This book should be invaluable for parents, students, school personnel, church workers, nurses, social workers, and physicians." L. V. Swanson
+ J Home Econ 36:594 N '44 200w
Wis Lib Bul 39:141 N '43

BREGER, DAVID. Private Breger's war; his adventures in Britain and at the front [cartoons]. [Eng title: Private Breger in Britain] [241p] $2 Random house [6s Pilot]
940.5497 World war, 1939—Humor, caricatures, etc. 44-40075

Cartoons, appropriately captioned, showing how the present war affects a harried little private, who cannot seem to realize what it's all about.

Reviewed by August Derleth
Book Week p9 Ap 2 '44 230w
Booklist 40:281 Ap 15 '44
Kirkus 12:138 Mr 15 '44 30w
Times [London] Lit Sup p440 S 9 '44 120w

"Although the artist does not say so, he conveys—in laughter—the reassurance that all this will pass and that war is today's temporary detour—not the main highway of life. Artist Breger is a subtle craftsman; there is often more than meets the eye. For example, the dead-pan serenity with which his hero listens to a loud-mouthed superior. The caption is perfect: 'You, on the end! Wipe that opinion off your face!' " Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Mr 26 '44 450w

BRENNER, ANITA (MRS DAVID GLUSKER). I want to fly; pictures by Lucienne Bloch. [34p] $1.50 Scott, W.R. 43-15135

Picture-story book, giving the details of an imaginary plane flight. For the imaginative child.

Bookmark 5:4 Ag '44

"A fine, free fantasy. . . Here are more of the pleasurable 'sound' words and a flight trajectory that children will love to trace with their fingers." Lois Palmer
+ N Y Times p20 N 28 '43 60w

"The imaginative child will delight in the sensations and sights of flying as pictured and described here. To be read aloud to younger children. Those able to read for themselves will begin to want more technical information."
+ Wis Lib Bul 40:10 Ja '44

BRERETON, JOSEPH LLOYD. Case for examinations; an account of their place in education with some proposals for their reform. 226p $2.25 Macmillan [8s 6d Cambridge]
371.27 Examinations [44-4658]

"The author herein sets forth as a piece of sober research the history, theory, practice, and possibilities of examinations as they have developed in England in the past eighty years, with deductions for further changes—some desirable and possible, others undesirable." School & Society

"Whether or no you agree with Mr. Brereton's opinions, you cannot but respect them; they are the product of an able mind which has been for so long at work upon his subject that he is able to be at play with it. He has largely convinced at least one reader." C. E. M. Joad
+ New Statesman & Nation 27:176 Mr 11 '44 1200w
School & Society 59:287 Ap 22 '44 40w

BREWER, JOHN MARKS, and LANDY, EDWARD. Occupations today. 376p il $1.64 Ginn
371.425 Occupations. Profession, Choice of 44-844

"A study of vocational opportunities in relation to youth. . . Part I of the book considers the general education of the pupil and his ability to apply his knowledge in thinking and planning about ways of earning a living. Part II gives a classification of the various types of occupations, presenting essential information in a vocabulary understandable by high-school boys and girls. Part III deals with those problems that the pupil must eventually meet when he leaves school and enters some field of work. Part IV emphasizes standards of human values in the organization of occupational life." (School R) Index.

School & Society 58:320 O 16 '43 50w

"This book, containing authentic, factual information combined with detailed analysis, is useful, not only to young people, but to teachers and counselors as well." H. E. Hendershot
+ School R 52:125 F '44 750w

BRICKELL, HERSCHELL, and FULLER, MURIEL, eds. O. Henry memorial award prize stories. See O. Henry memorial award

BRIGHT, ROBERT. Georgie. [42p] il $1.25 Doubleday 44-7589

Georgie was a little ghost who lived in the attic at the Whittaker house. Georgie played a very necessary role in the household and when he was driven out things went wrong in consequence. Then matters were arranged so Georgie could come back and all was well again.

"Robert Bright's story and pictures are delightful and I'm sure any child would be happy to find Georgie under his bed." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p10 O 15 '44 180w
Booklist 41:93 N 15 '44
Boston Globe p36 N 29 '44 80w

"This might have been silly—but it isn't. It has individuality and charm of a kind."
+ Kirkus 12:372 Ag 15 '44 110w

"Unusual ghost story for the young reader. Illustrated by author. Recommended for ages four to eight." S. J. Robinson
+ Library J 69:763 S 15 '44 50w

"Georgie comes straight out of a real New England attic. Robert Bright discovered him and put him into a book that is full of chuckles for children and for grownups, too." M. C. Skinner
+ Library J 69:865 O 15 '44 70w

"Mr. Bright concocted Georgie for his own children, who were anxious to meet a ghost. His pictures are scrawly and droll and no one would ever have a moment's qualm about ghosts after seeing this genial one in action." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p18 S 10 '44 160w

"The pictures, in a dark, mysterious blue ink, are quite as amusing as the story and quite as pleasantly ghostly. As Hallowe'en draws near, storytellers are beginning to look up their tales of ghosts and witches and goblins. They will find Georgie a happy choice for the little children." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 27:30 O 21 '44 270w

BRIGHT, ROBERT. Life and death of Little Jo; decorations by the author. 216p $2 Doubleday 44-40035

Story of a community of Mexicans living in an isolated village in New Mexico. The story follows the career of Jo, son of the murderer Eloy, from his birth to the day he went away to fight for two strange (but no doubt wonderful people) Miss Liberty and Uncle Sam.

Reviewed by Peter De Vries
Book Week p5 F 13 '44 450w
Booklist 40:235 Mr 1 '44

BRIGHT, ROBERT—Continued

"Humor and tenderness move lightly through the story, but the pervading philosophy of Cornelio deadens its emotional impact. Cornelio and the villagers save Jo from his father's fate, but the very quality that enables them to put murder in its place with quiet indifference saves us, too, from any great measure of pity and terror." Isabelle Mallet

+ — N Y Times p5 F 6 '44 340w

"The boy suffers miserably, both spiritually and physically, and yet retains a warmth and dignity within himself and in relation to his poor neighbors which prevents the story from being wholly unhappy. An exquisite introduction to a little-known group of our fellow-citizens."

+ New Yorker 20:86 F 19 '44 90w

"This is not, in one sense, an important novel, in the way that the best-sellers that thunder past us from time to time are important. But it is a story that you will want to read again when you come across it some day, half-forgotten among your books. Mr. Bright has the gift of being able to charm his readers and to give to the crimes and the native savageries of his characters an air of innocence and naiveté." Harrison Smith

+ Sat R of Lit 27:7 F 12 '44 2000w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen

Survey G 33:221 Ap '44 200w

"If you want a journey into another land that is still our land, which will give you the pleasure of strangeness vividly presented, and reward you with understanding, follow with Robert Bright, who knows his way well, 'The Life and Death of Little Jo.'" F. H. Bullock

+ Weekly Book Review p2 F 6 '44 850w

BRIGHTMAN, EDGAR SHEFFIELD, ed. Personalism in theology; a symposium in honor of Albert Cornelius Knudson by associates and former students. 257p $2.50 Boston univ. student supply shop, 685 Commonwealth av, Boston

141 Personalism. Theology. Knudson, Albert Cornelius 43-8864

"This volume of essays, written by thirteen eminent scholars in honor of Albert Cornelius Knudson, of Boston university, commands attention, furnishes jolts, arouses perplexity, and provokes gratitude. The book opens with a gracious eulogy of Professor Knudson, and a review of B. P. Bowne's philosophy. Thereafter appear valuable discussions of the universe, God, the relation of God to the universe, man's relation to God, ethical obligations, and educational problems. These discussions of personalism are an intelligent effort to show the immanence of God without denying his transcendence. While they remind one of the pantheism of Xenophanes, Zeno, and Spinoza, exhibit the flavor of subjective idealism and the technique of mental projection, the reader is grateful for the emphasis placed upon the claim that reality is vital, accessible, and universal." Crozer Q

"This is a worthy tribute to Professor Knudson on the part of loyal pupils and associates, called out by the completion of the fifty-first year of his teaching. It is also a valuable contribution to the philosophy of personalism. It reveals with what clarity and conviction Dr. Knudson has maintained and advanced the principles of personalism of his revered teacher, Borden P. Bowne, and has defended his own claim that personality is 'the key to the nature of reality.'" J. W. Buckham

+ Christian Century 61:464 Ap 12 '44 650w

Reviewed by A. C. Reid

+ Crozer Q 20:353 O '43 300w

"In this volume various associates and former students of Knudson acknowledge their religious and intellectual debt to him by dealing with the implications of personalism for some basic problems. On the whole one must say that, with few exceptions, the results are disappointing. Leslie's chapter on Knudson the man is revealing. . . Bishop McConnell gives a somewhat disconnected and superficial account of Bowne's philosophic background. . . Hildebrand's detailed presentation of personalism's doctrine of the phenomenality of nature is one of the weightiest essays in the volume. His analysis is disarming but unconvincing, although space does not permit setting forth the grounds for this judgment. . . Muelder's section on ethics is most suggestive." B. M. Loomer

J Religion 24:286 O '44 750w

BRILL, ABRAHAM ARDEN. Freud's contribution to psychiatry. 244p $2.75 Norton

131.34 Psychoanalysis. Freud, Sigmund SG44-265

"Dr. Brill was one of the pioneers of psychoanalysis and since 1907 has devoted all his time to the study and dissemination of his master's teachings. He was Freud's first English translator, his most active expositor in this country, his ardent co-worker and close friend, and has participated in many important psychoanalytic undertakings both here and abroad. The material in this book was presented in 1943 as the Salmon Lectures, in which Dr. Brill set himself the task of discussing the psychoanalytic contribution to psychiatry as he has observed it and participated in it during his long and noteworthy career." Scientific Bk Club R

Reviewed by R. J. Bender

Book Week p9 O 8 '44 650w

Kirkus 12:316 Jl 15 '44 130w

Reviewed by Frederic Wertham

New Repub 111:773 D 4 '44 1200w

"An excellent set of lectures by an American pioneer in the field of psychoanalysis. . . The reader should not be put off by any experience he may have had in the past with Dr. Brill's not always lucid English, since his command of the language has improved to a really amazing degree."

+ New Yorker 20:84 N 4 '44 90w

Scientific Bk Club R 15:3 S '44 180w

BRIMLOW, GEORGE FRANCIS. Cavalryman out of the West; life of William Carey Brown. 442p il $5 Caxton printers

B or 92 Brown, William Carey 44-9456

Account of the life of General William Carey Brown, who graduated from West Point in 1877, served during the last of the campaigns against the Indians, in the Spanish-American war, in Mexico, and the first World war, and retired in 1919. Selected bibliography.

Kirkus 12:389 S 1 '44 170w

"It is undoubtedly accurate as to facts, but is written in a somewhat stilted style. I fear it has little appeal except to those with a passion for army life, a great interest in the history of West Point and the military history of our country. For older boys and men." E. E. Frank

Library J 69:887 O 15 '44 70w

"The author's descriptions of the Spanish-American War and the first World War are largely résumés of material found more adequately in other volumes; the story goes better when he stays hard by his man. There is also some trivial material which gives unnecessary length to the book. It remains, however, an honest and worthy addition to Army history, devoid of the stream of consciousness fakery which now and then creeps into modern biographies. Caxton Printers has done its usually excellent job." Ernest Haycox

+ N Y Times p3 D 31 '44 400w

BRIMM, DANIEL JOHNSON. Air acrobatics are easy. 133p il $2.50 McGraw

629.13252 Airplanes—Piloting 44-1306

Formerly "stunting," except for show purposes, was rather frowned upon in aviation circles, but now it has become an important feature in training pilots. This book gives general chapters on equipment, etc. and then detailed instructions for various spins, turns, and loops.

Booklist 40:263 Ap 1 '44

Library J 69:118 F 1 '44 10w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:3 Ja '44

BRIMM, DANIEL JOHNSON, and SCHEIFELE, ERNEST. Girl mechanic's manual; il. by Teasdale Barney. 166p $1.75 Pitman

621.75 Machine shop practice. Machine tools 44-1078

Simply presented, basic facts on tools and their use, materials, and shop practice. For the inexperienced worker. Index.

Booklist 40:206 F 15 '44

Library J 69:118 F 1 '44 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:7 Ja '44

BRINES, RUSSELL. Until they eat stones. 340p $3 Lippincott

940.542 World war, 1939—Japan. Japan. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939—Prisoners and prisons, Japanese 44-47254

The author, an American AP correspondent, and his family were among those trapped in Manila after the attack on Pearl Harbor. They were first sent to the internment camp at Santo Tomas. In September 1942 Mr Brines was shipped to Shanghai, and a year later was allowed to rejoin his family and they all returned to this country on the Gripsholm. The book describes the author's experiences; it gives an account of the countries taken by Japan; and it contains Mr. Brines' impressions of the Japanese and discounts any sanguine hopes for a lasting peace unless Japanese religious and educational propaganda can be curbed. Index.

Reviewed by Cary McWilliams
Book Week p1 D 31 '44 1550w

Booklist 41:136 Ja 1 '45

Kirkus 12:392 S 1 '44 340w

Reviewed by T. A. Bisson
Nation 160:22 Ja 6 '45 180w

"Mr. Brines is a first-rate reporter. In this book he is an able historian as well. Calmly, dispassionately, he records what happened; then he explains it. No other current book about Japan, not even Under-Secretary of State Grew's penetrating study of the country to which he was America's accredited Ambassador for ten years, has set forth more clearly the Japanese mentality nor given a better explanation of how the men of Nippon got the way they are. It is not a particularly easy book to read. It is an important one, though, for all Americans." Foster Hailey
+ N Y Times p1 Ja 14 '45 1200w

"This is a remarkable first-hand report on the Japanese occupation of the Philippines and a splendid tribute to the Filipinos. . . 'Until They Eat Stones' is admirably factual and objective—all the more alarming for that." H. C. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 28:9 Ja 13 '45 700w

"What sets off Mr. Brines's book from those of other repatriates is that he is not concerned in recounting his own personal experiences; of such accounts there have been plenty. He was interested, instead, in the long-range aims of the Japanese and how those aims were being worked out. By combining his own information with data obtained from repatriates emerging from other conquered parts, he has pieced together an extremely valuable picture of the enemy." Marcus Duffield
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ja 7 '45 1300w

BRINK, CAROL (RYRIE) (MRS R. W. BRINK). Buffalo coat. 421p $2.75 Macmillan 44-9406

"An 1890's story of a little Idaho town, Opportunity, whose name lured the principal characters to it. There's Doc Hawkins whose wearing of the buffalo coat announced his affluence and importance; his wife, Anna, quietly capable; the assistant French doctor; attractive and lovable Jenny Walden; the man she loved, Hugh Allerton, an unassuming English doctor who tried to make a living in the town already monopolized by Doc Hawkins and his assistant." Library J

Reviewed by Edith Roberts
Book Week p7 D 17 '44 400w

Booklist 41:124 D 15 '44

"This is a story built around a purpose—but it is a good tale, not too profoundly psychoolgical, and well told."
+ Kirkus 12:383 S 1 '44 190w

"Characters are real and the story engrossing. Recommended." Lena Ruppert
+ Library J 69:935 N 1 '44 80w

"'Buffalo Coat' possesses what has always seemed to us the one prerequisite of a good historical novel: the characters are timeless in their motivations, their emotions, their essential humanness, yet their destinies are molded and determined by the effect of a particular era and environment." Thelma Purtell
+ N Y Times p18 N 26 '44 280w

"Unlike most pictures of life in American small towns, Mrs Brink's neither romanticizes nor vilifies. Her characters are capable of virtue, heroism, meanness, and cruelty, in normal proportions. They, and Opportunity too, are living and credible creations." Katharine Simonds
+ Sat R of Lit 27:56 D 2 '44 360w

"Mrs. Brink's novel possesses the quality so many current novels lack—the breath of life." L. S. Munn
+ Springf'd Republican p4d N 26 '44 700w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p12 D 17 '44 150w

BRINK, CAROL (RYRIE) (MRS R. W. BRINK). Magical melons; more stories about Caddie Woodlawn; il. by Marguerite Davis. 193p $2 Macmillan 44-9999

Fourteen short stories about the Woodlawn children, who lived in Wisconsin during the 1860's.

"Nothing could be more delightful than to meet again that lively little pioneer girl, Caddie Woodlawn. In these stories we have a chance to become better acquainted with the entire Woodlawn family—and what a human, lovable lot they are!" P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p12 N 12 '44 150w

Booklist 41:126 D 15 '44

Cath World 160:279 D '44 30w

Kirkus 12:402 S 1 '44 110w

Reviewed by Isabel McLaughlin
Library J 69:1106 D 15 '44 70w

"The writing is fresh and the homely happenings ring true not only of a period and a way of life but of childhood anytime and anywhere."
+ New Yorker 20:90 D 16 '44 70w

"Boys and girls both will like [these tales] and they are especially good to read aloud."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:33 N 11 '44 30w

"These are all well made stories; it is really harder to make stories, of what might be called magazine length, for children, than to write a book for them. A well made short story is neither an anecdote nor a chapter from a longer work; none of these are; they are scenes from the life of the same children and so they hold together, but each separately justifies its existence."
+ Weekly Book Review p10 N 12 '44 350w

BRINK, EBENEZER COBB. And God was there. 92p $1 Presbyterian bd.

940.548173 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 44-4713

"The story which Eben Cobb Brink tells in this book is largely based upon his experiences in the African-Tunisian campaign. The incidents are not unusually spectacular and not nearly as dramatic as some of the better known stories of men on life-rafts or in foxholes. . . Some of them are probably such that the men themselves would not re-tell them, but, cumulatively, they indicate the pattern which, irrespective of man's personal religious and racial loyalty, would evidence the discovery of a great and abiding faith in God." Book Week

BRINK, E. C.—Continued

"Chaplain Eben Cobb Brink has written a little book which I would recommend unreservedly as the finest of its kind to be written in this war." Preston Bradley
+ Book Week p10 My 7 '44 450w
Christian Century 61:622 My 17 '44 100w
Springf'd Republican p4d Je 4 '44 160w

BRITTAIN, VERA MARY (MRS GEORGE EDWARD GORDON CATLIN). Account rendered. 339p $3 Macmillan 44-40202

"To present the thesis that cowardice, especially in soldiers, does not get the proper psychiatric treatment, Miss Brittain tells a melodramatic story of a sensitive young musician who cracks up during a particularly horrible engagement in the first World War and becomes unfit for the musical career he had planned. Instead he goes into business and has a normal enough life until, at the beginning of this war, his neurosis breaks out again, with fatal results." New Yorker

Booklist 41:108 D 1 '44

"A strange book, unconvincing as a romance, as a novel, or as a psychological study."
— Kirkus 12:382 S 1 '44 240w

"Rather wooden in characterization and not engrossing as a novel but a noteworthy picture of the ramifications of experience involving highstrung, sensitive and conscientious people under wartime strain." M. C. Manley
Library J 69:813 O 1 '44 80w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 159:751 D 16 '44 90w

"The long journey from testament to tract has brought Miss Brittain to some mature objective conclusions, but somewhere along the way she has lost the eloquence and passion which illumined her first protest." Isabelle Mallet
N Y Times p6 D 10 '44 500w

"It is not likely that many readers will disagree with the soundness of this tract on the treatment of the psychoneurotic; it is even less likely that there will be any disagreement about its exceeding dullness."
New Yorker 20:98 N 25 '44 130w

"Whether Miss Brittain is right or wrong about war, whether or not her plea for a proper handling of psycho-neurotic cases is superfluous, novel readers will ask themselves whether or not she has written a good novel; and this question must be answered in the negative. 'Account Rendered' completely lacks the density of life, its characters are paper-thin—mere cardboard trumpets for the opinions of the author. It is, indeed, only a blueprint for a novel; a blueprint accompanied by much explanation." B. R. Redman
— Sat R of Lit 27:9 D 16 '44 900w

"This novel does not equal Miss Brittain's earlier writings." C. M. S.
Springf'd Republican p4d D 17 '44 350w

"'Account Rendered,' couched in the form of a novel, is not so much a story as a diatribe, written to illustrate rather than to embody its main ideas. The human drama in the book is far outweighed by the pacifist propaganda behind it. Somehow Miss Brittain's writing, which in her previous books has had a clean-cut, urgent sweep, seems clumsy and confused, and in this new book it is the tail which wags the dog." Virgilia Sapieha
— Weekly Book Review p4 N 19 '44 800w

BROADFOOT, LENNIS LEONARD. Pioneers of the Ozarks; il. by the author. 195p $5 Caxton printers

917.787 Ozark mountains. Mountain whites (South). Missouri—Biography 44-47435

A native of the Ozarks, a self-taught artist, has made this group of portraits of the Ozark natives. Each of the seventy-odd sketches is done in charcoal and oil, and is accompanied by a personal story, told in Ozark dialect.

"Anyone interested in Americana and regionalism—and a great many who are merely interested in people—should buy, beg, borrow or steal 'Pioneers of the Ozarks.' It's a flavorsome and unique word-and-picture gallery of Ozark mountaineers as seen and depicted by one of them. Broadfoot is a young artist, largely self-taught, whose ambition since boyhood has been to catch in charcoal the detail and the quality of life in that remote and rugged corner of Missouri. He has done so superbly in [this book]."
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ja 14 '45 650w

"All the characters in this remarkable book are real people and the author covers just about all the points of the compass in the field of folklore. This book is a valuable contribution to regional art and literature." O. E. Rayburn
+ Weekly Book Review p4 D 10 '44 550w

BROCK, EMMA LILLIAN. Mr. Wren's house; il. by [the author]. [63p] $1.25 Knopf 44-3685

Picture story book for five to seven year olds, about the adventures of a small brown wren and his spouse, their house in an apple tree, and the six babies they raised there.

Booklist 40:323 My 15 '44

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p12 Je 26 '44 180w

"An endearing book with many delicate, revealing pictures of the bird world." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 20:283 Jl '44 50w
Kirkus 12:169 Ap 1 '44 100w

"The birdlore background is authentic, the story amusing. Recommended for preschool and primary bookshelves." S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 69:355 Ap 15 '44 50w

"The text has the repetition which children like, and if it lacks the simplicity and fine economy of words which distinguish the best stories for little children, its slightly breathless quality manages to suggest fluttering wings and spring birdsongs." A. T. Eaton
+ — N Y Times p21 My 21 '44 130w

"Emma Brock, whose stories for seven-year-olds have been distinguished by robust black-and-white illustrations, gives her new little tale for reading aloud to four-year-olds a different color scheme and a pleasant trick of repetition." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ap 16 '44 120w
Wis Lib Bul 40:87 Je '44

BROCK, EMMA LILLIAN. Uncle Bennie goes visiting; il. by [the author]. 57p $2 Knopf 44-6541

Uncle Bennie had worked in the city as a grocery clerk, but when he retired he went to live on his niece's farm. Uncle Bennie's adventures in getting accustomed to country life were a delight to the children on the farm, and his idea of planting flower seeds in every idle spot made him a universal favorite. Children eight to ten.

Booklist 41:93 N 15 '44

"The story is a merry one."
+ Horn Bk 20:481 N '44 70w

"Delicious story with rare charm for the six to nines—but their older brothers and sisters will like to share it with them."
+ Kirkus 12:400 S 1 '44 100w

"Good plot and characterization are marred by stilted conversations and annoying mannerisms." E. G. Mullan
Library J 69:884 O 15 '44 90w

"It is a story for the younger boys and girls; but as an example of bookmaking in wartime, it is a pleasure to everyone. Here is no air of economy. The binding, end-papers, and illustrations all bespeak a quality that is in keeping with the text." E. B. Spring

+ Sat R of Lit 27:32 N 11 '44 150w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p5 D 31 '44 350w

BROCKWAY, SYLVIA. Sarah and I. 243p $2.75 Dutton
B or 92 44-7870

Autobiography of the author of Respectfully Yours, Annie (Book Review Digest, 1942). In the first chapter Miss Brockway tells how Sarah was "born", five years old, with long eyelashes and golden hair, the right to wear bright pink, and all the attributes of courage and initiative the small Sylvia had wanted for herself. Thereafter Sylvia's story and Sarah's are interwoven as Sylvia grew up in New York, traveled abroad, married an Englishman and lived in London, and when war came returned to America to write a book and give lectures and talks.

Booklist 41:76 N 1 '44

"You'll like Sarah and Sylvia; they're an engaging pair."
+ Boston Globe p15 O 25 '44 220w

"The very personal and likeable autobiography of the author of Respectfully Yours, Annie. . . [This] is a richer and more mature book than its predecessor, which might very well have been a flash in the pan."
+ Kirkus 12:414 S 15 '44 170w

Reviewed by J. M. Brittan
Library J 69:812 O 1 '44 80w

"It is written in a unique style, for the author claims she has an alter ego who urges her into or hinders her from doing this or that. . . It's a refreshing, sparkling book, and the reader would welcome a following volume which would reveal more of the absorbing life of Sylvia, and especially the admonitions of her other ego, 'Sarah Palegrass.'" M. D.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d O 22 '44 650w

"Due to the introduction of Sarah this autobiography has a novel-like quality. There is a tone of fun-poking which runs all through it, with vacillating Sylvia as the favorite butt, but most of the descriptions of family life, or of the curious habits of the English, or the development of her children, are told in a merry and rather slangy way, with some accounts given entirely in the form of conversation between Sylvia and Sarah. The device is clever and usually comes off, but sometimes it becomes a little annoying, due to a hint of coyness and too much whimsy that enters in." Diana Forbes-Robertson
+ — Weekly Book Review p42 N 12 '44 430w
Wis Lib Bul 40:146 N '44

BRODIE, BERNARD. Guide to naval strategy. 3d ed 314p il maps $2.75 Princeton univ. press
359 Naval art and science. Sea power. Warships A44-3126

"This is the third edition of Brodie's A Layman's Guide To Naval Strategy which was published originally in 1942 [Book Review Digest, 1942]. New plates, new illustrations, and a revision of the text which brings it up to date." Kirkus

---

Reviewed by W. L. Godshall
Am Pol Sci R 38:1241 D '44 370w

"This work is recommended to all who evince an interest in the first line of our offense and defense in the Pacific; and the work is timely because it comes at a time when our country takes the scepter of sea-air power." L. P. Lovette
+ Ann Am Acad 237:209 Ja '45 400w

"While this is a revision of the first edition issued in 1942, the publishers state that it is almost completely rewritten, partly because the earlier belief that air force would supplant sea power has been amended in favor of coordination of the two."
+ Current Hist 7:227 S '44 80w

"This thoroughly revised version of a first-rate treatise contains new illustrative material from World War II."
+ Foreign Affairs 23:5 O '44 20w
Kirkus 12:331 Ag 1 '44 30w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:699 S 1 '44 40w

"This excellent book of a well-known naval writer is not simply a new edition of his 'A Layman's Guide to Naval Strategy.' For all practical purposes it is a new book. . . The chief value of Brodie's book lies in its modernistic orthodoxy. Most followers of Mahan have reiterated merely the old venerable principles without being able to apply them to modern conditions. Brodie is the first naval writer who has written on naval war as it is fought in the period of triphibian war." S. T. Possony
+ Nation 159:303 S 9 '44 600w

"This textbook on naval strategy, though it was written by a layman, has received unstinted praise from service circles both here and in England. It has become required reading in naval academies. Strangest of all, it has even entered the best-seller class and is already in the sixty thousands. Professor Brodie has now donned the uniform and is working as a historian for the Navy Department. This gives him access to the only real source of information. Apart, too, from its intrinsic value, the work has a fluency and ease of style extremely rare in books of this description." Murray Harris
+ N Y Times p25 S 17 '44 440w

"The book is not only interesting but highly instructive reading for both laymen and naval officers. . . It is to be hoped that when the war is over and access to records of material development and operations are available, Dr. Brodie will rewrite this book. The final issue should be a textbook in our schools and colleges." H. E. Yarnell
+ Pacific Affairs 17:508 D '44 490w

"Because of the revolutionary events of the past few months, this last edition of Mr. Brodie's book—we apologize for our ignorance concerning his rank in the United States Naval Reserve—is virtually a new volume. We find it infinitely more interesting than the previous excellent printings, for he has utilized recent news from the battlefronts of the world—even of the invasion of Normandy—to illustrate his remarks on naval strategy. . . Although the word 'layman' has been deleted from the title at the request of Navy officials, the book is still addressed primarily to laymen."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 15:2 Ag '44 240w
Social Studies 35:384 D '44 30w

BRODIE, WILLIAM AUSTIN. Keeping your church informed. 125p $1.50 Revell
250 Advertising—Churches. Church work
44-7216

"Religious publicity is Mr. Brodie's specialty. His earlier book, Keeping Your Church in the News, is a useful handbook of methods of bringing a church's work to the favorable attention of the public. The present volume, which may be considered a sequel to the other, tells how a church may reach its own members with information and promotional material. It is properly taken for granted that this cannot be adequately done from the pulpit, partly because it is better to keep such matters out of the worship service, and partly because too many members do not come to church regularly. The book deals expertly with the mechanics of direct mail publicity." (Christian Century) Index.

Christian Century 61:878 Jl 26 '44 100w

"There are no doubt some clergymen to whom its advices on running a church paper, conducting direct mail programs and other activities usually conducted by an advertising agency will be useful. It is definitely not happy reading for the sensitive layman who may still entertain quaint ideas about the duties, responsibilities and obligations of his spiritual leader."
Springf'd Republican p4d D 17 '44 60w

BROGAN, DENIS WILLIAM (MAURICE BARRINGTON, pseud). American character. [Eng title: American problem]. 168p $2.50 Knopf [10s 6d Hamilton, H.]

917.3 National characteristics, American. U.S.—Civilization 44-8534

"The present book is 'designed to make more intelligible to the British public certain American principles and attitudes.' Mr. Brogan, having written 'The English People' in 1943 to interpret England to Americans, now writes 'The American Character' to explain to the English 'the normal American's view of the world, of his own history and destiny.' " (N Y Times) The book is divided into three parts: America is made; Unity and liberty; and The American way in war.

"To an Englishman the book will provide the clues to many a bewildering problem; to the American reader it furnishes a clear and sharp if not always a flattering image." J. T. Flanagan

+ Book Week p4 O 22 '44 750w

Booklist 41:75 N 1 '44

"The author of 'The American Character' is a man not only of insight where the most serious questions are concerned, but of humor where the everyday virtues and foibles of people make up the living, shimmering mosaic of national life. One may wish he had been a little more discriminatingly hospitable to that raggle-taggle horde of so-called Americanisms which are less casually employed by Americans than Dr. Brogan's book might lead outlanders to suppose. But anyone hoping for a better understanding of what, who and why the United States is, will value this book highly, especially if the seeker for understanding be himself an American." C. W. M.

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 D 28 '44 550w

"Mr. Brogan's description of the rôle played by American women in a feminine quest for security and in a feminine desire to curb the anarchical male and to impose discipline upon him is both amusing and reasonably true. Everything he says is witty and readable and urbane."

+ Commonweal 41:76 N 3 '44 420w

"A comparative appraisal by an English professor who bears no malice but much wisdom and an incisive objectivity. For an inquiring audience, not a readymade popular one,—for study and reference shelves."

+ Kirkus 12:314 Jl 15 '44 230w

"For all libraries." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 69:881 O 15 '44 120w

Reviewed by Frank Dobie

Manchester Guardian p3 S 20 '44 750w

Reviewed by Newton Arvin

Nation 159:566 N 4 '44 300w

Reviewed by Max Lerner

New Repub 111:604 N 6 '44 1450w

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett

New Statesman & Nation 28:171 S 9 '44 950w

"The volume is a series of shrewd and generous observations on certain American characteristics, and it should help the Englishman of good-will to understand much he needs to know about this country. At the same time it is disappointing that the American reader will not be helped to a more complete interpretation of the history and institutions of his own homeland. He will certainly read the book with keen interest. . . Moreover, he will be pleased by the cordiality of the author, who thinks the United States 'the most interesting country in the world.' It is the very generosity of Professor Brogan which limits the significance of the book to Americans. . . Almost every page has its apt commentary, its arguable generalization. Englishmen who take the American character at Mr. Brogan's evaluation can hardly help liking us, though they may still think us curious people. They may also respect us." J. G. Leyburn

+ — N Y Times p1 O 22 '44 1550w

"Mr. Brogan knows America better than most Americans do, sees things from a fresh and unconventional point of view, and is convinced, for a number of reasons, that this country is a long way from being on its last legs. A first-rate job."

+ New Yorker 20:78 O 28 '44 120w

"At his best Professor Brogan reminds the reviewer of Walter Bagehot. He is full of delightful learning which is used for purposes of illumination. His aperçus are edged tools. He is intelligent in William James's sense, that is, quick to perceive genuine analogies between things that to slower minds suggest no connection. He can look at tendencies or ideas with which he does not sympathize without prejudice or with very little. He is obviously wholeheartedly interested in his subject. And he has much kindness and humor. But at this point the resemblance ceases. For in this work, at least, he has most of the time less than he might have of Bagehot's singular grace. And the reviewer wishes that so many pages of a brief book had not been written in a style which Professor Brogan evidently thinks is—American. . . Professor Brogan knows too much about us, good and bad, to find it necessary to prove his familiarity by such a device. To an American, and one would think to an Englishman, there is something a little off key in his sedulous aping of our idiom and metaphor. . . This book is the mere abstract of something better to come. . . The reviewer hopes Professor Brogan will undertake it. If that comes to pass, it ought to be quite a book, in which something of the quality of Walter Bagehot, cultivated, sympathetic, even-handed, penetrating, might confidently be expected." Leonard Bacon

+ — Sat R of Lit 27:8 O 21 '44 800w

"It is a difficult problem, for it involves explaining the life of an enormous cosmopolitan and little-known country; yet Mr. Brogan succeeds. In the first place, he can make any subject interesting, merely by writing about it. His wit, his liveliness and his range of allusion are all first class. In the second place, he is one of the very few men—whether foreigners or citizens of the country—who knows the United States." Herbert Agar

+ Spec 173:224 S 8 '44 950w

Reviewed by Marshall Bragdon

Springf'd Republican p6 N 4 '44 650w

"It is no disparagement of the book to write that it does not answer the question directly. No one, not even Professor Brogan, can forecast the future; he himself is much too wise and sophisticated a commentator to pledge his reputation to any prophecy of what the mass of the United States will do after victory has been won. Instead, he limits himself to a description of the forces which have formed the American we know. It is the American scene rather than the American problem which he pictures, and he does it with a knowledge, understanding and wit which make his book both a fascination and an authoritative exposition."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p433 S 9 '44 1200w

"We have never had a more knowledgeable or more sympathetic interpreter—not even in Tocqueville or Grattan or Bryce or Munsterberg, or Santayana. He is thoroughly at home with us; he speaks our language, shares our enthusiasms, understands our prejudices, enjoys our humor. It is not merely that he is familiar with our history, with our political institutions, with our landscape: this is taken for granted. . . He knows something of every state and seems to have read all our local newspapers." H. S. Commager

+ Weekly Book Review p3 O 22 '44 2100w

Wis Lib Bul 40:158 D '44

BROGAN, DENIS WILLIAM (MAURICE BARRINGTON, pseud). Government of the people; a study in the American political system; with a foreword by Harold J. Laski [Eng. title: American political system]. new ed 415p $4 Harper [18s Hamilton, H]

342.73 U.S.—Politics and government 44-40183

Thirty pages of comment on changes in the political scene have been added to the first edition, which appeared in Book Review Digest, 1933.

Booklist 41:60 O 15 '44

Reviewed by Wilfrid Gibson
Manchester Guardian p3 N 5 '43 130w

"Brogan is forced to admit that 'there is an elasticity in the American system that is hard to fit into the rigid categories of textbooks and decisions.' He is now almost as stanch a defender of that system (for Americans) as he was critic before. . . It is too bad that this book has not been thoroughly revised to point up Brogan's new thesis." Louis Gottschalk
N Y Times p10 S 10 '44 900w

"The new edition contains a new preface of twenty-four pages pregnant with wisdom. The Englishman who has striven in vain to grasp the fundamental difference between the Republican and Democratic parties will hail with relief Mr. Brogan's convincing demonstration that there is, in fact, no fundamental difference; but, with an election due [in 1944], he will note the significance of such a statement as that the Democrats' main gains have been in the industrial areas and in the younger age-groups, and that 'the Democratic Party, that seemed dead or barely living over a great area, is now alive and formidable over nearly every part of the United States today.' The one criticism to make of Professor Brogan is that, through unconsciousness of his own omniscience, he writes too allusively for the common man."
+ — Spec 171:322 O 1 '43 260w
Times [London] Lit Sup p479 O 2 '43 300w

BROMFIELD, LOUIS. What became of Anna Bolton. 311p $2.50 Harper
44-3046

In 1937 the fabulously rich Anna Bolton, the beautiful widow of an eccentric American, was considered one of the most accomplished hostesses in Europe. People knew very little about Anna's background, but she had money enough to buy the blackest sables and the most magnificent emeralds in Europe, so she was accepted. Dave Sorrell, foreign correspondent of the Times, knew Anna's background, for he had gone to school with her in Ohio, when she was Annie Scanlon, from the wrong side of the railroad tracks. This is Dave's story of Anna's rise to fame and riches, and her regeneration during the war.

"Mr. Bromfield never writes a dull page; his style has the 'come hither' of Somerset Maugham. Deeper than the surface vivacity is his ability to charge his books with the strong electricity of his own experience. . . But Mr. Bromfield is by nature a swift narrator, sometimes too swift for loving attention. Anna Bolton is too locked up for our sympathy to reach her: we never share in the deaths that hardened her, or fully believe in the love that was her release. In short, she has not lived as long or as well as Mrs. Parkington." Edward Weeks
+ — Atlantic 173:127 Ap '44 420w

"His descriptions of Lewisburg, Ohio, are excellent. He knows the Midwest and the life in its small towns. His pictures of France under German occupation, of 'the paralysis and death and confusion' of Paris, are poignantly convincing. His shattering portrait of a German field marshal, unnamed but unmistakable, is positively terrific. His book should be read for those pages alone." M. A. Barnes
+ Book Week p3 Ap 2 '44 380w
Booklist 40:283 Ap 15 '44

"Eminently readable, of course—Bromfield is always that—but not really good Bromfield."
— + Kirkus 12:77 F 15 '44 220w

"Recommended." H. G. Kelley
+ Library J 69:354 Ap 15 '44 90w

Reviewed by Isabelle Mallet
N Y Times p4 Ap 2 '44 700w

"The characters of Mr. Bromfield are hardly even precisely stock fiction characters: they are blank spaces like the figures on billboards before the faces have been painted in. . . No doubt the [movie] public will see them soon and will not mind if what they are and do has no logic and no motivation, no likeness of any kind to life. But the book reviewer is rather up against it, since he has to have something to take hold of, even to say that a book ought to be better, and 'Anna Bolton' completely eludes him because it is really sub-literary and proto-film." Edmund Wilson
— New Yorker 20:80 Ap 8 '44 2050w

"A fascinating and moving story." L. S. Munn
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 2 '44 750w
Time 43:104 Ap 17 '44 120w

"Mr. Bromfield brings the war close, as the story is told in the first person by David Sorrell, but it will be Anna herself that you will remember. This is an appealing novel which it is hard to lay down and I think it will be hard to forget." Mary Ross
+ Weekly Book Review p3 Ap 2 '44 950w
Wis Lib Bul 40:87 Je '44

BROMFIELD, LOUIS. World we live in; stories. 339p $2.50 Harper
44-9147

Nine short stories and novelettes. Six of the nine are stories of the present war; the other three are varied in scope. One describes the tragedy of a brilliant cripple who dabbled in politics; another is the story of Daisy, who toured the Borscht circuit for years; and the third is a folk tale of Ohio.

"The versatility of Bromfield and the magic of his story-telling are both superlatively demonstrated in his latest collection of short stories—nine sessions of the most excellent entertainment." Edith Roberts
+ Book Week p24 D 3 '44 270w
Boston Globe p30 N 29 '44 30w

"On Bromfield's name this will go farther than on the merit of the eight novelettes which comprise the book. . . The collection adds nothing to Bromfield's reputation."
— Kirkus 12:380 S 1 '44 170w

"Succinct and distinctive in style, these stories are so unusual and varied in concept that they leave a haunting unforgettable memory in the mind which lovers of fine writing will cherish. Heartily recommended." S. E. Sherman
+ Library J 69:883 O 15 '44 90w

"Louis Bromfield's restless imagination wanders over two continents, intent on capturing the dramatic, the bizarre, the spectacular elements of story-building. But although he seizes on the brightest of these materials, he seldom brings his stories home alive. Either they go down under the sheer weight of words or are lost in the confusion of his latter-day moralizing. Either way the reader loses, for the promise of rich entertainment is almost never realized. . . Generally the stories seem to hover on the verge of deep significance. The effect is created by grave, portentous words reinforcing noble current emotions like Nazi-hatred, suspicion of great wealth, love of the simple and the inexpensive. It is a trick unworthy of a born story-teller." Jane Martin
N Y Times p24 O 29 '44 440w

"Doubtless Louis Bromfield is a little weary by now of having critics observe that he is an excellent story-teller. Yet, when one has read this latest collection of his short stories—and the first in five years—that is the impression that stands out most clearly." David Tilden
+ Weekly Book Review p8 N 5 '44 750w

BRONSON, MRS RUTH MUSKRAT. Indians are people, too. 184p $1; pa 60c Friendship press

970.1 Indians of North America 44-6250

A book about the American Indian and his place in the life of America today. The volume forms a unit in one of the two series of graded books, leader's guides, plays, pamphlets and maps produced by the boards of missions and education of many denominations cooperating through the Missionary Education Movement.

"A Cherokee by birth and a Mount Holyoke graduate, the author has been with the federal Indian Service for nearly twenty years. Her highly intelligent discussion of the conditions, capabilities and hopes of American Indians dispels many conventional ideas, easy generalizations and persistent illusions. . . The book is well adapted for use with the current courses of mission study on 'the American Indian and southeast Asia,' or for private reading."

BRONSON, R. M.—Continued
+ Christian Century 61:807 Jl 5 '44 80w
Springf'd Republican p8 S 13 '44 170w

BRONSON, WILFRID SWANCOURT. Hooker's holiday; il. by the author. [64p] $1.75 Harcourt

Monkeys—Legends and stories 44-8167

Hooker was a South American monkey borrowed from the zoo by a learned professor at the Museum of natural history. In this picture-story book for young readers Hooker's wild career thru the museum, when he found he could get out of his cage, is told in some detail.

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 27 '44 50w
Kirkus 12:398 S 1 '44 50w

"An exciting, humorous story for the five- to eight-year-olds. . . Recommended." Olive Brain
+ Library J 69:884 O 15 '44 70w

"Wilfrid Bronson, who could not draw an animal, bird or reptile inaccurately if he tried, has given us some excellent likenesses of various kinds of apes and monkeys, while the mounted birds and animals forced into motion by Hooker's antics have an absurd air of coming to life and remaining museum specimens at the same time. The broad humor of drawings and text is enjoyed by 8 to 10-year-olds and 'Hooker's Holiday' should prove no inconsiderable rival to the 'comics.'" A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p26 O 29 '44 200w
Sat R of Lit 27:32 N 11 '44 30w
Springf'd Republican p4d O 15 '44 110w

"Every time a monkey gets loose in civilization everybody enjoys it except those who must pay the bill. For the excursion taken by Hooker—a little monkey so deft that he could hang by his tail, pick three pieces of fruit and scratch himself, all at the same time—the audience will be of children at the picture-book stage, although the type indicates that first readers are also invited to share the often uproarious fun." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 O 29 '44 280w
Wis Lib Bul 40:148 N '44

BROOKS, AUBREY LEE. Walter Clark, fighting judge. 278p il $3 Univ. of N.C. press

B or 92 Clark, Walter 44-2928

A lieutenant-colonel in the Confederate army at the age of seventeen, Walter Clark later entered the legal profession and in 1889 was elected to the North Carolina supreme court where he remained thirty-five years. This biography deals chiefly with his years as a "fighting judge."

Reviewed by H. C. Nixon
Am Pol Sci R 38:593 Je '44 150w
Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p10 Mr 5 '44 300w
Booklist 40:316 My 15 '44
Christian Science Monitor p8 My 20 '44 500w

"Mr. Brooks has not sought to write a full-length biography, but rather to give us a picture of a courageous public figure battling for causes to which he was devoted. Except where the author has used words and phrases which seem out of keeping with the rest of his manuscript, such as 'tycoon' and 'in the doghouse,' and has employed an occasional cliché, such as 'smote hip and thigh' or 'pluperfect hell,' he has succeeded admirably." Virginius Dabney
+ — N Y Times p28 Mr 19 '44 650w

"Mr. Brooks's biography of this eminent champion of popular rights is sympathetic and lively, but inadequate both in scholarship and in interpretation." H. S. Commager
+ — Weekly Book Review p14 Ap 16 '44 1200w

BROOKS, BENJAMIN TALBOTT. Peace, plenty and petroleum. (Science for war and peace ser) 197p maps $2.50 Cattell

338.2728 Petroleum 44-6412

"Dr. Brooks is a consulting chemist who has specialized in the technology of petroleum refining and the synthesis of hydrocarbon compounds. He has been chairman of the committee on petroleum chemistry of the National Research Council, and an advisor on petroleum production to the government of Venezuela." (Scientific Bk Club R) "His book traces the growth of the petroleum industry, causes of the oil situation and national world power implications." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 41:53 O 15 '44

"It is written in rapidly readable form and has the excellent combination of furnishing technical data and a nontechnical discussion of them. The technologist will be interested in the book and will be glad to lend it to nontechnical friends." C. L. Brown
+ Chem & Met Eng 22:1721 O 10 '44 350w

"Timely, interesting, factual book. Recommended." L. A. Eales
+ Library J 69:501 Je 1 '44 80w

"The information contained in this compact, meaty volume will go far toward dispelling the mists of confusion. Here the reader will find a clear, concise survey of all the relevant facts and a well-balanced appraisal of the entire situation." A. H. Compton & others
+ Scientific Bk Club R 15:1 Je '44 900w

BROOKS, VAN WYCK. World of Washington Irving. 495p $3.75 Dutton

810.9 American literature—History and criticism 44-7345

Altho the first volume chronologically in this series on the literary history of America, this is the third to be published. The period covered here is from 1800 to the 1840's. It deals with the literature of New York, the middle states, the south, and the west. For earlier volumes see The Flowering of New England, and New England: Indian Summer (Book Review Digest, 1936, 1940). Index.

"If this volume had appeared before The Flowering of New England, it would have been acclaimed, as that was, for its originality, its freshness of spirit, its sanity and wisdom. It is high praise to say that it is a worthy continuation of Mr. Brooks's former studies of our national literature; and his friends will receive gratefully his promise of still another in the series, to deal with the period of Walt Whitman and Herman Melville. Meanwhile we should be thankful for a book so urbane, so honest, so authoritative—and so diverting!" C. M. Fuess
+ Atlantic 174:137 N '44 550w

"Much of the book's fascination is due to the information it contains concerning the scarcely known artists and writers who roved the countryside in the first half of the last century, sketching and describing the wild life and flowers, the trees and grasses—and the Indians. They built up a truly magnificent American literature of natural history and anthropology, which Brooks rediscovers for us with rewarding effectiveness. It is likely, also, that a large proportion of those who read this book will come to appreciate more fully than they have the extent to which our political traditions are rooted in the feudal and even monarchistic prejudices of the wealthy landholders who dominated our colonial and early national life." Wendell Johnson
+ Book Week p1 O 1 '44 1550w
Booklist 41:56 O 15 '44
Boston Globe p30 N 29 '44 80w

"Probably this book, calling as it did for more setting of the stage than the two that went before, was the most difficult to write of the three. If so, the difficulties have been triumphantly surmounted, and without any sense of strain. The average reader in all likelihood will consider this as the most exciting of all Van Wyck Brooks's books." Theodore Maynard
+ Cath World 160:181 N '44 650w

Commonweal 41:39 O 27 '44 950w

"Important—but not easy reading."
Kirkus 12:386 S 1 '44 210w

"Not quite as flowing in style as the previous volumes, but perhaps more valuable because of its characterization of lesser-known writers. Recommended for all libraries." Emily Garnett
+ Library J 69:760 S 15 '44 70w

Reviewed by R. G. Davis
Nation 159:411 O 7 '44 1050w

"With all its self-imposed limitations, Brooks's history is already more impressive than any other large-scale work in its field. Fact after fact and figure after literary figure, the narrative flows on like a river in flood that is still confined within its high banks. We might complain that there are no lakes or waterfalls in all its course, but we cannot fail to admire the strength of this steady current that carries driftwood from another age, each beam or rooftop full of human associations, and each revealed for a moment before sweeping onward into the mist." Malcolm Cowley
+ New Repub 111:463 O 9 '44 1800w

Reviewed by F. O. Matthiessen
N Y Times p1 O 1 '44 1650w

"It is a wonderful period to go back to, and Mr. Brooks has written about it what seems to me so far the most attractive volume of the series that began with 'The Flowering of New England.' The book is quite free from the cloggedness and overpainting that sometimes appeared in the earlier volumes. He has mastered his method so completely that we never get the effect of labor: style, narrative, and organization have been brought to a point of perfection seldom reached in our historical and critical writing. . . For the reader who is curious about cultural phenomena, there is not a dull page or dull footnote in the book." Edmund Wilson
+ New Yorker 20:75 O 7 '44 2250w

" 'The World of Washington Irving' has all the gusto of youth. It has caught the flavor of those great Americans who refused to grow old: Jefferson, Audubon, Irving, Cooper, and Bryant; and it even rescues Poe from morbidity by identifying his ambitions with the buoyant optimism and the restless energy of his times. This, rather than the doomsday books on Henry James and Mark Twain, would seem to be the work of its author's youth, for Mr. Brooks has reversed the usual process and has succeeded, as he nears his sixties, in identifying himself with the youth of his country." R. E. Spiller
+ Sat R of Lit 27:24 O 14 '44 2250w

" 'The world of Washington Irving' is a rich pot-pourri. Read at leisure, it opens up endless vistas, suggests varied explorations; and along the way it is entertaining indeed. But do not turn to it for searching literary criticism of individual authors; or for social-literary history, strictly developed. Mr Brooks has his own flavor, place and method; take it or leave it." M. H. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d O 15 '44 550w

"Mr. Brooks has read into this era not only interest but significance. We had not heretofore realized either how entertaining or how important it was. It has long been regarded, indeed, as something of a Sargossa Sea in American letters outside the great gulf stream of American thought: on one side the great Revolutionary generation which contributed so richly to political thought; on the other Emerson and Thoreau and Hawthorne. Mr. Brooks makes clear the enduring importance of authors who have long been honored but unread—for who now reads Brockden Brown or Cooper or Simms or Bryant or even Irving, aside from his Legends?" H. S. Commager
+ Weekly Book Review p1 O 1 '44 2000w

Wis Lib Bul 40:145 N '44

Reviewed by S. T. Williams
Yale R n s 34:347 winter '45 950w

BROOKS, WALTER ROLLIN. Freddy and Mr Camphor; il. by Kurt Wiese. 244p $2 Knopf 44-7993

Another story about Freddy, the talking pig, and the other animals from Mr Bean's farm. Freddy takes a job as caretaker of a summer estate, and runs into several difficulties, but is rescued by the sheriff and the other animals

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '44 90w

Kirkus 12:431 S 15 '44 80w

"Sure-fire for children nine to twelve who ask for more stories like the 'Dr. Doolittles.' " Margaret Miller
+ Library J 69:884 O 15 '44 70w

BROPHY, JOHN. Target island. 184p $2 Harper [7s 6d Collins]
44-6864

A story of life on Malta during the present war. The chief characters are three British pilots, an English girl, and a small Maltese boy and his pretty sister.

"Once again the island story is told, its invincibility underlined, its spiritual strength, the fortitude of the fliers, the weary battles, the incessant bombings, all portrayed, a story that never grows stale in the telling."
+ Kirkus 12:263 Je 15 '44 170w

"Lacks nothing in efficiency, though it may not have much to distinguish it from the ruck of contemporary fiction which deals with the contingencies of the present conflict." Wilfrid Gibson
Manchester Guardian p3 Je 9 '44 80w

"There are no implausible scenes in 'Target Island,' and it is unlikely that the wildest fiction about this pin-point on the map of the war, like hundreds of other pin-points, can ever approach the actuality. It is just that John Brophy has tailored his facts a little too handily. But the author's admirable restraint in the language with which he clothes them makes a number of the events real and unforgettable little dramas in themselves, quite apart from the over-all story into which they are dovetailed." Kenneth Fearing
+ — N Y Times p23 Ag 20 '44 440w

"A sentimental trifle."
— New Yorker 20:60 Ag 5 '44 90w

Reviewed by N. L. Rothman
Sat R of Lit 27:10 Ag 12 '44 310w

"The right tension is missing; obstacles have to be gone round or climbed over, so that one remains a little dubious and unresponsive in spite of the dabs of local colour, the nice young flying-men, the nice young women, the decent Maltese, the nasty Nazis. Here again are major and minor figures, love-affairs, raids and alarms, amid the panoply of modern war. And yet nothing has been added to the epic of Malta that one did not already know. However, its film possibilities will be obvious to the cinema fan." John Hampson
— Spec 172:600 Je 30 '44 110w

"Mr. Brophy writes confidently and without apparent effort, but he offers too little here of imaginative substance to achieve any substantial effect."
Times [London] Lit Sup p281 Je 10 '44 300w

Reviewed by Jennings Rice
Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 6 '44 800w

BROUWER, DIRK; KEATOR, FREDERIC WILLIAM, and MCMILLEN, DRURY ALBERT. Spherographical navigation; foreword by P. V. H. Weems. 200,16p il $5 Macmillan

629.1325 Navigation (aeronautics). Nautical astronomy
44-3147

"New system of celestial navigation. With the aid of a small globe and auxiliary instruments a navigator can determine longitude and latitude by plotting observed altitudes on the sphere. No previous training in navigation is needed. Book has complete instructions." Library J

"The method is direct, simple, quick to learn. Apparently, in the hands of the expert, it is sufficiently accurate to meet the requirements of modern aviation."
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Mr 3 '44 300w

BROUWER, DIRK—Continued
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:304 Ap 1 '44 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:9 Ja '44

"This attractive pocket-size book offers the beginner an opportunity to learn in three easy weeks of practice how to go from hither to yon with only the sky as his guide. The topic may be an old one, but the presentation is not. It is keyed directly to the present age of airplanes and it frankly throws overboard much of the calculational method of navigation in favor of an almost purely graphical method, in an endeavor to shorten the process of finding out where you are and which way you ought to be going. . . It is a good little book. There aren't many words in it, but they are in the right places. Because of its conciseness, Spherographical Navigation is better suited for self-study than for classroom use." R. M. Sutton
+ R of Scientific Instruments 15:266 O '44 600w

BROWDER, EARL RUSSELL. Teheran: our path in war and peace. 128p $1.50; pa 50c Int. pubs.

940.5314473 Teheran conference, 1943. U.S.—Foreign policy. Peace 44-8219

An appraisal of the Teheran conference and an interpretation of the war and peace aims of the United Nations as expressed there. No index.

Reviewed by W. L. Godshall
Ann Am Acad 236:181 N '44 650w
Reviewed by John Weilburg
Book Week p8 S 10 '44 500w
Foreign Affairs 23:9 O '44 30w

"Mr. Browder's vision awakens no enthusiasm in my breast. He tries to demonstrate that there is no opposition between his hopes and those of Eric Johnston, and I am sure he is right. What I am looking for is an effective opposition to both of them. Until it appears, I agree with Arthur Koestler that pessimism is obligatory." Granville Hicks
— New Repub 111:79 Jl 17 '44 1200w
Reviewed by S. L. Jackson
Springf'd Republican p8 O 12 '44 390w

"At least half of the book is devoted to postwar domestic problems. Chief among these is that of preventing the recurrence of mass unemployment, and, as the best preventive, Mr. Browder argues the necessity and the feasibility of a great expansion of both our domestic and foreign markets after the war. Mr. Browder's optimism in this respect is scarcely shared by more conservative economists, but he speaks to the point and deserves a hearing." G. A. Craig
Weekly Book Review p12 O 1 '44 400w

BROWN, BENJAMIN HOUSTON. Tariff reform movement in Great Britain, 1881-1895. 170p $2.50 Columbia univ. press [16s 6d Oxford]

337 Tariff—Great Britain A44-709

"An historical study of an aspect of the so-called 'Great Depression' which occurred in Britain in the last quarter of the nineteenth century. The author endeavors to fill a gap which he feels exists in other studies approaching the subject exclusively from the economic or the political point of view. In the preface he indicates that his contribution 'is the knowledge gained of that twilight region between economic circumstances and the formation of political and social policies.' The book traces the attitudes and actions of agriculture and industry, labor and capital, Conservatives and Liberals, mother country and colonies, toward 'fair trade' as against 'free trade.'. . It continues to recount the failures of the National Fair Trade League, the United Empire League, and other organized pressure groups, using familiar tactics, to generate enough enthusiasm to force protection, reciprocity, or imperial preference upon a 'loyal opposition,' much less a 'government.'" (Am Pol Sci R) Bibliography. Index.

"The book sheds a great deal of light on the motives which activated the various groups which gave their support to the tariff reform movement. The author cannot be said, however, to have altogether succeeded in his broad purpose of tracing the connecting links between economic developments and political action. This failure is partly to be explained by the fact that he takes a knowledge of the economic background for granted. . . The book suffers somewhat, also, from the failure of the author to pull together the threads of his discussion in a concluding chapter. . . In spite of these defects, Mr. Brown's study represents a real contribution to the rapidly growing volume of literature on British tariff history." M. S. Gordon
+ — Am Econ R 34:397 Je '44 950w
Reviewed by C. F. Brand
Am Hist R 49:785 Jl '44 320w
Reviewed by J. A. Perkins
Am Pol Sci R 38:192 F '44 230w

"One misses at the end a summary, or rather an attempt to weave the movements described in each chapter into an integrated whole. Nevertheless it is clear that the fair trade movement corresponds with the later years of the long depression of the last century and to some extent with the retreat of economists to the universities. . . A careful reading brings illumination on innumerable phases of the economic history of the period." H. A. Innis
+ Ann Am Acad 233:248 My '44 290w
Reviewed by T. S. Ashton
Manchester Guardian p3 My 31 '44 300w

BROWN, BETH. All dogs go to heaven; il. by Carl Cobbledick. 283p $2.50 Fell 43-22708

A dozen stories about dogs who had died and gone to heaven, told thru the medium of conversations between the little dog Hobo and his mistress, and between Hobo and the other dogs who were already lying in the dog cemetery when Hobo was taken there.

"With the proviso that this is a dog book, and that all dog books are unjust to the human race, it is a good dog book." Phil Stong
Sat R of Lit 27:28 My 13 '44 210w
Springf'd Republican p4d Je 11 '44 110w
Weekly Book Review p14 Ja 23 '44 130w

BROWN, CARLTON. Brainstorm. 302p $2.75 Farrar
44-9442

"Unusual first novel—if it is to be thought of as fiction—since only names of characters are fictitious. It is the true account, written by close friend of a young man who loses his mind through a 'nervous breakdown,' but forgets few of the strange emotions and thoughts which he had during that state prior to recovery." Library J

"Here is a gripping story of a man's flight from the chaos of a twisted and insecure and disoriented life into a world of smooth fantasy. It will hold your interest and may blind you to fine points within the book itself, like the descriptions of Greenwich Village, the understanding of Mike's girls and of his sister, which the author displays so modestly, the intelligent treatment of jazz, and the excoriating portrait of a stupid psychiatrist in the state hospital. Farrar & Rinehart is to be congratulated for publishing this unusual book." A. C. Spectorsky
+ Book Week p2 Ja 7 '45 1200w
Booklist 41:165 F 1 '45

"It is a thought-provoking book, for those interested in the subject of mental sickness—and a book with more constructive purpose, more hope, than Lost Weekend held for the alcoholic."
+ Kirkus 12:383 S 1 '44 250w

"This case study might be described as a jazz (yet sincere) partner to Beers' A Mind That Found Itself. For the mature reader." H. G. Kelley
Library J 69:1103 D 15 '44 70w

Reviewed by Lionel Trilling
Nation 160:106 Ja 27 '45 330w

"This is another first-hand report, too literary to be a case history and too inaccurate to be a good novel, of that interesting state of mind which the publishers expressively capitalize as 'MADNESS!' It is one of those books which contain every psychiatric ingredient, including a little bit of psychological truth contributed by the author; for its faults everyone concerned in its production seems more to blame than he." Marjorie Farber
New Repub 112:58 Ja 8 '45 850w

"This is Carlton Brown's first book, and the most important thing about it is its evidence that Mr. Brown is already quite a writer and may become even more of one. He can describe vividly, he can project a character forcibly, he can tell a story; each of these gifts is manifest in 'Brainstorm,' and, having said that, you would have to add a cautious 'within limits,' because this is a special, in-between kind of book that doesn't give entirely free play to all of his talent." J. K. Hutchens
+ — N Y Times p5 D 31 '44 500w

"The patient of the narrative . . . is a rather foolish young man even before the psychotic episode which makes the story, and the record of his descent into the dark places of unreason is terrifying rather than pathetic. In describing the kaleidoscopic excitement just before the patient's crash into madness (far the best part of the story), Mr. Brown, whose first book this is, writes well enough to make him worth watching out for."
New Yorker 20:78 Ja 13 '45 140w

"Author Brown tells the story swiftly and easily in the first person. Not a word or an emotion, however intimate, is omitted. The picture of life in a mental hospital is detailed and accurate. But not all the questions are answered."
Time 45:66 Ja 1 '45 380w

Reviewed by Lorine Pruette
Weekly Book Review p6 D 31 '44 550w

BROWN, CHARLES REYNOLDS. Dreams come true. 115p $1.50 Macmillan

248 Christian life 44-4258

"Essay sermons by the dean emeritus of the Divinity School of Yale University. Scholarly thoughts on today's problems told in simple style." Library J

"The twelve chapters are not labeled 'sermons.' They do not need to be. Every chapter Dean Brown writes is a sermon, with his own distinctive charm."
+ Christian Century 61:622 My 17 '44 50w
Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 1 '44 360w
Kirkus 12:141 Mr 15 '44 100w

"Devout and honest writing." E. H. Crowell
+ Library J 69:261 Mr 15 '44 40w

BROWN, MRS CORA LOVISA (BRACKETT), and others. Country cookbook; cooking, canning and preserving victuals for country home, farm, camp and trailer; with notes on rustic hospitality. (Country ser) pop ed 224p $1.50 Barnes, A.S.; Countryman

641 Cookery

"This book gets down to business with a section on pickles and relishes, which is the proper way to approach any appetite. Then it takes up soups and stews, which belong on any table, and particularly a country table. From there on it's catch-as-catch-can, though well organized and deftly written. It closes with a chapter on country hospitality, which will make the week-ender's mouth water." N Y Times

---

Reviewed by S. J. Johnson
Library J 69:356 Ap 15 '44 40w

Reviewed by Hal Borland
+ N Y Times p17 Ap 16 '44 140w

BROWN, EDWARD KILLORAN. On Canadian poetry. 157p $2.75 Humphries

811.09 Canadian poetry—History and criticism [A44-343]

"[This book] by E. K. Brown, Professor of English at Cornell University, is a brief critical study, part of which appeared under the title The Development of Poetry in Canada, 1880-1940 in the Canadian Number of Poetry in April 1941, of which he was guest editor. Brown devotes little attention to the earlier Canadian poets and, indeed, little to the most recent. More than half of the volume is concerned with individual studies of 'The Masters': Archibald Lampman, Duncan Campbell Scott and E. J. Pratt." Poetry

---

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Book Week p2 Ja 14 '45 480w
Booklist 40:314 My 15 '44

"Luckily timed to accompany A. J. M. Smith's recent anthology of Canadian verse, appears what is probably the most significant book on the subject to date." Chester Duncan
+ Canadian Forum 23:237 Ja '44 750w

"Professor Brown has given us a detailed study of the literary careers of the three representative masters and has related them to his central theme in a manner that gives the book a unity no collection of individual essays could achieve. The result is a credit to the poets and the critic, if not to the Canadian scene. . . The author brings unusual gifts to his task of studying the Canadian literary scene. He is scholarly and intelligent; and he manages to be both disillusioned and enthusiastic. His standards are those of the humanist, and they prevent him from nursing impossible hopes. Furthermore, he has a sensitive understanding of the minutiae of poetic expression, and his patience in analysing the complex qualities of a text lends conviction to his generalizations. In a book of this scope—small in size but wide and deep in its implications—it would be strange if there were no judgments to be questioned. I cannot help feeling that if Professor Brown had brought the same sympathetic insight he has concentrated upon his three major figures to bear also on George Frederick Cameron he might have discovered signs of the individuality he complains of missing." A. J. M. Smith
+ — Canadian Hist R 25:196 Je '44 700w

Reviewed by C. I. Weir, Jr.
New Eng Q 17:334 Je '44 140w

"While as an introduction to Canadian poetry it cannot take the place of a reading of the poetry itself, it is a valuable study; and it is one which makes excellent reading in conjunction with Smith's anthology." Coleman Rosenberger
+ Poetry 63:286 F '44 120w

BROWN, ERNEST FRANCIS. The war in maps; an atlas of the New York times maps. 3d ed rev & enl 167p $2 Oxford

940.53 World war, 1939—Maps Map44-171

New edition of a work first published in 1942 (Book Review Digest, 1942). "About a third of the book, recording the war since 1942, is made up of new maps with explanatory text." (Booklist)

"A most useful tool for the student of current affairs. . . Maps and texts together provide an excellent step-by-step history of the war." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p2 O 1 '44 90w
Booklist 41:125 D 15 '44
Boston Globe p15 S 20 '44 110w

"Puts between covers the best of the year's cartography of a distinguished journalistic contemporary. In this edition, there are fewer 'battle' maps and more campaign maps—showing the course of the war over a broader period. An interesting analysis of world oil production highlights their economic maps."
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 D 18 '44 200w

"The omission of detailed maps of the Channel ports, of Normandy, Brittany, Belgium and Holland already dates the book, as inevitably any book of published maps dates quickly.

BROWN, E. F.—Continued
This is, however, exceedingly useful for ready reference."
+ Kirkus 12:468 O 1 '44 120w

"A noteworthy contribution to The New York Times' war coverage has been the excellent daily situation and feature maps prepared by its staff. The issuance of these aids to the understanding of global war as an atlas with accompanying text was a welcome step. . . No one with any conception of the difficulty involved would welcome the task of preparing the text to accompany a war atlas. For it involves nothing less than a thumbnail history of the war in seventy single-page chapters. Francis Brown's text may not satisfy the specialist, but to the general reader it is something to be thankful for." H. A. De Weerd
+ N Y Times p24 N 5 '44 470w

BROWN, FRANCIS. See Brown, E. F.

BROWN, GWETHALYN GRAHAM. See Graham, G.

BROWN, HARRIETT MCCUNE, and BAILEY, HELEN MILLER. Our Latin American neighbors; under the editorship of Clarence H. Haring. 471p il maps $2.20 Houghton
980 Latin America—Juvenile literature
44-4599

"A textbook which gives an understanding of the people and the land in which they live, of how they earn their living, and of what kind of music, art, and literature they enjoy. It also devotes some pages to what the United States is actually doing to be a good neighbor to these countries to the south." (Social Studies) Chapter bibliographies. Index, guide to pronunciation, and glossary.

"The book is replete with Spanish and Portuguese words and phrases, all of which are explained and pronounced through a scheme of phonetics which is, for the most part, adequate. Healthily, the book is written in a sympathetic manner, and Latin Americans who read it may find much comfort in its wholesome intent, if they can overlook its unintentional shortcomings." J. D. Neill
+ — Social Educ 8:328 N '44 850w
Social Studies 35:287 O '44 60w
Reviewed by B. M. Eves
Social Studies 35:377 D '44 230w

BROWN, HARRY PETER M'NAB. A walk in the sun. 187p $2 Knopf 44-5274

An American platoon, landing on the beach in Italy, loses its lieutenant, and then, in fairly quick succession, three sergeants. Finally a corporal takes over and leads the men toward a vaguely sensed objective—a farmhouse six miles inland—and there they accomplish the mission they were sent to perform.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 174:127 S '44 480w
Reviewed by A. C. Spectorsky
Book Week p1 Jl 2 '44 950w
Booklist 40:377 Jl 1 '44

"Nothing so far in war literature has equalled this little story in showing the heights to which American boys can rise in meeting a situation. It is a gripping little tale, albeit unrestrained in spots, which the reader does not want to lay down having once begun it." M. W. B.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 S 6 '44 100w
Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 20:400 S '44 40w

"Not pleasant reading—this—but it leaves a scar and the readers (I can't see them as many) who can take it, won't forget it. There is something of the quality of Robert Henriques' The Voice of the Trumpet, translated into down-to-earth terms."
Kirkus 12:201 My 1 '44 190w

"Short, vivid, the book gives the impression in its descriptions of the men, their psychological reactions, their talk, of being an essentially true picture of modern warfare. Recommended." Margaret Owen
+ Library J 69:554 Je 15 '44 80w

" 'A Walk in the Sun,' like the action it describes, is a small marginal operation successfully carried out. But it reads like a case history rather than an imaginative evocation. Mr. Brown writes within what might be called the New Yorker convention. His prose is deft. It is also self-conscious and self-protective." Margaret Marshall
+ — Nation 159:74 Jl 15 '44 360w
Reviewed by George Mayberry
+ New Repub 111:18 Jl 3 '44 1000w

"In this book one has more than the jolted excitement one has at a film; one has the excitement given by the progress and fulfilment of a work of art. Mr. Brown . . . writes his tale in understatements, yet with the aplomb, the savoir-faire, the sense of proportion of a classical sonata. The whole book is beautifully composed; it is witty; it has none of the sentimental toughness of much American writing; its style is nearer to Thurber than to Hemingway, a style chastened and subdued, capable not only of describing action but of conveying knowledge." Henry Reed
+ New Statesman & Nation 28:374 D 2 '44 900w

" 'A Walk in the Sun' is one of the most honest books to come out of this war. It is a small novel possessing dramatic tension, sustained and skillful progress of narrative, a poetic and realistic speech. . . Precisely because 'A Walk in the Sun' is a good book it is important to find out why it isn't a great one. I would locate the central defect in the book's initial design or conception. . . The failure, the neglect, the unwillingness really, to give human status to his characters (conceivably for intelligent reasons) finally and fatally makes them impervious to change and, consequently, to reality." Harvey Breit
+ — N Y Times p3 Je 25 '44 800w

"A book that is a book—natural, deeply moving, funny, and soundly American."
+ New Yorker 20:66 Jl 1 '44 180w

"Harry Brown is a master of effectively simple sentences and cumulative paragraphs. His ideas, scenes, and images all come through cleanly in expression. There are no loose ends, no frippery, and there is no pretentiousness. What is not communicated so successfully in his work, what is not cumulative, is emotion." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 27:11 Jl 1 '44 1000w

"Mr. Brown's technique is of lightness and economy, but it catches in all the essentials about living men in danger, and it seems to this reviewer to be as true as it is delicately wrought. Because he is a poet, it may be that he has made a shade too much use, for his purposes, of shape and refrain, of the wise-cracking of the two with the machine-gun, Friedman and Rivera; but the wise-cracking is good in itself, and it has, for those who look for such things, a formal value. The story is built on simple lines and has all through it that kind of clarity which persuades us that we will remember it." Kate O'Brien
+ Spec 173:488 N 24 '44 500w

"Harry Brown writes with the accuracy and vividness of a man who has been through the mill himself. His platoon is a group of tough, competent workmen going about another unpleasant but routine job. There is a good deal of surface flippancy to their talk, but underneath a hard core of determination and, of course, that ever present tiny spot of fear." G. K. Moriarty
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Jl 2 '44 400w
Times [London] Lit Sup p22 Ja 13 '45 300w

"This short novel describes a few hours with a few men on a beachhead in Italy. The book is by a soldier who is also a poet, and it is very good indeed." John Hersey
+ Weekly Book Review p3 Je 25 '44 1000w

"Private Brown knows human character so intimately and has such superb powers as a writer that he can portray men in battle wonderfully well, better than has any other author writing of the Second World War of whom I have any knowledge." Orville Prescott

+ Yale R n s 34:191 autumn '44 310w

BROWN, HOWARD ELMER. Your life in a democracy; drawings by Ernest King. 435p $1.80 Lippincott
300 Social sciences 44-3313

"This textbook, written for ninth and tenth grade courses in community civics, orientation, core courses or guidance, is written by a teacher of considerable experience. It is divided into seven parts: Your Opportunity; Your School Life; Your Personality and Friends; Your Job as a Citizen; Your Health; Your Mind and Emotions; Your Future." Social Studies

"Mr. Brown has written an interesting text, well illustrated with pictures of youth in a number of worth-while activities. It does a real service in continually emphasizing the part young people can take in the study of contemporary problems. The section on 'Your School Life' is excellent aid for any student in the development of study habits. Much of the book, however, is superficial: the federal government is dealt with in 23 pages, devoted largely to structure; the student gets vocational guidance in 15 pages, without reference to a single specific source of occupational information." J. C. Aldrich
+ — Social Educ 8:382 D '44 400w

"Each chapter is interestingly written, most contain some useful illustrations, all are followed by some provocative questions and stimulating suggestions of activities by which the pupil can apply what has been learned. The book is well-indexed. It should find a wide usefulness. For this reviewer, this volume has two rather serious inadequacies, however. It contains no bibliographies to guide either the teacher or pupil toward other materials that might develop certain points more fully or in which certain controversial issues are elaborated upon more extensively. . . The other shortcoming—and a very serious one—is that in those chapters which are devoted to topics such as: 'Marching Along Together,' 'One for All and All for One' and 'Growing into Good Citizenship' there is little if any mention of conflicts between groups—racial, religious, ethnic, labor-management, and others that threaten our democratic way of life." R. H. McF.
+ — Social Studies 35:286 O '44 300w

BROWN, JOE EVAN. Your kids and mine; il. by Raymond Creekmore. 192p $2 Doubleday
940.5477873 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 44-9187

The Hollywood comedian who traveled some 150,000 miles over the battle fronts of the world, playing to the boys in the Aleutians, New Guinea, China, Burma, North Africa, and Italy, writes of his experiences with quiet humor and understanding. Maps on end papers.

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p2 N 5 '44 270w
Booklist 41:87 N 15 '44

"This is a slender volume but it deserves and probably will get a stout reception. It is no literary epic that comedian Joe E. Brown has written, but he has dipped his pen in sincerity, even if with some sentimentality. What personage of the theatre can resist sentimentality?" L. L. Marchand
+ Boston Globe p15 O 25 '44 290w

"He is one of the few who came unscathed out of the flood of recriminations which surged around our entertainers overseas. To his credit be it noted that he has the reputation of providing entertainment that is consistently clean."
+ Cath World 160:382 Ja '45 70w

"Although it has a folksy quality that might stir any intelligent reader to scoffing, its author is very effective in describing the little guy. He doesn't write literature like Saroyan, but he writes about the same little guy who is now in uniform and has a grin on his face and the world's weight on his shoulders." P. T. Hartung
+ Commonweal 41:236 D 15 '44 310w

"Sentimental—of course, but aren't there times when that is what is needed. And he is realistic and hard-headed, too—and makes no bones of straight-from-the-shoulder criticism of the easy chair strategists and the cushioned complainants at home. A winning book—which carries a message to readers who might miss it elsewhere, through the personal story of a good trouper."
+ Kirkus 12:356 Ag 15 '44 220w

"On every page you will find proof that [the author] enjoyed his job as much as his audience reveled in the end-product. But it is also evident that the high points came when he was included in three bombing missions in honor of his son Don, killed in a routine flight in Australia." C. V. Terry
+ N Y Times p10 N 26 '44 440w

"Its humor and pathos make very readable 'Your Kids and Mine.'" R. S. Scott
+ Springf'd Republican p4d N 12 '44 250w

"Having lost a son in the fighting, [the author] speaks with a feeling and personal accent which should be particularly close to those whose families have been similarly bereft. A flyer himself, he could talk to airmen in their own language and writes vividly of their life."
+ Weekly Book Review p43 N 12 '44 200w

BROWN, JOHN MASON. Many a watchful night. (Whittlesey house publication) 219p il $2.75 McGraw
940.542 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 44-47891

The former New York dramatic critic turns his attention to recording the events leading up to D-day, the landing in Normandy, and the subsequent battles. Illustrated with photographs and reproductions of paintings.

Reviewed by W. F. Morse
Book Week p1 D 24 '44 1100w
Booklist 41:136 Ja 1 '45

Reviewed by Dorothy Hillyer
Boston Globe p15 D 27 '44 500w

"This is one of the more mature and thoughtful books dealing with the actualities of war."
+ Christian Century 61:1504 D 27 '44 80w
Christian Science Monitor p14 D 15 '44 470w

"Quite frankly, I felt it was a distinct drop in reading interest, in value as a record. Others (Wertenbaker, Pyle, Tobin) have already done it better. Brown's name will, however, attract a substantial market. But his is not the gift of a first rate reporter."
Kirkus 12:491 N 1 '44 140w

"I am no authority on war books, having read but few of them. But one of two things is true of Lieutenant Brown's account. It is either far and above and out of class with most books written about this or the last world war, and from the way our Allies are aranging matters, very likely the next; it is either this or else all our writing about the war and in general has made an immense and thrilling advance in quality." Stark Young
+ New Repub 112:26 Ja 1 '45 1250w

"An absorbing, an inspiring, and often deeply moving account of a feat of arms that future generations of Americans will look back upon with pride." F. S. Adams
+ N Y Times p7 D 3 '44 1250w

"This book [is] best described as a record of the thoughts and feelings of an intelligent man in wartime. . . The fact that he can write and has a quiet, engaging wit is also helpful. Most of the things Mr. Brown tells about, such as the American invasion of England, London in moonlight, and a visit to George Bernard Shaw, are not staggeringly important. A lot of readers, however, will probably find it a relief to have their attention directed to the unimportant for a change and will feel grateful for a writer who, in the midst of war, has managed to hold on to his judgment, his sanity, and his taste."
+ New Yorker 20:116 D 9 '44 250w

BROWN, J. M.—Continued

"This is a book that should live long in American literature and among the primary sources of American history. It is notable as much for its felicitous phrase and its incomparable style as for its insight into the impact of war on the minds and the emotions of men. Mr. Brown's description of what he and other American soldiers and sailors saw and thought and felt during the historic months of preparation in England and during the first days in Normandy makes a book that should last far beyond the ephemera of most reports on the war in Europe." Donald Armstrong

+ Sat R of Lit 27:33 D 2 '44 700w

"As an observer in navy blue with a Broadway drama-critic background, Lieut Brown may be described as an elegant seagoing essayist. He is illuminating, fresh and original. But one asks whether the very elegance of his literary equipment blinds the reader's eyes to the reality of war and the reality of life in a ship at sea which is dedicated to fighting." G. W. B.

+ — Springf'd Republican p4d D 17 '44 400w

"Everyone who reads this book will pick his own favorite passages. . . But whatever a reader picks up from the text, he is sure to feel the power and the beauty of the illustrations John Mason Brown has selected to accent the marvelous and terrible story he is telling."

+ Theatre Arts 29:63 Ja '45 700w

" 'Many a Watchful Night' is generously illustrated with as fine a set of photographs as have come out of the war. They add to the charm of a book which is both illuminating and diverting in a highly literate way." Marcus Duffield

+ Weekly Book Review p1 D 3 '44 1050w

BROWN, MARGARET WISE. Black and white; pictures by Charles G. Shaw. [32p] $1.25 Harper

44-5033

Picture story book about a black man who lived in Wales and liked all things black; he even dreamed about black things. Then along came a white night and a white lady and some white dreams, and after that everything was black and white.

"A neat little juvenile problem of miscegenation! Humor far-fetched. And definitely not geared to picture book age sense of fun, as I know it."

— Kirkus 12:216 My 1 '44 90w

"The book has quite an original touch different from most of our picture books, and is an example of how appealing good black-and-white illustrations may be. Recommended." M. A. Webb

+ Library J 69:607 Jl '44 70w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p5 Ag 6 '44 200w

BROWN, MARGARET WISE. Horses, by Timothy Hay [pseud] drawings by Wag. [32p] $1.50 Harper

Horses—Legends and stories 45-279

Picture-story book about a mare and her foal, and the day they spent at a circus. For very young.

Reviewed by H. L. Binsse

Commonweal 41:127 N 17 '44 50w

"Advise examining before purchase." A. M. Wetherell

Library J 70:36 Ja 1 '45 60w

BROWN, MARGARET WISE. Little chicken; pictures by Leonard Weisgard. [39p] $1.50 Harper

43-16942

Picture story book of a tiny chicken and the soft little rabbit which adopted it. For very young children.

"Both story and pictures have a sympathetic appeal for the 4 to 6-year-old." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p11 F 20 '44 140w

Booklist 40:256 Mr 15 '44

Bookmark 5:4 Ag '44

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p10 Ja 31 '44 120w

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '44

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 20:100 Mr '44 50w

"A gentle story, for very young children." D. M. MacDonald

+ Library J 69:72 Ja 15 '44 40w

"The pictures are on a large scale and in colors. . . It makes a good bedtime book." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p5 D 26 '43 150w

BROWN, MARGARET WISE. They all saw it; phot. by Ylla. [30p] $1.50 Harper

Animal pictures

Photographs of animals, with simple running text, build up a story of suspense that will be of interest to ages four to seven.

"I'm not sure that I like the brilliant red pages in this book, though children may not have any such prejudice. Ylla's animal photographs are wonderful. They are all large action pictures by a woman who is an expert in her line, and who encountered a few adventures in catching the poses, although these are not part of the story." P. A. Whitney

+ — Book Week p7 Ag 20 '44 90w

Booklist 40:379 Jl 1 '44

"Beautiful photographic studies of animals by an artist who has made a specialty of catching the almost human qualities in her subjects. Small fry will love the bigness and simplicity and directness of the pictures."

+ Kirkus 12:276 Je 15 '44 40w

"Unfortunately the dressed-up elephant is an anticlimax; but the book is worth having for the marvelous studies of the animal faces." M. C. Skinner

+ — Library J 69:862 O 15 '44 70w

"These photographs are sure to please: they are fine studies of personality with plenty of room for showing it." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ag 27 '44 150w

BROWN, MARGARET WISE, and CAMPBELL, ROCKBRIDGE. Willie's walk to grandmama; il. by Lucienne Bloch. [26p] $1.25 Scott, W. R.

44-8301

Picture-story book describing a small boy's adventures on the way to his grandmother's house. For the very young.

Commonweal 41:256 D 22 '44 30w

"Practical-minded adults may object to Willie's walk alone through city streets and open country, but the four- to eight-year-olds will take Willie's adventures to their hearts as they did Runaway Bunny." F. W. Butler

Library J 69:937 N 1 '44 70w

BROWN, PAUL. Hi Guy, the Cinderella horse. [62p] il $2 Scribner

Horses—Legends and stories 44-8910

"Left alone in a dirty stable by his owners, Hi Guy is taken to the pound to be shot. But Barney sees him and with care and time he becomes a fine jumper and wins a Blue at Madison Square Garden." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 41:110 D 1 '44

"Paul Brown's books sell more on their pictures than on their text. This will be no exception."

+ Kirkus 12:435 S 15 '44 70w

"Paul Brown enthusiasts will welcome this new story. . . Children from seven to ten will delight in both story and pictures." E. G. Mullan

+ Library J 69:937 N 1 '44 60w

"His rejuvenation, though sketchily told, should be a satisfying story for young horse fanciers of 7 to 10, especially with all those crisp drawings to prove it." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p28 N 19 '44 100w
Sat R of Lit 27:44 N 11 '44 40w
Springf'd Republican p4d D 10 '44 50w
Wis Lib Bul 40:161 D '44

BROWN, ROSE (JOHNSTON) (MRS ROBERT CARLTON BROWN). Two children and their jungle zoo; il. by Ann Eshner. 220p $2 Lippincott
44-3472

"A third story about Tatu and Joa of Two Children of Brazil [Book Review Digest, 1940] now spending the summer in the village of Santarem in the Amazon valley. The book lacks plot and action and the writing is quite mediocre, but it does contain useful information on Brazilian animals and background. Grades 4-6." Booklist

Booklist 40:359 Je 15 '44
Kirkus 12:196 Ap 15 '44 110w
Wis Lib Bul 40:132 O '44

BROWN, WILLIAM ADAMS. Future economic policy of the United States. (America looks ahead) 101p 50c; pa 25c World peace
330.973 U.S.—Economic policy 43-16018

"Professor Brown writes as an analyst and not as a prophet. He is therefore concerned less to explain what the United States is likely to do than to list the choices between which it must thread its way... Broadly, the policy he recommends is one in which the basis of organisation is free enterprise, with the recognition that the Government must interfere where there is the danger of mass unemployment. He accepts the need for the stabilisation of the dollar-exchange. He assumes the necessity for a unilateral reduction of American tariffs, with the assumption that Congress should encourage imports rather than exports... While he does not think any one of his proposals sufficient to make commerce a way of peace rather than an instrument of war, he is of opinion that their cumulative effect may have that happy result in the end." New Statesman & Nation

"The book is short: it runs to some eighty pages of text. It is inexpensive: copies can be obtained in cloth or in paper and are available in quantity for a few cents each. It is lucid, persuasive, provocative. It is admirably suited for use in connection with the concluding discussions in any course in economics from the introductory to the graduate level. Laymen, appalled by the complexity of contemporary economic problems, are continually asking what they should read. This little volume should head the list." Clair Wilcox
+ Am Econ R 34:371 Je '44 750w

"A concise and penetrating statement of the major domestic and international economic problems confronting the United States... In this study, Professor Brown has summarized in an unusually lucid manner the economic issues before the American people and the various public attitudes which are being taken toward these problems." N. L. Silverstein
+ Am Pol Sci R 38:187 F '44 300w

"This volume comes to grips with the essence of most of our leading economic problems and, while not designed as a textbook, it would make excellent supplementary reading in almost any course in economics and political science." E. P. Schmidt
+ Ann Am Acad 235:151 S '44 180w

"It is the merit of Professor Brown's little book that it examines soberly a number of the proposals that have been made in the realm of hope and well-meaning, and brings them to earth for well-tempered analysis. The book has no radical solutions to put forward, but it is nevertheless recommended to study groups and individuals interested in the economic problems that face us. It will assist the ordinary reader by reason of its simplicity and comprehensiveness." E. A. Beder
+ Canadian Forum 23:259 F '44 280w

"This is a useful book, worth reading and worth pondering. Much has been written more pretentiously without containing the hard thinking and wise presentation that the author has managed to get into these few pages." J. B. Condliffe
+ J Pol Econ 52:273 S '44 450w

"Anyone who has read reports like those of Mr. Blaisnell for the Temporary National Economic Committee will find it difficult not to conclude that Professor Brown has really written a skilful essay in the optative mood. He assumes, without discussion, that business-men have a passion for rational action, and that they are able, even willing, to take long-term views. Little of the economic history of the American businessman supports either of these assumptions." Harold Laski
New Statesman & Nation 27:245 Ap 8 '44 650w

Reviewed by Marshall Bragdon
Springf'd Republican p6 O 30 '43 290w

BROWN, MRS ZENITH (JONES) (LESLIE FORD, DAVID FROME, pseuds). All for the love of a lady. 261p $2 Scribner 44-3345

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p13 Ap 23 '44 180w
Booklist 40:342 Je 1 '44
Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 Ap 2 '44 80w

"Neatly put together."
+ New Yorker 20:84 Ap 1 '44 90w

"This is one of Leslie Ford's better ones, with plenty of love interest and a baffling plot, and is recommended as good entertainment for the whodunit fan." H. S. J.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 2 '44 160w

"Leslie Ford's new Colonel Primrose mystery is a super-duper and no mistake." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p19 Ap 2 '44 90w
Wis Lib Bul 40:70 My '44

BROWNE, CHARLES ALBERT. Source book of agricultural chemistry. (New ser. of plant science bks) 290p il $5 Chronica botanica
630.24 Agricultural chemistry

"The book covers the history of agricultural chemistry from the early Greek nature philosophers to the beginning of the modern period, to Wiegmann, Schübler, Sprengel, Boussingault, Mulder, and Liebig. The story in seven chapters is woven around the work of 56 men from whose writings nearly all of the source material is quoted. It contains considerable information which is not to be found in the usual histories of general chemistry." Chem & Eng N

"The book will doubtless find an audience much wider than that afforded by professional agricultural chemists; it will interest all sorts of chemists and all sorts of biologists. Indeed, it will appeal to all those fortunate members of the general public who are gifted with scientific curiosity. Dr. Browne's style in this latest of his publications is characteristically simple and clear; his discussions discriminating, yet genial." A. B. Lamb
+ Am Chem Soc J 66:1423 Ag '44 300w

"A fine history of agricultural chemistry, a scholarly job in all respects, clearly and abundantly documented." T. L. Davis
+ Chem & Eng N 22:1320 Ag 10 '44 170w

BRUFF, JOSEPH GOLDSBOROUGH. Gold rush [his] journals, drawings, and other papers, April 2, 1849-July 20, 1851; ed. by Georgia Willis Read and Ruth Gaines; with a foreword by F. W. Hodge. 2v 630;634-1404p $15 Columbia univ. press [£3 15s Oxford]
979.4 California—Gold discoveries. Frontier and pioneer life—California. Overland journeys to the Pacific A44-1510

"Before J. G. Bruff left his position, in the year 1849, to captain a well-organized company of gold-seekers across the continent to California, he had been draftsman to the United States Bureau of Topographical Engineers. Both his training and his position of authority in the emigrant company qualified him to keep a particularly accurate and valuable journal of its daily progress. Sick or well, nourished or hungry, he recorded faithfully the minutiae of trail travel and camp life, richly illustrating his account with sketches, fully intending to arrange them for publication when his trek should be over. In this project he did not succeed. Now, after almost a century, Georgia Willis Read and Ruth Gaines have fulfilled his wish; and, although it is the historical researcher and field-worker who, at this late date, reap the benefits of his work, it is in a great measure a justification of his efforts." Am Hist R

BRUFF, J. G.—Continued

"Too much cannot be said of the tireless research accomplished by the co-editors. It was not all desk work. They traveled many miles in Bruff's footsteps, as this reviewer knows from having met them in Lassen County several years ago. A careful perusal of their voluminous critical notes will give the reader several interesting lines of study not readily found elsewhere; one being information on the organized, sometimes uniformed and almost military companies of gold-seekers that left the east coast so hopefully California-bound. The editors have patiently consulted the files of early publications for notices of their departure and keep the reader oriented as Bruff mentions them casually in his daily notations. The bibliography, although embracing surprisingly few manuscripts, is comprised of solid, reliable material including many excerpts from newspapers of the day. The index is long and adequate. If one were searching for truthful adverse criticism of this compilation it could only be said that the two volumes are too heavy for comfort and that Gold Rush is definitely not a book for the general reading public. To which answer might readily be made that it was intended only for the use and for the pleasure of history lovers to whom each added page is a joy. Gold Rush is a real contribution to our knowledge of the forty-niners—a work of distinction." I. D. Paden

+ Am Hist R 50:148 O '44 950w

"Joseph Henry Jackson of the San Francisco Chronicle feels it is the 'most significant first-hand record yet discovered for the period—Spring 1849 to Midsummer 1851—a mine of source material—a triumph for the editors—limited in sales only because of its price to students and collectors of Californiana'."

+ Kirkus 12:16 Ja 1 '44 260w

Reviewed by Dixon Wecter
Sat R of Lit 27:29 N 25 '44 1100w

"Bruff's careful noting of the names on all grave markers along the trail may well clear up for hundreds of Americans the mystery of their grandparents' disappearance in the gold rush. But Bruff understood, as few others did, the sweep and scope of the movement of which he was a part, and his knowledge of this informs his journal throughout. As for the hundreds of grim, lively, tragic and amusing human stories with which these journals are studded, the reader must get them directly from the text, just as he can come at the full flavor of the man himself only from his own vigorous record." J. H. Jackson

+ Weekly Book Review p3 My 7 '44 1700w

BRULLER, JEAN (VERCORS, pseud). Silence of the sea [Eng title: Put out the light]. 47p $1 (3s 6d) Macmillan

44-1668

" 'The Silence of the Sea' is a short story about Germans in France, written by a Frenchman who calls himself Vercors, and first printed in France by the underground press. Later it was included in a Revue du Monde Libre which the RAF dropped on France. This short story has been a good deal talked about, but it has only just appeared in English. It is a piece in the familiar tradition of Daudet's 'La Dernière Classe,' Maupassant's 'Boule de Suif,' and Barrès' 'Colette Baudoche.' " New Yorker

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 173:125 Ap '44 250w

Booklist 40:271 Ap 1 '44

Reviewed by Katherine Brégy
Cath World 159:184 My '44 250w

"An exquisite piece of literature from the French underground."

+ Christian Century 61:622 My 17 '44 90w

"A strange little book, indeed, which may have seemed more powerful when just written, when the issues in France were not so clearly drawn as now, when there were Frenchmen so desperate as to imagine that what was coming might be all for the best. If, possibly, there yet remain French people who are in doubt, this book would not leave them where it found them. Its beauty, its stark simplicity, its stillness—these one cannot forget." M. W.

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 29 '44 650w

"Effective in its brevity and simplicity. . . Carrying the implication that the French, too, are fighting their enemies in whatever small ways possible, that the French spirit is alive. A short picture of obdurate resistance."

+ Kirkus 12:23 Ja 15 '44 170w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 69:118 F 1 '44 100w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 152:367 Mr 25 '44 1200w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley
New Repub 110:284 F 28 '44 1700w

" 'The Silence of the Sea' was excellent propaganda when it first appeared, though I think its literary merits have been exaggerated. It has ceased to be good propaganda in 1944, but that is no reason for charging its author with being a creature of the Nazis." Malcolm Cowley

New Repub 110:412 Mr 27 '44 300w

"For all its depth of feeling the story falls short of the highest imaginative art. But it is a masterpiece of consummate craftsmanship: I am not in the least surprised to learn that the resistants in France welcomed the Silence de la Mer with enthusiasm. . . Mr. Connolly's version of Le Silence de la Mer does not read like a translation. I have compared it carefully with the original, and it is astonishing how faithful he has remained while achieving the natural rhythms of a writer in English." Raymond Mortimer

+ — New Statesman & Nation 28:14 Jl 1 '44 950w

"I have heard patriotic Frenchmen say that in the last ten pages of this book lies the indisputable proof of its sincerity. I have heard other Frenchmen, equally patriotic, cry out that the author has intended in that final moment (when first the old man and then the niece break their silence) to imply France's acceptance to subjugation. . . 'Sincere or not,' another French author of my acquaintance has said, 'it is certainly poetry—but poetry with a singularly unpleasant smell.' " Kay Boyle

N Y Times p5 F 27 '44 1200w

Reviewed by Edmund Wilson
New Yorker 20:81 F 26 '44 360w

Reviewed by Marshall Bragdon
Springf'd Republican p6 F 26 '44 700w

"This book was first published underground in Paris in 1942. . . At what cost, what peril, it was done, the outside world can only guess. . . Upon a book with such a price on its head, an obligation of greatness is laid. Never has it been more nobly fulfilled." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p4 F 27 '44 550w

BRUNER, JEROME SEYMOUR. Mandate from the people. 278p maps $2.75 Duell

940.53144 Public opinion—U.S. World war, 1939—U.S. Reconstruction (1939-) 44-40141

"A narrative report and digest of the results of various public opinion polls held recently. First part gives public opinion on international issues crucial for winning the peace; second part, a report on ideas regarding the postwar home front. . . Full appendix gives exact wording of poll questions and full results obtained. Many figures throughout text give answers to questions. Libraries will have results of public opinion polls in magazine or pamphlet form." Library J

"Since the book is largely statistical, not a great deal of literary accomplishment was required to write it. Hence this review becomes, by default, criticism of Gallup and similar ideas. With many others, I entertain many doubts that public opinion research has advanced very far as a science. . . I have not intended to debunk Bruner's book itself. 'Mandate from the People' is valuable because it gathers into a full-sized work a very young science. It readies for simultaneous examination the findings of years of experiment in a risky field. Most important it gives the American people a chance to reverse the examination. This science (if it yet is a science) is based on analysis of the American mind; now the American people can analyze the science." Ralph Peterson

— + Book Week p7 Je 25 '44 650w

Booklist 40:374 Jl 1 '44

Christian Science Monitor p12 D 2 '44 950w

Foreign Affairs 23:9 O '44 100w

"Documentary evidence which is absorbing, and encouraging."

+ Kirkus 12:230 My 15 '44 110w

"Since public opinion changes rapidly, depending on the tides of battle, political scene and rationing restrictions on the home front, this is a book of the moment and will be out of date as soon as published. It will have many uses, however, both currently and for historical research in later years." L. R. Etzkorn

+ — Library J 69:501 Je 1 '44 140w

"In other words, 'Mandate from the People' is a challenge to American educators. In view of the glaring failure of most Americans to relate economic realities to political opinions, it is a particular challenge to our economists. Every educator, economist, political analyst, propagandist, or aspirant to political office would do well to keep Dr. Bruner's book on his desk, not only because it can serve as a guide to what Americans think, but more significantly because it suggests methods of approach for any effort to make them think differently." James Loeb, Jr.

+ Nation 159:247 Ag 26 '44 850w

Reviewed by John MacCormac

N Y Times p12 Jl 30 '44 600w

BRUNNER, HEINRICH EMIL. Divine-human encounter; tr. by Amandus W. Loos. 207p $2.50 Presbyterian bd.

201 Theology 43-16169

This volume comprises the substance of lectures delivered on the Olaus Petri foundation at the University of Upsala (Sweden) in 1937. "In these lectures Professor Brunner is talking about what happens when God meets man, the personal encounter between the Creator and the human creature. The central theme of this slim volume can be simply stated: when God meets man, Christian truth comes into being." (Translator's Pref)

Booklist 40:139 D 15 '43

"Brunner is concerned to bring again to life the understanding of the Christian faith which motivated the Protestant reformers, yet in such a way that an uncritical repristination of their attitudes and teachings is avoided. In this effort he has succeeded well, I believe, as this little volume amply proves. It may be significant that he is oriented much more definitely to Luther than to Calvin. The translation is on the whole adequate. Occasionally it is uneven and not clear." Wilhelm Pauck

+ — Christian Century 61:273 Mr 1 '44 500w

"Brunner's attempt and other similar attempts, such as that of Niebuhr, to interpret the absoluteness of the divine grace and the doctrine of original sin in such a way as to conserve human freedom and responsibility must be pronounced failures. They no doubt serve a purpose in the way of humanizing and vitalizing the formal and otherworldly Protestant orthodoxy which still prevails in some quarters and also in the way of counteracting a superficial modernism. But their irrationalism and mystery mongering seem to me to be the chief scandal of present day theology." A. C. Knudson

— Crozer Q 22:71 Ja '45 1200w

"In this book Professor Brunner is not at his analytical and systematic best, but the volume has the very real advantage of making readily available certain important and recurring phases of Brunner's thought which have marked him as a distinguished theologian of our time." Paul Lehmann

J Religion 24:218 Jl '44 550w

Library J 69:645 Ag '44 30w

Times [London] Lit Sup p478 S 30 '44 360w

BRUNTON, PAUL. The wisdom of the overself. 463p $3.75 Dutton [21s Rider]

181.4 Metaphysics. Yoga 43-9115

"Mr. Brunton begins by informing us that he has placed in this book his 'best-regarded truths' for the benefit of 'an audience drawn from the four corners of the civilized world.' . . He also tells his readers that what his book gives is 'esoteric wisdom'—wisdom gathered from Mongolians, Tibetan, Chinese and other Asiatic sources. 'Hundreds of texts were examined in the effort to trace and collate basic ideas.' . . He discusses the deep mysteries of life in a serious approach; of mentalism, of the constitution of the universe, of the four states of being (waking, dreaming, deep sleep and union with the Deity), of mysticism, of the world-mind and of many cognate matters." Times [London] Lit Sup

"If this volume had been written in the Berkeley period and had just come to light it could be taken much more seriously. However, it does offer one sort of escapism for overstrained minds and if applied properly might have a therapeutic value." K. P. L.

J Philos 41:109 F 17 '44 360w

Times [London] Lit Sup p285 Je 10 '44 300w

BRUSH, KATHARINE (INGHAM). This man and this woman; four short novels. 280p $2 Blakiston

44-8991

Four novelettes about modern young women, all of them in the throes of marital entanglements, with divorces in the offing or in force.

Booklist 41:89 N 15 '44

Boston Globe p16 N 15 '44 110w

"'Two to New York,' the second novelette, is in the author's best vein. . . The other three novelettes are not so effective. It is bad luck or fate that this author's style and talents were so well pitched to the tone of the Nineteen Twenties. Its memory haunts her present work. At times, in reading these stories, you get a queer feeling that you are still reading about that era, with its face lifted." Catherine Brody

+ — N Y Times p10 D 24 '44 160w

"Miss Brush offers no surprises, but she uses her considerable gift for smooth narrative effectively in stories which have the flavor of entertaining, high-class Manhattan gossip."

+ New Yorker 20:82 O 7 '44 50w

"Miss Brush has, I think, deliberately aimed her stories at an audience which will swallow her incredible characters whole. These characters are all typed, exaggerated, unreal as personalities in movie magazine interviews." S. H. Hay

Sat R of Lit 27:27 N 11 '44 400w

"The author's mastery of her technic produces a very smooth article indeed with which to while away a rainy afternoon, but there is nothing here which measures up against the new and eternal values which even the silliest readers are beginning to demand." E. M. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p4d D 24 '44 190w

Reviewed by George Conrad

Weekly Book Review p8 O 29 '44 320w

BRUUN, GEOFFREY. Clemenceau. (Makers of modern Europe) 225p il $3 Harvard univ. press

B or 92 Clemenceau, Georges Eugène Benjamin A43-3445

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

"Carefully organized, well-written volume." F. L. Benns

+ Am Hist R 49:716 Jl '44 650w

"There is no satisfactory full-length portrait of Clemenceau, and Professor Bruun has performed an eminently useful task in offering a brief biography cast on a large canvas, extending from 1841 to 1929." A. O. Sarkissian

+ Ann Am Acad 232:201 Mr '44 390w

Bookmark 5:16 Mr '44

Current Hist 6:164 F '44 60w

"This full-length portrait of the French statesman presents him in a fairer and more sympathetic light than most previous biographies." R. G. Woolbert

+ Foreign Affairs 22:496 Ap '44 40w

"A good life of Clemenceau in English would be a most welcome addition to English historical literature. But this is not it. Professor Brunn has assembled a great deal of material and has written a sound, easy-flowing narrative. What he lacks is a point of view; or rather he has two points of view which are not reconciled in his own mind." A. J. P. T.

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 S 29 '44 230w

"Mr. Bruun's Clemenceau could be dismissed as quite inadequate. It is too small a volume for the job attempted, and its lack of size only serves to emphasize its lack of content. Ultimately the errors of omission are the more important, but those of commission are easier to cite. . . Why one of the best of our younger historians should treat such a subject in such a manner at just this time is hard to understand. Perhaps as an accomplished devotee of paradox, Mr. Bruun was not insensible to the charm of maintaining his historical sang-froid when the whole world was aflame. But to offer as 'a dispassionate estimate' quarter-century-old propaganda of notorious origin lacks elegance and hardly entitles him to a place above the battle. And it is time that all historians recognized that the last drop of news has long since been wrung from the once heady proposition that 'Belgian baby eats German officer.'" E. W. Fox

— Pol Sci Q 59:312 Je '44 650w

"Geoffrey Bruun has presented the facts with the spare and masterly lucidity he revealed in his 'Saint-Just'—and there was a Saint-Just in Clemenceau. The problem, however, is infinitely more complex; this terse narrative indicates it but does not solve it. It is important, not as a Requiescat but as a challenge." Albert Guerard

+ — Weekly Book Review p5 F 20 '44 1250w

BRYANT, DORIS. Care and handling of cats; a manual for modern cat owners. 212p il $2.50 Washburn

636.8 Cats Agr44-216

A book of advice for the owner of a pet cat covering training, feeding and care. Author has had much experience in the care of cats and operates a shop in New York city specializing in cat equipment.

Booklist 41:36 O 1 '44

"A manual written for the private owner rather than the breeder, this is detailed enough to make it a competent reference book on specific problems of health of cats, sympathetic care, habits."

+ Kirkus 12:388 S 1 '44 100w

"When this manual appeared some years ago in its original form, it was at once recognized by people who take cats seriously as the most important—small as it was then—of American handbooks for cat owners, and indeed the only one to which the owners of a Siamese cat then might constantly refer. More than once reissued, it now appears completely changed in everything but still the best of its kind: it is much larger, has more and better photographs."

+ Weekly Book Review p26 N 19 '44 300w

BRYNES, ASHER. Revolution comes of age; the use of war. 271p $2.50 Farrar

172.4 War. Peace. World politics 44-1982

"It is primarily a philosophical study of war with its sociological, economic and political implications. The theme may be 'twentieth century democracy is continental democracy.' Solution of world problems will be in continental states federated in pattern of the United States. The same effort must be exerted for peace as for war. 'War is to autocracy as peace is to democracy.'" Library J

Reviewed by A. R. M. Lower

Canadian Forum 24:142 S '44 210w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:657 Jl '44 30w

"Probably there is a public that likes this breezy, somewhat colloquial presentation of a subject that can be as stolid as this. Personally, I found it a bit too flamboyant, at times smart-alecky, and basically lacking in sound marshalling of ideas to specific ends."

— Kirkus 12:39 Ja 15 '44 140w

"The going is difficult in places and the book is recommended only for large and scholarly libraries." F. L. D. Goodrich

Library J 69:261 Mr 15 '44 100w

"Mr. Brynes has written a book which is not devoid of stimulating thoughts, but which on the whole leaves, at least this reader, without any definite conclusions." Hans Kohn

N Y Times p20 Ap 16 '44 600w

"This is a confession of failure. Revolution Comes of Age is a discussion of international politics and it is buttressed by extensive if not always precise historical evidence. A professor of diplomatic history might be expected to understand such a book. But, after reading every word in the book and on the wrapper, this reviewer does not know what Mr. Byrnes is talking about." R. J. Sontag

— Pol Sci Q 59:296 Je '44 380w

"Reading this book is a little like wrestling with a tough opponent. Mr. Brynes has so much to say that his thoughts tumble pell-mell over one another. Moreover, he delights in devious ways of expressing a simple idea. . . If the book can stimulate the soldier to study the social systems that produce armies and war, and can induce the sociologist to try to understand the soldier and his functions, it might be of great value. For those who look to a union of Western Europe as a safeguard against future wars, Mr. Brynes evolves a novel and significant analysis to support such a view." Donald Armstrong

Sat R of Lit 27:21 Ap 15 '44 1250w

"Unfortunately its style is so misty and rhetorical, and the connections between one step in the argument and the next are so often omitted, that it is very difficult to discover what its main thesis is. Reading it is like conducting an important telephone conversation when something is wrong with the connection. . . In view of the genuine power, originality and prophetic quality of Mr. Brynes's mind it is to be hoped that in his next book he will write in a style which is easier to follow and will appeal to a wider audience." H. B. Parkes

— + Weekly Book Review p18 Ap 2 '44 750w

BRYSON, LYMAN, ed. See Conference on science, philosophy and religion. . . Approaches to world peace

BUCK, PEARL (SYDENSTRICKER) (MRS RICHARD JOHN WALSH). Dragon fish; il. by Esther Brock Bird. 63p $1.50 Day 44-6934

Two little girls, one American and one Chinese, were very tired of brothers. Lan-may had three, and Alice had two, and each little sister was tired of being teased. Then the finding of the dragon fish in Lan-may's father's net brought them together, and they decided to be sisters. Taking their precious dragon fish they ran away, but were rescued first by a kindly pawn shop keeper; and then by their repentant families. For girls six to nine.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p10 N 12 '44 160w

Booklist 41:43 O 1 '44

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '44 90w

"A book for homes, schools, bookshops and libraries, this has charm and humor, is simply written and has a special appeal for girls."
+ Kirkus 12:320 Jl 15 '44 90w

Reviewed by S. J. Johnson
Library J 69:763 S 15 '44 70w

New Yorker 20:89 D 16 '44 60w

"In large type with plenty of drawings, the story is one more link in the chain of mutual understanding Pearl Buck is making for little people East and West."
+ Weekly Book Review p12 N 12 '44 330w

BUCK, SIR PERCY CARTER. Psychology for musicians. 115p $2.50 (7s 6d) Oxford

781.1 Music—Instruction and study. Psychology, Applied. Music—Psychology [A44-4730]

"In this collection of lectures psychological terms are explained in simple language and related to the problems of music study and the needs of the music teacher. . . A chapter on technique explains the phenomenon of muscular control and includes exercises and experiments to aid the performer. Other chapters show how to arouse the interest and hold the attention of students. The art of imparting technical information so that the underlying principles of each fact will be understood is related with a number of interesting illustrations." Weekly Book Review

"Wise and humane book."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p431 S 2 '44 300w

"Useful as this little book may be, it is not without its minor annoyances. There is an air of condescension about it, of Christian forbearance in the face of the reader's stupidity, which is not made any more palatable by the ponderous jocularity which attempts to disguise it."
+ — Weekly Book Review p16 O 1 '44 200w

BUCKLEY, FREDERIC ROBERT. Davy Jones, I love you; il. by the author. 253p $2.50 Lippincott 44-4101

The author, an American writer of British descent, was given permission to travel to England with a convoy and to make notes on the life aboard. His book, with some fictional disguises, records the experiences of his trip and particularly the conversations he had with members of the crew. Glossary.

Reviewed by John Norcross
Book Week p9 Ap 30 '44 430w

Booklist 40:355 Je 15 '44

"Mr. Buckley has no major adventures to report, and much of his book is made up of conversations he had with members of the crew, so it is to his credit that he was able to make, out of such simple material, so pleasant and entertaining a book. His whimsical excursions into philosophy, though, do not always come off. Illustrations, not too well done, by the author."
+ — New Yorker 20:86 My 6 '44 90w

"The only book which makes any intelligent claim to exploring the minds of American merchant seamen in wartime is a quiet conversation-piece, 'Davy Jones, I Love you.'" G. W. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 16 '44 390w

"It is hard to communicate the remarkable quality of 'Davy Jones, I Love You.' The book is wise in human understanding, full of the sense of humor that masks the deep things of the heart. It is an authentic reflection of what goes on on shipboard nowadays." Lincoln Colcord
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Je 4 '44 600w

BUCKMASTER, HENRIETTA, pseud. See Henkle, H.

BUCKNER, GEORGE WALKER. Concerns of a world church. 128p $1.25 Christian bd.

261 Church 43-16157

"This little book covers comprehensively the task of the church in this present world. It must first of all be deeply concerned over its own lack of unity; it must speak decisively against the wrong sort of nationalism; it must proclaim the Christian message for peace, for an enduring Christian world order; it must have an interest in the problems of race, a changing social order, education, and human freedom. . . The author participated in the ecumenical conferences at Oxford, Edinburgh and Madras, and outlines not only what should be done, but what the church has been able to do." Churchman

"This is a good book for study."
+ Christian Century 61:370 Mr 22 '44 290w

"There is probably no book which covers so completely, yet so concisely, the mission of the church to this 'despairing world.'" W. L. Caswell
+ Churchman 158:16 Ja 1 '44 150w

BULL, HENRY BOLIVAR. Physical biochemistry. 347p $3.75 Wiley

541 Chemistry, Physical and theoretical. Biological chemistry 43-15512

"Designed expressly for those who intend to use physical chemistry in the interpretation of physical measurements on biochemical and biological systems. . . Employs the experimental approach." (Publisher's note) Index.

"It is easy to find points for criticism in a book of this type, for the choice of topics and the manner of their presentation offer most formidable difficulties to an author who attempts to present physical chemistry to biologists and students of medicine. Bull's treatment has broken new ground in several respects, and I believe that it will have a definite influence on the character of instruction of this sort in the future." J. T. Edsall
+ Am Chem Soc J 66:502 Mr '44 650w

Chem & Eng N 22:200 F 10 '44 20w

"The author speaks from experience, for he has been active in many of the fields considered. The book admirably fulfills his aim to extend and emphasize certain chapters of physical chemistry to students in any of the various phases of the life sciences." W. M. Sandstrom
+ J Phys Chem 48:100 Mr '44 200w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:1006 D 1 '43 20w

BULLARD, MRS MARION (RORTY). Co-pilot Trott; il. by Bruce Hale. 133p $1.75 Dutton 44-6673

Story of a little Scottish terrier, the pet of a girl newspaper reporter who was also an aviator. Wendy liked to have Trott along for company when she flew her plane and the time came when Trott's presence with her in the plane counted for more than companionship.

Kirkus 12:342 Ag 1 '44 90w

"While the story is slight and somewhat sentimental, it will appeal to children who love dogs. Attractive black-and-white illustrations." G. E. Joline
Library J 69:701 S 1 '44 70w

BULLARD, M. R.—Continued
"The author has used too much material to make a smoothly joined narrative but the book has warm human feeling, and the portrait of a dog is so convincing that the reader feels it must have been drawn from life." A. T. Eaton
+ — N Y Times p21 Ja 21 '45 150w

BULLDOZERS come first; the story of U. S. war construction in foreign lands, by Waldo G. Bowman [and others]. 278p il maps $2.75 McGraw

940.541273 World war, 1939—Engineering and construction 44-8977

"This book is concerned with one group of specialists—civil engineers and construction men—whose particular claim to distinction is that their activities are fundamental and antecedent to every phase of modern warfare at the same time that their skills are necessary in the actual fighting. In point of time, the book relates to the achievements of these men in 1943 and early 1944. . . As accredited war correspondents the authors were privileged to see many of America's war-construction operations abroad and to report upon them in dispatches sent to Engineering News-Record, of whose editorial staff they are members. Most of the material in the book is based on those dispatches." (Pref) Contents: Britain, North Africa and the Middle East, by W. G. Bowman; Alaska and the Aleutians, by H. W. Richardson; Pacific Ocean areas, by N. A. Bowers; South America, by E. J. Cleary; Central America, by A. N. Carter.

Reviewed by W. F. Morse
Book Week p14 N 26 '44 100w
Booklist 41:104 D 1 '44
Eng N 133:111 D 14 '44 160w
Library J 69:1002 N 15 '44 50w

"The amazing construction feats which American engineers have performed in foreign lands as part of our titanic war effort have evoked gasps of admiration, almost of incredulity, from American and foreign observers alike. But nowhere, up to now, have they been recounted so comprehensively and with such technical understanding as in this book." Francis Scott
+ N Y Times p14 D 3 '44 320w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 14 '45 300w

BULLER, E. AMY. Darkness over Germany; with a foreword by A. D. Lindsay. 196p il $3 (10s 6d) Longmans

914.3 Germany—Description and travel. Germany—Nazi movement. Youth A44-1160

Collection of chapters recounting the personal experiences of an English woman, who for many years was an annual visitor to Germany. Her association with the International Students Service made it possible for her to know intimately many members of the upper middle classes in Germany. These articles or sketches describe the struggle of these people against Nazi oppression.

Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 22 '44 600w

"Miss Buller is evidently a civilized, if rather pedantic, searcher for truth. But one wonders if this curious apologia for German helplessness, in the face of the Nazis (though based on countless authentic conversations), is really particularly helpful." Eleanor Kittredge
N Y Times p6 D 24 '44 440w

BULLOCK, BENJAMIN FRANKLIN. Practical farming for the South. 510p il $2.50 Univ. of N.C. press

630.2 Agriculture—South Agr44-211

A book designed to aid teachers of agriculture in southern rural schools or to be used as a reference work by farmers without formal education in agricultural methods. In three parts: plant production, animal production, and farm financing, the book contains separate chapters on the home garden, the home orchard, milk production, poultry, honey bees, etc. as well as on general topics. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 41:36 O 1 '44

"This is an altogether admirable book. . . Mr. Bullock's volume, which concentrates on the non-tropical areas of the South, has great practical value for almost anyone who wishes to farm within the borders of the United States. A few of his sections may be superfluous, but the vast bulk of what he writes will prove exceedingly useful." H. L. Binsse
+ Commonweal 40:500 S 8 '44 280w

Reviewed by B. R. Andrews
J Home Econ 36:657 D '44 250w

Reviewed by B. R. Andrews
Survey 81:31 Ja '45 110w

BULOSAN, CARLOS. Laughter of my father. 193p $2 Harcourt

818 Philippine Islands 44-40087

Sketches of "life with father" in a Philippine village by a young Filipino who is also known as a poet. Some of the sketches were first published in the New Yorker.

"The stories of Carlos Bulosan are delightfully easy reading. His art seems so effortless as to be artless, but such casual tales are extremely tricky to spin." Leo Kennedy
+ Book Week p3 Ap 30 '44 400w
Booklist 40:300 My 1 '44

"Hilarious tales of a Filipino family in a village in the Philippines. Other Filipinos have said that they ring true, though the details are cleverly fanciful."
+ Christian Century 61:498 Ap 19 '44 90w
Kirkus 12:103 Mr 1 '44 170w
New Repub 110:614 My 1 '44 120w

"The Bulosans were a laughing family; the Filipinos are a laughing people. Here they are shown for the first time in the realism and humanness of their native peasant life. It is a joy to meet them—and to know that they have a weapon of the spirit with which to fight the little people who rule them now." Thomas Sugrue
+ N Y Times p7 Ap 23 '44 680w

"Mr. Bulosan's impoverished Luzon peasants have a quality of aimlessness, gaiety, and inconsequence that is refreshing at a time when there is so much 'significant' fiction about."
+ New Yorker 20:89 Ap 22 '44 70w

"No, not every father, not every family behaves with the untrammeled naturalness of this family. Nothing neurotic about them! They felt what they felt and they acted upon it. No repressions! The reader breaking out into uncontrollable laughter as he reads, experiences a vast sense of relief and enjoyment at getting so near to persons who can love and hate and act as they feel with such perfect spontaneity. He laughs aloud with Father. . . I heartily recommend this small book to anyone who is real enough himself to be able to enjoy reading about people." C. S. Littledale
+ Sat R of Lit 27:22 Je 3 '44 450w
Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 23 '44 240w

Reviewed by F. H. Bullock
+ Weekly BoBok Review p4 Ap 23 '44 600w
Wis Lib Bul 40:84 Je '44

BULOSAN, CARLOS. Voice of Bataan. 28p $1 Coward-McCann

811 World war, 1939—Poetry 43-16194

Small book of poems by a Filipino poet now living in Los Angeles. In it he shows the emotions of the soldiers of Bataan, where "defeat was victory."

Booklist 40:179 Ja 15 '44

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries
N Y Times p17 F 13 '44 100w

Reviewed by W. R. Benét
+ Sat R of Lit 26:23 D 4 '43 140w

BUNDESEN, HERMAN NIELS. Baby manual; a practical guide from early pregnancy through the second year of life; with a foreword by Thomas Parran. 590p il $3 Simon & Schuster

649.1 Infants—Care and hygiene. Pregnancy SG44-194

Material is grouped under four general heads: Prenatal care; Care of the baby; The premature baby; The first two years.

"The book will appeal to all mothers with young children. A wide field is covered, and the numerous and pertinent questions are briefly and concisely answered by the author. The contents are well arranged and the material is easy to follow." I. A. Abt

+ Book Week p2 Je 11 '44 450w

Booklist 41:11 S '44

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Je '44

Kirkus 12:113 Mr 1 '44 170w

"A great help to mothers. The author, a leading Chicago pediatrician, has had many years of practical and successful experience." M. B. G.

+ Springf'd Republican p6 D 29 '44 330w

Wis Lib Bul 40:126 O '44

BURCH, GLADYS. Famous pianists, for boys and girls. 156p il $2 Barnes, A.S.

927.8 Pianists—Juvenile literature 43-18639

Short biographical sketches of ten famous pianists: Franz Liszt, Anton Gregoryevitch Rubinstein, Hans Von Bülow, Vladimir De Pachmann, Teresa Carreño, Ignace Jan Paderewski, Ferruccio Benvenuto Busoni, Sergei Vassilievitch Rachmaninoff, Josef Casimir Hofmann, Percy Aldridge Grainger. Contains a chapter giving a brief history of the development of the piano. For grades five to eight. Index.

Booklist 40:256 Mr 15 '44

Reviewed by Maria Cimino
Sat R of Lit 27:27 Ag 19 '44 50w

BURKE, ARVID JAMES. Defensible spending for public schools; with an introd. by Paul R. Mort. 379p $4.50 Columbia univ. press

379.11 School finance 43-17849

"Dr. Burke considers educational spending in relation to other governmental spending, to the country's economic system and condition, and to special factors, such as the changed status of women, the trend toward urbanization, and the rise in living standards. He states the problems and summarizes the facts and principles of public-school finance, never losing sight of the fundamental educational issues involved." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by C. H. Moehlman
Christian Century 61:775 Je 28 '44 300w

"In style, the book has an incisive clarity combined with a thorough treatment of each topic. It is concise, meaty, and authoritative, including in the appendix a guide to the literature of public-school finance, and a well-selected bibliography. For anyone interested in school finance, this volume provides stimulating reading. It is a 'must' for school administrators, school board members, and layman interested in the field of public education." F. R. Morey

+ Crozer Q 21:265 Jl '44 950w

'"The impression should not be gained that this volume is simply a collection of facts and theories. This treatise is thought-provoking, but it is also highly usable. It will be valuable to general economists, to teachers of school finance, and especially to superintendents of schools and to boards of education." J. G. Fowlkes

+ El School J 45:116 O '44 550w

"Educators, public administrators, taxpayers, and others who seek to plan, defend, or criticize public-school spending will find this study of value."

+ School & Society 58:464 D 11 '43 80w

Reviewed by R. L. Williams
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 5 '44 650w

BURKE, RICHARD. Frightened pigeon. 248p $2.50 Putnam

44-4184

Story of Valerie Bright, a young American dancer who becomes involved in an international espionage plot thru her love for Charles (Ching) Dillon, newspaper correspondent in Vichy.

"A well-written, entertaining and exciting tale." Elizabeth Bullock

+ Book Week p10 My 7 '44 130w

Booklist 40:356 Je 15 '44

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p20 My 21 '44 200w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p14 Ap 23 '44 110w

BURLINGAME, CORA. Lord of London; pictures by George Richards. 291p $2.50 Appleton-Century

Whittington, Richard—Juvenile literature
44-8725

"A 'young novel' of fourteenth century England with the Dick Whittington who became Lord Mayor of London as its hero." Sat R of Lit

"Never has the story of Dick Whittington come to life so realistically as in Cora Burlingame's fast-moving historical tale for teen-aged boys and girls." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p6 N 12 '44 130w

Booklist 41:171 F 1 '45

Cath World 160:281 D '44 20w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 D 28 '44 50w

"Well written historical novel."

+ Kirkus 12:434 S 15 '44 140w

Reviewed by Marian Cumming
Library J 69:1051 D 1 '44 90w

"Dick, for all the airy nonchalance of his legend, became Lord Mayor the hard way, through a welter of fist fights, intrigues and mysteries. The whole is steeped in such authentic atmosphere that it fits painlessly into historical education." I. M.

+ N Y Times p20 N 12 '44 80w

Sat R of Lit 27:42 N 11 '44 20w

Springf'd Republican p4d D 10 '44 110w

"In this book about Dick Whittington, the cat is politely lifted out of its customary heroic role in fiction and dropped back among the minor facts of a tumultuous time. For it is as a moving picture—not a movie—of one of the richest periods of London's long life, that the book earns permanent place in home or school libraries."

+ Weekly Book Review p30 N 12 '44 450w

BURLINGAME, ROGER, and STEVENS, ALDEN. Victory without peace. 335p $2.75 Harcourt

940.314 European war, 1914-1918—Peace. U.S.—Politics and government—20th century 44-40045

Dramatic and swiftly moving history of Washington politics from 1918 to 1923. Important people and events are studied in the "March of Time" technique. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by F. M. Russell
Am Pol Sci R 38:585 Je '44 450w

Reviewed by Preston Slosson
Ann Am Acad 233:239 My '44 330w

"Taken with Stephen Bonsal's 'Unfinished Business,' 'Victory Without Peace' gives the lay reader (or diplomat) background material absolutely essential if we are to avoid another peace fiasco and still another world war." Sterling North

+ Book Week p2 Mr 12 '44 290w

BURLINGAME, ROGER—Continued

Booklist 40:249 Mr 15 '44

Christian Century 61:339 Mr 15 '44 330w

"This is a sound book. It is a little like the atrocity stories. Some of them are invented but some of them are not invented. This is a terrifying story but it is not invented."

+ Commonweal 39:569 Mr 24 '44 700w

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook

Current Hist 6:353 Ap '44 1100w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:656 Jl '44 20w

"The popular appeal of this is open to conjecture. The presentation, in virtual 'March of Time' manner should catch the interest of those usually allergic to recreated history."

Kirkus 12:54 F 1 '44 200w

"Recommended." D. F. Lucas

+ Library J 69:202 Mr 1 '44 100w

Reviewed by Albert Guerard

Nation 158:569 My 13 '44 600w

"Using 'human interest' reportage to attract the general reader, yet backed by serious and conscientious gathering of basic material, this book reveals no new facts, though it recalls many events and attitudes easily forgotten or hardly noticed by the general public." Hans Kohn

N Y Times p6 Ap 2 '44 950w

"The commentary provided by the authors is reasonably lucid and intelligent, and they are sensible enough not to burden the sound track with the obvious moral of their tale, which is that the history of the era they are presenting appears to be repeating itself, but the moral is there just the same."

+ New Yorker 20:94 Mr 11 '44 90w

"To achieve their aims, the authors have resorted to a novel method of telling the story. This method employs the newsreel technique. . . Although orthodox historians may object to this practice of putting words into the mouths of men, it adds to the readability of the story. In short, the newsreel technique is handled so capably that the reader's interest is sustained throughout the volume." J. R. Mock

+ — Pol Sci Q 59:295 Je '44 700w

Reviewed by Phillips Bradley

Survey G 33:253 My '44 400w

"This book is in no sense cheerful reading; but is that to its discredit? Could we, in fact, make a worse mistake than to approach the peace conference in a gay and jocund spirit, under the impression that writing an adequate treaty will be simple and easy? The fact that 'Victory Without Peace' does little to cheer or reassure us is perhaps one of its great merits." G. W. Johnson

+ Weekly Book Review p3 Mr 26 '44 1000w

Wis Lib Bul 40:53 Ap '44

BURLINGHAM, DOROTHY TIFFANY, and FREUD, ANNA. Infants without families; the case for and against residential nurseries, by Anna Freud and Dorothy Burlingham. 128p $2 Int. univ. press [5s; pa 3s 6d Allen, G]

136.7 Child study. Children—Charities, protection, etc. 44-6589

"This report of cases and conditions observed and lived through at the residential nursery made famous by 'Journey for Margaret,' follows the first book by these authors, 'War and Children' [Book Review Digest 1943] and carries further its conclusions on the effect of war-time separation." Weekly Book Review

---

Booklist 41:163 F 1 '45

Kirkus 12:296 Jl 1 '44 110w

"Not only those interested in the development of young children as such, but those interested in the whole emerging pattern of social life, and the role of the nursery school in taking over those functions which the home—especially the economically limited home—can do least well, will find great stimulation in this modest, significant book." Margaret Mead

+ New Repub 111:228 Ag 21 '44 600w

"[This] work should be an inspiration to every skilled clinician interested in a wider application of his skills in the field of public health and welfare, and to all lay and professional persons concerned with the care of young children." M. W. MacDonald

+ Survey 80:334 N '44 420w

"Ever since it was thought worth while to save foundlings at all, ever since the long, intensely human history of institutions for saving them began, lay opinion has taken a somewhat zigzag course between institutional and home care. The tendency has been to study and theorize about babies by watching them from without; this patient, disinterested study uses human sympathy as one of the means of understanding them, as it were from within. Again and again mother or nurse who must take a mother's place will recognize in one of these faithfully reported bits of talk or action something that helps her to understand the child, more favored, in her care." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p20 N 26 '44 350w

BURNETT, WHIT, ed. Seas of God; great stories of the human spirit. (Story press bk) 585p $3 Lippincott

Short stories—Collections 44-2810

Anthology composed of forty-nine short stories, all dealing with the spiritual life of man. Partial contents: A fallen king, by Selma Lagerlöf; The road to Jerusalem, by Lloyd Douglas; God's lonely man, by Thomas Wolfe; Solitude, by H. D. Thoreau; Father Andrea, by Pearl Buck; The death of Kristin Lavransdatter, by Sigrid Undset; The little black boys, by Clara Laidlaw; The death of Mrs. Folger, by Sherwood Anderson; The snows of Kilimanjaro, by Ernest Hemingway; On the road to Rome, by Aldous Huxley; The barefoot saint, by S. V. Benét; Leaning on the everlasting arms, by William Saroyan; Five lie dying, by Louis Paul.

"This is to me a frightening book because it is so far removed from the hard and salient fact that to get a better world we must make one ourselves. Many of the stories in this symposium are little masterpieces and, taken with the rest of any given writer's work, show the well-rounded man. But isolated from context they give the erroneous impression that most great writers have been mystics." Sterling North

Book Week p2 Mr 26 '44 270w

Booklist 40:355 Je 15 '44

Reviewed by Margaret Williams

Cath World 160:90 O '44 310w

Christian Century 61:465 Ap 12 '44 130w

"Except for the work of Sigrid Undset and a few others, there is a very definite lack of unity in the train of thought expressed by the authors represented. 'The Seas of God' is, nonetheless, most certainly good reading. It is the sort of book from which a story can be read at random before turning out the lights at the end of the day. And any number of the stories are good in their neat turns of plot, their brilliant characterization. Some are even inspiring for their heroic singing of man's love of God and of that love returned." W. H. Shriver, Jr.

+ Commonweal 40:68 My 5 '44 400w

"The distinguished contributors to the book represent various shades of belief and disbelief, for the long list includes Jews, Christians and devout agnostics. Each contributor throws the colored light of his particular belief on some aspect of the twin mysteries of life and death, but none of these writers is a simple propagandist. Whatever the unevenness of their talents, they have all tried to present artistic, not didactic, solutions. . . A loose classification of the other tales is here attempted and may not be unacceptable. Many are emphatically good, a lesser number rate as excellent, and a very few seem thin and vague." E. C. Richards

+ — N Y Times p16 Ap 2 '44 650w

Wis Lib Bul 40:67 My '44

BURNETT, WILLIAM RILEY. Nobody lives forever. 243p $2.50 Knopf

43-18855

Underworld story, featuring a handsome swindler known under various aliases, and the wealthy widow he attempts to fleece, with disastrous results.

Booklist 40:318 My 15 '44

"Ably planned, high paced story of crime and redemption."

+ Kirkus 11:555 D 15 '43 110w

" 'Nobody Lives Forever' offers a three-hour tour of a criminal's mind, with a few scabrous side-trips thrown in. But it is a tour without meaning, with no prize at the end. We couldn't help feeling that Mr. Burnett would have saved his readers a lot of footwork if he had merely turned Jim Farrar over to the nearest psychoanalyst." William Du Bois

— N Y Times p5 Ja 16 '44 600w

"The author of 'Little Caesar' has evolved an admirably appropriate style (hard without show-off toughness) for this story of confidence men, gangsters, and strong-arm guys, of whom he writes with humor and authority."

+ New Yorker 19:65 Ja 22 '44 90w

"If somebody must write about gangsters and con-men and red-hot babes, our preference for the job is W. R. Burnett. Others have written faster and bloodier tales, but Burnett adds that extra dividend of humanity, in just such a manner as some writers have recently been endowing detective stories with the qualities of the novel, like it or not." N. L. Rothman

+ Sat R of Lit 27:17 Ja 8 '44 360w

Reviewed by John Hampson

Spec 173:466 N 17 '44 90w

Times [London] Lit Sup p551 N 11 '44 380w

"Mr. Burnett writes smoothly, with never a wasted word. He has a gift for describing the lesser creatures of the underworld. . . If most of the characters he creates are more colorful than creditable, at least they are easy to read about." Herbert Kupferberg

+ Weekly Book Review p10 Ja 16 '44 550w

BURNHAM, JOHN. Total war; the economic theory of a war economy. 339p $2 Meador

330.19355 War—Economic aspects. World war, 1939—Economic aspects 43-17731

Believing that the war will last for several years and that at present the United States is not engaging in total war on the industrial front at least, the author sets forth a number of suggestions for increasing output, raising taxes, and curtailing civilian spending.

"Those who feel that we are paying too much attention to reconversion problems and the preservation of the free enterprise system, while still on the eve of our greatest war efforts and sacrifices, will find in Mr. Burnham's pages a welcome corrective. To many of his readers, however, including the present reviewer, his book will appear so completely to neglect the imponderables of American life and so greatly to idealize the capacities of a centralized government bureaucracy as to be unrealistic. Nevertheless, as Mr. Burnham proceeds to examine the wastes and duplications, and in general the seamy side of the American economic order in one major field after another, the reader will carry away an impression of the still vast untapped resources which we could direct to our war effort. Mr. Burnham does not leave his readers in doubt as to the amount of fat which could still be worked off the American economy if we should really be driven to the wall to fight for our life in the sense in which some other belligerent countries are fighting for their life. This is perhaps the most important contribution of Mr. Burnham's book." W. A. Brown, Jr.

+ — Am Econ R 34:400 Je '44 1300w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:496 Ap '44 30w

Reviewed by H. W. Spiegel

Pol Sci Q 59:124 Mr '44 490w

Reviewed by H. W. Heney

Social Studies 35:188 Ap '44 650w

BURNS, ELMER ELLSWORTH; VERWIEBE, FRANK LOUIS, and HAZEL, HERBERT C. Physics; a basic science. 656p il $1.80 Van Nostrand

530 Physics 43-14947

Textbook presenting the fundamentals of physics for high school students. Includes questions and problems for each lesson. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 40:191 F 1 '44

Library J 69:31 Ja 1 '44 20w

BURNS, EUGENE. Then there was one. 179p il $2.50 Harcourt

940.545 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. Enterprise (airplane carrier) 44-4444

A popularly written account of the U.S.S. Enterprise (airplane carrier) during the first year of the war.

"This book is a personal narrative of the exploits of the Big E in the war of the Pacific. It graphically recounts the experiences of the men flying from that carrier. The accounts of the work of these aviators and their daring exploits are even stranger than fiction. The readers of this book will feel a great love for each actor in the great war drama, and know him as intimately as a brother. They will honor them all as heroes who seek no reward but perform their hazardous duties for the good of the nation." Yates Stirling

+ Book Week p3 My 14 '44 600w

Booklist 40:338 Je 1 '44

Christian Century 61:594 My 10 '44 100w

"Is there reading room for another biography of a flat-top? If so, this is good, a straight action account of the Enterprise, who has been in and through the biggest and hottest engagements of the Pacific war."

+ Kirkus 12:186 Ap 15 '44 170w

"An able, if not very distinguished, history of the aircraft carrier Enterprise." Marcus Duffield

Nation 158:600 My 20 '44 120w

"On the whole (with the material available), Mr. Burns has done a workmanlike job. But . . . with all due respect for Mr. Burns' ability as a writer, it is difficult for a land-bound civilian to get the feeling of a ship in a short time. What he sees and hears he records in a reportorial fashion, but in general he sees only the skin of his subject and he has no real appreciation of the life within; the blood and flesh and bones, so to speak that make one ship differ from another." Capt Frederick Bell

+ — N Y Times p28 My 28 '44 480w

"The Enterprise saw more than her proper share of action, since she was the only carrier on active duty in the Pacific for a time after Pearl Harbor, and Mr. Burns, an Associated Press correspondent who lived aboard her for almost five months, has put together a highly readable though somewhat sketchy record of her exciting and heroic exploits."

+ New Yorker 20:87 My 6 '44 90w

"Mr. Burns is one of the ablest of the correspondents assigned to the fleet and with a wealth of material to work upon he has done a good job. He gives a careful, factual report of the many operations and engagements in which the Enterprise took part in the first year of the war. She was in every carrier action with the single exception of the battle of the Coral sea in May, 1942. This was a record equalled by no other ship." R. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p4d My 21 '44 350w

"A competent report on life at sea as experienced by a fighting crew." George Polk

+ Weekly Book Review p12 My 14 '44 330w

BURNS, MARY LOVELAND. Murder at Crawford notch. 249p $2 Humphries 44-3316

Detective story.

"The story is not for the critical mystery fan." Isaac Anderson
— N Y Times p12 Ap 16 '44 80w

"Readable soft-boiled item." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p19 Ap 2 '44 50w

BURROUGHS, HARRY ERNEST. Boys in men's shoes; a world of working children; with an introd. by Sheldon Glueck. 370p il $3.50 Macmillan

362.75 Burroughs newsboys foundation, Boston. Children—Charities, protection, etc. Newsboys 44-3125

The founder of the Newsboys foundation of Boston, who was once a newsboy himself, describes the establishment of the foundation, its methods, accomplishments, and plans for the future. He includes material on the Agassiz Village in Maine, an affiliated institution, and many case histories. Index.

"At a time when so many boys find themselves in 'men's shoes,' Dr. Burroughs' book should be a welcome addition to the libraries of workers who are expected to deal with these boys and with their problems. It will be especially welcome to those readers who are more interested in knowing how to deal with concrete situations than in reading treatises where an impressive psychiatric jargon may serve as camouflage for pseudo-scientific generalizations." M. S. Stahl
+ Am Soc R 9:581 O '44 500w

Reviewed by C. W. Morton, Jr.
Atlantic 173:129 My '44 650w

"Here, written with warmth and wisdom and deep human understanding, is the answer to our present-day delinquency problems. As Burroughs points out, a nation is only as strong as the children it produces. A crisis is upon us now, and this is no time for caution and timidity. Burroughs himself has pioneered in the field, and a nation-wide program similar to that of the foundation would stop what amounts to tragic neglect. Only then will our jails and reform schools cease to be the 'successful universities for crime' which so many of them are today." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p4 Ap 2 '44 480w

Booklist 40:278 Ap 15 '44

Bookmark 5:4 My '44

"The book makes easy and heartwarming reading. It is full of cases, drawn from Mr. Burroughs's rich memory, of bewildered, hungry, overworked newsboys who have been given a chance at success." L. H.
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Ap 27 '44 480w

Kirkus 11:568 D 15 '43 170w

"Recommended." E. P. Nichols
+ Library J 68:767 O 1 '43 80w

"In view of the rapid growth of juvenile delinquency in recent years, Mr. Burrough's book comes at an opportune time. It is unfortunate that his assets as a guardian angel do not include a talent for writing. Although the book is packed with rich human material, little of it is fully realized. Perhaps some day someone who can write well will take Mr. Burroughs' material and give it the life and drama it merits." C. B. Palmer
+ — N Y Times p25 My 14 '44 750w

Reviewed by J. F. Murphy
Social Educ 8:335 N '44 430w

"Teachers, social workers, parents, ministers, boys club workers and all others who have intimate contact with growing boys and girls will find this book full of human interest and helpful suggestions." R. H. Mc.F.
+ Social Studies 35:285 O '44 240w

"This reviewer found the early pages of his book somewhat irritating in spots because of the constant use of the perpendicular pronoun. . . Some of the principles expounded by Mr Burroughs are certainly debatable and would by no means receive the unanimous approval of other successful workers with boys. . . However, the book is not to be read as a textbook on methods and technics, but as an account of the splendid work accomplished." P. A. Samson
+ — Springf'd Republican p4d Je 4 '44 500w

Weekly Book Review p18 Je 11 '44 280w

Wis Lib Bul 40:124 O '44

BURT, KATHARINE (NEWLIN) (MRS MAXWELL STRUTHERS BURT). Captain Millett's island. 256p $2 Macrae Smith co. 44-5241

An island off the Carolina coast, during the early stages of the present war, is the scene. The American owner of the island, married to a Belgian nobleman, is virtually a prisoner. An ex-Nazi officer, acting as butler, with his own henchmen as servants on the island, holds the whiphand. But unknown to the Nazi, the island holds one inhabitant he cannot control—the Baroness' divorced husband, an American. With the sinking of a ship near the island the tangled threads are straightened.

"Flossy, perhaps, but more for your money than most in this line."
Kirkus 12:150 Ap 1 '44 130w

"Katharine Burt has exploited her island to the utmost. Suspense, terror, a couple of sudden deaths—all worked out in smoothly entertaining style—leave little to be desired." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p14 Jl 9 '44 240w

"Mrs. Burt is a mistress of menace and has made an excellent job of it." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p14 Je 11 '44 120w

BURT, MRS OLIVE (WOOLLEY). Peter's story goes to press; phot. by W. Carl Reynolds and W. R. Arveseth. 112p $2 Holt

070 Journalism—Juvenile literature 43-17455

Vocational story for younger boys. Peter's uncle was a reporter on a Western newspaper. When a South American diplomat arrived at the city airport, Peter accompanied his uncle and the paper's photographer to the landing field, and on his return wrote an account of what he saw. Each step in the process of turning the story into type, from typewriting machine to delivered paper, is then described and illustrated with numerous photographs.

"Here is a useful book for every teacher's desk and a reading thrill for any youngster who has wondered how newspapers are made." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p10 Mr 12 '44 170w

Reviewed by D. M. MacDonald
Library J 69:72 Ja 15 '44 70w

"It comes nearer to an actual tour of inspection of a newspaper plant than any of the photograph books of this kind I have seen, largely because lively personal interest in watching one's own story take shape gives greater vivacity to what takes place. The newspaper practice is accurate and given with details fascinating to an outsider—and incidentally good to know if one has leanings this way." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 16 '44 300w

BURTON, EARL. By sea and by land; the story of our amphibious forces. (Whittlesey house publication) 218p il $2.75 McGraw

940.542 World war, 1939—Amphibious operations. U.S.—Armed services 44-5595

Story of the evolution of the amphibious forces which have been so important in the present war. This "secret weapon" had to be built from scratch, and in record time, and the book describes the work of the army and navy officers and enlisted men, the ship designers and builders, and the other prerequisites of a successful invasion.

"Lt. Burton has done a considerable service to the home front in giving the story to the public. He brings a sparkling style and a grand sense of humor to his account of a grim and grinding job. His book is well organized and imparts a lot of information clearly and concisely. 'By Sea and by Land' gives one new pride in the abilities of one's countrymen." W. F. Morse

+ Book Week p8 Jl 2 '44 320w
Booklist 41:15 S '44
Boston Globe p19 Jl 5 '44 280w
Christian Science Monitor p12 O 7 '44 300w
Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Je '44
Kirkus 12:209 My 1 '44 130w

"An excellent and readable background account of the problems and procedures of invasion whether by land or sea. Covers a comparatively new field in war literature. Will appeal to readers of all ages. Recommended for all libraries." M. E. Clark
+ Library J 69:501 Je 1 '44 50w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:699 S 1 '44 70w

Reviewed by Francis Scott
N Y Times p4 Jl 2 '44 500w

Reviewed by Donald Armstrong
Sat R of Lit 27:11 Jl 15 '44 550w

"The book is well illustrated and should prove of interest as a supplement to war reading." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p8 Jl 7 '44 330w
Weekly Book Review p18 Ag 13 '44 350w

BURTON, HARRY MCGUIRE. Education of the countryman. (Int. lib. of sociology and social reconstruction) 251p $3.50 Oxford [15s Routledge]

379.173 Rural schools. Education—Great Britain 43-18623

"This history of rural education in England during the past sixty years, together with an objective account of the village school, its buildings, teachers, managers, parents, and children, will be welcomed particularly by the sociologist, as well as by the informed layman who is concerned with today's vital problems of education throughout the world." (School & Society) Index.

Reviewed by E. C. Lindeman
Ann Am Acad 236:212 N '44 500w

"[This work] is written with so much vitality and color—even with humor—and is in so many respects applicable to rural education in our own country that it proves surprisingly rewarding." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p2 Jl 23 '44 100w
School & Society 60:15 Jl 1 '44 60w

BURTON, JEAN. Heyday of a wizard; Daniel Home, the medium. 281p il $3 Knopf

B or 92 Home, Daniel Dunglas. Spiritualism 44-3636

Biography of a Scottish born American medium who caused quite a furor in Europe during the middle years of the nineteenth century, by his seances when "They" communed with him, tables rapped, and material objects floated thru the air without visible cause. Received by many of Europe's rulers and the pet of influential society circles Home also awakened the interest of writers and scientists, the Brownings, Mark Twain, Sir William Crookes, and others.

"As a good yarn about a magnificent mountebank, 'Hey-day of a Wizard' provides delightful relief from the 'must' books. If you don't want relief you can take this book seriously, too, and shake your head all the way to page 275 over the cultural neurosis of the Victorian period, so grotesquely illuminated by Home's phony phosphorescence." Wendell Johnson
Book Week p5 Ap 23 '44 400w
Booklist 40:316 My 15 '44

"Fascinating—and fantastic reading; curious detail, but no explanations."
Kirkus 12:194 Ap 15 '44 60w

"Miss Burton, who in 'Sir Richard Burton's Wife' (1941) dealt with a far more sinister student of the occult, brings to her study of Home the same Stracheyesque irony which distinguished her earlier, and more ambitious, work. But she contrives, like her ancestor Sir Richard, who observed equally startling wizardry during his explorations in the East, to set Home's adventures down 'in enigmatically rationalistic terms.' The result is an enthralling book." Carlos Baker
+ N Y Times p4 Ap 16 '44 950w

"Miss Burton has turned out on this subject a curious and diverting book but a rather unsatisfactory one. It is mainly a piecing together of the various accounts by contemporaries, with almost no attempt to penetrate the surface of Home or even clearly to depict his personality. And, though she assumes that his séances were all fraudulent, she has entirely neglected to examine them with a view to finding out what methods he employed. She has not even given us the benefit of the findings of professional magicians such as Houdini and John Mulholland."
— + New Yorker 20:86 My 6 '44 380w

"Miss Burton's book seems to the reviewer a genuine contribution to the study of obscure mental conditions. It is pleasantly written and well documented. Her portrait of the slimy reptilian creature who bamboozled himself and his betters is a thoroughly competent job." Leonard Bacon
+ Sat R of Lit 27:12 My 6 '44 950w
Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 30 '44 700w

"A lucid, witty biography of the most successful, most enigmatic of these 19th-Century mediums."
+ Time 43:96 My 1 '44 1150w

"Miss Burton, author of the present work, wisely makes no attempt to explain Home's feats. His astonishingly successful career left its trail across the diaries and letters of distinguished people of two continents and by piecing them together she has managed to achieve a highly diverting descriptive account not only of the man but also (what is more important) of a social phenomenon." J. W. Krutch
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ap 16 '44 1250w

BURTON, MRS KATHERINE (KURZ). Mother Butler of Marymount. 290p $3 Longmans

B or 92 Butler, Mother Joseph. Marymount college, Tarrytown, New York 44-4659

Biography of the founder of Marymount. Mother Butler was born in Ireland in 1860, and went to the convent of Béziers in France while she was still a girl. During her active life she founded schools in New York, Brooklyn, Los Angeles, Paris, and Rome. She died in 1940. Index.

"Katherine Burton has written an excellent biography of the well-beloved founder of Marymount, Mother Butler." B. L. Conway
+ Cath World 159:569 S '44 270w

"[This] is a tribute to a splendid woman, and the narrative is absorbing enough to hold one's interest. Because of its theme, I would like to give it unqualified approval; yet it has all the defects of the older hagiography. The story is sugar coated and iced over, with a bland naïveté, and the style is burdened with spiritual clichés." J. N. Moody
+ — Commonweal 40:284 Jl 7 '44 420w
Kirkus 12:166 Ap 1 '44 150w

BURTON, MILES. Shadow on the cliff [Eng title: Four-ply yarn]. 246p $2 Doubleday [8s 6d Collins]

44-4922

Detective story.

"A very nice job." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p9 My 14 '44 120w

"Slow and steady."
Kirkus 12:126 Mr 15 '44 70w

BURTON, MILES—Continued

"The name of Miles Burton on the title page is sufficient guarantee that the story is well worth while." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p12 My 14 '44 80w

Sat R of Lit 27:29 My 6 '44 40w

"Both as murder mystery and Secret Service adventure 'Four-Ply Yarn' is well done."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p129 Mr 11 '44 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p18 My 14 '44 70w

BURTON, WILLIAM HENRY. Guidance of learning activities; a summary of the principles of teaching as based upon the principles of learning. 601p $3.75 Appleton-Century

371.3 Teaching. Learning, Psychology of 44-8443

"The book is divided into four parts. Part I is a discussion of principles of learning. Part II considers the organization of units—both functional (experience) units and subject-matter units, and Part III is concerned with the organization of assign-study-recite procedures. Part IV is devoted to the improvement of techniques common to both types of organization." El School J

"The volume is one that ought to prove exceedingly useful to students who have not already spent considerable time in professional study for teaching. The entire book is stimulating, and it is a complete source book on the subject of learning. This reviewer anticipates that it will have wide use in teacher-training institutions. Its comprehensive character and its meticulous preparation combine to make it a genuine contribution to the field of education." Leslie Quant

+ El School J 45:177 N '44 700w

School & Society 60:15 Jl 1 '44 40w

BUSCH, NIVEN. Duel in the sun. 246p $2.50 Morrow

44-40001

A story of frontier life in the Southwest in the 1880s. The chief character, Pearl Chavez, is probably based on an historical person. She is an orphan with Indian blood and becomes the protege of the family of one of the cattle barons of the community. Tho Pearl becomes involved in the misdeeds of one of the baron's sons, she is finally rescued by his steady, law-abiding brother.

Booklist 40:198 F 1 '44

"If Mr. Busch had known anything of the West or of Texas or Texans or cattle or horses or guns; if the book were dated forty years later and pistol-packin' Pearl made a gangster's moll; if one single act of hers, immoral, immodest, or impetuous, could be rationalized; if many other things, this book might have approached 'The Ox-Bow Incident.' Instead, it falls far short of being even a healthy blood-and-thunder cowboy novel." Hoffman Birney

— N Y Times p19 Ja 23 '44 700w

"There is plenty of well-done frontier background, a tense account of a posse's capture of the bandits, a jail break, a trial, and a happy ending for those characters who don't get shot up before the finish. A narrative which, while it puts no strain on the intelligence, provides quite satisfactory entertainment."

+ New Yorker 19:78 Ja 15 '44 110w

Reviewed by E. L. Sabin

Sat R of Lit 27:35 F 5 '44 450w

"Mr. Busch can write. He is as hard-boiled in spots as Jim Cain, and sometimes as moving as Hemingway. In Pearl Chavez he has brought to life a character that will be remembered for many a day. He has humor and perception, and he can tell a story with an economy and a drive of phrase that is almost cruel. In the time and place of which he writes, life was like this, and the people were like this." Stanley Walker

+ Weekly Book Review p3 Ja 9 '44 1150w

BUSCH, NIVEN. They dream of home. 306p $2.75 Appleton-Century

44-9917

Novel based on the problem facing the discharged service men after the present war. The author pictures five marines and their separate problems, with the central figure Cliff Harper, who joined the marines after graduating from a Los Angeles high school, served two years in the South Pacific, was wounded, and given a medical discharge. The other four are: Gunny, an old sergeant; Billy Tabeshaw, an Indian; Matt Klein, a butcher; and Perry, a Negro.

"This isn't pretty. If the picture is distorted it is because all the returning veterans in 'They Dream of Home' had been discharged for reasons which will not apply to the great majority of the men to be mustered out at the war's end. That is one reason why this book is not as significant as it could have been. Another reason is that it implies very little with regard to the grand-scale problems of the peace, world organization and industrial reconversion. Nevertheless, 'They Dream of Home' is exceedingly timely, engrossing because of the issues with which it deals, and we will not be the less prepared for peace if it is widely read." Wendell Johnson

+ — Book Week p3 N 19 '44 650w

Booklist 41:108 D 1 '44

"Here is a book which merits a foremost place among this year's literary crop. Aside from its display of virile style, 'They Dream of Home' is so noteworthy a novel because it depicts a social theme of immense significance to all of us, the return of our fighting men." Eveline Dienes

+ Boston Globe p16 N 15 '44 380w

Kirkus 12:352 Ag 15 '44 240w

"At best, 'They Dream of Home' reads like a good picture-magazine caption, colloquial, concise and to the point. Again, the style grows turgid, in the new tradition of emotional writing; and sometimes, in his effort to by-pass clichés, Mr. Busch arrives at bizarre confusions." Nancy Flagg

— + N Y Times p4 N 19 '44 480w

"An almost unbearably pitiful story, but with an ending which offers some relief from the misery and muddle of these bewildered men."

New Yorker 20:96 N 11 '44 130w

Reviewed by Harry Daum

Springf'd Republican p4d N 26 '44 350w

"Mr. Busch is at his best when he is in Cliff's mind, revealing his loneliness, his lack of identification with the life about him, his sense of still belonging 'out there'; also, his dependence on the 'group' and his consternation as he sees it gradually disintegrating. Excellent, too, are the characterizations of the ex-sergeant and of Matt Klein. It is unfortunate that so much more should have been attempted in a book of this scope." Jennings Rice

+ — Weekly Book Review p10 N 19 '44 800w

"The best novel of the autumn which I have read is They Dream of Home. We have heard much about the emotional and psychological problem of readjustment to civilian life of men transformed by experience of combat. Mr. Busch demonstrates that problem with brutal frankness, sardonic bitterness, and also with gentleness and compassion." Orville Prescott

+ Yale R n s 34:382 winter '45 300w

BUSCH, NOEL FAIRCHILD. My unconsidered judgment; decorations in line by Ilonka Karasz. 196p $2 Houghton

910 Voyages and travels. World war, 1939—Biography. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 44-6396

Collection of articles by one of the editors of Life magazine. In them he gives his impressions of various phases of the life, history, economics, geography, etc. of countries he has visited since 1942: the Argentine, South Africa, Cairo, Saudi Arabia, England and Eire.

Book Week p7 Jl 23 '44 140w

Booklist 41:15 S '44

Reviewed by P. T. Hartung
Commonweal 41:235 D 15 '44 450w
Foreign Affairs 23:8 O '44 20w

"Adept reporting, not without humor, for material of minor scale importance."
+ — Kirkus 12:92 F 15 '44 170w

"An expert practitioner of his trade, Mr. Busch kept his typewriter busy wherever he wandered. . . There may be some captious readers who will wonder how any writer can make so many dogmatic generalizations on so many different topics on such brief acquaintance. But at least Mr. Busch, unlike some journalists equally adept at speedy omniscience, has expressed his judgments with wit and good humor. . . There are far too many chuckles and far too many shrewd judgments in Mr. Busch's book to enumerate them all here, but mention should be made of his plan for the post-war world. The best way to start abolishing war is to begin by abolishing peace, he avers." F. S. Adams
+ — N Y Times p5 Jl 16 '44 1300w
Springf'd Republican p4d D 3 '44 160w
Time 44:99 Ag 14 '44 380w

"It is in his sketches of individuals and his personal observations of lands and people that Mr. Busch is most successful. He has an alert sense of relevant and amusing surface detail and his appraisal of men and their environment, if hardly profound, is entertaining and stimulating. Mr. Busch's viewpoint is quite objective, not to say detached, and his style is fresh and usually agreeable. Occasionally, however, his flippancies strike a jarring note." H. W. Baehr
+ — Weekly Book Review p4 Jl 23 '44 700w
Wis Lib Bul 40:145 N '44

BUSCH, NOEL FAIRCHILD. What manner of man? 189p $2 Harper

B or 92 Roosevelt, Franklin Delano 44-6770

An analysis of the personality of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, combined with an attempt to estimate his career to date. The author ranges from personal items about the president, to the way he treats his friends; from his taste in food and books, to a study of his impulsiveness; from his attitude toward big business, to his ability to have a good time even during wartime; all in his efforts to provide a well-rounded study.

Reviewed by Willard Shelton
Book Week p10 O 1 '44 180w
Booklist 41:19 S '44

"One cannot call this an authentic answer to its title, but one can suggest Mr. Busch and his book as an excellent substitute for an amusing, intelligent dinner companion some night when you have to eat alone and think about the election."
Boston Globe p15 Ag 23 '44 360w

"Busch slants his text with psycho-analytical interpretations and eminently readable personal marginalia; he makes it a character portrait rather than a career portrait. . . Other than his making the President seem pretty average, there is no propaganda against him, no venom of the Flynn type. He ignores his importance as a world figure—he belittles his outstanding qualities. It makes good reading and something to keep to the front as the campaign season approaches."
Kirkus 12:212 My 1 '44 210w

"Busch's casual summary of Roosevelt's administrations omits most of the major events which happened during them. He does, however, level one very serious criticism against Roosevelt: that he failed to prepare this country for war during his first term. A fitting answer to this charge is provided by Compton Mackenzie, who asserts that Roosevelt had his hands full promoting recovery at home, and that not even the President's super-salesmanship could have argued the American people into war at that early period. Some of Busch's criticisms of Roosevelt are perfectly valid." Allan Spalding
— + New Repub 111:498 O 16 '44 650w

"Between the irritating passages—and there are not very many of them—the reader will find much that is meaty, good, competent reporting and research told as entertainingly as one could wish. Drawing with full credit on the works of other more exhaustive writers, and apparently with full access to the files of the Luce publications, for which he has been an editor for seventeen years, Mr. Busch has developed a story of genuine human interest." Charles Hurd
+ — N Y Times p5 Ag 6 '44 800w

"It is the preliminary comment and analysis, not the final conclusions, which give this frank and objective book its value. Let it be said at once that as a reporter Mr. Busch is excellent, as a historian he is mediocre, and as a psychoanalysist he is wretchedly unconvincing. . . Mr. Busch might well do a longer book about the President, the Cabinet, and the Washington scene; and if he does, he should spend less effort on analysis and more on straight reporting." Allan Nevins
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:9 Ag 12 '44 1100w

Reviewed by Cyril Clemens
Springf'd Republican p4d S 10 '44 500w

"The most balanced and readable book about the President that has yet appeared."
+ Time 44:99 Ag 14 '44 550w

Reviewed by G. W. Johnson
Weekly Book Review p8 Ag 13 '44 500w
Wis Lib Bul 40:146 N '44

BUSH, MERRILL EUGENE, and others. Citizen, plan for peace! 201p $2 Harper

940.53144 International cooperation. Reconstruction (1939-) 44-3089

"Record of the Temple University Institute for Postwar Planning held in February, 1943. Complete and competent report which should serve as a guide to any individual or institution with similar motives. Contains description of the institute, speeches complete, record of panel discussions, plan for a follow-up program and finally a very practical chapter on 'Planning a Conference.' Should provide a source of inspiration and guidance to organizers of conferences or panels on postwar planning." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"The expert speeches—particularly those by John S. Badeau, Clinton S. Golden and Prof. Alvin Hansen—are excellent, and the report on discussion groups should be helpful." Willard Shelton
+ Book Week p9 My 21 '44 50w
Booklist 40:281 Ap 15 '44
Bookmark 5:13 My '44

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:655 Jl '44 20w
Kirkus 11:566 D 15 '43 100w

Reviewed by J. B. Fogg
Library J 69:116 F 1 '44 80w

"The speeches in the book are, for the most part, dated. Probably the speakers would have other things to say now. One thing that strikes this reader is the persistence of narrow self-interest; it runs through so many of the addresses and so much of the discussion that Arthur Sweetster's insistence on peace for the sake of peace and humanity is doubly welcome. Perhaps the other viewpoint represents the thinking of more labor leaders, industrialists, teachers, and economists than we like to admit. It isn't encouraging." Hal Borland
— Sat R of Lit 27:23 Ap 15 '44 400w
Special Libraries 35:100 Mr '44
Springf'd Republican p8 Je 15 '44 270w

BUSONI, RAFAELLO. Stanley's Africa; il. by the author. 288p $3.50 Viking

916.7 Stanley, Sir Henry Morton. Africa, Central—Description and travel 44-9166

A partially fictionized narrative combining a biography of Stanley with a survey of the history of Africa during the last decades of the nineteenth century. Written for junior and senior high school students.

Booklist 41:110 D 1 '44

BUSONI, RAFAELLO—Continued

"A craftsmanlike job of enduring value for all ages."

+ Cath World 160:282 D '44 10w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 D 28 '44 120w

Reviewed by H. L. Binsse
Commonweal 41:128 N 17 '44 10w

Kirkus 12:438 S 15 '44 120w

Reviewed by Dorotha Dawson
Library J 69:1104 D 15 '44 60w

"A well-documented, informative book, and a very readable one." N. B. B.

+ N Y Times p14 N 12 '44 100w

"The name Henry Morton Stanley, which was a household word a generation and more ago, means little to young people today, and Mr. Busoni has done a service in telling the romantic story of the reporter explorer factually and without undue admiration."

+ New Yorker 20:91 D 16 '44 90w

"This is a fascinating and an irritating record of Henry Stanley's years in Africa. Fascinating because it tells in words as vivid as those of an eye-witness the places that he saw, the people whom he met, the method of travel and barter—all the crowded details of an almost superhuman accomplishment that was characterized from first to last by an almost superhuman courage and determination. Irritating because Mr. Busoni allows his personal reactions and opinions to have free rein. . . The illustrations are stunning. They alone would give this book unique value." M. G. D.

+ — Sat R of Lit 28:32 Ja 13 '45 550w

"Mr. Busoni's pictures are precisely in the mood; their number is lavish. The book is a family find and an investment for a library." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ja 14 '45 500w

BUTTERFIELD, HERBERT. The Englishman and his history. (Current problems ser) 142p $1.25 Macmillan [3s 6d Cambridge]

342.42 Great Britain—Politics and government [A44-4608]

"This new volume in the 'Current Problems' series has been written by Mr. Butterfield with the object of showing how much strength the English have drawn from their continuity in history and the means by which past and present have been kept in alliance." Times [London] Lit Sup

"In this remarkable little book on the Englishman's interpretation of the history of England Mr. Butterfield has combined a guide for the use of the general reader with a study of value to professional historians. A combination of this kind in an essay of some 35,000 words is an astonishing feat. Mr. Butterfield achieves it because he avoids the common error that 'popular' history is abbreviated history. History cannot be abbreviated but it can be explained or rather illuminated by the specialist who knows how to bring his own accumulated knowledge to bear on questions of non-specialised interest." E. L. Woodward

+ Spec 172:40 Jl 14 '44 1000w

Times [London] Lit Sup p140 Mr 18 '44 60w

"It is no dead-weight of tradition here presented, but a force at once support and impetus. This, and the illuminating study of the nature of and reasons for the national distrust of revolution, has immediate practical application to problems of the day—indeed of the hour."

+ Weekly Book Review p10 Ja 7 '45 130w

BUTTERFIELD, ROGER PLACE. Al Schmid, marine. See Schmid, A. A.

BUTTERFIELD, WILLIAM HENRY. How to use letters in college public relations; a survey of principles and source book of effective examples. 182p $2.50 Harper

378.1 Letter writing. Advertising—Colleges and universities 44-2845

"This book points out some of the best opportunities to utilize personal letters and illustrates effective procedure in realizing the maximal results from them. Discussion is confined to the types of letters which have the greatest potentialities—and these, the author opines, are the ones most often overlooked." (School & Society) Index.

School & Society 59:176 Mr 4 '44 60w

"It should be noted that this volume does not purport to outline a program of public relations for colleges and universities. It deals exclusively with the use of personal letters in such programs. It makes an effective presentation of the method and aim underlying its stated objective. One notes, however, that the situations which prompted the letter-writing exemplified in this collection are all to be classified among those 'happy occasions' in connection with which deans, registrars, and counselors are not much worried about the content of the letters contemplated. The point to be observed, however, is that the opportunity for writing should not be overlooked." N. B. Henry

School R 53:59 Ja '45 850w

BYERS, HORACE ROBERT. General meteorology. 645p il $5 McGraw

551.5 Meteorology. Meteorology in aeronautics 44-6763

"Based on author's Synoptic and Aeronautical Meteorology [Book Review Digest, 1938]. Includes the recent advances in meteorology as isentropic analysis, new forecasting uses of upper-air pressure charts, modifications of the Norwegian concepts from upper-air evidence, behavior of the stratosphere in day-to-day weather, discussion of tropical cyclones, thunderstorms, aircraft icing, condensation, precipitation and turbulence." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:699 S 1 '44 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:46 Jl '44

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p19 Ag 13 '44 100w

BYNG, EDWARD JOHN. See Bing, E. J.

C

C. S. M. See Mary Catherine, Sister

CABLE, JOHN LEVI. Loss of citizenship; denaturalization; the alien in wartime. 149p $4 Nat. law

323.6 Expatriation. Aliens—U.S. Citizenship—U.S. 43-8411

"John L. Cable, former member of Congress and author of the Cable Act of September 22, 1922, presents an analysis of the law on the subject of denaturalization in the United States. The volume deals primarily with the law covering denaturalization as interpreted by the courts. The last chapter, however, is devoted to the subject of the legal status of the alien in wartime, and an appendix, consisting of documentary materials, accounts for 42 pages." Am Pol Sci R

"The volume is replete with summaries of judicial opinions, which should be useful to the legal profession, or to anyone having occasion to study the cases on denaturalization.

Its principal shortcoming is its generally uncritical approach. There is almost no discussion of the merits of the existing law." W. H. Bennett

Am Pol Sci R 38:188 F '44 220w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:12 Ja '44 10w

CABLE, MILDRED, and FRENCH, FRANCESCA LAW. Gobi desert. 303p il maps $3.50 Macmillan [21s Hodder]

915.1739 Gobi desert. Mongolia—Description and travel 44-4881

After spending twenty years in the Shansi province of China, the author with two other women, took the old trade route beyond the Great Wall into the Gobi desert, and travelled as medical missionaries, going from oasis to oasis, carrying medicines and the Gospel. This account of their experiences is illustrated with many photographs and one color plate.

Booklist 40:375 Jl 1 '44

"One of the best books of its sort to appear in many years. It is much more than a travel book. It is an attempt to impart to the reader the very smell and taste and feel of the world's largest desert area, some 3,600 miles in length, and in width varying up to nearly a thousand."

+ Commonweal 40:185 Je 9 '44 700w

Current Hist 7:53 Jl '44 50w

Foreign Affairs 23:16 O '44 20w

"At a time when most publications about China in this country are more flattering than truthful it is refreshing to read a book in which the authors give objective accounts of what they have seen and heard instead of trying to paint in glowing words the one-sided picture of the 'wonderful achievements' of the 'gallant Chinese.' China needs intelligent critics even more than admirers." Y. D.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 F 17 '43 350w

Reviewed by V. Sackville-West

New Statesman & Nation 25:63 Ja 23 '43 700w

" 'Gobi Desert' is a fascinating record of the peoples, life and customs of a place perhaps as little known to Westerners as any on the earth's surface. It is, besides, though the writer says little of herself, the record of a rare personality." Anita Moffett

+ N Y Times p8 Je 18 '44 900w

"This is an unusual book which reveals, quite unintentionally on the part of its author, her unusual personality. It is the final record and summing up of the travels of three indomitable women who crossed the Gobi five times, carrying the Bible and other religious writings in five languages. Many of its incidents have been told in former books (A Desert Journal and Through the Jade Gates). That fact, however, does not detract from the interest and charm of this, her 'last testament' to the Gobi." Margaret Lattimore

+ Pacific Affairs 17:348 S '44 280w

"The record was written in the 'detached monotonous life' of South Lake, where 'the passing of an age made less impression than does the flight of a day in the restless changing West.' It has the artless, formless, and genuine character of conversational reminiscence. It is a remarkable record in itself. It becomes an astonishing record when we stop to reflect on its authors. Other women, and perhaps especially other Englishwomen, have lived and traveled in strange lands, from Lady Hester Stanhope in Kinglake's time to Freya Stark in her own. None has ever made a journey in a more remote and inaccessible corner of the world, nor with such a complete absence of self-consciousness." W. H. Hindle

+ Sat R of Lit 28:40 Jl 22 '44 800w

"Outstanding among the many travel books of recent years, this truly fascinating account of life in the remote northwestern provinces of China deserves far more than the few lines available for this review. . . Seldom does an author succeed so well in conveying the spirit of a region and its inhabitants as she has done. Every page reveals her integrity of character, her keen powers of observation, and her sympathetic understanding of the people among whom she lived."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 15:3 Je '44 180w

"There are some good photographs, and the whole book is important enough to interest those who know their Younghusband and those who are new to this field."

+ Spec 170:206 F 26 '43 200w

" 'The Gobi Desert' is a book to be read slowly in full, and then to be returned to frequently for the rereading of favorite sections, for it is as varied as the desert itself." M. L. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p4d Je 18 '44 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p37 Ja 23 '43 950w

"These missionary women, who were so sensitive to the beauties of desolate expanses, hot, naked rock, icy peaks and sand-bound oases, streams and lakes, write with great descriptive power of the physical features of the country. Their word pictures of many scenes seem almost photographic to this reviewer. Perhaps that is partly because they freshen up old memories; but I am confident that they can make any reader actually feel the desert as few travel books ever have. . . They are as objective as Marco Polo; but besides being very handy with the camera, which the Venetian lacked, their minds were wide open to the colorful details of humble human life in the heart of Asia, upon which Marco was so exasperatingly silent." Rodney Gilbert

+ Weekly Book Review p3 Je 11 '44 1400w

Wis Lib Bul 40:128 O '44

CADIOU, RENE. Origen, his life at Alexandria; tr. by John A. Southwell. 338p $3.25 Herder

189.2 Origen (Origenes Adamantius) 44-4645

"This is an excellent translation of René Cadiou's La Jeunesse d'Origène, published originally by Gabriel Beauchesne of Paris. The author gives us a sketch of Origen's life at Alexandria (185-232) together with an analysis of his commentaries on the Psalms and Lamentations, and his dogmatic treatises on the Resurrection and the De Principiis." Cath World

Reviewed by B. L. Conway

Cath World 160:87 O '44 360w

"This work is a translation of . . . one of the most important works on Origen to appear in recent years. The translation, with a few minor deficiencies, is smooth and easy to read. The work gives a masterly picture of the School of Alexandria." W. R. O'Connor

+ Commonweal 40:523 S 15 '44 550w

CAILLIET, EMILE. Clue to Pascal; foreword by John A. Mackay. 187p $2 Presbyterian bd.

B or 92 Pascal, Blaise 43-15816

"An introduction to the life of the seventeenth-century French scientist and religious writer. The theme of the book is Pascal's study and interpretation of the Bible and the influence of the Bible on his life and thought. Simply presented in readable style." Booklist

Booklist 40:269 Ap 1 '44

"Emile Cailliet has given us an excellent introduction to Pascal. We are glad that this is but the forerunner of a more extensive work to follow. Those already familiar with Pascal will wish for a completer treatment. . . Although a short work, it is very scholarly. But at no point does the scholarship obtrude itself. This French author has written as his people write, simply, clearly, beautifully. At the same time, the student will find a mine of Pascalian lore in the appended notes. We await with interest the volume yet to appear." F. R. Hellegers

+ Christian Century 61:15 Ja 5 '44 650w

"Here is a compact little volume, with an amazing wealth of well-documented detail, which with a captivating enthusiasm gives the clue to Pascal." I. G. Matthews

+ Crozer Q 22:76 Ja '45 1250w

CAILLIET, EMILE—Continued

Current Hist 7:50 Jl '44 60w

Reviewed by J. H. Nichols
J Religion 24:296 O '44 250w

Library J 69:645 Ag '44 40w

Reviewed by Richard Parker
N Y Times p19 Ap 30 '44 800w

CAIRNS, HUNTINGTON, and WALKER, JOHN, eds. Masterpieces of painting from the National gallery of art, Smithsonian institution, Washington, D.C. 182p 85col pl $6.50 Random house

708.153 Paintings. Washington, D.C. National gallery of art

Eighty-five large reproductions in color, representing the course of western painting down to the time of Cezanne. The arrangement is chronological. Each painting has a page of text chosen from the literature of art criticism. No index.

Booklist 41:121 D 15 '44

"This is the art book of the season—and nothing was available in advance for report. But don't miss it."
+ Kirkus 12:531 N 15 '44 120w

Reviewed by Clement Greenberg
Nation 159:724 D 9 '44 120w

"The reproduction in color is far above the average. It is not so good as some of the early Phaidon and other Continental reproductions but is clean and effective. The aim here is highly ambitious, and great fidelity to the originals is to be presupposed. As a matter of fact, the color in these plates is bright and with considerable immediate plausibility but tends to lack depth. This limitation shows most in those painters whose method employs much glazing. On the whole, however, the impression of these plates is lively and entertaining, sometimes excellent." Stark Young
+ — New Repub 111:842 D 18 '44 480w

Reviewed by E. A. Jewell
N Y Times p5 D 24 '44 600w

"A soundly conceived and beautifully executed specimen of book-making. . . It is a pleasure to see a project involving so many difficulties carried out so handsomely." Thomas Craven
+ Sat R of Lit 27:21 D 16 '44 650w

"This group of eighty-five reproductions of pictures in the National Gallery (a few on loan) well fulfills the intention of its editors to show the present scope and quality of the collection. Including the recent Widener gift and even a fine early Winslow Homer, Breezing Up, purchased within the year, the selections are up to date. Both the making and editing of the book deserve hearty praise. It is solidly bound in terracotta buckram. The four-color half-tone cuts of American manufacture run rather better in quality than is usual today." F. J. Mather Jr.
+ Weekly Book Review p4 D 24 '44 550w

CALAHAN, HAROLD AUGUSTIN. What makes a war end? 260p $2.50 Vanguard

335 War 44-8434

"Reviews the history of nine major wars of the last 150 years, from the American Revolution to World War I, analyzing the factors which determined their end and brought about peace. . . The last chapters of the book deal realistically and understandingly with the present situation and its prospects." (N Y Times) Bibliography. No index.

Booklist 41:71 N 1 '44

Kirkus 12:359 Ag 15 '44 130w

New Repub 111:845 D 18 '44 150w

"Vividly written book." Hans Kohn
+ N Y Times p7 O 8 '44 500w

"The author writes: 'This book is not a work of prophecy. Rather, it is a book of data for the man who draws his own conclusions.' His investigation is judicious, thoughtful, and wary. He eschews any preconceived theory of how wars end, but he insists on the utility of examining the historical evidence. . . Commander Calahan has made a novel and useful contribution to the study of warfare. He is far more successful in telling how wars end than in giving data that will help us to guess when they will end. The reader will still find prophecy a perplexing profession. The only venture made by the author himself concerning the time this war will end is 'Well—soon. At any rate, suddenly and when we least expect it.' Nevertheless the factual presentation, the interpretations, and the deductions are of the greatest interest at this moment in history." Donald Armstrong
+ Sat R of Lit 27:22 O 28 '44 700w

"Commander Calahan has written only a minor preface to what should develop into a serious and sound contribution to recorded history. Within limited pages he restricts probing to wars of the past century or so and, of necessity, is somewhat superficial, but the effort is decidedly worth while and in the right direction." P. J. Searles
+ Weekly Book Review p14 N 19 '44 550

CALDWELL, ERSKINE. Stories. 236p $2.50 Duell

44-40335

Collection of short stories, selected from the author's printed works, with an introduction by Henry Seidel Canby. Contents: Horse thief; The Negro in the well; A day's wooing; Maud island; Man and woman; New cabin; Martha Jean; August afternoon; My old man's baling machine; The night my old man came home; Handsome Brown and the aggravating goats; Handsome Brown's day off; The automobile that wouldn't run; The midwinter guest; The grass fire; Country full of Swedes; Daughter; The People vs. Abe Lathan, colored; Big Buck; The end of Christy Tucker; Nine dollars' worth of mumble; Candy-man Beechum; Saturday afternoon; Kneel to the rising sun.

"It is illuminating to read Erskine Caldwell's early short stories almost 10 years after critics detected cosmic tragedy and hidden depths behind the mask of robust and lewd humor worn by 'Tobacco Road.' The immediacy which helped Caldwell's stark revelations of passion and pellagra in the South to evoke pity and horror has passed away—a world at war thinks little nowadays of the Southern agrarian problem. Yet the forceful impact of the best pieces contained in this collection is little diminished. This is a good test of the permanency of Caldwell's work." Jack Conroy
+ Book Week p3 Ag 20 '44 500w

"Apparently Mr. Caldwell was well on his way to being a major writer of the short story when somebody up and told him he was a humorist. The four stories in Part Two of the book are about as flat an attempt at being funny as any competent writer has published in a long time. . . If we except these four stories, we can consider Mr. Caldwell as an often highly competent short story writer, with at least two stories deserving to rank with the best of our time. These two are 'The People vs. Abe Lathan, Colored' and 'The End of Christy Tucker.'" Harry Sylvester
+ — Commonweal 40:473 S 1 '44 1250w

"Caldwell writes out of fullness of knowledge of the people and places and ways of thought and life. Some of his stories have trick endings (O. Henry fashion); some are mere sketches, flash drawings. But most of them etch a sharp impression, not lightly eradicated. Dr. Canby has written an introduction which is part critical evaluation of Caldwell's contribution to American letters. The choice of stories is excellent—and truly 'representative' of the best of Caldwell."
+ Kirkus 12:264 Je 15 '44 130w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley
New Repub 111:600 N 6 '44 180w

"According to Mr. Canby, Mr. Caldwell is a great short-story writer. I think that he has written a few first-rate short stories. They are here." D. S. Norton
— + N Y Times p4 Ag 20 '44 1400w

"Only really first-rate stories, though, justify a selected edition, and Mr. Caldwell has apparently not achieved enough to produce a uniformly impressive volume. By no means all the stories included pass the rigid test of rereading with anything like flying colors, let alone bear out Mr. Canby, who, in a throbbing introduction, wants to put Mr. Caldwell in a class with Poe, Hawthorne, and Goya. Those that do pass this test, like 'Country Full of Swedes' and 'Kneel to the Rising Sun,' have already been amply republished."
New Yorker 20:58 Ag 19 '44 180w

CALDWELL, ERSKINE. Tragic ground. 237p $2.50 Duell
45-1137

"Its title notwithstanding, 'Tragic Ground' is a not-too-serious account of the tribulations of a backwoodsman, stranded without a job in a war-boom town when a powder factory closes, leaving him without even enough money for bus fare back to his native Beaseley County. . . Delinquency, depravity and murder all are here, but the total effect is that of a droll Georgia story, not a social study of boom towns." Weekly Book Review

" 'Tragic Ground' has the sort of theme in which Caldwell excels. The ingenuous, tragicomic Southern peasant, driven by inexorable social forces which are not apparent to him and which he cannot control or even modify, is a symptomatic figure. His lack of understanding, as in 'Tobacco Road' and 'God's Little Acre,' makes his story all the more pathetic, ominous and terrifying." Jack Conroy
Book Week p4 O 22 '44 450w

Reviewed by M. I. Thompson
Canadian Forum 24:214 D '44 700w

Kirkus 12:382 S 1 '44 210w

"Calculated to evoke horrified laughter as well as serious consideration of the problems of reconversion of industry and of juvenile delinquency. A murder is included for good measure. Social workers will find numerous matters of interest in the novel. Recommended—with reservations." E. F. Walbridge
Library J 69:813 O 1 '44 110w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley
New Repub 111:599 N 6 '44 1300w

"In 'Tragic Ground' Caldwell's latest version of Jeeter Lester may struggle ineffectually against outward circumstances and inner weakness, but he is not without allies and he is not altogether lost. The explanation for the greater success of Caldwell's intention in 'Tragic Ground' is to be found not in any change of method, but in the choice of a theme for which his technique is more adequate." E. B. Burgum
N Y Times p6 O 15 '44 1050w

Reviewed by Edmund Wilson
New Yorker 20:78 N 4 '44 700w

"As entertainment there can be no question of the merit of 'Tragic Ground' for those who like strong humor, or raw sex. Mr. Caldwell has written his tragic farce with much of his great skill. There is credible realism in his little snickering prostitutes. Old Spence, drunk or sober, seems an entirely possible and rather appealing American gutter-dweller. . . The American lower depths are very funny, indeed. In 'Tobacco Road' they amused more people than even 'Abie's Irish Rose' did. 'Tragic Ground' emphasizes the faith that there are still customers who like to laugh at the deformed." Jonathan Daniels
Sat R of Lit 27:46 O 14 '44 650w

"Caldwell's Douthits can produce quick belly-laughs if the reader likes that sort of thing. But if you think a bit, if you analyze how he gets his effects, how he selects his cast of deformed characters, you suddenly realize with distaste how untrue to life it is. As socially significant writing, this stuff is phony." Marshall Bragdon
— Springf'd Republican p6 O 28 '44 600w

"One is never certain whether to laugh at or weep for these ludicrous and pitiful people. They are too far removed from the every-day experience of most of us to be anything but grotesque, and it is a great tribute to Mr. Caldwell's art that he can make us regard them with warmth and a lively sympathy. . . In the hands of any one else, Spence would be too good to be true, but Mr. Caldwell manages to steer pretty clear of the farcical. His Southern crackers may be shiftless and spineless, but he keeps the flicker of humanity in them burning like an eternal light. Which indicates that, despite Mr. Caldwell's war-time literary preoccupations, his heart is still in the backlands." Herbert Kupferberg
Weekly Book Review p4 O 15 '44 900w

Reviewed by Orville Prescott
Yale R n s 34:383 winter '45 180w

CALDWELL, JANET TAYLOR (MRS MARCUS REBACK) (MAX REINER, pseud). Final hour. 563p $3 Scribner 44-3238

"This is the third of the Bouchard family series, which in 'The Dynasty of Death,' 'The Eagles Gather,' and now in 'The Final Hour' tells the engrossing and almost terrifying story of the ruthless, power-mad family which devotes many of its Machiavellian talents to stunting the growth of democracy and nullifying its benefits. In the third novel of this gripping trilogy the Bouchards are finally pitting their strength against world-sweeping forces which all but laugh at their ineffectual obstructionist cabals. For the time of the story is 1939 to 1942, when the smoldering fires of two decades, nurtured and fanned by man's greed, inhumanity, and stupidity, burst into a conflagration which even the Bouchards and their like cannot control." Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by Edith Roberts
Book Week p4 Ap 2 '44 750w

Booklist 40:283 Ap 15 '44

Reviewed by E. W. Watts
Boston Globe p17 Ap 12 '44 300w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '44

Kirkus 12:45 F 1 '44 340w

Library J 69:263 Mr 15 '44 20w

"Taylor Caldwell fearlessly attacks ambitious material and attempts to handle it in the grand manner. But in seven years she has written seven very long novels, and it is a fact of history that epics cannot be produced so swiftly. The inflated writing cannot stand a pinprick." Ruth Page
— N Y Times p5 Ap 2 '44 700w

"Taylor Caldwell writes as she pleases and ignores old complaints that no reader can fathom the intricate family relationships. To repeated comments on the vehemence and lushness of her style, perhaps she answers in the remarks of Hawkins, a publisher, 'It has drama and fire and color. . . I like adjectives. I don't like modern stark writing, which substitutes exclamation points and obscenity for good craftsmanship. . . Starkness can be decadent you know . . .' Nevertheless the best and most moving parts of the book are such quiet and suppressed passages as that describing the death of Peter, a passage which reveals Miss Caldwell's real potentialities as a first-rate novelist far more than do the Cassandra-cry and the impassioned debate." R. A. Cordell
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:26 Ap 1 '44 650w

"Taylor Caldwell writes a powerful story. It is easy to take her fictionized history too seriously or even not seriously enough. Perhaps the wisest course is to read 'The Final Hour' for pleasure in its masterly technic and brilliant characterization." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 26 '44 600w

Time 43:104 Ap 17 '44 120w

"It is a long, absorbing tale, told by a master of suspense and invention. Taylor Caldwell creates a complete world of her own, asking only that the reader accept it as he finds it and that, having entered it, like Lot's wife, he look back only at his own peril." Jennings Rice
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ap 2 '44 880w

Wis Lib Bul 40:85 Je '44

CALIFORNIA. UNIVERSITY. SOUTHERN BRANCH, LOS ANGELES. Committee on international relations. Southwest Pacific and the war. 168p $1.50; pa $1 Univ. of Calif.

940.542 World war, 1939—Pacific ocean A44-2703

Lectures delivered in the spring of 1943 by members of the faculty of the University of California. Four of the lectures deal directly with the Southwest area: geographical background, the natives, and historical background. Another deals with the diplomatic background of the war, and one takes up strategy. Contents: The geographic background, by C. M. Zierer; Peoples and cultures of the Southwest Pacific, by Harry Hoijer; The entry of the Southwest Pacific into world politics, by C. L. Mowat; The Pacific in the diplomatic conflict of the war, by R. J. Kerner; Strategy, by W. C. Barker; The Pacific dominions, by J. B. Condliffe.

"An informative book for the general reader. It is made up of readable and well-organized essays on such subjects as the geography, the people and cultures, the diplomacy and the war strategy of the Southwest Pacific region." J. T. Frederick

+ Book Week p2 Ag 6 '44 50w

"This book has, to a considerable extent, an air of being 'gotten up' for the occasion and, excellent though the effort is, there is a pervasive lack of sureness of touch. Thus the anthropological section gives too much attention to the Tasmanian natives, totally extinct since May 8, 1876, while the historical survey is overburdened with dates and undersupplied with leading ideas. When some effort is made to bring order into the deluge of facts, as in Professor Graham's preface, the results are rather unhappy to say the least." C. H. Grattan

N Y Times p18 Ag 6 '44 500w

CALKINS, RAYMOND. Romance of the ministry. 253p $2 Pilgrim press

250 Clergy. Pastoral work 44-1455

"In a book addressed primarily to young ministers and theological students, but instructive also to older pastors and to the laity, Dr. Calkins discusses the onerous but rewarding tasks of the ministry and the qualifications they demand in those who would perform them. Much wise counsel is offered with reference to various aspects of the minister's work, all of which supports the conclusion that it is important." Christian Century

+ Christian Century 61:339 Mr 15 '44 130w

"The literary style is good and the author's counsel is inspired and pragmatic."

+ Churchman 158:17 Mr 15 '44 90w

Library J 69:645 Ag '44 30w

CALLENDER, HAROLD. Preface to peace. 288p $3 Knopf

940.532273 World war, 1939—U.S. World war, 1939—Diplomatic history. U.S.—Foreign relations 43-22834

"Harold Callender, foreign correspondent of The New York Times for more than fifteen years, reviews events since the First World War in a plea for the abandonment of American isolationism, and for an alliance with Britain and Russia as the practical means of avoiding future wars." New Repub

Booklist 40:209 F 15 '44

Bookmark 5:11 My '44

Kirkus 12:10 Ja 1 '44 240w

Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 3 '45 200w

"The argument against isolationism is ably presented, but the problem, which Mr. Callender does not analyze sufficiently, is not merely whether America shall be part of the world, but on what terms and with what kind of a world. . . Mr. Callender's book is a contribution to thinking upon the troublesome international situation. It is regrettable that he has omitted sufficient consideration of the people themselves, so essential to any adequate preface to peace." Mortimer Hays

New Repub 110:186 F 7 '44 900w

"The author is intimately acquainted with the leading countries of Europe and of Latin America through travel and study—and what he has to say about the attitudes and future prospects of these countries, and also about the influences which have affected and will affect American foreign policy is sound and lucid and very rewarding to the reader." W. H. Chamberlin

+ N Y Times p14 F 6 '44 800w

"The author comes to rather conventional conclusions and deals with familiar material, but his excellent organization of this material, along with his calm examination of American foreign policy since the last war, makes his book much better than most of its kind."

+ New Yorker 19:66 Ja 22 '44 90w

"The book is important as a revelation of the American mind, of what Americans are talking about in this formative stage, and of the kind of association with the other democracies to which their thoughts are turning. Mr. Callender can be a hard-hitting critic, and he does not spare either his own or this country. None the less, few Americans have shown a juster appreciation than he of what the British people have achieved in peace and in war and what the British spirit has meant, and still means, to the world."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p590 D 9 '44 1800w

"Mr. Callender makes no startling revelations; and his style is sober, judicious and unsensational. Although he has strong convictions, he never allows them to interfere with his functions as an impartial reporter. . . After so many books by foreign correspondents which have been melodramatic, alarmist and messianic, it is a pleasure to encounter a writer who lives up to the best traditions of responsible and conscientious journalism." H. B. Parkes

+ Weekly Book Review p6 F 6 '44 460w

CAMERON, WILLIAM. Day is coming. 573p $3 Macmillan

Morris, William—Fiction 44-4962

A novel based on the growth of the socialist movement in England, beginning with the celebration of Queen Victoria's jubilee, (1887) and ending in 1939. Arthur Cullen, the hero, is a member of the Guild of English craftsmen, and leaves London's East End for the Cotswold country, where he joins William Morris' company.

"Cameron knows the place and period intimately; the subject appeals strongly to him; yet, in the end, I found I was not much moved by the sufferings of the good, proud Arthur and his faithful May. This is because the book is much too long and cluttered with unnecessary detail." Arthur Meeker, Jr.

+ — Book Week p4 Je 25 '44 550w

Boston Globe p30 N 29 '44 70w

"An interesting study of an economic period —primarily for students."

Kirkus 12:47 F 1 '44 170w

"Although Victorian in style and slow in movement, its mellowness, authenticity and maturity place it among the better contemporary British novels." Rice Estes

+ Library J 69:203 Mr 1 '44 90w

Reviewed by William Poster

New Repub 111:84 Jl 17 '44 300w

"The first half of this long novel is an exposition of William Morris' ideas and a description of the experiment which put those ideas into practice. The author's framework of fiction, while wordy enough and, in number of characters and scenes, overelaborated, interests him only cursorily. The novel has an old-fashioned flavor, not unlike that of the second-rate nineteenth-century tendenz-roman. It shares, too, the defect of this literary type: one is informed on almost every page, but seldom entertained." Ruth Page

N Y Times p6 Je 18 '44 380w

"Mr. Cameron writes with astounding energy, but he seems unaware that a mass of instructive details on the history of a movement does not necessarily add up to a good novel."

— + New Yorker 20:77 Je 17 '44 90w

"It is a disappointing life and a disappointing story. The first half of the book, which deals with Morris and the Guild, makes fascinating reading, but the last half, which is mostly concerned with Arthur Cullen's failure to fit into a highly industrialized society, is less interesting. Perhaps a new genre, which would combine the narrative aspects of fiction and the intrinsic interest of historical material, may be developed for the telling of stories in which the theme is more important than the characters. Except in the hands of a Tolstoy or a Thackeray, fictional characters tend to be dwarfed by great men and great events." P. V. Stern

+ — Sat R of Lit 27:24 Je 10 '44 320w

"A long, compelling novel, 'The Day Is Coming' is slow reading. From wide personal experience in the East end during 40 of the 50 years covered by the tale, the author, himself a craftsman, is able to secure an authentic touch and a sincere note. His intense belief in the rights of the individual, especially those of the creative artist is readily apparent. . . The novelist's apparent aim is to set forth his beliefs in the rights, dignity and ideals of the common workingman. This purpose is achieved, but in what seems at times too drawn out a fashion." C. M. Sauer

+ — Springf'd Republican p4d Jl 2 '44 440w

Time 43:104 Je 26 '44 270w

"The novel gives a dramatic and fascinating perspective on a chapter of the past. I take it, however, that Mr. Cameron's major intention is to show the dignity and worth and gifts of a plain man. In these qualities the story of Arthur Cullen and his family and friends is impressive." Mary Ross

+ Weekly Book Review p4 Je 18 '44 750w

CAMPBELL, DORCAS ELISABETH. Careers for women in banking and finance. 260p il $2.75 Dutton

331.481332 Woman—Occupations. Women in business. Banks and banking 44-6149

"A survey of the jobs women now hold in banking, told in numerous fascinating personal stories, together with expert opinion and advice on the future of women in the business, and some very practical advice for those who contemplate entering the field." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 41:101 D 1 '44

"Vocational counselors will be glad to know of this book and may call it to the attention of older high school girls and graduates planning to enter college. Success stories are included as part of the general treatment, but on the whole the approach is adult."

+ Wis Lib Bul 40:143 N '44

CAMPBELL, JOSEPH, and ROBINSON, HENRY MORTON. Skeleton key to Finnegans Wake. 365p $3.50 Harcourt

823 Joyce, James—Finnegans Wake 44-6502

An attempt to simplify the reading of James Joyce's masterpiece, by explaining its fundamental structure and meanings, and elucidating words, paragraphs and pages thruout the work.

Reviewed by M. L. Hanley

Book Week p6 Jl 23 '44 800w

"I find much that admirably summarises and delineates the anatomical framework of the 'Wake.' Beyond the interest of this framework, however, the Joyce book is rich in imagery and Celtic expressiveness." Barry Byrne

+ Commonweal 40:401 Ag 11 '44 1850w

Kirkus 12:317 Jl 15 '44 20w

Reviewed by Louise Bogan

Nation 159:214 Ag 19 '44 1200w

"We can admire the bravery and excuse the brashness of Joseph Campbell and Henry Morton Robinson, who have undertaken to tell us what Joyce really meant. A skeleton key is admittedly an ingenious makeshift, exactly what the situation calls for. Joycean exegesis is still work in progress; here, pending further revelations, is an encouraging report." Harry Levin

+ — New Repub 111:106 Jl 24 '44 1550w

"This meaty, brilliant, assertive, overwritten book is one not of criticism but of guidance, which is just as well: for in the case of James Joyce's last and most difficult work we know what it says before we can quarrel about its worth. . . Joyce has found in Mr. Campbell and Mr. Robinson the ideal readers who approach his book with piety, passion, and intelligence, and who have devoted several years to fashioning the key that will open its treasures." Max Lerner

+ — N Y Times p5 Jl 23 '44 1100w

Discussion by J. D. Adams

N Y Times p2 Ag 13 '44 800w

"[This is] an indispensable book for anyone interested in Joyce and should make many new readers for 'Finnegans Wake.'. . It is an exciting, a unique experience to find pages that have seemed to us gibberish start into vivid life, full of energy, brilliance, passion. The chance to be among the first to explore the wonders of 'Finnegans Wake' is one of the few great intellectual and aesthetic treats that these last bad years have yielded." Edmund Wilson

+ New Yorker 20:54 Ag 5 '44 2700w

Reviewed by Jacques Barzun

Sat R of Lit 27:22 O 14 '44 1650w

Time 44:95 Ag 7 '44 750w

CAMPBELL, SAMUEL ARTHUR. Too much Salt and Pepper. 258p il $2 Bobbs

591.5 Animals, Legends and stories of 44-8507

Narrative of a summer spent in the North woods where life was considerably enlivened by the pranks of two pet porcupines, Salt and Pepper.

"Good reading for any age from 10 up." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p14 N 12 '44 230w

"Boys and girls who are interested in nature will particularly like this."

+ Kirkus 12:374 Ag 15 '44 110w

"The language of the book is difficult for the age for which the book would have most appeal." L. R. S.

Springf'd Republican p4d Ja 7 '45 60w

CAMPBELL, WALTER STANLEY (STANLEY VESTAL, pseud). Writing non-fiction. 321p $3 Writer

029.6 Authorship 44-40151

A handbook on the mechanics and technique of writing non-fiction books and articles which will prove acceptable to publishers and magazine editors. The author is director of courses in professional writing at the University of Oklahoma.

Booklist 40:371 Jl 1 '44

"Text book for the student who wants a general background book on writing non-fiction, but too general for the writer who wishes to concentrate on one phase or another of the subject. . . The advice is sound. . . The methods of teaching have been proved in practice, and the selections of models for study, plus the instructions in the Work Programs connected with each chapter, make this a book that could be used by writers who wish to develop their abilities in this direction."

+ Kirkus 12:249 Je 1 '44 190w

CAMPBELL, W. S.—Continued
"There probably never has been nor ever will be a blueprint for writing anything which will be the answer, neat and complete, for the embryonic author and his hesitant typewriter. 'Writing Nonfiction' is more honest and less pretentious than some books of its class and may serve as an eye-opener to a few." E. M. B.
Springf'd Republican p8 Je 29 '44 280w
Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 6 '44 150w

CAMPBELL, WILLIAMS GILES, and BEDFORD, JAMES HIRAM. You and your future job. 368p il $3.50 Soc. for occupational research, ltd, 608 Kimlin drive, Glendale 6, Calif.

371.425 Vocational guidance. Occupations 44-1028

"[Discusses] choice of a vocation [in] agriculture, industry and the trades, building and construction, factory and shop work, clerical and financial work, merchandising and selling, going into business, health and healing, domestic and personal service, transportation and communication, protection and defense, the arts and crafts, entertainment and writing, college and the professions, social and religious work, government service. [Includes also material on] opportunities for women, earning money at home, doing something different, work for those over forty, and landing the job." School & Society

Booklist 41:8 S '44
School & Society 58:416 N 20 '43 80w

CANADIAN INSTITUTE ON PUBLIC AFFAIRS. United nations today and tomorrow; addresses given at the Institute, Aug. 21-28, 1943; ed. by Violet Anderson [pub. under the auspices of the Nat. council of the Young men's Christian associations of Canada]. 166p $1.75 Humphries

940.531 United nations, 1942- . Reconstruction (1939-) A44-1480

Addresses on the role of the United Nations, delivered at the Canadian Institute on Public Affairs in August, 1943, by about a dozen authorities. Partial contents: The promise of the Atlantic charter and the outlook for its fulfilment, by Paul Martin; India and self-government, by Graham Spry; Is appeasement dead? by Lionel Gelber; Anglo-American relations and Canadian policy, by Brooke Claxton.

Booklist 40:266 Ap 1 '44
Foreign Affairs 22:660 Jl '44 20w

CANBY, HENRY SEIDEL. Walt Whitman, an American; a study in biography. 381p il $3.75 Houghton

B or 92 Whitman, Walt 43-16297

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

Reviewed by C. J. Furness
Am Hist R 49:761 Jl '44 900w

"The author's stirring exposition of Whitman's clear thinking about 'Democracy' is probably the most valuable element in this distinguished clinical study of America's most discussed and least understood poet." C. J. Furness
+ Atlantic 173:129 Mr '44 450w

"Evidently a labor of love for the biographer, and excellently written."
+ Current Hist 6:436 My '44 40w

"In many ways, to be sure, Mr. Canby's volume will fail to satisfy the specialist. The apparatus criticus is perfunctory. Almost nothing is added to the body of data and facts which make up the Whitman saga. Controversial issues—peripheral ones, such as his alleged illegitimate children—are sometimes designedly slighted. Interpretations of various episodes in his career (for example, whether he ever worked seriously as a carpenter) are inconclusive and may prove unacceptable to Whitman admirers who are close students of American social, political, and economic history. But when all this has been said, the volume clearly emerges as the best life of the poet yet produced, one which is not likely to be superseded in this generation." T. H. Johnson
+ — New Eng Q 17:119 Mr '44 1150w

Reviewed by Alfred Kazin
New Repub 110:218 F 14 '44 2000w

"The final issue of this really great book is the splendid contribution it makes to straight political thinking in these befuddled times. After all, the primary interest in Whitman for the normal reader today is democracy. If Dr. Canby had accomplished nothing more than to underscore and signalize Walt Whitman's unique value now as the most articulate of all spokesmen for the great American idea, he would have made his book what it undoubtedly is, the most significant literary biography to appear in 1943." C. J. Furness
+ Yale R n s 33:557 spring '44 950w

CANTRIL, HADLEY. Gauging public opinion. 332p $3.75 Princeton univ. press

301.154 Public opinion A44-677

"This book furnishes a systematic study of the highly important and widely misunderstood new methods of surveying public opinion. It contains an extensive bibliography and is well-indexed." Social Studies

"While the book is unevenly written and, at times, too heavily technical for the non-specialist, it is, on the whole, amply rewarding." Samuel Hendel
+ — Am Pol Sci R 38:560 Je '44 750w

Reviewed by Gwynne Nettler
Am Soc R 9:208 Ap '44 330w
Booklist 40:245 Mr 15 '44
Current Hist 6:357 Ap '44 100w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:657 Jl '44 20w
New Repub 110:689 My 15 '44 150w

"Even though this book is designed primarily for specialists, it is likely to find a bigger audience. The critics of the Gallup technique—and they are many—will find here, handed to them on a silver platter, all the criticisms they ever dreamed of—and more. . . Mr. Cantril and his associates tackle all these problems and many others in a spirit of scientific self-criticism. They are not trying either to whitewash themselves or to confound their critics. Their purpose is to overcome their difficulties by facing them frankly." Daniel Schwarz
+ N Y Times p13 Ap 16 '44 480w
Social Studies 35:192 Ap '44 30w

"The authors have presented valuable research techniques that will help answer many of the pressing questions we all ask concerning the use of polls in measuring public opinion. In spite of the few criticisms of the form and content of this book, the writer feels that the authors have made a real contribution to this important phase of social research. It is a book that should be used in community discussion groups and in university classes of sociology and political science." T. E. Sullenger
+ Social Studies 35:283 O '44 360w

CARDWELL, ANN SU. Poland and Russia; the last quarter century. 251p maps $2.75 Sheed

327.438 Poland—Foreign relations—Russia. Russia—Foreign relations—Poland 44-5309

Presents the case of the Polish government-in-exile against the Soviet Union. The author is an American Protestant who writes of Poland after seventeen years' residence there.

Reviewed by Joseph McSorley
Cath World 159:375 Jl '44 500w
Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 8 '44 250w

"Of very limited value is this partly documented account of the recent cruelty of the Russians to the Poles. That it is by a non-Catholic is not necessarily reassuring if we remember Mr. Sedgwick's encomiums of General Franco. What is lacking here is any feasible suggestion for a solution of the Russo-Polish problem."

— Commonweal 40:332 Jl 21 '44 50w

"A straightforward narrative, abundantly documented. . . Facts are presented and speak for themselves. Style is simple enough for a young peoples collection, subject is of great interest to all." J. L. Ross

+ Library J 69:356 Ap 15 '44 100w

"Short and written in simple language, it is as objective and factual a study as has yet been done about the last twenty-five years in Poland's history, especially as regards her position with relation to her eastern neighbor." Walter Bara

+ N Y Times p16 D 31 '44 650w

Reviewed by R. S. Scott

Springf'd Republican p6 S 19 '44 280w

CARHART, ARTHUR HAWTHORNE. Outdoorsman's cookbook. 211p il $1.95 Macmillan

641.5 Cookery. Camping 44-458

Practical instructions for the commissary on camping trips. Chapters include advice on fires, care of wild meat and fish, game dishes, fruit in camp, bread and flapjacks, and instructions, with diagrams, on cutting up a deer. Index.

Booklist 40:191 F 1 '44

Bookmark 5:6 Mr '44

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '44

"The clearly expressed recipes provide a broad selection. Some are the favorite dishes of famous outdoorsmen; others are calculated reputation makers. However, home economists may be at variance with some points in the tables at the end of the book, and rationing will postpone the full use of the recipe sections." M. E. Stone

+ — J Home Econ 36:300 My '44 150w

Wis Lib Bul 40:34 Mr '44

CARLISLE, NORMAN V. Marines in review. 192p il $2.50 Dutton

359.96 U.S. Marine corps 43-14738

Book for high school boys, describing organization, activities, and various divisions of the United States marines. The part played by the marines in the present and former wars is brought out. Illustrated with photographs. Index.

"In narrative form the author presents both information and stories skillfully blended, which will interest two types of readers. Some boys are interested in the achievements, sacrifices and victories of the U. S. Marines while others want vital information to determine whether they want to join this branch of the Armed Forces. Writer is authority in field of career books for young people on the subjects of radio, chemistry and allied subjects. Recommended." B. W. Bell

+ Library J 68:964 N 15 '43 90w

Wis Lib Bul 40:13 Ja '44

CARLISLE, NORMAN V., and LATHAM, FRANK B. Miracles ahead! better living in the postwar world. 288p $2.75 Macmillan

600 Progress. Inventions 44-3140

Discussion of the effects of science and the discoveries made during the course of this war upon the ways of life in the post-war world. It will be an age of luxury air liners; cargo planes; houses made of new materials, and kept clean, warm, and germ-free by new methods; lighter and better automobiles; plenty of synthetic fuels; and better health for all. Index.

Reviewed by Sterling North

Book Week p2 Ap 16 '44 600w

Booklist 40:297 My 1 '44

Bookmark 5:7 My '44

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '44

Kirkus 12:17 Ja 1 '44 110w

"Brimful of optimism, this book makes fascinating reading. Well recommended." L. R. Etzkorn

+ Library J 69:202 Mr 1 '44 110w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:31 Ap '44

"A complete and useful popular summary written in newspaper style. A good sociologist ought to take the rich material gathered by the authors and show us what it means in the world of tomorrow." Waldemar Kaempffert

+ Sat R of Lit 27:14 Ap 22 '44 700w

Scientific Bk Club R 15:3 My '44 130w

Springf'd Republican p6 Je 13 '44 260w

Reviewed by R. L. Davison

Survey G 33:470 N '44 230w

"How accurate are these predictions? Many, like the global network of high-speed air lines, are safe enough. . . Others represent dreams of writers of popular articles and books. . . But despite such weakness, 'Miracles Ahead' is a fascinating glimpse of what our post-war world may be, and it will help prepare its readers for the inevitable changes after victory." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p19 Je 4 '44 600w

Wis Lib Bul 40:83 Je '44

CARLISLE, NORMAN V., and others, eds. Air forces reader; army and navy air forces. 406p il maps $3.75 Bobbs

358.4 U.S. Army air forces. U.S. Navy. Air service. World war, 1939—Aerial operations 44-47059

"A complete picture of the U.S. air arm—both army and navy—in training and action, as depicted by participants in its dramatic history. Sections entitled (1) Wings for victory, (2) Prelude to combat, (3) Battle in the skies, and (4) Of men and planes are composed of articles by and about all ranks of airmen who have made the air history of this global war. Appendix contains useful data on planes and aviation language. Excellent photographs and diagrams." (Booklist) Glossaries. No index.

"It is a feast of information, well supplied with illustrations, charts, tables and even glossaries of Navy and Army Air Forces jargon. This book is a companion to the deservedly popular 'The Navy Reader,' 'The Second Navy Reader' and 'The Army Reader.'" W. F. Morse

+ Book Week p5 D 17 '44 90w

Booklist 41:118 D 15 '44

Kirkus 12:461 O 1 '44 120w

"There is an exciting quality to many of these stories, but when military phraseology is used and an air of officialdom blows in, the result, accurate and authentic though it may be, tends toward prosiness." P. J. Searles

Weekly Book Review p16 D 3 '44 350w

CARNEIRO, CECILIO J. The bonfire (A fogueira); tr. from the Portuguese by Dudley Poore. 334p $2.75 Farrar

44-5212

Elias Arbe, a Syrian, who migrated to Brazil and changed his name to Guerra, is the central character of this novel. His story is told from his marriage, in Syria, thru his years in Brazil where he established a great coffee plantation, to the ruin of his hard-won empire, and his death.

"'The Bonfire' is an extremely promising novel, the kind that is produced only at rare intervals. Carneiro learned quite a bit from the old masters, and even though Dostoievsky is his predilect writer, a Balzacian wind blows through his book. . . However, Carneiro's preoccupation with the morbid and horrible (his cote Dostoievsky) is perhaps as detrimental to his novel as are certain irrelevant, unrelated episodes and coincidences which often creep into the texture of his narrative. But in general, these are the defects typical of young writers who have not completely shaken off the yoke of their masters." Angel Flores

+ — Book Week p3 Ag 13 '44 270w

CARNEIRO, C. J.—Continued

Booklist 41:21 S '44

Cath World 160:92 O '44 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Je '44

Kirkus 12:239 Je 1 '44 190w

"Recommended." H. P. Bolman
+ Library J 69:650 Ag '44 90w

"A warm and human novel. . . 'The Bonfire,' which won honorable mention in the Farrar & Rinehart Latin-American prize novel contest, seems to this reviewer a most satisfactory novel. It treats a small segment of a huge theme in a quiet and warm way, its construction is a model of compactness, and it has charm. The author writes knowingly of the background from which he came; he writes also with a calm assurance of his ability, which is considerable." Bucklin Moon
+ N Y Times p7 Ag 13 '44 320w

" 'The Bonfire,' remarkable for the vigorous presentation of Elias, is even more notable for its success in producing the great scenes of the story: the storm in Syria, when Julia nearly loses her life, the passage to Brazil, the building and breaking of the great dam, the terror of the episode when Elias breaks his son's fiddle, the Froes' interview with the old witch-doctor and the death-scene of Elias himself—all are fine examples of romantic writing. The book is an extravagant example of an extravagant style; and its author's unquestioning conviction of its imaginative reality must be accepted by any reader who wishes to enjoy 'The Bonfire.' " R. E. Roberts
+ — Sat R of Lit 28:28 Ja 13 '45 700w

Reviewed by B. D. Wolfe
Weekly Book Review p3 Ag 13 '44 800w

CARNOVSKY, LEON, and MARTIN, LOWELL ARTHUR, eds. The library in the community; papers presented before the Library institute at the Univ. of Chicago, Aug. 23-28, 1943. (Studies in lib. science) 238p $2.50 Univ. of Chicago press [15s Cambridge]

027.4 Libraries and readers A44-2938

"These papers represent two points of view, that of the librarian and that of the social scientist or social planner. Four of them describe and analyze different types of communities—the large city, the small city, the suburb, and the rural community. Four describe outstanding examples of how libraries have adapted their services to their particular community situations, and the remaining papers discuss important factors in community life, such as schools, adult education, and organized labor, which affect the library." Booklist

"The question of social responsibility is thought through very fruitfully, it seems to me, in the first of the group of papers assembled in 'The Library in the Community.' . . The book's prevailing emphasis on general principles is illustrated in Lowell Martin's very practical essay on 'Community Analysis for the Library.' " J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p2 Ag 20 '44 380w

Booklist 41:6 S '44

Reviewed by J. H. Foster
Library Q 15:78 Ja '45 1150w

Reviewed by B. S. Rossell
+ Survey 81:31 Ja '45 310w

CARPENTER, FRANCES (MRS W. C. HUNTINGTON). The Pacific: its lands and peoples. 502p il maps $1.40 Am. bk.

950 East (Far East). Pacific ocean 44-4592

"This book presents an over-all, peace-time picture of the lands and islands of Eastern Asia and the Western Pacific. A summary of important facts follows each section and statistics are concentrated in pictorial dramatizations. The index is combined with a self-pronouncing glossary." Social Studies

"The bulk of the volume is devoted to a study of each country or group of islands in some detail. The geographical material is essentially that found in any elementary-school geography textbook. Several devices help to make this reader attractive: the pictures of the postage stamps of each country, the well-chosen illustrations and the clear outline maps, and a separate listing of geographical facts about each region in a sort of appendix to each chapter." F. S. Albright
+ El School J 45:118 O '44 380w

Social Studies 33:336 N '44 40w

CARPENTER, JULIUS HENRY. Peace through co-operation. 113p $1.25 Harper

334 Cooperation 44-4865

"An inspirational volume by an ardent believer that Consumer's Cooperatives are the Christian form of economic activity. Peace on earth, according to Dr. Carpenter's exhortations depends upon Christian charity (love), cooperation and cooperatives." Commonweal

Booklist 40:384 Jl 15 '44

Christian Century 61:999 Ag 30 '44 50w

Commonweal 40:188 Je 9 '44 30w

Reviewed by I. G. Matthews
Crozer Q 21:369 O '44 200w

"Dr. Carpenter goes farther than most Americans in his denial of the constructive possibilities of force, in his advocacy of accepting the full implications of free trade and race equality. Yet it would be difficult for Dr. Carpenter, or anyone else, to exaggerate the ravages of war. His little book will not have been written in vain if it stimulates positive thinking on how the peace can be won." W. H. Chamberlin
+ N Y Times p23 Je 18 '44 400w
Sat R of Lit 27:9 N 18 '44 40w

CARR, DEIRDRE, and PARROTT, IRENE JUANITA. Now daddy's in the army; il. by George Shellhase. [57p] $1 Morrow

44-7475

Describes in simple text and pictures the first steps in the making of a soldier, in an American army camp. Pictures of some army insignia are added. For readers of five or six.

Reviewed by H. L. Binsse
Commonweal 41:127 N 17 '44 10w

"A picture to each page of text provides plenty of detail for observation, and this should make the idea of soldier life clear—but not depressing—to the youngsters who have soldier-fathers."
+ Kirkus 12:340 Ag 1 '44 90w

"Many details of basic training are given in simple, direct, conversational style, well adapted for five- and six-year-olds. . . Timely and excellent." M. B. Snow
+ Library J 69:816 O 1 '44 70w

"A very simple story, with lively drawings."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:44 N 11 '44 20w

"This is a lively way to tell a child what goes on under basic military training; it will, no doubt add verisimilitude to play in the nearest park or meadow." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 S 24 '44 150w

CARR, JOHN DICKSON (CARTER DICKSON, pseud). He wouldn't kill Patience. 217p $2 Morrow

44-953

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p9 F 20 '44 130w

Booklist 40:342 Je 1 '44

+ Kirkus 12:8 Ja 1 '44 50w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p12 F 13 '44 100w

New Yorker 19:88 F 12 '44 60w

"Up with the best!"
+ Sat R of Lit 27:30 F 12 '44 50w

Time 43:104 Mr 6 '44 60w

"It may be whimsical, but there can be no argument about its being highly original."
Times [London] Lit Sup p320 Jl 1 '44 120w

"Frankly artificial and not too speedy, but full of Mr. Dickson's tricks and peculiar moods." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p12 F 13 '44 250w

CARR, JOHN DICKSON (CARTER DICKSON, pseud). Till death do us part. 235p $2 Harper 44-7666

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p11 S 24 '44 90w
Kirkus 12:288 Jl 1 '44 60w
New Repub 111:286 S 4 '44 50w

"In this story there are several new twists to the locked-room mystery. These will puzzle the reader, but Dr. Fell is not deceived. Leave it to him to see through the most cleverly designed plot, and leave it to Mr. Carr to get the most out of the story. He never repeats, and he never fails to entertain." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p18 Ag 27 '44 80w
New Yorker 20:68 S 2 '44 70w

"Extra good!"
+ Sat R of Lit 27:23 S 2 '44 40w

Reviewed by John Hampson
Spec 173:322 O 6 '44 110w
Times [London] Lit Sup p489 O 7 '44 120w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p19 Ag 27 '44 120w
Wis Lib Bul 40:147 N '44

CARR, ROBERT SPENCER. Bells of Saint Ivan's. 186p $2 Appleton-Century
44-4110

Several years before the story opens, the narrator, an American, had spent some time in a small Ukrainian village as the engineer of a bridge building project. Now in 1943 as a representative of the Red Cross, traveling across Russia to Sweden, he stops over in the little village for a day and a night during which he learns of war-time changes, renews old acquaintances, and witnesses the dramatic end of the "bells of St Ivan's."

Reviewed by Russell Maloney
Book Week p12 My 21 '44 180w
Horn Bk 20:499 N '44 60w

"A story in a minor scale, neatly done."
+ Kirkus 12:84 F 15 '44 130w

Reviewed by Emily Garnett
Library J 69:304 Ap 1 '44 100w

" 'The Bells of Saint Ivan's' is tender, deeply moving and very, very funny. If also it leaves us with a warm glow of affectionate understanding that is a boon for which we may well give thanks to Saint Nicholai the Wonder Worker." N. B. Baker
+ N Y Times p7 My 7 '44 500w

"Though as a novel 'The Bells of Saint Ivan's' is hardly more than a fragment, Mr. Carr has embellished it with good talk and some polemics contrasting Russian and American viewpoints, which are usually points of divergence. Without question it is interesting, but it does not stir the emotion, perhaps because—though his Russians seem genuine—as much cannot be said for the engineer and Moslem girl." George Conrad
+ — Weekly Book Review p6 My 7 '44 700w
Wis Lib Bul 40:129 O '44

"Mr. Carr writes with engagingly easy grace and skill. Although his book is slight and elementary it augurs well for better ones to come." Orville Prescott
+ — Yale R n s 33:767 summer '44 230w

CARRIGHAR, SALLY. One day on Beetle Rock; il. by Henry B. Kane. 196p $2.75 Knopf

574 Natural history—Sierra Nevada mountains. Zoology—Sierra Nevada mountains 44-9635

A record of June 9th on Beetle Rock in the Sierra Nevada Mountains. Nine animals are studied as they pursue their various activities on that day, comprising a brief biography of each. Contents: Beetle Rock; The weasel; The Sierra grouse; The chickaree; The black bear; The lizard; The coyote; The deer mouse; The steller jay; The mule deer.

"The book is beautifully written, but there is more here than mere beautiful writing. With a skillful, expansive style the author succeeds in imparting the 'feel' of nine diverse lives, each as different from the others as though they existed in different worlds. Each chapter is a new experience for the reader, each animal a new study in actions and emotions." Leonard Dubkin
+ Book Week p8 N 19 '44 500w
Booklist 41:103 D 1 '44

"A charming book."
+ Kirkus 12:390 S 1 '44 120w

" 'One Day on Beetle Rock' is a book of rare distinction, at once a record of objective facts, of deep feeling without sentimentality and intense and subtle perception expressed in beauty. The reader must, indeed, be hardened whom it does not lead into the paths of nature study, whether these paths are familiar or explored for the first time. It has, besides, a quality of enchantment." Anita Moffett
+ N Y Times p7 D 10 '44 750w

"The volume is far more than a surpassingly good first book. It is far more than a find which discerning readers will cherish. It is an event in nature-literature publishing. 'One Day on Beetle Rock' is a front-row addition to any shelf of nature classics... Miss Carrighar's book has special excellences of its own. The author of 'One Day On Beetle Rock' is a writer whose future work will be awaited with anticipation. According to her publishers, Miss Carrighar intends to devote herself exclusively to the nature field. That will be welcome news to all those who cherish fine books of the out-of-doors, books that are produced with artistry and knowledge, that are written with beauty and precision, and that unite, within their pages, the exactness of research with the poetry of the natural world." E. W. Teale
+ Weekly Book Review p5 N 26 '44 1300w

CARRINGTON, WILLIAM JOHN. Safe convoy; the expectant mother's handbook. 256p $2.50 Lippincott

618.2 Pregnancy. Infants—Care and hygiene
SG44-38

A presentation of the essential facts of pregnancy, birth, and care of the infant, written for the expectant mother by a physician. The author writes in terms easy to understand with an occasional touch of humor, especially when he is engaged in exploding "old wives' tales."

Booklist 40:263 Ap 1 '44
Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Je '44

CARSE, ROBERT. Lifeline; the ships and men of our merchant marine at war; introd. by Edward Macauley. 189p il $2.75 Morrow

940.545 Merchant marine—U.S. World war, 1939—Naval operations 43-18062

The story of the American merchant marine at war, describing the ships, the men who run them, and their deeds of heroism while keeping the sea lanes open. Glossary.

"In 'Lifeline' Carse has demonstrated how worthy he is of being the merchant seaman's laureate, for here he has penetratingly presented the ships and men of our Merchant Marine at war. It is a grand job that Carse has done, blending expository and narrative writing into a richly interesting whole. And it achieves its fundamental purpose: to make the reader know America's Merchant Marine." W. H. Fetridge
+ Book Week p10 F 20 '44 250w
Booklist 40:194 F 1 '44
Foreign Affairs 22:660 Jl '44 20w

Reviewed by J. C. Shipman
+ Library J 68:957 N 15 '43 140w

CARSE, ROBERT—Continued

"Robert Carse, who wrote the thrilling story of the Murmansk convoy run in 'There Go the Ships,' has now produced a worthy companion piece for it in this broader survey of heroic feats on all the seven seas." F. S. Adams
+ N Y Times p12 Ja 30 '44 600w

"A handsome and informative book. . . As a war book 'Lifeline' tells a stirring and challenging story. For young men who are thinking of entering the merchant marine it presents all the necessary information in attractive form. The photographs are excellent throughout." Lincoln Colcord
+ Weekly Book Review p2 Ja 23 '44 1250w

CARTER, FELICITY WINIFRED (EMERY BONETT, pseud). Old Mrs Camelot [English title: High pavement]. 274p $2.50 Blakiston [8s 6d Heinemann]
44-8233

Detective story.

"The tale is placid, as English stories often are; but it is entertaining at the same time." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p16 N 26 '44 180w
Booklist 41:109 D 1 '44

"Best of the week."
+ Boston Globe p15 O 4 '44 50w

"British and satisfying."
+ Kirkus 12:309 Jl 15 '44 90w

"The character-drawing is so efficient that the narrative does not need to rely on the detective interest to hold the reader absorbed, though the problem presented lacks nothing in intriguing subtlety." Wilfrid Gibson
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 10 '44 100w

"The author has overemphasized the love story to the detriment of what might otherwise have been a fairly good tale of murder and detection." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p20 O 15 '44 120w

"A rather helter-skelter plot but excellent wartime atmosphere."
+ New Yorker 20:80 S 30 '44 60w

"Motive and method are acceptable, but the characterisation of the criminal seems a little thin." John Hampson
+ — Spec 172:276 Mr 24 '44 240w

"The plot development and the denouement are not particularly startling, but the writing and the characters are better than average and the wartime English atmosphere is excellent." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d O 8 '44 190w

"Here is another of those brilliant detective stories with youth and femininity stamped all over them. Some disappointment may be felt when the awkward young woman undergoes the usual Cinderella transformation, but though she is more interesting when young men do not fall at her feet, the story is good to the end."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p105 F 26 '44 120w

"We'd call this a find." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p16 S 24 '44 150w

CARTER, HODDING. Winds of fear. 278p $2.50 Farrar
44-8269

"The story features a small but rising wave of terror in Carvell City that frightened the white folk into naming as city marshall a man from the backwater country whom they themselves mistrusted and despised but who, they figured, would be just the fellow to put the fear of God, the white man and the law into the black hearts of every last man, woman and pickaninny in the quarters. Cancy Dodd did just that, with a vengeance. Fanning the wind, he reaped the whirlwind, piling up sudden and cruel death on all sides in the short span of his tenure." Weekly Book Review

"It seems an injustice to review some novels as merely novels; they put into dramatic form scenes of great sociological significance, but often are written in such haste and anger that they deal in symbols rather than people. 'The Winds of Fear' certainly falls into this category, and while for this reason it may be no great shakes as a novel, it is nevertheless one of the clearest pictures of the mounting racial tension in the South thus far to appear. It is written with courage and conviction, and though it is seen through the eyes of a Southerner, they are eyes that look forward into the future and not back into the past, and a Southerner who has shed much, but not all, of his sectionalism." Bucklin Moon
+ Book Week p3 O 22 '44 650w
Booklist 41:77 N 1 '44

Reviewed by Eleanor McNaught
Canadian Forum 24:216 D '44 500w

"It is not a pretty story—it has no optimistic solution of this bitter cancer in America—it's an engrossing presentation of the problem of fear. Worth reading."
+ Kirkus 12:351 Ag 15 '44 250w

"Mr. Carter's viewpoint is balanced, and most clinical in its detachment. His method has all the inevitability of a Q. E. D. in geometry—and all the horror of a surrealist guignol that is inescapably true. . . 'The Winds of Fear' belongs with the polemics, not with the novels. Yet it seldom descends to the level of the tract: there is none of the tub-thumping which disfigures 'Freedom Road,' to name but one example on an overlong list." C. V. Terry
+ N Y Times p3 O 22 '44 800w

"A study of the present Negro-white situation in the Deep South, done intelligently and without an ounce of sentimentality. . . Not much of a novel, but an interesting and useful exploration of a new phase of an old problem."
+ — New Yorker 20:94 O 21 '44 100w
Time 45:100 Ja 29 '45 500w

"Like Lillian Smith in 'Strange Fruit,' Mr. Carter's method is not to condemn: he merely portrays. And the picture of fear and superstition and white selfishness and smugness that he presents within the span of his short, vivid novel of a little Southern city makes your blood run cold." F. H. Bullock
+ Weekly Book Review p4 O 22 '44 750w

CARUS, CLAYTON DOUGLASS, and McNICHOLS, CHARLES LONGSTRETH. Japan: its resources and industries. 252p il maps $3.50 Harper

330.952 Japan—Industries and resources
44-3351

A volume on Japan which is called by its authors "human geography with a commercial-political slant." It is suggested as a help to "all of those numerous persons who should be concerned with the great possibilities of post-war trade between North America and Asia, and with the potential impact of a conquered, but nonetheless energetic Japanese people upon that future trade." (Editor's introd) Partial contents: Resources inherent in Japan's position and conformation; Human resources; Agriculture; Mining; Transportation; Commercial and industrial monopolies; Finance; Foreign trade; Hydroelectric development; Manufacture; A summary of Japanese resources. Bibliography. Index.

"The assertion that the intelligence of the Japanese is above the average of the human race as a whole may be questioned. The book is intended as an introduction to the field it surveys. As such, it will have its uses. The factual data are carefully selected and interestingly presented; carefully chosen photographs add a human and at times appealing touch." R. A. Norem
+ — Am Pol Sci R 38:1250 D '44 300w

"The book is of value chiefly for its compilation of factual information. It bears evidence of hasty completion, in style, in summary analysis, and in reference to post-war problems. The writers seem not to have drawn at all on the rich accumulation of material which the Institute of Pacific Relations has authoritatively compiled." E. B. Dietrich
— + Ann Am Acad 236:186 N '44 450w

Booklist 40:333 Je 1 '44
Bookmark 5:16 My '44
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:667 Jl '44 20w
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:605 Jl '44 40w
Reviewed by W. H. Chamberlin
N Y Times p10 My 7 '44 480w

"This is an interesting survey of the resources of Japan, under the main headings of resources inherent in Japan's position and conformation, human resources, agriculture, animal industries (including fisheries), mining, transportation, finance, foreign trade and manufacture. The plan of the book is good and its execution on the whole competent." G. B. Sansom
+ Pacific Affairs 17:349 S '44 550w
Scientific Bk Club R 15:4 My '44 150w
Wis Lis Bul 40:143 N '44

CASE, EARL CLARK, and BERGSMARK, DANIEL ROCKMAN. Modern world geography, economic and social. rev ed 746p il $2.20 Lippincott

330.9 Geography 43-15509

"This revision of Case and Bergsmark's high school geography is but little changed from the earlier edition [1938] except for about fifty tables and graphs that have been brought up to date." Social Educ

---

"To get the most out of this book the teacher must be a specialist, trained in the geographic discipline, in order to know what parts to emphasize and in order to go beyond the book to explain causes of climatic conditions, soils and landscapes, which are not adequately presented. The book is unusually well illustrated with pictures and graphs which should be studied carefully by the class. Modern World Geography, while it does not fulfill the requirements that I would set up for a high school geography, is a good text in economic and social geography." J. G. Jensen
+ — Social Educ 8:141 Mr '44 600w
Reviewed by G. C. Hankins
Social Studies 35:44 Ja '44 300w

CASSIRER, ERNST. Essay on man; an introduction to a philosophy of human culture. 237p $3 Yale univ. press

901 Civilization—Philosophy A44-5386

"Author, formerly rector and professor at Hamburg University, is now research associate in Philosophy at Yale. He selects and analyzes typical stages and various symbolic forms such as language, art, religion, history, science, to clarify the historical development of anthropological philosophy, that is, the philosophy of human culture. Life of man is a 'ceaseless struggle between tradition and innovation, between reproduction and creative forces.' In spite of opposing tensions, has come a functional unity enabling man, awakened to social consciousness, to change the forms of social life and thus participate in his own progressive liberation." (Library J) Index.

"Even in the plenitude of his own lack of scholarship, the reviewer could not resist the impression that the Doctor has handled his material in good magisterial fashion avoiding the extreme of dogmatism in which so many anthropologists have—and still do—indulge, and recognizing the apparent antinomies and inconsistencies which characterize this curious hybrid of two worlds in the light of his actions and his thinking." T. F. W.
+ Commonweal 41:257 D 22 '44 700w
Current Hist 8:72 Ja '45 50w
Kirkus 12:365 Ag 15 '44 170w

"Recommended for universities and large libraries." G. O. Kelley
+ Library J 69:881 O 15 '44 120w

CASSON, STANLEY. Greece and Britain. (The nations and Britain) 111p il $2 Hastings house [7s 6d Collins]

327.495 Greece—Relations (general) with Great Britain. Great Britain—Relations (general) with Greece 43-17511

The first in a new series to be called The nations and Britain. It gives an account of the relationship of Greece and Great Britain and their mutual influence from the earliest Greek knowledge of Britain to the present war. Copiously illustrated in color and with photographs.

"It is a pleasantly written book, and the illustrations, except for the colour plates, are also pleasant." T. B. L. W.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 D 1 '43 120w

"Charming little book." John Maviogardato
+ New Statesman & Nation 26:390 D 11 '43 600w

"A book like this is a little hard on the author. It is the first of a new series on Britain's relations with various individual countries, analogous to the well-known Britain in Pictures series. In this case the pictures are so admirably chosen and so excellently reproduced that till they have been studied one by one in detail no reader is likely to be able to concentrate attention on the text. . . Colonel Stanley Casson, set to trace the connexion between Greece and Britain through the centuries, has no easy task, for contacts between the two countries, apart from our share in the common heritage of classical Greece, have been neither numerous nor close. Compelled to make the most of what material there is, Colonel Casson is always interesting, but not invariably convincing." H. W. H.
+ — Spec 171:602 D 24 '43 500w
Times [London] Lit Sup p572 N 27 '43 480w

CASTALLO, MARIO A., and WALZ, MRS AUDREY (FRANCIS BONNAMY, pseud). Expectantly yours; a book for expectant mothers and prospective fathers. 123p il $1.75 Macmillan

618.2 Pregnancy. Infants—Care and hygiene 43-17826

"This little book is written for the young woman who wants general information about pregnancy, what changes she may expect, and how she may co-operate for her own good and for the best development of her baby." J Home Econ

---

"Among many books for expectant mothers and fathers, Expectantly Yours is unique in two ways: it gives more background, setting, and general orientation to maternity than is usual in such small space, and it is written definitely for the well-read, sensitive patient who can profit by information on a higher level of knowledge than is usually offered." Dorothy Deming
+ Am J Pub Health 34:800 Jl '44 120w
Booklist 40:206 F 15 '44
Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Je '44

"It's written in a very pleasing style and could be used for reference in elementary courses on the family. It would be useful for a doctor to give to his patient to read. In the chapter on diet some help is given to pregnant mothers, but this section needs to be expanded and certain changes should be made to correct erroneous ideas that the reader would get." B. K. Watt
+ — J Home Econ 36:298 My '44 130w

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY OF AMERICA. Commission on American citizenship. Better men for better times. 125p $1 The university

261 Sociology, Christian 44-3274

"This . . . volume draws its inspiration from the principles of Christian social teaching embodied in the Papal Encyclicals. It presents briefly but comprehensively the various phases of our complicated social structure—the family, education, social, political, and economic life—under topical headings: The Basis of a Free Government; Society and Citizenship; The

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY OF AMERICA—Continued
Fullness of Human Stature; The Cradle of Citizenship; 'Our Daily Bread'; The Church: The Mystical Body of Christ; The Government of a Free People; Education for Christian Social Living; and The Vision of a Better World." Social Studies

Reviewed by Father P. J. Barth
El School J 44:553 My '44 1100w

"Interesting and significant volume. . . An outstanding characteristic is the simplicity of style and language. While furnishing an intellectual treat to the scholar, this book can be understood and appreciated by the average secondary school student. . . To those who are engaged in the work of Christian education, to those who wish to know something about the social teachings of the Catholic Church, and to those who would mold their lives in accordance with the mind of the Church, Better Men for Better Times should prove a valuable guide." Sister Mary Grace
+ Social Studies 35:236 My '44 600w

CAVANAH, FRANCES, and WEIR, RUTH CROMER. Private Pepper of Dogs for defense; il. by Diana Thorne. 32p $1.25 Whitman, A.

Dogs—Legends and stories 43-17448

Story of a collie given to Dogs for Defense by his young American owner. Private Pepper got his basic training in Front Royal, Virginia, and was assigned to the South Pacific. There he saved the Americans from a surprise attack by the Japanese. For nine and ten year olds.

"A number of stories have been written about Dogs for Defense, but 'Private Pepper' is one of the best which has come my way. Chicago authors Cavanah and Weir have done a thorough job of research on the subject and have presented in lively story form a picture of the training and actual use of dogs in wartime." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p11 F 6 '44 190w

"A made-to-order, informational story, but well done of its kind. More detail of the training would add to interest and value. Colorful illustrations, by Diana Thorne, and large print. Probably great appeal to nine- and ten-year-olds." Alice Monroe
+ Library J 69:72 Ja 15 '44 110w
Springf'd Republican p7e F 20 '44 120w
Wis Lib Bul 40:58 Ap '44

CAVANNA, BETTY. Puppy stakes. 262p il $2 Presbyterian bd.

44-2601

"City-bred Janey Lovett, reluctantly arriving to spend a year in the country with her aunt and uncle, felt she deserved something better than the absent-minded welcome she got. But when she saw the cocker spaniel puppies whose simultaneous arrival had caused it her heart softened. Raising Budge, the runt she chose for herself, nursing him through distemper, Janey forgot to be self-centered." N Y Times

Booklist 40:359 Je 15 '44
Reviewed by H. L. Binsse
Commonweal 41:128 N 17 '44 20w
Kirkus 12:144 Mr 15 '44 170w

"The human relationships do not develop as fully as they promise to in the beginning of the story, but Miss Cavanna has a light touch in dealing with the affairs of young people. This is a pleasant story which should appeal mightily to girls in their early teens who take dogs seriously." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p20 Je 11 '44 180w

CAVE, HUGH BARNETT. We build, we fight! the story of the Seabees. 122p il $2.50 Harper

940.545973 U.S. Navy. Construction battalions 44-7650

Story of the navy's construction battalions, describing the work of the steam shovel men, bull dozer operators, dynamiters, linemen, divers, steel workers, carpenters, blacksmiths, mechanics, and others. Their work is outlined at Guadalcanal, in the Solomons, Bougainville, the Aleutians, Iceland, Bermuda, Africa, Sicily, and Salerno. Illustrated with official United States navy photographs.

Booklist 41:93 N 15 '44
Christian Science Monitor p12 N 18 '44 50w
Eng N 133:98 N 2 '44 100w
Horn Bk 20:493 N '44 100w

" An excellent book written in a natural easy style for any age from 12 up."
+ Kirkus 12:280 Je 15 '44 160w

"Book is illustrated with excellent official U. S. Navy photographs and is readable; its grim anecdotes lightened with some humor." Isabel McLaughlin
+ Library J 69:887 O 15 '44 90w
New Yorker 20:92 D 16 '44 20w
Sat R of Lit 27:44 N 11 '44 20w
Reviewed by R. S. Scott
+ Springf'd Republican p4d O 15 '44 300w

CAVERLY, DONALD PHILIP. Primer of electronics. 235p il $2 McGraw

621.38 Electronics 44-455

"Elementary discussion for persons without technical education, especially salesmen and others who deal with common electrical devices. Part-titles are: Electric current; Magnetism; Electromagnetic radiation; Basic electronics. The author is on the staff of Sylvania Electric Products, Inc." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 40:246 Mr 15 '44
N Y New Tech Bks 29:6 Ja '44
Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p16 O 29 '44 200w

CERF, BENNETT ALFRED, comp. Try and stop me; il. by Carl Rose. 378p $3 Simon & Schuster

817 Anecdotes. Humor 44-9159

"A collection of anecdotes and stories, mostly humorous." (Subtitle) The stories are grouped under headings: show cases; back to the Hollywoods; the literary life; funny business; powers of the press; music hath charms; this, gentlemen, is history; "highlights from the world of sports"; "there's a war going on"; etc.

Reviewed by A. C. Spectorsky
Book Week p3 N 5 '44 650w
Booklist 41:104 D 1 '44

"The book is full of wit, humor, with a chaser of just the right amount of corn. The timing is perfect, you can catch your breath between fast ones. It is completely 'in the know.' It is good in wartime to have a collection of mirth. It is good at any time to have a document of happy social history. This is both." Dorothy Hillyer
+ Boston Globe p19 N 8 '44 350w

"A harlequin motley for entertainment only."
Kirkus 12:362 Ag 15 '44 120w

"If the humor of insult grows a little tiresome, and the general flavor of the jokes rather insistently adolescent, you are to remember that it is a book to dip into and not to swallow at a gulp. It is, obviously, also a book that is likely to sell like the devil. By and large, the show business stories are the most comical, the sports stories the least so; the newspaper field is insufficiently investigated, and radio scarcely touched upon." J. K. H.
+ — N Y Times p4 N 12 '44 440w

"Funny in spots, apocryphal in general, and fairly tiresome on the whole."
— + New Yorker 20:94 N 18 '44 60w

"A lot of the material is old; a lot of it is dull. But an amazing proportion is lively, fresh and funny. Trade Winds addicts will find all their old favorites here." Thomas Sugrue
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:18 N 25 '44 1050w

"As editor of this compilation of latter day wits, Bennett Cerf may not be Emersonian, but he knows what it takes to make a better literary mousetrap—not chromium fixtures but a connoisseur's choice of the best bait. 'Try and Stop Me' is a repast of riposte." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p14 N 19 '44 400w

CERF, BENNETT ALFRED, and CARTMELL, VAN H., comps. S. R. O.; the most successful plays in the history of the American stage; introd. by John Chapman. 920p $3.75 Doubleday

812.08 American drama—Collections. Dramas —Collections 44-51156

Contents: Uncle Tom's cabin, by H. B. Stowe (revised version by A. E. Thomas); East Lynne, by Mrs Henry Wood; The two orphans, by Adolphe d'Ennery and Eugene Cormon; The old homestead, by Denman Thompson; Rip Van Winkle, as played by Joseph Jefferson; The man from home, by Booth Tarkington and H. L. Wilson; Peg o' my heart, by J. H. Manners; Lightnin', by Winchell Smith and Frank Bacon; The bat, by M. R. Rinehart and Avery Hopwood; Abie's Irish Rose, by Anne Nichols; Tobacco road, by Erskine Caldwell; Life with father, by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse; Arsenic and old lace, by Joseph Kesselring; Oklahoma!, by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein, II. Biographical notes.

Reviewed by H. T. Murdock
Book Week p2 Ja 7 '45 360w
Booklist 41:136 Ja 1 '45
Kirkus 12:464 O 1 '44 70w
Library J 69:1000 N 15 '44 70w

"Amateurs of the theatre are warned that the whole volume is dull, if read with the eye alone—that even the most recent entries will seem corny beyond belief, if judged by that inaccurate medium. But there are rich rewards between these covers for the student with an ear—who is also practical enough to want his forthcoming chef d'oeuvre 'to earn its way in the world." C. V. Terry
N Y Times p8 Ja 21 '45 1050w
New Yorker 20:68 D 23 '44 80w

CERF, BENNETT ALFRED, and CARTMELL, VAN H., eds. Thirty famous one act plays; with an introd. by Richard Watts, jr. 617p $1.98 Garden City pub. co.

808.82 Dramas—Collections 43-18980

Partial contests: The man who married a dumb wife, by Anatole France; Salomé, by Oscar Wilde; The rising of the moon, by Lady Gregory; The twelve-pound look, by J. M. Barrie; A miracle of St. Antony, by Maurice Maeterlinck; The monkey's paw, by W. W. Jacobs; The little man, by John Galsworthy; Riders to the sea, by J. M. Synge; A night at an inn, by Lord Dunsany; The drums of Oude, by Austin Strong; Suppressed desires, by Susan Glaspell; Another way out, by Lawrence Langner; Aria da Capo, by E. S. Millay; Fumed oak, by Noel Coward; Waiting for Lefty, by Clifford Odets; Hello out there, by William Saroyan; Bury the dead, by Irwin Shaw. Biographical notes.

Booklist 40:179 Ja 15 '44

"Recommended."
+ Library J 69:71 Ja 15 '44 40w

"Somebody might pass on word to Bennett Cerf and Van H. Cartmell that they are welcome to posts high up on the editorial staff of Theatre Arts whenever they can afford it. For they have separately or together a gift which every good magazine needs today and every art magazine in America particularly, the gift of recognizing success and popularity that are not disassociated from worth."
+ Theatre Arts 28:127 F '44 550w

CHAFFEE, ALLEN. Western wild life. 205p il $2.50 Caxton printers

591.5 Animals, Habits and behavior of 44-53429

Short stories of wild animals living in the Western states: the marmot, mountain goat, sea otter, skunk, pack rat, red lynx, wolf, bison, horned toad, etc.

Commonweal 41:256 D 22 '44 20w

"A refreshing approach to subject matter relatively new to most young readers."
+ Kirkus 12:480 O 15 '44 50w

"The material all seems accurate enough, but it is unfortunate that many sincere authors with serious things to say, still feel their information must be thrown into story form to gain an audience. However, those children enjoying the Burgess books will like this one, and those teachers wishing stories emphasizing wild life from Alaska south and from the Rockies west will find it useful." Miriam Snow
+ — Library J 69:937 N 1 '44 90w
Springf'd Republican p4d Ja 21 '45 100w

CHAFFEE, LETITIA. Boy meets pony; pictures by Roberta Paflin. [22p] $1.50 Howell, Soskin

A turn-over book, consisting of two stories for children, each about a boy and a pony.

Reviewed by M. L. Goodwin
Library J 69:1104 D 15 '44 40w

"A story that should—and does—warm the child's heart is 'Boy Meets Pony.' The text is most natural and it, together with the trick format, brings together just the right kind of small boy with just the right kind of pony." L. M. Palmer
+ N Y Times p18 N 12 '44 40w
Springf'd Republican p4d D 31 '44 70w

"There is a real story in this book, the gadget coming at its climax."
+ Weekly Book Review p36 N 12 '44 100w

CHALMERS, AUDREY. I had a penny. [44p] il $1 Viking 44-7723

A small book for ages two and three, telling in rhyming text how a little girl with a penny to spend went down town, and what she saw.

"Audrey Chalmers' red and black pictures are as gay as her verse and both will delight the youngest."
+ Book Week p7 D 31 '44 90w
Booklist 41:61 O 15 '44

"Just the things a child would notice on a city walk are shown in the pictures and for all its apparent simplicity this is a book that can be looked at over and over again." F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 S 25 '44 130w

"A little book, illustrated in red and white, with sure appeal for 4-5 year olds."
+ Kirkus 12:448 O 1 '44 50w

"The drawings are rather crude, but the verse that tells the story is good." M. C. Skinner
Library J 69:863 O 15 '44 40w

"The color apparently slipped in the printing and the child's red cheeks look like mustaches. Perhaps little children will not object to this. Recommended." R. O. Bostwick
+ — Library J 69:937 N 1 '44 70w

"This little story in rhyme truly reflects that enjoyment of adventure in miniature which is a little child's happy prerogative." A. T. E.
+ N Y Times p12 N 12 '44 60w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 O 22 '44 140w
Wis Lib Bul 40:161 D '44

CHALMERS, HARVEY. West to the setting sun. 362p $4 Macmillan

Brant, Joseph (Thayendanegea)—Fiction [44-789]

"The author here presents a fictionized biography of the celebrated Mohawk chieftain, Joseph Brant. It was he who led the People of the Longhouse or Indians of the Six Nations, the Iroquois, through the years of their greatest triumph and disaster. . . With the war and diplomacy, we have an added attraction in the form of a love story." Sat R of Lit

CHALMERS, HARVEY—Continued

"A skillful novelist could have made a lively story of this material. . . But Mr. Chalmers remains remote and impersonal." Ruth Boorstin
N Y Times p18 Ja 30 '44 360w

"Apparently this book is the result of a thorough study of all the available data on its subject; but where data did not exist, the author has made free to supply the lack by inventing motives and dialogue and action to present what he thinks Brant would have done or said under the circumstances. The result is a book which is neither a biography nor a novel, and this will be a disappointment to those who step warily in interpreting the psychology of an alien race and a primitive civilization. . . The author writes competently and tells an interesting story." Stanley Vestal
Sat R of Lit 27:13 F 19 '44 390w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p12 Ja 30 '44 300w

CHAMBERLIN, WILLIAM HENRY. The Ukraine; a submerged nation. 91p $1.75 Macmillan
947.7 Ukraine 44-47714

An historical essay on the place of the Ukraine in Russia's past history, and particularly its status under Soviet rule and the prospects of a future just and peaceful solution to its problem.

Booklist 41:150 Ja 15 '45

"A useful book, if taken with a grain of salt, i.e., recognition of Chamberlin's known anti-Communist slant and knowledge of the complex part the Ukranians have played in seeking a sympathetic audience."
+ — Kirkus 12:421 S 15 '44 170w

"An interesting and readable account." Mary Clark
+ Library J 69:998 N 15 '44 40w

"William Henry Chamberlin again swims against the stream. At a time when friendly sentiments toward a war ally and gratitude for its share in the fighting are uppermost in most people's minds and cause many to urge that Russia should have the right to determine the nature of the governments in neighboring lands, Mr. Chamberlin chooses to pry into the condition of a people already largely included in the Soviet Union. In 'The Ukraine: A Submerged Nation' he has picked himself a difficult, controversial and unfashionable subject." B. D. Wolfe
+ N Y Times p6 D 24 '44 1200w

"Slight as it is, 'The Ukraine' contains valuable factual material, but does the author validate his thesis of 'a submerged nation'? . . In urging the cause of Ukrainian nationalists, Mr. Chamberlin is in reality attacking the dictatorship that exists in Soviet Russia from a fresh angle. He is creating a new and somewhat unreal issue which, if it were widely taken up, would only cause further distrust between Soviet Russia and the United States." F. R. Dulles
+ — Weekly Book Review p10 D 31 '44 600w

CHAMBERS, DANA, pseud. See Leffingwell, A.

CHAMBERS, MRS MARIA CRISTINA (MENA). Bullfighter's son; il. by Ignacio P. Ortega. 94p $1.75 Oxford
44-8363

Story of a Spanish boy, son of a great bullfighter, who is sent to the United States for safety during the Spanish civil war. Contains quite a bit about the art of bullfighting. For boys and girls of ten to twelve.

"Mrs. Chambers' publishers are to be commended for their courage in publishing a book about a subject which is so little understood in America—though certainly it is a subject which carries the authentic atmosphere of Spain, Mexico and South America. Probably few Americans will ever truly understand bullfighting, any more than Spaniards truly understand some of our sports, but if our children are to know their world neighbors it is just such books as this which will help them to the right understanding." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p10 N 12 '44 310w

"Good atmosphere."
+ Cath World 160:282 D '44 30w

Reviewed by H. L. Binsse
Commonweal 41:127 N 17 '44 10w

Kirkus 12:451 O 1 '44 100w

"There is little in print on modern Spain for children, so this should be welcome for its authentic Spanish flavor." G. M. Williams
+ Library J 70:36 Ja 1 '45 60w

"Some characterization; Paco's conversation gives the impression of a foreigner speaking English. Plot is never pulled together. Book is very slight and has no special use. . . Not recommended." E. W. Turpin
— Library J 70:36 Ja 1 '45 60w

"If our children, as adults, are to understand the Spanish people it would be well for them to read now this story of a Spanish boy. . . The drawings are interesting, but so badly reproduced that they lose much of their value. Why splash them with red? Black and white would have been more in harmony with the dignity and integrity of Paco himself." M. G. D.
+ — Sat R of Lit 28:35 Ja 13 '45 320w

CHAMBERS, MRS MARIA CRISTINA (MENA). Two eagles; pictures by Susanne Suba. 176p $2 Oxford 43-18555

Contrasts the ways of life in Mexico with that of the United States, by means of a story about the visit of an American copper king's family to the home of a Mexican governor. The central characters are the teen age son of the governor, and his contemporary, the copper king's daughter.

"The humor is delicious in this junior novel for the teen-aged, and the story truly charming." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p9 Mr 5 '44 230w

Cath World 158:317 D '43 40w

"While adults will be highly entertained by humorous episodes, teen-age readers may find the book slightly stilted and sentimental." Margaret Miller
Library J 69:120 F 1 '44 110w

"A social comedy based on contrasting national attitudes and customs has seldom been attempted for 'teen-age readers, to whom it should have special appeal. Unfortunately this one, despite its delightful portrayal of the ever-courteous, somewhat bewildered Mexicans, falls a little flat. The incidents are slight and not very closely related, and Marcos, romantic, a little absurd and wholly convincing, needs a better foil than Florence, who is a spoiled brat, lacking either charm or character." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p6 Ja 30 '44 280w

CHAMBLISS, WILLIAM CAMPBELL. Boomerang. 87p $1.50 Harcourt
44-6704

The story of an American aircraft carrier in the Pacific. They capture a Japanese destroyer and use it as a secret weapon against the Japanese, until the Japs manage to sink their erstwhile ship.

"This Mid-summer-Night's-Dream of a naval officer is a bit of adventure fiction that might have read like a dime novel if written by unskillful hands. Cmdr. Chambliss is a deft writer, however, and the book is a lively and absorbing one." W. F. Morse
+ Book Week p10 Jl 30 '44 60w

Booklist 41:21 S '44

Kirkus 12:289 Jl 1 '44 60w

"The Navy talk in this book rings true; details of plane and ship operation are so close to fact that the censor would hardly have passed them if Commander Chambliss had not presented his story in the guise of fiction. It is a swiftly paced, well-told tale he gives us—just the right length to take to bed with you when you feel a few sleepless hours coming on." Foster Hailey

+ N Y Times p6 Jl 30 '44 320w

"The author has had considerable sea duty in this war and was aboard the carrier Wasp when she was sunk. He knows his navy and although the book covers only 87 pages Cmdr Chambliss has packed it with action and a great deal of incidental but interesting information on the operation of a warship in the combat area." G. K. Moriarty

+ Springf'd Republican p4d Jl 30 '44 170w

"A grand yarn, touched with humor and crammed with suspense. 'Boomerang' may be fiction but we hope it's true." Lisle Bell

+ Weekly Book Review p14 Jl 23 '44 150w

CHAMPAGNE, MRS MARIAN MIRA (GROSBERG). Cauliflower heart. 389p $2.50 Dial press

44-2955

A cross-section of life in a Smith College dormitory in the latter 1930's. Unlike most college stories the action does not stop with graduation, but the lives of the principal characters are followed for several years afterward.

"Some good writing, representative characterization—but the average Smith alumna will find it shocking (though curiosity may lead to reading it)."

Kirkus 12:85 F 15 '44 200w

"Marian G. Champagne, herself an undergraduate during the middle Thirties, presents a picture of college life in those years very different from the usual college novel—and one which comes, I suspect, far closer to the truth. . . It is, in fact, an alive, intelligent, well-rounded, if somewhat too schematized book, with a quality of youthful ardor and idealism which is often very moving." E. H. Walton

+ N Y Times p18 Mr 19 '44 360w

"To a certain extent this novel seems to have been written to describe the ideas of the decade rather than the people. The political arguments might almost be a transcript of arguments every active-minded student of the '30s participated in, but the characters are stock—simplified silhouettes of people who hold these opinions. 'The Cauliflower Heart' will, for many who were in college during the '30s, read like a diary of their college lives." Barbara Klaw

Weekly Book Review p8 Mr 19 '44 350w

CHAN, CHRISTINA. Magic monkey; adapted from an old Chinese legend [il. by Plato Chan]. (Whittlesey house publication) 50p il $1.50 McGraw

Monkeys—Legends and stories 44-40172

A Chinese legend about a magic-working monkey, retold by a fourteen-year-old Chinese girl now residing in this country, and illustrated by her brother, who is a year younger.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p24 N 12 '44 100w

Booklist 41:43 O 1 '44

Reviewed by H. L. Binsse
Commonweal 41:127 N 17 '44 10w

Horn Bk 20:477 N '44 100w

Kirkus 12:372 Ag 15 '44 110w

"The story is full of humor and incident. The drawings, in spite of what Carl Glick says in the brief foreword, are not up to those in this talented boy's Good-luck Horse. They are not so clear, and they lack the delicate line and fine detail." M. C. Skinner

+ — Library J 69:861 O 15 '44 140w

Reviewed by M. F. Cox
Library J 69:884 O 15 '44 70w

"There is a quiet humor in both text and drawings that is very engaging. Christina Chan has told the story with ease and simplicity and Plato's pictures have vitality and spirit and an amazing sense of space and motion. A picture-story book which the younger children will read and read again, one that lovers of China of any age should not miss." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p25 O 1 '44 260w

Sat R of Lit 27:29 N 11 '44 20w

"Written in simple, amusing form, and illustrated in charming, striking style." M. L. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p4d S 3 '44 120w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 S 24 '44 150w

Wis Lib Bul 40:148 N '44

CHANDLER, ANNA CURTIS. Dragons on guard; an imaginative interpretation of old China in stories of art and history; with a forward look; drawings by Margaret Ayer; foreword by Y. C. Yang. 191p $2.50 Lippincott

44-3884

In a series of short stories with brief introductions giving the historical setting in both the East and the West, the author has attempted "an imaginative interpretation of old China" stressing its arts as well as its history. The stories cover eight dynasties—from the Chou dynasty 1122-255 B.C. to the Manchu dynasty, 1644 to 1911 A.D, with a ninth story celebrating the Chinese Republic. For readers of the sixth to ninth grades. Bibliography.

"Valuable material despite the fact that the stories themselves have little narrative interest."

+ — Booklist 40:323 My 15 '44

"The book is of timely interest as well as of cultural value." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 20:205 My '44 100w

"This book will prove a gold mine to story telling hour, and—with careful selection, some of the stories might be read—or told—to children of seven and eight, while older ones will enjoy reading them to themselves, and find their background and understanding of our ally of the Far East enhanced by the connecting links which give the settings for the stories of different eras in Chinese art."

+ Kirkus 12:196 Ap 15 '44 210w

"A valuable feature of this book is the historical sketches of the dynasties, each prefaced by a brief account of contemporary world events." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p19 Ag 27 '44 100w

"The plan and research for this are admirable. . . Its weakness lies in the wording of the stories. They have no lightness, no humor."

+ — Sat R of Lit 27:39 My 13 '44 50w

Wis Lib Bul 40:111 Jl '44

CHANG, CHIA-AO. China's struggle for railroad development. 340p il maps $5 Day

385 Railroads—China 43-15159

"The story of China's uphill fight to create a skeleton network of railways as an essential step toward national unity, related by a former Minister of Communications." (Foreign Affairs) Index.

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:667 Jl '44 20w

"Mr. Chang provides an excellent table of foreign loans and recognizes the importance of establishing the confidence of the investing public abroad. . . For the future he has very definite views of needs and possibilities. His proposals for a ten-year plan will repay careful study. . . This book contributes much valuable, authoritative and timely information. It brings the position of the problem of railways up to date; it opens up the field of the future with its needs and its limitation, and it contains suggestions which aim at harmonizing the conflict between business requirements and Chinese national aspirations." P. H. B. Kent

CHANG, CHIA-AO—Continued
+ Pacific Affairs 17:344 S '44 750w

CHANG, HSIN-HAI. Chiang Kai-shek; Asia's man of destiny. 357p il $3.50 Doubleday
B or 92 Chiang, Kai-shek 44-6168

This biography of the Chinese leader, written by a Chinese scholar and diplomat, is intended to explain to American readers, not only the man himself, but also his background in Chinese history, and China's place in worldwide affairs.

Booklist 41:19 S '44

"A Chinese scholar writing in the United States with fine English style, balance, moderation and humor has produced a unique volume." R. G.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 3 '44 600w

"The book itself gives a good and fair account of his life. The author writes as a friend and a partisan." W. F. Sands
+ Commonweal 40:500 S 8 '44 350w
Foreign Affairs 23:16 O '44 30w

"An interesting contribution to understanding a world figure, that carries the authoritative tone of intimate knowledge of the man and his country."
+ Kirkus 12:209 My 1 '44 150w

"The fibre of the people and the strength of their democracy are clearly drawn, and the book is recommended for all libraries." Katharine Shorey
+ Library J 69:553 Je 15 '44 80w

"An objective biography of Chiang Kai-shek would be of service to the United Nations in this war for democracy, but this one fails to fill that need." Agnes Smedley
— Nation 159:246 Ag 26 '44 950w

"It is a highly idealized portrait of the Generalissimo that is painted here, with the grime of day-to-day politics removed and the blood of a revolutionary epoch washed away. Chiang emerges as the 'single person' who has made of China 'a new entity,' the man who 'was able in the space of twenty years to lead his country from bondage to liberty, from virtual slavery to freedom.' . . It would be easy to pick holes in this volume, especially since many important aspects of the subject are omitted or not discussed adequately. . . One might also stress the weakness of the biographical method employed in these pages. . . But it is from these shortcomings, in a sense, that the book derives its importance. For Dr. Chang, making full use of his experience as a Chinese official, his personal knowledge of the Generalissimo and his study of Chinese materials on the subject, has produced an analysis that may not be very far from Chiang Kai-shek's conception of himself." L. K. Rosinger
+ — New Repub 111:197 Ag 14 '44 750w

"The book is not good. From page to page the reader waits for Chiang Kai-shek to emerge. The waiting is futile. In this wordy, dullish chronicle Chiang remains a hazy figure —never alive, never interesting, at times quite unattractive. Much of the fault lies in Dr. Chang's tendency to deviate from his topic into other fields—sometimes related, sometimes not. In the end, the book becomes a series of essays—on Chinese heroes and philosophers, on history and education." Mark Gayn
— N Y Times p20 Jl 23 '44 800w

Reviewed by H. M. Vinacke
Pacific Affairs 17:496 D '44 550w

Reviewed by H. L. Mitchell
Springf'd Republican p8 O 24 '44 450w

"Detailed and somewhat fulsome biography of the generalissimo. The author pays glowing tribute to his hero's great accomplishments; traces the outlines of his arresting career; makes a genuine contribution in stressing Chiang's inseparable links with China's deepest traditions. Yet the resultant portrait is singularly lacking in black-and-whites. It does not quite come credibly alive." Leland Stowe
— + Weekly Book Review p8 Jl 23 '44 1550w
Wis Lib Bul 40:147 N '44

CHANSLOR, TORREY (MRS ROY CHANSLOR) (TORRE BEVANS, MARJORIE TORREY, pseuds). Penny; il. by [the author]. 127p $2.50 Howell, Soskin
44-7493

Penny, a shy little girl, is sent to spend the summer in the country with her great-aunt. Her first impressions are anything but happy and she starts to run away. On the way she finds a homemade circus, is frightened by a cow, and gets caught in the rain. When an exhausted little girl gets back to Aunt Penelope's she is so lovingly welcomed that things begin to look brighter at once. For ages six to nine.

Boston Globe p36 N 29 '44 30w
Cath World 160:280 D '44 30w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 Ag 28 '44 130w
Horn Bk 20:482 N '44 90w

"Quiet little girl of nine or ten may enjoy this story of small daily happenings in spite of predominance of the moral. Charming illustrations in color and black and white by author in which black French poodle seems to have oversmooth coat. Not a must." K. H. McAlarney
+ — Library J 69:764 S 15 '44 60w

"It is hard to define the charm of this story, but it will send mothers back to the days when they explored Victorian mansions and old barns, while little girls of 7 to 10 will feel its glow of good cheer. The pictures are exactly of the period and among the prettiest we have seen for a long time." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p18 S 10 '44 160w

"The book is prettily got up, with good illustrations in color which are marred only, as is the story, by a rather over-conscious quaintness."
New Yorker 20:89 D 16 '44 60w

"The pictures make the book. These scenes with the wide-eyed little girl, Pouf the wise poodle and Willie the friendly country mutt, Caleb with whom Penny makes a Solemn Pact over buried treasure, pull at the affections. Some are in color effectively reproduced, some in black and white; the typography is fitting: the book will be noticed at once." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ag 20 '44 250w

CHAPELLE, MRS GEORGETTE LOUISE (MEYER) (DICKEY MEYER, pseud). Girls at work in aviation. 209p il $2.50 Doubleday
331.4 Woman—Occupations. Aeronautics as a profession 43-15981

Survey of the jobs open to women in present-day aviation. Includes qualifications, training, duties, and prewar jobs of the army of American women now employed in various phases of aviation. For high school age or older. Illustrated.

Booklist 40:184 Ja 15 '44

"Style of writing is somewhat irritating and the chattiness seems too juvenile for the age to which the book should appeal. Recommended where additional material is needed." E. A. Groves
+ — Library J 69:207 Mr 1 '44 80w

"True stories of how these women work, with many photographs of competent, absorbed women working, keep up high interest in a survey of what their work means to war flight and to victory."
+ Weekly Book Review p31 N 7 '43 130w
Wis Lib Bul 40:14 Ja '44

CHAPELLE, MRS GEORGETTE LOUISE (MEYER) (DICKEY MEYER, pseud). How planes get there; drawings by Da Costa; prepared by Aviation research associates. 64p Harper $1
629.1325 Aeronautics—Juvenile literature
44-9812

Simple, non-technical explanation of aerial navigation in principle and practice. Illustrated with photographs and diagrams. Grades four to seven.

Booklist 41:126 D 15 '44

"Can be understood by ten-year-olds, but will be useful with older children as well." Marian Herr

+ Library J 70:35 Ja 1 '45 50w

New Yorker 20:92 D 16 '44 20w

"An invaluable book for boys who are planning to become aviators."

+ Sat R of Lit 27:49 N 11 '44 20w

CHAPELLE, MRS GEORGETTE LOUISE (MEYER) (DICKEY MEYER, pseud). Planes in action; drawings by Da Costa; prepared by Aviation research associates. 64p $1 Harper

629.1325 Aeronautics—Juvenile literature 44-9813

Simple text and diagrams explaining airplane flight in both civil and combat flying. Grades four to seven.

Booklist 41:126 D 15 '44

"Excellent for young aviation enthusiasts from twelve years up." Nelle McCalla

+ Library J 70:36 Ja 1 '45 50w

New Yorker 20:92 D 16 '44 20w

"Another book that is almost a necessity for future aviators."

+ Sat R of Lit 27:49 N 11 '44 20w

CHAPLIN, WILLIAM WATTS. Fifty-two days; an NBC reporter's story of the battle that freed France. 215p $2.50 Bobbs

940.542 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939—Campaigns and battles—France 44-9566

Records the events of the first fifty-two days in France, after D-day, as they appeared to an NBC reporter, who broadcast to the United States from the mobile radio truck in Normandy. The call letter for the station was JESQ, known in the radio man's parlance as Jig Easy Sugar Queen, and Mr Chaplin includes both actual communiques, and anecdotes about the difficulties of keeping the JES Queen in working order.

Reviewed by W. F. Morse

Book Week p14 N 26 '44 90w

Booklist 41:121 D 15 '44

Kirkus 12:493 N 1 '44 210w

"An excellent reporter with vast experience in war, Mr. Chaplin has now amplified his experiences into this unpretentious little book, filled with homely, down-to-earth reporting. Because he has a sharp eye for how the GI fights and a sympathetic heart for how he feels, 'The Fifty-two Days' is one of the better contributions to the fast-growing stock of eyewitness accounts of the invasion." F. S. Adams

+ N Y Times p36 N 12 '44 400w

Reviewed by Marcus Duffield

Weekly Book Review p30 D 3 '44 500w

CHAPMAN, HENRY PALMER. See Chapman, J.

CHAPMAN, DOM JOHN (originally HENRY PALMER CHAPMAN). Four Gospels. 85p $1.25 Sheed

226 Bible. New Testament—Gospels 44-4300

"From the pen of Dom Chapman, who died ten years ago, we have this new book, discovered among his papers and apparently prepared for ultimate publication by the author himself, after he had used it as the substance of four conferences to the Catholic undergraduates at Cambridge. The editor assures us that the conferences appear 'almost exactly as they were first written and delivered.' . . The present volume contains an appendix of Patristic texts and of Replies of the Pontifical Biblical Commission which show the nice harmony of his opinions with the traditional teaching of the Catholic Church." Cath World

"A brief but sufficiently comprehensive outline of the characteristics and interrelationship of the four Gospels, the book deserves to be highly recommended. Of Dom Chapman's scholarship there can be no question; of his lively unconventional style readers of semi-popular theological literature are already well aware. He enjoyed the reputation of an independent thinker and he gave forceful championship to those views which seemed to him best justified by available evidence."

+ Cath World 160:285 D '44 180w

"By virtue of his accurate scholarship and deep knowledge of the whole subject, he writes with a firmness and lucidity that delight and convince. He knows all the apparatus and arguments of the critics, recent and remote, and above all he knows and loves the Fathers. He has joined knowledge with sympathy, scholarship with devotion, and one feels that here we have a guide who loves his terrain." Richard Flower

+ Commonweal 40:117 My 19 '44 280w

CHAPMAN, MARISTAN, pseud of MARY and STANTON CHAPMAN. Secret of Wild Cat cave; il. by James McKell. 228p $2 Appleton-Century

44-3164

Mystery story for young readers.

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p14 O 12 '44 70w

"This story isn't as full-bodied as most of its predecessors, but, after all, any Glen Hazard story is better than none." E. L. Buell

N Y Times p18 Ap 9 '44 80w

CHAPMAN, PAUL WILBER. Chicken raising made easy; il. by Leon D'Emo. 152p $1.75 Macmillan

636.5 Poultry Agr43-277

Handbook on poultry raising for owners of small flocks raised in city or suburbs. Includes data on producing broilers and fryers; egg production; houses for small flocks; controlling diseases and pests; incubation and breeding; and plans for houses, etc. The author is dean of the college of agriculture at the university of Georgia. Index.

Booklist 40:207 F 15 '44

Weekly Book Review p14 Ja 16 '44 180w

CHAPPELL, CLOVIS GILLHAM. Living zestfully. 224p $1.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury

252 Sermons 44-4547

"A collection of sermons which interpret, in the light of present problems, 14 familiar Biblical texts." Christian Science Monitor

"It is easy to find faults in Dr. Chappell's style. . . Nevertheless he effectively projects wholesome and helpful Christian ideas to his audience. Though he has published many volumes of sermons, he is not a 'literary' preacher—for which his many eager hearers may be grateful."

+ — Christian Century 61:670 My 31 '44 110w

"The book is well worth reading, and its varied and practical applications of Scriptural teachings will appeal to many." T. L. L.

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 10 '44 450w

CHARLES, JOAN. Dark glass. 287p $2.50 Harper

44-5031

Portrait of a sensitive young woman, whose marriage proved the wrong turn in her search for peace. At first she becomes a patient in a private sanitarium for mental cases; then she is transferred to a state hospital for the insane. A young bacteriologist at the hospital finally helps her to regain a normal existence.

Book Week p7 Je 11 '44 50w

CHARLES, JOAN—Continued

"Sensitive writing, suggestive, sympathetic, but not always convincing, chiefly in that one never feels that Ann is actually psychopathic, but merely a victim of those she loved, and justifiably directionless after their dereliction."
Kirkus 12:222 My 15 '44 210w

"This is an interesting theme and a rather subtle change from the usual run of novels which, in the past twenty years, have dealt with insanity. But there is a basic pattern in this novel which is shoddy and which Miss Charles' originality and sometimes superior writing does not transcend." Ruth Page
+ — N Y Times p14 Je 18 '44 360w

"The flashbacks to the heroine's early life and unsatisfactory marriage are sensitively and delicately done, although, viewed as attempts to trace an increasing instability, they might not be approved by a psychiatrist. For that matter, it's hard to believe that anybody gets popped into an asylum for such very mild neuroses as the author describes. Still, this book gives you an uneasy feeling that it could happen."
+ — New Yorker 20:82 My 27 '44 90w

"In this first novel Joan Charles proves herself a writer of rare sensitiveness and subtlety. . . . It is impossible in a brief review to give more than a suggestion of the quality of this unusual novel. It requires no little skill to make the explorations of a mind, fine but temporarily off-key, as exciting as a detective story. But even more impressive are the author's subtle insight into her characters, the flashes of wisdom, and the charm of her prose. Joan Charles is a name to remember." M. S. Ulrich
+ Sat R of Lit 27:20 Ag 26 '44 400w

"Apart from its unusual theme, 'The Dark Glass' holds claim to attention for its fluid, sensitive prose and its searching characterization of a sick mind." Rose Feld
+ Weekly Book Review p3 My 28 '44 600w
Wis Lib Bul 40:130 O '44

CHARTERIS, LESLIE. Saint on guard. 214p $2 Doubleday
44-3677

Two stories about Simon Templar, called The Saint, who has become affiliated with the FBI, at least for the duration.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p9 Mr 12 '44 230w
Kirkus 12:30 Ja 15 '44 60w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 Mr 12 '44 70w

"The first story, in which Templar smashes the iridium black market, isn't likely to tax anyone's deductive powers. The second, dealing with saboteurs in Galveston, provides an adequate amount of the kind of horror which Charteris fans demand and which aims at upsetting the stomach rather than at chilling the spine."
— New Yorker 20:96 Mr 11 '44 90w

"Standard brand."
Sat R of Lit 27:29 Mr 11 '44 30w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p16 Mr 5 '44 200w

CHARUSHIN, EVGENII IVANOVICH. Baby bears; a true story; tr. from the Russian by Marguerita Rudolph; il. by George Korff. [40p] $1 Macmillan

Bears—Legends and stories 44-4850

"True story told by a Russian naturalist of two bear cubs a hunter took home for his wife to bring up. As the cubs grow, their mischievous escapades result in an amusing tale for young children." Library J

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p11 Jl 30 '44 180w
Booklist 40:359 Je 15 '44

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 27 '44 100w

"A charming story, beautifully written. Excellent for reading aloud as well as for first graders."
+ Kirkus 12:143 Mr 15 '44 210w

Reviewed by Olive Brain
+ Library J 69:504 Je 1 '44 50w

"'Baby Bears' is an endearing picture book with a genuine feeling for animals and an authentic flavor of the north Russian country from which it comes." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p21 My 21 '44 170w

"Will amuse even very little children."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:39 My 13 '44 50w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p5 My 7 '44 200w
Wis Lib Bul 40:132 O '44

CHASE, ALLAN. Five arrows. 308p $2.50 Random house
44-8152

Adventure story of Falange and international intrigue in a South American country. The hero, an American newspaper man, had learned the dangers of fascism with the Loyalist armies in Spain, and so was able to play his part against Nazi agents and other antidemocratic villains.

"Looked at as sheer fiction, 'The Five Arrows' is an exciting, fast-moving thriller, differing from the usual adventure story only in that it is beautifully written. The characters live and breathe and make love and talk as people talk. But to dismiss this as merely a story of intrigue, danger and lusty adventure would be unjust to the intentions of the author. 'The Five Arrows' (symbol of the Falange) tells the story of the fight against Fascism in Latin America. It shows convincingly how the Latin-American countries are in danger of being dominated by Hitler and Franco, and although the book is fiction it gives an accurate picture of the forces that are today locked in combat in many Latin-American countries. In short, Allan Chase does in a novel what Ray Josephs did factually in his magnificent 'Argentine Diary.'" Quentin Reynolds
+ Book Week p3 O 8 '44 650w
Kirkus 12:347 Ag 15 '44 110w

"This novel is undoubtedly based on authentic material disclosed in author's previous book [Falange, Book Review Digest, 1943]. Many Spanish words and phrases may be confusing for some. Frank language and one offensive scene may disturb other readers. Slight love interest. Will appeal primarily to men. Recommended." E. F. Kelly
+ — Library J 69:698 S 1 '44 90w

"The various characters display a common tendency to act and talk like South Chicago gangsters in a comic strip, whatever their background, so that the general effect is of a de-animated Dick Tracy South of the Border. For all that, one corner of our mind remains nagged to a suitable uneasiness and vigilance." T. P.
— + N Y Times p20 O 1 '44 220w

"International intrigue of familiar pattern and heftier cerebration than usual." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p16 S 24 '44 100w

CHASE, HERBERT, ed. Handbook on designing for quantity production. 517p il $5 McGraw

621.81 Machinery—Design 44-2607

"Technical data and practical 'know how' on the design of parts for economical production by the important processes for quantity production such as die casting, sand casting, forging, plastic molding, together with discussions of the factors to be considered in choosing among the various processes." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 40:313 My 15 '44

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:304 Ap 1 '44 60w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:7 Ja '44

CHASE, MARY ELLEN. The Bible and the common reader. 316p il maps $2.50 Macmillan

220.88 Bible as literature. Bible. Whole—Introductions 44-47518

An interpretation of the Scriptures as literature and as history, written for the common reader. The King James version is the basis of the discussion. Partial contents: The King James, or authorized, version of the Bible: its history and value; The Hebrew people: a short sketch of their history in so-called biblical times; The great leaders of ancient Israel; The folk tale of Samson; The tragedy of Saul; The biography of David; The great prophets of Israel; The fiction of the Bible; Two anthologies of biblical poetry; An introduction to the New Testament; St. Luke: his gospel; The letters of St. Paul; The vision on Patmos.

"Mary Ellen Chase has written with simplicity and charm and humor and scholarship for the average reader." Sterling North

+ Book Week p2 D 17 '44 500w

Booklist 41:133 Ja 1 '45

"Miss Chase reveals clearly and refreshingly, as no one has ever done, the profound depths of human interest and the glorious literature of the Bible. As its title suggests, she wrote it, not for the theologian or the scholar, but for the general reader. A delightful adventure in literature."

+ Boston Globe p30 N 29 '44 60w

Reviewed by J. F. Davidson

Canadian Forum 24:264 F '45 450w

"Though Miss Chase's treatment is simple, it is not infantile. She makes no cheap appeal to the indifferent and does not write down to the level of the semi-literate. Presupposing that any prospective reader of a book about the Bible has some interest in the subject, even though not an academic or professional interest, she puts her material in a form which makes it intelligible to the average undergraduate with little or no previous acquaintance with the subject. That should bring it within reach of the average layman or non-church person who is enough interested in the Bible to want information about it."

+ Christian Century 62:112 Ja 24 '45 300w

"'The Bible and the Common Reader' is vividly and charmingly written, and deserves to be widely read." T. L. L.

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 N 24 '44 450w

"Only one steeped in a knowledge of the Bible from childhood, and later conditioned by a love of literature and an appreciation of the higher values of life could have given us such a book as this. And only one of rare literary ability could make even such choice material so come alive to the reader."

+ Kirkus 12:501 N 1 '44 300w

"Mary Ellen Chase has written [a] delightful volume about the great collections of Hebrew poetry and prose which make up the Old and the New Testament. Her point of view is not that of Orthodox Christians... In her book Miss Chase reminds us eloquently of the debt Western civilization owes to this heritage from the Hebrews. Her beautiful and whole-hearted acknowledgment of this debt is certainly needed now, when the supreme value of the Jewish element in our spiritual history, and even in our largely secularized civilization of today, has been minimized or even rejected by spokesmen of a new barbarism. Miss Chase is gloriously right... The gems of sacred poetry and splendid phrases which Miss Chase offers so lavishly in the pages of her book should send her readers back to the volume from which she quotes. And this, I believe, is what she meant to achieve with her fine labor of love." Sigrid Undset

+ N Y Times p1 D 24 '44 1500w

"My own peculiar delight in this study came from the evident freshness of the author's experience as a reader of the Bible, a freshness that communicated itself in a sort of contagious exuberance... There are few persons (except perhaps the rigidly orthodox) to whom in these troubled and chaotic times the spiritual adventure of sharing Miss Chase's enthusiasm for and delight in the Bible would not be a comfort and a joy." W. M. Evans

+ Sat R of Lit 28:14 Ja 13 '45 700w

"Miss Chase's account of the King James version, its origins and completion, is a good story in itself. Even more striking is her recapitulation of its wide and deep impact upon English literature and thought. Its enriching mark is upon most of the best writers in our language." Marshall Bragdon

+ Springf'd Republican p6 D 23 '44 550w

"As the title implies, the present volume is not intended for the specialist or scholar in Biblical history, though Miss Chase has followed sound sources in her historical sections. No apology is necessary for a volume intended for the 'common reader'; even the great King James version was so designed. My one question about the scope of Miss Chase's book is whether it really is for the general reader, or whether Miss Chase has not—like so many academic writers—attempted to combine a 'popular' book with a textbook for 'secondary reading' in colleges. The general reader may find some of the historical material difficult, though Miss Chase has made those sections as interesting as possible." Marjorie Nicolson

+ — Weekly Book Review p2 D 17 '44 700w

CHASE, VIRGINIA. American house. 246p il $2.75 Duell

44-40012

Back in 1907 a Maine doctor with a penchant for unfortunate investments found himself with the town hotel on his hands. All his money was invested in the hotel, so there was nothing for it but to move his ladylike wife and three young daughters into the ugly building and try to make a living out of it. The story of their struggle is told by the youngest daughter.

Booklist 40:213 F 15 '44

"The style is unaffected but misses none of the desired points. Sincerity and humor in the writing, aided by the pertinent drawings of Janet Nelson, make the book a bright and charming mirror of a more simple life." W. K. R.

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 F 8 '44 430w

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '44

"Nice job."

+ Kirkus 12:1 Ja 1 '44 100w

"An engaging and amusing story specializing in odd tidbits of Americana dated 1909. . . The book has numerous line drawings, amusingly in the spirit of the time. It is a robust, homely story of not so long ago." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p10 F 6 '44 400w

"No plot to speak of, but those who delight in the I-remember-I-remember pastime will find satisfaction in this amusingly written narrative of a safe and simple period."

+ New Yorker 19:77 Ja 29 '44 110w

"It is a pleasant, entertaining and amusing book, containing acute observation." Diana Forbes-Robertson

+ Weekly Book Review p2 Ja 23 '44 380w

CHELLIS, ROBERT DUNNING. Pile-driving handbook; theory, design, practice of pile foundations. 276p il $4.50 Pitman

624.154 Piles and pile driving. Foundations 44-4079

"First modern American book on the subject. Complete extensive data vital to civil and construction engineers, pile driving operators and architects." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 40:372 Jl 1 '44

"The book is an unusually useful tool for anyone concerned with foundation work." H. W. H.

+ Eng N 132:111 Je 15 '44 440w

Library J 69:118 F 1 '44 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:30 Ap '44

CH'EN, CHIN-HSIN (YAO), and CH'EN, SHIH-HSIANG. Flower drum, and other Chinese songs; foreword by Pearl S. Buck; pref. by Henry Cowell. 64p il $2.50; pa $1.60 Day

784.4 Songs, Chinese 44-40021

Collection of Chinese folk songs, ancient and modern, with words in English and Chinese, and with musical accompaniment. The compilers are a young Chinese couple, now in America. They have attempted to preserve the original oriental feeling in words and music. Guide to pronunciation; list of references.

"If one lacks a piano or the ability to read music, the text and the poems of 'The Flower Drum' alone are well worth the price of the book. A little time with these indomitable lines will do more than many hours spent in reading speeches or commentaries toward equipping Americans to understand the depth and nature of the Chinese people and the probable strength of the currents underlying their present renaissance." Katherine Sanders
+ Book Week p9 Ja 23 '44 230w

Booklist 40:208 F 15 '44

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 23 '44 60w

"The tunes and rhythms are fascinating and the task could not have been an easy one. Henry Cowell writes in the preface that it is the best introduction to the style and charm of Chinese folk music for Western people. Though published as an adult book it is valuable for experimental use with children. One boy eleven years old has been working out the Flower Drum Song rhythms with enthusiasm and success." Maria Cimino
+ Sat R of Lit 27:26 Ag 19 '44 110w

Weekly Book Review p11 Mr 5 '44 210w

CHERNE, LEO M. The rest of your life. 298p $2.75 Doubleday

917.3 U.S.—Civilization. U.S.—Economic conditions. U.S.—Social conditions 44-5464

"In presenting some features of the postwar world Cherne warns us that most domestic and international problems will still be sitting on our doorstep and that there will be a 'growing gap between attitude and action.' The psychological reaction of the returned soldier, the spectre of unemployment, disposition of government surpluses and productive capacity, the fate of the middle class, small business and organized labor, the prospects for housing and slum clearance and the outlook for more comfortable living—all these are problems and possibilities, but little of the glowing picture painted by industry will be seen in our time." Library J

"Dealing largely with what has been called the dismal science of economics, the book is lightly written; and one can imagine an Oxford don searching vainly in a dictionary for the meaning of the following phrases: 'Small business will really need the hay. . . . The chap with the biggest bank roll will continue to get the gravy.' But for all its breezy American slang this is a hardheaded analysis of the American that is shaping up, and its predictions will probably wear well." W. H. Chamberlin
+ Atlantic 174:133 Ag '44 480w

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Book Week p4 Jl 2 '44 600w

Booklist 40:388 Jl 15 '44

Reviewed by L. M. Lyons
Boston Globe p15 Je 21 '44 410w

"Representing a realistic, practical point of view, [the author] deals with tangibles rather than theories, puts a damper on the unlimited-abundance-for-all (Stuart Chase etc.) prophets in outlining the probabilities, rather than the possibilities. . . Sensible, cautionary preview of the world ahead."
+ Kirkus 12:189 Ap 15 '44 190w

"Recommended as a contribution toward a saner view of postwar." Walter Hausdorfer
+ Library J 69:501 Je 1 '44 110w

Management R 33:38 Ja '45 50w

"Leo Cherne is one of the more able practitioners of the art of economic prophecy. In this volume of easy predictions he reveals a hard-boiled sense of reality which is quite refreshing in this age of expansive postwar plans." B. B. Seligman
New Repub 111:53 Jl 10 '44 700w

"It's an after-the-war book which outlines many rosy possibilities—and, with them, probabilities which have a definitely gloomy cast." C. C. Furnas
N Y Times p5 Je 4 '44 900w

Reviewed by Beardsley Ruml
Sat R of Lit 27:10 Je 24 '44 1050w

"Mr. Leo Cherne, executive secretary of the Research Institute of America . . . draws on a wealth of material, psychological, historical and economic, to project the curves of American experience into the future and, although he does not surrender to mechanistic despair, his picture is a sobering one. . . The value of such a work as this is incontestable. In warning of the dangers ahead, of the specific tasks which must be accomplished and of the frame of mind which would make their accomplishment impossible, Mr. Cherne has done an excellent job." Harry Baehr
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Je 4 '44 800w

CHEYNEY, PETER. Dark street. 222p $2 Dodd 44-8802

Spies and counter-spies, with Peter Quayle, British intelligence agent directing the action, which takes place first in France, then in England.

"Carpers may feel that the success of these people has gone to their heads, that they are a little too much under their own spell in this latest episode. It is one thing to realize a man is good; it is another thing for him to tell you so himself. Under the circumstances all you can do is take it—because you certainly won't want to miss it." Elizabeth Bullock
+ — Book Week p13 O 29 '44 200w

"Best of the week."
+ Boston Globe p15 O 25 '44 60w

"The story is told by the hop, skip and jump method, thus enabling the reader to see something of both sides of the picture. To enjoy it to the full one must be hard-boiled enough to take pleasure in seeing enemy spies get their come-uppance without due process of law." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p20 O 22 '44 120w

New Yorker 20:100 O 21 '44 90w

"Tops—for thrill-seekers."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:46 O 14 '44 50w

"'Should anyone lack the proper feelings of respect and gratitude towards the Secret Service which are warranted by disclosures in the news, that misguided person should read Mr. Cheyney's account of 'Mr. Quayle's' activities and yield himself to its uncommonly convincing, confidently disarming style."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p633 D 30 '44 180w

"Mr. Cheyney's jerky narrative method will probably please more spy fans than it will annoy." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p20 O 15 '44 70w

CHEYNEY, PETER. You can't keep the change. 243p $2 Dodd 44-5201

Detective story.

"One of the nice things about Peter Cheyney is that he never lets you down. As the publishers say, this one is 'vintage Cheyney.'" Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p8 Ja 23 '44 140w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 Ja 30 '44 120w

"A trifle disappointing after Mr. Cheyney's 'The Stars Are Dark.'"
New Yorker 19:80 Ja 29 '44 70w

"Pretty dreary."
— Sat R of Lit 27:10 Ja 22 '44 40w

CHIANG, YEE. Chin-pao and the giant pandas. 82p il $2.25 Transatlantic [7s 6d Country life]

[42-20798]

Chin-pao, a little Chinese who wandered away from his grandfather's house in Szechuan Province, was discovered and adopted by a family of pandas. Chin-pao was quite happy, especially when he discovered that he could talk with the pandas. Eventually the pandas were captured and sent to a Zoo, and Chin-pao was restored to his home.

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p6 Mr 27 '44 90w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:101 Mr '44 70w

"Chin-Pao's conversations with the pandas, particularly on the subject of Confucius (the chief topic on which they disagree), have a quaint charm. Although the English is not always idiomatic, the writing is fresh and good, and the color plates in the manner of old Chinese prints are wholly lovely."
+ — New Yorker 20:56 Jl 8 '44 90w

"This is a truly lovable book. . . There is just enough of the fairy tale quality to make it possible for the pandas to talk—at least to find a way of passing on their wisdom; the story has the intimacy of 'Snow White' and the personal appeal of these always delightful animals." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ja 9 '44 230w

CHIDLEY, HOWARD JAMES. God and these times. 128p $1.50 Revell

252 Sermons 44-3765

Fifteen sermons by the minister of the First Congregational church, Winchester, Massachusetts.

Christian Century 61:277 Mr 1 '44 20w

"Readers who are familiar with other writings by Dr. Chidley, of Winchester, Massachusetts, will expect the sermons which comprise this book to be rich in illustrative material; they will not be disappointed. The illumining of discourses with incident and insight drawn from life and literature is an art of which this author is a master." H. L. Bowman
+ J Religion 24:296 O '44 170w

CHILDERNESS, GEORGE. Too many murderers. 256p $2 Phoenix

44-5019

Detective story.

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p14 Je 4 '44 70w

"Fans who like fun with their slaughter are advised to sample this carefree yarn." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p17 Je 4 '44 50w

CHILDS, JOHN FARNSWORTH. Navy gun crew; il. by Nils Hogner. 111p $1.50 Crowell

940.545 Merchant marine—U.S. World war, 1939—Naval operations 43-14549

Account of the navy gunners who go on board the merchant ships in an Atlantic convoy. It describes in detail the routine and functioning of the crew from the time the men go aboard until the convoy reaches port. For grades six to nine.

Booklist 40:237 Mr 1 '44
Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '43

"Will be especially useful with boys seeking information about different branches of war service." A. M. Wetherell
+ Library J 68:672 S 1 '43 90w

CHILDS, MARQUIS WILLIAM. The cabin. 243p $2.50 Harper

44-4915

Understanding story of one summer in the life of a sensitive thirteen-year-old boy. It was a summer spent in a cabin on a Middlewestern farm, with his grandfather, grandmother, two younger boy cousins, and his Aunt Stella. Rob was his Aunt Stella's favorite, and he was fond of her, but even he did not know how ill she was until the day when she turned to him for help. With the death of Aunt Stella the book closes.

" 'The Cabin' is a magnificent study of the adolescent mind against a background of Iowa corn fields. It is lyrical without being soft, ugly in places without being perverse or sadistic. It is as real as a red barn or a white farmhouse or a cement-stave silo; as real as the gossip the lonely farm wife overhears on a party line." Sterling North
+ Book Week p2 My 28 '44 230w
Booklist 40:377 Jl 1 '44
Boston Globe p15 Je 21 '44 190w

"As a study in adolescence, this is a perceptive, living portrait. It has a nostalgic quality—human touches—an appreciation of the curative values of nature that compensate for its limitations as a novel."
+ — Kirkus 12:124 Mr 15 '44 200w

"Easy style. Good characterization. Recommended."
+ Library J 69:460 My 15 '44 30w

"What one most admires in Mr. Child's writing is sweetness without sentimentality; the end-product is a kind of Christian goodness, rare in fiction, which commands respect. Marquis Childs, as everyone knows, is deeply interested in the social and political problems of our life; he has written, besides an earlier novel, a number of important books which express this interest. His own broad and humane intelligence is reflected everywhere in his novel." Ruth Page
+ N Y Times p4 Je 11 '44 550w

"Clearly and pleasant written."
+ New Yorker 20:82 My 27 '44 80w

"Mr Childs' unusual capability in writing of rural scenes is one which would be difficult to equal. He writes with a clever touch of humor and a deep insight into human nature with all its frailties and greatness. It is seldom that so refreshing a story is offered." H. J. Sloan
+ Springf'd Republican p4d My 28 '44 270w

"In a novel which is slight in plot but deeply understanding, Mr. Childs depicts this period of troubled isolation with unfailing discernment. . . 'The Cabin' does not parade its psychology, that not being the novelist's function or intent, but Mr. Childs's story is all the richer for having a message." George Conrad
+ Weekly Book Review p6 My 28 '44 350w
Wis Lib Bul 40:110 Jl '44

CHINA. MINISTRY OF INFORMATION. China handbook, 1937-1943; a comprehensive survey of major developments in China in six years of war. 876p $5 Macmillan

915.1 China

"Was first printed in India last July and the first copies reached Chungking for the observance of the sixth anniversary of China's stubborn war against the Japanese aggression. Under 'General Information' are such factors as topography, climate, the dates of the Chinese dynasties, the principal religions, language and the Chinese people overseas. Important chapters deal with the Kuomintang or regeneration of China movement, which was founded by Sun Yat-sen; the structure of the Chinese government; resources, means of communication, courts and prisons, education and research, industry and labor, agriculture, and money and finance; foreign trade, military affairs and foreign relations; foreign missions; the war with Japan and relief activities. There are directories of Chinese associations and societies and of the Chinese national and provincial governments. Finally, a Chinese Who's Who." Commonweal

Am Pol Sci R 38:403 Ap '44 240w
Booklist 40:196 F 1 '44

"There is nothing slipshod about any feature of the book. Its facts seem well checked and it shows a professional mark which was conspicuously absent from an earlier Chinese effort to compete with Mr. Woodhead. Particularly at the present time, when there are many books on China but almost all are relatively ephemeral in nature, however interesting at this moment, it is indeed a notable contribution which has been made by Dr. Tong and his associates." R. G.

CHINA. MINISTRY OF INFORMATION—Cont.
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 21 '44 750w

"This invaluable 900-page compendium of factual information should find a place in many libraries."
+ Commonweal 39:428 F 11 '44 170w
Current Hist 6:261 Mr '44 50w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:502 Ap '44 10w

Reviewed by Ralph Bates
New Repub 110:474 Ap 3 '44 650w

"Though primarily a reference book that no library can afford to be without, it contains enough general information to be interesting to the ordinary reader."
+ New Yorker 19:79 Ja 29 '44 50w

"This China Handbook has the merits and demerits of an official publication. A vast amount of material which would not be available to an unofficial editor is included. On the other hand, the propaganda aspects of the volume are sometimes carried to what appear to be unreasonable extremes." H. G. W. Woodhead
+ — Pacific Affairs 17:227 Je '44 650w
Scientific Bk Club R 15:4 Mr '44 120w

CHOATE, FLORENCE, and CURTIS, ELIZABETH. Five golden sovereigns; a story of Thomas Jefferson's time; il. by the authors. 207p $2 Stokes
43-13833

Tidewater Virginia, in the days when Thomas Jefferson was just turning thirty, is the scene of this book for older girls. It is the story of young Anne Farnsworth, whose struggle to keep out of escapades is bound up with her first gold sovereigns, which she spent in the cause of liberty.

"Most of this fine story appeared serially on the page For Young People last summer, and readers will enjoy it in its complete form." F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Mr 9 '44 130w

"Recommended." Margaret Miller
+ Library J 68:894 N 1 '43 110w
Wis Lib Bul 40:87 Je '44

CHOU, KENG-SHENG. Winning the peace in the Pacific; a Chinese view of Far Eastern postwar plans and requirements for a stable security system in the Pacific area; with a foreword by Hu Shih. 98p $1.50 Inst. of Pacific relations

940.531445 Reconstruction (1939-)—East (Far East). China—Foreign relations. Eastern question (Far East) 43-17695

"The problems of postwar planning in the Pacific, discussed by an eminent Chinese scholar. Professor Chow puts forward a general program rather than a hard-and-fast blueprint, based on the idea that there should be a regional organization, controlling the Pacific area, composed of all members of the United Nations whose interests are involved and ultimately including Japan. Such an organization, the author thinks, should be formed as soon as the war ends and, if a world organization later comes into being, subordinate itself to it." (New Yorker) Index.

Reviewed by H. F. MacNair
Ann Am Acad 233:224 My '44 410w

"Any one interested in knowing what some of the Chinese intellectuals think of the fundamentals of Asian problems should not miss this small book. It is written with frankness and lucidity." Sudhindra Bose
+ Book Week p2 Ja 23 '44 350w

Booklist 40:180 Ja 15 '44

"There's a wealth of suggestions, not all practical, but useful as a basis for consideration."
Current Hist 6:165 F '44 70w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:666 Jl '44 30w

"A modest and level-headed program which, to many people, will make a great deal of sense."
+ New Yorker 19:67 Ja 8 '44 110w

Reviewed by G. E. Hubbard
Pacific Affairs 17:246 Je '44 550w

"Professor Chow, whose field is international relations and law, writes succinctly and clearly. His propositions are compactly stated. . . It should be said that a case for an international body of any sort for the East has never been satisfactorily made. With exception for this point Professor Chow's book may be called a vigorous though short presentation of a difficult problem." Nathaniel Peffer
+ — Pol Sci Q 59:288 Je '44 300w

CHOW, S. R. See Chou, K.

CHRISTIE, AGATHA (MILLER) (MRS M. E. L. MALLOWAN). Death comes as the end. 223p $2 Dodd 44-8803

Mystery story, the scene of which is Egypt three thousand years ago. Index.

"Drab."
Boston Globe p15 O 25 '44 40w

"Besides giving us a mystery story quite up to her own high standard, Agatha Christie has succeeded admirably in picturing the people of ancient Egypt as living persons and not as resurrected mummies." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p20 O 22 '44 160w

"I did not guess who the murderer was, I was incited to keep on and find out, and when I did finally find out, I was surprised. Yet I did not care for Agatha Christie. . . Her writing is of a mawkishness and banality which seem to me literally impossible to read. You cannot read such a book, you run through it to see the problem worked out; and you cannot become interested in the characters because they never can be allowed an existence of their own even in a flat two dimensions but have always to be contrived so that they can seem either reliable or sinister, depending on which quarter, at the moment, is to be baited for the reader's suspicion." Edmund Wilson
— New Yorker 20:81 O 14 '44 500w

"For the loyal Christie legion."
Sat R of Lit 27:46 O 14 '44 40w

"Mrs. Christie, wife of an archeologist, knows whereof she speaks when it comes to ancient lore, so you needn't feel that Egyptology has taken a beating. It's an amusing lark and a decided novelty—startling in all directions." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p20 O 15 '44 200w

CHRISTIE, AGATHA (MILLER) (MRS M. E. L. MALLOWAN). Towards zero. 242p $2 Dodd [7s 6d Collins] 44-4960

Detective story.

Booklist 40:378 Jl 1 '44
Bookmark 5:20 My '44

"In the welter of whodunits that concentrate on catching the killer, it is good to see motive get its just deserts."
+ New Repub 110:858 Je 26 '44 70w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 28:93 Ag 5 '44 360w

"Agatha Christie has surpassed herself—and without the aid of Hercule Poirot." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p12 Je 11 '44 120w

"The solution, by Superintendent Battle, is fine, but you may be left with the feeling that orthodox readers, who insist on a corpse early in the game, have something on their side after all."
+ — New Yorker 20:79 Je 10 '44 130w

Sat R of Lit 27:78 Ap 15 '44 30w

"Worked out with characteristic Christie finesse, but plot develops very leisurely and dramatic pay-off doesn't make up for earlier chapters. Poirot, come home!"
Sat R of Lit 27:52 Je 17 '44 40w

"There is no 'star' sleuth, though Hercule Poirot, while he does not appear, provides a useful inspiration. The murderer is a homicidal maniac: a crime against the convention surely? But an even more serious flaw is the distortion of character manipulated to meet the needs of this moment or that. Mrs. Christie is so gifted that one feels peevish with her for not being an even better writer than she proves to be." John Hampson
— + Spec 173:88 Jl 28 '44 150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p853 Jl 22 '44 180w

"Mrs. Christie provides quantities of domestic and other sentiment in pre-war England and snaps into an agreeable finish with some of her famous turnovers." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p15 Je 11 '44 110w

CHURCH, AUSTIN H. Centrifugal pumps and blowers. 308p il $4.50 Wiley

621.6 Centrifugal pumps. Blowing engines 44-6293

"Designed primarily for practicing engineers, but suitable also for advanced engineering students. Theories, principles of design and applications are discussed. There are footnote references to pertinent literature. The author is Associate Professor of Machine Design at New York University." N Y New Tech Bks

Library J 69:462 My 15 '44 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:48 Jl '44

CHURCH, EARL FRANK. Elements of aerial photogrammetry. 95p il $2 Syracuse univ, Syracuse, N.Y.

526.91 Photographic surveying. Photography, Aerial. Cartography 44-2774

"A textbook for a first semester's course. Part 1 treats of fundamentals, particularly the geometric principles of vertical and tilted photographs, and gives the solutions of fifteen practical problems. Part 2, devoted to mapping methods, includes the construction of planimetric maps from high obliques, the making of mosaics, the use of the multiplex-projector for photographic maps and the trimetrogon methods for reconnaissance maps." N Y New Tech Bks

"The book was prepared primarily as a text for a first semester course at Syracuse University where the author is a professor of photogrammetry. For a book of such few pages the author should be congratulated in being able to include such a variety of important items. The book should prove useful as an introductory text to the subject. If Prof. Church ever decides to expand this material into a larger volume, he has an excellent base on which to build." R. E. Ask
+ Eng N 132:111 Je 15 '44 300w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:29 Ap '44

CHURCH, GRANVILLE, pseud. See People, G. C.

CHURCHILL, RUEL VANCE. Modern operational mathematics in engineering. 306p $3.50 McGraw

517 Laplace transformation. Differential equations. Calculus, Operational 44-5612

"A college text dealing with the use of the Laplace transformation in the solution of engineering and physics problems involving partial differential equations. A bibliography, and tables are given in the appendix. This volume supplements the author's Fourier Series and Boundary Value Problems [Book Review Digest, 1941]." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:652 Ag '44 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:27 Ap '44

CHURCHILL, WINSTON LEONARD SPENCER. Onwards to victory; war speeches; comp. by Charles Eade. 357p $3.50 Little

940.5342 World war, 1939—Great Britain 44-6082

Fourth volume of Prime minister Churchill's speeches, which cover the year 1943, opening with the Casablanca conference and ending with the conference at Teheran.

Booklist 41:15 S '44

Current Hist 7:227 S '44 80w

Foreign Affairs 23:14 O '44 10w

"Many of the speeches and papers and messages herein were not previously available to the American public. They form an important part of contemporary historical records —from one of the world's great leaders. Calendars of events, notes, etc. add to their interest."
+ Kirkus 12:224 My 15 '44 110w

Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 5 '44 110w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn
N Y Times p4 Jl 23 '44 950w

"All Mr. Churchill's admirers will want to own the book, of course, and for those who are building up a library about the war, it is practically indispensable."
+ New Yorker 20:71 Jl 15 '44 100w

"It is to some of the lesser speeches that Mr. Churchill's admirers will turn with greatest pleasure. The short address on the renewal of the ancient alliance with Portugal reveals the romantically minded historian (though a historian who can err, perhaps diplomatically as well as romantically). . . But the most delightful is the speech proposing the remission to a Select Committee of the question of rebuilding The House of Commons."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p313 Jl 1 '44 1250w

"Many pages of this volume are occupied only with messages, greetings, fragmentary answers to questions in Parliament and other incidentals. Some of these are of historic interest; some reflect the unfailing tartness of wit or the depth of the Churchillian emotion for freedom, decency and the British tradition; many are the mere formalities of statecraft. In the result this volume lacks something of the impact of its predecessors. But it contains some of Mr. Churchill's most charming and most characteristic bits—like the speech on the rebuilding of the House of Commons." Walter Millis
+ Weekly Book Review p3 Jl 16 '44 1100w

CHUTE, B. J. Shift to the right; a collection of sport stories; decorations by John C. Wonsetler. 231p $2 Macmillan 44-6030

Eleven short stories about popular sports: baseball; football; basket ball; rowing; skiing; etc. For ages ten to fourteen.

N Y Times p8 N 12 '44 40w

"In spite of the prejudice that many boys and girls have against short stories they are going to like these. . . The boys who take part in them are natural, likable, and humorous. . . Girls like sport stories almost as well as boys do. This should have wide reading." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 27:32 O 21 '44 180w

"Here is an uncommonly readable volume." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 O 1 '44 280w

Wis Lib Bul 40:162 D '44

CIANFARRA, CAMILLE MAXIMILIAN. Vatican and the war. 344p $3 Dutton

940.531522 World war, 1939—Roman Catholic church. Pius XII, pope 44-860

The author was for seven years a New York Times correspondent in Rome. Upon his return to New York in 1942 he was met most frequently with the question: Is the Vatican for or against the United Nations? or is it "sitting on the fence?" This book is an attempt to answer this question.

"Mr. Cianfarra's book is written frankly and openly as a justification of the policy of the Vatican. But this does in no way diminish the value of the book. It is much less concerned with ideology than with diplomacy. The Vatican appears above all as a political power. Even the critical reader who may interpret the many events and utterances differently from Mr. Cianfarra's will read the book with pleasure, for it is well written and colorful, and with profit, for it contains many first-hand observations." Hans Kohn

+ — Am Pol Sci R 38:1020 O '44 550w

Reviewed by S. W. Halperin

Ann Am Acad 235:135 S '44 500w

Booklist 40:266 Ap 1 '44

"He is plain-spoken and there is much contemporary history here that would not be found in the columns of Osservatore Romano, but it is not Mr. Cianfarra's intent to be sensational. He is earnest, honest and in sympathy with the Vatican viewpoint. . . 'The Vatican and the War' ranks with the soundest books to come from a foreign correspondent. Since the Pope will be a factor in the making of any peace, Mr. Cianfarra's report should be widely read." R. M.

+ Boston Globe p15 Mr 29 '44 250w

"The book named above is informative, objective, and generally satisfactory; in fact, were superlatives not so badly overworked, they might well be used to describe this popular discussion of the Vatican's attitude during the present war." Joseph McSorley

+ Cath World 159:86 Ap '44 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '44

Reviewed by William Agar

Commonweal 39:571 Mr 24 '44 500w

Reviewed by C. H. Moehlman

Crozer Q 21:360 O '44 900w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:664 Jl '44 30w

Kirkus 12:92 F 15 '44 160w

Reviewed by G. E. Brown

Library J 69:158 F 15 '44 110w

Library J 69:645 Ag '44 40w

Reviewed by Nicola Chiaromonte

New Repub 110:610 My 1 '44 600w

"Camille Cianfarra is admirably equipped not only to trace the policy of Popes Pius XI and XII during the critical years before and during the war, but he is able to intertwine this with the activities of Mussolini's fascist party, so that the reader is given a realistic view of just what faced the heads of the Church. Cianfarra does not tell his story exclusively from either viewpoint, but blends the two in such a way that the reader sees things pretty much as the average Italian Catholic did. Cianfarra's own Italian background and his familiarity with the language thus combine with the fact that he was born and raised in this country to give us, in this difficult matter, an insight which is Roman and an understanding which is American." Thomas Sugrue

+ N Y Times p4 F 27 '44 1050w

"The author is himself a Catholic and his study is hardly critical, but it is of interest as providing a full survey of the subject and for the first-hand impressions of the writer."

New Yorker 20:95 Mr 11 '44 160w

"The author admits that it is 'far from being the work of an expert,' adding that 'it is only the chronicling of a reporter's experiences.' He cannot be accused of undue modesty, for his book adds little or nothing of value to our knowledge of Vatican affairs. Seven years of service as New York Times correspondent in Rome, with what were undoubtedly excellent Vatican contacts, might well have brought forth something more substantial." C. G. Haines

Pol Sci Q 59:469 S '44 750w

Springf'd Republican p10 F 25 '44 750w

"Mr. Cianfarra's book tells the story of Vatican diplomacy and of Italian politics during the last decade both faithfully and uncritically. Though the reader may often find himself disagreeing with the author's opinions, he will find the book full of many interesting details which make the story of the last crowded ten years even more colorful." Hans Kohn

+ — Survey G 33:363 Ag '44 320w

"Mr. Cianfarra obviously loved his job and Italy just as ardently as he detested Fascism. He has written a book which mirrors this affection and this distaste, and which is sometimes almost poignant in its reminiscence. It is not the most brilliant treatise on the subject of Vatican policy, but few others are either so interesting or so decently friendly. The reader will find little of controversy and nothing of polemic, but instead a good newspaper man's record of a stirring and tragic time." G. N. Shuster

+ Weekly Book Review p9 Mr 5 '44 1250w

Wis Lib Bul 40:53 Ap '44

CLANCEY, VERNON JAMES ST CLARE. Chemistry and the aeroplane. 176p il $2.25 Ronald [5s Nelson]

629.1342 Chemistry. Airplanes—Materials 43-13760

"A brief survey of a few fields of chemistry having application among other things to flight. These are mainly petroleum chemistry, metallurgy, plastics, energy and the gas laws." Book Week

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter

Book Week p10 O 10 '43 30w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 69:304 Ap 1 '44 40w

"The book can be read with profit by persons interested either in chemistry or aviation. Either one will get a better idea of the relation of his work to the others." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p30 O 31 '43 150w

CLAPP, FREDERICK MORTIMER. Against a background on fire, 1938-1943 [poems]. 154p $2.50 Harper

811 43-16880

"In one poem, Conversion, [the author] urges man to 'strike the death-releasing blow that makes life life before, like beasts, we die,' but there are no poems about man doing anything of the sort, and the poet's favorite themes are seen in titles such as, Derelict Bridge, Deserted Nebraska Farm, Memory's Purgatory or Moldy Bread." Weekly Book Review

"Mr. Clapp has an imagery of considerable energy, though curiously lacking in personal or human reference. He writes frequently about deserts, canyons, rocks, grit, rust, flint, and somehow such images suit his particular tension and pulse, though the effect on the reader is one of strain. He does not really justify the book's title—that is, it isn't a book about today's world; he simply releases his own kind of energy, and too often the result is rich prose or thin poetry. The reader can't dodge Mr. Clapp's sound effects, or forget them." John Holmes

Poetry 64:343 S '44 180w

"Sometimes Mr. Clapp uses words or expressions that are pretty well-worn, but in the main his observation is fresh, his commentary his own. He furnishes much food for civilized thought." W. R. Benét

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:23 D 4 '43 100w

"These themes are treated with an always careful and interesting, and sometimes powerful use of words and images, but Mr. Clapp has not the dramatic vigor and flamboyant energy which relieves Jeffers' deterministic depression, and his monotonous negativism weights the poetry so heavily that it cannot use its wings." Elizabeth Drew

— + Weekly Book Review p8 F 20 '44 400w

CLAPPER, RAYMOND. Watching the world. (Whittlesey house publication) 372p il $3 McGraw

973.917 U.S.—Politics and government—20th century. World war, 1939—U.S. 44-5860

Collection of Raymond Clapper's columns, reflecting the opinions of this fair-minded commentator from the Middle West. They are arranged by topic: journalism, democracy, President Roosevelt, the New Deal, the Republican party, Congress, labor, taxes, the war, etc. Includes a biographical sketch by Mrs Clapper and an introduction by Ernie Pyle.

"If [Raymond Clapper] seems like the 'average' man, it is because he had many of the limitations of the average man; but he had a stock of passions and interests and talents that were far from average, and it is to these that we must look for an explanation of the consistent interest and power of his writings. These appear clearly in this book, and make it a fine, running, brusque, choppy history of our times, short-range in viewpoint, universal in sympathy." Samuel Grafton
+ Book Week p5 Ag 6 '44 600w
Booklist 41:15 S '44

"Sound thinking above all else was the key to Clapper's success. The man's limitless capacity for work, his unswerving loyalty to journalism, his indefatigable will for taking pains, his great love and whole-souled devotion to democracy, and his rock-firm integrity, all these shine through the pages of this book. But it is the sound thinking within those pages —the down-to-earth logic and vitality of his thoughts—that makes such eloquent claim to serious attention. No reader, whatever his political, economic and social beliefs may be, can contemplate these pages and emerge without some heightening of intellectual stature." L. L. Marchand
+ Boston Globe p15 Jl 19 '44 360w
Cath World 160:94 O '44 180w

"For a study of the curve of the best sort of American daily journalism during the past ten years, there is probably no better textbook available. The biographical sketch with which Mrs. Clapper introduces this volume is distinguished writing in its own right."
+ Christian Century 61:903 Ag 2 '44 150w
Christian Science Monitor p12 N 25 '44 450w

"For an impartial review of the last decade, researchers and interested laymen will find a wealth of material here. Clapper was an informing commentator, a conscientious reporter, an able interpreter of events. He had neither the mind nor the charity of Broun, but he also completely lacked the knot-hold, Spelvinistic viewpoint of Pegler. He was somewhere in between. Perhaps he was nearer, we may be grateful, to Broun." John Brubaker
+ Commonweal 40:330 Jl 21 '44 310w

"A good record of a decade of American opinion, of the controversies, issues, developments."
+ Kirkus 12:226 My 15 '44 150w

"Recommended." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 69:559 Je 15 '44 130w

Reviewed by R. L. Duffus
N Y Times p5 Jl 9 '44 800w

" 'Watching the World' is primarily a splendid memorial to a fine newspaperman who died while he was doing his work, but it also has every reason to become a source document in American democracy. There is no distinguished writing. Clapper frankly wrote for 'the milkman in Omaha,' but he was deep in the mainstream of American life and thought, and what he had to say was his honest opinion, backed up by years of intelligent study and a profound faith in government by the people." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Jl 9 '44 800w

Reviewed by Gertrude Springer
Survey G 33:396 S '44 320w

"I must say I opened 'Watching the World' with misgivings. . . Journalistic comment is usually written for the day. It assumes a current and temporary mood and atmosphere. An article that may strike fire on a given occasion is likely to seem cold and lifeless within a month. But Clapper's book has life and sparkle. When I got into it my misgivings faded. It cannot be set down as a history of the last ten years. It is too fragmentary for that. But for the average reader it makes the decade live again in extraordinary fashion, for Ray Clapper had deep human interest, wholesome common sense and the ability to present problems in informal, everyday language." H. J. Haskell
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Jl 16 '44 1400w

Reviewed by M. W. Childs
Yale R n s 34:153 autumn '44 1050w

CLARK, DALE. Narrow cell. 232p $2 Lippincott 44-20105

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p8 Ap 9 '44 110w

"There are so many persons involved and so many of them have something to conceal that one despairs of ever getting it all straightened out. How Kenmore does it is more than we can tell. Perhaps it is done with mirrors." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p14 Mr 26 '44 100w

"Hit-or-miss puzzle with rather scattered effect, done in California prose." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p15 Mr 26 '44 60w

CLARK, FRED GEORGE, and RIMANOCZY, RICHARD STANTON. How we live; a simple dissection of the economic body; il. by Hans Kreis; graphics by Pick-S. 39p $1 Van Nostrand

330 Economics 44-7906

"Explanation of the functions of the economic body and the relation of its many parts to the whole through understanding of production, exchange, consumption and retention of goods and services. Based on the belief that this knowledge will enable the average person to avoid behavior injurious to economic health." Library J

"Significant book for older boys and girls and adults. Highly recommended." R. O. Bostwick
+ Library J 69:1106 D 15 '44 70w
New Repub 112:61 Ja 8 '45 200w
School & Society 60:304 N 4 '44 50w

CLARK, HARRY HAYDEN, ed. See Paine, T. Representative selections.

CLARK, HENRY WILLIAM. The cross and the eternal order; a study of atonement in its cosmic significance; with a foreword by C. H. Dodd. 319p $2.50 Macmillan [14s Lutterworth press]

232.3 Atonement 44-9144

Scholarly study of the doctrine of the Atonement. The author is an English Congregational minister, now living in Hertfordshire. Index.

Reviewed by W. E. Hammond
Christian Century 61:1417 D 6 '44 900w

"It need not be said that the author is a careful and competent student of Biblical and Patristic theology. More than one factor vital to his theory of the Atonement may be distinguished. In the first place, the absolute and uniquely exclusive Deity of Jesus Christ is uncompromisingly maintained: although the well-known difficulties of the two-natures doctrine are not discussed. . . Lack of space forbids comment on the author's interesting and original interpretation of the Pauline doctrine; but it is strange that no explicit reference is made to the widely-held view that for St Paul the narrative of the Temptation and Fall of Man was literal history, or to the numerous incidental indications in the Acts and Epistles that in his actual preaching Paul started with the Resurrection." S. H. Mellone
+ Hibbert J 42:383 Jl '44 1200w

CLARK, H. W.—Continued

"This is definitely a theological work, which will be of interest chiefly to scholars in this field and to Protestant clergymen who are prepared to follow a vigorous and closely knit theological argument."
+ Kirkus 12:371 Ag 15 '44 70w

"A contribution of outstanding importance not only from the standpoint of philosophy but also from that of theology and evangelism. There is, too, an atmosphere of modesty and devoutness about the book which makes its learning peculiarly attractive. Indeed, we should have no hesitation in declaring that it is one of the best studies of the subject that we have been privileged to read for a long time."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p106 F 26 '44 900w

CLARK, SYDNEY AYLMER. Mexico: magnetic southland. 239p il maps $3 Dodd

917.2 Mexico—Description and travel 44-8937

Guide book to Mexico, containing both practical information on hotels, travel accommodations, what to see and buy, food and money; and a background of Mexican history. Special description and history of Mexico City. No index.

Booklist 41:106 D 1 '44

"Recommended as a recent book about a colorful neighboring country, of value to the traveler, but of passing interest rather than permanent value from the library viewpoint." H. A. Wooster
+ Library J 69:760 S 15 '44 80w

"Travellers to Mexico will be tucking this book under their arms by the hundreds when the post-war tourist boom southward resumes, for it is the first comprehensive guidebook on Mexico to appear in over a decade. . . Two qualities make the book invaluable for travelers southward. The first is its comprehensiveness, for nothing has been overlooked. . .The second quality which makes it an appealing book is its freshness and up-to-the-minute reporting on where to go and how." Betty Kirk
+ Sat R of Lit 27:31 N 25 '44 360w
Weekly Book Review p6 D 17 '44 150w

CLARK, THOMAS BLAKE. Advertising smoke screen. 228p $2 Harper

659.118 Advertising 44-9234

An exposé of dishonest advertising, which not only cheats the consumer, but does an immense amount of harm to the honest advertiser. Partial contents: The test of advertising; The fight for truth; Which brand do you smoke?; Toothpaste, powder, or liquid?; Worried about baldness, dandruff, or gray hair?; Are you overweight?; What do you take for a cold?; Need more vitamins?; Bothered by headaches?; Advertising—its fate and future.

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Book Week p2 N 5 '44 310w
Booklist 41:86 N 15 '44

"Sketchy, hasty, this little volume contains enough to arouse dismay over the gullibility of the American people and the fraudulent character of the nostrums which support a great proportion of their daily canned entertainment."
Commonweal 41:109 N 10 '44 110w
Kirkus 12:417 S 15 '44 100w

Reviewed by McAlister Coleman
Nation 160:107 Ja 27 '45 480w

Reviewed by A. G. Mezerik
New Repub 111:812 D 11 '44 220w

"In the present book Mr. Clark has produced a great bargain at $2 for the . . . ailing who rely trustingly, and sometimes dangerously, on the advertisements for a cure. He has produced, in this writer's opinion, an even greater bargain for the advertiser, the advertising agency, the publisher and the owner of radio facilities, because he gathers together in one place and with one impact a mass of evidence which should repel them as citizens and arouse them as business men to whom advertising's health is important." Raymond Rubicam
+ N Y Times p3 Ja 14 '45 1100w

Reviewed by Lislie Bell
Weekly Book Review p26 D 3 '44 300w

CLARK, THOMAS CURTIS. Lincoln: fifty poems. 53p $2.50 Trovillion

811 Lincoln, Abraham—Poetry 44-6

"This volume contains the best of the Lincoln poems that Mr. Clark has written through the years as one facet after another of the character of 'the greatest American' revealed itself to him and as new fevers in the national life seemed to demand fresh applications of Lincoln's healing touch. These are, in general, rather prophetic than historical. They are less concerned to glorify the Lincoln that was—though this mood also has its place—than to interpret him in relation to the future and the present." Christian Century

"Clark is reverential in mood. His poems, like overspiced fare, must be digested a bit at a time. . . One feels that out of Clark's deep contemplation of the Emancipator may some day come a brief poem that soars to greatness. These verses are a foretaste." Elmer Gertz
Book Week p4 F 13 '44 80w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 61:146 F 2 '44 300w

CLARK, THOMAS DIONYSIUS. Pills, petticoats and plows; the southern country store. 359p il $3.50 Bobbs

917.5 South—Social life and customs. Retail trade. Country life 44-3660

Study of the country store and its influence on the life in the southern United States from the end of the Civil war to 1915. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Frank Freidel
Am Hist R 50:146 O '44 550w

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
+ Book Week p3 Ap 23 '44 600w
Booklist 40:302 My 1 '44

"There is a lot of fun to be had from the hundreds of customers' orders Prof. Clark has collected. . . Any damyankee who ever knew a New England general store will find this book to be the genuine article, right out of the cracker-barrel." Ray McPartlin
+ Boston Globe p17 My 24 '44 270w
Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '44

Reviewed by E. V. R. Wyatt
Commonweal 40:161 Je 2 '44 550w

"This is the story of the business of self sufficiency, the conservative progress that developed, the solace of a community meeting place in small settlements before standardization and chain stores took over,—this makes an interesting approach to regional rural enterprise, the everyday life of the South."
+ Kirkus 12:164 Ap 1 '44 160w

"It lacks any proper appreciation of what is distinctively 'Southern' about the Southern country store. A great deal of the material here would be equally relevant to the Vermont or the Iowa country store, and there is a tendency to claim for the South what is general rather than sectional. The great value of the book is in its intimate detail; for the significance of this detail we must turn rather to the works of Vance or Arnett or Kendrick, or to Stribling's 'Store' trilogy." H. S. Commager
+ — N Y Times p3 Ap 9 '44 1500w

"An original idea, an original book, and a valuable though small-bore social history of the South."
+ New Yorker 20:83 Ap 15 '44 70w

Reviewed by C. P. Rollins
Sat R of Lit 27:25 My 6 '44 700w

"This book is written in plain English, employing familiar and usually simple words, without a single foreign phrase, without a mathematical or chemical formula, without any statistical or sociological jargon; yet there is some ground for arguing that it is esoteric in the extreme. To the initiated it is luminous; but to others it may seem dark and meaningless. . . It is rather too much to say that Mr. Clark has written definitively on his subject. It is nearer the truth to describe him as a pioneer in a wide and fascinating field." G. W. Johnson

+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ap 9 '44 800w

CLARKE, MARY PATTERSON. Parliamentary privilege in the American colonies. 303p $3 Yale univ. press [20s Oxford]

328.73 U.S.—Politics and government—Colonial period. Great Britain—Colonies. Legislative bodies A43-3179

"Conflicts between colonial assemblies and governors over financial matters have hitherto been widely discussed, but, as Miss Clarke contends, the important exercise of parliamentary privilege by the assemblies has been much less emphasized. Territorially, her study includes England (for purposes of background) and the colonies, both continental and insular; chronologically, it covers the period from 1619, with the meeting of the assembly in Virginia, to the close of the American Revolution in 1783. The conflicts over privilege were just as acute in the island colonies which did not revolt from the mother country as in the continental ones which did so." Am Pol Sci R

Reviewed by Stanley Pargellis
Am Hist R 49:491 Ap '44 480w

"A valuable contribution to an understanding of the development of self-government in colonial America." E. S. Brown
+ Am Pol Sci R 38:167 F '44 700w

"No doubt Miss Clarke's study will long remain the authority on its subject. It is therefore regrettable that she has failed to present a connected account of England's policy toward the privileges of the assemblies. Was their success due to England's generosity or to their own exertions? The detail and technicalities of the subject, and even the limited conception of it to which the author has adhered, do not obscure its significance." C. P. Nettels
+ — Ann Am Acad 231:191 Ja '44 450w

"A most illuminating study."
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 19 '44 100w

"This book is not easy or exciting reading, but it is the result of prodigious research into the records of all of British America from 1619 to 1783. Miss Clarke has been at great pains to build up the precedents and procedures from each of the colonies. Her book will be welcomed by every scholar interested in English parliamentary institutions, and in their spread throughout the Empire." Carl Wittke
+ New Eng Q 17:132 Mr '44 750w
Times [London] Lit Sup p359 Jl 22 '44 300w

"Although this admirable book is much too scholarly to reach a wide audience, it will serve to remind us of the strength and validity of the liberal tradition that has been handed down from colonial days to our own." J. C. Miller
+ Weekly Book Review p16 O 17 '43 850w

CLAYTON, ALFRED STAFFORD. Emergent mind and education. 179p $2.35 Teachers college

301.15 Social psychology. Behaviorism (psychology). Education—Philosophy. Mead, George Herbert 43-17098

"A study of George H. Mead's bio-social behaviorism from an educational point of view." Subtitle

"The merit of this book rests in the author's choice of a significant problem. . . The shortcomings of this book are twofold. First, the treatment of Mead's system of thought as it applies to education is only incidental. The bulk of this treatise is an exposition of Mead's social psychology. Second, the author has kept so close to a textual presentation of Mead that there is hardly a page in the entire book free from several lengthy quotations from his writings. . . The author has a sound appreciation of Mead's system of thought, and it is the reviewer's hope that he will pursue this highly important problem of a socially meaningful theory of education stemming out of Mead's social psychology." S. M. Strong
+ — Am J Soc 50:162 S '44 650w

"This, the first book on George H. Mead, is of high order. It is a careful and accurate portrayal of Mead's social psychology, and a sound and exciting elaboration of the educational implications of this psychology. It will be a useful volume to both old and new readers of Mead, and a godsend to educators who wish to avoid alike the confusions which have riddled the forces of progressive education and the reactionary throwbacks which use these confusions as an entering wedge for their own doctrines." Charles Morris
+ J Philos 41:108 F 17 '44 700w

CLAYTON, EDWARD HYERS. Heaven below. 282p $2.75 Prentice-Hall

915.1 China—Description and travel. Missions—China 44-5525

Hangchow is the Heaven Below of the Chinese poets. The author, a Baptist missionary, who spent the years 1912 to 1942 in China, was stationed part of that time in Hangchow. He describes his experiences during those years in several periods: the relatively quiet period before 1927; the decade of national revolution and its outcome; and the years from the beginning of the Japanese invasion in 1937 until the author's return on the Gripsholm.

"One of the worst books on China I have ever seen. . . I can understand that Missionary Clayton might wish to convince his supporters of how difficult life is at a mission post, and how desperately the heathen need saving. But it is unfortunate that he chose to achieve these ends by assailing one of the Allies." C. Chia-I Cheng
— Book Week p4 Jl 9 '44 310w
Booklist 40:375 Jl 1 '44
Christian Century 61:751 Je 21 '44 110w

"Mr. Clayton is an excellent example of what he is and what he does. His story of life before and during the Japanese occupation is that of a courageous Christian. It is well told. It is an honorable record. It is timely and enlightening, at this moment when we Americans are allowing the Chinese to be eliminated from the Big Four, instead of strengthening them with all our power." W. F. Sands
+ Commonweal 40:235 Je 23 '44 350w

"Good background book on modern China."
+ Kirkus 12.208 My 1 '44 170w

"Of interest to general reader as well as to church and mission groups. Recommended." E. S. Brown
+ Library J 69:501 Je 1 '44 110w

"This is eyewitness stuff told without sentimentality and the stronger for it. In many ways it is the strongest book to come out of the Asiatic war theatre." Burton Crane
+ N Y Times p5 Jl 2 '44 440w

Reviewed by M. S. Bates
Pacific Affairs 17:348 S '44 280w

"The importance of 'face' in the Orient brings out good stories, striking and new: honest and downright, the book gives a good idea of how China impresses a sympathetic, experienced American missionary."
+ Weekly Book Review p13 Je 25 '44 200w

CLEATON, MRS IRENE. Outsider. 272p $2 Little 44-1297

Murder-mystery with early nineteenth-century Edinburgh as a background. The heroine is a young girl from London, rather out of place in the gloomy household of her uncle, the Lord Advocate of Scotland. When two murders occur, a young Scottish doctor is suspected, because he is known to want cadavers for professional reasons.

CLEATON, IRENE—Continued

"Take a spot or two of Joseph Shearing, a smattering of William Roughhead and the rest of Mrs. Cleaton and you have 'The Outsider.' It is a good, compact little novel of its kind, not to be put on the same shelf with Shearing and Roughhead, but not too far below. Mrs. Cleaton will doubtless do better in her next; she need have no reason to feel at all dubious about her first novel in the genre, for it is far better than average." August Derleth

+ Book Week p3 F 13 '44 360w

Booklist 40:305 My 1 '44

"A good period piece which owes no little to the studies of that Scots connoisseur of murder, William Roughead." E. H.

+ New Repub 110:358 Mr 13 '44 60w

"The plots of romance and murder are neatly contrived and interwoven. And the book is one of those too rarely encountered thrillers in which background and character have as rich a share as plot in the story's interest. The chilly Scotch household, the historic old town and the oddly assorted group of interesting individuals implicated in the double murder make 'The Outsider' a treat for discriminating thriller fans." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p6 F 13 '44 400w

"As a mystery, it's amateurish, but there's some material in it on corpse-snatching, as practiced by the local medical men, which may appeal to readers with a taste for research."

New Yorker 19:88 F 12 '44 60w

"Interesting."

+ Sat R of Lit 27:35 F 19 '44 30w

"Miss Cleaton has filled her novel with horrendous happenings, but being a romantic mystery all ends for the best. The book possesses moments of excellence and heightened suspense, but so frequently slips into cliches and mediocre emotionalism that it loses some of its effectiveness as a story, and the primary interest remains in the setting." L. S. Munn

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e F 13 '44 410w

"This romantic story and murder mystery is nicely written and is something of a novelty. But it is not particularly impressive or alarming for the characters are too thinly delineated to be more than superficially interesting." Iris Barry

+ — Weekly Book Review p6 F 20 '44 380w

CLELAND, ROBERT GLASS. From wilderness to empire. 388p il maps $4 Knopf

979.4 California—History 44-2422

A history of California from 1542 to 1900. This work is based on two earlier volumes, A History of California: The Spanish Period, by C. E. Chapman, and A History of California: the American Period,' by Dr Cleland. The author promises that a supplementary volume, to cover the last forty years, will be published next year.

"While Dr. Cleland's work on California measures up to his usual scholarly attainments and attractive style, he has added nothing to his reputation as a student of California history. And for a judicious and scholarly selection of material that goes to make up a well-rounded history of California, for a proper distribution and arrangement of such material, and for the style in which the author presents it, the general reader along with the scholar will continue to regard John Caughey's History of California as the outstanding recent work in the field." Cardinal Goodwin

+ — Am Hist R 50:147 O '44 420w

Book Week p11 Mr 26 '44 160w

Booklist 40:281 Ap 15 '44

"A good job, well paced, in the telling."

+ Kirkus 12:116 Mr 1 '44 160w

" 'From Wilderness to Empire' represents a lifetime of research. Its scholarship is impeccable without ever being obtrusive. It is carefully, intelligently and economically organized; and it is immensely readable. . . Apart from the chronicles of the Spanish period, the diaries and journals of the Forty-niners and the grandiose legend of the empire-builders, there is a phase of the history of California that has never been written. It is the history of the 'hidden' California, the story that Bancroft's patrons were only too eager to forget. No state has a more fascinating social history than California, but it is precisely this side of the story that California historians—and Dr. Cleland is no exception—have so largely neglected." Carey McWilliams

+ — New Repub 110:538 Ap 17 '44 1050w

"A Californian, dealing ever with superlatives, would say that this is the best short history of the State which has ever been written; a conservative reviewer must be content with the statement that he has never read a better." Hoffman Birney

+ N Y Times p17 Mr 26 '44 500w

"If the author writes as good a book [in his next volume] as this one, the whole work, despite its limited field, should be one of the best historical jobs of recent years."

+ New Yorker 20:95 Mr 18 '44 70w

"Mr. Cleland's purpose is to write a popular rather than a definitive account of California and in this volume he sticks to his intention for the most part, covering the ground simply, directly and in a manner notably easy on the general reader who wants to get the picture in the large. Because of his training, Mr. Cleland is accurate as to fact; one may be sure he is getting the authentic story as far as it goes. If the volume has an outstanding weakness, this lies in the somewhat curious balance the author establishes between various phases of the California story. Of its 372 pages, for example, only about fifty are given to the years from 1880 to 1900." J. H. Jackson

+ — Weekly Book Review p16 Ap 30 '44 600w

CLEMENS, CYRIL. My chat with Thomas Hardy; introd. by Carl J. Weber. 32p $2 Int. Mark Twain soc.

B or 92 Hardy, Thomas 44-5145

"A 5-page introduction by Carl J. Weber prefaces Mr. Clemens' 14-page account of a call on Thomas Hardy in 1925. In the course of the conversation Mr. Hardy expressed his opinions of Mark Twain, Cooper, Irving, Galsworthy, Housman, Stevenson and Poe." Christian Century

Christian Century 61:594 My 10 '44 40w

"A slim but interesting volume."

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 13 '44 440w

CLEMENTS, EILEEN HELEN. Cherry harvest. 249p $2.50 Messner [8s 6d Hodder]

44-3415

The present war as it appeared to the harrassed headmistress of an English girls' school, somewhere in the Cotswolds. During the four days between school terms quite a bit happened to make life exciting for the few children left at the school, their teachers, visiting parents, and several members of the British air force and other assorted guests who arrived unexpectedly. By the time the cherries were harvested there had been a death by accident and a spy or two caught.

"Here is a pleasantly seductive romance of the English countryside in summer when the cherries are ripe. Even though the weather is dank and misty much of the time, E. H. Clements succeeds in making you relish the wartime holiday at Burbury Manor more than some of the characters do." John Norcross

+ Book Week p8 My 7 '44 220w

Booklist 40:355 Je 15 '44

Kirkus 12:9 Ja 1 '44 30w

"On the whole, Cherry Harvest is likely to give the greatest pleasure to the greatest number of readers in this week's batch of novels. It belongs to the class of invented rather than created fiction, but it is cleverly invented, with good surprises and a neat ending, and the people in it, particularly the children, and the setting are pleasant." Charles Marriott

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 23 '43 180w

"Although some of the characters strain one's credulity a bit, they are, nevertheless, engaging, especially the children, and they hold the reader interested. It all seems, however, much ado over nothing, but perhaps your reviewer missed the English point of view somewhere." C. M. S.

Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 9 '44 220w

"Miss Clements keeps her readers very pleasantly entertained right up to the end."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p353 Jl 24 '43 90w

"In the delineation of English character, the author has a deft and sometimes ironic stroke, but it takes her quite a while to reach a given dramatic point." Lisle Bell

+ Weekly Book Review p14 Ap 9 '44 80w

CLEVELAND, REGINALD MCINTOSH, and NEVILLE, LESLIE E. Coming air age [prepared under the supervision of Aviation research associates]. (Whittlesey house publication) 359p il maps $2.75 McGraw

387.7 Aeronautics, Commercial 44-9660

"In simple, straightforward, nontechnical language, authors present complete picture of the air age which is to follow peace. Every phase of aviation is discussed; super-passenger and cargo planes, family planes, cost of operation, available fuel, air ports, education for the air age, air police force, air traffic regulation. An optimistic approach, but an honest one, pointing out handicaps which must be overcome in every activity relative to air transport. Era of global transport by air is just as certain as was era of the railroad and the steamship." (Library J) Index.

"An excellently documented and departmentalized forecast of aviation development after the industry turns from war to transportation is presented in this thoughtful book. . . Great possibilities assuredly are held forth by the air age to come and persons interested in them will find a wealth of information in this book." W. F. Morse

+ Book Week p9 D 17 '44 230w

Booklist 41:164 F 1 '45

Kirkus 12:245 Je 1 '44 120w

"Well-written and of definite appeal to the air-minded lay reader." L. R. Etzkorn

+ Library J 69:648 Ag '44 110w

"This book presents in forceful and straightforward terms the steps by which aviation will approach its real maturity as a power for peace and a servant of mankind in the years that lie ahead. . . It neither debunks nor glamorizes the future of aviation, but gives authoritative answers to the many questions arising in everybody's mind concerning the impact of the airplane on our future way of living." A. H. Compton & others

+ Scientific Bk Club R 15:1 D '44 700w

CLEVELAND, ROBERT (CAPPY DICK, pseud). Stay-at-home book for boys and girls [il. by Marie Mathewson and Frank Swedek, jr]. 218p $2 Greenberg

790 Amusements. Handicraft 44-3913

For the rainy-day-at-home here are assembled simple things to make, riddles to ask, jokes to tell, games to be played.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney

Book Week p11 My 7 '44 110w

"A treasure house of ideas for a rainy afternoon. Recommended." G. M. Williams

+ Library J 69:464 My 15 '44 80w

CLIFT, DENISON HALLEY. Spy in the room. 255p $2 Arcadia

44-7577

Detective story.

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p24 S 10 '44 120w

"Author of this middling narrative provides a deal of information about cryptographical activities in Room 40 at the British Admiralty, even if his melodic line is none too smooth." Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p16 O 8 '44 100w

CLYMER, ELEANOR. Here comes Pete; with pictures by Mildred Boyle. 96p $2 McBride

44-3968

The adventures of a friendly five-year-old boy, Pete, a new arrival in a small suburban town. Pete was too young to go to school, but not too young to get into mischief, but he was friendly about it! When time for his birthday came Pete had made friends with eighteen people, all of whom had to be invited to his party. For ages six to eight.

Booklist 40:323 My 15 '44

"A charming story of a lovable little boy, that will delight first grade readers, and fascinate those to whom it will be read aloud."

+ Kirkus 12:170 Ap 1 '44 160w

"A nice story of family life in an average suburban neighborhood." D. M. Mac Donald

+ Library J 69:307 Ap 1 '44 70w

"As in 'A Yard for John' Eleanor Clymer shows that a suburb is a good place to live and does it with gusto and a twinkling humor which will appeal to parents as well as to their children." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p20 Je 11 '44 140w

Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 16 '44 130w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p5 Ap 16 '44 200w

Wis Lib Bul 40:111 Jl '44

COALE, GRIFFITH BAILY. Victory at Midway [il. by the author]. 178p $3 Farrar

940.545 Midway island, Battle of, 1942. World war, 1939—Naval operations 44-535

The author, attached as an artist to the American navy, two years ago published his first book, North Atlantic Patrol (Book Review Digest, 1942). Later he was transferred to the Pacific front and here gives us his story of his trip to Hawaii, his work there in blocking out a mural on the Pearl Harbor attack, and finally an account of the battle of Midway. The book is illustrated with reproductions of the author's paintings and sketches.

Reviewed by W. H. Fetridge

Book Week p4 Mr 26 '44 500w

Booklist 40:266 Ap 1 '44

"I don't believe 'Victory at Midway' (which is somewhat of a misnomer, as only a third of the book tells of the battle) is what the late Stephen Vincent Benét is quoted on the jacket as saying it is, 'one of the really notable books of the war.' But it is an interesting and stimulating addition to the growing shelf about the war in the Pacific." Foster Hailey

+ — N Y Times p7 F 20 '44 900w

"For some reason Commander Coale was far more successful in transferring the Atlantic to canvas than he is with the Pacific. Perhaps it is because in so many of the pictures the effect is dully stylized, and even in those where there is supposed to be action the figures are wooden." P. J. Searles

Weekly Book Review p13 Ap 9 '44 250w

COATMAN, JOHN. India; the road to self-government. 152p $1.75 Norton [5s Allen, G]

954 India—Politics and government [A42-296]

Brief summary of the steps taken toward self-government for India, beginning in 1908 and continuing to the time of the Cripps mission. The author is, in the main, hopeful that Indian unity will eventually become a fact, altho he sees that the approach of home rule would naturally make difficulties at first. Index.

COATMAN, JOHN—Continued

"An excellent little book." R. G. Woolbert
+ Foreign Affairs 22:15 Ja '44 40w

"In the uncertain situation left by the failure of the Cripps mission this lucid story of India's advance towards freedom will be found stimulating. . . There are details which one would wish to dispute, such as his failure to mention the Viceroy's declaration of war without consultation of Indian opinion; but the main thesis is sound and the little book is full of good common sense." R. H. F.
+ — Manchester Guardian p3 My 6 '44 270w

COATSWORTH, ELIZABETH JANE (MRS HENRY BESTON). Country neighborhood; with decorations by Hildegard Woodward. 181p $2.50 Macmillan

917.41 Maine—Social life and customs
44-9075

A volume of short sketches, partly fiction, partly autobiographical, based on tradition and folklore, picturing life in a small Maine community.

"Those who take delight in David Grayson and Henry Williamson and W. H. Hudson and all those others who have written of places and people dear to their hearts will take abiding pleasure in this book." August Derleth
+ Book Week p5 N 26 '44 360w

Booklist 41:122 D 15 '44

"Tidy as a farm kitchen and full of as many nostalgic memories, this short, unpretentious book gives a backward glimpse into New England life. Superstitions, customs and legends color the everyday living of all who own old houses and Miss Coatsworth has made ample use of them."
+ Boston Globe p34 N 29 '44 150w

"Just why this is being sold as fiction it is hard for this reader to understand. I'd be inclined to urge you to put it with such books as 'A House in the Country' etc., as a charming country idyll, of particular appeal to those who love Maine."
+ Kirkus 12:350 Ag 15 '44 170w

"Will be enjoyed by those with country memories and will serve as useful substitute for those lacking such memories. Recommended for all libraries, for adults and young people." H. A. Wooster
+ Library J 69:698 S 1 '44 70w

"Once or twice—but not much more than that—she lapses into the customary, as when she tells of her country weekly newspaper. It isn't easy to understand a country weekly unless you were born close enough to be in it the first week you lived. But most of her neighborhood she does understand, and (what is perhaps a distinguishing prerequisite of Maine authorship) probably her neighborhood understands her. More astute judges may want to quibble, but, speaking from Maine, this is about as accurate a piece of literary Maine reporting as has appeared." John Gould
+ N Y Times p22 Ja 7 '45 360w

"Sara Orne Jewett and Mary Wilkins Freeman would recognize gladly that Miss Coatsworth is carrying on for them and for a new generation the affectionate task of introducing to a larger world the beloved folk and endearing customs which are part and parcel of the state of Maine." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d N 26 '44 170w

"One of the things about Maine is that somewhere in the landscape and seascape, somewhere in the structure of its people's soul there is basic reassurance that life is good, has been good a long while and will go on being so; as Miss Coatsworth's book carries this unsaid conviction along with its experiences with Maine neighbors, reading it in troubled times is bound to have a good effect. It can even be read straight through, something that can seldom be said of a collection of short scenes or stories in the same key." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p4 D 17 '44 650w

COATSWORTH, ELIZABETH JANE (MRS HENRY BESTON). Trudy and the tree house. 114p il $1.50 Macmillan 44-4327

Story of a pretty little mischief maker, whose family found a way to keep her contented part of the time—they built her a little house in the top of an oak tree, where she could retire when her six sisters got too much for her. For children six to eight.

Booklist 40:343 Je 1 '44

"Delightful book for little girls about seven to eleven." F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Je 26 '44 270w

"Trudy is engaging even when she is not good so she adds spice to the happy life of the family. The drawings by Marguerite Davis accord with the pleasant spirit of the story." A. M. Jordon
+ Horn Bk 20:285 Jl '44 80w

"Squeamish adults wont like this—but children will. . . The stories are short enough for reading aloud to six and seven year olds. Third and fourth graders will read them to themselves."
Kirkus 12:95 F 15 '44 110w

Reviewed by K. H. McAlarney
Library J 69:504 Je 1 '44 70w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
N Y Times p8 My 14 '44 200w

New Yorker 20:56 Jl 8 '44 90w

"Trudy's adventures are most entertaining. An attractive little book nicely illustrated."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:38 My 13 '44 50w

"There are several of these adventures, each just long enough to read to a six-year-old who will read them for herself at eight or so; the little girls are affectionately pictured by Marguerite Davis, and Trudy herself, in text and pictures, is the best reason why everybody likes her." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ap 30 '44 300w

COBB, MRS META R., and HUDSON, HOLLAND. Joan chooses occupational therapy. 214p $2 Dodd

Vocational guidance story for girls in grade eight or older. It describes in story form a young girl's decision to become an occupational therapist, her training and hospital experiences.

Booklist 41:156 Ja 15 '45

Kirkus 12:481 O 15 '44 110w

"Story is merely a vehicle for a thorough exposition of occupational therapy and has very little interest otherwise. It will be dull reading for any high school girl unless she is thinking of that choice for profession." E. E. Frank
Library J 70:71 Ja 15 '45 60w

COBLENTZ, CATHERINE (CATE) (MRS W. W. COBLENTZ). The bells of Leyden sing; il. by Hilda Van Stockum. 259p $2.25 Longmans
44-7483

Story for young readers, about a group of English exiles living in Holland in 1609, and their final successful attempt to sail for America. Rembrandt as a boy is one of the characters, as are the family of Elder Brewster. The title comes from the tradition that when the bells of Leyden had a high singing note, the torch of liberty burned bright.

Booklist 41:43 O 1 '44

Cath World 160:282 D '44 10w

Christian Century 61:1027 S 6 '44 30w

"A good exciting story and one grounded on research." F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 O 12 '44 160w

Reviewed by H. L. Binsse
Commonweal 41:128 N 17 '44 20w

Horn Bk 20:488 N '44 120w

"Fiction with an authentic historical background for the next step up the ladder from Mayflower Boy."

+ Kirkus 12:299 Jl 1 '44 190w

"Recommended." E. S. Smith

+ Library J 69:817 O 1 '44 100w

"The story is somewhat crowded with true and fictional characters, and there is more conversation on religious liberty than seems neccessary. The characters are well drawn, however. For boys and girls who like a historical tale this would have a strong appeal. Hilda van Stockum has added greatly to the book by her authentic drawings of Holland, the map of Leyden in 1614, and the end-papers with their drawings of incidents and personalities." Muriel Gilbert

+ Sat R of Lit 27:34 N 11 '44 450w

School & Society 60:192 S 16 '44 40w

Wis Lib Bul 40:148 N '44

COBLENTZ, STANTON ARTHUR. Green vistas. 96p $1.50 Wings

811 44-1996

"A collection of lyrics and sonnets dealing with the fields and woods of California, the present war and man's relation to today's world." Springf'd Republican

Christian Century 61:277 Mr 1 '44 80w

"Mr Coblentz's poetry shows at times a surprising swinging strength, and one is often impressed by the depth of his discernment and by the images which his fertile imagination produces." C. M. Sauer

+ Springf'd Republican p6 S 18 '44 280w

COCHRANE, CHARLES NORRIS. Christianity and classical culture; a study of thought and action from Augustus to Augustine. rev ed 523p $5 Oxford

901 Civilization, Christian. Church history —Primitive and early church. Civilization, Greco-Roman 44-5338

A reprint, with the text revised and corrected, of a work first published in England in 1940 (Book Review Digest, 1941).

"The volume is a veritable mine of scholarly information so clearly expounded that it ought to appeal to the general reader. It is true that he will miss a good deal if his classical learning is so rusty that he fails to apprehend the meaning of the Greek and Latin phrases freely sprinkled over the pages. Nevertheless he can scarcely fail to profit immensely from a studious reading of the volume." S. J. Case

+ Christian Century 61:697 Je 7 '44 950w

Commonweal 40:68 My 5 '44 600w

"The book is written in a brilliant and lively style, and it shows on every page the author's keen awareness of present-day problems, which makes the reading very attractive for the general reader. At the same time, the scholarly specialist will admire the lucid exposition of administrative and legal developments, as well as the masterful pages dedicated to such figures as Augustus, Julian, Valentinian, and Theodosius. Those pages show a firm grasp on the facts and a subtle sense for historical nuances, two qualities that are not often found together." P. O. Kristeller

+ J Philos 41:576 O 12 '44 2200w

"This is an American reprint of a work originally published in England five years ago. It is distinctly a scholar's book. With indefatigable care the author has assembled a mass of data from classical writers beginning with the Augustan age and continuing down to the time of Augustine. The original sources have been generously cited and one who has a ready acquaintance with Greek and Latin phrases will find this knowledge a great aid to his enjoyment in reading these pages." S. J. Case

+ J Religion 24:289 O '44 850w

"Since the appearance of the first edition in 1940, I have read this book many times, and my conviction of its importance to the understanding not only of the epoch with which it is concerned, but also of our own, has increased with each rereading." W. H. Auden

+ New Repub 111:373 S 25 '44 2450w

COCKRELL, WILLIAM D. Industrial electronic control; a guide to the understanding of electronic control circuits for industrial uses. 247p il $2.50 McGraw

621.38 Electronics 44-3702

"Written for those who sell, install and service electronic devices, and for radio servicemen. Does not cover theory and construction of electron tubes, nor industrial applications of electronics." (Booklist). Index.

Booklist 40:352 Je 15 '44

"Written in simple language for practical electrical men who need a working knowledge of the subject. Graphs and charts. Author is application engineer of Electronic Control Devices in the General Electric Co. at Schenectady."

+ Library J 69:462 My 15 '44 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:24 Ap '44

COE, CHARLES FRANCIS. Never a dull moment. 326p $3 Hastings house

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 44-4774

Reminiscences of an American author, who at various times in his many-sided career has been a boxer, a lawyer, counsel for a motion-picture company, member of the United States navy, a candidate for the United States Senate, and manager of an automobile office.

"The pretty flavor of 'Never a Dull Moment'—I just can't get over what a good title that is—is a blend of rye highballs, cigar butts, locker rooms, Pullman smoking compartments, hotel washrooms and Turkish baths." Russell Maloney

— Book Week p2 Je 18 '44 450w

Kirkus 12:230 My 15 '44 160w

"By normal standards it would seem a full life and Mr. Coe's account of it is often lively. He can spin an anecdote when he has the material. . . And yet, by and large, 'Never a Dull Moment' is a book that leaves a good bit to be desired. . . Mr. Coe admits to restlessness and it reflects itself in his autobiography. He darts from one subject to another with such rapidity that the reader never does quite settle down. He knew George Horace Lorimer of The Saturday Evening Post very well, but the distinguished editor might have deserved a fuller treatment. Mr. Coe says he knew the underworld intimately, but he chooses to reveal little." Jack Gould

— + N Y Times p16 My 28 '44 440w

"Mr. Charles Francis 'Socker' Coe is quite a fellow and admits it frankly in this autobiography; frankly and so incessantly that the tune becomes monotonous. . . The book is, perhaps, a trifle self-conscious." Phil Stong

Sat R of Lit 27:9 My 20 '44 270w

Reviewed by Stanley Walker

— Weekly Book Review p10 My 28 '44 1200w

COE, ROLAND. Little scouts in action. 104p $1.50 McBride

741.5 Boy scouts. Humor, Pictorial. Caricatures and cartoons 44-51297

Series of cartoons picturing a group of boy scouts and their stout scout master, on hikes, camping, being helpful, and otherwise comporting themselves as small boys do. The cartoons have appeared in the Saturday Evening Post.

Boston Globe p32 N 29 '44 50w

Kirkus 12:474 O 15 '44 90w

"The humor is gay and understanding and the observer will find himself entering into the spirit of these youngsters with their pranks and philosophy." Lisle Bell

+ Weekly Book Review p5 D 3 '44 60w

COFFIN, CARLYN. Dogwatch. 279p $2 Farrar
44-5199

Combination of mystery and spy story, the locality of which is the Connecticut shore of Long Island Sound; the time is the present.

"The dialogue is a bit overdone—but otherwise an adequate job."
+ — Kirkus 12:183 Ap 15 '44 50w

"A refreshing change, in both the writing and the plotting, from most espionage yarns."
+ New Repub 111:54 Jl 10 '44 60w

"The interest lies in the manner in which the spy plot is unfolded and in the means by which it is brought to naught." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p16 Je 18 '44 120w

"First rate."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:52 Je 17 '44 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p15 Je 18 '44 100w

COFFIN, ROBERT PETER TRISTRAM. Mainstays of Maine; egged on by Ruth P. Coffin. 185p $2 Macmillan

917.41 Cookery. Maine—Social life and customs 44-7999

"Robert P. Tristram Coffin was born into the bountiful State of Maine and is gradually eating his way up through it, like a lucky mouse born in an oat bin. Lobsters, clams, mussels, codfish chowder, flounders, smelts, eels, blueberries, wild geese, deer, rabbits and chicken dumplings pass in an unending stream down the appreciative gullet of Maine's best known living poet, all flavored with the sky, the sea, the ledges and the sharp memory of his happy childhood on a farm on Casco Bay. His latest book is a hymn to the digestive tract, an invitation to the gorge. He starts with a hot dumpling and ends with a frozen halibut's head." Weekly Book Review

Reviewed by Ralph Peterson
Book Week p10 O 22 '44 230w
Booklist 41:40 O 1 '44
Boston Globe p36 N 29 '44 50w
Kirkus 12:332 Ag 1 '44 130w

Reviewed by M. C. Manley
Library J 69:696 S 1 '44 70w

Reviewed by Milton Ellis
New Eng Q 17:610 D '44 700w

"'Mainstays of Maine' will want the treatment usually prescribed for Hiram Webber's celebrated clamcakes. (Mr. Webber is a neighbor of the Coffins, and his gift of pan-fried glory might bear poetic investigation.) Someone asked Hiram once what he usually served with his clamcakes, and he said 'Most people just take bicarbonate of sody.'" John Gould
N Y Times p8 S 17 '44 440w

"As essays, these chapters stimulate the juices of the stomach rather than of the mind, and they are written in mock-superlatives which become burdensome after a few pages. But as cookery lore they contain much good reading and valuable information on many subjects, and their theme is commendable: get your vitamins before they reach the drugstore." E. B. White
+ — Weekly Book Review p4 S 17 '44 800w
Wis Lib Bul 40:159 D '44

COHEN, OCTAVUS ROY. Romance in the first degree. 229p $2 Macmillan

Murder story, in which Jerry Franklin, recently invalided out of the army, helps the police to solve three murders. The scene is New York city.

"The old maestro's slickness and suavity are present as usual, and if, once in a while, things are too pat you'll feel indulgent. After all, everyone knows that crime doesn't pay and that virtue is its own reward." Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p8 My 28 '44 70w

"Best of the week."
+ Boston Globe p17 My 24 '44 50w
Kirkus 12:126 Mr 15 '44 60w

"A good puzzle neatly solved." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p12 Ap 30 '44 80w

"Simple, harmless, not too grown-up." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p19 Ap 30 '44 110w

COHN, DAVID LEWIS. Combustion on wheels. 272p il $2.75 Houghton

629.209 Automobiles—History 44-9565

"An informal history of the automobile age." (Subtitle) It traces American social history from the days of the first horseless carriages to January 30, 1942, when the last Chevrolet came off the assembly line. Index.

Reviewed by Arthur Meeker
Book Week p3 N 19 '44 650w
Booklist 41:148 Ja 15 '45

"The book is highly technical, but lightened by a very personal handling of the early days of prejudice and dislike and humorous cracks at devil wagons; the pioneering done by country doctors in the interest of the low-priced car; the first races; Henry Ford and other trail-blazers. One section of the book traces the revolution in American life, brought about by the automobile. The credits and debits are duly charted. Cohn knows his American scene thoroughly and this is an excellent vehicle for his gifts."
+ Kirkus 12:477 O 15 '44 120w
Library J 69:1002 N 15 '44 10w

"Recommended for mature young people." M. M. Smith
+ Library J 69:1052 D 1 '44 60w

"Mr. Cohn, one suspects, is not instinctively interested in cars. . . His interests are catholic, his research is conscientious. His sympathetic, first-hand acquaintance with our manifold geographical and social strata gives his work a warm, descriptive quality that is as rare in such works as is his masterful use of irony." H. A. Bull
+ N Y Times p4 D 17 '44 1100w

"Mr. Cohn, whose book gives the impression of having been assembled with a shovel, never strikes pay dirt. He has uncovered considerable information about the automobile, however . . . and it is regrettable that he did not organize it more carefully instead of using it as a springboard for his random observations. The information, for the most part, is interesting; the observations, for the most part, are not."
— + New Yorker 20:98 N 11 '44 140w

Reviewed by Phil Stong
Sat R of Lit 27:10 N 11 '44 800w
Springf'd Republican p4d N 12 '44 550w
Springf'd Republican p4d Ja 7 '45 130w

"Mr. Cohn's book has all the warming, provocative, discursive quality of good talk. He raises all kinds of questions and answers some of them. . . This book is history scarce discernible from our own memoirs or latest news, full of what the boys abroad would enjoy remembering and every American citizen had better soon digest." Ernestine Evans
+ Weekly Book Review p4 N 12 '44 1850w

COLBY, FRANCES BAINBRIDGE. Apple must be bitten. 339p $2.50 Scribner
44-2183

Story of the progressive destruction of a character and a marriage. Ned Harvey was a neurotic and sadistic member of a prominent family; Maggie, his wife and the mother of Ned's three young children, was a sensible and loyal wife. With all her courage Maggie fought to preserve her marriage for the sake of her children, but eventually had to leave Ned.

"Unlike most novels of its kind, it is sophisticated, unsentimental and fast moving. It is sharply focused and written with brilliancy and a fundamental understanding of human values and shortcomings. . . I had never heard of Fanny Colby until now, but she is deserving of a place. Her novel is compact and sincerely told." G. H. Freitag
+ Book Week p4 Mr 12 '44 340w

Booklist 40:283 Ap 15 '44

"A first novel which is distinguished by precise, incisive characterization, by a style which ranges from the derisive to the sympathetic and conflict rising from temperaments at odds. . . Intelligent handling of marital discord. Primarily for women readers, but above level of average rental novel."
+ Kirkus 12:27 Ja 15 '44 160w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 158:687 Je 10 '44 20w

"There is material here for a much more penetrating study than Miss Colby has given us, but it is almost lost in the clutter of suburban libidos. Beneath this glib surface are dark undercurrents in both her principal characters that are only hinted at." Thelma Purtell
N Y Times p7 My 7 '44 440w

"Miss Colby's clever book, with its almost vindictive satisfaction in the tortures which men and women inflict on each other, is neither good enough to make its girdings important nor bad enough to make comfortable reading. With a harsh and impatient hand, she has called attention to a real and still unresolved tragedy." Katharine Simonds
Sat R of Lit 27:11 Mr 25 '44 700w

"A novel that will hold the reader's interest until the final page is turned. It is a study of character, superbly done. . . Although there is a note of bitterness pervading the entire story which may leave a bad taste in the mouths of some readers, this is nonetheless a book to recommend because of its swiftness of pace and its keen analysis of character." H. J. Sloan
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 12 '44 300w

"It is dreary following the round of the Harveys' parties and domestic scenes until the smash-up comes. Miss Colby has a narrative gift, and I hope that her next book will give it scope in a story which has less of the stuff of a case record." Mary Ross
Weekly Book Review p6 Mr 19 '44 500w

COLBY, HARRIET. Where is Johnny? pictures by Rosemary Davis. [24p] $1 Howell, Soskin 44-9407

Small picture story book about Johnny who disappeared when it was time to take his nap. His mother looks in all the places she can think of before she finds him in bed.

Reviewed by L. M. Palmer
N Y Times p18 N 12 '44 40w

"Small children who delight in bewildering their parents by hiding will enjoy Johnny's adventures." M. L. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d O 29 '44 70w

+ Weekly Book Review p36 N 12 '44 70w

COLE, CHARLES WOOLSEY. French mercantilism, 1683-1700. 354p $4.25 Columbia univ. press [28s Oxford]
330.151 Mercantile system. France—Economic policy 43-11223

"This volume is a sequel to my Colbert and a Century of French Mercantilism [Book Review Digest, 1939]. In that work will be found my interpretation of the nature of French mercantilism and its development up to 1683, the year of Colbert's death. In this book I have endeavored to carry the story from 1683 down to 1700." (Foreword) The author is a professor of history at Columbia university. Bibliography. Index.

"The careful handling of French source materials and wide study of the standard works of French scholars which characterized the first two volumes is maintained in the third. . . The wealth of detail—which is at times, it must be admitted, a little overpowering—is fully justified by the fact that this book and the two preceding volumes give the student the best account in English of French commercial policy and practice during the last half of the seventeenth century. Some parts of the first four chapters should be pointed out because of their special value to the economic historian." P. W. Buck
+ Am Econ R 34:153 Mr '44 1600w

Reviewed by W. C. Scoville
Am Hist R 49:277 Ja '44 950w

Reviewed by L. M. Hacker
Canadian Hist R 25:205 Je '44 900w

Reviewed by A. P. Usher
J Pol Econ 52:369 D '44 300w

COLE, LUELLA WINIFRED (MRS R. H. LOWIE). Attaining maturity. 212p $2 Farrar 137 Psychology. Attitude (psychology). Ability, Influence of age on 44-3782

" 'Within recent times people have had more opportunity than ever before to live childish lives because of the protection given them by their modern mechanized environment,' writes the author. At the same time modern life, being more complex, makes greater demands on mature judgment. The author, a trained psychologist of wide experience who has written other more technical books on the subject, distinguishes between three types of maturity, intellectual, emotional and moral, and provides many interesting case histories to illustrate her points." Wis Lib Bul

---

Booklist 40:312 My 15 '44

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Je '44

"Serious casework illustrates the point made and raises it above the level of the uplift books. . . A book of real merit in a new field."
+ Kirkus 12:58 F 1 '44 110w

Wis Lib Bul 40:82 Je '44

COLEGROVE, KENNETH WALLACE. American Senate and world peace. 209p $2 Vanguard
328.739 U.S. Congress. Senate. U.S.—Foreign relations 44-191

"The contention of this timely book is that the requirement of a two-thirds majority of the Senate for the ratification of treaties with foreign governments is an archaic and undemocratic procedure—an inhibition which can defeat the hopes of the American people for world peace unless it is by-passed or amended." N Y Times

---

"Professor Colegrove has written with clarity and facility a significant treatise on government and an important tract for the times. It is a work that deserves to be widely read." R. J. Bartlett
+ Am Hist R 50:183 O '44 240w

Reviewed by Clyde Eagleton
Am Pol Sci R 38:559 Je '44 600w

"It is a rare volume which argues a point of view with the accuracy of detail and with the vigorous style which Professor Colegrove has attained." F. L. Burdette
+ Ann Am Acad 233:238 My '44 460w

"In this admirably lucid book Kenneth Colegrove indicts one of the most disgraceful monopolies in the United States: the stranglehold of a minority of the Senate on our treaty-ratifying powers. . . Dr. Colegrove invokes a popular crusade. No American can lose by reading his forthright argument for it." Frank Smothers
+ Book Week p4 Ja 16 '44 450w

Booklist 40:190 F 1 '44

Bookmark 5:4 Mr '44

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:495 Ap '44 40w

"Timely and useful study." G. E. Brown
+ Library J 68:1049 D 15 '43 70w

COLEGROVE, K. W.—Continued
Reviewed by Volta Torrey
Nation 158:193 F 12 '44 1000w

"Dr. Colegrove, a professor of Political Science at Northwestern University, has made a significant contribution in this exceedingly clear analysis of the important problem of collective security and our participation in such a system. His conclusion is that our greatest danger is not in the failure of public opinion to support world organization but in the fact that a sound peace may be blocked by an irreconcilable minority in the Senate. Colegrove has found the key to our tragic mistake in the Senate during 1919-20, when a small group of Senators led by Henry Cabot Lodge blocked ratification of the Treaty of Versailles, and he is determined that it shall not happen again." J. W. Fulbright
+ New Repub 110:322 Mr 6 '44 1100w

"Professor Colegrove, who is a Chicagoan but no isolationist, may be over-optimistic in expecting the Senate to yield its exclusive privilege to the advantage of the Executive. (We live in days when Congress seems disposed to deprive the President even of his appointed prerogatives.) But his book ably, if somewhat academically, demonstrates how crassly the present ratification procedure permits the will of the American people to be ignored—and condemns a great nation (which has armed her soldiers with every modern weapon for war) to go hunting for peace with a blunderbuss." John McCormac
+ N Y Times p1 Ja 2 '44 1050w

Reviewed by E. K. Williams
Pacific Affairs 17:251 Je '44 280w

Reviewed by Jonathan Mitchell
Pol Sci Q 59:452 S '44 750w

"No issue confronting the American people is today so urgent as the course of our postwar policy. What that course will be depends, more than on any other agency of the nation's government, on the action of the Senate. This book, a cogent and incisive analysis of the Senate's role in the making—and unmaking—of foreign policy, is addressed precisely and fearlessly to that point." Phillips Bradley
+ Sat R of Lit 27:8 Ja 29 '44 1150w

Reviewed by Marshall Bragdon
Springf'd Republican p6 Ja 8 '44 750w

Reviewed by H. S. Commager
Weekly Book Review p5 Ja 23 '44 1800w

COLEMAN, WILLIAM LAURENCE. Escape the thunder. 185p $2 Dutton
44-5940

Novel of Negro life in Montgomery, Alabama.

Reviewed by Arna Bontemps
— Book Week p4 Ag 20 '44 400w

Booklist 41:58 O 15 '44

Boston Globe p15 Ag 30 '44 160w

"A story with no social implications—good story—good writing."
+ Kirkus 12:354 Ag 15 '44 130w

"Social implications subtle but strong. Recommended." D. R. Homer
+ Library J 69:650 Ag '44 80w

"'Escape the Thunder' is definitely not a quaint story of lovable darkies. It rocks with violence and cruelty and passion. . . Lieutenant Coleman, a white man writing of Negro life, does it with sympathy and insight. His dialect, indicated with a minimum of tortured spelling, seems authentic. Luther's simple dignity and decency, old Miss Lula's sturdy challenge to evil, and Pecola's level-headed devotion—these make 'Escape the Thunder' a book to remember." N. B. Baker
+ N Y Times p7 Ag 13 '44 320w

"There is only the flimsiest kind of plot, but the author has a photographic eye and a phonographic ear. A rather promising first try."
+ New Yorker 20:62 Ag 12 '44 30w

"A heart-warming and sympathetic story of Negroes, written with none of the self-conscious precocity which so frequently marks a 'first' in novels, but rather a rare delicacy and mature insight into the childlike nature of his Negroes. Moreover, there is no trace of condescension in this simple representation of Negro life, written without emphasis on any race problem or race consciousness." L. S. Munn
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 13 '44 440w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 20 '44 400w

COLGATE, WILLIAM. Canadian art; its origin and development; with a foreword by C. W. Jefferys. 278p il $7.50 Humphries [21s Hatchard]
709.71 Art—Canada A44-1839

"A history which traces major influences and gives critical interpretation of developments in painting, sculpture, the graphic arts, and architecture. The author is a Canadian art critic. Black-and-white illustrations which fail to do justice to the artists' work. Bibliography." Booklist

Booklist 40:373 Jl 1 '44

"The book is obviously the result of a good deal of research and a lifetime of interest in the subject which perhaps overload it with catalogue details for the average reader. One tends to bog down in painters whose work is not illustrated, and I find Mr. Colgate's estimate of certain contemporary artists rather uneven." Helen Frye
+ — Canadian Forum 24:23 Ap '44 350w

Reviewed by John Alford
Canadian Hist R 25:325 S '44 1350w

Times [London] Lit Sup p430 S 2 '44 360w

COLLIER, JOHN. Touch of nutmeg; and more unlikely stories; with a foreword by Clifton Fadiman. 247p $2 Readers club
44-40019

Collection of short stories by an English writer now living in the United States. "Some of the stories in this book have been printed in The New Yorker and Harper's Magazine; some of them have previously been gathered into a volume called Presenting Moonshine [published by the Viking Press, New York, 1941] and a volume called The Devil and All [published by the Nonesuch Press, London, 1934]." (Note)

"Like his countryman Saki, Mr. Collier achieves his moral ends by a neat blending of humor and horror, an equally immaculate style and a dramatist's sense of when to stop. Even in his more exuberant periods, which read like overripe O. Henry, Mr. Collier handles clichés with the deft conviction of a poet." Marjorie Farber
+ N Y Times p6 Ja 23 '44 550w

"John Collier has an extremely pretty wit, usually bland, unexpected, and deceptive, which is the best kind." Struthers Burt
+ Sat R of Lit 27:15 F 5 '44 1200w

COLLINS, ARCHIE FREDERICK. Inventing for fun and profit; art work by Georg T. Hartmann. 229p $2.50 Coward-McCann
608 Inventions 43-15662

"A timely handbook for the young or amateur inventor discussing, in easy style, the processes which follow the rough idea for an invention—making a drawing, proving it by experiment, building a model, getting it patented, financing and exploiting it, manufacturing and, finally, marketing it. There is a beginning chapter presenting some successful, fortune-making inventions, and a final chapter suggesting possibilities for the future. Many drawings and diagrams. Junior and senior high school." (Booklist) Index.

"Undoubtedly there is much information in the book that would be useful to anyone interested in obtaining patents. Its enthusiastic statements, however, may lead some to hope for a short cut to technical invention that does not exist. Today successful research and invention must be based upon a thorough scientific education." L. E. Grinter

+ Book Week p6 D 26 '43 80w

Booklist 40:98 N 15 '43

N Y New Tech Bks 28:64 O '43

COLLINS, CLELLA REEVES (MRS CARTER COLLINS). When your son goes to war. 246p $2.50 Harper

355.12 U.S.—Armed services 43-16650

Information for parents or wives of men in uniform. Covers basic training, military etiquet, college training programs, service men's pay and allowances, health and morale. No index.

Booklist 40:157 Ja 1 '44

"Mrs. Collins is not only sure of her facts but aware of which facts need clarifying. She understands the phases of her subject on which other mothers need enlightenment and reassurance."

+ Weekly Book Review p29 Ja 23 '44 100w

COLLINS, FREDERICK LEWIS. Homicide squad; adventures of a headquarters old timer. 247p $2.75 Putnam

364 Murder. Criminal investigation. New York (city)—Police 44-9381

"In this book are seventeen cases, beginning in the 1890's and ending in the 1940's, which illustrate concretely the application or non-application of known investigative methods to the solving of homicide mysteries. The cases have been selected . . . because of their interest, first as good reading, and second as examples of the continual advance—although never orderly and sometimes halting—of homicide research." Introd

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p50 D 3 '44 180w

Booklist 41:101 D 1 '44

"Excellent material, presented in a colloquial style which readers may easily find distressing."

New Yorker 20:88 N 4 '44 90w

"Mr Collins does his murders up very neatly, has a nice taste for blood, and has done a masterful job of staying away from more famous cases which have been written up so many times they are almost members of the family. In many cases true crime stories as well presented as these are more enjoyable than even the best of fiction crime, and they are guaranteed to keep you from bed equally as long." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p6 N 20 '44 450w

"Some good stories here, told simply and clearly and with no straining for bogus theatrical effects." Stanley Walker

+ Weekly Book Review p20 D 3 '44 550w

COLLINS, TED, ed. New York murders, by Angelica Gibbs [and others]. (Regional murder ser) 242p $2.75 Duell

364 Murder

Stories of seven New York murders, cases on record in New York city. They range in time from 1860 to 1937. Contents: 1860—The Walton-Matthews case, by Kurt Steel; 1873—The Ryan murders, by Thomas Byrnes; 1891—The Ruttinger-Wright affair, by Lawrence Treat; 1898—The murder of Dolly Reynolds, by Baynard Kendrick; 1900—The murder of Kathryn Scharn, by Lawrence Treat; 1919—The Wilkins murder, by Angelica Gibbs; 1937—The Perry-Palm case, by E. D. Radin. A calendar of New York murders. Bibliography.

"This is a book worth keeping—for the stories themselves, for the calendar of a century of important cases in New York and for the excellent bibliography." Elizabeth Bullock

+ Book Week p9 N 5 '44 130w

Kirkus 12:461 O 1 '44 170w

"It's too bad, since the enterprise is worthy, that the first volume includes so much pedestrian writing. Leading off with the Walton-Matthews case (1860), there are reports of six other notable—and comparatively little known—affairs. Two exceptions to the general stodginess are Angelica Gibbs's account of the murder of Julia Wilkins (1919), and a real honey—'The Palm-Perry Case' (1937), by Edward D. Radin." E. H.

— + New Repub 111:606 N 6 '44 130w

"'New York Murders' is a good job, well written and fairly well organized, and readers who dote on murder will find it of absorbing interest." Herbert Asbury

+ N Y Times p7 Ja 7 '45 600w

"Mr. Steel's narration of the Walton-Matthews case in 1860, the Byrnes notes on the Ryan murders in 1873, and Miss Gibbs's reconstruction of the Wilkins affair in 1919 are fine stuff for the fanciers of the Edmund Pearson school of necrology. The rest of the pieces seem tricked or prettied up for the detective-magazine trade."

New Yorker 20:87 N 4 '44 110w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p18 O 29 '44 100w

COLLIS, MAURICE. The Motherly and Auspicious. 173p il $2.75 Putnam [12s 6d Faber]

822 Tzŭ-hsi, empress dowager of China—Drama 44-3545

A biography, in the form of a play, of the Empress Dowager Tzu Hsi. In a lengthy introduction the author says his chief source of material is contained in private translations of the memoirs of a Chinese historian who was a court official for nineteen years before the death of the Emperor Kuang Hsu in 1908.

Booklist 40:337 Je 1 '44

"A play designed to be read, rather than acted."

Kirkus 12:129 Mr 15 '44 160w

"Mr. Collis has done his work well." O. M.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 D 17 '43 180w

"Mr. Collis has created Wu-Tan, the Mentor, to link the scenes historically with elaborate farcical speeches. With the generic attitude of official historians, Wu-Tan defends the status quo and comfortably glosses over the crimes of his ruler. His complacency offers a plausible explanation of why tyranny survives; it does not perform the same service for the vehicle in which he appears." Isabelle Mallet

— N Y Times p8 My 21 '44 480w

"Some experience in the quagmire of recent Chinese history, some painful knowledge of how sparingly and inaccurately the paths through the quagmire are marked, make us hesitate to accept as the ultimate gospel the Chinese authorities on which Mr. Collis so lavishly and lightheartedly draws. Particularly do we feel suspicious of his T'ung Chih sequences. . . These however are technical objections. More serious is Mr. Collis' failure to illuminate the psychology of Tze Hsi. . . Nevertheless, for all its rather old-fashioned air, the play is often effective."

+ — Spec 171:604 D 24 '43 300w

Theatre Arts 28:621 O '44 310w

"Mr. Collis's portrait in red and black may prove to be a good thriller, but as a contribution to history it is negligible, as literature disappointing, and its dialogue and plot present a somewhat crude travesty of mandarin manners and modes of thought."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p8 Ja 1 '44 600w

"In this dramatic form the alleged historical facts are not likely to attract enough serious attention to bring out the drama's merits or shortcomings as history, unless it suggests a scenario to Hollywood; while, in its present form, it is not easily digested reading. If Mr. Collis had written a straight biography with a title that meant something his book would not have been dull, for he is incapable of dullness, and it might have had some historical value." Rodney Gilbert

Weekly Book Review p18 Je 4 '44 1100w

COLMAN, ELIZABETH. Portugal, wharf of Europe. 91p il $1.50 Scribner

914.69 Portugal—Description and travel 44-7322

"A brief introduction to Portugal's history, people, and country, especially Lisbon and the fishing and wine-growing districts. A final chapter mentions Portugal's place in the world at war and in the postwar world. Most important are the excellent photographs; the text suffers from lack of definite style. Bibliography: p.51. Junior high school." Booklist

Booklist 41:61 O 15 '44

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 D 28 '44 80w

"Miss Colman has done well in giving the story convenient and agreeable form."
+ Horn Bk 20:490 N '44 80w

"Excellent text which gives one the feel of the country."
+ Kirkus 12:433 S 15 '44 70w

"Recommended." A. M. Wetherell
+ Library J 69:1051 D 1 '44 60w

"A timely and informing book that tells of old and new events in Portuguese history."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:48 N 11 '44 30w

"The generosity and warmth of the Portuguese are feelingly described by the author out of her own experience. An additional attraction of this book are the striking photographs she took during her visit." M. E. S.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d S 10 '44 220w
Wis Lib Bul 40:150 N '44

COLTER, ELI. Gull cove murders. 182p $2 Mill 44-3666

Detective story.

Boston Globe p17 My 10 '44 30w

"Run of the Mill."
Kirkus 12:107 Mr 1 '44 50w

"It is not a pleasing story, nor is it particularly well told." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p12 Ap 9 '44 100w

COLVER, MRS ALICE MARY (ROSS). Fourways. 288p $2 Macrae Smith co. 44-4517

Story of marriage and its problems as faced by a New England farmer, and his gently bred city wife. The time covered is from 1923 to 1943, and it is the war with its bigger problems which is responsible for smoothing away the difficulties of the marriage.

Kirkus 12:122 Mr 15 '44 130w

"The characters are believably drawn and meet life with a seriousness appropriate to these times—a departure from this writer's recent works." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p12 My 21 '44 100w

"Provides a good story in the better 'light-novel' class."
+ Wis Lib Bul 40:110 Jl '44

COLVIN, FRED HERBERT. Planing, shaping and slotting. 125p il $1.25 McGraw

621.91 Planing machines 43-15986

"A concise, practical manual presenting the essentials of the use, setting-up, and operation of planers, shapers, and slotters. . . Many examples are taken from some of the best known machines of each class, with illustrations of the machines and names of the principal parts. Various kinds of work done on each type of machine are also shown by examples from actual shop practice." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 40:159 Ja 1 '44
Library J 68:960 N 15 '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:64 O '43

COLVIN, FRED HERBERT, and STANLEY, FRANK ARTHUR. Drilling and surfacing practice; drilling, reaming, tapping, planing, shaping, slotting, milling, and broaching; incl. wartime data supplement. 2d ed 476p il $4 McGraw

621.9 Machine tools 43-18455

"The chief change is the addition of 40 pages of information on new methods of deep-hole drilling, milling, and broaching developed in war plants." (Booklist) For earlier edition see Book Review Digest, 1936.

Booklist 40:214 F 15 '44
N Y New Tech Bks 29:26 Ap '44

COMFORT, WILLIAM WISTAR. William Penn, 1644-1718; a tercentenary estimate. 185p $2 Univ. of Pa. press

B or 92 Penn, William 44-3777

Biography of William Penn and a re-evaluation of his work by a present day Quaker, president emeritus of Haverford college. In his Preface the author reveals his purpose: "What the modern reader may wish to know is how Penn became the kind of man he was, and what inspired the 'Holy Experiment' which has had such significant results in his own beloved 'Province' and in the larger sphere of American democracy. For, to say that Pennsylvania was founded by Penn and that Penn was a Quaker is true, but the statement is an inadequate explanation of why Pennsylvania was unique among the American colonies. Few men have done so much to fix in America the demand for the Four Freedoms." (Pref)

"The book is well written. Much of it is freshly and happily expressed. The fastidious scholar who is annoyed to note two errors in the first four sentences need not be unduly discouraged about reading further. The score for accuracy throughout the volume runs much higher than that. Real skill has been required to embody in so short a volume so much of fact and comment and particularly so much well-chosen quotation from William Penn himself." H. J. Cadbury
+ Am Hist R 50:134 O '44 850w

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p4 Ap 9 '44 170w
Booklist 41:106 D 1 '44

"The book, short and unpretentious as it is, is unmistakably the firm, mature product of a long intimacy with the writings and other surviving memorials of William Penn. . . What baffles this reviewer is the question why Mr. Comfort, who knows Penn so thoroughly and so sympathetically, should have written about him in a tone of apology." George Genzmer
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:43 S 16 '44 700w
School & Society 59:223 Mr 25 '44 10w
Social Studies 35:287 O '44 50w

Reviewed by G. A. Walton
Social Studies 35:331 N '44 650w

Reviewed by J. W. Harvey
Spec 173:556 D 15 '44 850w

"In view of the nature of the book, it is somewhat surprising—and distinctly disappointing—that the author does not include any critical comments on the earlier biographies. It is clear that he is thoroughly familiar with them—and one suspects that he has opinions about them that would be worth reading. It is a pity that he refrained. . . Dr Comfort is described as 'professor emeritus.' One feels sorry for the students who no longer hear him. A man who writes that there is 'a vast prison literature and it is above the average' is a man worth knowing." S. L. Jackson
+ — Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 17 '44 500w

"An admirably lucid and well arranged study."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p476 S 30 '44 650w

COMMAGER, HENRY STEELE. Majority rule and minority rights. 92p $1.50 Oxford

321.8 Democracy. Courts—U.S. 43-15429

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

Reviewed by H. R. Spencer
Am Hist R 49:799 Jl '44 320w

"The book would be more convincing if the argument were more restrained and less free from doubt, and if the reader were not left with the impression that the author has consciously called upon only those portions of the historical record that support his point of view. But for all of its faults—some of which may be explained by its geographic piety—it is eloquent, cogent, and forthright, and its logic is at least as sound as that of most treatises defending the thesis that the author attacks." J. A. C. Grant
+ — Am Pol Sci R 38:807 Ag '44 370w

Reviewed by Belle Zeller
Ann Am Acad 232:210 Mr '44 600w

Reviewed by C. B. Swisher
Columbia Law R 44:586 Jl '44 700w

"Learned, temperate, and wise book." C. E. Wyzanski, Jr.
+ Harvard Law R 57:389 Ja '44 2250w

"This book helps dispel some of the muddled thinking of these hectic days. In addition, it reads smoothly, despite the concentrated thought in the eighty-three pages." G. F. Milton
+ Sat R of Lit 27:20 Ap 1 '44 1100w

"Mr. Commager is too clear in his thesis and too inclined to fail to take adequate account of the arguments of those who disagree with him. . . But he has made a real contribution with his work, not the least important part of which is his realization that liberalism has emphasized too much the individual interest in minority rights, and that the real task confronting us is to make clear to majorities that the interest of the whole of society is at stake in questions such as those raised by legislation impairing any aspect of civil liberties in the world today." J. P. C. Carey
+ — Survey G 33:364 Ag '44 400w

"Mr. Commager's little book is a reconsideration of a very old, a very basic, and a very challenging question, 'the problem of majority rule versus limited government.' His treatment, however, is limited to American experience; and his book resolves into a bitter attack upon judicial review." Louise Overacker
Yale Law J 53:377 Mr '44 900w

COMMITTEE ON AMERICAN HISTORY IN SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES. American history in schools and colleges. 148p il maps $1.25 Macmillan

973.07 U.S.—History—Study and teaching 44-611

"This book, containing the report of the recent history survey financed by the Rockefeller Foundation, presents a blueprint for the improvement of United States history in our schools and colleges. [It has been] sponsored by the American Historical Association, the Mississippi Valley Historical Association and the National Council for the Social Studies, under the direction of Prof. Edgar B. Wesley of the University of Minnesota." N Y Times

Current Hist 6:355 Ap '44 40w
Reviewed by Willard Thorp
New Repub 110:418 Mr 27 '44 1300w
Reviewed by Benjamin Fine
N Y Times p13 F 27 '44 320w
Reviewed by Henry Johnson
School & Society 59:254 Ap 8 '44 1350w

"In spite of shortcomings induced by attempts to cover so much ground in so little space, this report bids fair to stimulate discussion and not a little actual change in practice. Not only does it have a message for social-studies teachers, but administrators, college professors, curriculum advisers, schoolboard members, parents, and faculties can gain much through consideration of the recommendations made. If only one per cent of the suggestions contained in the report result in action, this little book will have proved again the virtues inherent in adversity." R. B. Edgerton
+ — School R 52:313 My '44 1700w
Social Studies 35:192 Ap '44 60w

COMPLETE photographer, a complete guide to amateur and professional photography; Willard D. Morgan, general editor. 10v il $37.50; to libraries $29.25 Nat. educ. alliance

770.3 Photography 44-7245

"The Complete Photographer, described on the title page as 'a complete guide to amateur and professional photography,' is a reprint, without any rearrangement of content, of 55 issues of a periodical of the same title published three times a month from 1941 to 1943 at 35 cents per copy. Both the set under review and the periodical are identical in content except that the set includes an index to each volume and omits a few pages of introductory material from various issues of the magazine. According to information recently received by the Committee, the same material is contained in a current periodical, appearing three times monthly at 35 cents per issue. . . In addition to a master index, the separate index volume contains a selected bibliography, a glossary of photographic terms, some corrections and illustrations. . . Except for a few introductory articles in Volume 1, the set is arranged alphabetically by the titles of articles. This undesirable scheme is followed even when the first word has no subject significance." Subscription Bks Bul

N Y New Tech Bks 29:29 Ap '44

"All articles examined are clearly written. The material appears to be accurate and up-to-date. . . Most of the longer articles include cross references to other articles. Unfortunately some refer to titles not used in the text. . . The paper and printing and the reproduction of the illustrations are excellent. Possibly due to wartime restrictions, the inner margin is very narrow. The sewing of the volumes appears to be quite substantial, but the material used for the cover is of only fair quality. Despite the limitations of its arrangement, The Complete Photographer indexes and brings together in one place a considerable variety of accurate and useful information on photography, as well as a partially indexed collection of photographs. For this reason the set is recommended for libraries that need a reference work of this scope and do not already have this content available in periodical form."
+ — Subscription Bks Bul 15:42 O '44 900w

COMSTOCK, JOHN PAUL. Introduction to naval architecture. 2d ed 209p il $4 Simmons-Boardman

623.81 Naval architecture 44-5924

"A textbook of theoretical naval architecture, based on the apprentice course of the Newport News shipbuilding and dry dock company; suitable for high school graduates." (Booklist) "Minor changes and the addition of thirteen pages of photographs of ships in process of building, differentiate this edition from the previous edition [Book Review Digest, 1942]." (N Y New Tech Bks) Answers to problems. Index.

Booklist 40:391 Jl 15 '44
N Y New Tech Bks 29:32 Ap '44

CONFERENCE ON SCIENCE, PHILOSOPHY AND RELIGION IN THEIR RELATION TO THE DEMOCRATIC WAY OF LIFE. 4th, NEW YORK. Approaches to world peace; fourth symposium; ed. by Lyman Bryson [and others]. 973p $5 Harper

172.4 Peace. Science. Philosophy. Religion. Reconstruction (1939-)

"The papers of the fourth symposium, held at Columbia University a year ago, of the Con-

CONFERENCE ON SCIENCE [etc.]—Cont. ference on Science, Philosophy and Religion in Their Relation to the Democratic Way of Life. They deal with the relationship to peace of such factors as the social sciences, art, education, philosophy, religion, etc." Commonweal

"On the whole, the book is chiefly valuable as a work of reference for those interested in peace problems. It would be difficult for anyone other than a special student of war and peace to plow through the book consecutively, though many of the papers are very interesting and suggestive: for example, those of Harry Lasswell and George N. Shuster. If the book fails to come to grips with most of the concrete issues which face the world today and ignores most of the policies of those currently in control of the destinies of nations, it will nevertheless be of much value for those concerned with the abstract principles involved in the problems of war and peace. Very few topics connected therewith are ignored in this encyclopedic work." H. E. Barnes

+ — Am Soc R 9:706 D '44 700w

Booklist 41:7 S '44

Christian Century 61:1026 S 6 '44 170w

Commonweal 40:476 S 1 '44 50w

"The contents will be found both educational and for the most part plainly worded. The papers included were prepared for the fourth meeting of the Conference, held at Columbia University in September, 1943, and while they represent only the opinions of the individual authors, and not the sponsoring body, there is so much valuable thought in the addresses, with comments by some of the listeners present, that the disclaimer is a formality." Roy Hillbrook

+ Current Hist 7:225 S '44 700w

Foreign Affairs 23:4 O '44 40w

"The Archpriest of Hita once wrote a defense of little things that is still quoted these four hundred years later. No one has yet penned so spirited a defense of elephants. Which is a pity, for a book like this—973 pages long, by fifty-nine authors in the learned professions—needs a lively justification to save it for the layman. He may not otherwise know that in spite of its girth and weight it manages to be both stimulating and provocative." Mildred Adams

+ N Y Times p5 Ag 13 '44 750w

"Here is the final fruit of a huge effort in intellectual cooperation that must be encouraging. The mere coming together of two hundred scholars and writers in these troubled days is a significant event. The fact that a large percentage of them prepared lengthy papers and exchanged written comments is a tribute to their good will and to the organizing talents of the leaders of the conference. 'Approaches to World Peace' is a mine, a storehouse, an embarrassment of riches, if not a well-unified book." Houston Peterson

+ — Sat R of Lit 27:19 S 16 '44 1250w

School & Society 60:80 Jl 29 '44 40w

Reviewed by H. B. Parkes
Weekly Book Review p12 S 24 '44 250w

Wis Lib Bul 40:127 O '44

CONFERENCE ON THE SCIENTIFIC SPIRIT AND DEMOCRATIC FAITH, NEW YORK, 1943. Scientific spirit and democratic faith; papers from the Conference, held in New York city, May, 1943. 92p pa $1.25 Columbia univ. press

323.44 Liberty. Democracy. Science. Religion A44-2604

Contents: Introduction, by E. C. Lindeman; The authoritarian assault on democracy: Freedom and authoritarianism in religion, by H. M. Kallen; Authoritarianism and supernaturalism, by M. C. Otto; Ethics and the functioning of democracy, by A. E. Morgan; Science and morality: Scientists and moral isolationism, by H. A. Larrabee; The moral code of scientists, by M. A. May; Science as international ethics, by Sir Richard Gregory; The democratic responsibilities of science, by Arnold Dresden and others; Religion in relation to science and democracy: The democratic responsibility of religious leadership, by Jerome Nathanson; Theology and the individual, by Brand Blanshard; The power of free religion, by H. W. Schneider.

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p2 S 24 '44 180w

Reviewed by G. W. Davis
Crozer Q 22:82 Ja '45 900w

"This is a book for all who are seeking a philosophy for our confused times, who are attempting to define the issues of the war and to justify liberal ideals and a belief in progress."

+ School & Society 60:32 Jl 8 '44 40w

CONGER, ELIZABETH MALLETT. American tanks and tank destroyers. 159p il $2 Holt

358.1 Tanks (military science). Mechanization, Military 44-6929

"General Patton's triumphs in France make most timely this comprehensive, accurate but simple description of vehicles, weapons, men and maneuvers of the armored forces. Covers history and development of tanks and tank strategy, peeps, jeeps, seeps, ducks, half-tracks, weapons of the armored infantry and artillery, duties of armored engineers, Ordnance Department, and tank destroyer forces. Many photographs, index, bibliography." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 41:43 O 1 '44

Horn Bk 20:493 N '44 70w

"Excellent factual book."

+ Kirkus 12:376 Ag 15 '44 130w

"Recommended especially for older boys and girls but of some value for young people's collections needing simple books." M. C. Scoggin

+ Library J 69:702 S 1 '44 100w

New Yorker 20:92 D 16 '44 20w

Springf'd Republican p4d S 10 '44 80w

CONGRESS OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, 2d, NEW YORK, 1943. Science in Soviet Russia; papers presented at [the] Congress; under the auspices of the Nat. council of American-Soviet friendship. 97p $1.50 Cattell

506.31 Science 44-6765

"The Congress of American-Soviet Friendship held in New York on November 7, 1943, the tenth anniversary of the establishment of diplomatic relations between the U. S. A. and the U. S. S. R., included a 'Science Panel' at which the papers assembled in this volume were presented. The 'Panel' was organized in two divisions, with Professor Harold C. Urey as chairman of the portion concerned with 'Soviet Science and Technology', and Professor Walter B. Cannon, as chairman for 'Public Health and Wartime Medicine in the U. S. S. R.' " (Scientific Bk Club R) Contents: Soviet exploration and geography, by G. H. Wilkins; Soviet developments in electronics, by V. K. Zworykin; Common frontiers in geology and related sciences in the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A., by S. W. Muller; Advances in Soviet geology and mineralogy, by C. O. Dunbar; Soviet soil technology and agriculture, by C. E. Kellogg; Soviet research in the biological sciences, by L. C. Dunn; Bacteriology in the Soviet Union, by Selman Waksman; Soviet science and democracy, by A. W. Curtis; Soviet studies on viruses, by W. M. Stanley; Russian advances in military medicine, by Vladimir Lebedenko; The recent surgical mission to the U.S.S.R., by Wilder Penfield; Russian medicine organized for war, by Hugh Cabot; Public health in the Soviet Union, by C.-E. A. Winslow; Industrial medicine in the U.S.S.R., by Alice Hamilton; Trans-Atlantic message to Science Congress from Sir Robert Watson Watts; Messages of greeting to Science Congress. No index.

Library J 69:815 O 1 '44 110w

Scientific Bk Club R 15:4 S '44 350w

"Several of the authors note the unusual prominence of women in Russian activities, and most of them stress the fact that the Russian government, while urging the fullest and promptest application of all new discoveries, has, nevertheless, allowed ample funds and opportunity for work along purely theoretical lines. As a whole this publication seems scarcely justified in view of the paper shortage." W. B. Kirkham

Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 19 '44 270w

CONNINGTON, J. J., pseud. See Stewart, A. W.

CONNOLLY, JAMES BRENDAN. Sea-borne; thirty years avoyaging. 246p $3 Doubleday
B or 92 44-40152

Autobiography of the American athlete and writer, whose stories of the Gloucester fishermen have become near-classics. He tells of his travels, his trips to the Olympic games where he twice established world's records, his experiences in the Spanish-American war, and with the Gloucester fishermen, his fishing with German fleets in the Baltic, and with the whalers in the Arctic. During the first World war he covered u-boat activities for Colliers, and these experiences are also included.

Book Week p8 Jl 30 '44 120w
Booklist 40:389 Jl 15 '44

Reviewed by G. M. Galbraith
Cath World 159:567 S '44 360w
Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Je '44

"A volume which one ventures to think is really more interesting—is certainly more fun to read—than his earlier books. For he does not hesitate to make what he writes intensely personal—he is a good enough writer to know that only personal treatment can possibly excite a reader's interest when the subject matter is autobiographical. It is hard, therefore, to imagine that anyone who is in the slightest way interested in the great waters of the world and the people who make their livings navigating those waters could fail to enjoy this book. Certainly it is not even a minor classic, such as 'The Cruise of the Cachelot,' but for our day and time it gives welcome light reading, with just enough seriousness to season it and to make us think a little."
+ Commonweal 40:303 Jl 14 '44 1600w

"Full of good salt water yarns and characters. Good escape reading."
+ Kirkus 12:192 Ap 15 '44 110w

"Highly recommended for its Gloucester fishing and sea experiences ranging from cattle boats to luxury liners, for its Spanish-American and World War I adventures and the recalling of events of the past half century. A bit of brag as to personal exploits." H. A. Wooster
+ Library J 69:601 Jl '44 80w

"Writing with the quiet humor of the sailor, Mr. Connolly is at his best describing life with the fishermen from many lands—Massachusetts, England, Germany, Norway. . . The author is less forthright in discussing what he calls 'the mystery of the Lusitania.' One wonders if his allegations of British mismanagement just before that famous tragedy might not be better left unsaid, if he is unable to present the full facts." John Gould
+ — N Y Times p5 Jl 23 '44 380w
Springf'd Republican p4d Jl 23 '44 600w

"When a man with a past rich in incident and adventure sits down to write his autobiography, and when besides this man is an Irishman with humor and a flow of language at his command, a man who likes every bit of his past and enjoys thinking and talking about it, a pleasing performance is in order. James B. Connolly has not failed us in this regard." Lincoln Colcord
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Jl 30 '44 950w
Wis Lib Bul 40:126 O '44

CONNOLLY, TERENCE LEO. Francis Thompson: in his paths; a visit to persons and places associated with the poet. (Science and culture ser) 204p il $2.75 Bruce pub.
B or 92 Thompson, Francis 44-51026

"This book by Father Terence Connolly, chairman of the Department of English at Boston College, is not a conventional biography of Thompson. It is a simple, straightforward record of Father Connolly's pilgrimage to the places in England where Thompson lived and suffered. Its chief merit is its warm picture of English Catholic life, beginning with a superb portrait of Wilfred Meynell (now 92) at home among his Thompson mementos." Time

"A man of honest and inquiring mind, Father Connolly succeeded in turning up all sorts of odd and interesting facts about Thompson, Coventry Patmore, Blunt and other Catholic Victorian writers. However, I should be happier about his literary judgments if he did not write as though he were on the trail of a saint. . . The warm, generous personality of Wilfred Meynell, past his 90th year when this book was written, emerges strongly from Father Connolly's pages. He is as honest a reporter as one could hope to meet; his observations and research in Manchester, where Thompson spent his most miserable years, and in those places where Thompson failed, first in his inclination to be a priest, and second in his disinclination to be a doctor, are very forthright. So forthright as to be bluntly funny at times." Leo Kennedy
+ — Book Week p11 Ja 14 '45 430w

"Father Connolly's book is an admirable supplement to Everard Meynell's Life of Francis Thompson." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 69:760 S 15 '44 90w

" 'Francis Thompson: In His Paths' is a book written out of the heart. It will delight the ever-increasing Thompson following. It should prove an excellent sampler for those who know the poet only through 'The Hound of Heaven.' " A. F. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 28:26 Ja 13 '45 550w
+ Time 45:85 Ja 8 '45 850w

CONRAD, BRENDA. Girl with a golden bar. 244p $2 Scribner
44-4518

Nancy Randall, second lieutenant in the Army nurse corps, is the wearer of the gold bar. At the Texas camp where she is assigned for duty she finds a man who helps her to forget an unhappy earlier love affair.

"The espionage part of the tale, while figuring importantly in the denouement, is secondary to who loves whom. Fortunately, the people are real and talk and act (as much as the story will let them) like human beings. Those who go for the triangle-turned-quadrangle will eat it up; those who don't like that kind of thing mixed up in a spy tale had better go elsewhere." Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p4 Je 11 '44 200w
Kirkus 12:28 Ja 15 '44 90w

"This is just the book for those who like love stories with a military flavor." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p17 Je 11 '44 100w

"Readers who when young relished the Nancy Drew stories will find Brenda Conrad's 'The Girl with the Golden Bar' a grownup equivalent. The goody-goody heroine, the tall and dark villain, the scatterbrained kid brother and indulgent papa all get themselves into impossible scrapes—and find the U. S. army incredibly lenient. But if you have nothing better to do. . ." A. H.
Springf'd Republican p4d Jl 9 '44 60w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p13 My 7 '44 80w

CONSTANTINO, S. A. Amen, Amen. 184p $2 Harper
170 Christian ethics 44-651

A young navy flier writes about religion, money, and the moral law. His style is breezy and journalistic.

"Constantino is a deeply religious man. He is writing for the average soldier, sailor or marine and no doubt his breezy style will attract many who will profit by reading this little book. It will have no effect on the more intelligent youth. As he is naive about economics, so is he naive about religion." J. M. Yard

CONSTANTINO, S. A.—Continued

Book Week p3 F 6 '44 360w

"This is not a book for babes; but, even in understatement, it may be described as worth its weight in gold." Joseph McSorley

+ Cath World 158:599 Mr '44 230w

"The thinking is elementary but much of the argument is cogent."

Christian Century 61:277 Mr 1 '44 160w

Reviewed by W. F. Thompson

Churchman 158:17 Ap 1 '44 150w

"Ensign Constantino is a young Catholic who is more disturbed than most of his fellows over the lack of religion and the deterioration of morals in the country he is fighting for. He has come forward with a little book intended to do its bit in remedying this sorry state. . . Unfortunately his stylistic breeziness, pep and Christian zeal hardly make up for his failure to grasp many of the real difficulties in the big questions he settles with such ease."

Commonweal 39:524 Mr 10 '44 210w

"Though this is published under the imprint of the religious book department, it very definitely is not a book for the religious book market. Amen, Amen will not appeal to church people. If it finds a wide reading public among non-church goers it may prove what we suspect, that one reason the church is not reaching those outside is that most clergymen and religious writers do not speak their language. . . God, sex and money—favorite topics of conversation in the armed forces, are dealt with in language frankly more of the mess hall than the church."

Kirkus 12:64 F 1 '44 240w

"This reviewer, without actively doubting the initial premise, found himself questioning more and more of Constantino's observations as he skated rapidly past labor relations, capitalism, international relations and city ordinances. Perhaps this attitude is pretty unappreciative of simple faith in modern idiom. But is it heresy to suggest that in loving one's neighbor it's well to do so with intelligence and knowledge?" Marshall Bragdon

Springf'd Republican p6 Ja 29 '44 600w

Weekly Book Review p8 Mr 26 '44 130w

COOK, DON. Fighting Americans of today. 191p il $2.50 Dutton

940.5373 World war, 1939—Biography. World war, 1939—U.S. 44-2739

Popularly written, biographical sketches of Dwight D. Eisenhower, Mark Wayne Clark, Lesley James McNair, Carl A. Spaatz, George S. Patton, Jr., William F. Halsey, Jr., Alexander Archer Vandegrift, Claire L. Chennault, Joseph W. Stilwell, Douglas A. MacArthur, George C. Marshall, Ernest J. King, Henry H. Arnold, James H. Doolittle.

Booklist 40:379 Jl 1 '44

"Written in a somewhat breezy, journalistic style, the accounts of the fourteen leaders are packed with information and exciting adventure stories." H. A. Masten

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 My 11 '44 90w

"Young readers, especially boys, will love this book of adventure based on the lives of living Americans about whom they are reading daily in the press. . . Here are vivid stories told in an exciting style of Eisenhower, MacArthur, Vandegrift, Halsey and Spaatz, and many others of our fighting leaders."

+ Kirkus 12:174 Ap 1 '44 90w

Reviewed by Gertrude Andrus

Library J 69:465 My 15 '44 80w

Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 23 '44 110w

COOKE, DAVID COXE, ed. See Aircraft annual

COOKE, MORRIS LLEWELLYN. Brazil on the march; a study in international cooperation. (Whittlesey house publication) 303p il $3 McGraw

330.981 Brazil—Industries and resources. Brazil—Relations (general) with the U.S. U.S.—Relations (general) with Brazil 44-7171

"'Science and technology build nations by cooperation rather than by rivalry for empire.' It was in that spirit that the American Technical Mission to Brazil was organized during the summer of 1942 by the Board of Economic Warfare with the collaboration of the State Department, the War Production Board and the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs. The technical report of the Mission has been distributed for the confidential use of both governments. In this book the chairman of the Mission presents 'to the non-technical reader a résumé of those portions of [its] findings which throw light on the development of present-day Brazil.'" (Scientific Bk Club R) Index.

Reviewed by S. G. Hanson

Ann Am Acad 237:222 Ja '45 450w

Booklist 41:35 O 1 '44

Reviewed by J. A. Lee

Chem & Met Eng 51:193 N '44 450w

Commonweal 40:498 S 8 '44 550w

"A book largely of interest to the business man or the investor, with an eye to the future in the south."

Kirkus 12:269 Je 15 '44 130w

"Excellent economic study of Brazil. . . Compact, well written, conservative in tone. Recommended for the mature reader." Rice Estes

+ Library J 69:648 Ag '44 90w

"The material is not unfamiliar. It is the attitude of the author toward that material which makes this one of the least delusive and most interesting short surveys of a neighbor nation that have yet been published. Mr. Cooke manages to combine the realism of an engineer tackling a problem that has balked his predecessors, the urbanity of a diplomat discussing sore points gently, and the adroitness of a politician quoting the National Association of Manufacturers to bulwark a New Deal point of view." Mildred Adams

+ N Y Times p6 O 1 '44 850w

Scientific Bk Club R 15:3 S '44 360w

Reviewed by J. B. Buxton

Springf'd Republican p4d S 10 '44 600w

"This is a tonic book for those who would understand Brazil. If Mr. Cooke errs, it is on the side of optimism and good will." Hubert Herring

+ — Weekly Book Review p8 O 8 '44 800w

Reviewed by W. G. Fletcher

Yale R n s 34:367 winter '45 240w

COOLEY, DONALD G. Your world tomorrow, by Donald G. Cooley and editors of Mechanix illustrated. 252p il maps $2.50 Essential bks.

600 Progress. Inventions 44-40088

Study of the world of the future, which will bring drastic changes to every phase of life from transportation to cooking. Contents: Your next automobile; Your peacetime house; Coming household equipment; New radios and television; The amazing helicopter; Transport revolution; Your post-war boat; Food, clothing, and health; The farm of tomorrow; Electronics: Magic in a tube; Chemistry: A world remade; The new leisure: sports, hobbies; Careers for tomorrow. No index.

Booklist 40:297 My 1 '44

Bookmark 5:7 My '44

"Not just 'bubble thinking', but even if it were, fun reading."

+ Kirkus 12:164 Ap 1 '44 150w

Library J 69:462 My 15 '44 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:31 Ap '44

Reviewed by Waldemar Kaempffert

Sat R of Lit 27:14 Ap 22 '44 650w

"'Your World Tomorrow' is perhaps entertaining, but not very useful—this reviewer wagers—in sketching our way of living a few years after the war. Every publisher seems to be hunting for one book on tomorrow's miracles; this one picked an author who leaps imaginatively from here to there with little regard for the way things evolve even in a relatively fast-changing century such as this."
Springf'd Republican p6 My 22 '44 320w

Reviewed by D. O. Woodbury
Weekly Book Review p23 My 14 '44 350w

COOPER, MRS LOUISE (FIELD). Love and admiration. 154p $2.50 Duell
44-51275

A volume of short sketches nearly all of them reprinted from the New Yorker. Most of them deal with Mrs Findlay, a suburban matron, her family, her dog, her women friends and their club meetings.

Reviewed by Sherman Conrad
Book Week p12 N 26 '44 600w

Booklist 41:140 Ja 1 '45

Kirkus 12:410 S 15 '44 100w

Reviewed by H. G. Kelley
Library J 69:1000 N 15 '44 70w

"Although Mrs. Findlay looks a little like an American cousin of Mrs. Miniver—and Suburbia itself is uncompromisingly familiar—the writer's sense of humor deftly transfers the whole set-up to the realm of uncharted territory where it can be enjoyed a good deal." Isabelle Mallet
+ N Y Times p6 D 17 '44 300w

New Yorker 20:104 D 2 '44 50w

Reviewed by E. P. Werby
Springf'd Republican p4d D 10 '44 250w

"Here is a book full of buoyancy and fun, written with wit but with never a wisecrack, with artistry but without artifice—a book of short pieces as prankish as Dorothy Parker's and yet as mannerly as Katherine Mansfield's. Few writing in English today can pack more emotional impact into a graceful phrase than Louise Field Cooper, and one hopes that with this, her third book, she will come nearer to the recognition she deserves." Marion Sturges-Jones
+ Weekly Book Review p4 N 26 '44 550w

COPE, HARLEY FRANCIS, ed. Navy shipboard administration; a guide for the naval officer. 281p $2.75 Norton
359 U.S. Navy—Officers' handbooks
44-3526

A companion volume to Command at Sea (Book Review Digest, 1943). This work consists of articles, written by various hands, on shipboard administration and organization. Contents: The captain and the ship, by H. F. Cope; The executive officer, by T. R. Wirth; The navigator, by Church Chappell; The engineer officer, by Diggs Logan; The gunnery officer, by W. S. Mayer; The first lieutenant and damage-control officer, by Church Chappell; The air department, by J. E. Leeper; The communication officer, by Church Chappell; The supply officer, by C. G. De Kay; The medical officer, by E. F. Evans; The chaplain, by W. J. Kuhn; Final remarks, by H. F. Cope; Recipe for survival, by W. C. Chambliss. Index.

Booklist 40:296 My 1 '44

Christian Science Monitor p13 D 23 '44 110w

Kirkus 12:35 Ja 15 '44 170w

CORBAN, EULA BEE; HALLOCK, ESTHER ROBERTSON, and MARTIN, MABEL. Eat to live; the blue book of cooking. 140p $1.75 Mill
641.5 Cookery
43-17880

Guide to cooking in wartime, with special attention to vitamin content. Some chapters are: A guide to menu planning; Meat stretchers; Sea food stretchers; Cheese and egg dishes; Vegetables (as meat alternates); Miscellaneous stretchers (butter, cream, chocolate); Adding zest to home-canned fruits and vegetables. The authors are teachers at Queens college, and the Ballard school of the New York YWCA. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 40:207 F 15 '44

Bookmark 5:6 Mr '44

"Even if the busy war worker or other housewife with more than one job on her hands cannot take the time to study and follow the guide, she should find the recipes of interest." M. L. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p10 D 23 '43 170w

Wis Lib Bul 40:35 Mr '44

CORDINGLY, E. G. R. The next move is . . . .; studies in chess combinations. 88p $1.50 McKay [3s 6d Bell, G]
794.1 Chess
44-9429

"This book sets out 250 positions from actual play, mainly by great masters, and is so designed that the reader may test his abilities by deciding what his own next move or moves would be. The game-continuations and analysis will be found in a separate section following the diagrams." Publisher's note

"This little book, so slim and narrow that it slips easily into the coat pocket, is a most attractive addition for any chess library."
+ N Y Times p28 Ja 14 '45 160w

Times [London] Lit Sup p167 Ap 1 '44 60w

CORES, LUCY MICHAELLA. Corpse de ballet. 249p $2.50 Duell
44-40130

Detective story.

"Do not be misled into thinking the mise en scene presupposes a superficial, sugar-coated tale. The writing is anything but trivial. Miss Cores knows her ballet life; there is sinew underneath the tinsel, and I am sure you will have a very good time." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p11 Ap 30 '44 180w

Booklist 40:356 Je 15 '44

"Very nice—very smooth tale of murders in a ballet troupe."
+ Kirkus 12:202 My 1 '44 40w

"Technical knowledge and a good plot make this story of the murder of Vova Izlomin—once insane Russian dancer and now star of the company—a worthwhile job." E. H.
+ New Repub 110:770 Je 5 '44 70w

"The picture that the author draws of life behind the scenes lacks the glamour of the ballet as seen from the front of the house and verges on malicious caricature." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p14 My 7 '44 90w

"Very ingenious, in spite of its unfortunate title, and when you have finished it you will probably know all that you'll ever need to about ballet."
+ — New Yorker 20:88 My 6 '44 90w

"Exotic ballet background interesting and well done. Puzzle well worked out with special punch at finish."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:33 Ap 22 '44 40w

"A whodunit that has practically everything, including great hunks of authentic atmosphere, people to match, clever choreography, slick wordage and a whopping final surprise. A Grade A background mystery." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p19 Ap 30 '44 100w

COREY, PAUL. Buy an acre. 204p $2 Dial press
630.1 Country life. Dwellings
Agr44-188

A book of advice for the "little fellow," the man or woman with some kind of a job who wants to build up a life in the country for himself and his family. Mr Corey says he must be willing and able to save $5 weekly to put into the project, be willing to build a temporary home and a permanent one by his own labor, live for a time in a chicken house,

COREY, PAUL—Continued
spade up his own garden plot, raise chickens —and then if he's the right kind Mr Corey believes he will be a true pioneer of the Second Frontier.

"Corey's book is down to earth and straight from the shoulder on every page. Yet it is one of the most truly far-seeing and most deeply significant books about our times that I've read." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p2 My 7 '44 500w
Booklist 40:335 Je 1 '44

"Paul Corey, prophet of the Second Frontier and the three-day week, doesn't paint a rosy, phony picture of how the average 'little fellow' can get for himself that dreamed-of home in the country with an acre of land. He begins in forceful, sometimes dogmatic style, by painting a most discouraging picture of life in the country. He likens life in the country to being surrounded 'by many swords of Damocles,' but it's plain to see that he loves it."
+ Boston Globe p19 My 17 '44 190w
Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '44

"Thoroughly realistic and debunking book for those who will face up to the facts."
+ Kirkus 12:213 My 1 '44 110w

"Mr. Corey talks turkey from start to finish. .. Briefly, Mr. Corey holds that no man should buy, build or improve his rural holdings until he has the dollars set aside. He proves his point, step by step, with refreshing and, at times, mildly profane argument." Meyer Berger
+ N Y Times p26 Je 4 '44 180w

"This is more than a handy man's guide to living in the country; it amounts to the manifesto of a crusade against mass production and living up to the Joneses, and for a second frontier on your own soil."
+ Weekly Book Review p19 My 21 '44 450w

COREY, PAUL. Red tractor. 248p $2 Morrow
44-6125

The struggle of the small farm as against that of the big "absentee owner" farms in the middle west forms the background for this story for junior and senior high school ages. Two owners of individual farms decide to buck the combine, and are joined by a third, which starts the ball rolling in favor of the small farmer.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p8 N 12 '44 180w
Reviewed by H. L. Binsse
Commonweal 41:128 N 17 '44 20w

"Not a gripping tale, but a good one. . . A cleancut farm story, of contemporary value."
+ Kirkus 12:300 Jl 1 '44 130w

"Good story to acquaint New England youth with present day problems of the Middle West and entertaining as well." J. E. Wooster
+ Library J 69:764 S 15 '44 70w

"Mr. Corey's characters are farmers rather than individuals and he hasn't quite caught the easy ways of youth. But there is honest excitement in this story of people putting all their strength into the effort to hold their land. It makes their victory significant even to the city-bred reader." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p18 O 22 '44 200w
Sat R of Lit 27:30 O 21 '44 320w
Springf'd Republican p4d Ja 14 '45 70w
Weekly Book Review p24 N 12 '44 380w
Wis Lib Bul 40:133 O '44

CORMACK, MARIBELLE. Road to Down under; il. by Edward Shenton. 301p $2.50 Appleton-Century 44-4111

Story of Australia in the 1840's. Hugh Reid, a Scottish crofter from the Isle of Orkney, and his family are the central characters. Barbara Reid, Hugh's beautiful young daughter is the heroine, and she finds romance in the person of a handsome Australian.

"'Road to Down Under' is a grand story for boys and girls from 12 up, with an authentic base of Australian history."
+ Book Week p7 Je 4 '44 310w
Booklist 40:393 Jl 15 '44
Reviewed by A. M. Jordon
Horn Bk 20:288 Jl '44 80w

"A timely subject, well handled, and a fine picture of life on the continent down under."
+ Kirkus 12:173 Ap 1 '44 90w

"This is an excellent story for older boys and girls." E. E. Frank
+ Library J 69:608 Jl '44 90w

"In spite of Barbara's adventures and her romance with a young Australian, story drags. Too much detail for a girl's story, not enough realism in the characters for historical novel. Good try but value is largely that of material about a little-known time of a little-known continent. A doubtful buy." M. C. Scoggin
— + Library J 69:608 Jl '44 100w

"Unfortunately, the author is so intent on developing the idea of social justice in the making that she fails to develop a good story. The Reids, even Barbara, the young heroine, are so pallidly sketched that their story lacks warmth." E. L. Buell
N Y Times p10 My 28 '44 160w

"The story is told in a neat, precise style, occasionally a bit precious like Victorian lacework. But the book is never mushy, never 'cute'—a high compliment for a story written for young girls. It presents an honest picture of the Australia of the pioneers. Without ever becoming pedantic, it gives American girls a good taste of Australian history." R. R. Plant
+ Sat R of Lit 27:30 Je 10 '44 220w

"A junior novel of pioneer life in Australia of the '40s is particularly timely. . . One is left with a sense of having shared new life in a new land." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Je 4 '44 350w

CORNELL UNIVERSITY. Conservation in the United States. See Gustafson, A. F.

CORNER, GEORGE WASHINGTON. Ourselves unborn; an embryologist's essay on man. 188p il $3 Yale univ. press
611.013 Embryology. Man A44-4743

"The author of this book, assuming no previous knowledge of biology on the part of his readers, aims to present a brief description of human development, its biological significance, and its aberrations, taking into account many recent discoveries, and emphasizing certain particular aspects which seem important for those who would construct their philosophy of life upon human realities. . . The book represents the substance of the Terry Lectures given at Yale University in March, 1944." Pref

"This is a fine book: so readable and understandable with its clear style and many excellent illustrations, so full of thought, so honest and clear-sighted that I feel sure of its appeal and value to many readers." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p2 D 31 '44 180w
Christian Century 61:1321 N 15 '44 70w

"Not a book for the layman or uninitiated, rather for a specialized, scientific audience."
Kirkus 12:315 Jl 15 '44 90w

"Lucid style, excellent diagrams and bibliography. Recommended for adult readers." D. F. Lucas
+ Library J 69:760 S 15 '44 140w

"Dr. Corner's gift for making the complexities of any of the many subjects with which he is familiar transparently clear and the charm of his style have become something of a legend among his colleagues. . . Dr. Corner assumes no previous knowledge of the subject on the part of his reader and in his first chapter proceeds to initiate the novice into the mysteries of the processes of growing more complicated. Under his expert guidance those processes do not long remain mysteries, but gradually assume a meaning and significance." M. F. Ashley Montagu
+ N Y Times p16 D 3 '44 440w

"A series of popular lectures, well written and admirably lucid, which succeed in communicating to the reader some of the author's enthusiasm for his subject."

+ New Yorker 20:84 N 4 '44 100w

"Whenever a book represents the substance of the Terry Lectures given at Yale University, we may expect reading of high excellence and of informative content. It is satisfying to find that Dr. Corner, one of America's most eminent embryologists, delivered the annual series of 1944." A. H. Compton & others

+ Scientific Bk Club R 15:1 O '44 1150w

Reviewed by H. M. Parshley

Weekly Book Review p12 Ja 21 '45 420w

CORNWELL, DOROTHEA. They dare not go a-hunting. 279p $2.50 Dodd

44-8550

A story of a triangular love affair during the course of which the girl, who had lived in a sheltered, cloistered home, gradually is awakened to life and its meaning not only in its personal relationships but also in its broader social and political aspects.

"'They Dare Not Go A-Hunting' has a fragile charm, but the total effect is too tenuous to be entirely satisfying. Although the theme is a good one, the reasons for Julia's alternate acceptance of and withdrawal from life are never quite clear or entirely believable. Some of the scenes are very competently handled, but a rather monotonous nonobservance of sentence structure and occasional overwriting detract from the book's effectiveness." Dorothy Sparks

+ — Book Week p9 N 5 '44 360w

"For this intensely feminine novel Miss Cornwell won $10,000 (less tax). All over the land, through radio soap-operas and women's magazines, this kind of story is being dished up to the literate nation. Nobody could quarrel with the moral. . . Few could carp at the organization of the story. . . What troubles me is that such spurious realism should pay off so handsomely while dozens of infinitely better books go twiddle their thumbs." Carlos Baker

— N Y Times p18 O 15 '44 400w

Reviewed by N. L. Rothman

Sat R of Lit 27:20 O 28 '44 450w

Reviewed by H. J. Sloan

Springf'd Republican p4d O 29 '44 330w

"Dorothea Cornwell tells Julia's story skilfully and with suspense. The book, like Julia, is finely wrought. Like her also, it is a bit remote, seen through glass. One is often more keenly conscious of the emotional patterns that are being worked out than of the people as such. Perceptively, it deals with a range of emotion in which a woman can linger only at peril and then traces the way out of that dangerously enchanted country which no one could find or take for Julia but herself." Mary Ross

Weekly Book Review p10 O 22 '44 500w

CORWIN, EDWARD SAMUEL. The Constitution and world organization. 64p $1 Princeton univ. press

342.73 U.S. Constitution. U.S.—Foreign relations A44-1660

"Essay by McCormick Professor of Jurisprudence at Princeton, attempts to answer question 'Does our constitutional law and governmental structure prevent us from promoting world peace?' Recalling our foreign policy following Versailles Treaty, he urges us to sacrifice our national sovereignty to promote peace." Library J

Reviewed by C. B. Swisher

Am Pol Sci R 38:813 Ag '44 370w

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick

Book Week p4 Ap 30 '44 240w

Booklist 40:333 Je 1 '44

Reviewed by Edward Skillin, Jr.

Commonweal 40:164 Je 2 '44 100w

Current Hist 6:514 Je '44 60w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:661 Jl '44 30w

"The author's long experience as student of international affairs, lecturer, professor and writer of numerous books on the subject, entitles him to a respectful hearing. Large public libraries, colleges and universities should make this available for those interested in our winning the peace." R. J. Hurley

+ Library J 69:303 Ap 1 '44 140w

Reviewed by Irving Brant

Nation 158:684 Je 10 '44 1050w

"'The Constitution and World Organization' is the kind of book more scholars should write, and more university presses should publish." E. F. Goldman

+ New Repub 110:611 My 1 '44 550w

"An extremely valuable new book." N. C.

+ Sat R of Lit 27:16 My 13 '44 1150w

CORWIN, NORMAN LEWIS. More by Corwin. 412p $3 Holt

792 Radio plays 44-2914

Sixteen short radio plays, with gently spoofing notes for production with each one. Contents: Introduction by Clifton Fadiman; Mary and the fairy; Cromer; We hold these truths; Descent of the gods; The long name none could spell; Good heavens; Psalm for a dark year; A man with a platform; Samson; Anatomy of sound; Excerpts from "This is war"; Murder in studio one; Between Americans; A moment of the nation's time; Double concerto; Program to be opened in a hundred years; Glossary.

"The plays make good reading and Corwin's program notes and technical explanations are even more fascinating. They should give you an increased respect for the potentialities of radio drama." H. T. Murdock

+ Book Week p10 Ap 23 '44 290w

Booklist 40:265 Ap 1 '44

"Perhaps the greatest of our radio dramatists—good reading for propaganda slant, for challenge to straight thinking, for craftsmanship. Important for students of a new form of writing, by a master in the field."

+ Kirkus 12:137 Mr 15 '44 60w

Library J 69:460 My 15 '44 30w

"In one sense he is still experimenting. His new collection, like his first—'Thirteen by Corwin,' published in 1942—includes satire, burlesque, poetic drama, radio essays, and fantasy. To these are added the documentaries which have been Corwin's most celebrated contribution since 1941 and one work which is nearer to lyric poetry than to any other form. There is less drama than in the earlier volume and more direct statement of idea; there is less humor and more irony, but there is also a dash of unblushing slapstick. The plays are very uneven in quality; conspicuous among the successes is the radio essay, which Corwin has now developed in a finished and highly individual style." Betsy Hutchinson

+ — Nation 159:48 Jl 8 '44 1150w

"Now and then, one suspects that the radiowright has become just a shade intoxicated by his own eloquence. More often the reader's eye will be held, as his ear must have been held when he heard the program, by a good writer's imagery, compassion, boldness of mind. With each play is a little essay on the history of its writing and first performance, together with hints to subsequent directors on its production, and a glossary of radio terms. These notes are invariably interesting, sometimes with a wry irony. The layman who reads them carefully will know a good deal more about radio than he did before." James Fuller

+ — N Y Times p13 Mr 26 '44 800w

"Upon closing this book, one wishes for the courage to ignore radio completely, except on Tuesday nights at 10 when Columbia Presents Corwin. By comparison, the rest of radio is a crickets' chirp beside a lute. If there is any hope at all of radio one day ascending to its proper place in our culture, it is Mr. Corwin, who writes with a wise and mature pen for a medium as yet barely out of the larva stage, who will light the way." Harriet Van Horne

+ Sat R of Lit 27:30 Ap 22 '44 650w

CORWIN, N. L.—Continued

"We suggest that after a first reading of any selection, let's say it is 'We Hold These Truths,' and Mr Corwin's succeeding notes, the reader turn back to the script, keeping the notes in mind. The realization then comes quick and hard that the sort of writing for which Norman Corwin is noted is no streak of madcap or frenetic genius; that into the line of solemn poetry or the exchange of easy commonplace speech has gone tireless work, hours of rejection and acceptance until the thing has an inevitable rightness." E. M. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 12 '44 250w

"The most notable of Corwin's qualities is his faith in his medium and in his audience there is evidently nothing that he considers too good for either. He has the eager curiosity about his medium which every artist has. Moreover, he has an uncannily large vocabulary of active words and he believes in all the forms in which words can work upon the human mind and emotions: prose, poetry, satire, instruction, fantasy. But since the capacity of his medium, its full range and power, is still uncharted, he is still experimenting, adding sounds and silences to words to see what they will do. But it is always as the artist that he works, using his means to gain his end."

+ Theatre Arts 28:318 My '44 550w

"Stripped of music and sound effects, several of these plays suffer badly, but some of them make stimulating or amusing reading, or both. In special notes Corwin discusses each production's esthetic, intellectual, histrionic, musical and technical problems and reveals himself as a wittily incisive personality. These notes alone make this book a 'must' for any one interested in knowing radio production, professionally or socially."

+ — Weekly Book Review p8 Ap 30 '44 300w

Wis Lib Bul 40:107 Jl '44

COSTAIN, THOMAS BERTRAM. Ride with me. 595p $3 Doubleday 44-7411

Historical romance of England and the continent during the Napoleonic wars, which covers the fighting on the Iberian peninsula, the retreat from Moscow, and life in France during the final days of Napoleon's glory. The central figures are Sir Robert Wilson, an English officer whose fame was eclipsed by that of Wellington; Frank Ellery, publisher of an important London paper; and Gabrielle de Salle, a French refugee.

"Costain wields a powerful pen, and his fine style keeps the kaleidoscopic happenings from seeming melodramatic. Gen. Wilson, England's forgotten hero, whom the book tries to eulogize, plays only a secondary part, and the author's jerky efforts to put him into the foreground are too obvious to be successful. . . As a good and entertaining adventure story, this volume ranks among the best of its kind." Otto Eisenschiml

+ — Book Week p3 S 10 '44 450w

Booklist 41:41 O 1 '44

" 'Ride With Me' covers a rich and spacious canvas. . . The narrative moves fast, the plot is well devised, and the characters are a good old-fashioned assembly of heroes, villains, adventurers, fair ladies in distress, bluff military, victims of circumstance, snobs, ne'er-do-wells, conspirators and valiant spirits who face down circumstance." J. M. Powers

+ Boston Globe p15 S 20 '44 330w

"Unimportant historically, and with a purely naturalistic attitude towards fornication, this is a novel for readers of mature judgment only."

— Cath World 160:283 D '44 90w

Kirkus 12:180 Ap 15 '44 170w

Reviewed by E. F. Walbridge

Library J 69:650 Ag '44 80w

"A rousing and thoroughly entertaining tale, oversized perhaps, but not flabby, unashamedly but not lushly romantic." Richard Match

+ N Y Times p12 Ag 20 '44 360w

"The main story-line of 'Ride with Me' is the line of Frank's pursuit of Gabrielle through the corridors of history, with many fine shows along the way. It is a line that will be followed with pleasure by those who take their historical fiction by the pound, who demand only that heroines be beautiful and heroes dauntless. But the judicious will, I am sure, mark down 'Ride with Me' as a brave but unsuccessful essay in the difficult field of the historical novel." B. R. Redman

Sat R of Lit 27:9 Ag 19 '44 900w

"This is an exciting book and not the least of its attractions is the similarity between the days of Napoleon and those of today. Mr Costain's painstaking research has borne good fruit; the reader who enjoys historical novels will find this book exactly to his taste." H. J. Sloan

+ Springf'd Republican p4d S 24 '44 280w

"A rich and rewarding narrative." George Conrad

+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 20 '44 300w

Wis Lib Bul 40:147 N '44

COSTANTINO, JOAN, and COSTANTINO, JOSEPHINE. Pepito at Capistrano; il. by Lucia Patton. 32p $1 Whitman, A. 43-12118

Pepito, a little Indian boy living in southern California, is taken by his grandfather to visit the mission, San Juan Capistrano. On the way the grandfather tells of the early days of the mission, and on their arrival Pepito sees for himself the arrival of the cloud of swallows, who always return to the mission on March 19th.

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 20:100 Mr '44 50w

Reviewed by D. M. MacDonald

Library J 69:72 Ja 15 '44 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e F 6 '44 110w

Wis Lib Bul 40:39 Mr '44

COT, PIERRE. Triumph of treason [tr. by Sybile and Milton Crane]. (Alliance bk) 432p $3.50 Ziff-Davis

940.5344 World war, 1939—France. France—Politics and government. France—History—German occupation, 1940- 44-3365

Combination study of the fall of France and the aftermath, and a legal defense of those members of the Popular Front government brought to trial by the Vichy government at Riom. The author was a captain in the French army from 1914 to 1918, served as under secretary of state for foreign affairs in 1932, was minister of aviation from 1936 to 1938, and was slated for trial at Riom but was then in the United States. He is at present in North Africa, serving on the French consultative assembly. No index.

"This book is interesting and valuable to the student of recent history as much because it is a lucid statement of the political philosophy of a Leftist Radical Socialist as because of the bits of new information that are scattered throughout its pages. It, however, was not written for scholars alone. It is a political document intended to justify the Popular Front and to convince Americans that they should give confidence to the Left if they want a Europe in which men can live in peace." J. B. Wolf

+ Am Hist R 50:122 O '44 550w

Reviewed by Eleanor Kittredge

Am Pol Sci R 38:798 Ag '44 650w

Reviewed by B. E. Nelson

Ann Am Acad 235:137 S '44 700w

"This counter-indictment of Petain, Weygand, Laval and the Vichy coterie is so circumstantial, well-documented and closely reasoned that Cot's enemies will be hard pressed for an answer." Sterling North

+ Book Week p1 Mr 19 '44 1150w

Booklist 40:301 My 1 '44

"It is almost an 'official,' certainly a very fascinating account of what brought France down to defeat and misery." Otto Zausmer

+ Boston Globe p15 Mr 29 '44 450w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:662 Jl '44 50w

"If this text could be read with no preconceived ideas about the author, he would emerge, unquestionably, as one of France's patriots... Inevitably, Pierre Cot's questionable reputation will harm the book."
Kirkus 12:55 F 1 '44 300w

Reviewed by Albert Guerard
Nation 158:516 Ap 29 '44 900w

"At a time when there is still much confusion about the future of France, and when there is still danger of dealings with undemocratic groups, 'Triumph of Treason' is of particular importance. Brilliantly written, dramatically presented and clinging rigidly to the truth, it fills a gap that has long existed." Louis Dolivet
+ New Repub 110:506 Ap 10 '44 1550w

Reviewed by Eleanor Kittredge
N Y Times p6 Mr 26 '44 1100w

New Yorker 20:83 Ap 1 '44 140w

" 'Triumph of Treason' is Pierre Cot's reply to his calumniators. It is also a powerful, dignified defense of the Popular Front and a stinging, mordant attack on the Vichyites. M. Cot wrote his work while in exile in the United States, put into it all his legal and scholastic skill, designed it as an exhaustive analysis of the true causes of French defeat. In this book those who believe that Washington's appeasement of Vichy and the vestiges of Vichy in North Africa stands as one of the sorriest blunders of American foreign policy will find ample argument for their point of view." Frederick Gruin
+ Sat R of Lit 27:28 My 20 '44 1200w

Reviewed by Albert Guerard
Weekly Book Review p4 My 28 '44 1200w

COTE, PHYLLIS N. Rabbit-go-lucky; il. by the author. 175p $2 Doubleday
44-7947

Story of how young Sandy's white Angora rabbits helped his sister Mary Jane find occupation and happiness during the long summer vacation. The scene of the story is a small New Hampshire town.

"This is a charming family story with an authentic New England background. There are bits that make you chuckle with delight and little touches of real wisdom." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p12 N 12 '44 180w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 D 11 '44 70w

Reviewed by H. L. Binsse
Commonweal 41:128 N 17 '44 10w

Kirkus 12:320 Jl 15 '44 120w

"Recommended for ages nine to twelve." Esther Plittman
+ Library J 69:939 N 1 '44 70w

COTHREN, MRS MARION (BENEDICT). Pigeon heroes; birds of war and messengers of peace; with a foreword by David C. Buscall. 47p il $2 Coward-McCann
355.424 Pigeons—Juvenile literature
44-40111

An account of how carrier pigeons are used in war and peace. The book begins with two chapters on their exploits in World war II and World war I, followed by chapters on their use in the past, on their peacetime use, and one on What brings them home.

Booklist 40:323 My 15 '44

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:291 Jl '44 70w

Kirkus 12:118 Mr 1 '44 130w

Reviewed by E. D. Briggs
Library J 69:505 Je 1 '44 70w

"It may surprise some older people to learn how many birds are now in active service; it will delight fanciers, young and old, by the respect and admiration with which their feats are regarded. There is a chapter on what brings them home that, without dispelling this mystery, offers possible explanations." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ap 30 '44 250w

COUGHLIN, EUGENE FRANCIS PAUL. Assistant hero. 133p $2 Crowell
355.12 U.S. Army—Military life 44-8750

The humorous record of a forty-year-old California reporter who was picked for a soldier when the campaign for more potential heroes was at a low ebb. Having received our hero into their midst, the army tried him in the signal corps, and discovered their mistake. Hero and army finally parted by mutual consent.

"Whatever [the author's] talents for being unmilitary did to his superior officers, they do make a reader's sides ache when set down in a book. If this sounds like another 'See Here, Private Hargrove,' be not dismayed, for 'Assistant Hero' is funnier. It is consistently hilarious, a laugh to each page, if you're in the mood, and you will be once you start it." W. F. Morse
+ Book Week p4 O 15 '44 400w

Booklist 41:101 D 1 '44

Boston Globe p29 N 29 '44 100w

"This should be a natural for the slightly older crowd than those who made 'See Here Private Hargrove' a best seller... The straight-face telling makes it all the funnier. Here's to more and better laughs."
+ Kirkus 12:357 Ag 15 '44 230w

"Funny, but not new. Half as long, it would still be funny. Not recommended." J. E. Cross
— + Library J 69:812 O 1 '44 70w

" 'Assistant Hero' is not a book which will split the oaks of Dumbarton. It is, however, a raucous, funny, human little book and as such it is perhaps a much-needed bit of seasoning in our international porridge at the moment." Edward Streeter
+ N Y Times p10 O 29 '44 440w

" 'Assistant Hero' is no second 'See Here Private Hargrove.' It is a labored attempt to see the fantastic side of the army, as one signal corps recruit found it. Unfortunately, the book is neither very amusing nor, in a sense, authentic. Certainly most of the events could have happened, or even did. But in themselves they offer neither entertainment nor much knowledge of the army. From what the author himself admits, a lot of money has been spent on one American citizen who just hasn't found or been put into the right spot in this man's war." F. R.
— Springf'd Republican p8 O 27 '44 380w

Weekly Book Review p14 O 22 '44 180w

COULTON, GEORGE GORDON. Fourscore years; an autobiography. 378p il $4.50 Macmillan [21s Cambridge]
B or 92 Historians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 44-1467

"This is not the autobiography of an intellectual, a don, a humanist, a connoisseur of life or a cultivated man of public affairs; it is the record of a scholar's life. Dr. Coulton, possibly the greatest living historian of medieval religious life, has now at the age of eighty-five written his own history." (New Statesman & Nation) Index.

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p2 Je 25 '44 230w

Reviewed by R. Flenley
Canadian Hist R 25:319 S '44 1100w

Reviewed by Joseph McSorley
Cath World 160:89 O '44 240w

Reviewed by Harold Hobson
Christian Science Monitor p9 F 5 '44 950w

"Being a pleasantly rambling and informal autobiography, 'Fourscore Years' of course contains a wealth of matter in no way connected with the writing of history. Some of it will prove a little tedious to an American reader, to whom the persons involved mean little or nothing. But much of it is charming and fun to read. Especially good are the pages which describe the author's taking a Lunn's tour to Switzerland, on which he met his wife-to-be. His long interest in and advocacy of the Swiss plan of military training is discussed at length elsewhere in this issue."

COULTON, G. G.—Continued
+ — Commonweal 40:450 Ag 25 '44 900w

"The book is written in an anecdotal style, and is so replete with 'good stories' that one gets not only an enormous collection of close-up sketches of Dr Coulton's experiences and situations at all stages of his long life, but a volume extremely rich in human interest and amusement. I have rarely had in my hand a book so packed with fascinating narrative reflecting life in general during these past decades, and throwing light so widely on the various characters with whom the author has in one way and another been from time to time brought into contact." C. J. Cadoux
+ Hibbert J 42:279 Ap '44 1100w

"Dr. Coulton makes it clear that for him the prize of life is the serene spirit. What he has written about his life may help others to find it, and they will enjoy the search." R. L.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 D 31 '43 350w

"The vigour of his style is hardly impaired by his years. Indeed the first impression we receive is of tremendous strength: strength of body, of mind and character, strength of purpose." Noel Annan
+ New Statesman & Nation 27:28 Ja 8 '44 1300w

"The learned medievalist and controversialist here sums up, with undiminished vigor as well as unaccustomed mellowness, what he is inclined to look upon as his two lives. Written by a historian who knows by experience why memoirs are significant, it is far above the common run of reminiscences, both in matter and in manner of presentation." J. P. Boyd
+ N Y Times p7 Je 11 '44 1100w

"The author writes gracefully and well, is rarely uninteresting and never dull. This volume is by no means of the calibre of Santayana's 'Persons and Places,' but it belongs on the same shelf."
+ New Yorker 20:78 Je 10 '44 100w

"The book is full of anecdotes, most of them new and all of them entertaining. Through it all is revealed a gallant spirit, taking life as life comes, combative if need be in controversy, unambitious for material things, and in the ninth decade tranquil and content." Wilson Harris
+ Spec 171:556 D 10 '43 700w

"For anyone who has lived a fairly long life, though not necessarily as long a life as Dr. Coulton's, these pages should have much attraction. They recall vividly the quiet life of Victorianism, and to those with university connexions, or knowledge of the continent as it used to be, there is much, whether personal or descriptive, that will please."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p613 D 25 '43 1000w

Reviewed by S. C. Chew
Weekly Book Review p4 Je 11 '44 1000w

COUPLAND, REGINALD. Indian problem; report on the constitutional problem in India [Eng title: Report on the constitutional problem in India submitted to the warden and fellows of Nuffield college, Oxford]. 3v in 1 160,344,207p maps $5 (pt 1 6s; pt2 7s 6d; pt3 6s 6d) Oxford

342.54 India—Politics and government. Great Britain—Colonies—India A44-4251

"Coherent recent history. . . This big volume —almost of dictionary size—is made up of three books published separately in England, written by a professor of colonial history at Oxford. The first is a history of governmental affairs in India from 1833 to 1935. The second traces in detail the events in Indian politics from 1936 to 1942. The third is an analysis of the current situation, with some attempt at diagnosis and prognosis." (Book Week) Index.

"'The author is a highly intelligent and industrious man who happens to be a professor, but a man whose point of view as revealed in these pages seems more like that of a promotion expert, a sales manager intent upon 'selling' Britain's empire to America. The result is tedious." Sudhindra Bose
— Am Pol Sci R 38:1230 D '44 550w

"This is a very instructive, interesting, and liberal presentation of Indo-British political relationship as it has evolved in recent years." R. V. Gogate
+ Ann Am Acad 236:185 N '44 800w

"The issues in India are so sharply drawn and so profound that it seems almost impossible for anyone long familiar with the country to write about it without some element at least of special pleading. Realizing this, knowing that Prof. Coupland's book must present an English viewpoint, I took it up with some misgivings. As I read chapter after chapter these were largely overcome. A true historian, Prof. Coupland has succeeded to a remarkable degree in presenting the facts and only the facts. Completely documented, provided with useful maps and tables, 'The Indian Problem' is a complete and objective treatment of its immensely complicated subject. It is well worth the considerable investment of reading time it requires for anyone who really wants to know about India." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p2 Ag 6 '44 230w

"One of the best informed and most realistic books on India."
+ Foreign Affairs 23:15 O '44 110w

Manchester Guardian p3 F 12 '43 180w (Review of part 1)

"At last we have a connected, authoritative, and objective account of Indian politics during a period in which, only a few years ago, we hoped we should see India become a Federation, enjoying almost complete and responsible self-government, and composed of units themselves autonomous within their own spheres." John Coatman
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 16 '43 250w (Review of part 2)

"Professor Coupland's proposals for building the Indian States into India's political system touch a high level of political wisdom as opposed to mere political mechanics. Rich in historical illustration and penetrated throughout by confirmed thought, this book will almost certainly be an important formative influence in the process of Indian integration which must surely begin after the war." J. C.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 D 17 '43 170w (Review of part 3)

Reviewed by Taraknath Das
New Repub 111:314 S 11 '44 1800w

"In so far as it conveys facts, Professor Coupland's book performs a most useful service. In so far as it formulates a political judgment, it conveys in sober language and judicial tones a flagrantly biased view. But students of Indian affairs must on the balance be grateful to the author for the pains he has taken to collect the main facts about Indian political life during the past six years." H. N. Brailsford
+ — New Statesman & Nation 25:389 Je 12 '43 550w (Review of part 2)

"Professor Coupland has admittedly chosen to deal solely with the constitutional problem of India and therefore omits all discussion of the problems of agrarian reform, industrial development, education and public health that confront the Indian people. The result of this approach, however, is that his constitutional proposals appear in the guise of a highly elaborate and complicated superstructure, imposed from above upon an unsound, unhealthy body politic. Furthermore, since he deals only with the surface manifestations of the Indian nationalist struggle, his analysis does not offer a constructive guide for either the British or the Indian people in their efforts to reach a satisfactory solution of the Indian problem." K. L. Mitchell
N Y Times p7 Ag 27 '44 1450w

"There are people who would like to see their Indian history reduced to Biblical simplicity and boiled down to a theory suited to their political leanings. Such doctrinaires may not relish these compact volumes which cover India's political history from 1833 onwards. Intelligent readers, however, will find here plenty of food for serious thinking and a rich storehouse of facts and material not readily accessible elsewhere. Professor Coupland's work will help to dispel much of the generally prevailing ignorance about India and her constitution and correct many of the current false notions regarding the part played by the India Office and the Viceroy in the administration of India. They certainly deserve wide circulation." S. N. Ghose

+ Pacific Affairs 16:496 D '43 210w (Review of part 1)

Reviewed by S. N. Ghose
Pacific Affairs 16:496 D '43 350w (Review of part 2)

Reviewed by Ernest Hotson
Pacific Affairs 17:238 Je '44 420w (Review of part 3)

Reviewed by R. L. Schuyler
Pol Sci Q 59:631 D '44 1350w

Reviewed by H. V. Hodson
+ Spec 170:432 My 7 '43 1000w (Review of part 2)

"Imperfect, as [Professor Coupland] would be the first to admit it is, his inventive and cogently presented plan deserves the fullest study, both by Indians eager for their country's advance to freedom in unity, and by Englishmen eager to see in India their own promises redeemed, their own faith in democracy justified." H. V. Hodson

+ Spec 171:486 N 19 '43 750w (Review of part 3)

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p6 Ja 2 '43 1500w (Review of part 1)

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p160 Ap 3 '43 550w (Review of part 2)

"The plan should be read and pondered as a whole before judgment is passed upon it. Many of its aspects will be the subject of keen controversy, but none can be passed over as unsupported by cogent reasoning, as inconsequent or as not germane to the main issue. Professor Coupland speaks to Indians of all parties as an understanding friend, eager to contribute to the solution of one of the greatest problems of national polity ever presented to civilized man. Nuffield College and its investigator have rendered a great service to India and the world."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p506 O 23 '43 1650w (Review of part 3)

"R. Coupland has written well before on India, and now again he has produced a volume which shines with his usual scholarship and thoroughness. It is a splendid presentation so far as it goes, meticulous in presenting conflicting viewpoints, a mine of facts for students of colonial systems. Its confusing effect stems from an outlook overburdened by constitutionalism and limited by the self-righteousness of the English ruling class" Krishnalal Shridharani

+ — Weekly Book Review p6 O 8 '44 1200w

COVERACK, GILBERT, pseud. See Warren, J. R.

COVERT, MRS ALICE LENT. Eternal mountain. 178p $2 Doubleday
44-5269

A young man of the country club set, rapidly going to the dogs, winds up in jail with a kindly, but drunken old mountaineer. After sobering up the two go fishing and the mountaineer's daughter goes along. A war job, plus a steadying influence does wonders for the young man. He snaps out of his careless ways, joins the army, and is accepted by the girl of his heart.

Booklist 40:377 Jl 1 '44

Kirkus 12:82 F 15 '44 130w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p12 My 21 '44 100w

COWARD, NOEL PIERCE. Middle East diary. 155p $2 Doubleday [6s Heinemann]

940.548142 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, English 44-9777

A daily diary kept by the author from July to October, 1943, during which time Mr Coward was on tour of North Africa and the Middle East, giving performances for the troops.

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p6 N 26 '44 150w

"'Middle East Diary' presents a trifling treatment of the war in the Mediterranean. Yet Noel Coward's inimitable style, suave, witty, and utterly informal, makes it a thoroughly entertaining book." Eveline Dienes

— + Boston Globe p19 N 8 '44 300w

"I really doubt if this book has much for readers today. It may however greatly interest future historians—especially when England gets rid of its class system." P. T. Hartung

— Commonweal 41:236 D 15 '44 480w

"I found it a grave disappointment. . . The contrast with the heart-warming generosity of our entertainers, Bob Hope and Joe Brown, make this seem snobbish, self-centered, and singularly lacking in both humor and pathos. Occasional dry wit, yes, but on the whole it leaves an impression of chit chat for a social column."

— + Kirkus 12:416 S 15 '44 110w

"Revealing, heartening and amusing and entirely without effort. He is not only an entertainer but a sympathetic observer. The book belongs in every collection of personal war experiences." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 69:935 N 1 '44 110w

"As an entertainer Mr. Coward has been a prince in our time, but in this volume he does not always entertain. He has got entangled with the diplomatic background before which he moves." B. I. Evans

Manchester Guardian p3 S 1 '44 250w

"I was fascinated as I always am by the imperial provincialism of the Britisher. Like Bob Hope, Noel Coward never left home, but home was never like this to Bob Hope." Margaret Marshall

Nation 159:591 N 11 '44 120w

"Mr. Coward has done splendid work. He has entertained the Services, under the most unhelpful conditions. . . All this is admirable and it is therefore sad that his diary should make the unfavourable impression that it does." Arthur Marshall

New Statesman & Nation 28:189 S 16 '44 650w

"Perhaps it is unfair to flail away at a trifling, hastily written book, but most Americans and most Englishmen want their two countries to be friends, now and after the war, and the circulation of stuff like this plainly isn't going to be much of a help. The irritation it will cause on this side of the Atlantic can only be increased by inflammatory reviews, and it's much kinder just to say that we understand there will always be an England, and there will always be a Noel Coward, but they're not necessarily synonymous." Russell Maloney

— N Y Times p3 N 5 '44 800w

"Mr. Coward went on a tour from Gibraltar to Lebanon, entertaining the troops, and everywhere he went he found Mr. Coward. He presumably attached some importance to his adventures, for he has gone to the trouble of putting them into a book—just as cute as it can be, too—but most readers will probably have considerable difficulty in convincing themselves that it was worth the bother."

— New Yorker 20:92 N 18 '44 80w

"Noel Coward's little book is one of those negligible bits of war-time journalism which would normally have passed unnoticed among the thousands of printed words on soldier entertainment had a few paragraphs been omitted from its otherwise well-intentioned pages."

Theatre Arts 29:63 Ja '45 300w

"Quick to see whatever fun there is in happenings and people, Mr. Coward never tries to be funny. He never tries to be anything. He just puts down what he did and what people said and what he thought with a refreshing absence of self-consciousness."

COWARD, N. P.—Continued
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p397 Ag 19 '44 1200w

Reviewed by Beach Conger
Weekly Book Review p12 D 10 '44 800w

COWDREY, BARTLETT, and WILLIAMS, HERMANN WARNER. William Sidney Mount, 1807-1868; an American painter; with a foreword by Harry B. Wehle. 54p pl $5 Columbia univ. press

759.1 Mount, William Sidney A44-4242

Monograph on a pioneer American artist. It includes a biographical sketch, a descriptive catalog of his known works, a list of pictures attributed to him, a bibliography, 78 plates, and indexes.

"The story of [Mount's] career is told admirably in this book, in a concise and unpretentious narrative. A scholarly catalog of his work gives the volume value for reference. But the heart of the book is the generous series of admirable reproductions of his paintings and lithographs." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p2 Ja 7 '45 210w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 61:1201 O 18 '44 500w

Reviewed by Jerome Mellquist
+ Commonweal 41:44 O 27 '44 400w

Reviewed by Clement Greenberg
Nation 160:51 Ja 13 '45 120w

Reviewed by F. O. Matthiessen
New Repub 111:530 O 23 '44 550w

COWLES, FLORENCE A., and HARRIS, MRS FLORENCE LA GANKE. 400 salads. 254p $2 Little

641.83 Salads 44-2460

Instructions for making both plain and fancy salads, from simple green salads to jellied fruits and meat salads. Index.

Booklist 40:297 My 1 '44
Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '44

"This is the first salad book that I've seen that I want to own. An incredible number of recipes which are tempting, unusual and yet not fussy."
+ Kirkus 12:39 Ja 15 '44 150w

COWLEY, WILLIAM LEWIS. Aerodynamics of the aeroplane. 201p $2.25 Ronald [5s Nelson]

629.1323 Aerodynamics 44-2606

"Compact but readable introduction to its subject. The book begins with elementary concepts and simple experiments and carries the reader into more advanced topics such as aerodynamic tests and aerofoil theory. A British text. Only a few illustrations and problems are included." N Y New Tech Bks

Library J 69:462 My 15 '44 50w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:3 Ja '44

COXE, GEORGE HARMON. Groom lay dead. 227p $2 Knopf

Detective story. 44-4727

Kirkus 12:126 Mr 15 '44 90w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 My 21 '44 100w

"You may find yourself with a psychosis or two if you read this late at night."
New Yorker 20:84 My 27 '44 90w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p17 My 28 '44 100w

COXEN, HARRY HERSCHELL, and others. Aircraft sheet metal blueprint reading. 132p il $2.50 Am. tech. soc.

744.532 Blueprints. Airplanes—Design and construction. Sheet metal work 44-8941

"Written in simple nontechnical language and in workbook form. Authors taught the material contained in this book, and it is based upon training of inexperienced workers in aircraft sheet metal work on how to read blueprints easily without the necessity for mastering drawing. Answers to problems in separate pamphlet." Library J

Library J 69:1002 N 15 '44 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:40 Jl '44

CRAFFORD, F. S. Jan Smuts. 322p il maps $3.50 Doubleday

B or 92 Smuts, Jan Christiaan 43-15668

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

"As a biography written about an important figure in a time of crisis it is certain to be widely read. Mr. Crafford has a good eye for the high lights of Smuts's career. Anecdote and descriptive comment make a readable book. Yet he has not written the book on Smuts for which the student is waiting. Little use seems to have been made of parliamentary papers or debates, and it appears that the author has relied too heavily on newspapers and editorial comment. Documentation is casual and insufficient." C. W. de Kiewlet
+ — Am Hist R 49:459 Ap '44 800w

Bookmark 5:17 Mr '44

"Mr. Crafford is a good storyteller. His tale of this important and colorful personality will hold the attention of every reader interested in the history of the twentieth century, although there will be disagreement with some views and opinions. The book contains a satisfactory bibliography and a good index; strangely enough, and inconveniently, it has no list of chapters."
+ — Cath World 158:603 Mr '44 220w

Current Hist 6:163 F '44 60w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:16 Ja '44 10w

"Crafford has done a very workmanlike job. He pulls no punches and uses plenty of strong adjectives in describing the sterner side of Smuts's character." T. W. Lamont
Sat R of Lit 27:5 My 6 '44 6350w

"Those who want a lucid and forthright presentation of this story will find it in Mr. Crafford's book. . . Nevertheless, one closes the book with a sense of disappointment and the feeling that a fine opportunity has been missed. And if one tries to trace down that disappointment to its source, one finds it attributable in the main to two things. One is the author's apparent indecision as to the nature of his work, and the other, a certain inadequacy in his equipment for such an undertaking." C. H. Driver
+ — Yale R n s 33:751 summer '44 700w

CRAIG, CLARENCE TUCKER. Beginning of Christianity. 366p $2.75 Abingdon-Cokesbury

225.95 Church history—Primitive and early church. Bible. New Testament—History of biblical events 44-170

"A recent writer has crisply phrased a generally recognized problem by saying that the great question about early Christianity is, 'What happened in the tunnel?' There was a church, or there were churches, upon which the New Testament sheds a brilliant light, though with broad bands of obscurity. A century later there was a church, about which we begin to get some definite historical data, but its characteristics are very different from those of the church of the first century. What happened in that unilluminated, or very dimly lighted, 'tunnel' between the two? But intelligently to seek an answer to that question, one must first know what the church was before it went into the tunnel. That is the problem to which Professor Craig addresses himself." Christian Century

Booklist 40:225 Mr 1 '44

"Professor Craig is not a neutral on disputed issues. But in stating and defending his position he is controlled by no partisan commitments or presuppositions. He carefully avoids 'modernizing' either Jesus or the church. This does not have the marks of a textbook and was probably not intended for one (though there are references, a chronological table and a select bibliography), but if I were so fortunate as to have a class studying the beginning of Christianity, this would be the book for it." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 60:1440 D 8 '43 900w

"While providing clear evidence of sound scholarship, the volume is easily read and understood."

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 F 19 '44 600w

"As a clear and straight-forward account of Christian beginnings this book can be highly recommended. For the layman nothing could be better. The author knows his material thoroughly, and he also knows how to pass on the results of criticism without losing his simplicity or arousing the hostility of the reader." F. J. Moore

+ Churchman 158:16 Mr 15 '44 150w

"An elementary textbook, ample in scope but frugal of serious discussion, presenting the student with a readily-assimilated digest of the conclusions of modern scholarship regarding most of the historical and literary problems which arise in connection with the first Christian century. This reviewer is inclined to feel that the treatment is too superficial for the 'serious student' to whom it is ostensibly addressed. To dispose of the problem of Revelation in three pages, and of the common faith of the second Christian generation in two, is scarcely to invite a student to be serious in his approach to biblical and historical studies. The chief virtue of the book —if it be a virtue—is in the order and system with which the material is presented, which will make it easy for the student to prepare himself for examination." F. W. Beare

— + Crozer Q 21:163 Ap '44 650w

"To the expert who knows the field this book is of real interest, even if not too exciting. He sees how deep it cuts, how competent and sane Professor Craig's conclusions, how solid his reading. By the inexperienced reader these points may well be missed. If he docilely memorizes the material, he will not have much that he will have to unlearn (in the realm of facts), but he will still be a long way from having an adequate picture of the stormy and exciting 'beginning of Christianity,' where all was not sweetness and light, a neatly unfolding two-toned picture." M. S. Enslin

+ — J Religion 24:134 Ap '44 800w

"This is an excellent survey of the history of Christianity during New Testament times. It will be very helpful to the student of the New Testament who is interested in discovering how the various wordings for the early church may be woven into a consistent pattern portraying the development of the Christian faith in its early stages. Readers must be prepared to accept the basic conclusions of modern scholarship with respect to the New Testament."

+ Kirkus 12:62 F 1 '44 110w

Library J 69:645 Ag '44 40w

Social Forces 23:237 D '44 160w

CRAIG, CLARENCE TUCKER. One God, one world; the Bible and our expanding faith. (Pioneering church ser) 72p 75c Assn. press; Revell

230 Christianity 43-17687

"This volume hopes to introduce Christians to their obligations as citizens of the world by studying 'the historical ground for the world implications of the gospel as we find it in the Bible.' In brief compass it summarizes the message of various books of the Bible." J Religion

+ Christian Century 60:1442 D 8 '43 40w

"The summary is lucid and soundly based on scholarly work. This study of 'the historical ground' is more consistently dependable than the occasional, very brief and sometimes unconvincing efforts to relate the contemporary Christian to this 'ground.'" E. C. Colwell

+ — J Religion 24:227 Jl '44 100w

CRAIGIE, SIR WILLIAM ALEXANDER, ed. See Dictionary of American English on historical principles

CRAIK, KENNETH JAMES WILLIAMS. Nature of explanation. 123p $1.50 Macmillan [6s Cambridge]

153 Philosophy. Thought and thinking. Causation A44-115

"This little book maintains several theses: that explanation consists in 'giving the causes of things and saying why things happen,' that thought is symbolic in character, that the nervous system is a calculating machine capable of 'modeling or paralleling external events,' and that this process of paralleling is 'the basic feature of thought and explanation.' The argument advanced to support these views consists of many strands." J Philos

"Whatever may be the merits of Mr. Craik's various theses, he does not make it easy for his readers to evaluate them." E. N.

J Philos 40:667 N 25 '43 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p621 D 25 '43 480w

CRAMPTON, CHARLES WARD. Fighting fitness; a preliminary training guide: with the editorial assistance of Ken Littlefield. (Whittlesey house publication) 251p il $2 McGraw

355.07 Physical education and training 44-364

Description of physical training necessary to meet the Army and Navy requirements for being "fit to fight." Detailed instructions are given for many exercises with some suggestions of the military and general principles underlying them.

Booklist 40:226 Mr 1 '44

Kirkus 11:563 D 15 '43 60w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 12 '44 110w

Wis Lib Bul 40:52 Ap '44

CRANE, AIMEE, ed. Art in the armed forces; pictured by men in action. (Hyperion bk) 232p $5 Scribner

940.5497 Art, American. World war, 1939— Art and the war. Soldiers as artists 44-7850

The volume is composed of war pictures, produced by soldiers, sailors, marines, Wacs, Waves, and members of the coast guard and merchant marine, many of whom are professional artists in private life. Includes brief biographical sketches of the artists.

"Aimee Crane is to be commended for her wide selection and her terse biographical material. . . Because of its wide coverage, thousands of Americans will be interested in seeing and owning this very able record of our country at war. Though the art is pedestrian, the subject matter is of vital timeliness and is depicted with such disarming honesty that the book will be pounced upon by wives, parents and sweethearts who are grateful for any opportunity to learn more about their fighting men." Katharine Kuh

+ Book Week p8 O 8 '44 320w

Booklist 41:73 N 1 '44

Reviewed by Clement Greenberg

Nation 159:567 N 4 '44 120w

Reviewed by S. J. Woolf

Sat R of Lit 28:15 Ja 13 '45 600w

"The present volume, 'Art in the Armed Forces,' is an outstanding job of editing—a vivid and remarkable collection of paintings

CRANE, AIMEE—Continued
and drawings made at first-hand by actual participants in battle. More convincingly and more completely than any other book I have seen, it drives home the war experience from induction into camp life to the routine of training and the hazards of combat on land, sea, and in the air." Thomas Craven

+ Weekly Book Review p2 O 29 '44 800w

Wis Lib Bul 40:158 D '44

CRANE, AIMEE, ed. Gallery of great paintings; foreword by Peyton Boswell, jr. 99p col pl $5.95 Crown

759 Paintings 44-9477

Colored reproductions of one hundred paintings from Giotto to Grant Wood and Jack Levine. The arrangement is roughly chronological.

"Many of the reproductions in 'A Gallery of Great Paintings' strike us at once as either dubious or palpably bad. . . My feeling about the 'Gallery of Great Paintings' is that the reproductive work is uneven in quality." E. A. Jewell

— N Y Times p5 D 24 '44 200w

"A shabby job of printing and manufacturing. In the first place, the title is misleading. By no conceivable stretch of the imagination could more than a third of the hundred alleged 'masterpieces in full color,' as the jacket announces, be called great paintings. The assemblage is a miscellaneous batch of pictures made from such plates as were available to the publisher. . . The reproductions, save those borrowed from other books, are of a low grade: off register, false in color, over-heated or under-exposed, atrociously out of value, and on the whole, of violence to the originals." Thomas Craven

— Sat R of Lit 27:22 D 16 '44 230w

CRANE, EDWARD VILLEROY. Plastic working of metals and non-metallic materials in presses. 3d ed 540p il $5 Wiley

671 Metal work. Dies (metal working) 44-3016

New edition of a textbook first published in 1932 (Book Review Digest, 1933). "Three new chapters and a slightly altered title differentiate this from the previous edition (1939). Of the new material, chapter XV treats of the use of semi-permanent die materials in more flexible presses for limited quantity work; chapter XVI discusses the plastic behavior of many types of materials in connection with the working pressure, temperature, and time allowance required to produce a particular shape; chapter XVII considers the application of plastic flow methods to the molding of powders and to the forming of sheet plastics and composite laminates. The appendix contains additional tables on the properties of plastics and the capacities of hydraulic presses." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 40:321 My 15 '44

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 69:305 Ap 1 '44 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:9 Ja '44

CRANE, MRS FRANCES (KIRKWOOD). Amethyst spectacles. 250p $2 Random house

44-7127

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p11 S 24 '44 90w

Booklist 41:24 S '44

"A better story than mystery—built against a convincing background of New Mexico high life."

+ — Kirkus 12:266 Je 15 '44 150w

"Miss Crane resolves the puzzle satisfactorily, if not with quite the sparkle of her earlier Pat Abbott jobs."

New Repub 111:350 S 18 '44 60w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p18 Ag 27 '44 80w

"Recommended for admirers of the Abbotts' breezy methods of detection; other readers may at times find the social and emotional problems of this community irksome."

+ New Yorker 20:68 S 2 '44 100w

Springf'd Republican p4d S 3 '44 110w

"Don't miss this new Patrick Abbott story, in which the phenomenal Miss Crane, appearing under new auspices, fairly outdoes herself in mystery magic. . . Grade A in all departments. By the way, we doubt if any other American mystery monger can touch Miss Crane's writing. It's graceful, chic and sensible, and it never falls on its face, as happens with most of her rivals, from eight to fifteen times a book. Get this one pronto." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p19 Ag 27 '44 150w

CRANE, MRS FRANCES (KIRKWOOD). Applegreen cat. 221p $2 Lippincott

43-18118

Detective story.

"A nicely told story, with good suspense and even better characterization. It's difficult to decide (before you know the truth) who's guilty." Elizabeth Bullock

+ Book Week p5 Ja 2 '44 160w

Booklist 40:199 F 1 '44

Bookmark 5:20 Ja '44

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p22 Ja 9 '44 100w

New Yorker 19:68 Ja 1 '44 70w

"Another Crane top-notcher."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:38 D 11 '43 40w

"Mrs. Crane manages her wartime background with grace and skill, also her cast of characters, wicked and innocent alike. This time she has stressed puzzle interest all the way, giving the customer an honest chance as the dirty work gathers speed and casualties. This is a dandy Crane number, suitable for Mr. and Mrs. Everyfan. Start the year right with a really good baffler." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p10 Ja 2 '44 300w

CRANKSHAW, EDWARD. Russia and Britain. (The nations and Britain) 126p il $2 Hastings house [8s 6d Collins]

327.47 Russia—Relations (general) with Great Britain. Great Britain—Relations (general) with Russia [A44-3449]

A brief account of the contacts between Russia and Great Britain, beginning with 1553, when Richard Chancellor, an English merchant adventurer stumbled into Archangel. No index.

"The early period is based primarily on Hakluyt's Voyages which, very understandably, had a great fascination for the author and tell a story which is all too little known. The material is so rich that the rest of the book inevitably suffers by comparison, and one longs to know more about Nicholas Alfery, the nephew of Boris Godunov, who became a quiet English parson, and about Peter the Great's three months sojourn in Deptford to learn shipbuilding. But the story is one which has not been told before and is well worth reading. Mr. Crankshaw's obvious affection for the Russians . . . does not conceal his reservations about some aspects of the present regime, and his deep understanding enables him to outline with much sympathy the differences in the mental make-up and background of the two peoples. . . This book is a valuable addition to the 'Nations and Britain' series."

+ Spec 172:460 My 19 '44 210w

"This is the second volume in a 'The Nations and Britain' series, and, with the best will in the world, one can only regret that a volume designed to introduce Russia to the English reader should be so high-sounding and inadequate. The author clearly has the best of intentions, and now and then does indeed say sensible if not very novel things. But, since the need for accurate knowledge on the subject of Russian life and the Russian past is apparent to everybody in this country at the present time, it is surely best to be frank and point out that this is a sadly ill-informed volume."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p287 Je 10 '44 300w

CRAWFORD, PHYLLIS (JOSIE TURNER, pseud). Second shift; il. by Graham Bernbach. 211p $2 Holt

43-16885

Story for older girls about a girl reporter turned factory worker for the duration. In the account of her readjustment to factory requirements much of the story of any war factory comes to light. The author herself worked in a war plant before writing this book.

"Here is a completely honest picture of what it's like to work in a war plant and there isn't a single phony paragraph in it." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p11 F 20 '44 400w

Booklist 40:237 Mr 1 '44

"The story isn't quite so spontaneous as Miss Crawford's earlier books, but it really gets under way in the factory, and there is a fascination in wondering whether Judy is going to turn out thirty-one or thirty-five lap-racing set-ups or how many bearings she can clean or burr, which, after all, is pretty important just now." E. L. Buell

N Y Times p7 F 27 '44 280w

"It is hard to stop reading. Something has for the moment touched the factory, as in the first days of proletarian fiction in New Russia, when a cement mixer could be the heroine of a novel. Unsentimental, honest, dealing with varied types, touching only the simplest problems of factory life, what little it tells is told truly, and I hope girls who never tended a machine will read it." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p6 N 28 '43 400w

Wis Lib Bul 40:88 Je '44

CRAWFORD, WILLIAM. Gore and glory; a story of American heroism; as told to Ted Saucier. 192p il $2.50 McKay

940.544973 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939—Aerial operations 44-5788

Personal narrative of the experiences of a young American flyer during his first year of combat service in the Pacific. Index.

"Crawford's tale is one that cries out for a good narrator, for he had more than the usual amount of desperate flying, but, unfortunately, the splendid material in it is not handled as well as it should be. Perhaps the fact that Captain Crawford is the brother-in-law of Ted Saucier, who wrote the book, was too much of a handicap for Mr. Saucier." Russell Owen

N Y Times p14 Jl 23 '44 550w

"Captain Crawford relates his adventures graphically with no soul-searching or global prophecy." Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p12 Jl 16 '44 120w

CRAWFORD, WILLIAM REX. Century of Latin-American thought. 320p $3.50 Harvard univ. press

918 Latin America—Intellectual life. Latin America—Civilization A44-2947

"Author is cultural attaché in the United States Embassy at Rio de Janeiro. Book is an honest presentation to North Americans of the most significant thinkers of South America from the beginning of independence from Spain to the present. Names chosen arbitrarily to keep within the confines of a book; those selected whose influence on South American thought seemed greatest to the author. The direction of their thinking made no difference —they range from Catholics to communist, and include those who both admire and dislike the United States." Library J

Reviewed by L. L. Bernard

Ann Am Acad 237:219 Ja '45 500w

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick

Book Week p2 Ja 14 '45 30w

Booklist 41:57 O 15 '44

"The book may be only an outline of the vast subject, but it is clearly written and instructive."

+ Current Hist 7:228 S '44 100w

"Difficult reading for the average person and, while significant, probably useful only in the large library. Careful bibliography." Thelma Brackett

Library J 69:553 Je 15 '44 130w

Reviewed by B. D. Wolfe

N Y Times p26 O 8 '44 800w

"The book is finely done. . . Many names might be added—some perhaps might be subtracted. But the book is an exciting and useful introduction to an area of inter-American interest largely unoccupied. It serves to remind us that a sound Pan Americanism can never be until Americans of all breeds treat each other's opinions with respect." Hubert Herring

+ Sat R of Lit 27:13 S 9 '44 320w

"This book at least should be a required lecture of all future authors on the other Americas. Then they would understand better 'much that is puzzling in the social and political as well as the cultural life' of our neighbors and it would help a lot in complementing the civilizations of North and South America." Alfred Manes

+ Social Forces 23:228 D '44 450w

Reviewed by Hubert Herring

Weekly Book Review p3 S 10 '44 900w

Wis Lib Bul 40:159 D '44

CREASEY, JOHN. Legion of the lost. 382p $2.50 Daye [9s Long]

44-47953

Dr Palfrey, of the Allied Secret service with headquarters in London, with his trusted helpers, goes into Germany, Norway, and Denmark, to rescue certain noted scientists needed in the postwar world, because all men of science are being liquidated by the Nazis.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p11 D 17 '44 160w

Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 20 '45 400w

Kirkus 12:459 O 1 '44 130w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p24 D 10 '44 90w

Times [London] Lit Sup p153 Mr 25 '44 70w

"Dr. Palfrey and his associates display courage and talent for intrigue in scenes which finally bog down under a weight of verbiage, including what is probably the prize lot of staring in any one book. On Page 274 you get five persons staring at one another and two more staring at them. Enough is enough." Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p26 N 26 '44 100w

CREEKMORE, HUBERT. Stone ants. 29p $2 Anderson & Ritchie

811

"The theme of Hubert Creekmore's second brief collection of poems, as expressed in his title poem, is that the living stream of imagination, supplanted by fact, has become as stone: 'The stone ants lie like rustic walls threading a valley come real.' " Weekly Book Review

"It is rather disconcerting at this date to wander into the Waste Land. In the first section of Mr. Creekmore's book, 'The Stone Ants,' there is much of that personal application to the school of the Thirties, when affirmative emotions were so readily stultified by a nice juxtaposition of 'realistic' detail. . . Mr. Creekmore's subscription to this state of mind is not affected—it is sincere and technically well stated, but it seems imaginatively undramatic. The best poem in Mr. Creekmore's

CREEKMORE, HUBERT—Continued
collection is 'Intersection.' Its imaginative sequence has fluidity and power." Ralph Gustafson
+ — N Y Times p21 Jl 16 '44 120w

"The Stone Ants is a John Donne-Hart Crane-Kenneth Fearing piece of writing, unevenly skilful and successful. The oxymoron, the conceit, the slang-slogan interpolation, the parenthetical irony—all are there in abundance." Mona Van Duyn
Poetry 64:48 Ap '44 480w

"An intense compression of content within short space often leads to a confusion of rapidly successive, dissimilar figures and references. Sometimes the figures are not only confusing but poetically fallacious. The poems, too, are orally harsh, dissonant, written apparently for the eye, with little regard for sensitive verbal harmony. Occasionally a tonic stroke of irony breaks through the heavily piled imagery; and when Mr. Creekmore chooses to write in simple, lyric statements (as in certain sections of 'Genealogy') his work becomes much more effective."
Weekly Book Review p19 Je 11 '44 150w

CREEL, GEORGE. War criminals and punishment. 303p $3 McBride
940.54056 World war, 1939—War criminals 44-5308

The author summarizes the crimes committed by the Germans and their partners in this war, reviews the provisions for the punishment of such crimes after the last war, and reaches certain conclusions as to what the United Nations should do to prevent the punishment of Germany in the near future being as inconclusive as it was in the past. Index.

"Illuminating and fascinating book on a most timely aspect of war and postwar problems." M. W. Fodor
+ Book Week p3 My 21 '44 500w

"Unfortunately, Mr. Creel's praiseworthy attempt is marred by the rather careless manner in which he selected his material. Not only is he positive—and all-too-frequently wrong, besides—where more cautious historians reserve judgment because of lack of documentary proof, but he also rests his cases on gossip of a base sort and shows contempt for, or ignorance of, historical facts established beyond any doubt. . . All these mistakes, inaccuracies, and debatable statements are the more regrettable because they weaken the author's case. Indictments for murder must be foolproof." E. S. P.
Christian Science Monitor p16 My 31 '44 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Je '44

"Carries Vansittart and Sigrid Schultz further—though with less literary merit."
Kirkus 12:131 Mr 15 '44 170w

"Not for popular consumption. Recommended only for the larger public libraries." M. E. Clark
Library J 69:402 My 1 '44 40w

"At times the voice of the accuser is shriller than it need be where the evidence itself is so convincing—and convicting. But Mr. Creel appears here wholeheartedly as attorney for the prosecution. As such, he marshals his witnesses effectively and lets righteous indignation roughen his tongue." H. I. Brock
N Y Times p23 Je 25 '44 600w

"It is the middle of the author's work that is weakest. Having listed the war criminals and summarized their most dastardly crimes, Mr. Creel disposes of the very intricate problems of what to do with them and how to do it, in much too facile a fashion. . . Mr. Creel has a most annoying way of putting much of his material in quotation marks without indicating the titles and pages. True, his work is intended for popular consumption; but authors whose writings are attacked are entitled to know it, and readers are entitled to know exactly where they can find his quotations. Despite these faults, Mr. Creel's book will help to create an informed public opinion." Sheldon Glueck
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:9 My 27 '44 1800w

Reviewed by H. L. Mitchell
Springf'd Republican p4d Jl 16 '44 330w

"Those who favor stern treatment of a beaten Germany have a vociferous ally in George Creel, the man whose job in 1917 and 1918 corresponded to that of Elmer Davis now. Mr. Creel still smarts at the recollection of Allied gullibility after the last war, and this book is his warning that similar gullibility will smooth the path for the next war." Marcus Duffield
Weekly Book Review p8 My 14 '44 600w

CREIGHTON, DONALD GRANT. Dominion of the north; a history of Canada. 535p $3.50 Houghton
971 Canada—History 44-3898

History of Canada from the days of the French explorers to the beginning of the second World war. Maps on end papers. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by F. H. Soward
Am Hist R 50:151 O '44 400w

Reviewed by Alan Browne
Book Week p3 Ap 16 '44 400w

Booklist 40:314 My 15 '44

Boston Globe p19 My 31 '44 300w

"With Professor Creighton's judgment of French Canada the reviewer cannot entirely agree. However, as the volume is an 'interpretative' study, the author is no doubt entitled to his own interpretation. At any rate, it is an interpretation supported by a scholarly use of factual material." D. C. Masters
Canadian Forum 24:65 Je '44 750w

"The North American public, for whom this book was written, and English-speaking people elsewhere, will find here a fresh, vigorous, and colourful treatment of Canadian history. The author has absorbed all the important monographic historical literature relating to Canada that has been published during the past twenty-five years. Having absorbed it, he has distilled this information and has produced a book which in its objectiveness keeps stride with present historical scholarship and in its vividness brings to mind a Macaulay. To be sure there is often a scarcity of detail but this is more than made up for by the brilliant analyses of major policies, trends, and developments in Canadian history." A. B. Corey
+ Canadian Hist R 25:432 D '44 900w

"A truly fundamental history of Canada, which seeks from the first page to probe the inner meaning of Canada's growth and to assess the forces that built it." B. H.
+ Christian Science Monitor p8 Je 10 '44 550w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:665 Jl '44 10w

"A scholarly, comprehensive, and meticulously detailed study of Canada's history from the hazy records of Lief Eriksson's explorations, down to the present war."
+ Kirkus 12:12 Ja 1 '44 250w

Reviewed by R. L. Weaver
New Repub 111:21 Jl 3 '44 420w

"The best proof of the ripeness of a nation is not harmonious living, high though that may stand. Nor is it the volume of its export trade nor the run of its mines. It is the books which that nation produces. Of late, Canada has given us evidences of poetic sensibility and of ripe scholarship; 'Dominion of the North' proves she has a historian quite the peer of his fellows elsewhere—shrewd in the discernment of economic motives, sharp in political analysis, and a good prose man. Canada no longer gives us auguries; she gives us accomplishment." Oscar Cargill
+ N Y Times p14 Ap 23 '44 800w

"This book confirms the impression, created by his original monographs of the past decade, that Professor Creighton is one of the best historians at work in North America. Here, for the first time, the recalcitrant, centrifugal stuff of Canadian history has been synthesized, instead of being merely sorted into pigeonholes or thinly generalized. Even a relatively uninformed reader must feel that the author has handled his materials with great powers of understanding and of explanatory exposition." J. B. Brebner
+ Pol Sci Q 59:455 S '44 650w

Reviewed by R. S. Scott
Springf'd Republican p8 Ap 21 '44 500w

"Every American will understand our own history better from a careful reading of it. For the serious reader it is an excellent recital." M. M. Quiafe
+ Weekly Book Review p19 My 14 '44 900w
Wis Lib Bul 40:84 Je '44

CRESSEY, GEORGE BABCOCK. Asia's lands and peoples; a geography of one-third the earth and two-thirds its people. (Whittlesey house publication) 608p il maps $6 McGraw 915 Asia 44-4985

"A geography of Asia which includes, however, whole of USSR, thus making it Eurasian in scope. . . It deals in detail with geology, topography, climate (temperature, winds, rainfall), ethnography, natural resources both mineral and vegetable, industries especially agriculture. Arrangement is by great natural and cultural divisions and their many subdivisions, a total of ninety-four geographic regions. Author says: 'Land and man are the essential elements in any geographical study.' There are numerous illustrations, maps, charts, tables and a long list of suggested readings." (Library J) Author is chairman, department of geology and geography, Syracuse university. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 41:18 S '44
Bookmark 5:16 My '44

"Although he devotes adequate attention to Asiatic geostrategy, Dr. Cressey approaches it with a refreshing breadth of vision. He bristles with charts, tables, maps, and statistics. For one can't design a worthwhile reference volume without them. Yet if you want to know why the Chinese call the western pass of the Great Wall the 'Jade Gate,' or what an Eskimo Boy Scout looks like, [this book] has the answers to these questions, too."
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 10 '44 400w

"It is primarily a reference book and as such is recommended to all types of libraries. It is also interesting reading." F. L. D. Goodrich
+ Library J 69:402 My 1 '44 100w
New Repub 110:857 Je 26 '44 180w

"A well-written and excellently organized geography of Asia by one of the recognized authorities on the subject."
+ New Yorker 20:84 Je 3 '44 50w

"Professor Cressey has unusual qualifications for writing this book. He combines academic and government work with a first-hand experience including nearly 100,000 miles of travel in Asia extending over two decades. He brings to this latest book a breadth of view and personal experience which is invaluable. While it would be too much to expect that any person could describe equally well all countries of the largest continent, Cressey's volume deserves to rank as the best and most informative American contribution." E. G. Mears
+ Pacific Affairs 17:359 S '44 450w

"It is not possible to give too much credit for the extraordinary amount of information that is here presented. The book is a mine of information. Dr. Cressey should not apologize that too many of the pages are filled with encyclopedic facts. Under the circumstances the subject matter could not be differently handled. There is a wealth of excellently prepared maps and diagramatical material, and numerous photographs." Fairfield Osborn
+ Sat R of Lit 27:10 S 9 '44 700w

"Characterized in the subtitle as a geography of one-third the earth and two-thirds its people, and called by its author a preface to world citizenship, this handsomely illustrated volume is a 'must' for an informed public which hopes to act intelligently in the post-war world. . . A valuable portion of the book lies in its suggested readings, readily accessible literature listed chapter by chapter for the convenience of the reader."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 15:2 Je '44 280w
Survey G 33:329 Jl '44 180w

CRICHTON, KYLE SAMUEL (ROBERT FORSYTHE, pseud). Proud people. 368p $2.75 Scribner 44-2101

Story of a proud family of Spaniards living in New Mexico. The time is 1941, but the Esquivel ancestors arrived in this country in 1598. "The Esquivels' story proceeds on two levels. Their immediate problem is financial. Their once vast holdings have dwindled to an unproductive, tumble-down sheep ranch that no one in the family cares to restore. More static and running like a deep, still stream through the current of their lives is their problem as Spanish Americans in an Anglo-Saxon society. Their relationship to the non-Spanish community and their precarious, slender participation in non-Spanish life and interests are the real theme of the book." (N Y Times)

"It was plain what the Esquivels thought about being mistaken for Mexicans—they thought it was terrible—but it wasn't so plain what Crichton thinks about it. Maybe he meant this prejudice of theirs to be taken as an extreme symptom of the decay of an unassimilated race, or maybe he just thinks it's hard lines to be mistaken for a Mexican. Quien sabe? It is only fair to add that the writing in 'The Proud People' is infinitely superior to the construction. The family-gathering scenes in particular will remind you of Thanksgiving at Grandma's, particularly if Grandma was Spanish—and I don't mean Mexican." Russell Maloney
— + Book Week p4 Mr 5 '44 500w
Booklist 40:283 Ap 15 '44

"'The Proud People' is not a great novel. The dialogue is somewhat tedious and the author struggles with a host of characters in attempting to portray the varied responses of a large family. But he has created an unforgettable character in wise old Aunt Cerfina, and has presented another aspect of our social scene in a compelling manner. For both reasons it can be read with profit." J. N. Moody
+ Commonweal 40:43 Ap 28 '44 600w

"This is almost a very good novel. In spite of its not quite reaching the stars, it is immensely good reading."
+ Kirkus 12:79 F 15 '44 200w

Reviewed by Catherine Maher
N Y Times p3 Mr 5 '44 600w

"Mr. Crichton has drawn a convincing picture of family solidarity, but stylistically the novel is a muddle, and it is so lacking in taste as to make, on the whole, rather unpleasant reading."
+ — New Yorker 20:94 Mr 11 '44 180w

"Considering 'The Proud People' as a study of a racial minority group, the characterization of the novel falls short for the Esquivels and their Spanish friends do not seem to be of another race. That is, Mr Crichton has not sufficiently defined them through particular racial characteristics as a separate group. However, both the Esquivels and their friends are interesting and entertaining people, portrayed vividly and honestly." E. P. Werby
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 12 '44 470w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
Survey G 33:222 Ap '44 330w

"'The Proud People' is much more than just another problem novel: it is clothed with live flesh and blood, it bubbles with keen passions and laughter, its characters are alternately absurd and heroic." Iris Barry
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Mr 12 '44 650w
Wis Lib Bul 40:85 Je '44

CRIDER, JOHN HENSHAW. The bureaucrat. 373p $3 Lippincott
353 Civil service—U.S. U.S.—Executive departments 44-6444

Study of the bureaucrat, as distinguished from the public-spirited civil servant. Altho the author glances back to the bureaucrat of Roman times, his main interest is the species which flourishes in the United States, especially in Washington, D. C., at present. The author, who is Washington correspondent for the New York Times, criticises the rise of bureaucracy under the New Deal. Index.

CRIDER, J. H.—Continued

Reviewed by Belle Zeller
Ann Am Acad 236:191 N '44 650w

Reviewed by John Norcross
Book Week p10 Ag 13 '44 600w

Booklist 41:53 O 15 '44

"Its tone is urbane. There isn't a mean word in it. It is an informed and colorful account of much that has gone on in Washington of late years, with both background and foreground illuminated by skeptical close-up observation."
+ Boston Globe p15 Ag 9 '44 150w

"Mr. Crider's book gives valuable sidelights on their 'habitat, feeding habits, protective coloration, fertility, ubiquitous activities, and probable future.' Not that Mr. Crider's study is in the lighter vein. It has only enough humor to make a heavy subject enjoyable reading. Political and economic philosophy is interspersed with facts about people and issues that this Times financial expert has amassed during his reporting." M. H.
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Ag 22 '44 450w

Kirkus 12:229 My 15 '44 210w

"There is no more important problem in the field of practical politics than that of administration. It is a pity a problem of such importance, and such dignity, should be given such trivial treatment." H. S. Commager
N Y Times p6 Ag 20 '44 1250w

Reviewed by Jonathan Daniels
Sat R of Lit 27:11 Ag 19 '44 1100w

School & Society 60:240 O 7 '44 40w

" 'The Bureaucrat' is a big, sprawling, gossipy commentary—occasionally wryly humorous—on men and events, without any real organic unity or theoretical motivation." L. M. Hacker
Weekly Book Review p2 Ag 6 '44 1000w

Reviewed by W. A. Orton
Yale R n s 34:378 winter '45 550w

CRIPPEN, HARLAN R., ed. Germany; a self-portrait. 477p $3.75 Oxford

943.085 Germany—Politics and government. National characteristics, German. German literature—Collections 44-3735

A volume of excerpts from the writings of 34 German authors, which in one fashion or another, reveal something of German life, character, politics and history from the early 1900s to 1943.

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p2 Je 4 '44 1150w

Booklist 40:314 My 15 '44

Reviewed by H. A. Reinhold
Commonweal 40:162 Je 2 '44 900w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:663 Jl '44 20w

"Valuable coverage—for reference too. A fresh slant on a vital subject."
+ Kirkus 12:111 Mr 1 '44 210w

"All who read such books as 'Germany, the Aggressor Through the Ages,' 'Germany: the Black Record,' and 'Germany Will Try It Again' should also read Mr. Crippen's anthology, for it portrays Dr. Jekyll just as convincingly as they portray Mr. Hyde. But it is not a very good book. Like many recent anthologists in this and kindred fields, Mr. Crippen has given us neither one thing nor the other. His book is not a collection of the best German writing, or even the best political writing, of the period; his choice of material would often be hard to defend on either historical or literary grounds; he omits many important authors, an omission which is not atoned for by editorial apology." E. R. Bentley
— + Nation 159:22 Jl 1 '44 700w

New Repub 111:845 D 18 '44 160w

"The preponderance of Communist authors in the book is out of all proportion to their real importance, literary or political. There are some remarkable writers among them, but none more remarkable than half a dozen or a dozen who have been omitted. Some are complete zeros. . . Mr. Crippen mentions three German literati who gave him 'assistance and good advice.' It so happens that all three of them are not merely Communists but Communist agitators and agents of long standing. And now they have their book." Konrad Heiden
N Y Times p5 Ap 30 '44 1100w

"Mr. Crippen is unduly severe to the German Social Democrats who share the political impotence of all German liberal elements but whose good intentions and honest humanism cannot be doubted, and is extremely lenient to the Communists, who by their unbridled agitation against 'Western imperialism,' the Treaty of Versailles, and the 'shames' of parliamentary democracy vied with the National Socialists in undermining any growth of liberal thought and attitudes among the politically immature German masses and youth. But in spite of its shortcomings the book can be warmly recommended as a popular and easily readable introduction to the history of modern Germany." Hans Kohn
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:14 Je 17 '44 1150w

Springf'd Republican p4d My 14 '44 550w

"The chronicles provided by Mr. Crippen himself give, in many respects, excellent, pregnant surveys. On the whole, however, they seem to me too fatalistic in their retrospective valuation of the development of the Weimar Republic. . . Yet, be this as it may, Mr. Crippen's book is, in my view, a much to be welcomed help in teaching the great lesson that this first half of the twentieth century is a fascinating, though dangerous time in which to live." David Baumgardt
+ — Survey G 33:365 Ag '44 350w

Reviewed by W. R. Deuel
Weekly Book Review p14 My 21 '44 850w

CRITE, ALLAN ROHAN, il. Were you there when they crucified my Lord; a negro spiritual in illustrations. 79p $3 Harvard univ. press

741.6385 Jesus Christ—Art. Jesus Christ—Crucifixion. Negro songs A44-4812

"In thirty-nine brush drawings, done with a bold technique which suggests woodcuts, or even linoleum block prints, but also with delicacy and splendor where these qualities are required, a gifted and well trained Negro artist interprets one of the best loved spirituals. In doing this he translates into visible form and subtle design the religious emotions and aspirations of his race. But, though the faces and figures are black, his interpretation rises above any racial particularism. The treatment is symbolical, rather than literal." Christian Century

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p2 D 10 '44 200w

"So complete is his sense of the oneness of humanity that even a racial heretic might be moved to embrace the orthodoxy of brotherhood by these strange and beautiful drawings. This artist knows that in the eyes of God there is no distinction of race, or color, and projects his symbol, even as Gauguin before him painted his Madonna as a Tahitian Woman, barefooted, with the Child high upon her shoulder, islander fashion." A. M. Sholl
+ Cath World 160:275 D '44 400w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 61:1200 O 18 '44 450w

"A word of praise must be said concerning the artistic merit of Mr. Crite's work. He has a certain vigor and boldness both of execution and imagination which make vivid indeed the central fact of Christian belief. Occasionally he turns a little sentimental and stained-glass windowish, particularly in his constant introduction of lilies in his compositions. But his device of clothing the Risen Christ in liturgical garb is brilliantly successful. Altogether he has undertaken a perilous task and accomplished it remarkably well."
+ Commonweal 40:616 O 13 '44 500w

CROCE, BENEDETTO. Germany and Europe, a spiritual dissension; tr. and with an introd. by Vincent Sheean. 83p $1.25 Random house

914.3 Germany. National characteristics, German 44-6448

"Mr. Croce, who has just emerged from almost twenty years of semi-imprisonment under the Fascist regime to become one of the members of the new Italian government, has written four essays, now translated by Vincent Sheean, that explain his attitude toward Germany. It is his belief . . . that there is a spiritual breach between Germany and the rest of Europe which is caused largely by the Germanic concept of race." New Yorker

"Croce's essays are suggestive and provocative, but far from exhaustive. There is much in them which is vague, and some inconsistencies might be found. It is to be hoped that other and more important philosophical works of this outstanding thinker will soon be translated into English." A. P. Sereni
+ — Am Pol Sci R 38:1036 O '44 500w

Reviewed by J. Schneider
Am Soc R 9:707 D '44 500w

Reviewed by Wendell Johnson
Book Week p1 Ag 6 '44 700w
Current Hist 7:228 S '44 80w
Foreign Affairs 23:11 O '44 40w
Kirkus 12:244 Je 1 '44 150w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 69:601 Jl '44 70w

Reviewed by Franz Hoellering
Nation 159:215 Ag 19 '44 1200w

"It is most gratifying that the first book to come to us from that corner of hate-ridden Europe where the tide of war has receded, is an ardent profession of faith in the unity of European civilization. . . Vincent Sheean has ably translated and somewhat heavily introduced the essays. His main merit consists in having made them available to us." H. W. Ehrmann
+ — New Repub 111:285 S 4 '44 1250w

"Vincent Sheean contributes a philosophically ignorant introduction and pretentiously recounts the 'personal history' of his discovery of the world-famous philosopher. Affecting a curiously pompous style, he entitles his preliminary essay: 'Introduction: Unnecessary for those who already know Croce's work' and begins with several paragraphs of the difficulties of translating Italian (one would think it were Sanskrit). Unfortunately the quality of Mr. Sheean's translation does not justify these elaborate preliminaries." Adrienne Koch
N Y Times p5 Jl 30 '44 1350w

"Mr. Croce, for all his humanistic reasonableness and philosophic calm, insists that means must be found to make this war the last attempt by Germany to dominate the world and that that nation must be made to 'take its place in humanity, not as the barbaric master and butcher, but as one of the peoples among peoples.' There is probably little hope that the German problem will be solved in this spirit, as Mr. Sheean points out in his biographical introduction, but this does not detract from the largeness of Mr. Croce's vision or from the value of his thought-provoking book."
+ New Yorker 20:62 Jl 29 '44 360w

"I thought it would be a pleasure to read the ideas of one who was never seduced, as were so many in all countries, by the theories of fascism, who suffered greatly from it, and has seen his country go down to ruin through it, while retaining at all times a serene confidence in its transitory nature. And, indeed, it was a pleasure, like drinking from a clean cool spring after ditch water, or moving from a babelous market place into a quiet study where reason still reigns. Not that the essays offer any blueprint for the future peace. They do but elevate a spirit and attempt to correct some current extravagances in the popular judgment of Germany, which, in Croce's opinion contain within themselves much that is itself dangerously fascistic and Nazi." Dorothy Thompson
+ Sat R of Lit 27:12 Ag 19 '44 2000w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn
Sat R of Lit 27:16 O 14 '44 1000w

Reviewed by Irwin Edman
Weekly Book Review p4 Ag 6 '44 1050w

CROCKER, CONSTANCE HOMER. Let's build [il. in color by the author]. [32p] $1.50 Houghton

684 Woodwork—Juvenile literature 44-3471

A book for small boys and girls giving step by step instructions on how to build with wood and carpenter's tools such things as a doll's bed, a bench, bookshelves, etc. Fully illustrated with diagrammatic drawings showing details.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p10 My 28 '44 110w

"This book is creative and it will be fun." F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p8 Ap 24 '44 160w

"The diagrams are clear and helpful, valuable for use in school or at home." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 20:204 My '44 60w

"A book of simple carpentry for younger children, with diagrams and instructions that even an eight year old can understand and easily follow. It should give great pleasure to boys and girls who have a great urge to make things for themselves."
+ Kirkus 12:170 Ap 1 '44 70w

"Seven- and eight-year-olds who want to build things will find this book an excellent guide. Younger children can use it with some adult help. . . A good addition to a handicraft collection." Elizabeth Johnson
+ Library J 69:404 My 1 '44 40w

"Drawing on personal experience with teaching simple carpentry to little children, Mrs. Crocker produces a lively combination of pictures in black-and-red and directions in words within six-year-old experience that will attract almost any little child and prove a blessing to parents whose children take naturally to tools." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ap 23 '44 150w
Wis Lib Bul 40:111 Jl '44

CRONIN, ARCHIBALD JOSEPH. Green years. 347p $2.50 Little

44-7410

Written in the first person, this is the story of Robert Shannon from his eighth year to his eighteenth. Orphaned by the loss of both parents in a few short months, Robert travels from his home in Ireland to his grandparents in Scotland where he finds only one person to give him the unstinted love he needs, his great grandfather, something of a sinner but the boy's true friend.

"This splendidly written story will delight Dr. Cronin's admirers. It will open their eyes, as all his books have done, to pleasant as well as to unpleasant possibilities of life, with a strong accent on courage and cheerfulness." John Erskine
+ Book Week p25 N 12 '44 2000w
Booklist 41:89 N 15 '44

"Dr. Cronin has the ability to dramatize a very real perception of the inner processes of life. As an author he writes the way all people hope their doctor sees and feels. No wonder he is successful!" Dorothy Hillyer
+ Boston Globe p16 N 15 '44 450w
Boston Globe p30 N 29 '44 50w
Cath World 160:375 Ja '45 180w

"Dr. Cronin's effortless style makes for effortless reading and must have a lot to do with his extensive popularity over here. There is something of the Russian art of telling a story in all that he writes."
+ Commonweal 41:130 N 17 '44 500w

"Cronin has a faculty for instilling warmth and interest into bare bone facts, which lift this above the level of its not too original plot; but this does not measure up to his best work. In a season like this, however, with its paucity of popular fiction titles, a new Cronin is a sure best seller."
+ — Kirkus 12:455 O 1 '44 240w

CRONIN, A. J.—Continued
Reviewed by E. P. Nichols
Library J 69:935 N 1 '44 70w

"'The Green Years' is a stirring and even eloquent story of boyhood—always providing the reader is willing to join Dr. Cronin midway in his narrative. Dissenters will complain that they have met Mama and Murdoch elsewhere—that young Robie is [a] cold and not too convincing Copperfield—that Grandpa, for all his flourishes, seems a vague blend of Micawber and Bergerac. But the dissenters have no business in the stalls while this maestro is performing." William Du Bois
+ — N Y Times p3 N 12 '44 700w

"The grandparents' family—especially a rambunctious old reprobate of a great-grandfather—are portrayed with skill and warmth, and the author has an admirable way of telling a story, but unfortunately there is not much of a story to tell."
+ — New Yorker 20:90 N 18 '44 130w

"Young Robert Shannon is not a successful, living creation, and not all the adventures in unhappy Scotland will make him so. The other characters about him are similarly unrealized, the fantastic grandfather, the gentle Alison, the knightly and fated Gavin, all faintly Dickensian in flavor without having the original rich stuffings inside their skins. The book is altogether a mild, even soothing affair, despite its unhappy circumstances. This is a combination of effects that may indeed please many readers." N. L. Rothman
— + Sat R of Lit 27:22 N 18 '44 500w

"Readers of 'The Green Years' who have long been admirers of A. J. Cronin, will find in his most recent offering a pleasant successor to 'The Citadel,' even if the drama is more subtle and the problem more slight. New readers may come to this little book with confidence that it will provide them with a heartwarming evening or two of enjoyment." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d N 12 '44 550w

"'The Green Years' is quite a book for you, if you like reading about adolescence in a world and a setting quite remote from your own, be it Williamsburg, Brooklyn, or amid craggy scenery in a dour little Scottish town. Mr. Cronin's novel covers almost exactly the same ground for a waifish little boy in a Scottish village that 'A Tree Grows in Brooklyn' covers for a talented little girl in a cheap city flat. At the end of 'The Green Years,' as in Miss Smith's novel, 'the future is wide and open.'" F. H. Bullock
+ Weekly Book Review p3 N 12 '44 1250w
Wis Lib Bul 40:160 D '44
Reviewed by Orville Prescott
Yale R n s 34:382 winter '45 300w

CROOME, MRS HONOR MINTURN (SCOTT). O western wind. 249p $2.50 Putnam [8s 6d Christophers]
43-16952

The experiences of four young English mothers and their children, sent to this country to escape the 1940 bombing. Cora and Margaret, with their children, go to a place near Boston; gentle Mary with her two find a home with a wealthy elderly woman nearby; selfish, shallow Daphne and her sons are not too far away. When all four families are finally brought together, to live in one large house in order to save expense, the problems of readjustment are intensified.

Reviewed by Jack Conroy
Book Week p8 Mr 5 '44 110w
Booklist 40:270 Ap 1 '44

"High calibre woman's novel, with full emotional values sharpened up by intelligent writing and concerned with new situations, new problems. . . This should find an audience."
+ Kirkus 11:559 D 15 '43 160w

"Recommended." M. P. McKay
+ Library J 69:160 F 15 '44 70w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse
Manchester Guardian p3 Je 11 '43 130w

"Honor Croome, who was herself an evacuee in 1940, has the dramatist's knack for externalization. Her narrative is lively with dialogue and action. Pathos, love-interest, comic relief, tense drama all figure here. For all that, 'O Western Wind' is photographically conceived, written without grace of style or much imaginative penetration." Nona Balakian
N Y Times p22 Mr 19 '44 380w

"Mrs. Croome writes agreeably and with considerable shrewdness, but she doesn't explore her heroines' dilemmas very deeply."
+ — New Yorker 20:81 Mr 4 '44 140w

"It is a good-natured, sentimental book, shallow, off-the-point, and of magazine talent." Kate O'Brien
— + Spec 170:600 Je 25 '43 60w

"If one likes emotions, if one wishes more understanding of the mental outlook of English evacuees in this country, the book will be found well worth while. But women will find it more absorbing than men." M. D.
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 5 '44 550w

"It is a lively, acute, amusing and, at times, touching piece of work, though not a wholly sympathetic one. All the same, whatever 'copy' her own experience may have provided, this piece of fiction by Mrs. Honor Croome is genuinely a novel, and a novel of the kind best described as civilized at that."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p269 Je 5 '43 1200w

Reviewed by Diana Forbes-Robertson
Weekly Book Review p4 Mr 5 '44 450w

CROUSE, NELLIS MAYNARD. French struggle for the West Indies, 1665-1713. 324p il $4 Columbia univ. press [26s 6d Oxford]
972.9 West Indies, French. France—Colonies—West Indies. French in the West Indies A43-3611

"The period covered by this exhaustive survey is from 1665 to 1713. It is the second act, so to speak, of a historical drama in five acts. Mr. Crouse dealt with the first [in] his 'French Pioneers in the West Indies' [Book Review Digest, 1940]. . . High lights of the present study are the founding of Saint Domingue through the agency of buccaneers, the extraordinary career of Admiral Jean-Baptiste du Casse, and the capture of Cartagena de las Indias." Weekly Book Review

"In compiling what is certainly a valuable storehouse of factual matter the author has utilized such indispensable primary source material as, for instance, the writings of Du Tertre and Labat. He is also acquainted with the best French and American secondary sources, such as the work of Pierre de Vaissière and Stewart L. Mims. He reveals, however, less familiarity with contemporary British Caribbean scholarship. In his bibliography we notice with surprise the absence of any reference to the important studies on the Lesser Antilles during the seventeenth century of Vincent T. Harlow." H. B. L. Hughes
+ Canadian Hist R 25:437 D '44 650w

Reviewed by A. B. Lindsay
Library J 68:957 N 15 '43 100w
Weekly Book Review p12 Mr 26 '44 380w

CROW, CARL. China takes her place. 282p $2.75 Harper
951 China 44-9433

Informally written, with the introduction of many autobiographical anecdotes, this is a survey of Chinese history and politics from 1911 to the present. The author as a journalist and advertising man was a resident of China for twenty-five years during the period of which he writes.

Reviewed by D. H. Bradford
Book Week p5 D 31 '44 450w
Booklist 41:105 D 1 '44

Reviewed by Dorothy Graham
Cath World 160:274 D '44 450w

"One would suppose that, after writing four books on China, even an Old China Hand like Carl Crow would run out of material. But in China Takes Her Place Mr. Crow comes up with much interesting new lore. The book gives the impression of being poorly organized; but this may be partly because of the necessity for avoiding repetition of what he has said before." S. C. M.

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 D 21 '44 600w

"The book, while less stimulating reading than some of the other books covering the same period, has a clarity, a simplicity, and an objectivity that makes it a very useful book for those who want a single book which will give them a reasonably comprehensive picture of what has happened in China since the overthrow of the Empire."

+ — Kirkus 12:417 S 15 '44 130w

Reviewed by D. F. Lucas

Library J 69:881 O 15 '44 110w

"The introductory chapters, covering the early post-revolutionary years, are a good reportorial job done in a lively and entertaining vein. Most of the later chapters, and the better part of the book, are devoted to an account of the progress China has been fortunate enough to achieve under the Kuomintang since 1927." T. A. B.

+ Nation 159:724 D 9 '44 250w

"Mr. Crow appears to be better informed than many people who pretend that they know all about the Chinese question. He sounds convincing without talking like a pundit, and that is no small blessing. Well worth the attention of anyone (except specialists) interested in China and the Chinese people."

+ New Yorker 20:100 N 11 '44 90w

"From twenty years' experience in China as a journalist and advertising man Mr. Crow sketches the history that began with the fall of the Manchu dynasty in 1911. It emerges with amiable simplicity in blunt, homely writing, with plenty of the personal color dear to American readers and with a certain mellow detachment that time and perspective bring to old opinions and prejudices." Robert Okin

+ Sat R of Lit 27:42 D 2 '44 700w

Scientific Bk Club R 15:3 D '44 300w

"Beginning with Chapter V, Mr. Crow drops the amusing anecdote style and writes in a straightforward and unfacetious manner about Sun Yat-sen, the second revolution, Japanese aggression, the present government and its leaders, the co-operatives, the Communists, and the China of the future. In these chapters he shows complete understanding of and sympathy with the aspirations of the new China, but says so little about the difficulties and failures in achieving these aspirations that even an uninformed reader will gain the impression that he paints too optimistic a picture." Eleanor Lattimore

Weekly Book Review p4 N 19 '44 1050w

CROWL, PHILIP AXTELL. Maryland during and after the revolution; a political and economic study. 185p pa $1.75 Johns Hopkins press

975.2 Maryland—History. Maryland—Politics and government 43-12382

"[This study] covers the transition of Maryland between secession from the British Empire and accession to the American Federation. Based on official documents of the province and state of Maryland, documents of the federal government, and contemporary newspapers and manuscript collections, this is an analysis of post-Revolutionary problems; the confiscation of British property, the collection of pre-war British debts, the issuance of paper money." Am Pol Sci R

"The last two chapters, dealing with the Federal Constitution in Maryland and including a close-up view of the ratifying convention, are particularly valuable contributions to the history of that contest. One unique contribution is a conspectus of relationships among Maryland families." E. C. Burnett

+ Am Hist R 49:549 Ap '44 320w

Reviewed by M. D. Irish

Am Pol Sci R 37:955 O '43 180w

CRUMP, IRVING. Our marines; il. with U.S. Marine corps photographs. 236p $2 Dodd

359.96 U.S. Marine corps 44-2213

"[In this] book about Marines . . . present-day activities, requirements, training and possibilities for advancement are stressed; chapters on 'Paramarines,' 'Boot Camp,' 'Marines Afloat,' 'Devil Dogs of the Air,' etc. will be of particular interest as the points brought out are based upon present-day fighting and are coupled with personal anecdotes. History of the Corps and its achievements in past wars is not neglected, but the spirit of the book is of today." Library J

Booklist 40:272 Ap 1 '44

Reviewed by K. H. McAlarney

Library J 69:265 Mr 15 '44 90w

Wis Lib Bul 40:106 Jl '44

CRUTCHER, HESTER BRANDENBURG. Foster home care for mental patients. 199p $2 Commonwealth fund

362.2 Insane—Care and treatment SG44-289

"A study of the problems involved in the care of mental cases which do not respond well to the regime of a large institution but need the more intimate conditions of family life with supervision from a mental hospital." Christian Century

Christian Century 61:1258 N 1 '44 40w

"Miss Crutcher's concise but comprehensive book on the subject must, surely, be definitive for a long time to come. It is hard to think of any question she leaves unanswered." E. M. Stern

+ Survey 80:358 D '44 550w

CULBERTSON, MARY HAESELER. Peter "PT"; pictures by Annette Byrne. [26p] 50c McKay

44-7834

Picture story book about Peter, the little putt-putt playboy boat which begged to be allowed to join the navy. When the painting and equipping were all done Peter was transformed into PT and covered himself with glory in short order.

"The husband of the author of this book about Patrol Torpedo boats is an Annapolis graduate. That perhaps gives an additional note of authority to this excellent primer of the P.T. boats—the right sort of factual material incorporated in a might-be-true story."

+ Kirkus 12:401 S 1 '44 70w

"An insignificant little tale. . . May be of some interest to the child who is already familiar with the PT boats. The format and content of the story are for six- to eight-year-olds, but the vocabulary used is much older." Olive Brain

Library J 69:884 O 15 '44 50w

"Small boys, to whom the very name PT is legendary and thrilling, will welcome this vivacious appearance of one 'in person.'" M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p5 D 24 '44 300w

CULBERTSON, POLLY. See Culbertson, M. H.

CUMBERLAND, MARTEN. Knife will fall. 263p $2 Doubleday

44-6925

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p10 S 10 '44 90w

Booklist 41:24 S '44

"Clever."

+ Boston Globe [p15] Ag 30 '44 30w

"Excellent plotting—writing that needs tightening—good reading."

+ — Kirkus 12:240 Je 1 '44 80w

"On an average, there is a French word or phrase to each page, which may produce nostalgia in sympathetic readers. The killer of four victims, each labelled with a playing-card, comes from Devil's Island. Oh, la la!" Ralph Partridge

CUMBERLAND, MARTEN—Continued
— New Statesman & Nation 26:358 N 27 '43 70w

"This is, we believe, the first appearance of Saturnin Dax and his author, but we hope to hear more of the intelligent detective work of the one and the spirited writing of the other." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p19 Jl 30 '44 90w

"A complex story, set against a solid, authentic-sounding background."
+ New Yorker 20:64 Jl 29 '44 90w

"It will take a clever reader to pick the murderer from among the many characters set down as suspects and a cleverer one still to solve the puzzle of how he came to select his apparently unrelated victims. . . Every bit of evidence seems only to add to the confusion, however, with false clews scattered abroad to mystify the police—as well as the reader." W. H. W.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 13 '44 130w

"Paris is the scene of 'The Knife Will Fall.' So intimately has Mr. Cumberland conjured up the sense of being there, all kinds of streets in all kinds of weather, that his is a book to be lingered over. Nothing more could be reasonably demanded, but there is a plot which suggests the born story-teller. . . An author of such skill can, of course, laugh at rules, and Mr. Cumberland does. No one should be long in doubt who the murderer is though Commissaire Dax, aided by his brigadiers, solves the mystery in a way which would lead nowhere without the author's good will."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p533 N 6 '43 180w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p16 Jl 23 '44 110w

CUMMINGS, EDWARD ESTLIN. 1 x 1 [poems]. liv p $2 Holt

811 44-2915

"In this new volume, E. E. Cummings abandons his trick style from time to time. His satire against the fatuous and cruel and his delight in the romantic aspects of life and love are then apparent at their respective bests. The trick style, by the way, is more durable than one would have supposed possible: this is Cummings' eleventh collection of verse." New Yorker

---

Reviewed by Pearl Strachan
Christian Science Monitor p13 Jl 29 '44 120w

"For all of those who like word games but do not care to take their crossword puzzles straight, and for all of those—and it is by now a goodly company—who sincerely admire the talents of Mr. E. E. Cummings, this volume is recommended. Brilliant, bawdy, bitter, the poems in the first half lash out fiercely at the cheapness and presumption of our age. They are angry—they are indignant—they are scathing; but they are also very skillful, very fine and in the great tradition of classic satire. Caviar to the general, but to the sophisticated a rare concoction."
Kirkus 12:87 F 15 '44 200w

"This is the E. E. Cummings book of masterpieces. It will provoke imitations, but mastery is inimitable. . . It is a thing of furious nuclear integrities; it need not argue with hate and fear because it has annihilated them; 'everybody never breathed quite so many kinds of yes.' " Marianne Moore
Nation 158:394 Ap 1 '44 1100w

"The best poems in this volume are mostly sonnets, the majority of them love sonnets, where in addition to grace there is also depth. In these poems the fracture of the normal forms of speech, the use of adjectives and verbs as nouns, the coinage of such words as 'whereless' and (a favorite device with Cummings) such neological negatives as 'unhe,' are really essential devices for expressing the complication that is the essence of pure feeling. What Cummings is trying to do in all his poems is to present his feeling or the object of his feeling as directly as possible, in as vivid and rhythmical a way as possible. . . It is a poetry of joy, that seeks for joy and, perhaps at the cost of wearing blinkers, finds joy and succeeds, to our great delight, in expressing it. Cummings' poetry at its best is lyrical poetry at its best." Theodore Spencer
+ New Repub 110:475 Ap 3 '44 1500w

"This is a difficult poetry, requiring anyone's utmost attention. I should like to say that it is Cummings' best poetry, not in the sense that it is his most memorable . . . but in the sense that he has described himself and his world more clearly than ever before." P. M. Jack
+ N Y Times p5 Mr 26 '44 800w
New Yorker 20:99 Mr 25 '44 70w

"Cummings' poetry with its celebration of the individual human identity is particularly nourishing and reassuring today when that identity is either destroyed by mass violence or submerged in the mass disciplines that shall save it. He remains a pure voice to hear, and he embodies a healing faith; at his best level he is himself like that sunbeam of his which is always truthful." P. D.
+ Poetry 64:158 Je '44 1550w

"The gifts and the wit that Mr. Cummings's poetry possesses have the youthful charm and the freshness that are perpetually rediscovered in reading sixteenth century verse; in reading Mr. Cummings's songs and sonnets one is refreshed by the revival of courtly music and compliment, of poetic wit, and the art of burlesque that Italian players brought into being with the Commedia del Arte." Horace Gregory
+ Sat R of Lit 27:48 D 2 '44 230w

Reviewed by Ruth Lechlitner
Weekly Book Review p9 Ap 9 '44 150w

CUMMINGS, HUBERTIS MAURICE. Richard Peters; provincial secretary and cleric, 1704-1776. (Pennsylvania lives) 347p $3 Univ. of Pa. press

B or 92 Peters, Richard 44-7082

Richard Peters, the subject of this biography, was an English clergyman, who came to America in the 1730's, an exile from England because of an unfortunate marital entanglement. In Philadelphia, he held various church and government positions, was an acquaintance if not a friend of Benjamin Franklin and other notables of the day. He died in July 1776. Bibliographical note. Index.

N Y Times p10 Ag 20 '44 500w

"While contemporary life appears throughout the narrative, it does so rather fleetingly. The accent is strongly upon the man, Richard Peters. His correspondence is quoted at length, directly and indirectly, and his movements, chronicled with considerable detail. Obviously, this is a disadvantage for readers interested less in the individual than in his times." S. L. Jackson
Springf'd Republican p6 S 6 '44 330w

CUNHA, EUCLYDES DA. Rebellion in the backlands; tr. from Os sertões, with introd. and notes, by Samuel Putnam. 526p il $5 Univ. of Chicago press

981 Brazil—History. Conselheiro, Antonio Vicente Mendes Maciel, called A44-346

This study of the Brazilian rebellion of 1896 was published in Portuguese some forty years ago, and has here been newly translated in English. The rebellion, which took place in a primitive community in the Brazilian desert and mountain country, was led by Antonio Conselheiro, a fanatic preacher, and was stamped out by the government. Believing that this was a bad mistake on the part of the government, the author wrote this story which constitutes a philosophical analysis of Brazilian geography, ethnology, and history. Glossary. Index.

Reviewed by Claude Lévi-Strauss
Am Anthropol 46:394 Jl '44 900w

Am Hist R 49:563 Ap '44 120w

"Only readers thoroughly familiar with the difficult Portuguese text will be able to judge Mr. Putnam's extraordinary success in making this translation. Euclides wrote in a markedly personal style, with a vocabulary drawn from half a dozen sciences and with abundant use of regionalisms. Mr. Putnam has accomplished the difficult task of keeping his rendering accurate while at the same time producing a readable text in idiomatic English. His glossaries and notes on linguistic points are sound work, and his preface and occasional historical footnotes are informative." Alexander Marchant
+ Am Hist R 49:773 Jl '44 650w

Reviewed by Angel Flores
Book Week p3 F 6 '44 500w

Booklist 40:231 Mr 1 '44

Reviewed by Josephine Hambleton
Canadian Forum 23:262 F '44 850w

"Qualified critics have unanimously pronounced Da Cunha's Os Sertoes Brazil's greatest literary classic. To one not extensively versed in Brazilian literature and not equipped to read it in the original Portuguese, this estimate is made completely plausible by Mr. Putnam's impressive translation. . . The wonderful thing is that a big book (500 pages), of such austerity, making no concessions to the popular mood or to the superficial interests of indolent readers, should have leaped to popularity immediately upon its publication in 1902. It makes one think well of the Brazilians." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 61:369 Mr 22 '44 1300w

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '44

"You cannot read 'Rebellion in the Backlands' without feeling that you too have seen and lived in the lunar landscape of the interior portions of the State of Baia, that you have marvelled at its freak vegetation, that you have been parched in its searing droughts, that you have met its tough and fanatical inhabitants, that you helped to put down the Councillor's rebellion. . . Profoundly understood, it comes close to being the universal Latin American classic."
+ Commonweal 39:422 F 11 '44 1950w

"An amazing polemic, ably reproduced."
+ Kirkus 12:12 Ja 1 '44 130w

"Serious reading, but book would be indispensable in any collection of representative South American literature." J. S. Cleavinger
+ Library J 69:117 F 1 '44 110w

Reviewed by Ralph Bates
New Repub 110:250 F 21 '44 1350w

"It would be pretentious and futile to criticize or analyze here Euclides da Cunha's book. Studying it in the light of the most recent theories and discoveries, sociologists, geologists and anthropologists may find it guilty of some small mistakes or exaggerations, principally concerning race problems. But 'Os Sertões' has endured the test of time. I had read it several times and I read it again this week in Samuel Putnam's admirable translation—in itself a literary landmark, for it is more difficult to translate da Cunha into English than to render into Portuguese, for example, the rich and untamed prose of Thomas Wolfe." Erico Verissimo
+ N Y Times p1 F 6 '44 1600w

"Not one of the world's classics—contrary to the opinion Brazilians have of it—but well worth looking into."
New Yorker 20:87 F 19 '44 180w

" 'Rebellion in the Backlands' will probably not be a bestseller. It is a difficult book in some respects. It is not something to be dashed through while waiting for a train. Cunha was a man of erudition and philosophy. His style is discursive, at times even florid and rhetorical. His thoughts and ideas are not always under complete control and hence he often lacks clarity. But always what he says is worth saying, and worth the close reading necessary to detect the undertones and overtones of what he is thinking. The job of translating the book from Portuguese to English must have been difficult. . . But Mr. Samuel Putnam has produced what appears to be a thoroughly admirable translation." William Lynch
Sat R of Lit 27:9 Ja 29 '44 1600w

Time 43:99 Mr 27 '44 1200w

"This book, long recognized as Brazil's greatest, had to wait over forty years for translation into English. It must now be seen by the thoughtful American reader as one of the great books of our hemisphere and time. . . The translation seems to have been a real labor of love, reproducing admirably the rugged, exuberant style—a recreation rather than a translation." B. D. Wolfe
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Jl 30 '44 1350w

CUNNINGHAM, ALBERT BENJAMIN. Canepatch mystery. 224p $2 Dutton 44-5939

Detective story.

Kirkus 12:412 S 15 '44 60w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 S 3 '44 80w

"Sprinkled with good regional material, which is treated with unusual realism."
+ New Yorker 20:80 S 9 '44 90w

"Excellent."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:23 S 2 '44 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p8 S 3 '44 150w

CURRAN, KENNETH JAMES. Excess profits taxation; introd. by Alfred G. Buehler. 203p $3.50; pa $3 Am. council on public affairs
336.243 Excess profits tax 43-15524

"Professor Curran gives a step-by-step description of the enactment of the several excess profits tax laws in the period 1917-21, with references on each point to the original sources, chiefly the Congressional Record, the House and Senate Reports, the Hearings, the statutes, and the Treasury rulings. He also notes the attitudes of various groups toward the tax, and devotes separate chapters to administrative problems and fiscal aspects." Pol Sci Q

"From the standpoint of both tax theory and tax history this particular levy is important, but Curran is the first tax student to evaluate properly its early American history and to lay a sound foundation for further research into its possibilities." R. B. Tower
+ Am Econ R 34:176 Mr '44 650w

Reviewed by William Vickrey
Columbia Law R 44:463 My '44 750w

"The book is a model of scholarly documentation and painstaking research. It is hard reading chiefly because the subject is difficult, and the author does not evade the difficulties." C. S. Shoup
+ Pol Sci Q 59:148 Mr '44 420w

CURTI, MERLE EUGENE. Growth of American thought. 848p il $5 Harper
917.3 U.S.—Intellectual life. U.S.—Civilization 43-14485

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

"Curti is an historian. He gives in a moderate-sized volume an excellent treatment of the background of American economic writing. . . With the above frame of reference, it was probably difficult to bring in the economists. But the economists will be disappointed at the treatment. . . Presumably we should be thankful for the good things in the book and not stress too much the omissions." J. D. Magee
+ — Am Econ R 34:148 Mr '44 370w

"For the first time, this study makes available in a single work a comprehensive analysis of the cultural history of the American people. Its appearance, in view of the significance of the subject, is consequently a major event in American historiography. With no intention to disparage other excellent works in the field—without which Professor Curti doubtless could not have completed his own—one observes a sweep and at the same time an internal unity in this book which renders it unique and invaluable." R. H. Shryock

CURTI, M. E.—Continued

+ Am Hist R 49:732 Jl '44 1750w

"The sociologist will appreciate this significant volume, which affords an excellent interdisciplinary approach to the complex American ideological makeup. As for the teacher of American history, this book should have the result of stimulating the increasing emphasis on intellectual history." Harvey Wish

+ Am J Soc 50:72 Jl '44 750w

"Curti has covered an amazing range, and his voluminous bibliographical notes will be an invaluable guide for future workers. Naturally the work is more effective in the earlier periods, where the material is not so complex and is better controlled, but the author has attacked the later periods effectively and has made certain generalizations which probably will be amplified and expanded as further studies become available. The book is well written and shows splendid synthesizing ability." R. F. Nichols

+ Ann Am Acad 232:204 Mr '44 550w

Bookmark 5:16 My '44

Canadian Forum 24:47 My '44 210w

Reviewed by Theodore Brameld
Ethics 54:304 Jl '44 1200w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:11 Ja '44 10w

"The Growth of American Thought is expository and descriptive rather than analytic. But, for all that, it is a substantial and scholarly, if somewhat pedestrian, treatment, and historians and librarians alike will find it a welcome addition to their shelves." J. H. Shera

+ — Library Q 14:250 Jl '44 1550w

"The Growth of American Thought is consciously de-intellectualized, national rather than agrarian or laborite, carefully inclusive of peripheral problems like nationalities and religion. It hugs reality by its very complexity. Yet it does not escape entirely the tendency of liberal historiography to blunt its own effectiveness and to blur the picture somewhat by too casual handling of the inner differences and inner problems of liberalism." E. F. Goldman

+ — New Eng Q 17:110 Mr '44 850w

"Professor Curti has written a profound and scholarly history of American intellectual development. It is solidly founded on extensive researches into previously untouched sources. An important supplement to the pioneering volumes of Parrington, Beard, Brooks, Mumford and Gabriel, it is at the same time broader in scope and more ambitious in design. . . When all of this is said, it is still necessary to note certain weaknesses in the work. Most important of all, it lacks a great unifying theme to knit its materials together." S. W. Rudy

+ — Pol Sci Q 59:106 Mr '44 1250w

"Professor Curti's book is epoch-marking because it is the first comprehensive history of American thought, but fortunately it is also a work of distinction for its thorough scholarship, its exploration of an extensive monographic literature and a wide range of sources often of a kind little used by historians, and for its intelligent insight and objective spirit. It is plainly the fruit of great learning, prolonged research, and careful reflection. As such it will endure longer as an essential work in its field than do most pioneer efforts of so ambitious a kind." J. M. Cambrill

+ Social Educ 8:230 My '44 1400w

"For enrichment of background and for a fuller understanding of American democracy, Curti's work stands out as a beacon light for every progressive teacher of American history and government." J. C. Baumgartner

+ Social Studies 35:185 Ap '44 1050w

"It seems to me that the value of this solid book of nearly nine hundred pages and seven long parts is magnificently complementary to our other intellectual histories. It argues no thesis, though it is mildly democratic in bias; it lacks the spirited style of Parrington's volumes or the intellectual analysis of Gabriel; but it offers the entire ocean of our thought, which these others certainly fail to do, plus a wise guidance through its main currents and even minor eddies. No doubt these other histories of American thought were distillations of social studies like those pursued by Professor Curti, but in their final form they are somehow trees with their roots in the air. In this book, however, are depths and depths of soil, acres and acres of American attitudes, moods, and ideas." S. T. Williams

+ Yale R n s 33:549 spring '44 1200w

CURTIS, ANNA L. Quakers take stock; contributions by Emma Cadbury [and others] introd. by Clarence E. Pickett. 111p $2; pa $1 Island workshop

289.6 Friends, Society of. World war, 1939—War work—Friends, Society of 44-7439

"A short history of the work of the Friends which sets forth an accurate account of the growth and purposes of the American Friends Service Committee." Social Studies

---

"A factual coverage—geared for a High School as well as a general market."
Kirkus 12:267 Je 15 '44 170w

Reviewed by H. F. McGaw
Library J 69:601 Jl '44 90w

Social Studies 35:384 D '44 30w

CURTIS, WILLIAM ALEXANDER. Jesus Christ the teacher; a study of His methods and message based mainly on the earlier Gospels. 260p $3.25 (10s 6d) Oxford

232.9 Jesus Christ—Teaching A44-1150

"Professor Curtis divides his subject under three main heads, 'The Teacher at Work,' 'The Themes of the Teaching,' and 'The Teaching and the Church.' Under the first of these he deals first with the Teachers Sitz im Leben, with His relation to contemporary life and ways of thinking and then goes on to discuss the method and form of His teaching and His use of parable, poetry, proverb, hyperbole and paradox. . . The second part of the book covers a vast variety of subjects and might almost be described as a compendium of Christian theology. . . What is fresh and distinctive about Professor Curtis's handling of these subjects is that he tests them all by the touchstone of the mind of Christ and so reaches conclusions more eminently Christian than those of many theologians ancient and modern. The third and shortest section of the book emphasizes this by insisting that the teaching of Jesus is the one rock foundation of the life and thought of the Church." Hibbert J

"Dr. Curtis, Dean of the Faculty of Divinity at Edinburgh University and Principal of New College, Edinburgh, has had many years of experience as professor of Biblical criticism, and while his book bears witness to this solid basis of scholarship, it is so written as to be readily understandable to the layman. Then, too, it contains many noteworthy comments aiding the reader in his understanding and appreciation of the Master's life and work." T. L. L.

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 29 '44 550w

"This is an important and significant book, and may be said to mark the emergence of a new spirit and outlook in New Testament interpretation. . . Dr. Curtis, as he admits, lays himself open to certain criticisms. He will be charged by some with being too easy and credulous in accepting the authenticity of certain of the sayings of Jesus. . . Another ground for criticism will no doubt be found in Professor Curtis's use of the Fourth Gospel." W. B. Selbie

+ Hibbert J 42:283 Ap '44 1200w

"This book is a distillation of the Croall Lectures delivered in St. George's Parish Church, Edinburgh, Scotland. It is easy to read, being popular in form and language. . . Some sayings are accepted by the author as genuine which can hardly be so. . . Altogether this book is an earnest and often eloquent plea for a concentration by all who care for the future of the church and the world on the two questions, What did Jesus actually say? and What did he mean by what he said?" A. H. Forster

+ — J Religion 24:221 Jl '44 650w

Reviewed by J. K. Mozley
Spec 172:506 Je 2 '44 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p129 Mr 11 '44 900w

CURTISS, MRS MINA STEIN (KIRSTEIN), ed. Letters home; arranged by [the editor]. 314p $2.75 Little

940.548173 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 44-5345

Collection of letters from men in the ranks, in the present war, written to their families at home. They were selected out of thousands, by an associate professor of English in Smith college. Index.

"Covering a wide sweep of emotional, as well as actual, territory the letter writers transport us from Iowa to North Africa; Massachusetts Bay to New Guinea; Arkansas to Sicily; Maine to England. That we are disappointed that none among them takes us from Chicago or sends mail back here, does not mean that we're not properly grateful for what we've got." Marion Strobel
+ Book Week p4 Je 18 '44 320w
Booklist 40:386 Jl 15 '44

"It remained for a college professor of English, daughter of a distinguished Boston citizen, to discover that the clearest picture of how men feel and act in this tragedy is to be found in the letters soldiers write to their families. With diligence and ingenuity she sought out the letters; they were edited with such skill that they give a revealing and moving look into the minds and hearts of men at war. Men who are writing letters home are not writing for effect; but when their letters are assembled the effect is something." L. L. Winship
+ Boston Globe p17 Je 14 '44 350w

"The Associate Professor of English at Smith College must needs be complimented in gathering together these most interesting letters from service men abroad. . . On the whole the letters reveal an American youth—patriotic, daring, resourceful, amenable to discipline, taking gladly every kind of discomfort and suffering, and facing death with a smile."
+ Cath World 159:573 S '44 150w

"A fine piece of selection and editing."
+ Kirkus 12:191 Ap 15 '44 190w

Reviewed by Marcus Duffield
Nation 159:104 Jl 22 '44 700w

Reviewed by Lewis Nichols
N Y Times p5 Je 11 '44 700w

"There is an unusual freshness and honesty about this collection, probably because nothing in it was written for publication. For much the same reason, it has more actual literary merit than most of the books, including the few good ones, that have so far come out of the war. . . There is a single letter, written from Africa by a Polish boy named Felix Napiecek, that is a better short story than many of those that manage to get published. A book, in other words, to read and to own."
+ New Yorker 20:78 Je 10 '44 150w

"Interesting as is the picture presented by this volume, the reader must remember that it is a picture achieved by selection. One feels that this is, in a sense, a teacher's collection; that these chosen letters, for all their slipshod syntax and casual spelling, have all measured up to a certain standard of English Composition. Had Mrs. Curtiss dipped lower in the scale of literacy, she might have given us a very different, but equally revealing, book. It might not have made as interesting reading. It would almost certainly have made less comfortable reading." B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 27:13 Jl 8 '44 900w

"Not one of its 314 pages is dull; a few of them surpass, in their clarity, emotional intensity, and power of observation, the professional reporting of the war."
+ Time 43:99 Je 12 '44 1750w

"If you are interested in a picture of the war as a whole, done with literary skill, by all means stick to the books of war correspondents, who are professional writers, much better at the trade than these men. But if your wish is to see the thing as it is, to comprehend the attitudes of the men who are fighting it, this will do more for you than the most brilliant productions of the professionals." G. W. Johnson
+ Weekly Book Review p1 Je 11 '44 800w

CURZON, COLIN. Case of the eighteenth ostrich. 319p $2 Macmillan [9s 6d Hurst] 44-873

Mystery story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p10 Mr 19 '44 90w
Booklist 40:356 Je 15 '44
Kirkus 11:560 D 15 '43 60w

"It is a wild chase with plenty of action, although far too much of it is of the slapstick variety. But for a murder or two and several attempted murders there is not a serious moment in the story." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 F 20 '44 100w

"Sprightly hero and heroine of 'Body in Barrage Balloon' don't come off so well in this tedious and uproariously unfunny opus. No dice."
— Sat R of Lit 27:30 F 12 '44 50w

"A true Mack Sennett in book form and will find a large audience among those who appreciate this particular brand of humor." H. J. S.
Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 9 '44 250w

"Flight Lieutenant Curzon's comedic talent may be undisciplined, even wild, but it has the authentic ring as it romps in every direction. This is the most amusing mystery in quite some time, pretty sure to make you feel young, foolish and carefree for a whole evening. By the way, it's just as exciting as the deadly earnest espionage yarns, if not more so." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p12 F 13 '44 320w

CUSHMAN, MARY FLOYD. Missionary doctor; the story of twenty years in Africa. 279p il $2.75 Harper

916.73 Missions—Angola. Angola—Description and travel 44-9079

"The region was Angola, Portuguese West Africa. The years were 1922-42. Dr. Cushman was 52 when she began her missionary career. In her book she tells less about herself than about the people among whom she worked, their manners and customs, the conditions under which they lived, and their response to the efforts made on their behalf. The record gives the impression of a sensible as well as sympathetic approach to the people and the missionary enterprise." Christian Century

Booklist 41:84 N 15 '44

" 'Dr. Mary' tells her story with that kind of great simplicity which can only spring from unselfish devotion to God and service to His humanity." Jean Pinanski
+ Boston Globe p15 O 25 '44 410w
Christian Century 61:1230 O 25 '44 80w

"This is one of the most sincere and vigorous testaments of international friendship ever to come to the attention of the reviewer. . . It should appeal both to the missionary minded as well as the casual reader, for it is in reality a handbook on Angola."
+ Kirkus 12:499 N 1 '44 170w

"Dr. Cushman is much more interested in the people she worked with than she is in herself; thus her book is less an autobiography than it is a record of these people. She appears unfamiliar with anthropology, which is a shame, for her descriptions of African tribes contain valuable sociological material." Calder Willingham
+ N Y Times p37 N 26 '44 550w
Wis Lib Bul 40:156 D '44

CUSTER, JOE JAMES. Through the perilous night. 243p il $2.75 Macmillan

940.548173 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. Astoria (cruiser) 44-6038

"When the author, sports writer for the Seattle Times, was caught at Pearl Harbor on that fateful December 7th, he automatically became a war correspondent. Thereafter he witnessed and describes vividly, the American bombardment of Wake Island, and Marcus Island, the transport of Doolittle and his men, the attack on Guadalcanal and the disastrous naval battle of Savo Island, in which the cruiser, 'Astoria,' on which he was stationed, was sunk, and he received a serious eye wound." Library J

"It is straight but uninspired reporting by a chap who learned his trade in the sports department." Sterling North

Book Week p2 Jl 30 '44 300w

"As the story of one casualty—and few on board escaped unhurt—Mr. Custer's record is undoubtedly representative. It differs in this respect from many other current books which do not dwell at length on the human consequences of battle. This does not make for pleasant reading. Approximately half the book is taken up with the tedious months of suffering that followed the injury. Considerable clinical description is included. The story is full of action, and the telling is graphic though at times it verges on the flamboyant." D. H. J.

+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 1 '44 320w

Kirkus 12:162 Ap 1 '44 180w

"Should prove popular." G. W. Wakefield

+ Library J 69:501 Je 1 '44 100w

"If you don't mind the title of this book and don't take the subtitle too seriously you have a racy, readable account of how one sports writer was jolted out of his soft seat in Hawaii into the Pacific naval war. . . . Not always is the general pattern of the naval war he is witnessing clear as Custer tells it. It's one man's story and even the telling of the Astoria's flaming end is more personal than overall. The subtitle should not suggest that the writer has attempted a comprehensive 'biography' of another of our lost ships." Austin Stevens

+ — N Y Times p18 Jl 9 '44 360w

Reviewed by H. E. Yarnell

Pacific Affairs 17:509 D '44 140w

"A subtitle . . . [explains] that the book deals with 'the Astoria's last battle,' that disastrous affair off Savo Island on the second night of the Guadalcanal invasion. The publishers present it as the story of that mysterious action, on which everyone would willingly have more light. Well, the reader who buys the book under the impression that this is what he is going to get will simply be stuck. . . [It] is told in good, swift-paced narrative and from a highly personal angle—the narrative of a competent reporter with an ear for good quotes, who knows a significant detail when he meets one, and who adopts the personal experience form to supply a unifying thread for a story that would otherwise be merely discursive." Fletcher Pratt

+ — Sat R of Lit 27:23 Ag 26 '44 500w

"It is an unwelcome task to criticize the work of an able young newspaper worker who suffered much. Yet the fact is that while he gives many pages of doctors' reports and of his own sensations while going through operations and treatments, he does not tell what the public wants to know and what, some day, must be told. Perhaps he could not tell it, but one suspects that he could have come much closer than he has. As it is, the book has the value of a somewhat vivid though disjointed account of the night action off Savo island and of other naval operations in the Pacific in which Mr Custer took part." R. H.

+ — Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 19 '44 390w

"'Through the Perilous Night' takes the reader right into the thick of a naval battle—as close as one could hope to get while sitting in the arm chair at home. Unfortunately, the book is marred by Mr. Custer's manner of telling the story, which is almost as confused as the battle itself; and by his inclusion of much extraneous material, notably a long tedious account of the various steps in the saving of his eye." Marcus Duffield

— + Weekly Book Review p9 S 3 '44 500w

CUTHRELL, FAITH (BALDWIN). See Baldwin, F.

CUTLER, ETHEL. They told about Jesus. 120p $2 Womans press

232.9 Jesus Christ—Biography 44-5043

"Scholars of the New Testament have given much thought of late to the probable circumstances under which the contents of our Gospels came to be orally preserved and later written. Using their findings, Miss Cutler has successfully presented in attractive form this tentative story of the transmission of the memorabilia about Jesus. She is not concerned here so much with what was told about Jesus as with how or why it was told. We see the eyewitnesses bearing testimony in Palestine to what they have seen, we note them preaching to others when driven farther afield, and we find their successors putting in writing their story as we now read it in our Gospels." Christian Century

"This book, though limited to a single phase of early Christian recording, by its simple text and well selected quotations both ancient and modern gives the reader a vivid sense of the natural conditions under which the well known story was preserved." H. J. Cadbury

+ Christian Century 61:1255 N 1 '44 160w

"Although based on the results of modern scholarship, text of They Told about Jesus is never burdensome. Author's technique never comes between reader and message. Lists of 'Translations Old and New' and 'Books among Which to Browse' will guide those interested in further study." O. G. Lawson

+ Library J 68:890 N 1 '43 100w

CUTRIGHT, PRUDENCE, and others. Latin America; twenty friendly nations. 450p il maps $1.84 Macmillan

918 Latin America 44-4305

"The purpose of this book, for the upper grades, is to bring the Americas into a closer unity, by encouraging students in our country to acquire a sympathetic understanding of the peoples of Latin America." School & Society

Booklist 40:379 Jl 1 '44

School & Society 59:352 My 13 '44 30w

"The Macmillan Company has also recently published a high school text in Latin-American history. The fact that its general plan is very similar to that of this text raises the question of the grading of Latin-American materials. Are students to be given repeated doses of the same information, with each dose a little stronger than the previous one? Or is there to be a separation of kinds of information, with presumably more difficult material being introduced at each succeeding level? In the two Macmillan books, the duplication of content and plan is more than just overlapping; it is—duplication. That does not detract from the merits of the individual texts, but considered together, it is questionable whether they are pedagogically all that could be desired." Wayne Alvord

Social Educ 8:285 O '44 500w

Reviewed by B. M. Eves

Social Studies 35:377 D '44 230w

CZAJA, HELEN MANLEY (MRS MICHAEL CZAJA). Bountiful cow; pictures by Michael Czaja. [55p] $1.50 Holt

44-6937

Picture-story book for small children. It relates the experiences of a timid cow, member of a herd of thirty, who grew fat and prosperous and took all kinds of medals because she learned to be brave.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p18 N 12 '44 130w
Cath World 160:278 D '44 20w

"A pleasant book, with modern vivacious black and white illustrations by the authors."
+ Kirkus 12:319 Jl 15 '44 60w

"Humorous illustrations in black and white by author's husband. Recommended for the picture-book age." M. A. Webb
+ Library J 69:1048 D 1 '44 70w

"The book as a whole is designed to catch the eye of adults rather than to suit the needs of a 4 or 5 year old. The black and white pictures are too symbolic and confusing for a little child who wants to know what things really look like; and the typography, while pleasing to the eye, is so complicated that it is hard to follow." E. M. M.
N Y Times p10 N 12 '44 100w

"The simple story is one that all children can appreciate, and the numerous black and white drawings (several to a page) are delightfully amusing." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d S 24 '44 80w

"These pictures are comic in the true rather than the contemporary use of the word; not so much pictures of animals as of the emotions very little children attribute to animals. Another feature should be noted: when the twenty-nine cows are mentioned they are drawn, every one, and the impulse to count them is practically irresistible. This is said to be a first book; it looks to me like more to come." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 S 24 '44 220w

CZECHOSLOVAKIA. Ministerstvo zahranicnich veci. Czechoslovakia fights back. 210p $3; pa $2.50 Am. council on public affairs

940.53437 World war, 1939—Czechoslovakia 43-16542

"The record of the material and spiritual destruction wrought in occupied Czechoslovakia in the course of the five fateful years since the unfortunate Munich agreement. Here, too, is the story of the unbending faith and determined courage of a people who refuse to die as a nation." Introd.

Am Hist R 49:776 Jl '44 40w

Reviewed by J. L. Kunz
Am Pol Sci R 38:198 F '44 300w
Booklist 40:231 Mr 1 '44

"Here is no flamboyant propaganda, but a cold compilation of the record which leaves the reader confident that the Czechs have shown admirable restraint in their indictment."
+ Christian Science Monitor p8 Je 17 '44 140w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:500 Ap '44 20w

D

D., H. See Doolittle, H.

DABNEY, THOMAS EWING. One hundred great years; the story of the Times-Picayune from its founding to 1940. 552p $4 La. state univ. press

071 Times-Picayune 44-5253

History of the New Orleans Times-Picayune, which constitutes also a social history of the times. The paper was the first one in New Orleans to sell for less than a dime; it was named for the Spanish coin which was the paper's street price. Index.

"Mr. Dabney has succeeded reasonably well in intertwining the social history of the period and the specific development of the paper. The day-to-day concerns of citizens of Louisiana, with their water or ice supply, the price of cotton, and similar matters, as balanced against the larger considerations that involved the impact of the wider world. The book will be of interest to students of the newspaper and also to social historians." M. M. Willey
+ Ann Am Acad 236:219 N '44 360w

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p2 Jl 30 '44 360w
Booklist 40:350 Je 15 '44

"This is not a contribution to the history of journalism, but simply one more backward-looking volume of the 'Only Yesterday' type. Unfortunately Mr. Dabney lacks the lively touch needed to keep that kind of book rolling; nor does he possess the incisiveness or the selectivity of details required of the soberer historian. But for all that, this stout, incoherent volume is engaging to dip into, as the files of any long-established newspaper usually are."
— + Nation 159:81 Jl 15 '44 180w

"Mr. Dabney has added a well-written volume to the growing list of histories of individual newspapers. . . Mr. Dabney has covered well the local and State history of New Orleans and Louisiana, both rich in color." C. M. Puckette
+ N Y Times p16 Jl 16 '44 180w

"Out of it all emerges a sense of a newspaper's growth and expansion through comedy and tragedy, through vital years and slow ones. The Times-Picayune of New Orleans saw and helped make much of the history of its place and people. The Louisiana State University Press has here contributed an excellent format and general presentation." H. T. Kane
+ Sat R of Lit 27:16 Je 17 '44 750w

Reviewed by O. J. Coffin
Social Forces 23:233 D '44 200w
Social Studies 33:336 N '44 40w

"One of the best of all the newspaper biographies. It has no great literary merit, perhaps, but Mr. Dabney tells the story, which is also the story of New Orleans. . . Here is an honest history that is sure to fascinate all who like to delve into the past of our great newspapers." Stanley Walker
+ Weekly Book Review p17 O 8 '44 300w

D'AGAPEYEFF, ALEXANDER, and HADFIELD, ELLIS CHARLES RAYMOND. Maps. 140p $1.75 (4s) Oxford

526.8 Maps A43-3543

Brief history of maps and their makers, and something of the technique of their making. Includes a chapter on the old maps of the British Isles, with illustrations. The book is of English origin. Index.

"The book is English throughout. For history and map projections it is excellent. Photogrammetry in map making is not mentioned." J. C. Penn
+ — Book Week p11 O 31 '43 330w
Booklist 40:178 Ja 15 '44

"This book will stimulate curiosity about maps, but only part of it can be recommended to the student of cartography and, in view of the good cartographical literature that exists, none of it to the historian or the collector." Edward Lynam
— + Spec 171:534 D 3 '43 450w
Times [London] Lit Sup p82 F 12 '44 210w

DAHL, BORGHILD MARGARETHE. I wanted to see; with a foreword by William L. Benedict. 210p $2 Macmillan

B or 92 Blindness 44-1726

The author was nearly blind from childhood until a few years ago. Despite her handicap she finished her college course, became a teacher in high school and then college; lectured, and reviewed books. Finally two operations at the Mayo clinic gave her more sight than she had ever had before. Her book describes her life from childhood, to the operation which saved her sight.

Am Soc R 9:716 D '44 30w

"Not only is this the story of a serious handicap magnificently overcome, but it is the story of a woman of such high intelligence and

DAHL, B. M.—Continued
wisdom that she has enriched every life she has touched." Edith Roberts

+ Book Week p4 Mr 5 '44 500w

Booklist 40:245 Mr 15 '44

"Told modestly and with no plea for sympathy, but the total effect of it should communicate something of her heroic determination to any person who labors under a handicap."

+ Christian Century 61:277 Mr 1 '44 120w

"A book with inspirational rather than literary value."

Kirkus 11:568 D 15 '43 120w

"Her book succeeds in capturing much of that compound of courage, strength, and sensitiveness which makes up the character of this daughter of Norwegian immigrants to Minnesota. Young people and the physically handicapped will find it especially interesting." J. C. Shipman

+ Library J 68:1010 D 1 '43 110w

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean

+ N Y Times p10 Mr 12 '44 500w

Reviewed by Harry Best

+ Survey 80:359 D '44 280w

"There are many with eye troubles, many with other physical handicaps and many more who let relatively minor matters handicap them. To the first two categories this woman's warm, humble tribute of gratitude for the ability to see will come as needed personal encouragement. To the last-named it may well carry the stimulus of unconscious reproof."

+ Weekly Book Review p16 My 28 '44 250w

Wis Lib Bul 40:84 Je '44

DAHL, FRANCIS WELLINGTON. What! more Dahl? cartoons; with an introd. verse by Ogden Nash. [159p] $2.50 Hale, Ralph T.

741.5 Humor, Pictorial. Caricatures and cartoons 44-47670

"Francis Dahl draws a daily cartoon for The Boston Herald. . . Dahl's technique is the not unfamiliar one of taking a fragment of a news item and, in successive pictures—cartoonists call them 'panels'—exploring its various implications. . . Dahl's pen does to an ill-considered or obscure news story what Benny Goodman's clarinet does to a stodgy old fox-trot." N Y Times

Boston Globe p32 N 29 '44 50w

"In a season which has brought forth a good many books of cartoons, Dahl looks better than ever." Russell Maloney

+ N Y Times p7 Ja 14 '45 480w

DALE, CELIA. Least of these. 303p $2.50 Macmillan [9s Hurst]

44-7485

"Sharp family in London in September 1940 undergoes appalling psychological and moral stress when forced to use the Scholars Town station of the underground as a bomb shelter for weeks on end. Ma takes to drink, the youngest daughter to thievery and the oldest daughter to shrewishness when her marriage goes to pot with the destruction of her home." Library J

"This is Celia Dale's first novel, poignant, dramatic, terribly real. It is singularly appropriate that it appears just now when the lights are going on again in England. For this is a story of the blackout and the blitz. Possibly the story." Edith Roberts

+ Book Week p4 S 24 '44 400w

Booklist 41:41 O 1 '44

Christian Science Monitor p13 D 30 '44 650w

Reviewed by E. V. R. Wyatt

Commonweal 40:595 O 6 '44 700w

Kirkus 12:305 Jl 15 '44 170w

"Excellent novel, recommended." F. A. Boyle

+ Library J 69:698 S 1 '44 80w

"The book is a little masterpiece of realism and continuously interesting. But I regret the ending. The Sharps and the reader deserve some ease after so much suffering." J. D. Beresford

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 O 22 '43 200w

" 'The Least of These' has the usual faults of an earnest first novel. There is the overwriting born of an impassioned eagerness, the overcrowded scene as Miss Dale sees her chance to push on the stage every pet character and theory. But, essentially, these defects remain inconsequential. The important thing is that the Sharps and their unimportant miseries are as real as a bomb in your own front room." Thelma Purtell

+ — N Y Times p16 O 8 '44 400w

"This is a first novel by a young English writer, Celia Dale. It is a beautifully written, terrifyingly graphic story of what it meant to live in a little house in a little suburb of London through those dreadful months in the latter part of 1940." S. H. Hay

+ Sat R of Lit 27:27 S 30 '44 800w

"Through one family, the Sharps, of 21 Prince Albert Road, N., Celia Dale has for the first time in fiction put on record, alive and complete, with its events and its psychological reactions, the first great blitz on London. That with so grim a background 'The Least of These' should be so lively is due largely to the Sharps themselves." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p4 O 1 '44 700w

DALE, VIRGINIA. Nan Thursday. 174p $2.25 Coward-McCann

44-3053

Mystery story.

"The extra-slick writing needed to keep this story on its toes is lacking; the show and the radio background offer only a light salt-and-pepper sprinkling that fails to season the dish." Andrea Parke

N Y Times p19 Ap 2 '44 240w

" 'Nan Thursday' is ingenious in plot and has the suspense of a good mystery."

+ Weekly Book Review p8 Mr 19 '44 150w

DALGLIESH, ALICE. Silver pencil; decorations by Katherine Milhous. 235p $2.50 Scribner

44-8966

In part based on the author's own memories, this is the story of Janet Laidlaw, born in Trinidad of English parents sometime near the end of the nineteenth century. Janet goes to school in England, and later comes to America where she trains to be a kindergarten teacher. During a vacation in Nova Scotia she writes her first book and the story ends a year later with the beginning of a second book and the taking out of citizenship papers.

"A charming, worthwhile story for older girls." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p3 N 12 '44 360w

Booklist 41:93 N 15 '44

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p6 N 9 '44 150w

Commonweal 41:256 D 22 '44 30w

"Janet is a girl who will win many friends through this penetrating, often humorous, portrayal of her character and problems. Her story may be confidently recommended to older girls."

+ Horn Bk 20:483 N '44 180w

Kirkus 12:435 S 15 '44 90w

"As a 'girls' story,' it may miss fire, because it has little action and no dramatic climax; as autobiography, it will reach older girls who appreciate truth and reality of heroine's experiences." M. C. Scoggin

+ Library J 69:1005 N 15 '44 80w

"A sturdy honesty is one of the outstanding qualities of this book, for Janet was neither glamorous nor spectacularly successful, and young girls will like her all the more for that. Her story moves quietly through the years of change and growth, perhaps too placidly for some tastes, but beneath the surface there is humor and a fine sensitivity to places and people." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p16 D 10 '44 160w

"A story of considerable merit for girls of high-school age. Such books are rare. This one is semi-autobiographical and two-thirds of it has that extra sense of reality only good autobiography can give."

+ New Yorker 20:90 D 16 '44 90w

"The book demands a second reading. We read it first to meet Janet and share her life. The second time we read it for the beauty of the wording, for the word pictures that make so easy the dramatic transition from Trinidad to England, to Scotland, to Canada, and America." M. G. D.

+ Sat R of Lit 27:34 N 11 '44 500w

Springf'd Republican p4d N 19 '44 70w

"The life of Alice Dalgliesh teems with material for autobiography. She has, however, not yet reached the age for it; this story, using its material, has special place among books of the year and permanent value in the literature of the teens. For it is the only one in which an author with such awareness of life has gone to the heart of a much misunderstood matter—the psychology of naturalization... This could have been made into a career book... Happily it developed otherwise... This story will hold its value indefinitely, not only because it turns on a problem of vital importance, but because it speaks directly to the inner solitude of gregarious, chattering girlhood, and in its touching little love-affairs, its humility and honesty, convinces its reader that there is, after all, some one who understands."

+ Weekly Book Review p8 N 12 '44 550w

Wis Lib Bul 40:162 D '44

DALI, SALVADOR. Hidden faces; tr. by Haakon M. Chevalier. 414p $3 Dial press 44-5688

"A long, uneven and occasionally melodramatic story about wealthy French and American people before, during and after the present war. It is also an erotic tale of decadent and frustrated love, of orgy incontinence, of passion crossed by fate, of noble devotion. The action takes place in Paris, Casablanca, New York, Palm Springs and on the estates of its hero in a fertile plain of southeastern France. Aristocrat, dabbler in the occult and the perverse, this arrogant Count de Grandsailles rejects and humiliates elegant Solange de Cléda for whom he entertains 'a bizarre passion.' After the fall of Paris, he involves himself from patriotic motives (though rather incomprehensibly) in the tangled political activities of North Africa. Then, emigrated to America under a false name, he marries the virginal Veronica Stevens who mistakes him for her true-love." Weekly Book Review

Reviewed by Sterling North

Book Week p2 Je 18 '44 550w

Kirkus 12:239 Je 1 '44 130w

"Whatever Dali has done has usually been distinguished by some degree of originality. But this book—particularly after the first hundred pages, in which, strangely enough, there are some glimpses of humor—is confused, old-fashioned, derivative, and intensely boring." James Stern

— Nation 159:104 Jl 22 '44 550w

" 'Hidden Faces' is at once better and worse than a summary of the action and characters might suggest. Given the characters, several passages—a dinner at Grandsailles on the fatal Sixth of February, Solange's induced paranoia, Grandsailles' machinations in North Africa—are well done. Until the plot intervenes and takes over, Dali displays an intuitive feeling for the novel as a form. And for all its extravagance and overreliance on adjectives which betray the fact that he probably was not 'destined for a literary carrer,' the writing has a good deal of the brilliance that Dali and Chevalier claim for it." George Mayberry

New Repub 110:790 Je 12 '44 1050w

"Dali's earlier work in prose, his 'Secret Life,' led one to expect from his first work of fiction—if not instruction—at least a mild sort of entertainment at his expense. But now, wishing 'to approach the new times of intellectual responsibility which we will enter upon with the end of this war,' he has, by no act of logic, written 'a long and boring "true novel." ' His sofa in the shape of lips showed more 'intellectual responsibility' than this... It reads, in other words, like an imitation of Huysmans intent on making the present market—which is to say that, besides obscurely developing a series of perversions which might titillate adolescents, it employs contemporary political and psychological slogans. The result, for those who have seriously committed themselves to contemporary politics or psychology, is, naturally, disgusting." Mark Schorer

— N Y Times p4 Je 11 '44 700w

"On Dali's side, one finds in this novel none of the qualities that are good in his pictures, which are certainly not deficient in craftsmanship: there is no clarity, no sharp-focussed vividness, no delicacy or firmness of line. We are far from the beneficent influences that have presided over his development as a painter: Picasso and Chirico, Velásquez and Vermeer. Dali's literary models have been bad ones, and, from the moment that he abandoned his real métier, they have swept him into a retrogression that affords one of the most curious examples of the contemporary stoppage and lapse of the arts in collision with the political crisis." Edmund Wilson

— New Yorker 20:61 Jl 1 '44 2000w

Reviewed by Harrison Smith

— Sat R of Lit 27:12 Je 24 '44 950w

Time 43:99 Je 5 '44 1000w

"There are passages of minute, tender and overwhelming brilliance as, for instance, the descriptions of the forest of cork-oaks. Other pages seem slipshod and some will revolt readers unprepared to accept Dali's own particular mixture of clinical and psychoanalytical detail, mysticism, passion for juxtaposing the inappropriate fertility of imagination and sheer braggadocio." Iris Barry

Weekly Book Review p6 Je 11 '44 900w

DALLIN, DAVID JULIEVICH. The real Soviet Russia; tr. by Joseph Shaplen. 260p $3.50 Yale univ. press

947.084 Russia—History—Revolution, 1917- . Communism—Russia A44-5572

"This book may come as a wholesome shock to some people who lost their sense of perspective due to recent over-enthusiastic appraisals of Russia's war policies. Author whose two studies of Soviet diplomacy were widely acclaimed, investigates now in sober fashion actual living conditions in U.S.S.R. Tries to prove that Soviet propaganda does not present true picture of situation within the country. Shows changes of the social structure, examines new religious policy of Stalin and describes functioning of Communist party. Concludes that immediate future for Russia is not too bright." (Library J) List of sources. Index.

Booklist 41:168 F 1 '45

"Extraordinary even in an ex-Russian is Dallin's tendency to disparage the patriotism of the Russian people and play up the importance of whatever Fifth Column activity he can cite. He even denies the conscious spirit of the Red Army fighting men and likens them to Catherine's serf-soldiers. In all the dark picture which he offers as 'The Real Soviet Russia,' anyone who knows wartime Russia will look in vain for a glimmer of that vitality, faith, and courage which have characterized the Russians in conflict." E. S.

— Christian Science Monitor p14 D 29 '44 550w

"The author's explanations are concrete and enlightening on the problems within the state and those directly affecting external relations."

+ Current Hist 8:72 Ja '45 100w

Kirkus 12:421 S 15 '44 150w

"Recommended for public and college libraries." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 69:998 N 15 '44 110w

New Yorker 20:54 D 30 '44 270w

DALLIN, D. J.—Continued
"Unfortunately, there are no footnotes in this book with which to check the basis on which such charges are made. Mr. Dallin's analysis of Communist political science is worth reading. But Wendell L. Willkie, Joseph E. Davies, Eric Johnston and Sir Bernard Pares, or Henry Shapiro, Walter Kerr, Henry Cassidy, Maurice Hindus and Ralph Parker are still the best sources to which an American can turn who wants to learn, slowly but honestly, about the real Soviet Russia." Joseph Barnes
— Weekly Book Review p22 D 3 '44 850w

DALLIN, DAVID JULIEVICH. Russia and postwar Europe; tr. by F. K. Lawrence. 230p $2.75 Yale univ. press

327.47 Russia—Foreign policy. World war, 1939—Russia. Reconstruction (1939-)—Russia A43-3785

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

"The author shows a thorough knowledge of the available source material in the field of Soviet Russia's policy—whether there is sufficient documentary material at hand now to permit drawing any but the most tentative conclusions is, of course, a moot question. Dallin's analysis is logical and penetrating. Some of the conclusions reached by Mr. Dallin appear, however, to be unnecessarily rigid and dogmatic. . . When the author leaves the familiar ground of Soviet foreign policy, he exhibits a less complete knowledge of recent Russian history. . . The editing and proofreading are not always perfect. . . These minor blemishes, however, do not affect the main argument of the book, which should be carefully read by all interested in the problem of postwar world affairs." D. F. White
+ — Am Hist R 49:728 Jl '44 800w

"Mr. Dallin unquestionably belongs to those who are decidedly critical of Soviet foreign policy. But whatever the reasons for his bias (he is a refugee from the Soviet Union), he is admittedly one of the best-informed students of the subject, and his book is a valuable source of knowledge." H. H. F. Eulau
Ann Am Acad 232:186 Mr '44 450w

"Taken in connection with Professor Dallin's earlier book, Soviet Russia's Foreign Policy, 1939-1942, this constitutes the most valuable study now available in this country concerning the aims of the Soviet government. . . The book is given a very queer effect by the fact that Dr. Dallin spends his first 219 pages practically proving that the chance for permanent collaboration between Russia and Britain after the war is hopeless, and then tacks on three and a half pages of exhortation at the end to keep up hope. One wonders which part of his book the author really believes—the 219 or the three and a half pages."
Christian Century 61:563 My 3 '44 230w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 8 '44 200w

"To the astute student, familiar with the polemical character of much current historical writing, this book may be useful in some of its chronological details. For the uninformed reader, who can easily be misled by the glowing jacket blurbs of scholarly impartiality written by such dubious critics as Eugene Lyons and William Henry Chamberlin (whose cautious New York Times review—after Moscow and Teheran—is in decided contrast to the advertisement's plaudits), this book is not to be recommended." W. H. Melish
— + Churchman 158:16 F 1 '44 300w

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '44

Current Hist 6:68 Ja '44 60w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:499 Ap '44 70w

Reviewed by Cyril Clemens
Springf'd Republican p6 Je 4 '44 600w

"David J. Dallin's study is perhaps the most enlightening book that has appeared about Soviet foreign policy. . . Professor Dallin, a former member of the Moscow Soviet, at best thinks like a Bolshevik, at worst understands how Bolsheviks think. Soviet foreign policy which for Winston Churchill has been 'a riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma' is for Dallin a sphinx without a secret."
Time 43:98 Ap 3 '44 750w

"Mr. Dallin, a Russian Socialist who lived in exile from 1911 to 1914, and again from 1921 to the present time, has already become known for his book 'Soviet Russia's Foreign Policy, 1939-1942.' In this new volume he explores what he considers to be the motives and methods of the Soviet government, and attempts to forecast, in a general way, the course Russia may be expected to take in the event of Germany's collapse. . . Mr. Dallin's book offers an antidote to uncritical consideration of the Soviet foreign policy, and shows its historical continuity. With what seems like grim satisfaction he dissects the actions of the Soviet government during the inter-war years, and then puts them together again, like the pieces of a puzzle, to present what he believes to be the post-war picture. Taken as an antidote, his book has unquestionable value. But taken as a complete presentation of Russia's position in Europe it leaves many crucial questions unanswered." V. M. Dean
+ — Yale R n s 33:541 spring '44 1000w

DALY, ELIZABETH. Arrow pointing nowhere. 250p $2 Farrar 43-17835

Detective story.

Booklist 40:199 F 1 '44

Bookmark 5:20 Mr '44

"Miss Daly's best book so far, and a smooth and intelligent job. Highly recommended."
+ New Repub 110:126 Ja 24 '44 50w

"Told with all the skill that Miss Daly has at her command, and she has plenty." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p22 Ja 9 '44 120w

"There's a very good twist at the end, which should appeal to readers who like their homicides politely presented."
+ New Yorker 19:68 Ja 8 '44 70w

"Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:21 Ja 15 '44 30w

"Elizabeth Daly is one popular baffler who could probably write a creditable non-mystery novel if she chose. Not that we want her to do so, since she serves a useful and comforting purpose where she is: she's a lifesaver to fans who demand the civilized point of view, characters who resemble human beings as we know them and writing to match. She is right there, too, with puzzle interest, without which a whodunit would be neither here nor there." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 9 '44 280w

DALY, ELIZABETH. Book of the dead. 245p $2 Farrar 44-6027

Detective story.

"Well-written and satisfactory—although you may feel that Gamadge uses in his detection more clairvoyance than is permissible." Elizabeth Bullock
+ — Book Week p6 Jl 23 '44 130w

Booklist 41:24 S '44

Kirkus 12:203 My 1 '44 80w

"Miss Daly has been growing steadily in her mastery of the detective story: 'Arrow Pointing Nowhere' was a superb job and her new one is at the same high level." E. H.
+ New Repub 111:86 Jl 17 '44 90w

"This mystery begins in a thin way and quickly builds up to keen interest and excitement. . . The plot is compactly and fairly worked out. Dangerous doings are told in a smooth Park Avenue manner that makes them seem grimmer. The book is an absorbing yarn that holds up to the end." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p16 Jl 16 '44 160w

"Nicely told, if not well assembled."
+ — New Yorker 20:64 Jl 29 '44 90w

"By all odds best of Gamadge adventures to date. Beautifully plotted, believable characters, ample action, and thrills. Grade A."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:12 Jl 15 '44 50w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p12 Jl 16 '44 110w

DALY, JAMES JOSEPH. Poems, 1923-1943. 148p $2.50 Dryden
811 44-200

"Hitherto available only in limited editions, Daly's poetry is now issued in a volume of the best of his work chosen from several books and one unpublished manuscript. Such literary critics as James T. Farrell, Kenneth Burke, and George Dillon who won the Pulitzer Prize for Poetry in 1932, have given his work high praise." Sat R of Lit

"Spanning two decades, the verse displays constant progress within the limits of a talent that cannot fundamentally change or evolve. The chief accomplishment of that talent is the maintenance of a natural and personal tone through a variety of poetic situations. It is a quality which it is difficult to see fully in any one poem, inevitably cumulative, as though we were to hear a vocalist sing successively in many different ranges and moods with equal ease and without loss of personal identity, or recognize in a series of sketches the same intense and plastic line enclosing, with equal sympathy, clowns, madonnas, elephants and trees." William Paster
+ New Repub 109:890 D 20 '43 300w

"It is hard to say of Daly's poems just which is the best. All are moments imprisoned in 'the terrible crystal' of a style which reflects back at the reader more than the words themselves, considered as mere sign-posts to direct understanding, actually seem to contain. Though the range of themes is relatively limited—Daly is far better at writing poems which deal directly or indirectly with natural phenomena, than with human characteristics—he is the opposite of such a poet as George Crabbe or Crabbe's descendant, Edwin Arlington Robinson; one finds constantly, as one reads him, a quickening of interest, an opening out and a cleansing of the perceptions stirring through the words." J. G. Fletcher
+ Poetry 64:223 Jl '44 550w

"Daly's Celtic heritage is that he gives one the impression of listening for those overtones not many of us can hear. He can snare excessively delicate rhythms, his touch is always light and sure, his apprehension subtle." W. R. Benét
+ Sat R of Lit 26:23 D 4 '43 230w

DALY, MAUREEN. Smarter and smoother; a handbook on how to be that way; il. by Marguerite Bryan. 197p $2 Dodd
395 Etiquet. Conduct of life 44-40064

Matters of personal grooming, manners and social customs, set forth in language designed to appeal to the junior high school girl.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p15 Ap 23 '44 240w
Booklist 40:277 Ap 15 '44
Cath World 159:286 Je '44 130w

"Very successful, this etiquette book for the 'coke crowd'. Written in breezy, slangy style, the author gets across good stuff on a variety of subjects from 'What makes one guy the super-man of the study-hall, and another the droop-of-the-troop', to 'Smooth Dates' and 'Petting'. Parents should be thankful to Maureen Daly, for she gives all the advice and council that teen agers think is sermonizing from parents, but that they'll lap up in this form."
+ Kirkus 12:119 Mr 1 '44 80w

"Written in a modern vernacular, with slang and clichés, it often appears strained and self-conscious. Not as outstanding as the author's earlier book, Seventeenth Summer, which has proved its popularity with high school girls." Dorotha Dawson
Library J 69:465 My 15 '44 50w

" 'Going to high school these days has developed into a profession,' says Maureen Daly in the best book, all things considered, on our high-school manners and ethics and their relation to those of later life, among many lately offered to the teens. One special advantage is the author's time of life; just old enough to look back on the teens, she has, as a novelist, already developed mature sympathy that lets her see them unclouded by the scorn the twenties often feel." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ap 16 '44 320w
Wis Lib Bul 40:88 Je '44

DAMERON, KENNETH, ed. Consumer problems in wartime. 672p il $3.75 McGraw 339.4 Consumer education. Consumption (economics) 44-2834

"A comprehensive survey of the subject, directed toward the individual consumer or to the leader in consumer education, and including explanations of marketing problems and of government restrictions on civilian consumption in wartime. The latter part of the book is devoted to a discussion of consumer skills in their relation to food, household equipment and furnishing, clothing, and other goods. An excellent compendium of information contributed by 25 authors." Booklist

"The reviewer would be prone to quarrel with Professor Nixon's chapter on wartime advertising because of the indeterminate result it reaches, but the very fact that he realizes that all is not well in this field is ground for applause. The discussions of marketing are similarly balanced, so that one has a full collection of the arguments pro and con, with no very clear stand taken by the writer. The latter half of the book is dedicated to a study of the place of specific goods in the wartime picture, and includes useful data set forth in teachable form. The volume is attractive and contains excellent bibliographies. Any work of as ambitious a nature as this inevitably faces criticism, because it ranges from a discussion of distribution costs to a eulogy of popcorn balls. There is something in the book for every reader." C. E. Warne
+ — Ann Am Acad 235:155 S '44 400w
Booklist 40:334 Je 1 '44

Reviewed by J. V. Coles
J Home Econ 36:595 N '44 300w

"Although this book is a contribution to the literature dealing with consumers in wartime, it is doubtful if it will appeal to as many groups as the editor indicates in the Preface, where he states it may be used by homemakers, by business, or as a textbook for adult groups, senior high schools, and senior colleges. The reviewer wonders if by aiming at so wide an audience some at least of its usefulness to any one group may not have been lost." J. V. Coles
J Pol Econ 52:383 D '44 650w

"It contains a wide variety of information gathered under some 30 heads which often is useful, sometimes valuable. However, a close scrutiny reveals a number of unfortunate weaknesses. First, and perhaps the worst of all, one gets the impression before one has read far that this book tends to look at the problems from the point of view of the producer and the entrepreneur; at the best, the general attitude is one of neutrality; the consumer is to be given information and help provided the status quo is maintained; not an eyebrow will be raised by anything within the 650 pages. And surely there is need for a vigorous inquiry into some business practices whereby the consumer gets much less than the treatment that the classical economists insisted was his due." H. W. Cross
— + Springf'd Republican p8 My 17 '44 650w

DAMPIER, SIR WILLIAM CECIL DAMPIER. A shorter history of science. 189p il $2 Macmillan [7s 6d Cambridge]
509 Science—History. Philosophy 44-7402

"Concise and factual presentation of the history of all the physical sciences, ranging from the Paleolithic Age to the present day." (Library J) A condensation of the author's History of Science (Book Review Digest, 1930, 1943).

DAMPIER, W. C. D.—Continued

Reviewed by Rufus Oldenburger
Book Week p4 O 29 '44 250w

"Compact and clear story of the advances made in science." L. A. Eales
+ Library J 69:699 S 1 '44 40w

"A good introduction for those who want a quick survey of astronomy, physics, chemistry and biology, which, however, rather overstresses the achievements of British scientists as against those of other countries."
+ New Repub 111:669 N 20 '44 70w

Reviewed by W. B. Kirkham
Springf'd Republican p6 S 9 '44 550w

"Americans will doubt the value of the historical approach to science, and biologists will decry the overemphasis on physics. It is, however, an authoritative brief history and makes good adult reading."
Weekly Book Review p15 O 8 '44 180w

DANA, JAMES DWIGHT. System of mineralogy. 7th ed 834p $10 Wiley

549 Mineralogy (44-8346)

"Seventh edition. Rewritten and enlarged by Charles Palache and others. Volume 1: Elements, Sulfides, Sulfosalts, Oxides. Changes include a new mineral classification, new data derived from x-ray crystallography, revision of specific gravities, introduction of the optical characters of the opaque minerals, new chemical treatment of species." Library J

Booklist 41:92 N 15 '44

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:606 Jl '44 60w

DANIEL, HAWTHORNE. Islands of the East Indies; with six maps by Lucien G. Picard. 266p $2.50 Putnam

919.1 Malay archipelago 44-4841

"The islands that form the subject of this volume include (a) about 3,000 that make up the Netherlands territories in the Far East; (b) the eastern half of New Guinea and the northern quarter of Borneo, which are parts of the British Empire; (c) the eastern half of the island of Timor and a lesser holding on the northwest coast of the same island, both of which are possessions of Portugal; and (d) the Philippine Islands. . . [The book] presents the essential data concerning size, location, and physical appearance, topography and climate, fauna and flora, peoples, languages, government, resources, and development." (Introd) Index.

Booklist 41:18 S '44

Kirkus 12:248 Je 1 '44 90w

Reviewed by K. J. Pelzer
Pacific Affairs 17:506 D '44 320w

"Extremely useful for quick reference are the descriptive data compiled in 'Islands of the East Indies,' even though, as is acknowledged in the introduction, they encompass only a fraction of the material available. . . Mr. Daniel tempers a glut of information to the lay reader shorn of all but good will and a compelling determination to learn. The six maps, like the book itself, are handy rather than comprehensive; the addition of a seventh would have been desirable, in view of the dubiously wise inclusion of the Andaman and Nicobar Islands and part of southeast Asia's mainland." Virginia Thompson
+ — Weekly Book Review p6 Jl 9 '44 550w

DANIELS, JOSEPHUS. Wilson era, years of peace, 1910-1917. 615p $4 Univ. of N.C. press

B or 92 U.S.—Politics and government—20th century. Wilson, Woodrow. U.S. Navy 44-40206

"The third installment of the memoirs of the man who served as Woodrow Wilson's Secretary of the Navy. Mr. Daniels covers the period from 1910, not long before Wilson became President, to 1917, just before the United States became involved in the first World War." New Yorker

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p2 N 26 '44 600w

Booklist 41:106 D 1 '44

Christian Science Monitor p20 N 22 '44 450w

"Daniels was not an outstanding figure in his capacity as Secretary of the Navy under Wilson. Some of his reminiscences are of value in their explanation of personal animosities and ambitions. Unfortunately, he has a tendency to find egotism in others—like Colonel Harvey—but not in himself. House, too, is bereft of importance. But the book does show, perhaps artlessly, how every human weakness is utilized in the game of politics, and possibly why high office comes to those who are not qualified. It is not particularly well written."
— + Current Hist 8:71 Ja '45 90w

"Not an inspired autobiography, but a revealing portrait of a period that in many ways parallels years not far past."
Kirkus 12:532 N 15 '44 160w

"Interesting, sympathetic, humorous, enlightening, good 'reporting,'—by a participant in the events, a close friend of the President, a keen observer with a fine sense of perspective." A. B. Lindsay
+ Library J 69:998 N 15 '44 80w

"Well worth reading, this book—and not merely because it is pleasant and chattily informative. Bryan and Daniels stood for a large and thoroughly sound element in our people. They love peace, and are willing to organize for peace; but they would prefer isolation to imperialism, power politics, and diplomatic intrigue. That element is still with us. It will never guarantee a peace concocted in secrecy and imposed by a new Axis. It were unrealistic to ignore that basic fact." Albert Guerard
+ Nation 160:22 Ja 6 '45 420w

"This is a good book. Mr. Daniels rates the Navy accolade of 'Well done.' His next volume will be eagerly awaited." H. F. Pringle
+ N Y Times p4 N 26 '44 800w

"He has drawn up his book as though he were compiling a ledger and seems anxious not to create any stir but merely to get his accounts in order. He has, however, done this with a good temper and good will that more than make up for his defects as a writer. The book is, of course, of the utmost importance as a historical document."
New Yorker 20:92 N 18 '44 130w

"This book is more than a gold mine for future historians; it is most entertaining reading, and its pages are mellowed by the deep and kindly understanding of its author, the wise and friendly little editor who is one of the truly great democratic spirits of our times." W. L. White
+ Sat R of Lit 27:36 D 2 '44 1000w

"This is one of the most delightful and entertaining books ever written about the rise of Woodrow Wilson and his early years in the White House. It is a good natured, talkative, slightly rambling book with humor in it, and sadness and good stories of people." Alden Stevens
+ Survey G 34:25 Ja '45 450w

"It is indeed for [its] intensely personal character that Mr. Daniels's book is chiefly valuable. Mr. Daniels knew everybody, was in on almost everything, understood much of the significance of what he saw and heard, and penetrated to possibilities if not always to realities. We can rely with confidence upon his presentation of the surface facts and impressions; we cannot always accept his conclusions." H. S. Commager
+ — Weekly Book Review p3 N 19 '44 1500w

DANNETT, SYLVIA G. L., and BENNETT, EDWIN. Defy the tempest. 253p $2.50 Messner

44-4988

Mystery story.

Book Week p10 Je 18 '44 90w

"Elaborate build-up, with rather a letdown in the finale."
Kirkus 12:107 Mr 1 '44 250w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p17 Je 4 '44 100w

DAUMIER, HONORE VICTORIN, il. Married life. 24p in portfolio $5.50 Pantheon bks.

769.63 Lithographs

"Twenty-four fine lithograph reproductions of Honore Daumier's drawings that appeared in Le Charivari and La Caricature from [1837 to 1864] recounting, with the master satirist's inimitable humor and craftsmanship, the domestic experiences of his 'Robert Macaire' and intimate associates. . . Accompanying the prints are description pages, giving the French titles and accompanying text, with English translations of the latter." Springf'd Republican

"It is unfortunate that the reproductive process used in making these 24 lithographs was not more sensitive, for in certain cases the results fall far short of the originals. Too often outlines are unclean and luminosity is lost, but the portfolio still possesses the fiery breath of its master, Daumier." Katharine Kuh
+ — Book Week p18 D 3 '44 360w

Reviewed by G. H. Hamilton
+ N Y Times p3 D 3 '44 1400w

"Twenty-four better-than-average reproductions."
+ New Yorker 20:94 N 18 '44 60w
Springf'd Republican p4c N 26 '44 110w

DAUS, PAUL HAROLD; GLEASON, JOHN M., and WHYBURN, WILLIAM MARVIN. Basic mathematics for war and industry. 277p $2 Macmillan

510 Mathematics 44-1720

"This book is written to provide a single text in which selected principles of elementary mathematics are presented in a carefully organized manner. The book has been made thoroughly practical—both in the choice and treatment of topics. The practical aspects have been introduced without sacrifice of mathematical rigor or accuracy of statement. Illustrations and problems have been chosen from many fields of present-day interest, including war industries, the armed services, and others. . . The book should be a suitable text for courses offered under the Engineering, Science, and Management War Training Program; for the various armed service courses, both within the army schools and in colleges; for vocational and other specialized school courses; as well as for home study courses where material is being reviewed or is being learned for the first time." (Pref) Includes answers and index.

Booklist 40:264 Ap 1 '44
Chem & Met Eng 51:190 Ag '44 60w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:205 Mr 1 '44 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:8 Ja '44

DAVENPORT, RUSSELL WHEELER. My country. 62p $1.50 Simon & Schuster

811 44-9156

A long poem by an American editor, who in 1940 resigned from Fortune magazine to become coordinator of the campaign of Wendell Willkie. The writer "is trying to project the tall figure of America, the pioneer outline, the Lincoln shadow, beyond our frontiers and seas. This is the song of the internationalist, who knows that if he is not bold, not generous, not committed to the brotherhood of man, then the flowers will not grow in his own plot of ground, his own elms and maples will suffer an eternal autumn, his own roof will give way under the next high wind and snow and there will no more be kindly dreams beside the heap of rubble that was once his fireplace." (N Y Times)

" 'My Country' is in the tradition of Whitman, if not of his work's stature; it is in the spirit of Benet, though not possessing his richness. It is a fine and sincere poem that movingly restates certain of the words which Americans live by." Leo Kennedy
+ Book Week p2 N 19 '44 700w
Booklist 41:104 D 1 '44

"Laudable sentiments all in a paean to American progress which may find an audience —not poetry lovers."
Kirkus 12:417 S 15 '44 100w

"As a poet, Mr. Davenport sometimes flies like a bird of passage across an evening sky and sometimes tramps in hobnailed boots. He is, however, always in motion and understandable. If one reading is not enough, two will convey the meaning and the emotion. . . It is time that what is said here was said in this way. We need songs and faith as well as tanks and heavy guns. An emotion that makes the pulses beat like drums and the eyes grow misty may not be unmanly—it may be the strongest, the most practical thing in the world." R. L. Duffus
+ N Y Times p1 N 5 '44 1050w

"Here is an undisguised example of the effects of a formidable current pressure: to get rhyme and meter out of the unwilling hands of poets into the willing grasp of journalists, with the object of putting verse over with the general public in a big way. This old-fashioned sentimental tract, part of whose theme is the need for America to bring freedom to all mankind, was 'not written in a garret,' according to its publishers. However, it could hardly have been more awkward, pretentious, or confused if it had been written in a drawing room or a dinette."
— New Yorker 20:95 N 18 '44 130w

Reviewed by Marshall Bragdon
Springf'd Republican p6 N 11 '44 650w

" 'My Country' as a whole is an undeniable poetic experience of a high order, though there are parts of it that by purely literary standards must be called something less than good. But there are moments of exaltation when the music and energy are adequate to the poet's vision. The net and the cumulative effect is that of a deeply conceived, intensely felt awareness of our land and its meaning in our hearts and our heads at this historic moment." Irwin Edman
+ — Weekly Book Review p1 N 5 '44 1400w

Reviewed by Louis Untermeyer
Yale R n s 34:343 winter '45 100w

DAVID, JULIAN, pseud. See MacKaye, D. L. and J. J. G.

DAVIDSON, WILLIAM, ed. Tall tales they tell in the services; il. by Barney Tobey. 75p $1 Crowell

940.5496 World war, 1939—Humor, caricatures, etc. 44-2624

Collection of tall tales selected from the Reader's Digest Tall tales contest. Some of them are new, some have been given an up-to-date setting, but many are old favorites from as long ago as the Civil war.

Booklist 40:266 Ap 1 '44
Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '44
Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 13 '44 100w
Weekly Book Review p19 Mr 12 '44 80w
Wis Lib Bul 40:84 Je '44

DAVIES, D. R. Down peacock's feathers; studies in the contemporary significance of the General confession. 188p $1.75 Macmillan [5s Bles]

264.03 Book of common prayer. Church and social problems 44-7978

"The title is taken from the 'Homilies,' set forth in Elizabethan times for use in the Church of England; the subject is the 'general confession' found in Morning and Evening Prayer

DAVIES, D. R.—Continued
in the Anglican Book of Common Prayer; the author is a recent convert to Anglicanism from one of the English 'Free Churches.' The book itself is an attempt to show the soundness and applicability of the phrases of the 'general confession'—such as 'there is no health in us'—to man's present and eternal situation." Crozer Q

"The author's philosophy is, in general, Kierkegaardian. His style is vital and sometimes informal, but without overstraining to be whimsical and popular, as is the manner of some contemporary British writers on religion."
+ Christian Century 61:1201 O 18 '44 150w

"To the reviewer most of what is said is quite true, but it is said, he feels, in an uncommonly lurid manner. Doubtless the author would say that this commends the book, at any rate makes it readable. That is correct; but the sometimes unguarded phraseology still leaves us unsatisfied. However, it will do us all good to read this vigorous, forthright, uncompromising statement of the Augustinianism which is so clearly a central element in the Prayer Book." W. N. Pittenger
+ — Crozer Q 22:93 Ja '45 200w

"Although written by a devoted Anglican, this study is entirely nonsectarian. . . Well written and provocative of a penetrating analysis of our present chaos and our responsibility for it, this study deserves a wide reading public."
+ Kirkus 12:501 N 1 '44 110w

DAVIS, CLYDE BRION. Rebellion of Leo McGuire. 315p $2.50 Farrar 44-4875

A first person narrative of the life and deeds of Leo McGuire, self-styled "an honest burglar." Leo's Robin Hood philosophy gets him into trouble time and again and he spends many years in prison. Finally, however, thru the influence of much reading and thinking and the right steer from some fellow prisoners, he becomes a reformed character, is freed to take a war job, and promises to carry his rebellion against society's injustices along other lines.

Reviewed by Peter Quinn
Book Week p3 Jl 2 '44 320w
Booklist 40:390 Jl 15 '44
Kirkus 12:181 Ap 15 '44 170w
Reviewed by H. S. Taylor
Library J 69:554 Je 15 '44 80w

"The weak spot comes at the end. McGuire's reform, his about-face on life, doesn't follow too well the pattern of his life and philosophy. But maybe McGuire, like most radicals—to put an arbitrary tag on him—mellows with the years enough to justify the change. Anyway, it's an excellent fable, well done and neatly barbed where barbs will do the most good." Hal Borland
+ N Y Times p6 Jl 2 '44 320w

"As a novelist, Mr. Davis gets better and better. This time he has ripped off a fresh, diverting story about a fundamentally honest burglar with a taste for philosophy. . . It's hard to say whether the picture of what goes on inside penitentiaries (where Leo spends half his life) is authentic, but it sounds plausible, if a bit more educational than one might imagine."
+ New Yorker 20:65 Jl 1 '44 140w

"If the novelist intends to enlist your sympathy for Leo, he has missed his objective, but as a story of burglars at work and in prison, he hits the target." Lisle Bell
+ — Weekly Book Review p6 Jl 2 '44 550w

DAVIS, DALE STROBLE. Chemical engineering nomographs. 311p $3.50 McGraw 660.83 Chemical engineering. Nomography (mathematics) 44-4789

"A compilation of about 200 alignment and line-coordinate charts of interest to chemists and chemical engineers. These charts, which previously appeared in periodical literature, cover a wide variety of topics, for example: boiling-point corrections and elevations, thermal conductivity, flow of fluids, freezing-point and freezing-time, heat transfer co-efficients, milk and cream nomographs, nomographs of interest to the paper industry, molecular-refraction, and viscosity. Included with each nomograph is an explanation of how to use the chart, its particular applicability, and a list of sources from which the data was obtained." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"The book should be an invaluable aid to both chemists and chemical engineers." F. E. E. Germann
+ Chem & Eng N 22:1616 S 25 '44 700w

"The book is on the whole remarkably free from typographical errors. This reviewer wishes to commend the author on the consistency with which he employs in the text a set of abbreviations conforming closely to that adopted for the 'Transactions of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers' (and spelling: e.g., of the word 'mole'); unfortunately, the draftsmen who lettered the charts used their fancy in this particular (or perhaps followed the original authors of the separate charts). . . 'Creosole' is misspelled on Fig. 161; 'Phthalicanhydride' looks funny as one word on p. 224. It is difficult to determine that the figures on the curves in Fig. 10 are all preceded by a minus sign. . . These, however, are minor criticisms in a work which will undoubtedly find a useful place on many a chemist's and engineer's bookshelf." T. H. Chilton
+ — Chem & Met Eng 51:187 Ag '44 850w
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:205 Mr 1 '44 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:22 Ap '44

DAVIS, ESME (MRS ROBERT F. MATZ). Esmé of Paris; drawings by Constantin Alajálov. 443p $4 Appleton-Century
B or 92 44-4888

Granddaughter of a gipsy snake-charmer, daughter of an opera singer and a Canadian business man, the author of this autobiography tells the story of her own varied career, as art student, dancer, trapeze performer, and maker of rare perfumes, in scenes which shift from Paris to New York, from Russia to South America.

"At the age of 37 the still beautiful Esme Davis can look back upon seven or eight careers. Currently she distills rare perfumes—this memoir the rarest of them all." Sterling North
+ Book Week p2 My 21 '44 180w
Booklist 40:340 Je 1 '44

"Bulging autobiography of unusual careers and aptitudes that is filled with unusual incidents, overwhelming energy and drive. . . Lively-engrossing."
+ Kirkus 12:159 Ap 1 '44 150w

"Despite the fact that enough material for many books has been crowded into one, Esme of Paris will be read with interest by adult readers in search of escape literature." H. P. Bolman
Library J 69:353 Ap 15 '44 100w

"Esmé Davis can dance on the back of a galloping horse. . . She can do trapeze work, turn back-somersaults, manufacture perfumes, operate a night club and train dangerous animals. What is more, she is perfectly beautiful. The one flaw in her versatility is that she doesn't write particularly well—but you can't have everything. Actually this lone deficiency serves 'Esme of Paris' rather well. It is not a book that could ever be dull—the problem was to make it believable, and in this Miss Davis has succeeded." Jane Cobb
+ N Y Times p5 Je 4 '44 700w

"In giving the book so much weight, I fail to convey the impression of how immensely entertaining it is. Miss Davis is not a writer, but she has learned from her theatrical experience a wonderful sense of pace and of charming the reader's attention; you go from cover to cover without noticing that you are reading at all." Edmund Wilson
+ New Yorker 20:72 Je 17 '44 1700w
Weekly Book Review p16 Je 4 '44 300w

DAVIS, FREDERICK CLYDE. Let the skeletons rattle. 232p $2 Doubleday 44-2191

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p11 F 27 '44 90w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 F 6 '44 120w

"Super-grisly affair, dexterously plotted, chockful of action and shivers, with Hatch's ex-pub henchman adding bits of Brooklynese humor. Hair-raiser!"
+ Sat R of Lit 27:37 F 5 '44 50w

"A shrewdly plotted and super-shivery affair, with logical detecting and a leaven of dese-dose-&-dem humor."
+ Time 43:104 Mr 6 '44 60w

DAVIS, MRS GLADYS (ROCKMORE). Pastel painting. 80p il $2.25 Studio

741.23 Pastel drawing 43-16794

"General directions, with little detail, on making a pastel are followed by a selection of plates by outstanding artists in that medium, with brief comments on each." Booklist

Booklist 40:192 F 1 '44

"This book fulfills a definite need for a good contemporary book on how to paint in pastels. The authoress is well known through her traveling exhibition, articles in color in many magazines, and Christmas cards."
+ School Arts 44:10a Ja '45 80w

DAVIS, HARRY, ed. This is it! 224p $2.50 Vanguard

940.548173 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 44-3535

Twelve first person narratives of Americans who have been on the fighting fronts of this war—including a chaplain on the Hornet, a pharmacist's mate, an aviator, a coast guardsman, and others, twelve in all.

Reviewed by W. F. Morse
Book Week p9 Ap 9 '44 230w
Booklist 40:301 My 1 '44
Kirkus 12:16 Ja 1 '44 80w

"Very interesting reading." Lena Ruppert
+ Library J 69:202 Mr 1 '44 50w

"Here are a dozen brief stories of personal experiences in this global war, rather artlessly told but providing as vivid a picture of the actual fighting as could be wormed out of inarticulate fighting men by a persistent questioner." F. S. Adams
+ N Y Times p6 Ap 16 '44 460w

"Mr. Davis may make the men more articulate than they normally would be in conversation, but he preserves the flavor of their talk with a minimum of distortion or ornamentation." Marcus Duffield
+ Weekly Book Review p2 Ap 2 '44 700w

DAVIS, HASSOLDT. Half past when; an American with the Fighting French. 283p il $3 Lippincott

940.5344 World war, 1939—France. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. France—Free French movement 44-9861

An American war correspondent's diary about the Free French in Africa. Mr. Davis sailed from New York for Brazzaville, in the heart of French Equatorial Africa, about December, 1941. From there he followed the Free French northward to the Mediterranean scene of the war. He was made a lieutenant, accompanied these hard fighting men thru terrible hardships, and did all in his power to get American aid for them.

"'Half Past When' is a good book of its kind even in this floodtide of piecemeal books about the war. You will read it with mounting interest and some excitement." K. L. Brewster
+ Book Week p4 D 17 '44 500w

Kirkus 12:530 N 15 '44 210w

"A moving and heroic book, highly recommended." L. R. Etzkorn
+ Library J 69:998 N 15 '44 110w

"Mr. Davis has filled his book with descriptions of the flies and the insects and the filth he encountered; of the venereal diseases of the natives; of the most horrifying cruelties that man can inflict upon man; of brothels and prostitutes and all manner of other lurid matters (all told with a rather self-conscious toughness) which some readers may find colorful and others revolting." Francis Scott
— N Y Times p12 Ja 28 '45 440w

Reviewed by Beach Conger
Weekly Book Review p6 D 17 '44 1100w

DAVIS, JOHN D. Westminster dictionary of the Bible; rev. and rewritten by Henry Snyder Gehman. 658p il maps $3.50 Presbyterian bd.

220.3 Bible. Whole—Dictionaries and encyclopedias 44-8645

"The original work by Professor Davis, first published in 1898, had been frequently revised by its author to keep it abreast of advancing knowledge. The present even more thorough revision by his successor in Princeton Seminary will further extend the life and usefulness of this standard tool for the minister's workshop." Christian Century

Book Week p36 D 3 '44 140w
Booklist 41:154 Ja 15 '45
Christian Century 61:1170 O 11 '44 80w

"This is a valuable reference book for ministers, church workers, students and Bible teachers. It is the work of conservative scholars and will be of especial value to those whose theology and point of view is that of orthodox evangelical Christianity. . . The dictionary would be more valuable if the print were not so small."
+ Kirkus 12:507 N 1 '44 100w

DAVIS, JOHN EISELE. Principles and practice of rehabilitation. 211p $3 Barnes, A.S.

616.8 Disabled—Rehabilitation, etc. Mental hygiene 43-16123

"The first chapter presents a discussion on the effect of war and depression but the book as a whole is based on study and practice of maladjustment and mental illness in other than wartime. The psychiatric and psychological approaches are presented with listing and description of types of neuroses and psychoses. Under therapeutic objectives and results special attention is given to recreational methods. The book is for the rehabilitation worker, not for the layman; technical terminology and citation of case histories." Booklist

"This book is highly recommended to physical, occupational and recreational therapists, educators, psychologists, and psychiatrists interested in the rehabilitation of those emotionally disturbed." G. G. Deaver
+ Am J Pub Health 34:292 Mr '44 200w
Booklist 40:191 F 1 '44

Reviewed by John MacCormac
N Y Times p8 Ap 23 '44 320w

Reviewed by Harry Daum
Springf'd Republican p6 O 4 '44 550w

"The author has a sound eclectic viewpoint and has obviously drawn heavily from the psychiatric approach with its emphasis on feeling and on the individual patterns of patients. The description of the various types of mental and neurotic illnesses appears quite accurate, as do his explanations of the various mental mechanisms. What the reader looks for, but does not find, are detailed plans for or descriptions of treatment of the neurotic and psychoneurotic groups." L. E. Woodward
+ — Survey 80:62 F '44 500w
Wis Lib Bul 40:52 Ap '44

DAVIS, MRS LAVINIA (RIKER). Spinney and Spike and the B-29; il. by Edward Shenton. 112p il $1.75 Scribner
44-6752

"Visiting a captain-father at an Army Corps field is just about all that two sensible boys would want for a summer vacation. Spinney and Spike certainly thought so, and from their base at officer's quarters they made good use of their golden opportunity. They saw as much as two small civilians could possibly see, including the brand new B-29. They did everything except learn to fly and Spike even tried that on a home-made glider." N Y Times

Booklist 41:27 S '44

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:377 S '44 70w

"Recommended for boys nine to twelve years of age." D. M. MacDonald
+ Library J 69:701 S 1 '44 70w

"Boys of 7 to 9 who do not insist on the strictly technical approach to aviation matters will have almost as good a time with this story as do Spinney and Spike." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p20 Ag 13 '44 120w

Springf'd Republican p4d S 3 '44 100w

"Mrs. Davis's faculty for involving boys' reactions at every point gives her book an appeal all its own. These two chaps learn as much about planes as a book can tell a boy of this age, but as they do so on the spot, with the aid of flying men whom they practically idolize, there is as much story as information." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ag 13 '44 300w

DAVIS, MRS WINIFRED LEMON. Pictorial library primer. 36p il 99c Lib. research service, 89 Wallace st, New Haven 11, Conn.
020.2 Library science 44-29017

"A simple presentation of library procedures in which every step is illustrated, with text and corresponding pictures on facing pages. The steps follow one another in logical order: Books are opened, collated, given mark of ownership; Books are accessioned; Books are classified; Shelf list and catalog cards are made, etc. In size 8 x 11 inches, with flexible cloth binding which permits the pages to open and lie flat. Type is large and clear; pictures and forms are clearly outlined in pen-and-ink. For the librarian with little or no training should prove a most helpful guide." Wis Lib Bul

"A thorough piece of work, this slender manual, attractively printed in large type, with text and accompanying illustrations in such close proximity as to make for perfect clarity and understanding, deserves a preferred niche on the shelf of existing library manuals. . . Mrs. Davis' primer is a satisfactory and workmanlike job that will adequately fill the purpose for which it was written." E. M. Culver
+ Library J 69:644 Ag '44 250w
Wis Lib Bul 40:106 Jl '44

DE AGUIRRE, JOSE ANTONIO. See Aguirre, J. A. de

DEAN, AMBER. Dead man's float. 180p $2 Doubleday
44-6665

Detective story.

"Best of the week."
+ Boston Globe p15 Jl 26 '44 60w

"Only fair."
Kirkus 12:203 My 1 '44 60w

"A brisk workaday style and a village setting (both reminiscent of Mabel Seeley's mysteries) make this a homey sort of murder story—and a good one. . . A compact, satisfactory plot is unfolded in a pleasantly domestic village atmosphere." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p16 Jl 16 '44 160w

"Well plotted, if too sugary in spots."
+ — New Yorker 20:72 Jl 15 '44 120w

"Good grade."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:12 Jl 15 '44 50w
Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 20 '44 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p16 Jl 23 '44 150w

DEAN, ELIZABETH. Murder a mile high. 221p $2 Doubleday 44-3966

Mystery story.

Booklist 40:356 Je 15 '44
Kirkus 12:107 Mr 1 '44 80w

"You will meet some odd characters in this book, none of them odder than Aggie, who draws pictures which contain vital clues." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p12 Ap 23 '44 150w

"Over-complicated, but you'll enjoy reading about the opera festival."
+ — New Yorker 20:92 Ap 22 '44 80w

"Ingratiating."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:33 Ap 29 '44 40w

"Upshot is a gay, grisly and relaxing screwball number." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p14 Ap 23 '44 120w

DEAN, GRAHAM M. Riders of the Gabilans; il. by Wesley Dennis. 191p $2 Viking 44-7665

Modern story of cowboys, the round-up, the annual fair, the threat of "rustlers," all scened in a great cattle range in California. For older boys and girls.

Booklist 41:79 N 1 '44

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 D 28 '44 50w
Horn Bk 20:483 N '44 70w
Kirkus 12:344 Ag 1 '44 90w

"Plot, though slight, is sufficiently exciting to hold reader's interest. Book, however, is important chiefly because of its portrayal of characters, both good and bad, and the detailed picture it gives of life in today's cattle country. . . For older boys, aged twelve to sixteen." Claire Nolte
+ Library J 69:887 O 15 '44 80w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
N Y Times p18 D 17 '44 130w

"This [is] a book that both boys and girls will demand and enjoy."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:41 N 11 '44 30w

DEAN, LEON W. Green Mountain boy; the story of Seth Warner; il. by Charles Child. 242p $2 Farrar
Warner, Seth—Juvenile literature 44-872

Biographical story of Seth Warner, one of the leaders of the Green Mountain Boys, who fought thru two wars—the first to keep their homes from the invasion of the "Yorkers;" the second, the Revolution. For older boys. Bibliography.

"Dean has a straightforward, brisk style, and the pace of his story never slackens. His Benedict Arnold is the conventional one: a bungling, arrogant martinet. None of the story does much violence to schoolbook history, but it's a great deal more palatable, and few, if any, of the important details are skipped." John Norcross
+ Book Week p8 Mr 12 '44 270w
Booklist 40:288 Ap 15 '44

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p12 O 26 '44 100w

"Very realistic though the dialect is a little difficult. Recommended for older boys and men." G. E. Cartmell
+ Library J 69:207 Mr 1 '44 70w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p11 Jl 2 '44 120w

"Seth Warner had courage, brains, initiative, and humor. This story of his life makes good reading." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 27:77 Ap 15 '44 50w
Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p5 Mr 12 '44 350w
Wis Lib Bul 40:73 My '44

DE ANGELI, MRS MARGUERITE (LOFFT). Turkey for Christmas. [il. by the author] [49p] 75c Presbyterian bd.
44-47779

"The story of a Christmas when a warm-hearted, united family had to choose between turkey and a few simple gifts, for Martha's long illness in the hospital had been expensive. To Bess, who remembered other holiday seasons, Christmas without gifts seemed a little dreary, but Father's bright ideas brought fun and surprises, and when Martha returned from the hospital on Christmas Eve and in the happiness of being together a look passed from one to another around the family circle, Bess suddenly realized that this, not gifts or a tree, was the true and living Christmas." N Y Times

Reviewed by H. L. Binsse
Commonweal 41:128 N 17 '44 30w
Kirkus 12:519 N 15 '44 70w
"A little book and a pleasant reminder that the needs of the spirit are not filled by department store merchandise." Gertrude Andrus
+ Library J 70:35 Ja 1 '45 70w
Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
N Y Times p26 D 3 '44 120w

DE ANGELI, MRS MARGUERITE (LOFFT). Yonie Wondernose; for three little Wondernoses: Nina, David and Kiki [il. by the author]. [39p] $2 Doubleday
44-7326

Yonie was a little Amish boy with a big curiosity. When his father had to go away and left seven-year-old Yonie in charge, the little boy did his best, but it was quite a problem when the barn was struck by lightning. Yonie had the task of saving the animals, when he really wanted to watch the fire engine, but he managed very well. Grades one to four.

"There is more story here than most picture books boast, so that the youngest will love to have it read to them and the seven-to-nines will like to read it for themselves. Marguerite De Angeli's illustrations are lovely and combine with the prose to present an attractive picture of one phase of American life." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p23 N 12 '44 180w
Booklist 41:43 O 1 '44
Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 D 11 '44 100w
"Children about his own age will love to hear about the things that happened among the Dutch people of Lancaster County when Yonie tried to find out what was going on. They will love, too, the beautiful pictures of farm life and especially of Yonie's pet calf, for Mrs. de Angeli has made everything real in her inimitable way."
+ Horn Bk 20:480 N '44 80w
Kirkus 12:399 S 1 '44 130w
Reviewed by M. C. Skinner
Library J 69:864 O 15 '44 70w
"Recommended," G. E. Joline
+ Library J 69:885 O 15 '44 50w
"A warm, friendly little story." A. T. E.
N Y Times p10 N 12 '44 60w
"The book seems to be designed for the picture-book age, yet its subject matter rules it out for the many small children who fear thunderstorms or fire. Those a little older should not miss it."
New Yorker 20:89 D 16 '44 90w
Sat R of Lit 27:29 N 11 '44 10w

"The pictures are in Mrs. De Angeli's best vein; she knows country and people so well that her colors sing." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 S 10 '44 300w

DEARLE, DENIS ARTHUR. Plastic molding and plant management. 196p il $3.50 Chemical pub. co.
668.4 Plastics 44-9210

"Practical book clearly and simply presented by an engineer on the making and molding of plastics. Die design, costs, suitability of materials, technique of compression and injection molding. Offers suggestions for production and management. Questions and answers on actual problems in the plant. Selected bibliography." Library J

Booklist 41:103 D 1 '44
Chem & Eng N 23:76 Ja 10 '45 30w
Library J 69:1002 N 15 '44 60w

DEBO, ANGIE. Prairie city; the story of an American community. 253p il $3 Knopf 976.6 Oklahoma—History 44-4798

A partly fictionized history of an Oklahoma town from its founding in the "run" of 1889 to the present. In the Preface the author says: "I have chosen to write of a typical, rather than an actual, community, a composite of numerous Oklahoma settlements, of which some are still in existence, and others have long been ghost towns. . . I have used this device because it enabled me to write with greater freedom. It is as essentially true historically. . . My chronology is exact. . . My statistics are exact. . . The events are actual events; even the conversations are recorded or remembered conversations." Index.

"Miss Debo knows her data and writes of her people with a warmth of human interest, which should add to the value of the book." W. F. Whyte
+ Am J Soc 50:244 N 13 '44 420w
"The reviewer often wonders why mention of books of this type is ever made in scholarly journals. This one has a preface and an index, but, beyond that, there is no possible way in which it can be implemented to the uses of the objective social investigator. The author does not expect the criteria of empirical research to be applied to it. The volume makes good reading on top of a heavy dinner and a pipeful of good smoking tobacco. That is all." O. D. Duncan
— + Am Soc R 9:707 D '44 350w
"I have lived in both the Oklahoma Territory and the Indian Territory, before statehood, and to me the greatest accomplishment of Miss Debo is the fidelity with which she has portrayed the people themselves. Her book is rich in stories of people and the people, followed through the years, become persons you know intimately." J. A. Brandt
+ Book Week p3 My 28 '44 550w
Booklist 40:338 Je 1 '44
Bookmark 5:11 My '44
"Interesting approach to local and regional history. Another good addition to our growing regional literature, of more than local interest."
+ Kirkus 12:135 Mr 15 '44 130w
"While the impact of the book might have been greater if actual names and places had been used, or a strong central character created, it throws a searching light upon the American community and, through it, upon the small community everywhere. Here, in a society comparatively transparent, the student can consider modern man." Mari Sandoz
+ N Y Times p3 My 21 '44 850w
"The author's Prairie City is a composite of many places, which makes it rather more 'typical' than any actual Oklahoma community, and there are times when her use of fictitious names tends to blur the effect of her story. A valuable study, nevertheless, of America and the American process at work."
+ — New Yorker 20:84 Je 3 '44 90w
"'Prairie City' is a first-rate exhibit in its special field of Americana." Stanley Walker
+ Weekly Book Review p2 My 21 '44 600w

DE CAPITE, MICHAEL. No bright banner. 294p $2.50 Day

44-6600

Story of the childhood and young manhood of Paul Barone, son of an Italian immigrant who had fled to the United States from Italy. The time is from the '20s to the World war.

"Paul's confusion, never resolved, communicates itself to the novel as a whole, so that the coherence and direction effected by the strong soul of Maria in De Capite's first novel is lacking. A sort of climax is achieved by Paul's decision to get in the big scrap, but even here there is an aura of nebulous uncertainty." John Norcross

Book Week p2 Ag 27 '44 400w

Kirkus 12:285 Jl 1 '44 210w

"Mr. De Capite is the author of a good first novel, 'Maria,' [Book Review Digest, 1943] but apparently 'No Bright Banner,' with its faults of extreme literalness and autobiographical zeal, should have been his first and 'Maria' his second. To write about intellectuals is difficult, but to deal with adolescent intellectuals, unless one has achieved remarkable objectivity, is impossible. Mr. De Capite, perhaps in an attempt to generalize his material, sees fit to address his hero throughout as 'You'; but the effect of this device is precisely the opposite. . . After 300 pages, one is nearly outraged by this humorless, self-centered creation. Mr. De Capite's evaluation of events, right-thinking as his hero generally is, does nothing to dispel the impression of myopia." Ruth Page

— + N Y Times p5 Ag 27 '44 440w

"As a whole this is an extremely strong and interesting novel. It is honest in its plan and in its approach. If the end is confused, that is honest too, for Paul Barone, in part a prototype [of] all young men of his time, is honest enough to reject platitudes, even radical ones, and go on searching for an answer which will have a real meaning. A similar honesty pervades the characters of the book, at least those who have an influence on Paul." Lee Varley

+ — Springf'd Republican p4d S 24 '44 550w

"One stylistic flaw mars this sympathetic account of one American's search for the true value in the life about him. Mr. De Capite, doubtlessly with the intention of achieving a certain universality for his hero, refers to Paul as 'you' throughout the book. Over-used, this trick brings a touch of artificiality to an otherwise fresh and sincere story." Herbert Kupferberg

+ — Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 27 '44 500w

DEEPING, WARWICK. Cleric's secret [Eng title: Mr Gurney and Mr Slade]. 328p $2.50 Dial press [9s 6d Cassell]

44-3754

Story of a shy young English curate in a town in southern England. He had a hard time with the pompous bigwigs in the town, until he went to World war I, won several medals, and came home to a changed town.

"There is really very little to recommend in the book. It isn't even good light reading. Everything is too obvious, too pat, too stagey, and the style is definitely irritating. There are a dozen artificialities and instances of bad ear and even bad taste that the ordinary reader will discover 'ere he has read long." E. J. Cronin

— Book Week p2 Ap 16 '44 280w

Cath World 159:285 Je '44 170w

"Regenerative romance with solid swing upward. Noble—but noisome."

Kirkus 12:182 Ap 15 '44 100w

"Mr. Deeping can tell a story. He can weave a plot. He can shuttle neatly back and forth between his small South of England coast town and his trenches in France to work out the pattern he has devised and to bring it, without loose ends, to a symmetrical conclusion. He also tackles with amazing insouciance the social, religious, economic and political problems that vex the day and pronounces ex cathedra—and not seldom—astounding judgments thereon. But why must he be coy?" J. S. Southron

+ — N Y Times p16 Ap 23 '44 330w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p14 Ap 9 '44 80w

DE GAULLE, CHARLES. See Gaulle, C. A. J M. de

DE GOUY, LOUIS PULLIG. Bread tray; with a foreword by Dorothy Thompson. 463p $4 Greenberg

641.5 Bread. Cookery 44-8000

About 600 recipes for bread, biscuits, muffins, and buns, including regional recipes, and recipes from foreign lands. Breads made in various countries during the Easter season, campers' breads, shortbreads, corn breads of all varieties, gingerbreads, fruit and nut breads, are some of the outstanding inclusions. There is a chapter on the use of soy flour, and a section on dietetic breads. Index.

"It is a fascinating collection." Elizabeth Rannells

+ Book Week p9 O 8 '44 180w

Booklist 41:72 N 1 '44

Reviewed by H. S. Neal

Springf'd Republican p4d D 31 '44 350w

DE HUSZAR, GEORGE B. See Huszar, G. B. de

DEJONG, DAVID CORNEL. With a Dutch accent; how a Hollander became an American. 306p $2.50 Harper

B or 92 Dutch in the U.S. 44-1428

Autobiography of a Dutch-American who came to this country in 1918 as a boy of thirteen. The first part of the book tells of the family life in Holland, the second part deals with the early years of life in America while the boy and his parents were struggling to become adjusted to American ways.

Reviewed by Peter De Vries

Book Week p9 F 27 '44 430w

Booklist 40:250 Mr 15 '44

"This is not an 'imperative' book for any library, but it is a contribution to the literature by new Americans if the library is interested in that." K. T. Willis

. Library J 69:116 F 1 '44 70w

Manchester Guardian p3 N 15 '44 300w

Reviewed by G. W. Stonier

New Statesman & Nation 28:257 O 14 '44 800w

"There is a moving simplicity in this autobiography of a youngster; it has retained the fragrance and the spontaneity of early youth." Pierre Van Paassen

+ N Y Times p3 F 20 '44 700w

"Simple and unpretentious, with a plodding, dogged sincerity and full of the hurt and heartache that a 'new American,' especially an adolescent one, has to suffer when he is forced to reject his parents' foreign way of life and fashion an entirely different one of his own."

+ New Yorker 20:88 F 19 '44 90w

"This skilfully told story of the boyhood of a Dutch-American deserves an honorable position alongside the autobiographies or thinly disguised autobiographical fiction of such adopted sons of America as Rölvaag, Lewisohn, Adamic, and McFee. Such books offer invaluable aid in our attempts to see ourselves as we are, for their foreign 'accent' lends fresh perspective and objectivity." R. A. Cordell

+ Sat R of Lit 27:24 F 19 '44 850w

"While the word, 'experiment,' fits in some respects, the book is far more than that. It is drama, near-tragedy, beauty, humor—and all written in excellent English, in spite of the title. In fact the reader is amazed that one who knew almost no English when he came to this country as a young boy, could so thoroughly master the difficult language that he can express himself with such ease in it. De Jong knows just the fitting English expression, just the right word, whether presenting a landscape, an anecdote, or a revelation of his own deep and sometimes bitter feelings." M. D.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 27 '44 900w

"The author writes of the grim struggles of his boyhood with restraint and humour, and at its end the first gleams of adjustment and of renewed hope are beginning to appear along the narrow track which tradition and prejudice had marked out through the wastes of uncomprehended novelty."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p476 S 30 '44 420w

"The Americanization of David De Jong had its lighter moments and the humor and gayety are organic. It is an excellent yarn as well as an impressive human document. Mr. De Jong loves America for the freedom and opportunities for growth and happiness it offered him and such as he are the most valuable gifts the Old World can make to the New." C. G. Stillman

+ Weekly Book Review p4 F 20 '44 1100w

Wis Lib Bul 40:54 Ap '44

DE JONG, LOUIS. See Jong, L. de.

DE LA ROCHE, MAZO. Building of Jalna. (Atlantic monthly press bk) Whiteoak ed 366p $2.50 Little

44-7728

The ninth in the series of novels about Jalna is the first in point of time. The narrative goes back to the 1850's, when Philip and Adeline Whiteoak migrated to Canada and began the building of the family seat in the then wilderness of Ontario.

"One who has read all nine volumes of the Jalna saga (of which this is one of the best) has the uncanny feeling that in another incarnation he has lived in Jalna, has sipped hot tea and eaten buttered scones, helped with foaling mares, shared the moments of rage and tenderness of this cantankerous and lovable brood. It is a great saga." Sterling North

+ Book Week p2 O 29 '44 500w

Booklist 41:77 N 1 '44

Boston Globe p30 N 29 '44 60w

"The publisher's blurb suggests a similarity to Trollope, and the point has some validity. At any rate, it is substantial, workmanlike, flavorsome and not too exciting fiction."

+ Christian Century 61:1291 N 8 '44 80w

Reviewed by E. V. R. Wyatt

Commonweal 41:181 D 1 '44 350w

"Good escape reading for a rather arid fictional season."

+ Kirkus 12:324 Ag 1 '44 220w

Reviewed by Kenneth Fearing

N Y Times p10 N 19 '44 400w

New Yorker 20:97 O 21 '44 80w

"It is a risky business upon which Mazo de la Roche has embarked and one which cannot but cause mild controversy among her followers. But her gift for story-telling, for painting a setting with warm, vivid strokes and for creating memorable characters is still remarkable, as 'The Building of Jalna' once again bears testimony." E. M. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p4d O 29 '44 500w

"This ninth Jalna novel is as captivating as its predecessors. . . If there can be any readers of modern novels who have missed the Jalna books, this would be the place to begin." Mary Ross

+ Weekly Book Review p5 O 22 '44 1100w

Wis Lib Bul 40:160 D '44

DE LA ROCHE, MAZO. Quebec; historic seaport. (Seaport ser) 212p il $3.50 Doubleday

971.4471 Quebec (city)—History 44-6732

A well known Canadian novelist is the author of this popularly written history of Quebec from earliest times to the present. Index.

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy

Book Week p4 Ag 6 '44 230w

Booklist 41:15 S '44

Cath World 160:285 D '44 180w

"The author's known ability as a novelist with pronounced feeling for atmosphere and ability to visualize characters must make a reader pick up her book hopefully, in anticipation of finding warm, vivid, dramatic treatment. Perhaps on account of these hopes the reader is the more likely to be disappointed by the catalogue of facts, and altogether by a disposition to look at the trees so closely that the effect of the forest is lost. . . Nevertheless, so ingratiatingly does the author present this first attempt at writing history, 'this cuckoo's egg deposited in the austere nest of the historians,' as she terms it, that she makes criticism seem ungracious." W. K. R.

— + Christian Science Monitor p16 Ag 9 '44 550w

Kirkus 12:161 Ap 1 '44 170w

"Subject matter is such that reader is interested throughout, but I felt that there was a definite French bias and that author was not objective enough in interpretation of some of the events. Recommended for those libraries which need material on early Canadian history." H. P. Bolman

+ — Library J 69:601 Jl '44 100w

"Because the author of the 'Jalna' series wrote this story of Quebec it will be read by many people who would never open Parkman. It is not fair to complain that the author does not write in that historian's clear, vivid prose, or even to complain of a florid confusion of style, with its fluttering references to 'beautiful French ladies,' in which the author's admirers may find pleasure. So far as this reviewer is concerned, the chief merit of this book is the impatient speed with which its hothouse artificialities sends one back to the refreshing vigor of the Jesuit Relations." Catherine McKenzie

— + N Y Times p10 Jl 30 '44 850w

"A first-rate history of one of North America's most history laden cities. . . A fresh and lively book."

+ New Yorker 20:60 Ag 5 '44 50w

"A comprehensible, intriguing, direct yet colorful history." C. S. DuPont

+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 13 '44 380w

"Mazo de la Roche admits that all her instincts are those of a novelist, and, frankly, says that this is her only venture in the field of history and that it will never be repeated. The fact is, however, that she has produced a readable popular history of Canada, spotty, but full of value." Lincoln Colcord

+ Weekly Book Review p6 D 24 '44 1200w

Wis Lib Bul 40:145 N '44

DE LEEUW, CATEAU. Dutch East Indies and the Philippines; il. by Rafaello Busoni. (Lands and peoples) 25p $1 Holiday

919.1 Netherlands Indies—Juvenile literature. Philippine Islands—Juvenile literature

43-18189

Brief introductory study on the history, geography, people and products of the Dutch East Indies and the Philippines for grades five to eight.

"Other countries treated in this briefly introductory manner are Russia, Australia, Mexico and the Inca Lands. Together the books make excellent reference volumes for use through school." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p6 N 14 '43 110w

Booklist 40:184 Ja 15 '44

"A fine introduction to these lands for grammar school pupils." M. L. Goodwin

+ Library J 69:72 Ja 15 '44 30w

Wis Lib Bul 40:39 Mr '44

DE LONGE, MERRILL E. Modern airfield, planning and concealment. 167p il $4 Pitman

629.136 Airports. Camouflage (military science)

43-18042

"This little book deals almost exclusively with the location, design and construction of

DE LONGE, M. E.—Continued
military airfields with the object of making them as inconspicuous as possible from the air. It is written for military use, not for the builders of commercial airports. For the designers of army airfields, it brings together in concise form the available information on concealment of the fields and their service facilities." Eng N

Eng N 132:127 Mr 9 '44 80w
Library J 69:118 F 1 '44 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:59 O '43

DELOS, JOSEPH T., and others. Race: nation: person . . . a symposium. See Race: nation: person

DEMING, DOROTHY. Penny and Pam, nurse and cadet. 230p $2 Dodd
44-8833

Penny Marsh, now a Red Cross nurse, was traveling thru the West on an assignment, when a harrassed uncle asked her to take his problem niece as a traveling companion. The plan nearly floored Penny at first, but in time the pampered young girl settled down and decided to be a trained nurse. For older girls.

Booklist 41:156 Ja 15 '45
Cath World 160:283 D '44 10w
Kirkus 12:375 Ag 15 '44 90w

"The rush and color of wartime America is caught successfully in this, and the character of Pam is developed engagingly. Girls will love it." Gweneira Williams
+ Library J 69:1004 N 15 '44 70w

DEMING, HORACE GROVE. General chemistry; an elementary survey, emphasizing industrial applications of fundamental principles. 5th ed rev 710p il $3.75 Wiley
540 Chemistry 44-797

"An introductory college textbook. As a large number of industrial applications of chemistry is treated, it has considerable utility as a reference book. This edition contains a large amount of new material on currently important industrial processes." (N Y New Tech Bks) For fourth edition see Book Review Digest, 1936. Index.

Booklist 40:255 Mr 15 '44
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:1006 D 1 '43 10w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:4 Ja '44

DEMING, WILLIAM EDWARDS. Statistical adjustment of data. 261p $3.50 Wiley
519.8 Statistics. Least squares. Errors, Theory of 43-18051

"Written for use both as a text for graduate students and a reference book for statisticians and others concerned with the interpretation of statistical data. Part titles are: Some simple adjustments; The least squares solution of more complicated problems; Conditions without parameters; Conditions containing parameters; Exercises and notes." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"The book is scholarly, up to date, and stimulating. The mathematics is not very advanced; but, combined with an elliptical style, it makes substantial demands of the reader." T. C. McCormick
+ Am J Soc 50:163 S '44 380w
Chem & Eng N 22:200 F 10 '44 30w
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:69 O '43

DENISON, ARCHIBALD CAMPBELL. America's maritime history [with il. by the author]. 236p $2.50 Putnam
387.5 Merchant marine—U.S. 44-3273

A brief history of ocean transportation from the days of the Egyptians and Phoenicians to the present, with emphasis on the growth of the United States as a marine power. The chapters of the book were originally given as lectures at the USMS officers' school at New London. Bibliography. No index.

"Lieutenant Denison brings to his discourses a lively imagination, a vivid manner of presentation and a profound interest in all maritime affairs, ancient and modern." R. E. Berry
+ N Y Times p8 My 28 '44 320w

"A good survey, though rather elementary, with lots of facts and figures."
+ — New Yorker 20:95 Mr 11 '44 50w
Reviewed by R. A. Brown
Social Studies 35:329 N '44 750w

"Under the circumstances, it is remarkable how comprehensive the text of the work is and how well the information conforms to the realities of the story. The author has read his sources carefully; he seems genuinely imbued with the love of the sea and has a clear understanding of the pattern of his lectures. . . The section on the American sailing navy is excellent, and the packet-ship period of the 1840's is developed in its right proportions. . . Then the author falls into the common error of our marine historians; he assumes that the sailing-ship era closed with the clipper ships and the Civil War, and has nothing to say of the great revival of wooden shipbuilding and operation from 1865 to 1900. This section of the work simply is not informed. . . The beginnings of steam, however, are properly brought out, and the story swings into its modern phase in due order." Lincoln Colcord
+ — Weekly Book Review p10 Ag 13 '44 850w

DENT, HAROLD COLLETT. Education in transition; a sociological study of the impact of war on English education, 1939-1943. (Int. lib. of sociology and social reconstruction) 244p $3 Oxford [12s 6d Routledge]
370.942 Education—Great Britain 44-17586

Analysis of education in the English state schools from September, 1939, to the beginning of work on the new Education bill—a period of about three years. During that time the evacuation of children from large industrial cities made any education difficult, and this study shows the steps by which the difficulties were overcome. Index.

Reviewed by Robert Havighurst
Am J Soc 50:242 N 13 '44 900w
Reviewed by L. G. Brown
Am Soc R 9:708 D '44 330w
Reviewed by Thomas Woody
Ann Am Acad 236:211 N '44 750w
Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p2 Ag 20 '44 450w
Foreign Affairs 23:6 O '44 30w

"Mr. Dent has succeeded in making 'Education' readable. This is a vivid and moving piece of writing." B. I. Evans
+ Manchester Guardian p3 F 2 '44 350w
Reviewed by Paul Goodman
New Repub 112:57 Ja 8 '45 600w

"In light of the findings of the recent London conference on Post-war Education and Reconstruction, this work is of particular significance."
+ School & Society 60:15 Jl 1 '44 80w

"I commend Mr. Dent's study not only to my political colleagues in and out of Parliament, to members of education committees and to overseas friends now in our midst, but also to younger students of sociology and government who are interested in the formulation of public opinion preparatory to a major Bill." Kenneth Lindsay
+ Spec 172:128 F 11 '44 700w

" 'Education in Transition' is one of the most interesting and challenging books on education that I have read." A. F. Myers
+ Survey G 33:396 S '44 360w
Times [London] Lit Sup p28 Ja 15 '44 800w

DERLETH, AUGUST WILLIAM. Mischief in the lane. 229p $2 Scribner 44-6480
Detective story.

"The judge does his usual able job in sifting out clues and there is considerable excitement before he traps his killer. Touches of homely humor are sprinkled liberally along the way." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p6 Ag 6 '44 70w
Booklist 41:24 S '44
Kirkus 12:266 Je 15 '44 60w
Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p19 Jl 30 '44 80w

"August Derleth, Wisconsin novelist, poet and short story writer, has turned out some distinctly above the average mysteries, and the latest in his Judge Peck series maintains his high quality." R. N. F.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 13 '44 110w

"This regional puzzle is plentifully adorned with small town color." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p12 Jl 16 '44 100w
Wis Lib Bul 40:130 O '44

DERLETH, AUGUST WILLIAM, ed. Sleep no more; twenty masterpieces of horror for the connoisseur. 374p il $2.50 Farrar
Short stories—Collections 44-7662

Contents: Count Magnus, by M. R. James; Cassius, by H. S. Whitehead; The occupant of the room, by Algernon Blackwood; The return of the sorcerer, by C. A. Smith; Johnson looked back, by Thomas Burke; The hand of the O'Mecca, by Howard Wandrei; "He cometh and he passeth by," by H. R. Wakefield; Thus I refute Beelzy, by John Collier; The mannikin, by Robert Bloch; Two black bottles, by W. B. Talman; The house of sounds, by M. P. Shiel; The cane, by Carl Jacobi; The horror in the burying ground, by Hazel Heald; The kennel, by Maurice Level; The yellow sign, by R. W. Chambers; The black stone, by R. E. Howard; Midnight express, by Alfred Noyes; A gentleman from Prague, by Stephen Grendon; The black druid, by F. B. Long; The rats in the walls, by H. P. Lovecraft.

Booklist 41:41 O 1 '44

"Despite the origins of the majority of the stories (Weird Tales, etc.) these are no shilling shockers but well turned tales of 'psychic residue, vampirism, dead vengeance, possession, demoniac familiars, homicidal avatars', hauntings, visitations and the grave. Well known frighteners in M. R. James, Algernon Blackwood, Thomas Burke, John Collier, Howard Lovecraft, and a good representation of new names and new horrors. An extra for the fanciers."
+ Kirkus 12:306 Jl 15 '44 130w
Reviewed by Eudora Welty
N Y Times p5 S 24 '44 360w

"Most of the current anthologies of horror stories, Mr. Derleth says in his introduction to this collection, keep on printing the same old masterpieces. . . The majority of the bogies in these stories are of the old-fashioned type which, dressed up in the most scary adjectives these authors can command, creeps out of the walls and tries to frighten you. After you have finished, you may well feel that the old masterpieces aren't so bad after all."
New Yorker 20:84 S 23 '44 130w

"A few good old standbys—like M. R. James and M. P. Shiel—and a mixed lot of moderately shocking newcomers. Good bed-side collection."
Sat R of Lit 27:46 O 14 '44 40w

DERRICKSON, MARIONE R., ed. See Saturday evening post. Laugh it off

DE SELM, BERNARD H., ed. Manual of aircraft production. 144p il $1.25 McGraw 629.1341 Airplanes—Design and construction
43-15192

"Tracing the construction of the airplane from start to finish, this manual gives the student a basic understanding of how modern aircraft are produced. It shows him why he does things, and why he does them in a particular way. Detailed explanations of the more important phases of the production process are given, supplemented by numerous tables and charts designed to clarify the text." Publisher's note

Booklist 40:229 Mr 1 '44
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:1006 D 1 '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:59 O '43

"The title of this book is somewhat misleading. A more accurate one would be 'Manual of Aircraft Sheet Metal and Assembly Work,' since no mention is made of wood airplanes, welding processes or machine work. The discussion of sheet metal work, however, is excellent from the standpoint of educating a completely inexperienced aircraft worker, and so with the assembly processes involving electrical and piping work. Short chapters on aircraft materials, aircraft tools and general factory regulations will help greatly in providing beginners with a basis." T. A. Wells
+ — N Y Times p25 My 7 '44 150w

DESMOND, MRS ALICE (CURTIS). Sea cats; il. by Wilfred Bronson. 216p $2 Macmillan Seals (animals)—Legends and stories
44-9100

Story for older boys and girls about sealing in Alaska, under government license and supervision. The hero is a thirteen-year-old Aleut boy, who takes his father's place as family bread winner, when the father is injured.

Booklist 41:126 D 15 '44
Commonweal 41:257 D 22 '44 20w
Kirkus 12:373 Ag 15 '44 90w

"Recommended for ages nine to twelve years." Margaret Miller
+ Library J 69:1104 D 15 '44 70w

"This is a well-told adventure story for readers 8 to 12, with clearly drawn characters, and fascinating information about the habits of seals and the way in which the Government protects them, with the aid of Aleut sealers. There are fine authentic drawings by Wilfred Bronson—and, throughout, a sense of life as it is really lived in the shadow of the Arctic." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p10 D 31 '44 180w
Sat R of Lit 27:42 N 11 '44 50w

DE SOLA, RALPH. Microfilming. 258p il $1.50 Essential bks.
778.315 Microfilms. Microphotography
44-40160

"Microfilming, a photographic technique responsible for V-mail and space-saving documentary reproduction, is one of America's fastest growing industries. . . Brief, illustrated chapters tell of the history of microfilming; its many modern uses and advantages. Cameras and all technical processes are fully described in non-technical language. Photochemical formulas are given for individual and laboratory use. A glossary of microfilming technical and trade terms is included." Publisher's note

Booklist 41:13 S '44
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:606 Jl '44 20w
Management R 33:248 Jl '44 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:28 Ap '44

DE TOLNAY, CHARLES. History and technique of old master drawings; a handbook. 155p pl $20 H. Bittner & co, 67 W. 55th st, N.Y. 19
741 Drawing. Drawings 43-17508

"The text of this book [is an] intensive study of the development of drawing techniques. . . [It contains] more than two hundred and sixty reproductions, ranging from the early Greek and Egyptian to Cézanne and his contemporaries." New Yorker

DE TOLNAY, CHARLES—Continued

"There will be experts who feel some of Tolnay's evaluations to be incorrect, some who, like myself, feel he slighted Holbein and, as Walter Pach suggests, did Seurat an injustice in leaving him out of the book altogether. But no one will question the over-all significance and stature of this work." A. C. S.

+ — Book Week p4 Ap 23 '44 340w

Reviewed by Jerome Mellquist
Commonweal 39:657 Ap 14 '44 500w

"Mr. de Tolnay successfully disposes of more than one theory or 'established' fact. The complex and fertile aspects of his accomplishment lend themselves more easily to appreciation than they do to summary or quotation. His book is a valuable addition to the wisdom of the world." Christopher Lazare

+ Nation 158:396 Ap 1 '44 800w

Reviewed by Walter Pach
N Y Times p7 F 13 '44 900w

New Yorker 19:68 Ja 1 '44 70w

"This is a welcome addition to the literature of its subject." Royal Cortissoz

+ Weekly Book Review p4 D 19 '43 550w

DE TOLNAY, CHARLES. Youth of Michelangelo. 295p pl $15 Princeton univ. press [£5 Oxford]

B or 92 Michelangelo Buonarroti A43-1900

"This is a minutely analytical and closely written survey of the first thirty-odd years of Michael Angelo's life. It is divided into various sections. The first offers a kind of skeletonized biography. Then follow chapters on the master's artistic development and a critical catalogue of sculptures, paintings and drawings. There are useful appendices, including bibliographical notes, and, to conclude, a voluminous array of superb plates, many of them devoted to details of this or that work." Weekly Book Review

Times [London] Lit Sup p106 F 26 '44 360w

"Mr. De Tolnay addresses himself to the scholar rather than to the general reader but the latter may well profit by study of this volume. It is a moving interpretation of a formidable artist and a puissant soul. It excites impatience for the continuation of the author's exploration of his subject, into the years of Michael Angelo's prime. He was prodigious in his youth. In his later years he was an overwhelming giant." Royal Cortissoz

+ Weekly Book Review p25 Je 27 '43 850w

DEUTSCH, BABETTE (MRS AVRAHM YARMOLINSKY). Take them, stranger. 72p $2 Holt

811 44-6617

"The war casts its shadow over much, though not all, of Miss Deutsch's book. . . She is, one gathers, the mother of at least one son serving on a distant front; and this fact has given to [her] a theme which, in some poems stressed as poignantly personal, in other poems widening into impersonal issues, confers a recognizable identity upon her attitude. This theme is the transition in the individual life from the order of what is past, remembered, domestic, to the alien contingencies of what is future, unexperienced, remote." N Y Times

Book Week p14 N 19 '44 100w

Booklist 41:38 O 1 '44

Reviewed by Oscar Williams
New Repub 111:534 O 23 '44 40w

"Miss Deutsch has written surprisingly incisive poems—surprisingly, that is, when one considers the ordinariness, almost the poverty, of her vocabulary. Indeed, a number of her poems move so unobtrusively that the reader as he nears the end of one may have ceased to expect anything of it. Then comes a quiet concluding phrase which not only completes the thought of the poem but in doing so transforms and subtilizes the total idea." F. C. Flint

+ N Y Times p13 S 3 '44 240w

"Babette Deutsch's new volume is made up of reveries and lyrics varied in subject and often distinguished in insight, but at times it shows the brief touch of gentility." Louise Bogan

+ — New Yorker 20:92 O 21 '44 30w

"It is fine to have a poet, so obviously warm with personal feeling and delicate with feminine art, speaking out so maturely on the central themes of our time. Miss Deutsch has poetic conscience not simply toward her craft but toward her world. It makes her book a rich experience of love and understanding." Irwin Edman

+ Weekly Book Review p4 O 29 '44 850w

Wis Lib Bul 40:158 D '44

DEUTSCH, HELENE. Psychology of women; a psychoanalytic interpretation; foreword by Stanley Cobb. v 1 399p $4.50 Grune

396 Woman 44-5287

"As Volume 1 of a two-part study, this book carries the process of development of the feminine mind across the threshold of maturity. The second part will deal with the salient life phases of adult womanhood." School & Society

School & Society 59:335 My 6 '44 40w

Reviewed by Margaret Nordfeldt
Survey 80:334 N '44 410w

DE VOTO, BERNARD AUGUSTINE (JOHN AUGUST, pseud). Literary fallacy. 175p $2.50 Little

810.9 American literature—History and criticism 44-3169

"A one-man commando raid upon the American literature of the twenties and, more specifically, upon those who wrote it. The literary fallacy, according to Mr. DeVoto, 'is, essentially, the belief that literature is the measure of culture.' He himself does not think it is and contends, moreover, that practically everything written during the twenties was 'trivial'—Lewis, Hemingway, Dos Passos, and Faulkner included. The reason for this triviality, he says, is that writers were 'completely separated from the experiences that alone give life and validity to literature'—that is, from 'the common life'—and his verdict is that the era will be remembered as 'the age of literary folly, the age of slapstick.' " New Yorker

Reviewed by Russell Maloney
Book Week p3 Ap 23 '44 250w

Booklist 40:300 My 1 '44

Reviewed by Eleanor Godfrey
Canadian Forum 24:213 D '44 380w

Christian Science Monitor p10 My 12 '44 450w

"The book is brilliant, sometimes amusing, and always quite worth while. It is about as literate and adult an essay as we have seen in some time. But I think Mr. De Voto misses part of the point. Brooks's initial attitude was the product of what we might well term a youth movement, started I think by college students' sudden awareness of the difference between their academic environment and the American social milieu." G. N. Shuster

+ Commonweal 40:66 My 5 '44 450w

Kirkus 12:90 F 15 '44 180w

"Recommended." H. G. Kelley

+ Library J 69:303 Ap 1 '44 100w

"You wonder, reading his book, how it came about that such an ignorant, foolish, debilitated, querulous, trivial and utterly ignominious literature has managed to survive this series of attacks. Why do young writers still imitate Wolfe or Crane or Fitzgerald, in preference to Willa Cather and Robert Frost? Why do flyers back from New Guinea and Australian war correspondents in the Middle East write novels in Hemingway's early manner? Might it be that the continuing attacks against these writers are another testimony to their life and power? Even Bernard DeVoto belabors them from any convenient angle. . . In his attacks, he is not always careful to preserve the appearance of consistency and fairness." Malcolm Cowley

New Repub 110:564 Ap 24 '44 2400w

"Mr. De Voto advises, truthfully, that the reader who wants to see the literary fallacy in action can find it in the reviews of his book. Of course, as Mr. De Voto uses the term, it can be found anywhere, including his own book. But there are some parts of it—the notion that a culture can be judged by its literature, for instance—that we might be sorry to lose. We learned a good deal about Greece from reading its playwrights and, if we are not too blinded by optimism, we can learn more about our own sickness from our artists than we shall ever learn from Mr. De Voto." Marjorie Farber

N Y Times p5 Ap 23 '44 1900w

"There is, of course, a certain amount of sense in what Mr. DeVoto has to say, even though his presentation of it is not helped by his preference for overstatement or by his going off, at the end, on a more or less uncontrolled rhetorical jag. His treatment of other critics is anything but good-tempered and, in holding Van Wyck Brooks responsible for all the literary chills and fevers of the twenties, he provides a curious example of the devil theory of literature."

— + New Yorker 20:89 Ap 22 '44 210w

Discussion by Sinclair Lewis

Sat R of Lit 27:9 Ap 15 '44 3650w

"Mr. DeVoto, a critic never noted for pulling his punches, has followed an old literary tradition in packing within the limits of what is little more than a pamphlet a dump of ammunition which it might have been wiser to explode in a full-length book. As a result, his 'The Literary Fallacy' has thrown off and in turn met with more heat than light; and it was perhaps inevitable that its fundamental importance should have been somewhat obscured in verbal battles and personal attacks." H. S. C.

Sat R of Lit 27:16 My 6 '44 1100w

Reviewed by Marshall Bragdon

Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 29 '44 750w

"To readers who recall that The Flowering of New England was the first vital reaffirmation of the American genius, after a decade of defeatism, Mr. DeVoto's attack may seem like professional rivalry or critical envy. Most of them will continue to read Brooks, with greater profit."

Time 43:99 Ap 24 '44 550w

"A truculent technique no doubt has its advantages at times. But in the present instance, it seems to me, truculence costs Mr. DeVoto rather more than it is worth. He has a positive thesis and that thesis is worth a calmly rational development. Actually, however, he is so busy explaining how wrong nearly everybody else is that he has little time to explain his own superlative rightness." J. W. Krutch

— Weekly Book Review p4 Ap 23 '44 850w

Wis Lib Bul 40:84 Je '44

"'The Literary Fallacy' is too abusive, too eager, too elaborate an expansion of the simple truth that writers and critics should not divorce life from literature. In this insistence, however, on what Whitman called 'tallying' the earth, or identifying oneself with the reality of the earth, is the book's virtue. Its own vista of a real America lets us see these writers in a new perspective, bringing to some individual writers criticism at once fresh and perceptive, especially in the evaluations of Robert Frost and Ernest Hemingway. Buttressed by the chapter on the life of America called 'The Artificers,' the book is a plea for health, for reality, for fact, for a recognition of the dignity of man whenever we write of the giant America now revealing the full strength of its latent powers." S. T. Williams

+ — Yale R n s 33:747 summer '44 750w

DE VOTO, BERNARD AUGUSTINE (JOHN AUGUST, pseud). Woman in the picture. 265p $2.50 Little

44-2100

An adventure story in which a group of loyal Americans finally succeed in unmasking the protege of an American Fascist and would-be president-maker.

"Best of the week."

+ Boston Globe p15 Ap 5 '44 90w

Kirkus 12:6 Ja 1 '44 100w

Reviewed by Sinclair Lewis

Sat R of Lit 27:12 Ap 15 '44 600w

"An adventure story which succeeds in being only moderately interesting in spite of the atmosphere of breathless excitement which the author endeavors to convey." W. H. H.

— + Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 12 '44 280w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p15 Mr 19 '44 80w

DE VRIES, PETER. Angels can't do better. 181p $2.50 Coward-McCann

44-7949

Involved story about a young reformer, describing his contacts with his father, who is a college professor; with the landlord, who has troubles of every variety; with a lonely starling on the verge of a nervous breakdown; various politicians and gangsters; and several women. The book closes as the narrator goes off to war.

"Without knowing exactly how long it took De Vries to write it, I will freely go on record as saying that this novel has all the faults and all the virtues of a novel hurriedly written by an extraordinarily able writer who had no particularly good reason to write a novel." Russell Maloney

Book Week p4 S 3 '44 240w

Kirkus 12:285 Jl 1 '44 150w

"'Angels Can't Do Better,' occasionally a bright book, does not hold together. There are untidy little undeveloped episodes and a lightness of character development. But a rambling wit keeps it going." Arthur Robson Jr.

N Y Times p24 O 1 '44 180w

"Peter DeVries juggles ideas with labored lightness in a novel difficult to make head or tail of. He offers you an omelet whose ingredients seem to have come from a cuckoo's nest instead of the conventional hen house—no doubt a novelty, but not very nourishing." Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p14 Ag 27 '44 120w

DEWEERD, HARVEY ARTHUR. Great soldiers of World war II. 316p il maps $3.75 Norton

923.5 World war, 1939—Biography. Generals

44-9123

"Biographical sketches of: Gamelin, De Gaulle, Wavell, Rommel, Montgomery, Hitler, Winston Churchill, Timoshenko, MacArthur, Chiang Kai-shek, Eisenhower; explaining in a readable manner their military tactics and the events that have occurred. Author states in foreword that he 'has had access to a great deal of classified material as a necessary part of his work on the staff of a military periodical'; that the opinions expressed and conclusions drawn are his own." (Library J) "Four figures from his earlier volume Great Soldiers of the Two World Wars [Book Review Digest, 1941] have also been included but they have been largely rewritten and expanded in the light of new information." (Publisher's note)

Reviewed by Friedrich Roetter

Book Week p10 N 26 '44 500w

Booklist 41:107 D 1 '44

"Even the inevitability of duplication of subjects should not keep this excellent volume from reaching the wide market it deserves. Major De Weerd has written a series of biographical sketches of the military and political careers of conspicuous leaders of this war. He has succeeded in achieving a really fine unity, clearly presenting the war in an overall picture, through identifying the men not only as individuals but as representing their countries' ideals."

DEWEERD, H. A.—Continued
+ Kirkus 12:365 Ag 15 '44 130w

"Some women and most men will enjoy it. Recommended." E. F. Kelly
+ Library J 69:881 O 15 '44 60w

"It would be pleasing to record that Major DeWeerd's brief portraits had illuminated his subjects against the background of the contemporary history they are making. Here and there his brush strokes are bold, significant and powerful. This is a book pleasant to read and packed with information—and the major's judgments are often sound and always interesting. But in scholarship, style and analysis this book does not measure up to the author's earlier work—'Great Soldiers of Two World Wars.' " H. W. Baldwin
+ — N Y Times p4 N 5 '44 950w

New Yorker 20:99 N 11 '44 190w

"These biographical and character sketches of military leaders of World War II are notable for careful and objective analysis, skilful relation to the military events of the war, and for their high quality of literary excellence. They show evidence of wide and intensive study, and a rare insight into human nature and into the nature of war. Though subject to revision when historical data are more fully known, the book will enhance Major DeWeerd's deservedly high reputation at home and abroad as a military historian." Donald Armstrong
+ Sat R of Lit 27:20 N 18 '44 750w

Reviewed by L. B. Kromer
Springf'd Republican p10 N 3 '44 330w

"The book as a whole is in no way startling; it is wary of new insights or didactic deductions. But it is an illuminating exposition of generalship today." Walter Millis
Weekly Book Review p4 D 3 '44 1350w

DEWEY, THOMAS B. Hue and cry. (Jefferson house publication) 182p $2 Morrow 44-9092

Detective story.

"Moves briskly."
Boston Globe p16 N 15 '44 50w

"Not a pretty tale—nor palatable for the squeamish. Pretty tough, though good suspense and plot."
Kirkus 12:385 S 1 '44 100w

"The best that can be said for the story is that it has plenty of action." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p35 N 26 '44 80w

"Marijuana, juvenile delinquency, and adult philandering all play part in lively, lurid, and outspoken opus. Toughie."
— Sat R of Lit 27:26 N 4 '44 40w

"We cannot honestly say that Mr. Dewey creates much excitement." Will Cuppy
— Weekly Book Review p29 N 19 '44 100w

DIAMOND, FRANK. Murder in five columns. 288p $2 Arcadia 44-40377

Detective story.

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p18 D 17 '44 140w

"Carefree dialogue, melodrama, alleged subversive activities and a passable riddle come with this wacky and frequently amusing number." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p8 D 31 '44 130w

DIAMOND, WILLIAM. Economic thought of Woodrow Wilson. 210p $2.50; pa $2 Johns Hopkins press

B or 92 Wilson, Woodrow. U.S.—Economic policy
44-5332

"While, as its title indicates, the book is concerned primarily with the economic thought of Wilson, the political constantly injects itself, to occupy almost if not quite the primary position, inasmuch as, as the author observes, 'he [Wilson] was interested above all in questions of politics, the distribution of power, sovereignty, the sanctions of law, and the functions of government rather than in how men make their living and how wealth is created and distributed.' The study follows the actual development of Wilson's economic thought, which is characterized as 'never systematic' and concerned always with 'policy rather than analysis,' from his advocacy of laissez-faire economics, through the period of hesitating support of a very limited governmental action, to his program for the 'New Freedom' of about 1910." Am Pol Sci R

Reviewed by F. A. Fetter
Am Econ R 34:888 D '44 1450w

"Mr. William Diamond's study is especially opportune at this time when statesmen and peoples are again wrestling with the problems of world reconstruction and reorganization after an epochal war." E. D. Ellis
+ Am Pol Sci R 38:821 Ag '44 380w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:661 Jl '44 10w

"A modestly titled and brilliantly executed study of Wilson's thinking." Richard Hofstadter
+ New Repub 111:251 Ag 28 '44 420w

DIAZ LOZANO, ARGENTINA. Enriqueta and I; tr. from the Spanish by Harriet de Onis; il. by Antonio Gattorno. 217p $2.50 Farrar

B or 92
44-3876

Simply told story of a young girl's adolescent years in Honduras. Enriqueta, a charming and understanding school teacher, is the mother of that young girl. The narrator, the "I" of the title, is a self-willed person, but thru the wise and gentle guidance of the mother whom she adored, Elenita has become quite a person by the time the story ends, when she is sixteen.

"Although it will no doubt find a wide reading public, containing as it does the right modicum of exoticism and remoteness, of quaintness and morally uplifting qualities and religious piety to endear it to innumerable clubs and sororities, it cannot be said that 'Enriqueta and I' is a memorable reading experience, much less a literary event. Compared with other Latin American works in the same vein—the 'Viaje al Amanecer' of Mariano Picon Salas, the 'Memorias de Mama Blanca' of Teresa de la Parra—'Enriqueta and I' is sweet and sentimental to the cloying point. . . The one saving grace of 'Enriqueta and I' is perhaps its depiction of the locale." Angel Flores
— + Book Week p4 My 7 '44 350w

Booklist 40:317 My 15 '44

Commonweal 40:113 My 19 '44 440w

"There is more here than trite surface. Under the banalities a sharp intelligence paints Honduras with its guard down and its shutters wide open. . . Whether or not Señora Lozano knew what she was doing—and there are puzzling things about the book that create a reasonable doubt—she has, under the guise of writing about herself, given North Americans a clearer insight into her country's life than can be gained from a dozen better books by foreign observers." Mildred Adams
+ N Y Times p5 My 28 '44 650w

"A quiet, unpretentious, sweetly luminous book. . . In translation 'Enriqueta and I' serves the North American reader well two ways: as a picture of what life is like in the rugged, beautiful country of our restless Honduran neighbor; and as a sensitive account (good in anybody's language) of the close relationship between a little girl and her mother." F. H. Bullock
+ Weekly Book Review p2 My 14 '44 950w

DICK, CAPPY, pseud. See Cleveland, R.

DICKENS, MONICA. Edward's fancy [Eng title: The fancy]. 283p $2.50 Harper [10s 6d Joseph, M.]
44-1896

Edward, a charge-hand who superintends a group of girl workers in an English war factory, is the central character. In his spare time Edward raises rabbits in the backyard. He is a lovable character, with a superior and overbearing wife, but circumstances and a rabbity little girl from the factory changed all that.

Reviewed by Jack Conroy
Book Week p7 F 20 '44 270w

"The author has managed to write about small, mean lives without making them sordid and without turning herself into a loud speaker in behalf of English patriotism. The characterizations are full and convincing, and interest is maintained without any apparent effort on Miss Dickens' part. This is because the characters are appealing—we are able to drop down into their lives and interest ourselves in what happens next." N. E. Monroe
+ Cath World 159:185 My '44 180w

"A warmtoned picture of wartime living in England."
+ Kirkus 12:2 Ja 1 '44 100w

"Dickens admirers will welcome this addition to her lightly entertaining output." H. S. Taylor
Library J 69:160 F 15 '44 70w

"This novel is not without its engaging episodes, while the character-drawing is fairly convincing, but the work as a whole is lacking in essential form." Wilfrid Gibson
— + Manchester Guardian p3 D 3 '43 150w

"Mrs. Urry with her 'face like the uneatable kernel of an old walnut' evokes a beloved ghost. Miss Dickens' great-grandfather would have approved of Mrs. Urry—he's often dealt with the likes of her. Personally we wish the author might have paused now and then to give her characters a chance to grow on us. When the book ends we leave behind a great many mere acquaintances who might have developed into lasting friends. Judging from the flying glimpses we have had of them they have the stuff of permanence but not the time to achieve it." Isabelle Mallet
+ — N Y Times p16 Mr 12 '44 420w

"There is more that one would like to know, that is, about Collis Park and its factories and factory workers than Miss Dickens has so far told, and that, since the book is long and lightly conversational in style, gives the measure of her success. Sensibly and sympathetically, with nice, quick humour and without a trace of self-consciousness, she enters into the lives of an assortment of working-class people."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p605 D 18 '43 450w

"Monica Dickens knows how to write. With vitality and occasional impudence she draws her characters in such a fashion that they live for us and we see the very clothes they wear and the things they eat and the thoughts they think. . . Miss Dickens does not need to trade on the fact that she is the great-granddaughter of Charles Dickens. She is a lively writer in her own right." D. D. Lynn
+ Weekly Book Review p6 F 20 '44 550w
Wis Lib Bul 40:55 Ap '44

DICKSON, CARTER, pseud. See Carr, J. D.

DICTIONARY of American English on historical principles; comp. at the Univ. of Chicago under the editorship of Sir W. A. Craigie and J. R. Hulbert. 4v $100 c1938-43 Univ. of Chicago press

427.9 English language—Dictionaries. Americanisms

"In January of this year the twentieth part of the Dictionary of American English was issued by the University of Chicago Press, thus completing the fourth and last volume. . . A preliminary review of the dictionary, describing its general plan and scope, appeared in Subscription Books Bulletin, April 1937 [Book Review Digest 1937]." Subscription Bks Bul

"It is true that some of the definitions are puzzling. Kiss is not merely a type of candy, as this dictionary indicates. Air Line may once have been the straightest distance along the railroad. And the first definition of 'break' would ordinarily be disconnection rather than a 'gap between hills.' But as I may have indicated, this is no ordinary dictionary. Actually it is an alphabetically arranged poem in prose which contains our cultural heritage; a history of America with reverberations of Jefferson and Lincoln." Sterling North
+ Book Week p2 F 6 '44 600w

"The great feature of the work is its host of dated quotations, many of them full, and an astonishing proportion of them quick with the life of an expanding and developing nation. According to my own rough calculation, there are between 170,000 and 175,000 of them in the 2,528 pages of dictionary matter. One might object, like Mark Twain's miner friend, that the dictionary, while interesting in the main, is much too various for comfortable reading. I have not found it so. A magnificent scholarly lexicon, it is also an inexhaustible anthology of American life; and although it does not represent that life with completeness . . . it mirrors that life as perhaps only one other work does. The reader may not find what he is looking for in the DAE, but like Columbus he will find America." George Genzmer
+ Nation 158:312 Mr 11 '44 1400w

"This dictionary is the American language's Declaration of Independence. It declares to all the powers of the earth that American now takes its separate and equal station among the languages of mankind. That declaration should not worsen Anglo-American relations. Far from it. Now that we are no longer separated by the same language we may get along better together. . . [It is] a book which no student of the American scene will willingly be without. Here in these four handsome volumes is not only a dictionary of the American language. Here is also what amounts to a cyclopedia of Americana and a history of the American mind." Horace Reynolds
+ N Y Times p1 Ja 23 '44 1250w

"Though it lacks the majestic impressiveness of its English counterpart . . . the new dictionary of American English is immensely entertaining to read. It is wonderful to be able to run your eye down a column and see the history of a word in quotations. This has sometimes its disappointments, too. It is a pity that, in the case of the political parties, both definitions and quotations are inadequate. It would be difficult for a foreigner consulting this dictionary to find out anything about American politics. . . But many subjects are quite brilliantly developed." Edmund Wilson
+ New Yorker 20:81 F 19 '44 1400w
Springf'd Republican p10 F 4 '44 330w

"The Dictionary of American English is recommended for all libraries which can afford it and in particular for college, university and large public libraries."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 15:27 Jl '44 850w

"It simply, and quite magnificently, does what it sets out to do. It spreads a record of English as it has lived uniquely in this land—and not alone in new words for new things, like skunk atnd humming-bird, hemlock and rattlesnake, but also in new meanings for old words, such as store for shop, postoffice for a kissing game, and guy for (I quote the dictionary itself) 'a male person; a fellow.'" Mark Van Doren
+ Weekly Book Review p1 F 20 '44 1250w

DIMICK, CHESTER EDWARD, and HURD, CUTHBERT CORWIN. Mathematics for mariners. 263p $2.75 Van Nostrand

510 Mathematics. Navigation 44-1872

"Aims to provide the basic mathematics needed for solving problems in navigation, simple gunnery, seamanship, and maneuvering at sea. Operations in arithmetic, algebra, geometry and trigonometry are reviewed, with drills in conversion of units, the use of tables including single and double interpolation, and the use of the maneuvering board. Captain Dimick and Lieutenant Hurd are instructors in the U. S. Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:205 Mr 1 '44 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:8 Ja '44

DISNEY, WALT. Surprise package; the stories in this book have been adapted by H. Marion Palmer. 92p il $1.50 Simon & Schuster
44-7829

Eleven tales for children, most of them retold from well-known children's stories, but two of them original with the Disney studios. All are illustrated in the Disney manner. Contents: Through the picture frame; Brer Rabbit en his satchel uv gold; The emperor's new clothes; The little fir tree; Lady; Chicken Little; Alice's adventures in Wonderland; The wind in the willows; Peter Pan and the pirates; Peter and the wolf; The square world; Happy valley.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p21 N 12 '44 140w

"Almost all of [the stories] are abridged, which I do not like. Disney's art I begin to find tedious; when he begins to illustrate 'Alice in Wonderland,' he cannot forget Tenniel, and yet he is nothing like as good as Tenniel." H. L. Binsse
— Commonweal 41:126 N 17 '44 30w
+ Kirkus 12:429 S 15 '44 150w
Springf'd Republican p4d Ja 14 '45 60w
Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p5 S 10 '44 200w

DIVINE, ARTHUR DURHAM (DAVID RAME, pseud). Navies in exile. 264p il $2.75 Dutton [12s 6d Murray, J]
940.545 World war, 1939—Naval operations
44-7020

Accounts of the navies of Poland, Norway, Holland, France, Yugoslavia, Belgium, Denmark and Greece in the present war. Index.

Reviewed by W. H. Fetridge
Book Week p6 N 5 '44 300w
Booklist 41:74 N 1 '44

"A worthwhile contribution to the naval exploits of the war, recounted with high enthusiasm."
+ Kirkus 12:315 Jl 15 '44 130w

"Recommended." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 69:1006 N 15 '44 70w

"There is fine material for drama, but author halts dramatic story-telling for sake of heavy and long-winded explanations. Possibly, some adults will appreciate these 'asides,' but for the young people they will spoil the effect." Alice Vielehr
+ — Library J 69:1006 N 15 '44 70w

"Mr. Divine has sailed aboard one or more ships of most of these 'navies in exile' and he has put in long study of official records. He writes both expertly and warmly of the men who, long away from the homelands and often with the Nazi strength seeming insuperable, have given such devotion and courage to the cause of freedom." C. B. Palmer
+ N Y Times p5 O 8 '44 440w

"Mr. Divine has collected into an excellent book the stories of these Navies in exile, of the fighting against the invader, of the escapes, of the gathering of new fleets, strengthened by new ships from British shipyards, and of their subsequent achievements. He tells these stories in a way that makes for easy understanding and appreciation of their heroic quality, and, in spite of a certain sameness about them, he never fails to be interesting. Perhaps there is too much virtue in his picture for it to be wholly convincing; nothing seemed ever to go wrong, no mistake ever to be made." G. P. Griggs
+ Spec 173:62 Jl 21 '44 500w

"Mr Divine has hero tales to tell but he tells them with dignity and effectiveness instead of descending to the slushiness which has marred the clarity and value of some reports of naval operations in this war. With the aid of the British admiralty he has written stirring chapters without which the history of the war at sea would never be complete." R. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d O 1 '44 420w
Times [London] Lit Sup p328 Jl 8 '44 950w
Reviewed by George Polk
Weekly Book Review p14 N 5 '44 420w

DIVINE, ARTHUR DURHAM (DAVID RAME, pseud). Road to Tunis. 296p il maps $2.50 Macmillan 940.542 World war, 1939—Africa, North. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, English 43-18225

A British journalist, South African by birth, the author was assigned to the U.S. 701st Tank destroyers during the North African campaign. He was with our troops from the landing on the beach at Arzeu to the final victory parade in Tunis, and describes his experiences and theirs thruout. Illustrated with photographs. Maps but no index.

Booklist 40:194 F 1 '44
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:659 Jl '44 20w
Manchester Guardian p3 F 23 '44 250w

"The writer not only sees more than the average correspondent, he understands more and uses better English. The picture of a large French family, some killed, some wounded, by a enemy-seeking machine-gun fired with blind curiosity into the blackness of their hiding place is tragic. Their almost silent grief is unforgettable. But there are lyrical moments, too, such as when the entire convoy, living up to Siegfried Sassoon, burst into song while descending a steep mountain highway. The song spread from end to end of the miles-long column of vehicles, which increased speed happily until it rolled with beautiful frenzy to the flatness of the plains. A little moment in the campaign, but the author gives us a chance to share the great value such moments have for troops engaged in battle." Charles Landery
+ New Statesman & Nation 27:178 Mr 11 '44 400w

"The author, an English novelist, is at his best when he is describing the events of warfare, at his worst when he wanders off into philosophy."
+ — New Yorker 19:78 Ja 15 '44 90w

"This is one of the most readable, most graceful chronicles of the great Allied push across French North Africa. . . Few of the many volumes on North Africa capture, as 'Road to Tunis' does, the quality of the land and the living on it. . . For North African politics Mr. Rame has distaste. His comments on that unhappy subject are thin and skimpy." Frederick Gruin
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:20 Ja 22 '44 600w

"Mr. Divine has a strong sense of drama. This does not mean that he writes in a sensational way. Far from it. He has an admirably restrained, dignified style. But he has a sharp eye for the contrasts, the surprises, the conflicts between kindly sentiment and harsh necessity which are often the accompaniments of war."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p52 Ja 29 '44 650w
Reviewed by John O'Reilly
Weekly Book Review p14 Ja 16 '44 750w
Reviewed by F. W. Bronson
Yale R n s 33:761 summer '44 150w

DIXON, CLARICE MADELEINE. Devil and the deep. 347p $2.75 Scribner
44-40076

Stories of the merchant seamen in the present war, woven into a novel by a girl reporter who visits the bars on West street, New York, to meet the men and learn of their experiences. Benny Lynn, a shell-shocked seaman of twenty-six is one of the main characters.

"The author evokes the mood of these men and their surroundings with great power. Her book is slow-moving, but it is worth your while." W. F. Morse
+ Book Week p4 Mr 12 '44 380w
Booklist 40:283 Ap 15 '44

"When she is reporting seamen's talk more or less straight and describing seamen in a West Street bar, Miss Dixon is on fine, solid ground. But when she is putting her own self-conscious talk into seamen's mouths or building up two hammy characters who like to call each other by their full names, then Miss Dixon is on nothing but the sheerest, most treacherous quicksand. It is too bad that the American merchant seamen couldn't rate a better book." J. C. Cort

Commonweal 40:92 My 12 '44 370w

"This gave me more sense of reality of the merchant ships and men than anything—fictional or straight factual—that has crossed my desk. Painful—tough—rewarding reading."
+ Kirkus 12:28 Ja 15 '44 320w

"Here is a curious case of literary St. Vitus —an ill-written story of American merchant seamen that somehow comes alive through the sheer warmth and depth of its characters. . . It is palsied writing, but its many defects are apt to be forgotten once you sense the tortured honesty behind it." Meyer Berger
+ — N Y Times p13 Ap 2 '44 280w

"There is a fine, warm, loving quality about this book that bathes it like a solvent and holds it together. Holding together is what it needed most critically, for it is even now a loose and episodic book, a series of sketches rather than a novel with any consecutive order of events." N. L. Rothman
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:6 Ap 1 '44 360w
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 5 '44 190w

" 'The Devil and the Deep' is dull, diffuse and without point. It gives you less feeling of the sea than a ride on the Weehawken ferry." Herbert Kupferberg
— Weekly Book Review p6 Ap 2 '44 300w
Wis Lib Bul 40:110 Jl '44

DMITRI, IVAN, pseud. See West, L.

DOBB, MAURICE HERBERT. Soviet planning and labor in peace and war. 124p $1 Int. pubs. [4s Routledge]
330.947 Russia—Economic policy. World war, 1939—Russia 44-20093

Four studies on contemporary economic affairs in Soviet Russia. The first article contains a summary of the development of Soviet economic planning; the second describes the development of the financial system. Article three, on work and wages, shows the gains to industry of Stakhanovism. The concluding article deals with the serious effects of the German invasion upon Soviet industrial capacity.

"In addition to marshalling a good deal of information, Mr Dobb has done an excellent job of elementary analysis in explaining the ends of national planning and the methods by which they can be implemented." J. S. Bain
+ Am Econ R 34:898 D '44 600w
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:664 Jl '44 20w
Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 1 '43 50w
Times [London] Lit Sup p59 Ja 30 '43 180w

DOBBS, ROSE. No room; an old story retold; il. by Fritz Eichenberg. [48p] $1.50 Coward-McCann 44-8276

A retelling of the old story of the selfish peasant who did not want to share his little house with his daughter and her family, and what happened when he consulted the wise man.

"Rose Dobbs' retelling of the story, combined with Fritz Eichenberg's drawings, make the book a thorough delight. For children who like to be read to and children who are beginning to read." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p23 N 12 '44 180w
Booklist 41:61 O 15 '44

"This folk tale about a selfish old man and a little house that seemed to have no room is told simply and beautifully. Fritz Eichenberg was wonderfully bewitched when he drew the amusing pictures that supplement the story so skillfully."
+ Boston Globe p36 N 29 '44 40w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 S 25 '44 100w
Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:375 S '44 90w
Kirkus 12:429 S 15 '44 80w

"Quaint folk tale retold in a form which has preserved both its old-fashioned charm and pictures. Chief enjoyment of book is its humor, but many of the older thoughtful readers will glean much of the deep wisdom found within its pages. . . Recommended for ages nine to twelve." S. J. Robinson
+ Library J 69:763 S 15 '44 60w
Reviewed by M. C. Skinner
Library J 69:865 O 15 '44 50w
N Y Times p10 N 12 '44 90w
New Yorker 20:83 D 16 '44 60w

"After the children have heard this story told once, after they have followed it once through its illustrations, it will become to them a thing of permanent value. If they own it, they will pass it on to younger brothers and sisters or even to their own children. Like all folktales, it is timeless. If they find it on the shelves of their public library, they will return to it again and again. This reviewer has an autographed copy. She places it proudly on the shelves with the books that will endure." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 27:27 S 23 '44 360w
Springf'd Republican p4d O 8 '44 80w

"It is indeed an old story, last reported to children's literature from Mexico, but such a tale is only as old as its latest version and this one is droll enough to please any one—and to inspire some of the most vivacious drawings of that inspired humorist, Fritz Eichenberg." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 N 5 '44 210w

DODGE, BARNETT FRED. Chemical engineering thermodynamics. 680p $6 McGraw 536.7 Thermodynamics 44-5518

"The first six chapters of this textbook present fundamental laws and the methods of deriving equations for calculating thermodynamic relations. The remaining seven chapters deal with selected operations and processes in which these equations apply. Chapter titles in this latter part are: Compression and expansion of fluids; Thermodynamics of fluid flow; Heat transfer; Refrigeration; Chemical reaction equilibrium; Vaporization and condensation equilibria; Distillation processes. The treatment presupposes a knowledge of calculus but no previous study of thermodynamics." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

" 'Chemical Engineering Thermodynamics' is recommended as essential to all practicing chemical engineers, teachers, and advanced students." G. G. Brown
+ Chem & Met Eng 51:185 Je '44 650w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:33 Ap '44

DODGE, DAVID. Bullets for the bridegroom. 245p $2 Macmillan 44-6838

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p10 O 8 '44 130w

"Light, lucid and lively."
+ Boston Globe p17 S 13 '44 60w
Kirkus 12:241 Je 1 '44 60w
Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p18 Ag 20 '44 120w

"Fast and exciting."
+ New Yorker 20:60 Ag 19 '44 90w

"Worth including on your list and just the thing to beguile the weary hours waiting for the next plane to your favorite summer resort." B. I.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 20 '44 220w
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p14 Ag 13 '44 150w

DOLBIER, MAURICE. Jenny, the bus that nobody loved; il. by Tibor Gergely. 43p $1.25 Random house
44-7484

Jenny was a fine bus in the days when forty miles an hour was a good speed, but when streamliners came in, Jenny went out. Jenny craved affection and her retirement was a time of sorrow. Then came an emergency and Jenny was in her glory. For children six to eight.

"Perhaps no one in the story loves Jenny except Mike, her driver, but I'm sure that any child from 5 to 9 will take her straight to his heart. . . Tibor Gergely's pictures are very funny and colorful, and they illustrate the story in a most satisfactory manner." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p14 O 1 '44 180w
Kirkus 12:399 S 1 '44 150w

"Young children will thoroughly enjoy this whimsical tale. Recommended for children four to eight years of age." M. A. Webb
+ Library J 69:1049 D 1 '44 70w

"Magic and humor are deftly combined in this appealing story, and if you don't think a bus is pictorial material you don't know Tibor Gergely's artistic ingenuity, for he has made it one of the liveliest picture books of the year." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p18 O 22 '44 160w

"Children and their parents can enjoy this fresh, amusing book together."
+ New Yorker 20:83 D 16 '44 70w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 O 1 '44 270w

DOMKE, MARTIN. Trading with the enemy in World war II. 640p $10 Central bk. co.

341.3 Trading with the enemy. World war, 1939—Law and legislation 43-10785

"This scholarly study in comparative law analyzes the Trading with the Enemy Acts issued in many countries and used as weapons of economic warfare. It also considers the 'freezing' legislation that is integrated with the act passed in the United States. The discussion is heavily documented by references to court decisions, statutes, regulations, orders, decrees, and the like, and also to the literature of the subject. About half the book is devoted to the definition of an enemy within the meaning of trading-with-the-enemy legislation." Ann Am Acad

---

Reviewed by R. R. Wilson
Am Pol Sci R 38:392 Ap '44 650w

Reviewed by Cleona Lewis
Ann Am Acad 231:170 Ja '44 600w

"The author's industry in compiling and organizing this vast amount of material pertinent to his subject should prove useful to the members of the Bar; in these times, as never before, almost every practicing lawyer is confronted more or less constantly with problems which he will find are lucidly dealt with in this volume. It is not a substitute for study of the relevant statutes and regulations themselves, but it is a valuable guide to the available materials and furnishes a background against which to consider them." F. R. Coudert
+ Columbia Law R 43:1083 N '43 800w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:155 O '43 30w
Harvard Law R 57:750 My '44 380w

"Mr. Domke brings to the task not only a wide European experience in the conflict of laws, arising out of the impact of war on private property relations, but has acquainted himself in truly admirable fashion with the statutes, administrative regulations, and cases dealing with all aspects of this complicated subject, not only in this country but in other countries as well. While much of the material on foreign funds and alien property control is statutory, and while he presents the cases at considerable length, the presentation makes interesting reading, in which the background of an expert is evident throughout." Edwin Borchard
+ Yale Law J 53:380 Mr '44 850w

DONAHEY, WILLIAM. Teenie Weenie days; il. by [the author]. (Whittlesey house publication) 65p $1.50 McGraw 44-20106

Story of life in the Teenie Weenie village, where a child's cast off shoe was large enough for a house, peapods made ample canoes, and it took clever engineering to get a single carrot out of the ground. For five and six year olds.

"There is much fun to be found in these pages by youngsters from 6 to 9." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p11 Mr 19 '44 200w

"If the author's imagination seems a little earthbound, on the other hand the most matter-of-fact child will find pleasure and entertainment in the Teenie Weenie doings, which so closely follow those of human beings. On a higher level than the Comics, the Teenie Weenie stories, with their many lively, brightly colored pictures, their continuity and the reappearance of the same characters, will appeal to youthful devotees of the comic strip." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p22 My 7 '44 240w
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 5 '44 130w

DONATH, STANLEY F. The Lord is a man of war. 338p $2.50 Knopf 44-372

"A young Czech refugee in this country learns that his old father has been killed by a former German schoolmate turned Nazi. Breaking with his American fiancée, he sets out on a punitive expedition which leads him, after many adventures, to Central Europe, by way of the Communist underground, and back again to the United States. During this manhunt he kills people right and left, but the German whom he is out to get finally comes to a surprising end at other hands." New Yorker

---

"Lovers of adventure stories should mark down the name of Stanley F. Donath, a refugee of Czech heritage now living in New Jersey. I know of no American who could have done such a slick writing job, outside of James M. Cain." Milton Hindus
+ Atlantic 173:133 My '44 200w

" 'The Lord Is a Man of War' starts auspiciously as an important psychological novel and ends as a common magazine story with the F.B.I. as deus ex machina providing the solution. It reminded me of a brilliant rocket that shoots straight up into the sky, and, while everybody holds his breath to see it explode, produces only a fizzle." H. L. Reich
+ — Book Week p3 Mr 12 '44 400w
Booklist 40:283 Ap 15 '44

"This has implications, evaluations, beyond the surface significance; good, strong American language is tempered with passages of continental character; its polyglot, dualistic qualities give it a distinction beyond many books of this type, but give it an aura that may appeal to a dicriminating rather than a general audience. A dark horse—watch it."
+ Kirkus 12:25 Ja 15 '44 180w

Reviewed by George Mayberry
New Repub 110:416 Mr 27 '44 150w

"Mr. Donath's genius for understatement, which often causes the reader to wonder exactly what has happened, and to whom, leaves one in the end completely bewildered. . . I suspect that the author has carried reticence to these lengths in order to spare himself the embarrassment of setting down a happy ending, and if so, it is a device which I hope will not be copied widely. It leaves the reader with all the embarrassment and none of the fun." Marjorie Farber
N Y Times p5 Mr 12 '44 700w

"Well done in a tough, brittle style that is a sign of the reverence in which our Mr. Hemingway is held by young Central European writers."
New Yorker 20:94 Mr 18 '44 110w

"Mr. Donath tells much of [his story] well enough to make one regret that he does not tell all of it better. He is good at incident, good on occasion at getting past a given point with a minimum of effort, although at other times he bogs down; and, having seen and heard and touched and smelled his world with lively senses, he knows how to put sensations into words. But his parts are better than the whole, and, in the kind of novel in which pace matters tremendously, his pace is uneven." B. R. Redman

+ — Sat R of Lit 27:26 Mr 18 '44 550w

Reviewed by Virgilia Sapieha
Weekly Book Review p6 Mr 19 '44 700w

"Another superbly well written novel about the world conflict. . . Mr. Donath writes with grim power and a personal style of impressive authority. But his book is loosely constructed, sometimes bewilderingly motivated, and disappointing in its message, which seems to be only that personal revenge is futile, that this is indeed a world war." Orville Prescott
+ — Yale R n s 33:viii spring '44 200w

DONER, MARY FRANCES (MRS C. L. PAYZANT). O distant star! 301p $2.50 Doubleday 44-2190

This is the story of Delia Clune, a little Irish seamstress, working for the brides of Boston's first families in the 1860s. Delia's ambitions to climb into a higher class might have been realized except for an undelivered letter. Disappointed, Delia married one of her own class, went with him to Michigan and eventually realized that it was better so.

Reviewed by Jack Conroy
Book Week p7 F 20 '44 90w

Booklist 40:270 Ap 1 '44

"Since Miss Doner has written some eight other novels, there must be those who enjoy manipulated melodrama with an excess of dialogue." E. V. R. Wyatt
— Commonweal 39:499 Mr 3 '44 210w

Kirkus 12:2 Ja 1 '44 160w

"In spite of the earnestness of the author and her carefully documented background, both her character drawing and her story pattern seem as dated as the time in which they are placed. Delia emerges as the strongest and most human character—and the last half of the book as the most believable. The author has tried to build this story with the sticks and stones of reality, but it takes only a little mental huffing and puffing to blow her make-believe house down." Andrea Parke
— + N Y Times p19 F 20 '44 380w

"The strength of the book is a warm and understanding portrait of Delia. So relentlessly is the attention focussed on her that most of the other characters are seen through her eyes; and since she has a pattern-making mind she seems often to be moving among patterns, social and human. But Delia herself is not a pattern. She is fully drawn and real, and carries her readers' sympathies in her adventures among the patterns. Delia is a woman's heroine, and Mrs. Reader may like the book better than her husband will." Wilbur Schramm
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:27 Ap 8 '44 430w

"It isn't the story itself that matters so much, though that is absorbing enough. It's Miss Doner's way with her people that makes good reading. They are as real as your own neighbors, and have many of their characteristics." Edrie Van Dore
+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 20 '44 450w

"Mary Frances Doner has not left much out of her book. It is teeming with Boston blue bloods, attempted elopements, the gentry, the honest working class, marriages of convenience, homespun philosophy and bosom friends. As such 'O Distant Star!' will appeal to those who are seeking escape from the year 1944 and its problems. This reviewer hopes that in her next work Miss Doner will dig deeper into the lives and folklore of the people of the Michigan shore, whom she loves and knows well, and be less concerned with spinning out a thin romance." D. D. Lynn
Weekly Book Review p6 F 13 '44 480w
Wis Lib Bul 40:55 Ap '44

DONOHUE, JAMES JOHN. Theory of literary kinds [v. 1] Ancient classifications of literature. 155p $2 Loras college press, box 178, Dubuque, Iowa
801 Literature—History and criticism
(43-14473)

A portion of a treatise in literary criticism and history. Designed to be in four parts, this first volume "expounds the general systems of classification and division discoverable among the ancients." (Pref)

"The subject is certainly of great interest for the history of literary criticism, and the author has assembled from several sources a certain amount of pertinent material. Unfortunately, his treatment of the material can not be called satisfactory." P. O. K.
— + J Philos 41:446 Ag 3 '44 420w

"Since this work represents only a fractional part of the opus, no attempt can be made at this time to evaluate it either from the viewpoint of the treatment of the subject or as a contribution to the literature of classification. Those concerned about the latter subject, however, will be interested in following the subject as it is completed." F. A. Mullin
Library Q 14:271 Jl '44 330w

DOOLITTLE, HILDA (H. D.). The walls do not fall. 48p $2 (3s 6d) Oxford 811 44-7016

"Of all the 'Imagist' poets of twenty years ago 'H. D.' was perhaps the most original. She is still true to that creed in her new volume and still practises a classical simplicity of statement in short unrhyming lines." Manchester Guardian

---

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset
Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 26 '44 180w

" 'The Walls Do Not Fall' is a surprisingly good little book, the work of a poet with authentic, if limited, sensibility who has risen, if not to the vitality of some of the poets of the forties, at least to their awareness and sense of responsibility." Oscar Williams
+ — New Repub 111:534 O 23 '44 100w

"H.D.'s new book, based on Egyptian symbolism and concerned with bombed London, shows tenser feeling, writing of more energy, and thought of a larger sweep than has been usual in her poetry for many years." Louise Bogan
+ New Yorker 20:94 O 21 '44 70w

"The poet's effort was evidently to fuse the significance of Egyptian, Hebraic, Greek and Christian religious thought, not unmixed with the findings of the psychopathologists, so as to assert, in the face of the terrors and horrors of civilian warfare, the eternal realities. But, perhaps because her hand, for want of practice, has lost its cunning, perhaps because her theme is too large for such narrow compass, these verses are sadly lacking. . . Yet if she disappoints us, she shows herself still capable of memorable writing." Babette Deutsch
— + Weekly Book Review p18 O 1 '44 850w

DOPPELT, FREDERIC AUBREY. Dialogue with God. 230p $2 Dorrance 264.1 Prayer 44-747

"Studies in the meaning and methods of prayer, by a scholarly rabbi, with a foreword by Rabbi Solomon Freehof. Though Jewish in background, these chapters deal with concepts equally consonant with Christian thought." Christian Century

---

Christian Century 61:148 F 2 '44 30w

"This thoughtful consideration of the problem covers practically all the questions that commonly arise, why do we pray, are prayers answered, why do prayers fail, why pray in public, why use a prayer-book, and so on."
+ Churchman 158:17 Mr 15 '44 100w

DORE, GUSTAVE, il. See Munchausen. Adventures of Baron Munchausen

DOS PASSOS, JOHN RODERIGO. State of the nation; il. by F. Strobel. 333p $3 Houghton

917.3 U.S.—Description and travel. U.S.—Social conditions. World war, 1939—U.S. 44-6169

"Concerning America in wartime, these articles touch each section of our country and every type of war activity from 'Yankee Mechanics,' 'Gold Rush Down South,' to 'Pacific Waterfront.' The author has investigated labor-management relationships, in particular, recording his impressions in terse, descriptive prose. The book reports actual conditions, is filled with direct quotations of persons interviewed and does not seem to be a vehicle for the expression of any political views of the writer." Library J

Reviewed by Wendell Johnson
Book Week p3 Jl 30 '44 650w

Booklist 41:18 S '44

Boston Globe p15 Jl 26 '44 280w

"The account of his investigation is written in the informal and often confusing style that he uses in his fiction. Places and persons are seldom named though often identifiable. Conversations are almost haphazard. Yet there is a general line of thought, which is brought out by implication. You gather from recurrent questions that the author sees most hope in labor-management committees in industrial plants, and in co-operatives. The author's stylistic mannerisms tend to obscure his meaning and to distract the reader." L. A. S.
— + Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 29 '44 250w

"After reading this impressionistic but informative book, it is difficult to imagine a reporter who approaches our national scene with greater seriousness."
+ Commonweal 40:449 Ag 25 '44 490w

"I found this provocative and stimulating reading."
+ Kirkus 12:227 My 15 '44 300w

"An important book at the moment which libraries will want to make available to patrons." E. P. Nichols
+ Library J 69:601 Jl '44 90w

"Mr. Dos Passos has done primarily a reporting job—and it is good reading in spite of those funny words of his and the slight monotony of his sensory style after its first freshness wears off." Margaret Marshall
+ — Nation 159:131 Jl 29 '44 700w

"John Dos Passos has been out around the country—from Maine to Seattle, from San Francisco to Mobile. The magazine articles he wrote about his tour have been put into a book that is possibly his best since 'The Big Money.' Always a better historian and reporter than novelist, it is perhaps well that he has seen fit to record his observations of America at war in a series of evocative impressionistic articles rather than in fiction." George Mayberry
+ New Repub 111:108 Jl 24 '44 650w

"It is evident that Mr. Dos Passos has been around, and to good purpose. He has educated himself and the results will show in everything he writes from now on. The reader will be educated a little, too. But this reviewer steps out into the street after viewing the Dos Passos motion picture and is somewhat at a loss to say, in one choice sentence, just what the plot was all about." R. L. Duffus
N Y Times p3 Jl 23 '44 1050w

Reviewed by Edmund Wilson
New Yorker 20:57 Jl 29 '44 1600w

"There's no summarizing in the book, no clear-cut conclusion. The author presents his picture and lets it stand. This is the America he found—in 1943. One wishes he had been a little less ironic in some of his reports, and less impersonal in his overall observations. And one wishes on almost every page that he would use punctuation, that he would straighten out his sentences, that he would quit jamming words together at random. Some of his sentences are so jumbled as to be grotesque, and some of his word-combinations are silly." Hal Borland
Sat R of Lit 27:9 S 2 '44 1100w

Reviewed by G. L. Joughin
Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 20 '44 600w

"The greatest lack in this friendly book, refreshing as a visit home, is that nowhere does John Dos Passos, as a vigorously objective reporter, give voice to the emotions that his observations, and the people he observes, inspire. State of the Nation is the best report on the wartime U.S. that any writer has given, but good as it is, the raw material of the life that it condenses is still better."
+ — Time 44:91 Jl 31 '44 1250w

"To put it briefly, Mr. Dos Passos's researches reveal that the state of the nation is what old-fashioned Southerners call 'tol'able.' This will disgust, perhaps, both the starry-eyed and the jaundiced-eyed; the former will be disappointed because he didn't find everything lovely, the latter indignant because he will not admit that everything is lousy. But the clear-eyed will find the report just about what they expected. . . Best of all, when he is through, he quits without appending any moral, any speculation, or any prophecy. This makes it a good book, indeed a very good book." G. W. Johnson
+ Weekly Book Review p3 Jl 23 '44 1350w

Wis Lib Bul 40:125 O '44

Reviewed by R. H. Gabriel
Yale R ns 34:350 winter '45 650w

DOUGLAS, ROBERT LANGTON. Leonardo da Vinci; his life and his pictures. 127p pl $4 Univ. of Chicago press

B or 92 Leonardo da Vinci A44-4505

Study of the life and work of Leonardo da Vinci. It is the author's belief that "Leonardo, whilst he was one of the greatest of men, was not one of the greatest of painters." After a short biographical section the author studies the collection of manuscripts, drawings, and cartoons that Leonardo left to his friend and pupil, Melzi. Next he studies the art criticism of the last seventy years and the effect on our knowledge of Leonardo's works. Finally there is an account of the artist's paintings in their chronological order and a statement of the author's own opinions about them. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 41:151 Ja 15 '45

"The value of this book is that we have another careful judgment to add to our understanding of Leonardo's activity. Its defect for the general reader is that such a book tends to become in places an argument with other art historians rather than a book about Leonardo; and Mr. Douglas carries on a lively one man war against the Morellian school of critics. But his opinions are those of a critic qualified by a very long life devoted to the study of Italian art and one must be glad that he has put down the fruit of his long studies for our benefit." E. P. Richardson
+ Commonweal 41:233 D 15 '44 750w

"In the course of his investigations the author manages to say more sensible things about Leonardo and his art than I have yet seen elsewhere. To be sensible about Leonardo is to debunk him a bit. Universal genius he was—but also inconstant, easily bored, careless, and lacking in tenacity and thoroughness: a master of promises, not of fulfilment." C. G.
+ Nation 159:696 D 2 '44 180w

DOWNES, EDWARD. Adventures in symphonic music; decorations by John O'Hara Cosgrave II. 323p il $2.50 Farrar

785.11 Music—Analysis, interpretation, appreciation. Symphonies 44-4004

"Intended for the lay music lover, this guide to the listener provides an informal analysis of over 200 frequently-heard compositions interspersed with anecdotes about the composers' lives and the development of the symphonic form. . . Music and the dance; music and politics; nature in music; symbolism in music are some of the headings under which the symphonies are grouped. For the convenience of those who have record libraries the discussions cover compositions available on discs." Library J

Booklist 40:353 Je 15 '44

Bookmark 5:9 My '44

"At times it seems too highbrow for teen age readers, but it has gone over well on Columbia's Symphonic Hour, where used. Much of it is new however, and it should be a fine addition to music library shelves."
+ Kirkus 12:120 Mr 1 '44 90w

"Edward Downes' style is spritely and gay, yet conveys a respect for the sound knowledge of this gifted young musicologist. . . Recommended for public and college libraries." H. R. Forbes
+ Library J 69:459 My 15 '44 110w

"Here is a book that is a lot of fun and which will appeal to music lovers young and old. For though it is intended for young people it also addresses itself to adults who are having their adventures in symphonic music." Maria Cimino
+ Sat R of Lit 27:27 Ag 19 '44 270w

Wis Lib Bul 40:107 Jl '44

DOWNEY, FAIRFAX DAVIS. Jezebel the jeep; il. by Paul Brown. 150p $2 Dodd

44-4717

This is the story of the adventures of a jeep—a quite unusual jeep in the eyes of her youthful driver. Because of a tragedy in Johnny's love affairs the jeep's name was changed and as Jezebel, the painted one, she carried Johnny and his Captain thru a series of adventures until both she and Johnny were badly wounded in Sicily and sent back home.

"There may be other yarns about jeeps in the offing, but this is the first I've seen and I thought it was fun."
+ Kirkus 12:233 My 15 '44 60w

Reviewed by Margaret Miller
Library J 69:608 Jl '44 140w

Reviewed by P. D. Edie
Library J 69:868 O 15 '44 30w

"A realistic and amusing story."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:38 My 13 '44 70w

"Fairfax Downey's latest war story for boys makes admirable fooling, and the war background is the real thing, even if the emotions—and the girls—of T-5 Jonathan W. Johansen, field artillery, do get artistically tangled." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 My 28 '44 350w

DOWNING, JOHN HYATT. Harvest is late. 309p $2.50 Morrow

44-738

This is the story of Peter Oliver, a small-town banker, who yearned for the farm life he had left behind him when his shallow, discontented wife had persuaded him to move into town. During the reconstruction years after the First World war, Peter's business is hard hit, the bank finally fails and Peter, after some bitter experiences returns to the farm.

Booklist 40:253 Mr 15 '44

"Mr. Downing is obviously familiar with the people and country of which he writes. . . The philosophic burden of the book is not new and is perhaps best summed up in the hero's own words: 'I think the farther people get away from simplicity the less content they are.' " E. S. Holsaert
N Y Times p10 F 6 '44 280w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 30 '44 330w

"Peter's return to his Sundown acres as master of them through a co-operative scheme worked out by his farmer neighbors, humanly speaking is rather unconvincing. . . In spite of this tendency to romance, a close-woven account of life in a South Dakota small town and on the land itself emerges clearly in the pages of 'The Harvest Is Late.' " F. H. Bullock
+ — Weekly Book Review p8 Ja 30 '44 600w

Wis Lib Bul 40:37 Mr '44

DOYLE, SIR ARTHUR CONAN. Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson; a textbook of friendship; ed. by Christopher Morley. 366p $2.50; text ed $1.20 Harcourt

44-3528

Includes reprints of A Study in Scarlet, and The Sign of the Four, and three short Sherlock Holmes stories, with introduction and notes by Christopher Morley.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p4 Ap 9 '44 110w

Booklist 40:304 My 1 '44

" 'Vintage delight' for connoisseurs and/or novices."
+ Kirkus 12:154 Ap 1 '44 80w

"Although the collection is intended primarily as a text for school use, it cannot fail to arouse wide interest among adult devotees. To reread the old stories with benefit of Mr. Morley's richly experienced commentaries is to discover fresh delights." Howard Haycraft
+ N Y Times p15 Ap 2 '44 300w

New Yorker 20:92 Ap 8 '44 90w

"Good to have around, not only for deathless yarns but also for illuminating and amusing notes, foreword, and excellent appendix. For students, especially."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:26 Ap 1 '44 50w

School & Society 59:256 Ap 8 '44 30w

"There is a guide to the Complete Works, a discerning introduction, and footnotes that give the book present piquancy and years of future usefulness. Addressed nominally to first readers of these adventures—though the addict will savor them even more—they see to it that no word be lost to him because it has lost, or changed, its meaning since the '90s. Readers over thirty may be shaken by some of those that must be explained to an oncoming generation." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ap 9 '44 600w

Wis Lib Bul 40:85 Je '44

DOYLE, FREDRIC CLYDE. Smoky ridge; lithographs by Theresa Kalab. 128p $2.25 Longmans

591.5 Animals, Habits and behavior of

44-4501

Ten short stories about wild animal life on the slopes of the Appalachian range. There are stories of mink, skunks, foxes, falcons, and even a spider. No humans enter into this description of animals in their struggle for existence.

Booklist 40:359 Je 15 '44

Reviewed by H. L. Binsse
Commonweal 41:128 N 17 '44 20w

"[Animal] life and habitat are vividly described, with a sense of beauty and with the sure touch of a keen observer of wild creatures in their free state. The animals are not personalized, although each tale has a leading figure, in whom one's interest is enlisted." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 20:206 My '44 80w

Kirkus 12:99 F 15 '44 90w

"Written in beautiful and poetic language. . . Charmingly and beautifully illustrated by Theresa Kalab. Recommended for twelve- to sixteen-year-olds." S. J. Robinson
+ Library J 69:505 Je 1 '44 120w

"Because he avoids sentimentality and because he is thoroughly familiar with animal ways, Fredric Doyle makes the reader feel that he is witnessing not the incidents of one creature's existence, but the life cycle of the whole species through the ages. Theresa Kalab's illustrations are the strongest and most effective she has made." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p20 Ag 6 '44 120w

School & Society 60:240 O 7 '44 30w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p5 Je 25 '44 300w

Wis Lib Bul 40:132 O '44

DRAGO, HARRY SINCLAIR (WILL ERMINE, BLISS LOMAX, pseuds). Busted range. 220p $2 Morrow 44-338

Western story.

Booklist 40:253 Mr 15 '44

"Up to standard and plenty of action." B. I.
Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 30 '44 170w

DRANEY, JOHN. Diesel locomotives, electrical equipment; a practical treatise on the operation and maintenance of railway Diesel locomotives. 388p il $3.75 Am. tech. soc.

621.436 Diesel engines 44-457

"A companion volume to the author's Diesel locomotives: mechanical equipment. Four preliminary chapters treat general electrical principles; the remainder of the book deals specifically with the operation and maintenance of electrical equipment of various makes of Diesel locomotives." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 40:264 Ap 1 '44
Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '44
Library J 69:118 F 1 '44 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:64 O '43

DRANEY, JOHN. Diesel locomotives, mechanical equipment; a practical treatise on the operation and maintenance of railway Diesel locomotives. 472p il $4 Am. tech. soc.

621.436 Diesel engines 43-17072

"About three-fourths of the book deals with the principles, mechanical features, operation and maintenance of Diesel engines, particularly Diesel engines for railway use. The other fourth describes and gives operating information for specific makes and types of Diesel locomotives." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 40:264 Ap 1 '44
Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '44
Library J 69:32 Ja 1 '44 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:64 O '43

DRAPER, THEODORE. Six weeks' war; France, May 10-June 25, 1940. 346p maps $3 Viking

940.542 World war, 1939—France 44-5081

A military and political history of the forty-six days, from May 10 to June 25, 1940, during which the fall of France occurred. The author, now in the United States army, was for ten years a writer on European affairs. Index.

"In readable style this book presents a logical and credible explanation for the defeat of France. Naturally, the author has had to rely principally on secondary accounts. Unfortunately, all the citations are gathered together at the end of the volume, to the no small inconvenience of the inquisitive reader." A. P. Watts
+ — Ann Am Acad 236:183 N '44 450w

"One of the really great interpretive and analytical volumes to emerge from this war." Ernest von Hartz
+ Book Week p3 Jl 2 '44 650w
Booklist 40:386 Jl 15 '44

"An arresting and detailed account of the political and military collapse of France which will explain much to those who have not been fully informed, and will make interesting reading for those with a more comprehensive knowledge." F. L. O.
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Je 14 '44 550w
Current Hist 7:134 Ag '44 70w

"Though the events of which he writes seem to have happened only yesterday, Mr. Draper has been remarkably successful in synthesizing all available information about the fall of France into a comprehensible and credible narrative. This is one of the better books of the year."
+ Foreign Affairs 23:7 O '44 50w

"A thoughtful and provocative book, but not for the man in the street."
+ Kirkus 12:191 Ap 15 '44 190w

"Recommended for public and college libraries." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 69:553 Je 15 '44 130w
New Repub 110:826 Je 19 '44 180w

"Mr. Draper's book will be useful for many years to come. It deserves a wide audience." H. A. De Weerd
+ N Y Times p3 Je 11 '44 1250w

"The author, who seems to be an astute student of military strategy, has done an excellent job of assembling many scattered bits of information, largely gleaned from both French and German versions of the story, and his book, while not the definitive work on the subject, will most likely do until the end of the war makes possible a more thoroughly documented study."
+ New Yorker 20:78 Je 10 '44 90w

"[An] important and interesting book, the first with a really detailed analysis of commanders and their ideas as well as of the mechanical movements of the war, and certainly the most readable book yet produced on the subject." Fletcher Pratt
+ Sat R of Lit 27:12 Je 10 '44 1000w

Reviewed by L. B. Kromer
Springf'd Republican p4d Jl 23 '44 850w

"A thoughtful reading of Mr. Draper's excellent account of the earlier battle will be of much value as we face the new one. It will show wherein lie the dangers against which the Allied armies, publics and political leaders must guard; it will show likewise wherein lie the possibilities of Allied success and perhaps, the way in which military failure can sow defeat and disintegration within the German political structure, as they were once sown within that of the French Republic." Walter Millis
+ Weekly Book Review p2 Je 11 '44 1500w

DREHER, EMIL. Chemistry of synthetic substances [tr. by Marion Lee Taylor]. 103p $3 Philosophical lib.

668 Synthetic products. Chemistry, Organic —Synthesis 44-3934

"A brief survey of some phenomena of macromolecular chemistry. Chapter titles include: Survey of relations of synthetic high molecular compounds to drying oils; Principles of the processes of polymerisation; The influence of substituents on the capacity for polymerisation of low molecular compounds. Appeared as articles in German chemical periodicals in 1937 and 1938; published in book form in Germany in 1939." N Y New Tech Bks

"This little book is supposed to give preliminary and introductory information of a highly important and actual field of organic chemistry and therefore to fulfill a very important and attractive task. However, it does not do it adequately. Besides the fact that the presentation is not sufficiently organized, there are two major drawbacks: The author seems to have practically no knowledge of non-German literature. . . Although edited in 1943, the booklet is not up to date. Most of the footnotes refer to old papers; only 5 or 6 refer to papers of 1938, none to any article since." Herman Mark
Chem & Eng N 22:547 Ap 10 '44 320w

Reviewed by C. L. Mantell
Chem & Met Eng 51:185 Je '44 180w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:5 Ja '44

DREPPERD, CARL WILLIAM. Primer of American antiques. 271p il $3 Doubleday

749 Antiques 44-47667

"First low-priced, fully illustrated handbook of antiques, with illustrations accompanying the text, 1200 line drawings and 2200-item glossary." Boston Globe

Booklist 41:120 D 15 '44
Boston Globe p31 N 29 '44 20w
Christian Science Monitor p13 D 30 '44 400w

"Not a book that will insure the amateur collector from mistakes, but that will help identification, etc. Excellent bibliography."
+ Kirkus 12:391 S 1 '44 170w

"A simple and accurate guide or primer of American antiques is badly needed. It would be nice to say that the author has succeeded in this instance, but it simply isn't so. It is a book that shows deep enthusiasm, careful and laborious assembling of other people's research or guesswork, and a monumental misconception of what beginners would like to know. The text is far superior to the lavish illustrational material. . . Yet the book is probably the best of its kind to appear." W. G. Dooley
+ — N Y Times p9 D 24 '44 440w

"The glossary and index in Mr Drepperd's book is in itself a reference book of value in anyone's library. The material content of the book is grouped in such a way that the novice will find identification easy. Each article is concisely described and illustrated on the same page." F. T. Howe
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ja 7 '45 470w

"It would be hard to find a book that does more for a complete beginner in its field. Mr. Drepperd compresses his information on any single item to a single mention in the least possible space, but he mentions so many items, arranges them so sensibly and illustrates them so copiously that the new owner of the house that calls for old American furniture, the would-be collector along any line of decorations or trinkets . . . can get an idea of what there is."
+ Weekly Book Review p9 D 24 '44 180w

DRESSER, DAVIS (DON DAVIS, BRETT HALLIDAY, pseuds). Michael Shayne's long chance. 218p $2 Dodd 44-1893

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p11 F 27 '44 90w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 Mr 5 '44 80w

"Plenty tough."
Sat R of Lit 27:30 F 12 '44 40w

"This has staring, bibulous characters and views of the seamier side. An untidy affair, not for the fussy." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p12 F 13 '44 120w

DRESSER, DAVIS (DON DAVIS, BRETT HALLIDAY, pseuds). Murder and the married virgin. 179p $2 Dodd 44-47312

Detective story.

"Mystifying."
Boston Globe p15 O 25 '44 30w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p18 N 5 '44 90w

"Hard-boiled and mystifying."
Sat R of Lit 27:46 O 14 '44 50w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 O 29 '44 80w

DREW, CHARLES EDWARD. How to pass radio license examinations. 2d ed 320p $3 Wiley
621.384 Radio 44-4236

"Questions and answers on radio laws, basic radio theory, commercial radiotelephone, and radiotelegraph. This revision of the 1938 edition contains new material on modulation, oscillators, classes of amplifiers, and rectifier power supplies." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:305 Ap 1 '44 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:31 Ap '44

DRISCOLL, JOSEPH. Pacific victory, 1945. 297p $3 Lippincott
940.542 World war, 1939—Pacific ocean
44-6877

A Herald Tribune correspondent, who was with the Pacific fleet for a year, here records his experiences and observations. He discusses personalities from General MacArthur and Admirals Nimitz and Halsey, to the enlisted men in all branches of the service. Includes anecdotes and some doggerel familiar to campaigners in the Pacific.

Booklist 41:39 O 1 '44
Christian Science Monitor p14 S 29 '44 70w

"The style is informal, giving a rather disconnected array of small pictures and incidents, not particularly well written, but entertaining and optimistic." Roy Hillbrook
+ Current Hist 7:322 O '44 150w
Kirkus 12:270 Je 15 '44 130w

"It is very readable and will be in demand because many men are mentioned by name and the stories of many ships are given in detail." Katharine Shorey
+ Library J 69:648 Ag '44 90w

"At its best Mr Driscoll's anecdotal method is vivid and effective. His portrait of Gen MacArthur, although it would be outside the scope of a severely restricted naval history is close to a masterpiece in the art of verbal miniature." R. H.
+ — Springf'd Republican p4d O 8 '44 300w

"Admiration and respect for our fighting forces, complete lack of reverence for brass hats and a pervading sense of humor are the principal ingredients of Joseph Driscoll's account." P. J. Searles
+ Weekly Book Review p1 S 3 '44 1050w

DUBKIN, LEONARD. Murmur of wings; il. by Susanne Suba. (Whittlesey house publication) 167p $2.50 McGraw 598.2 Birds 44-51375

"An unusual story of the influence of the birds in a large city on the life of Leonard Dubkin. It is the strange and touching story of how this interest has tempered the course of his living—how it absorbed his leisure and alleviated his despair through many long, lean years in the city, until it became so vital as to be a dominating factor in his life." Boston Globe

"One of the most engaging and sagacious 'wild life' studies to appear in a long time." Jack Conroy
+ Book Week p5 Ja 7 '45 470w

"Written with some humor, some pathos, and always sincerity and sensitivity."
+ Boston Globe p30 N 29 '44 70w

"[This is a] delightful, a gentle human story casually sprinkled with humor, making no demands on the reader, yet somehow absorbing." G. C. Bartter
+ Boston Globe p15 D 20 '44 650w

"Insubstantial but nice."
Kirkus 12:336 Ag 1 '44 120w

"Many of the anecdotes belie his hard-boiled approach. May stimulate bird study in cities. Writing only fair, appeal limited, probably most popular in Chicago area. Recommended for adults and young people." Elizabeth Schmidt
+ — Library J 69:1006 N 15 '44 70w

"'The Murmur of Wings' is entirely unlike the general run of bird books. It is written in whimsical vein, with a lot of the personal life of the author thrown in, some of which seems to have little to do with birds. . . No other writer on birds has undertaken anything just like it, so it is refreshing. It is a thin volume of sketches that will interest bird lovers." C. H. Chesley
+ Springf'd Republican p4d D 24 '44 160w

DU BOIS, CORA ALICE. People of Alor; a social-psychological study of an East Indian island; with analyses by Abram Kardiner and Emil Oberholzer. 654p il maps $7.50 Univ. of Minn.
572.9991 Ethnology—Alor (island). Society, Primitive A44-2386

"A detailed scientific study of life on a smaller island in the Netherlands East Indies." Foreign Affairs

DU BOIS, C. A.—Continued

"The impressive volume that is the result of Dr. Du Bois' research stands as a major contribution both to anthropological and to psychological literature. The author is an ethnographer of the highest technical capacity." M. J. Herskovits

+ Ann Am Acad 237:248 Ja '45 800w

Foreign Affairs 23:17 O '44 20w

"In the comparison of Alorese reactions to those of Europeans submitted to similar tests lies the real theme of the book—the sympathetic and deeper understanding of alien cultures and the desire to find out what the races of mankind have in common." Colin McPhee

+ N Y Times p20 S 17 '44 650w

"The People of Alor is rich in ethnological materials. But even more than its specific results, the general plan of the study is a contribution to ethnology." Fletcher McCord

+ Social Forces 23:226 D '44 750w

DU BOIS, MRS THEODORA (MCCORMICK). Case of the perfumed mouse. 186p $2 Doubleday 44-6792

Detective story.

Booklist 41:90 N 15 '44

"Best of the week."

+ Boston Globe p17 S 13 '44 60w

Kirkus 12:288 Jl 1 '44 60w

"The developments at the Ivory Tower are both mysterious and terrifying. How the McNeills get to the bottom of what has been going on makes a fascinating story." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p18 Ag 20 '44 120w

"Well and briskly written, but overburdened at times with clues."

+ — New Yorker 20:84 S 16 '44 110w

Springf'd Republican p4d S 24 '44 70w

"A pleasant puzzle on the loony side, though it is written soberly enough and with grace." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p12 Ag 20 '44 150w

DUDEN pictorial encyclopedia; in five languages: English, French, German, Italian, Spanish; containing 30,000 words explained in pictures. [2588p] il $20 c1943 Stechert; Ungar

413 Dictionaries, Polyglot 44-3223

"According to the title page this volume is published and distributed in the public interest by authority of the Alien Property Custodian. It was originally copyrighted in 1935, 1937 and 1940 by Bibliographisches Institut in Leipzig. With the exception of Plate 229, some minor excisions in the text and indices, and an enlarged format, this volume is a photographic reprint of the German edition, originally issued in five octavo volumes. The term encyclopedia in the title is in a sense a misnomer. Actually it is a collection of 348 plates illustrating with line drawings familiar objects, each plate accompanied by vocabularies in English, French, German, Italian and Spanish. The plates are grouped in broad divisions as follows: 1-45, man, family, home; 46-127, trades and vocations; 128-55, leisure time; 156-83, learning, research, creative art; 184-98, beliefs; 199-232, the state; 233-48, the community; 249-82, trade and transport; 283-89, the past; 290-311, countries and peoples; 312-38, animal and plant; 339-48, the earth and universe." Subscription Bks Bul

"In general, emphasis in the English vocabulary is on British rather than American usage. The American gas or filling station is identified as 'the filling petrol station.' No entry is found in the index for mailbox but under pillarbox several references are given. . . Less useful are the ponderous translations from the German. The Automat is identified as 'the automatic serve yourself restaurant' or 'the snack bar with slot machines.' . . The numbering of plates on the inside margin is a serious drawback to the use of the text. . . For the student of languages, the bulk of the volume is a serious handicap. Had it been published in five volumes, each available separately, and consisting of plates, vocabulary and index, the result would be appealing to both instructor and student. . . Libraries having special business and technical departments or serving foreign language groups may wish to examine a copy on approval with a view to purchase. A volume that might well be useful as a handbook for circulation to beginners, if issued in a handy format, cannot be recommended for general library use for the reasons stated above."

— Subscription Bks Bul 15:28 Jl '44 700w

Weekly Book Review p10 Jl 2 '44 230w

DUFF, ANNIS. Bequest of wings; a family's pleasures with books. 204p $2 Viking

028.5 Children's literature. Books and reading. Education of children 44-40065

The author, who was formerly a librarian and a bookseller, describes the adventures in reading which she and her husband have shared with their two growing children. Books and their tie-up with life are presented in a human fashion, providing suggestions for other parents. The appendix contains a list of recommended books and phonograph records.

" 'Bequest of Wings,' should not be missed by the mother who wants to open for her children the world of ideas, poetry, music, painting, dancing—all the arts which in turn are part of living." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p4 Ap 30 '44 400w

Booklist 40:277 Ap 15 '44

Bookmark 5:3 Ag '44

"Those fortunate parents who have the time, the means, and the will to give their children the superlative gift of a rich experiential background will find Mrs. Duff's book most helpful." B. J. Thompson

+ Cath World 159:375 Jl '44 90w

"It is a book perhaps intended first of all for parents or teachers, but all who care for books and children are recommended to sample its pages. . . Mrs. Duff writes with warmth and humour." F. C. Darling

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 13 '44 200w

"The practical usefulness of this wise and understanding book is increased by a check list of the books mentioned." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 20:213 My '44 100w

Kirkus 12:120 Mr 1 '44 100w

"Mrs. Duff writes with understanding and clarity of parents and children enjoying a growing life together through literature. It is a practical yet charming book which should be read again and again by all who have an interest in the development of a child's mind. At the end of each chapter, a splendid list of children's books is suggested for the child's further discovery." E. S. Littlefield

+ Library J 68:817 O 15 '43 70w

Reviewed by Claire Nolte

Library J 69:465 My 15 '44 90w

Reviewed by P. D. Edie

Library J 69:869 O 15 '44 70w

" 'Bequest of Wings' should be twice welcome to children's librarians. It can be passed along to parents, teachers, and any other adults responsible for directing children's reading, particularly that of individual children. And it can be studied with profit by the librarians themselves for the fine, clear light it throws on the difficult business of making contact between the book and the apathetic reader." H. L. Butler

+ Library Q 15:85 Ja '45 900w

"Mrs. Duff's book has grown—so evidently, and so charmingly—out of her own life that the reader feels he is privileged to share in a rare experience. This is a practical book and an encouraging one." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p7 Ap 16 '44 360w

Wis Lib Bul 40:82 Je '44

DUFFUS, ROBERT LUTHER. Innocents at Cedro; a memoir of Thorstein Veblen and some others. 163p $2 Macmillan

B or 92 Veblen, Thorstein Bunde 44-1120

For one year while he was a student at Stanford university, the author, his brother, and, for a time, his father, lived with Thorstein Veblen in his cottage, called Cedro, not far from the college campus. This fragment of an autobiography describes that idyllic year and explains by implication the effects upon his thinking of the association with Veblen.

Am Soc R 9:716 D '44 80w

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p2 Ja 30 '44 270w

Booklist 40:234 Mr 1 '44

"It is a book to read with delight. Without casting doubt upon the historicity of any statement in it that professes to be factual, one can say that it has the charm and value of that kind of good fiction in which plot is nothing and characters, ideas and style are everything."
+ Christian Century 61:276 Mr 1 '44 130w

Commonweal 39:450 F 18 '44 750w

"Duffus' first and reluctant venture into autobiography held—for me—far greater quality than anything else he has written. There's an engaging humor, delicacy and charm to these memoirs. . . Limited in interest, I suppose, but nostalgically, sensitively recalled."
+ Kirkus 11:564 D 15 '43 180w

Reviewed by M. C. Manley
Library J 69:70 Ja 15 '44 100w

Reviewed by S. F. Bloom
Nation 159:76 Jl 15 '44 420w

New Repub 110:222 F 14 '44 260w

"Mr. Duffus has chosen the right approach to autobiography. In selecting what I imagine was the most important year of his life, he has written about it with a humorous reflectiveness that I find quite delightful. Any ordinary person would become interesting if he could write of his life in such a manner. Unfortunately it demands a perception that few of us have. We must be glad, even if we envy him, that Mr. Duffus has shown us how it should be done." D. C. Russell
+ N Y Times p3 Ja 30 '44 1050w

"The book is not as deep as a very deep well and is not intended to be, but it is quite as refreshing as a spring, clear and bubbly. It is a fine study of a cynical philosopher and his reasonably adulating disciples." Phil Stong
+ Sat R of Lit 27:11 F 12 '44 700w

"It is a completely charming book, humorous, thoughtful and wise, in many ways a spiritual partner of the delightful, rambling books of the great Hans Zinsser, and in others, particularly in the many good-humored footnotes, definitely in the tradition of Will Cuppy, eminent naturalist. It is so much of a pleasure to read, it must have been a pleasure to write." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 6 '44 700w

"Graceful, charming, nostalgic memoir."
+ Time 43:99 Ja 31 '44 750w

"Like Faust, Mr. Duffus seems to have said to the moment, 'Stay, for thou art so beautiful,' and for him it stayed, and here it is between the covers of this book, a fragment of autobiography and a miniature masterpiece in the literature of memory."
+ Weekly Book Review p4 F 13 '44 1050w

Wis Lib Bul 40:84 Je '44

DUFFUS, ROBERT LUTHER. The valley and its people; a portrait of TVA; il. by the Graphics department of the Tennessee valley authority; Charles Krutch, chief. 167p $2.75 Knopf

627.1 Tennessee Valley authority 44-9211

Illustrated history of the T.V.A., its purposes, construction, effect on flood control, and a description of the people who did the construction work, and benefited by the finished product. Index.

Reviewed by C. H. Pritchett
Book Week p3 N 19 '44 360w

Booklist 41:86 N 15 '44

Eng N 133:112 D 14 '44 80w

Kirkus 12:489 N 1 '44 100w

"A decorative map is helpful, but an accurate map emphasizing physical features would have been a welcome addition. Recommended for school and public libraries." J. L. Ross
+ Library J 69:935 N 1 '44 70w

"Beautiful book and delightful story in prose poetry of the land laid waste by exploitation, its transformation and improvement in the life of the people. Excellent photographs."
+ Library J 70:33 Ja 1 '45 60w

"A good picture book of the TVA. . . The most photogenic of government achievements shines, under the good treatment of Mr. Krutch's camera and the offset press, with misty mountain ranges, fat or eroding fields, superb modern machinery, and work-worn southern farm folk, and all natural as life." Willson Whitman
+ Nation 159:658 N 25 '44 350w

Reviewed by B. B. Seligman
New Repub 111:876 D 25 '44 500w

"This is an important volume and it is also one of the most delightful books this reviewer has ever read. . . It can all be read in two or three hours of vivid adventure." D. F. Fleming
+ N Y Times p5 N 19 '44 1050w

"The photographs . . . are excellent. The text, by Mr. Duffus, is much better when it is explanatory than when it is trying to be poetic."
+ — New Yorker 20:94 N 18 '44 60w

Springf'd Republican p4d N 26 '44 550w

"'All over the Valley little men have been growing into bigger men because they have bigger things to do.' In Mr. Krutch's pictures you can watch them grow with your eyes. In Mr. Duffus's prose you can watch them grow with your mind. Mr. Krutch is TVA's official photographer. Mr. Duffus writes for 'The New York Sunday Times' when he is not writing about Vermont or Thorstein Veblen. It is a happy combination for a very stirring book." Stuart Chase
+ Weekly Book Review p5 D 10 '44 450w

DUGGAN, STEPHEN PIERCE HAYDEN. A professor at large. 468p il $3.50 Macmillan

940.5 Europe—Politics. World politics. Intellectual cooperation 43-15780

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

"The chief trouble with this volume is that the title conveys no idea of its contents and their very great value to the reader concerned with present-day international problems. This is not an autobiography in any usual sense of the word. Professor Duggan is single-minded to the world scene. He has used his rare position at the focus of international education to get and give a better picture of the world's great nations than will be found in a half dozen more pretentious books." G. S. F.
+ Am Hist R 49:520 Ap '44 160w

Reviewed by W. H. C. Laves
Am Pol Sci R 38:395 Ap '44 400w

"There are passages on persons and events in this volume which are open to controversy, but they in no way detract from its value as a guide in international and cultural relations. It is an optimistic book by a great liberal and citizen of the world, which does not accept defeat even in the hour of darkest crisis." W. M. Kotschnig
+ Am Soc R 9:444 Ag '44 500w

Bookmark 5:12 Mr '44

"An entertaining and informative book."
+ Current Hist 6:69 Ja '44 80w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:11 Ja '44 20w

"Stephen Duggan has told the story of the Institute of International Education and its contribution to the 'recent expansion of inter-

DUGGAN, S. P. H.—Continued
national cultural relations' in an informal volume of reminiscences. . . In it the author reveals himself an able administrator, a zealous democrat, and a useful ambassador of good will. This story of the Institute, however, is seriously handicapped by the author's decision to interweave its history with a good deal of miscellaneous material on the cultural backgrounds of the principal foreign countries that is neither original, nor fundamental, nor comprehensive." E. M. Fleming

+ — Pol Sci Q 59:154 Mr '44 500w

Wis Lib Bul 40:24 F '44

DU JARDIN, MRS ROSAMOND (NEAL). Brief glory. 253p $2 Macrae Smith co.

44-5841

A lakeside resort in Wisconsin is the scene of this story of a city-bred girl from Chicago, and the country-loving man she married.

Kirkus 12:178 Ap 15 '44 90w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p14 Jl 23 '44 80w

"Is no more than an average run-of-the-mill light novel, but contains some recognizable glimpses of a resort town at the height of the season."

Wis Lib Bul 40:130 O '44

DULLES, FOSTER RHEA. Road to Teheran; the story of Russia and America, 1781-1943. 279p $2.50 Princeton univ. press

327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations—Russia. Russia—Foreign relations—U.S. A44-531

A survey written for the layman, of Russian-American relations from the end of our own Revolution to the meeting at Teheran in 1943. More than half the book is devoted to the period since 1917. Index.

"Professor Dulles has written a book which combines the timeliness of good journalism with the objectivity and perspective of good history. At a moment when the whole problem of the peace settlement as well as the successful conclusion of the war itself hinges on the co-operation of Britain, the Soviet Union, and the United States, he has illuminated two sides of this fateful triangle with the clear light of the past. He has done this, moreover, with an understanding of his subject that is both sympathetic and critical." A. W. Griswold

+ Am Hist R 50:98 O '44 650w

Reviewed by G. S. McClellan
Am Pol Sci R 38:582 Je '44 450w

"This volume fills an urgent need for a good work for the general reader on the relations between Russia and America. The author's training and experience, both as a journalist and as a scholar in the field of the social sciences, have served him well in helping him to achieve an objective, lucid, and well-written synthesis. . . A pedantic purist may object to 'levées' at the foreign legations in St. Petersburg, or 'Cossacks' which Catherine would not lend to George III for the suppression of American rebels; but why cavil at these slips of the pen when the author has written such an excellent, well-informed book?" D. F. White

+ — Ann Am Acad 233:231 My '44 450w

"Dulles does not put forth his book as a definitive history. It is a popular history, gleaned in the main from American sources. It reads extremely well and is fast-moving in its drama. To call it merely timely would be understatement." Ernest Von Hartz

+ Book Week p4 F 20 '44 500w

Booklist 40:226 Mr 1 '44

Bookmark 5:4 My '44

"With material so abundant and a craftsman so competent, one anticipates a fairly complete and well arranged summary of the long complicated history under consideration; and the book proves to be no less than that. The critical reader will, however, not be unaware of certain definite 'tendencies' in the description of events." Joseph McSorley

Cath World 159:183 My '44 360w

Christian Century 61:645 My 24 '44 300w

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '44

Commonweal 39:472 F 25 '44 450w

"Concise, well-written and authoritative." R. G. Woolbert

+ Foreign Affairs 22:660 Jl '44 20w

"Important background reading."

+ Kirkus 12:12 Ja 1 '44 160w

Reviewed by J. C. Shipman
Library J 69:116 F 1 '44 130w

"The weakest side is the account of Russia's policy in the Far East, either in Tsarist or Soviet times, a failing hardly surprising in that this part of the story does not confirm the general moral which Professor Dulles is anxious to point. Apart from this flaw, a first-rate book, written with great vigor and ability, containing both scholarship and common sense. It is downright humiliating for an English historian to see how seriously American historians contribute to contemporary discussion and how their contribution is welcomed by the American public. No English historian has produced a comparable book on Anglo-Russian relations." A. J. P. Taylor

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 S 15 '44 220w

New Repub 110:357 Mr 13 '44 220w

"Professor Dulles' book is wholly without ideological prepossessions and formulates almost no conclusions. Like a first-rate novel, it lets the action point the moral; and from its beginning . . . it carries an astonishingly contemporary flavor." Byron Defter

+ N Y Times p1 F 27 '44 800w

Reviewed by Joseph Barnes
Pacific Affairs 17:252 Je '44 210w

"Foster Rhea Dulles has written one of the rare books in which the proper balance has been kept between the problems of our forefathers and our own. He has achieved this miracle by concentrating his attention on the fundamentals of history on one hand, and on the major issues of present reality on the other, without permitting himself to be led astray into the jungles of partisanship and petty conflict." George Vernadsky

+ Pol Sci Q 59:453 S '44 600w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn
Survey G 33:257 My '44 180w

Time 43:98 Ap 3 '44 450w

"[The story] is told with sound scholarship, skill for organization, disinterestedness, quiet humor and instinct for the significant and colorful fact. It is one of those rare, timely books that has about it the air of having been long years in the making and that actually delivers more, not less, than the promise of its title. Rarest of all, whether in academic studies or popular 'head-line chasers,' it is possessed of liveliness and distinction of style." B. D. Wolfe

+ Weekly Book Review p1 F 27 '44 800w

DUMAS, ALEXANDRE. Journal of Madame Giovanni; tr. from the French ed. (1856) by Marguerite E. Wilbur; with a foreword by Frank W. Reed. 404p $3 Liveright

44-1899

The first edition in English of a novel written by Alexandre Dumas in 1856. It is the story of a Parisian woman, who accompanies her merchant-husband on a trip which includes Australia, New Zealand, Tahiti, Hawaii, Mexico and California. Madame's adventures are lively in the extreme, but she takes earthquakes, cannibals, and assorted killings in her stride.

"The narrative has some of the marks of haste that characterize other Dumas writings. . . In 'The Journal of Madame Giovanni' there is an added flavor in the femininity of the supposed narrator. It must be admitted, however, that to read the book from cover to cover requires either a longtime predilection for Dumas or a considerable curiosity about the Pacific lands and islands as they were ninety years ago." W. K. R.

Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 26 '44 600w

"Definitely a piece which deserves to be better known for the characteristic Dumas ingenuity, romanticism, drama, local color; interesting aspects of the author and the handling of fresh material."

+ Kirkus 12:29 Ja 15 '44 120w

"Whether you read the book for its truths or half-truths, you will find in Mme. Giovanni a more engaging and imaginative traveling companion than Captain Cook, Livingstone and Frank Buck put together." Nona Balakian

+ N Y Times p7 Ja 30 '44 600w

Time 43:95 Ja 17 '44 1250w

DUNCAN, DAVID. Remember the shadows. 243p $2.50 McBride

44-4336

Psychological study of four people spending the summer in a lonely lodge in the Rockies. They are: Howard James, an archeologist; Helen, his second wife, considered a psychopathic case; Gup, Howard's eighteen-year-old son by a former marriage; and Jean Burton, Helen's nurse, who has become Howard's mistress. On the day when Helen's doctor was to come and give the final verdict on her sanity, a bridge gives way and the doctor is killed. The rest of the story shows the results of the doctor's death.

"Morbid melodrama with human, rather than moral, rationalizations, in a novel of brooding and violent emotions, with neurotic and psychiatric contours. . . A grim tale."

Kirkus 12:5 Ja 1 '44 130w

"Mr Duncan has handled a tense theme with skill. The narrative style is rapid, and is an appropriate medium for arriving at the exciting climax of the story." Ander Hartshorn

+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 16 '44 140w

Weekly Book Review p6 Ap 30 '44 180w

DUNCAN, DOROTHY (MRS HUGH MACLENNAN). Partner in three worlds. 340p $2.75 Harper

B or 92 Rieger, Jan, pseud. 44-8483

The life story, presented in autobiographical form, of a Czech who is now serving in the Canadian army. The story covers forty years from a poverty-marked childhood in Prague, thru the first World war as an Austro-Hungarian soldier, the early years of struggle for business success, and finally the trip to America which became exile in 1939.

Reviewed by Sterling North

Book Week p2 O 22 '44 360w

Booklist 41:121 D 15 '44

Reviewed by Eleanor McNaught

Canadian Forum 24:265 F '45 600w

"It is sort of a stunt to write the life of another in the first person, but if it comes off it gives a heightened intensity to a personal history. That is decidedly the case with Dorothy Duncan's 'Partner in Three Worlds.' And yet this volume has overtones which give it greater significance than that of any individual's colorful life story."

+ Commonweal 40:615 O 13 '44 600w

Commonweal 41:21 O 20 '44 50w

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook

Current Hist 7:499 D '44 60w

"The material is competently handled, but somehow it lacks the authority of originality or significance which would make it memorable. Its reading audience is difficult to gauge."

Kirkus 12:392 S 1 '44 150w

"Few books in English would offer as much insight into conditions and problems of Czechoslovakia as this human document. Recommended for public and college libraries." F. E. Hirsch

Library J 69:813 O 1 '44 110w

New Repub 111:814 D 11 '44 160w

"It is curious that 'Partner in Three Worlds' succeeds where it seems to fail. It never becomes a consistently moving portrait of a refugee—perhaps because there are too many irrelevant details which break up the whole into unrelated fragments. Nor is it absorbing as pure biography, for Rieger's is too simple a personality. But just because it is neither too abstract nor too particular, it presents the problem in a manner that permits dispassionate inquiry: Where is the place of the little nations in a Great Powers world?" Nona Balakian

+ N Y Times p12 D 31 '44 950w

"Dorothy Duncan has written a heart-warming story of that particular brand of national pride which animated so many of the recreated States after the last war, but which, in the case of Czechoslovakia at least, was tempered with moderation and wisdom. She has a vivid gift of evoking the essence of a place and period: her hero is anything but a political figure yet his life fills the span of his country's rise and downfall and much of its history is mirrored in his personal doings." L. T. Mowrer

+ Sat R of Lit 27:24 N 4 '44 800w

"The book has the meaningful details, the subjective tension and the full scope of a novel. But beyond the tale itself, it has a purpose; it serves as a kind of ambassador from the old world to the new." Virgilia Sapieha

+ Weekly Book Review p4 O 15 '44 1050w

DUNCAN, KUNIGUNDE (MRS BLISS ISELY), and NICKOLS, DANIEL FRANKLIN. Mentor Graham; the man who taught Lincoln. 274p il maps $3.75 Univ. of Chicago press

B or 92 Graham, Mentor A44-5459

"Colorful biography of the pioneer schoolmaster who played an important, but hitherto obscure, part in Lincoln's education from the time he first came to New Salem until he became president. By skilfully weaving together the many strands painstakingly gleaned through personal interviews with Graham's descendants, pupils and neighbors, the authors have not only admirably succeeded in recreating an unusual figure in educational history but have also caught the true flavor of frontier life in Kentucky and Illinois during the greater part of the nineteenth century." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by Stanley Pargellis

Book Week p3 D 10 '44 400w

Booklist 41:138 Ja 1 '45

Christian Century 62:51 Ja 10 '45 350w

"This important addition to Lincolniana is the heretofore untold story of the scarcely known schoolmaster who had so decisive an influence in shaping and directing Lincoln's career. The biography skilfully preserves the Midwest idiom and atmosphere of the period and region which was for Graham and Lincoln the same Kentucky-Illinois milieu, Brush Creek and New Salem." M. W. Hess

+ Commonweal 41:258 D 22 '44 420w

Kirkus 12:532 N 15 '44 170w

"Recommended as an interesting addition to both Lincolniana and history of education collections." M. J. Messler

+ Library J 69:998 N 15 '44 110w

Reviewed by Lloyd Lewis

N Y Times p6 Ja 7 '45 1700w

School & Society 60:352 N 25 '44 40w

"A noteworthy achievement in American biography. It brings into full perspective a hitherto unnoticed man who had much to do with the training of one of the giants of mankind; it goes deeply into the hearts and minds of Americans who were beginning to understand that a nation could not exist half slave and half free; and it singles out for deserved applause not a man who won fame or wealth but just one from among millions of unsung Americans who have loved their fellow men and kept faith in democracy. . . It is, of course, easy to oversentimentalize a misty figure in a great man's past, as has been done with Ann Rutledge in the story of Abraham Lincoln. In the story of Mentor Graham, however, the teacher of both Lincoln and Ann Rutledge does not appear to be shown in a theatrical light." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p4d D 3 '44 700w

"Undoubtedly, Mentor Graham helped Lincoln in the formative years of his life. Moreover, there is no doubt that he, like thousands of others of his calling, was a leavening, civilizing influence in the rough environment in which he lived. But was he important enough, either as an associate of Lincoln or in his own right, to deserve a full-length biography? This reviewer thinks not." P. M. Angle

DUNCAN, KUNIGUNDE—Continued
Weekly Book Review p34 D 3 '44 900w

DUNCOMBE, FRANCES. Clarinda; il. by Angela. 133p $2 Holt
44-4616

Seven stories about a rather naughty, but nice, little girl with a habit of saying "I won't." The stories tell about Clarinda's adventures among the baby ducks, frogs, turtles, and other animals. For ages seven to nine.

Cath World 160:280 D '44 40w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p8 Jl 31 '44 120w

"Delightful fantasy—charmingly done."
+ Kirkus 12:95 F 15 '44 130w

"Attractive in format with numerous charming illustrations by Angela, this book will appeal to imaginative children." E. G. Mullan
+ Library J 69:555 Je 15 '44 70w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p24 Je 25 '44 150w

New Yorker 20:56 Jl 8 '44 50w

"Clarinda is so real a little girl, so like a number of little girls we all know, that whatever takes place in these stories about her sounds as real as possible because she's in the story. . . Almost any little girl would like to hear about Clarinda, over and over; at least that's what some children tell me. The pictures are just like her, energetic, unusual and funny; they add the last touch of conviction that these things did happen." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Je 4 '44 310w

Wis Lib Bul 40:111 Jl '44

DUNHAM, DONALD CARL. Envoy unextraordinary. 166p $2 Day

B or 92 U.S.—Diplomatic and consular service 44-7263

Reminiscences of a young American who spent eight years serving as a vice-consul in Berlin, Hong Kong, Athens and Aden.

Booklist 41:57 O 15 '44

"A sense of balance and recognition of the importance Foreign Service will play after this war give this a wider interest than might be expected."
+ Kirkus 12:292 Jl 1 '44 170w

"With the exception of a few human-interest stories that have nothing to do with our diplomatic service, and of two on British imperialist practices in Aden that remind us of Nazis in action, this book is distinguished by its dullness and its extremely limited knowledge and vision."
— New Repub 111:501 O 16 '44 360w

"It is sad to report that Mr. Dunham's sympathy is misplaced. His 'personal Confucius' was not in the thick of the struggle against the Japanese, and was actually reported to be negotiating with the enemy for his return to public life as a puppet when three young patriotic killers axed him to death on Sept. 30, 1938. But this is a minor flaw in a light and readable book—which should be especially useful to potential foreign service men." Mark Gayn
+ — N Y Times p23 S 17 '44 400w

"Mr. Dunham's account of his eight years in the Foreign Service is a notebook rather than a book, and while it contains some engaging passages, it is pitched and written on a rather superficial level. . . The author isn't at all pompous about any of this, however, and it is a relief, after some of the pretentious 'inside' books written by big-name diplomats (not including Sumner Welles), to come across a small-name one who doesn't confuse chitchat with knowledge and isn't out to make a case for his calling, his country, or himself."
New Yorker 20:78 S 9 '44 180w

"The most extraordinary thing about 'Envoy Unextraordinary' is its narrative skill. Mr. Dunham is a born yarn-spinner. His deft little stories—of a crucial tennis match between himself and Hasan Ali in Aden; of how he entertained the captain and crew of the U.S.S. Sacramento; of American and Chinese businessmen—these and others are told with relish, lively color, and good nature." Frederick Gruin
+ Sat R of Lit 27:28 S 30 '44 850w

Springf'd Republican p6 S 8 '44 550w

"With all of the facts of his vice-consular career, Mr. Dunham deals simply and clearly. It is rather a pity that so frequently he attempts to dabble in profound generalizations on the character of peoples, national policy and the like, because he invariably goes in over his head. But perhaps this little weakness in the book is also worth bearing in mind against the day when the American people acquire a foreign policy and set out to secure the men who will put that policy to work." H. W. Baehr
+ — Weekly Book Review p2 S 3 '44 500w

DUNLAP, LESLIE WHITTAKER. American historical societies, 1790-1860. 238p $3.50 Brown's bk. shop

973.062 Historical societies 44-7046

"Defining historical societies as associations 'organized primarily to collect, preserve, and make available the materials for the history of the U.S. or a section of it' the author describes in general the establishment, membership, and publications of these institutions and their contribution to history. Then follow sketches of 65 early societies. This book is the result of an A.L.A. fellowship project, and it gathers together much scattered material of value to historical collections." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 41:15 S '44

"Mr. Dunlap has produced a piece of fine scholarship and a book which is fascinating reading for anyone interested in libraries or learned societies. He has combed the archives of the societies about which he writes and found much which surprises even their oldest officers. . . It could not be better done." C. K. Shipton
+ Library J 69:934 N 1 '44 550w

DUNLAP, ORRIN ELMER. Radio's 100 men of science; biographical narratives of pathfinders in electronics and television. 294p $3.50 Harper

621.3809 Radio—History. Scientists 44-9814

Brief biographical sketches of 100 men who have experimented in radio, electronics, and electricity. The arrangement is chronological, bginning with Thales of Miletus, in the sixth century B.C. and coming down thru the centuries to the present-day students of radiothermics. Index.

Reviewed by Rufus Oldenburger
Book Week p8 Ja 14 '45 270w

Booklist 41:107 D 1 '44

"Not a book for consecutive reading, but a reference book with better than average biographical notes, livened with a precis of the man and his work, and dealing for the layman with the technology of his invention or discovery."
+ Kirkus 12:358 Ag 15 '44 140w

Library J 69:1002 N 15 '44 70w

"It was a happy thought to present the history of radio in this way. The reader not only sees the evolution of a wonderful art but makes the acquaintance of the great personalities who created it." Waldemar Kaempffert
+ N Y Times p9 D 31 '44 800w

Scientific Bk Club R 15:3 O '44 300w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p24 D 3 '44 350w

DUNLOP, AGNES MARY ROBERTSON (ELISABETH KYLE, pseud). Disappearing island; pictures by Marjorie Quennell [Eng title: Vanishing island]. 213p $2 Houghton [7s 6d Davies]

44-2721

Story of a summer holiday which a brother and sister, Peter and Margot, spend in a little fishing village on the west coast of Scotland. They go fishing, watch the seals, learn many stories of the islands off the coast, and rescue a lost child, before their summer is over. For ages nine to thirteen.

Booklist 40:272 Ap 1 '44

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p8 Ap 24 '44 180w

"Elizabeth Kyle describes the caverns and gull rookeries on the craggy coast, the fishing folk in the little villages, and their Highland beliefs and superstitions, with an informed pen. . . The line drawings by Marjorie Quennell give an admirable sense of place." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 20:102 Mr '44 100w

"While events are rather improbable, they do not sound impossible, and the suspense will make this a popular title for readers looking for mystery stories." A. M. Wetherell

+ Library J 69:264 Mr 15 '44 110w

Manchester Guardian p3 D 18 '42 10w

"Here is a rare find, a first-rate adventure book for children aged 7-14. It is not a work of genius, but if one forgets Treasure Island and compares it with the machine-made, gluestuck mass in the booksellers' shelves, it stands out. The tale is exciting, romantic, and just within the limits of the possible."

+ New Statesman & Nation 24:263 O 17 '42 140w

"The plot is credible, the characters convincing as well as picturesque, and the brother and sister who play the leading parts have a sturdy honesty and sense of fair play that make them very appealing. Line drawings by Marjorie Quennell, who knows the country, satisfactorily show Margot's and Peter's adventures." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p6 Mr 5 '44 240w

"A well-written story about one of those red-letter summer holidays which British children always seem to be having in juvenile fiction."

+ New Yorker 20:56 Jl 8 '44 90w

"A good story with a background that will fascinate anyone who has a feeling for the British Isles. . . 'Give me a mystery book!' say the children. Well, give them this. It is a mystery book set in an atmosphere that makes even common things strange and unfamiliar. It is, too, a good story, well told." M. G. D.

+ Sat R of Lit 27:36 My 13 '44 230w

Spec 169:490 N 20 '42 90w

"Here is one of those rare and desirable stories for children that though dealing with real and lively people manage to preserve an atmosphere with a shade of magic. When a story like that is told with distinction, it belongs in a permanent library. . . The pictures will be welcomed by all who enjoy the illustrations of that contemporary classic 'Everyday Things in England.' The same artist makes the same convincing black-and-white drawings; this time they have weather in them, too." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p5 F 27 '44 350w

Wis Lib Bul 40:57 Ap '44

DUNLOP, JOHN THOMAS. Wage determination under trade unions. 231p $3.50 Macmillan

331.22 Wages. Collective bargaining. Trade unions 44-849

"About half of the essays in this book are concerned with the cyclical behavior of wages, while the remainder deal with aspects of trade union wage policy. The author's main object was to raise questions and advance hypotheses. . . The book does not profess to provide a comprehensive body of knowledge or theory concerning wages; but it is rich in intriguing research suggestions and will prove highly stimulating to investigators of wage phenomena." Am Econ R

"One of the most significant studies of wages which has appeared in recent years." L. G. Reynolds

+ Am Econ R 34:639 S '44 1350w

Reviewed by G. J. Stigler

J Pol Econ 52:381 D '44 1050w

DUNN, ARTHUR. Arithmetic or revolution. 103p pa $1 Guild of Am. economists, inc, 9 Rockefeller plaza, N.Y. 20

330 Economic policy. International cooperation. Reconstruction (1939-) 43-17362

"Mr. Dunn sees 'seven all-powerful forces dictating life in this machine age: Arithmetic, Selfishness, Love of Freedom, Christianity, Power-Driven Machine, Education, and Ballot.' Instead of kicking against the evils of heavy taxation, Mr. Dunn wants to tax the haves for the benefit of the have-nots, to 'take away from those who have more than they can either consume or invest and redistribute it among those who do not get enough to eat.'" N Y Times

Reviewed by Sterling North

Book Week p2 Ap 23 '44 550w

Reviewed by W. H. Chamberlin

N Y Times p23 Je 18 '44 180w

DUNN, MARSHALL LLOYD, and MORRISETT, LLOYD N. Machines for America. (America at work) 164p il 80c World bk.

621 Machinery—Juvenile literature 43-6129

"The importance of the machine in the everyday life of America is the theme. Farm machinery, factory machinery, the wedge, the screw, the wheel, and various other types of machines are discussed. Glassmaking and the story of steel fascinate the boys and girls on tour through the plants. Graphs, pictures and diagrams add much to the readableness of the material." Social Forces

Reviewed by L. H. Krell

El School J 44:370 F '44 40w

Reviewed by Carlos de Zafra, Jr. and D. M. de Zafra

Social Educ 8:381 D '44 150w

Social Forces 22:474 My '44 60w

DUNN, MARSHALL LLOYD, and MORRISETT, LLOYD N. Power for America. (America at work) 164p il 80c World bk.

621 Power (mechanics)—Juvenile literature 43-7784

"Supplementary material on the fundamentals of motors, the use of oil in motors, and the relation of electricity to power." Social Forces

Reviewed by L. H. Krell

El School J 44:369 F '44 320w

Reviewed by Carlos de Zafra, Jr. and D. M. de Zafra

Social Educ 8:381 D '44 150w

"Teachers of physics in high school will find Power for America excellent supplementary material. . . The average boy will be interested in this not too technical treatment of the subject." H. M. P.

+ Social Forces 22:474 My '44 70w

DUNN, MARSHALL LLOYD, and MORRISETT, LLOYD N. Wings for America. (America at work) 244p il maps $1 World bk.

629.13 Aeronautics—Juvenile literature 43-11444

"Condensed treatment of the many phases of the subject. . . The would-be pilots and bombardiers will find here clear-cut statements regarding their fitness for the job. The portrayal of the marvels of aircraft production

DUNN, M. L.—Continued
will appeal to girls and boys alike." Social Forces

Reviewed by L. H. Krell
El School J 44:370 F '44 140w

Reviewed by Carlos de Zafra, Jr. and D. M. de Zafra
Social Educ 8:381 D '44 150w

"A splendid book on the most popular subject among high school youth." H. M. P.
+ Social Forces 22:474 My '44 160w

DUNNEY, JOSEPH ALOYSIUS. Church history in the light of the saints. 465p maps $2.75 Macmillan

270 Church history. Saints. Roman Catholic church 44-47634

The history of the Catholic church as seen in the lives of twenty-one saints, from St Peter to St John Vianney in nineteenth century France.

"The history of the church as viewed through Roman Catholic eyes, with emphases and omissions alike designed to serve an apologetic and propagandist purpose, could scarcely be better written than Father Dunney here writes it. . . With due allowances for what might be expected, Dunney's book is excellent."
+ Christian Century 61:1479 D 20 '44 180w

"Perhaps it is only right to admit that I commenced this book with some expectancy. At the back of my mind there was the thought that here at length might be a text destined to give church history true popular appeal. I shall not speak of disappointment; I shall say only that there is a chasm fixed between what this might have been and what it is. Real merits there are. The style is such as to carry the narrative along almost as though it were a novel. And the theme is a departure from that which most of us have known; for Father Dunney centers his picture of the long centuries in the Church's life not upon seething schisms and hidebound heresies but upon strong men and women of flesh and blood, two of them dwellers in these Americas. . . Yet there are difficulties inherent in the treatment. Non-saints tend to be passed over." H. G. J. Beck
+ — Commonweal 41:380 Ja 26 '45 450w

"The book should be of value and interest not only to Catholic students for whom it is primarily written, but to others interested in knowing the Catholic interpretation of the history of the church."
+ Kirkus 12:502 N 1 '44 130w

DUNNINGER, JOSEPH. What's on your mind? 192p il $1 World pub.

133.82 Thought transference 44-7977

"For years Joseph Dunninger, self-styled 'master mentalist,' has astounded celebrities, scientists and lay public alike with his feats of magic and 'mind-reading.' He has exposed hundreds of so-called 'spirit mediums,' psychics and fortune tellers, promising to duplicate by trickery what they have claimed to produce by genuine phenomena." (Book Week) "This book was designed to cover the subject of telepathy from a popular viewpoint, combining the history of telepathy with facts that have been learned about it. . . [Includes] a series of tests which will enable anyone to gauge his own ability at sending or receiving telepathic impressions." (Foreword)

"Since this volume by Dunninger is a serious treatment of telepathy and is destined to be read by many of his radio followers, I must be permitted one expression of regret. In the case of a man who has devoted his life to the magician's art, it is often difficult to tell where magic ends and telepathy begins." H. M. Sherman
Book Week p6 Jl 16 '44 600w

"Mr. Dunninger writes with logic and intelligence on a fascinating theme."
+ Weekly Book Review p14 Ag 6 '44 150w

DUNSANY, EDWARD JOHN MORETON DRAX PLUNKETT, 18th baron. Guerrilla. 252p $2.50 Bobbs [8s 6d Heinemann] 44-7508

The story of a small country, designated as the Land, which is overrun by Hitler's soldiers. The Land has been free for three thousand years, and the patriots do not take it lying down. Led by the guerrilla leader Hlaka, the men escape, wherever possible to a mountain, and from there continue their fight for their country.

Reviewed by R. R. Plant
Book Week p10 O 8 '44 450w
Booklist 41:77 N 1 '44
Cath World 160:379 Ja '45 180w
Horn Bk 20:499 N '44 70w
Kirkus 12:304 Jl 15 '44 150w

Reviewed by J. D. Beresford
Manchester Guardian p3 F 25 '44 150w

"'Guerrilla' is thin, abstract, allegorical, poetical." Diana Trilling
— Nation 159:596 N 11 '44 300w

"The true story of resistance has yet to be told. When we hear it, it will be a dirtier and a rougher tale than this almost idyllic one of Dunsany's: of sewers and cellars, starvation and cruelty, of the necessary murder of murderers, of the required dishonesty of honest men. The clean slopes of Dunsany's mountain, the music of the rustic harp, the dead men who do not rot—these will have too little part in the true story. But the essential spirit of resistance will be the spirit which Dunsany has caught." Carlos Baker
+ N Y Times p4 O 1 '44 550w

"Lord Dunsany's prose is beautiful and vivid, and one cannot be reminded often enough of the heroism of those who have withstood oppression. It is not the author's fault that the daily papers have made us so familiar with oppression and heroism that we cannot be as moved by this tale of guerrilla patriots as we might be."
+ — New Yorker 20:81 O 7 '44 90w

"This is the best novel about the issues of the war, the best analysis of the forces on our side and the enemy's that I have read since John Steinbeck's 'The Moon Is Down.' It should have as great a success." R. E. Roberts
+ Sat R of Lit 27:20 O 28 '44 650w

Reviewed by Emanuel Slotnick
Springf'd Republican p4d O 22 '44 500w

"A piece of writing full to the brim of pictures that stay in the memory and of passages that, in these days of jargon and journalese, are a pure pleasure to read. The prose is exactly suited to the theme; there is very little conscious archaism, yet the words carry something of the deliberate cadences of Bunyan, something of the plainness, the irreproachable simplicity of Defoe."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p89 F 19 '44 1150w

"Deft and moving as is the tale of this resistance this book's distinction is the manner in which Dunsany makes us not readers about the guerrilla movements, but actors in it. Rocks, bushes, moonlit roads and shadow-filled fields have been personalized so that we can feel their living menace or promise of protection." Clare Godfrey
+ Weekly Book Review p4 O 8 '44 600w

DUPLAIX, GEORGES. Animal stories; with pictures by Feodor Rojankovsky. 91p $1.50 Simon & Schuster

Animals, Legends and stories of 44-8907

Picture-story book for children. There are forty-six animal stories with colored pictures for each.

"Some 200 full-color pictures by Rojankovsky have the boldness of design and color for which the artist is noted and which has so tremendous an appeal for children. A real find for the price." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p22 N 12 '44 180w
Booklist 41:141 Ja 1 '45

"This book would captivate a child who is not easily persuaded to sit still and read. The stories are short and mostly merry ones and will provide a wonderful stepping stone from the comic strip to the classics." F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 N 27 '44 100w

"The text of this volume is only moderately good; the drawings are very pleasant and plentiful. A good bargain for youngsters." H. L. Binsse
+ — Commonweal 41:126 N 17 '44 20w

"An original and humorous and out-of-the-groove collection of new animal stories, varying in mood and word pattern and perfectly interpreted by the artist."
+ Kirkus 12:431 S 15 '44 50w

"The artist who brightened countless Christmases with 'The Tall Book of Mother Goose' and 'The Tall Book of Nursery Tales' has done it again with this perfect children's book. His 200 color illustrations are exciting, prickle with action, evoke easy laughter. . . The color job is magnificent. The book, generally, is a must for anyone with children under 10 who faces Christmas a little worried as to adequate gifts." Meyer Berger
+ N Y Times p7 N 12 '44 100w

"This big, handsome volume is less a book to read straight through than a huge nursery grab bag to dip into from time to time for stories, verses, alphabets, tales in glorified comic-strip form—all of them about animals. Rojankovsky's pictures have style, rich color, and humorous detail."
+ New Yorker 20:80 D 16 '44 50w
Weekly Book Review p39 N 12 '44 200w

DURANT, WILLIAM JAMES. Story of civilization; v. 3, Caesar and Christ, a history of Roman civilization and of Christianity from their beginnings to A.D. 325. 749p il $5 Simon & Schuster

901 Civilization—History. anals Rome—History. Church history—Primitive and early church (35-10016)

The third volume in the author's history of civilization, of which Our Oriental Heritage and The Life of Greece were the first two (Book Review Digest, 1935 and 1939). This study traces the rise and fall of the Roman Empire, and gives a picture of the early centuries of Christianity. The author says: "The method of these volumes is synthetic history, which studies all the major phases of a people's life, work and culture in their simultaneous operation." Bibliographical guide. Index.

Reviewed by E. D. Branch
Book Week p1 O 22 '44 2400w
Booklist 41:87 N 15 '44

"The bibliographical notes appended to this volume are both excellent and comprehensive. They maintain the high standard set in the earlier volumes of Dr. Durant's life work." J. H. P.
+ Boston Globe p12 N 22 '44 280w
Christian Science Monitor p12 N 28 '44 500w

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook
Current Hist 7:495 D '44 850w
Kirkus 12:393 S 1 '44 190w

"Because Rome's story is fraught with both warnings and encouragements to us, this book has an exceptional timeliness." E. P. Nichols
+ Library J 69:881 O 15 '44 140w

Reviewed by Ralph Bates
New Repub 111:630 N 13 '44 900w

"The professional scholar would undertake such a comprehensive work only after many years of preparation. But Dr. Durant has undertaken even more than this volume, which is the third in a five-volume account of world history entitled 'The Story of Civilization.' He describes his method as 'synthetic,' and admits that there will inevitably be errors in detail. . . However, it must be admitted, if such errors and omissions mount above a certain minimum, the work as a whole loses value and authority. It is the reviewer's opinion that this minimum has been exceeded in 'Caesar and Christ.' In the bibliography it would be easy to point out a very considerable number of serious deficiencies. Moreover, much of the literary criticism and a number of the biographies of literary men are unsatisfactory. . . But 'Caesar and Christ' possesses positive merits. It expounds in clear, readable English the tremendous importance of the Roman legacy to our world—in language, literature, hospitals, roads, architecture, sanitation, law, government, and many other respects." John Day
— + N Y Times p4 D 10 '44 1250w

"It is impossible not to be impressed by the earnest labor that has gone into this book, and anybody who tries to brush it off as being another case of literary elephantiasis will be making a mistake. It combines a high regard for scholarship with a sense of drama and it ought to be widely read. Handsomely illustrated."
+ New Yorker 20:82 O 28 '44 230w

"In the particular field of this book [Mr Durant] has had many predecessors, but few have evidenced closer acquaintance with the sources from which all must draw. His book merits a place of honor in a world that has enjoyed Gibbon, Mommsen, and Ferrero. He has reinterpreted and synthesized an entire culture with conscientious objectivity. . . Scholarly research has rarely been translated into such a lively and stimulating, yet accurate history." Donald Armstrong
+ Sat R of Lit 27:10 O 28 '44 1450w

Reviewed by S. C. Phelps
Springf'd Republican p4d N 5 '44 350w

"Philosophy consists in asking questions, sophistry in answering them, fanaticism in enforcing the solutions. Mr. Durant is a philosopher, not a sophist: he leaves our minds free. He enjoys his work, and so do we: all is well. I hope to be still alive in 1950, when the next installment is due. I want to know how the story ends." Albert Guerard
+ Weekly Book Review p3 N 5 '44 1700w

DURANTY, WALTER. USSR; the story of Soviet Russia. 293p $3 Lippincott

947.084 Russia—History 44-2980

A popular summary of Russian history, economics and foreign policies during the quarter of a century that followed the Revolution. As a newspaper correspondent stationed in Russia the author was an eye-witness of much of this modern history.

"Primarily this is the story of Lenin, whom Mr. Duranty greatly admires, of his lieutenants and their struggle among themselves, and the final triumph of Stalin and the Communist party of which he is the indisputable leader. But it cannot be called a history of Soviet Russia. As a popular work dealing with so tremendous a subject, it has a number of shortcomings as well as some annoying errors, yet one must admit that Mr. Duranty's faith in the capabilities of the Russian people and their present leaders is amply justified by the events." G. W. Anderson
Am Hist R 50:124 O '44 500w

"Though more precise books will be written in the future, 'USSR' is faithful to the facts in their large outlines and will greatly increase the reader's understanding of Soviet policy in past and present." William Card
+ — Book Week p3 Ap 2 '44 360w
Booklist 40:281 Ap 15 '44

"A brilliantly written and masterful refutation of the vilification and trash published in the daily press on things Russian for the past 25 years. But at the same time the author has reduced the status of Joseph Stalin to that of a human being, while Trotsky has been elevated to nearly the same level. Worse still, the Soviet economic system is described as State Capitalism! These heresies will provide Party Leaders with many a headache. Will they accept the work with a previously agreed-upon number of damns, or will they place it forthwith upon the Index? . . . The importance of the work lies in the fact that the writer probably knows as much about Soviet Russia as any living foreigner, that he possesses an impartiality almost totally lacking among those who write on Soviet Russia and that he has had time to view the whole saga in perspective." L. T. Morgan

DURANTY, WALTER—Continued
Canadian Forum 24:91 Jl '44 550w
Cath World 160:286 D '44 90w
Christian Science Monitor p10 My 6 '44 650w

"For the general reader who craves insight into the workings of Stalin and his fellow party members, without too precise or dispassionate analysis, Duranty's new book is an excellent contribution to the literature on contemporary Russia. It may be that his sympathies are too clearly indicated; it is not possible for the average American to condone murder and liquidation as political necessity. However, Duranty's praise of Lenin and Stalin must be considered from the viewpoint of the Russians, and from that perspective, all their deeds were directed for the greater glory of Russia." Roy Hillbrook
+ — Current Hist 6:433 My '44 550w

"For one who writes as he pleases, Mr. Duranty has managed to turn out a pretty sound review of the highlights of Soviet history. His version of the famous Moscow trials will be read with particular interest."
+ Foreign Affairs 23:13 O '44 30w

"I found it absorbingly interesting reading. Duranty has a gift for simplifying and clarifying without overdoing it. A good buy."
+ Kirkus 12:127 Mr 15 '44 340w

Reviewed by G. E. Brown
Library J 69:261 Mr 15 '44 80w
Manchester Guardian p3 N 3 '44 200w

Reviewed by Joseph Freeman
Nation 158:546 My 6 '44 750w

"This is by all odds the most absorbing and illuminating book on the subject." A. R. Williams
+ New Repub 110:719 My 22 '44 550w

"There are a number of issues where, it seems to me, Mr. Duranty has only got half the truth or where his emphasis is wrong. But these are not important enough to destroy the value of this book. It is a valuable contribution to an understanding of the U.S.S.R. which can be warmly recommended for use in adult education and for the general reader." Norman MacKenzie
+ — New Statesman & Nation 28:241 O 7 '44 850w

"In some of the almost casual side remarks . . . there are suggestions that Mr. Duranty still has within him an important interpretive book on Russia. But in the present volume he has not sufficiently worked over old impressions and reports, not eliminated the hunches, guesses and snap judgments which, while inevitable and even legitimate in day to day reporting, are inadequate to a more slowly produced and seriously intended book." B. D. Wolfe
— + N Y Times p12 Mr 26 '44 800w

"Mr. Duranty does not have much to add to what he has already written about the Soviet Union, and what he has to say has become more or less familiar, but his book is an informed and sympathetic study of the country whose influence is likely to be an important factor in postwar Europe."
+ — New Yorker 20:83 Ap 1 '44 80w

"In this book, where Mr. Duranty leaves the role of reporter, and takes up the work of an historian, he reveals all too clearly the differences between the two professions and his inadequate equipment for the latter. His work retains its qualities of vividness; he brings out to the full the transformation in Soviet values which has resulted (in his opinion) mainly from Stalin's victory over Trotsky and his other opponents. But he does not answer residence but also upon long serious study, and a sincere effort at objectivity and dispassionate analysis. Perhaps some of the conclusions may appear too optimistic, but in any case the reader will derive great benefit from the valuable information imparted in this guide to a better understanding of Russia." Hans Kohn

+ Survey G 33:256 My '44 140w
Time 43:98 Ap 3 '44 100w
Times [London] Lit Sup p469 S 30 '44 1200w

"In this book, Mr. Duranty, who must be tired of being called the dean of foreign reporters in Moscow, has tried his hand at the new trade of writing history. He still writes as he pleases. Biblical language, Athenian parallels, nursery jingles and asides on philosophy are all woven into the running pattern of this history. . . This makes, if you will, a new and complicated kind of history. But the facts and dates are hard and, with only four or five minor exceptions, accurate. And, best of all, they are told so well and in such a warm and human style, that reading this book is like listening to the exciting talk of a very wise and complicated man." Joseph Barnes
+ Weekly Book Review p3 Mr 26 '44 1300w

"Mr. Duranty's new volume is not one of his best. An acute observer and an excellent writer, he has always been much more successful in describing what he has seen with his own eyes than in giving Russian events a broad interpretation. As the present book is of an interpretative nature, the author's main weakness makes itself felt more than in any of his previous books." Michael Karpovich
— + Yale R n s 33:756 summer '44 700w

DURATSCHEK, SISTER MARY CLAUDIA. Beginnings of Catholicism in South Dakota [thesis]. 271p map $2.75 Catholic univ. of Am.

282.783 Roman Catholic church in South Dakota A43-3629

"Nearly half of this careful study is devoted to the work of the church among the Sioux. Government Indian policy, missionary activities, and Sioux customs and practices are well and interestingly described. . . The remainder of the volume deals with the settlement of South Dakota by the white man and the accompanying expansion of Catholicism. Reader interest is assured by the inclusion of much absorbing detail: frontier wedding practices, Bohemian and German-Russian customs, parish rifts, and early life in the Black Hills. The final chapter, entitled 'The Catholic Church, A Constructive Force,' is concerned mainly with the position of the church on matters of education, divorce, birth control, sickness, temperance, and woman suffrage." Am Hist R

"Sister M. Claudia Duratschek's dissertation shows evidence of careful preparation, much effort, and a great admiration for the early Catholic workers of Dakota. This latter quality might well have allowed bias to creep into her work. . . The work is well annotated; there is a map that adds to the understanding of the text; the bibliography is excellent; and the index is fairly good, though it suffers from some omissions, such as Ravoux, and some errors, such as 'John P. Riggs' for 'Stephen R. Riggs.' Anyone interested in South Dakota or in church history will find this volume enjoyable and worth his time." M. E. Jarchow
+ — Am Hist R 49:553 Ap '44 280w

DURYEE, MRS MARY BALLARD. Free enterprise; a book of war poems. 41p $1 Fine editions

811 44-774

"[This] volume of war poems is not dedicated to a political theory, though the title lyric's freshness and strength, as well as the volume in its entirety, are worthy of a less hackneyed phrase. Nice craftsmanship and timely subject matter. Sara Teasdale's lyrics inevitably come to mind." Booklist

Booklist 40:231 Mr 1 '44

"Poems which are uniformly polished and clean-cut. . . Her lyrics are uniformly good, without one loose word or frayed thought. The six sonnets which she calls 'Season of the Heart' are beautifully done, and there is a deeply moving poignancy to her 'Chant of the Old Men,' which gains immeasurably from its simplicity. Her economy of statement is magnificent throughout the volume." Hal Borland

+ N Y Times p14 Ja 23 '44 110w

"This is a small book of verse, but it has a warmth of feeling and a sharpness and clarity of phrasing which will commend it to those who care for poems of simple direct feeling, simply and directly expressed." Elizabeth Drew

+ Weekly Book Review p15 Jl 9 '44 300w

DUSTIN, AGNES BARDEN. Deerwander farm; the story of Nancy Hartwell. 301p il $2.50 Page

44-21225

Story of a courageous sixteen-year-old girl who made a home for herself, her two younger sisters, and a kindly old uncle, on a New Hampshire farm. For junior high school age.

'Though life is somewhat over-simplified, the story is interesting, rich in its observation of nature lore, and well told. The author grew up in this New Hampshire country, where her chief delight was in the discoveries of bird and animal life about her and in the simple entertainments which she describes in this novel."

+ Cath World 159:284 Je '44 110w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

N Y Times p20 Ag 6 '44 120w

Wis Lib Bul 40:73 My '44

DUVOISIN, ROGER ANTOINE. They put out to sea; the story of the map; il by [the author]. 171,9p maps $2.50 Knopf

910 Discoveries (in geography). Explorers 44-213

Stories of the brave explorers and navigators of history, who paved the way for modern civilization and expansion. For children nine to twelve. Copiously illustrated in color and in black and white. Includes many maps showing the gradual enlargement of the known world thru the centuries. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 40:256 Mr 15 '44

Bookmark 5:8 Ag '44

"This book is no duplication of other narratives of exploration. It is a vivid dramatic introduction to world history, which will stimulate the middle-age group to further reading. The striking, colorful pictures are an integral part of the book." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 20:103 Mr '44 100w

"Highly recommended for older boys and girls. Simpler than Lucas' Vast Horizons which it resembles somewhat in subject matter, this should fill a real need in the collection for the eight- to eleven-year-olds." M. C. Scoggin

+ Library J 69:264 Mr 15 '44 100w

"Falling between Arensa Sondergaard's 'They Went A-Voyaging,' for the 7 to 8 year olds, and 'Vast Horizons' by Mary Seymour Lucas, for junior high school age, Mr. Duvoisin's latest book is admirably planned to delight and satisfy readers from 9 to 12. It is written in lively conversational style and it is full of details which children enjoy and which make the men and events of past ages seem real and near to the present." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p20 F 20 '44 200w

"Like van Loon, this author artist has a gift for conveying the big sweeps of history and geography in lively prose and striking picture. . . The many line drawings seem almost an integral part of the text and there are eight double pages brilliant in color. Good stuff for the junior-high-school age group."

+ New Yorker 20:59 Jl 8 '44 70w

"Every now and then a brilliantly colored scene stretches across two pages. There are several excellent books for somewhat older readers on this general subject but this one a ten-year-old, or even a younger child, takes happily, now that the map is part of a family breakfast table." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p5 F 20 '44 380w

Wis Lib Bul 40:72 My '44

DYER, CAROLINE. Tale of two houses; pictures by Donald McKay. (Whittlesey house publication) [31p] $1.50 McGraw

44-8094

The two houses were somewhere on the banks of a river which often went on a rampage. One house, belonging to Important People, was built on a hill; the other house was built on stilts. When the rains came both houses floated away, but the little house belonging to the unimportant people became the refuge for all of them until the flood subsided. Then the two houses settled down side by side, to the joy of the little boy who lived in one, and the little girl who lived in the other.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney

Book Week p23 N 12 '44 150w

"Not important but rather fun."

Kirkus 12:399 S 1 '44 90w

"The illustrations by Donald McKay are vital to the story and add much to the gaiety of the book. Not important, but a good addition to the picture collection." Elizabeth Johnson

Library J 69:885 O 15 '44 70w

"Children will enjoy the rapid action of the tale and the endearing sketches of the toy houses." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p26 O 29 '44 160w

Springf'd Republican p4d D 3 '44 50w

DYESS, WILLIAM EDWIN. Dyess story; the eye-witness account of the death march from Bataan and the narrative of experiences in Japanese prison camps and of eventual escape; ed, with a biographical introd, by Charles Leavelle. 182p il maps $2 Putnam

940.547252 World war, 1939—Prisoners and prisons, Japanese. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939—Philippine Islands 44-40085

"The Dyess story is told simply and chronologically, from the sailing from San Francisco, Nov. 1, 1941, of the Twenty-first Pursuit Squadron (of which Lieut. Col. Dyess, then a captain, was the skipper) through the bitter fighting aground and in the air in the Philippines from Dec. 8, 1941, to the surrender of the Bataan survivors April 10, 1942. Then, the climax of the death march from Bataan to San Fernando, the long months in the prison camps—and finally, the successful escape of the ten Americans and two Filipinos from Davao camp." N Y Times

"The Dyess story is a book and I wish it could sell 10,000,000 copies. I hope that those who read it before, read it again, and that all who missed it earlier now read just what the Japanese soldier is. For the book is full of bitter things to remember, not merely for taking revenge but for deciding in the end what must be done to stop barbaric conduct in our world." J. I. Greene

+ Book Week p6 Ap 30 '44 550w

Booklist 40:301 My 1 '44

Kirkus 12:128 Mr 15 '44 100w

DYESS, W. E.—Continued
"'The Dyess Story' is one that should be read, and reread, not only by Americans but by all the Japanese people when the madmen who now lead them have been overthrown and brought to trial. It might help to make them realize that the code by which their nation now is ruled is one that degrades man below the level of an animal." Foster Hailey
+ N Y Times p1 Ap 16 '44 1250w

"It is a horrible story and a great story. In it the Texas hero has well done his last important job—to let the people know."
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 30 '44 400w

"Colonel Dyess's untimely death came before his story was released officially. He would have been glad to know that it has become an important part of the documentary history of the war." George Polk
+ Weekly Book Review p10 Ap 16 '44 750w

DYETT, JAMES G. Your navy now. 79p il $2 Oxford
359 U.S. Navy 44-9801
This informally written account of the United States navy describes the various types of ships making up the fleet, the aircraft and aircraft carriers, sub chasers, hospital ship, tenders, etc. Chapters are also given to training for the various branches of the service.

Booklist 41:118 D 15 '44

"Excellent basic background book on the composition of the navy."
+ Kirkus 12:521 N 15 '44 170w

"Will appeal to young readers of all ages. Excellent photographs supplement tantalizingly brief text." E. A. Groves
+ Library J 70:70 Ja 15 '45 100w

E

EAKIN, FRANK, and EAKIN, MILDRED OLIVIA (MOODY) (MRS FRANK EAKIN). Let's think about our religion. 251p $2 Macmillan
248 U.S.—Religion. Christianity 44-7603
"Well-known writers discuss meaning and place of faith in modern life. Frankly acknowledging force of a prevailing skepticism which is critical of conventional religion and of many old and outworn modes of religious expression, authors plead that faith can be adapted to our times in a manner that will be congenial to the scientific mood and faithful to religion's basic inheritance." Library J

Booklist 41:101 D 1 '44

"The book is well worth reading. . . Its style, lively but not loose, makes it easier reading than most books with equally solid content."
+ Christian Century 61:1171 O 11 '44 150w

"It is a frank and merciless disavowal of the presuppositions upon which most evangelical churches, fundamentalist and liberal, have planned their life and work. The traditional concepts of God, Christ, the Bible, prayer, worship and immortality are analyzed in penetrating and devastating fashion. No fundamentalist would read beyond the first page unless seeking evidence of the revolutionary trends inherent in liberalism. Liberal Protestants should read the volume through, for it is a stimulating book. However, few will read it without finding themselves at many points in sharp disagreement with the authors' theses, and profoundly irritated by an intolerant dogmatism so often offered in the name of enlightened modernism."
Kirkus 12:252 Je 1 '44 130w

"Discussion is honest, on the practical side, well written in an informal and intimate manner. Suitable for intelligent lay reading, for youth ranging from late high school up and for that anxious parent who feels that his child is losing his faith in matters of the spirit." R. P. Morris
+ Library J 69:760 S 15 '44 110w

EAKIN, MILDRED OLIVIA (MOODY) (MRS FRANK EAKIN). Getting acquainted with Jewish neighbors; a guide book for church school leaders of children. 100p $1 Macmillan
296 Jews 44-8978
A book of practical plans by which Protestant children can be taught to understand and sympathize with the manners and customs of their Jewish neighbors and playmates.

Booklist 41:145 Ja 15 '45

"With ample and accurate information and in a winsome manner, Mrs. Eakin attacks the ignorance which is the root of prejudice. The book is not written for children, but teachers in both public and church schools may use it to advantage."
+ Christian Century 61:1356 N 22 '44 70w

"Mrs. Eakin has here outlined an interesting 'project' in religious education for Protestant children. In view of the terrible reality of anti-Semitism not only abroad, but its increase here in America, this particular project is most timely."
+ Kirkus 12:502 N 1 '44 140w

EARHART, MARY. Frances Willard; from prayers to politics. 417p il $3.75 Univ. of Chicago press
B or 92 Willard, Frances Elizabeth A44-5460
Biography of Frances E. Willard, educator, Woman's Christian temperance union leader, journalist, and worker for woman suffrage, who before her death in 1898 became one of the most widely revered women in the United States. The author, a member of the faculty of political science at Northwestern, makes an attempt to separate the myths and facts about Miss Willard, and to counteract the cloying sweetness of earlier biographies. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 41:138 Ja 1 '45

Reviewed by E. M. Lynskey
Commonweal 41:282 D 29 '44 420w

"A conscientious, detailed and objective biography of the leader not only of the temperance movement but the 'general' of the whole woman's movement. . . A thorough, capable biography."
+ Kirkus 12:532 N 15 '44 170w

"Miss Earhart's biography is meticulous and thorough. Injudicious superlatives sometimes mar her style, and the reader occasionally feels that she goes to great pains to demolish one legendary picture of Miss Willard only to create another." J. T. Flanagan
+ N Y Times p7 D 31 '44 800w

"Mary Earhart has written a source book for those who wish to study the rise and sweep of the temperance and woman movements in this country. The record is embellished almost beyond lay interest with facsimiles of broadsides and letters. In its field, this work will be a valuable addition to Americana." E. K. P. Stokes
+ Sat R of Lit 27:28 D 9 '44 550w

Reviewed by S. L. Jackson
Springf'd Republican p4d D 31 '44 500w

"Miss Earhart's book is sober, sympathetic and definitely sophisticated. . . This book is the history of the phenomena of leadership. It is an important part of the American record." Ernestine Evans
+ Weekly Book Review p1 D 24 '44 1800w

EATON, ANNE THAXTER, ed. Animals' Christmas; poems, carols and stories; decorated by Valenti Angelo. 124p $2 Viking
394.268 Christmas. Christmas poetry. Animals, Legends and stories of 44-9296
Collection of short stories, legends, and poems, all about Christmas and animals at Christmas time.

Booklist 41:93 N 15 '44

"Years of experience in selecting just the right books and stories for children have gone into the making of this 'just right' collection of poems and stories about Christmas."

+ Boston Globe p36 N 29 '44 50w

Cath World 160:279 D '44 30w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p10 D 11 '44 100w

"A very fine collection." H. L. Binsse

+ Commonweal 41:128 N 17 '44 20w

"Valenti Angelo's drawings are perfect in simplicity and feeling for a book of such sensitive beauty."

+ Horn Bk 20:472 N '44 110w

"A compilation of animal stories and poems linked by their relation to the season of Christmas—an excellent selection, which should prove invaluable to public library story tellers, to schools where need of good Christmas material is never fully met. Highly recommended!"

+ Kirkus 12:402 S 1 '44 110w

"Unusually good collection of beautiful Christmas poems and legends about animals. Good for storytelling, reading aloud or for the children's own reading." J. D. Lindquist

+ Library J 69:1049 D 1 '44 30w

"This book will need no holly-sprigged wrapping to point up its Yuletide significance. All by itself, it has enough serene good-will toward men to illuminate a whole tree." Isabelle Mallet

+ N Y Times p6 N 12 '44 120w

"Because the selection has been made with discrimination and has variety, the book should prove a useful source of Christmas material to read aloud to children."

New Yorker 20:86 D 16 '44 50w

"Some of us have had these poems and old carols as a Christmas greeting from Anne Eaton. It is good to have them here in so exquisite a dress. Everything about this book speaks the simplicity and reverence, the peace and beauty of the story of the Christ Child. The stories are unusual ones, some known and some printed for the first time." M. G. D.

+ Sat R of Lit 27:33 D 9 '44 270w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p5 D 24 '44 130w

Wis Lib Bul 40:161 D '44

EATON, EVELYN SYBIL MARY. In what torn ship. 263p $2.50 Harper

Paoli, Pasquale—Fiction 44-5662

Historical novel, based on the life of Pascal Paoli, Corsican patriot, who freed his island from the Genoese. His successor, Carlos Buonaparte, father of Napoleon, is also one of the characters.

Book Week p6 Jl 9 '44 120w

Booklist 40:377 Jl 1 '44

"A simpler told story than Evelyn Eaton has previously given her readers; a colorful segment of little-known history in the long panorama of the fight for freedom. Competent but not inspired."

+ — Kirkus 12:179 Ap 15 '44 210w

"For mature High School boys and girls interested in the Napoleonic legend."

+ Kirkus 12:281 Je 15 '44 150w

"An excellent character portrait of an ardent patriot who consecrated his life to his country. Authentic historical background. Well written. Recommended." H. A. Carpenter

+ Library J 69:502 Je 1 '44 70w

"The author proves once more that she knows how to dip her pen in the essence of things past and give it interest and meaning for today. Corsica is free in this year of war, but the French maquis seethes once again with partisan bands, intent this time on freeing a whole continent of an invader." Andrea Parke

+ N Y Times p12 Jl 9 '44 320w

"A slight but rather heavy-footed novelization of the life of Pascal Paoli. . . Good enough for anyone whose teeth don't happen to be set on edge by run-of-the-mill fictionized biography."

New Yorker 20:78 Je 17 '44 110w

"Somewhat episodic in treatment, 'In What Torn Ship' is distinctly successful in creating a picture of a dramatic and turbulent span of years in Corsican history, starting with Pascal Paoli's return to his native land after a youth in exile and culminating in a desperate last stand against the French. . . Miss Eaton is inclined to over-accent the posing proclivities of her hero; his brother Clement, the priest, is a more fully felt personality. And the outlaws, who live and die by violence, are painted in bright, vigorous colors as rugged as the setting." George Conrad

+ — Weekly Book Review p7 Jl 2 '44 500w

EATON, HOWARD ORMSBY, and others. Federation: the coming structure of world government. 234p $3 Univ. of Okla. press

321.04 International federation 44-733

Volume of essays by various hands on the political and economic aspects of world federation. Contents: The problem of security, by C. A. M. Ewing; Pan-Americanism, by J. F. Rippy; The Streit and Catlin proposals, by P. G. Steinbicker; Plans of federation, by R. J. Dangerfield; The federal instrument, by C. A. M. Ewing; Rights, liberties, freedoms, by C. J. Friedrich; Machinery of federal government, by Oliver Benson; The economics of federation: Money and credit, by H. O. Eaton; Sanctions against a recalcitrant State, by P. B. Potter; The political basis of federation, by W. P. Maddox; The national state and federation, by N. L. Hill; A world legislature, by G. M. Bergman; Postwar pacification in Europe, by Oscar Jaszi; The revolt of the subjugated peoples against Hitler, by Louis Dolivet; Economic freedom for the world, by W. L. Willkie; The price of free world victory, by H. A. Wallace; A viewpoint from China, by T. V. Soong; Tomorrow's government, by C. A. M. Ewing. Index.

"The essays that compose this little book are, as is natural in the circumstances, somewhat unequal and uneven. Some were written especially for the volume; some originated with other particular ends in view. Some are compositions of a decidedly amateurish flavor; others are manifestly the work of past masters." R. K. Gooch

+ — Am Econ R 34:372 Je '44 900w

"The book is not an exhaustive or an organically integrated study of the problem of federation. It was not intended to be. Nor does it offer new or brilliant solutions, although many of the ideas discussed are worthy of serious consideration. But the authors have acquitted themselves more than adequately in their task of lighting another beacon on the long and tragic road to lasting peace." Ely Culbertson

+ — Ann Am Acad 233:229 My '44 750w

Booklist 40:226 Mr 1 '44

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:655 Jl '44 30w

"Some well-known names are included—Henry Wallace, Wendell Willkie, and T. V. Soong—but their presence does nothing to alter the impression that whoever assembled this anthology bit off more of a title than any of the contributors could chew."

— New Yorker 19:78 Ja 29 '44 120w

"Prof Eaton has presented much food for thought. The book merits study." M. J. J.

Springf'd Republican p8 Mr 14 '44 380w

"This book will not satisfy all comers. But it offers an effective invitation to the modern citizen, conditioned as he is to a narrow nationalism to 'peer over the wall of his patriotism' sufficiently to glimpse a new world secured from both want and the perpetual threat of war." Frances Witherspoon

+ — Weekly Book Review p10 F 6 '44 800w

EATON, JEANETTE. Lone journey: the life of Roger Williams; il. by Woodi Ishmael. 266p $2.50 Harcourt

B or 92 Williams, Roger—Juvenile literature 44-8239

Biography of the founder of Rhode Island, the liberal Puritan, Roger Williams. Beginning with his boyhood in London, the story carries him thru his years as clerk and protege of Sir Edward Coke, thru his college years, his marriage, and the early troubled years in New England. For junior high school.

EATON, JEANETTE—Continued

Booklist 41:61 O 15 '44

Cath World 160:281 D '44 50w

"Several years ago Miss Eaton gave us a remarkable picture of Washington, changing with the demands upon him until the Virginian farmer grew to full stature as founder of our nation. Here she shows, too, the same skill in the development of character combined with the ability to tell a good story." F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p12 O 26 '44 300w

Horn Bk 20:478 N '44 120w

"A beautiful and much-needed job. . . Jeanette Eaton is making a great contribution to the field of juvenile biography."
+ Kirkus 12:406 S 1 '44 100w

Reviewed by P. D. Edie
Library J 69:867 O 15 '44 70w

"Except for final chapter in which parallel to the present period is drawn too strongly, book is heartily recommended. For readers fourteen and older." Dorotha Dawson
+ — Library J 69:939 N 1 '44 80w

Reviewed by S. H. Brockunier
New Eng Q 17:623 D '44 140w

"The story of [Roger Williams'] fight to establish individual freedom in the New World through his own colony in Rhode Island is one of the most stirring chapters in our history. It is told here so well that it reads like a good novel. Miss Eaton has obviously done original and thorough research for her book; but the scholar in her is dominated by the storyteller. The interest, the drama never lag." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 27:29 O 21 '44 550w

"The book has a heartbeat as well as a backbone: it stands up and lives." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 D 17 '44 330w

Wis Lib Bul 40:150 N '44

EBERHART, MRS MIGNON (GOOD). Escape the night. 215p $2 Random house 44-4878

Mystery story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p4 Je 11 '44 220w

Booklist 40:356 Je 15 '44

"Great!"
+ Boston Globe p17 My 24 '44 40w

"Once again, a polished performance for her wide audience."
+ Kirkus 12:108 Mr 1 '44 80w

"With her customary skill, Mignon Eberhart has contrived to maintain the suspense to the very end and to provide a solution which is not too illogical." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p12 My 14 '44 160w

"In spite of Miss March's tendency to rush into empty houses in the dead of night without police protection, things are finally worked out in a manner which some readers may find remarkably reminiscent of the last four or five books by the same author."
New Yorker 20:91 My 13 '44 90w

"Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:32 My 20 '44 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p14 My 7 '44 120w

EBERLE, IRMENGARDE (PHYLLIS ANN CARTER, pseud). Nurse! the story of a great profession. 136p $2 Crowell

610.7 Nurses and nursing—Juvenile literature
44-4342

"A history of nursing from its beginnings even before Christianity to the present day, including the developments in medicine and surgery, and biographical sketches of some of the great pioneers in the profession. The final chapter discusses opportunities in nursing in civilian and military fields today and in the postwar world. Limited appeal but contains material unavailable elsewhere. Bibliography: p.135-136. Junior and senior high school." Booklist

Booklist 40:343 Je 1 '44

"Interesting material badly presented."
Kirkus 12:119 Mr 1 '44 90w

"Good for background reading for Nurses' Aids and all girls interested in nursing, either as a future job or for information. Recommended where needed to supplement books on nursing as a vocation." A. M. Anderson
+ Library J 69:654 Ag '44 60w

"This book gives girls hoping to be trained nurses an added sense of the dignity of the profession, and affords to older people a sort of biographical history of nursing, brief and necessarily sketchy, but with the personal quality a beginner needs." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 My 14 '44 200w

Wis Lib Bul 40:111 Jl '44

EBY, LOUISE SAXE. Quest for moral law. 289p $3.25 Columbia univ. press
170 Ethics
A44-2550

"Miss Eby is assistant professor of philosophy and religion at Milwaukee-Downer College. She examines in detail the contributions of the great ethical teachers of the past, and proposes a more scientific application of ethics to the problems of the present." Book Week

"Critical sociologists will probably find little of value in this book. Nevertheless, it represents a very considerable improvement in treatises in ethics, as compared with those that were written 50 years ago, because it recognizes that there is need of an historical approach to ethical theory; that ethics as a science has 'a social structure'; and finally that ethics as a science must be empirical." C. A. Ellwood
Am Soc R 9:708 D '44 500w

"The book is sound and thoughtful in its scholarship and forceful and stimulating in its conclusions." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p2 Ag 27 '44 90w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 61:1053 S 13 '44 1100w

Current Hist 7:229 S '44 60w

"The work is not without merit, and is expounded with simplicity and dignity. Yet it remains a slight work, even for introductory purposes. The historical interpretations, though agreeably detached, are never searching; and the efforts to forward a systematic study of ethics are more in the nature of a promise than of an achievement." C. L. S.
— + J Philos 41:529 S 14 '44 130w

"This book is valuable as a brief and practical review of the great traditional teachings in the field, and also as an appreciation of some of the problems which moralists do not always take into account sufficiently. Beyond that, however, it is not too successful. It suffers from two things chiefly—a primness on the part of the writer, and a rather serious confusion as to what she is really trying to do. Beyond that, the author is guilty of a rather superficial treatment of some of the great ethical teachings as well as of failing to make adequate distinctions between the meanings different writers ascribe to the same terms." C. D. Kean
— + Springf'd Republican p4d S 3 '44 700w

ECHARD, MARGARET. If this be treason. 240p $2 Doubleday 44-8967

Mystery story

Booklist 41:153 Ja 15 '45

"Worthy, for this has good writing, plotting, material."
+ Kirkus 12:355 Ag 15 '44 90w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p19 O 8 '44 160w

"Some nice, shiny new Oregon scenery, but the rest is familiar material."
New Yorker 20:84 O 7 '44 130w

"Plenty of excitement, numerous tough characters including ubiquitous gent wearing black patch, three-four killings, and surprise finish. Feverish."
Sat R of Lit 27:46 O 14 '44 50w

"Margaret Echard may be no stylist in the classic sense, but she has what it takes to interest Mr. and Mrs. Average Fan." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p16 O 8 '44 150w

EDDY, GEORGE SHERWOOD. A century with youth; a history of the Y.M.C.A. from 1844 to 1944. 153p $1.50 Assn. press

267.39 Young men's Christian associations 44-40110

A brief history of the Young Men's Christian Association covering its first hundred years (1844 to 1944) and written at the request of the Centennial Committee. "Because we are severed from other nations during the war, and also because of lack of space, the writer regrets that he has had to limit this history primarily to the Association Movement in North America. He has not been able to attempt a comprehensive history of the Movement even in the United States, much less in foreign lands. He has tried to give the story of a few of the men who helped shape the future of the Movement, and to select such vital and dynamic events that the younger laymen and secretaries of the Y.M.C.A. might see for themselves the lessons which the past century had to teach." (Pref)

Booklist 40:312 My 15 '44
Christian Century 61:465 Ap 12 '44 50w

Reviewed by S. L. Jackson
Springf'd Republican p4d Je 4 '44 500w

"The author's intimate knowledge of the men and circumstances of which he writes enables him to document the story of the YMCA with the names of many persons who have been connected with the organization, but it results also in a somewhat partisan recital of the history with which he is dealing. One wishes he had given a little more consideration to the fact that the period of history with which he is dealing produced not only the YMCA but other movements of a similar nature." C. L. Bower
+ — Survey 81:31 Ja '45 370w

EDDY, GEORGE SHERWOOD. Portrait of Jesus; a twentieth century interpretation of Christ. 231p $2 Harper

232.9 Jesus Christ 43-15037

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 61:305 Mr 8 '44 410w

"By wide quotation from and interpretation of authentic sources, we are given a verifiable picture of Jesus, followed by additional details (in separate chapters) of the interpretations of Paul and the Johannine literature, with a final chapter on the twentieth century Jesus. This is a remarkable book for all Christians." R. C. Mifler
+ Churchman 158:16 Ja 15 '44 180w

"Critical discernment, broad understanding, and evangelistic earnestness unite to make this volume one which respects the reader's

EDELSTADT, VERA. Young fighters of the Soviets; il. by Florian. 104p $2 Knopf

44-7948

Two young Russian boys are the heroes of this story of Russia in the present war. One of the boys is living with his grandmother in Moscow, but finds ways to serve his country; the other, slightly older is working with the Partisans, stationed in the woods near his native city.

Reviewed by H. L. Binsse
Commonweal 41:128 N 17 '44 10w

"I felt as though this should have been better than it was. . . The plot interest is holding, but one gets no sense of life under the Soviets, no sense—really—of war going on, no sense of hardship and deprivation. It is an effective looking book with full pages in gay primary colors and others in line by Florian."
+ — Kirkus 12:432 S 15 '44 90w

"A good picture of the work young boys are doing, but the conversation, in its attempt to bring in the history and customs of Russia, is very stilted and unreal. Only for libraries that feel the need of more books on present-day Russia." Elizabeth Johnson
+ — Library J 69:885 O 15 '44 70w

"The Russian characters are all rather 'glorified,' but the story has action and atmosphere."
Sat R of Lit 27:33 N 11 '44 40w
Weekly Book Review p22 N 12 '44 280w

EDELSTEIN, LUDWIG. Hippocratic oath; text, tr. and interpretation. 64p pa $1.25 Johns Hopkins press

174.2 Hippocrates. Medicine, Ancient 44-2732

"There is a gratifying sense of completeness about this monograph, and it has the further merit of orderly and cogent presentation. The Hippocratic Oath is brief, occupying but a single page of the monograph, including an ample apparatus criticus; the translation faces the text. The remainder of the brochure is devoted to a meticulous and exhaustive interpretation of the Oath, with a fulness of documentation and annotation that leaves little to be desired. There are five divisions which are indicative of the method of inquiry that has been employed, viz., I, 'The Ethical Code: A. Rules concerning Poison and Abortion, B. The General Rules of the Ethical Code'; II, 'The Covenant'; III. 'The Unity of the Document'; IV, 'Date and purpose of the Oath'; V, 'Conclusion.' " Class Philol

"The present monograph will prove of great value to the student of ancient medicine, to the classicist whose interest lies in the text of a somewhat obscure document or in one aspect of Greek private life, and to the sociologist with an antiquarian bent. Painstaking scholarship and exhaustive judgment are everywhere evident in its preparation. It is to be hoped that the author will continue to use his talents for the humanistic interpretation of the documents of ancient medicine." H. N. Couch
+ Class Philol 39:260 O '44 1200w

Reviewed by W. L. Palmer
J Religion 24:227 Jl '44 240w

EDMONDS, WALTER DUMAUX. Wilderness clearing; il. by John S. de Martelly. 156p $2.50 Dodd

44-9706

A novel of young love in American pioneer days. The scene is the Mohawk Valley; the time is 1777. For junior and senior high schools.

EDMONDS, W. D.—Continued

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p4 N 16 '44 180w

Kirkus 12:481 O 15 '44 110w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Johnson
Library J 69:1051 D 1 '44 70w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p6 N 12 '44 200w

"Here, for once, is a really first-rate 'junior novel,' never written down, constantly intense and moving."
+ New Yorker 20:91 D 16 '44 60w

"It is, perhaps, the outstanding 'young novel' of the year."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:40 N 11 '44 40w

"Out of intimate knowledge of the type of warfare waged in northern New York at the opening of the Revolution, Mr. Edmonds has created what may be called a junior novel because young people will read it, but as a novel without adjective makes a real contribution to historical fiction."
+ Weekly Book Review p8 N 12 '44 370w

EHLERS, VICTOR MARCUS, and STEEL, ERNEST WILLIAM. Municipal and rural sanitation. 3d ed 449p il $4 McGraw

614 Sanitation. Sanitary engineering. Public health 43-13895

"The chapters on milk and food sanitation are revised, new material on several other topics has been added." (Booklist) For second edition see Book Review Digest, 1937.

"The book has been interspersed with more usable figures and data than previous editions. It is recommended as an excellent text for the student of sanitation and the practical worker in the field." A. H. Stevenson
+ Am J Pub Health 34:290 Mr '44 470w

Booklist 40:61 O 15 '43

EHRENBURG, IL'IA GRIGOR'EVICH. Tempering of Russia; tr. from the Russian by Alexander Kaun [Eng title: Russia at war]. 356p $3 Knopf [10s 6d Hamilton, H]

940.5347 World war, 1939—Russia 44-6779

Chronicles the Russian war with Germany, from July, 1941 to July, 1942. The book is composed of dispatches which the author wrote for Red Star, Pravda, and Izvestia, with some selections from his notebooks. Together they make what amounts to an eye-witness account of the early days of the war in Russia.

Reviewed by Joachim Joesten
Book Week p6 Ag 20 '44 950w

Booklist 41:39 O 1 '44

"In this book, the cosmopolitan Ehrenburg returns to the grass-roots of his country, visiting collective farms, army camps, hospitals and schools, and interviewing generals, snipers, and railroadmen. Everything he sees, hears, and feels, he records in lucid, graphic style." J. J.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 26 '44 450w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Je '44

Current Hist 7:228 S '44 80w

Horn Bk 20:498 N '44 40w

Kirkus 12:330 Ag 1 '44 170w

"It is excellent journalism, definite propaganda and useful." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 69:648 Ag '44 70w

"It is an angry, passionate record, seasoned with erudition and bitter irony, studded with flashes of magnificent writing and magnificent reporting. It is a book to make the reader chuckle without merriment, a book to fan hatreds, a book which lynches with words and sears with the hot indignation glowing between the lines. . . But with all its merits, the book suffers from grave defects. So much fierce emotion is packed into its every page that in the end the reader's senses become dulled, and refuse to be moved by yet another instance of Nazi savagery or Russian valor. The impact lessens with each diary entry." Mark Gayn
+ — N Y Times p3 Ag 13 '44 1100w

"While the volume suffers from all the well-known defects of most contemporary Russian writing, his stinging sense of outrage against the barbarities committed by the Germans, and his ability to communicate that sense of outrage to the reader, make it an impassioned and eloquent account of the sombre days when the fate of Russia, and with it the fate of the United Nations hung in the balance."
+ — New Yorker 20:59 Ag 19 '44 130w

"This book is a beautifully translated collection of many of Ehrenburg's articles and commentaries along with excerpts from his diary. . . The pieces chosen are often repetitious. Surely, Ehrenburg has written enough since July, 1942 to have brought the collection approximately up to date. Although incomplete, it is still a valuable book. It is one of the few first-hand source books to the early months of the Russo-German war." W. C. White
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:7 Ag 9 '44 1100w

"Ehrenburg is a keen interpreter of events, writes in a clear, crisp style; and has a fund of knowledge, gained through wide experience, to portray capably what he sees and feels." R. S. Scott
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 20 '44 550w

Time 44:104 Ag 21 '44 250w

"Ehrenburg writes in clean, dynamic prose. He speaks directly to his army and his people. He speaks accurately for them. . . In every sense Ehrenburg is the prophet of Russian victory. He has inspired it and helped shape it, and he has done it with a moral voice. No more revealing book has been written about Russia at war." Leland Stowe
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ag 20 '44 1000w

ELBOGEN, ISMAR. A century of Jewish life [ed. by Solomon Grayzel]. 814p $3 Jewish pub.

296 Jews—History 44-4448

"Dr. Elbogen, the author of this survey of the Jewish people during the last hundred years, was a leading German Jewish scholar who made a special study of Jewish religion and culture through the ages. He went to America in 1938 as a refugee from Nazi oppression and devoted the last years of his life—he died in 1943—to a study of the period which covered the most dramatic changes in Jewish history. . . The book is designed as a continuation of and complement to the standard history of the Jews, written by another German scholar, Heinrich Groetz, who carried the story to 1840." Manchester Guardian

"The intricacy of the events and movements, the abundance of the source materials and the controversial nature of many of the issues would have baffled any but the most skilled and judicious historian. Samplings of the treatment of many of the crucial periods and episodes give evidence of fair-mindedness and sound judgment no less than of erudition. The excellent translation was made by Professor Moses Hadas in consultation with the author."
+ Christian Century 61:1026 S 6 '44 230w

Christian Science Monitor p12 O 14 '44 150w

Foreign Affairs 23:6 O '44 20w

"It is not altogether a scientific history, because for part of the period it is impossible to get the perspective required. But it is a vivid and, at the same time, a crowded record in which the mass of detail is fitted into shape as in a kaleidoscope. The author is illuminating when he is dealing with the intellectual, cultural, and religious trends of the communities. When he is compiling the facts—for example, about the building of the National Home in Palestine or the treatment of the refugees from Germany—he is surprisingly inaccurate and sometimes presents a distorted picture." N. Bentwich
+ — Manchester Guardian p3 S 8 '44 300w

Reviewed by W. J. Cahnman
Social Forces 23:229 D '44 1000w

Social Studies 33:336 N '44 20w

ELIAT, HELENE. Arena of love; tr. from French by Yvette Sakay. 217p $2.50 Howell, Soskin

44-3529

"Figuratively and literally a French novel, reminiscent of Colette—in a very private, sensuous and psychologically-toned study of a love affair between Anna and Dreux." Kirkus

"The novel 'Arena of Love' is a work of blatant eroticism." L. K.

— Book Week p6 Mr 12 '44 140w

"Not for the American general public—and definitely not for most public libraries."

— Kirkus 12:46 F 1 '44 110w

"The reader who expects delicacy is more likely to find a rather lumpy, warmed over French ragout, heavily spiced with Havelock Ellis. To this disappointed reviewer, at least, the book seemed neither audacious nor complex, and its 'psychology' may be found in any textbook for beginners." M. F.

— N Y Times p22 Mr 19 '44 80w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p6 Mr 5 '44 350w

ELIOT, GEORGE FIELDING. Hour of triumph. 214p $2.50 Reynal

940.531 World war, 1939—Peace. World war, 1939—U.S. 44-3315

Deals with both the strategy and the politics of the final steps toward victory and concludes with several chapters on the treatment of Germany and Japan and their satellites in the future.

"There are no shadings to Eliot's panorama. It is bold black and white. But the book is a sincere plea for us to carry on into peace the basic framework of an alliance evolved for war." Ernest von Hartz

+ Book Week p3 Ap 9 '44 650w

Booklist 40:301 My 1 '44

Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 10 '44 450w

Current Hist 6:435 My '44 550w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:656 Jl '44 80w

"Nothing basically new—but presented with the cogency his audience has come to expect."

Kirkus 12:40 Ja 15 '44 180w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 69:261 Mr 15 '44 140w

"Combines good sense and impractical 'realism.'" Richard Match

New Repub 110:856 Je 26 '44 240w

"'Hour of Triumph'—Major Eliot's panorama of the possible transition from world war to world peace—which is even now beginning—is to this reviewer the ablest fusion of 'realism' and 'idealism' which has yet been published on the subject." Hiram Motherwell

+ N Y Times p6 Ap 2 '44 850w

Reviewed by Hal Borland

Sat R of Lit 27:23 Ap 15 '44 400w

"His book never shouts or bullies. It is good, balanced thinking about the problems that beset us and its central thesis of the need for a United Nations Council may well be the most powerful, if still curiously shackled, idea in the world of 1944. Major Eliot has written a reasonable plea for expediency in our treatment of our allies, but for the kind of political expediency which wins not battles but wars." Joseph Barnes

+ — Weekly Book Review p3 Ap 2 '44 1300w

ELLENWOOD, FRANK OAKES, and MACKEY, CHARLES OSBORN. Thermodynamic charts; steam, water, ammonia, freon-12, and mixtures of air and water vapor; also special tables for turbine calculations. 2d ed 46p il $2.75 Wiley

621.1 Steam—Tables, calculations, etc.

"The first edition of this book appeared in 1939 with the title Vapor charts. Compared to that edition, this one contains a new chart for low-quality steam, and changes have been made in a few other charts, particularly those for ammonia and Freon-12." N Y New Tech Bks

Library J 69:814 O 1 '44 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:50 Jl '44

ELLIOTT, MRS MARGARET RANDOLPH (AXSON). My Aunt Louisa and Woodrow Wilson. 302p $3 Univ. of N.C. press

B or 92 Wilson, Woodrow. Wade, Louisa (Hoyt) 44-40197

Reminiscences of a much younger sister of Woodrow Wilson's first wife, in which she pictures her famous brother-in-law, in his life in a southern town and in Princeton.

Booklist 41:88 N 15 '44

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook

Current Hist 7:499 D '44 60w

"A warm, revealing picture of Wilson, as 'Brother Woodrow', told by his very much younger sister-in-law. . . She does bring evidence that only one of the family could know of his conflicting characteristics, his home life, and his personal appeal. After professional criticism, praise, and re-evaluations of this President, this portrait is pleasantly fresh and informal."

+ Kirkus 12:494 N 1 '44 180w

Reviewed by H. F. Pringle

N Y Times p6 Ja 21 '45 1000w

New Yorker 20:86 N 4 '44 90w

Reviewed by E. K. P. Stokes

Sat R of Lit 27:10 N 25 '44 900w

"This is a warm, loyal book written by one who was very close to President Wilson, and his admirers will welcome the anecdotes that make him seem very human." M. D.

+ Springf'd Republican p4d D 31 '44 500w

"Serious students of Woodrow Wilson the statesman will discover little that is new in the tales his bright and pretty little sister-in-law retells, but almost every one will find pleasure and reward in the pictures Margaret Axson Elliott paints of the small Southern town of Illyria (a combination of all the small Southern towns she ever knew) in the days when it was slowly recovering from the War Between the States, and in the graceful way of life that pervaded the home of the rising president of Princeton University in New Jersey." Lamar Trotti

+ Weekly Book Review p2 N 12 '44 1500w

ELLIOTT, MRS MAUD (HOWE). This was my Newport. 279p il $4 Mythology co, 10 Arrow st, Cambridge 38, Mass.

974.57 Newport, Rhode Island 44-9074

"Mrs. Elliott, remembering all sorts of things, gathering bits from the old Redlands Library, pointing to Gilbert Stuart's portraits, recalling her own inability to master the art of driving a yoke of oxen, discussing whether a Chickering grand piano (a necessity, she says, of every proper New England family) or a Steinway, backed by the New Yorkers, was the better piano, is not only patchwork but sometimes close-stitched tapestry of the past, and very revelatory. . . The book is filled with letters—for Mrs. Elliott, daughter of Julia Ward Howe and Samuel Gridley Howe, and one of the Ward clan, seems to have had her pick of many Newport family treasure chests of old letters." Weekly Book Review

Booklist 41:137 Ja 1 '45

Reviewed by Wayne Andrews

Commonweal 41:403 F 2 '45 500w

Springf'd Republican p4d D 31 '44 60w

"This sort of book of recollection, allowing for the self-indulgence, implicit in all memoirs, is enlivening. If, like yeast, it could work to make other women recall the seventies and eighties of the last century, or even the 1900's, pull out anecdotes, and private concrete bits of testimony as to what people clung to for ethics,

ELLIOTT, M. H.—Continued
ambitions and diet, some future historian might the better construe what is enduring in the American way of life; what is ephemeral in celebrity, and what is dear in family relations." Ernestine Evans
+ Weekly Book Review p14 N 26 '44 1200w

ELMS, FRANCIS RAYMOND. Builders of our nation; stories and pictures of some of the great men who helped to build our country. 79p $2 Whitman, A.

920 U.S.—Biography—Juvenile literature 44-122

"Brief biographical information, sufficient for identification, of 36 famous Americans to the time of Abraham Lincoln." Wis Lib Bul

"Fine for an elementary library reference section; also has a short index. Comprehensive and yet with only the outstanding included, and these given in detail as warrants their importance. . . Good detail for each man, and this very simply given." M. L. Goodwin
+ Library J 69:120 F 1 '44 70w

"A well-made book; would have school reference use."
+ Wis Lib Bul 40:111 Jl '44

ELTING, MARY, and others. Battles—how they are won; maps and il. by Jeanne Bendick. 95p $2 Doubleday

940.5401 World war, 1939—Campaigns and battles. Strategy. Tactics 44-40153

The story of World war II down to the invasion of Italy told from the point of view of military strategy in terms simple enough for young readers (junior high school). Beginning with sections on fundamental principles of strategy which were laid down first in prehistoric times, the authors show how these principles were employed on Guadalcanal and Madagascar, at Stalingrad, and on the high seas, in North Africa and Sicily.

Booklist 40:393 Jl 15 '44

"The parent of the child who receives this book for Christmas will be no different from the father who plays all day with Johnny's new electric train. He will find that this wide, well-illustrated volume explains better what is going on behind the headlines than many weighty tomes on the subject of military strategy."
+ Boston Globe p36 N 29 '44 50w

"Timely, worthwhile and interesting material for children who are alert to the facts of today's news. The purpose, planning and execution necessary for some of the battles of this war are presented in understandable terms. . . Good factual material for school libraries. Illustrations in three colors will catch the attention of even younger children."
+ Kirkus 12:278 Je 15 '44 110w

"The diagrams and gay little illustrations make it wonderfully clear. The chapter of Stalingrad is particularly good." Marian Cumming
+ Library J 69:654 Ag '44 90w

"The method of exposition is by pleasant, conversational—but not chatty—narrative, plain and thickly strewn with small colored pictures. . . The book is for older young folks than those for whom 'Soldiers, Sailors, Fliers and Marines' was written. It may help some parents to maintain prestige as military authorities on the home front." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Jl 30 '44 350w

ELTON, WALLACE W. Navy in the sky. (Whittlesey house publication) 104p $2 McGraw

623.74 U.S.—Navy—Air service. Aeronautics, Military 44-2842

"One hundred and twenty-eight official U.S. Navy and Marine Corps photographs. Designed to serve in the indoctrination courses of naval officers and will be of interest to others. Brief historical notes, some naval nomenclature and thumbnail review of land planes, seaplanes, flying boats, blimps, aircraft carriers, armament, Naval Air Transport Service, Marine Corps and the WAVES." Library J

Booklist 40:372 Jl 1 '44

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:305 Ap 1 '44 50w

"Particularly good for browsing." Eileen Riols
+ Library J 69:355 Ap 15 '44 30w
New Yorker 20:99 Mr 25 '44 30w

"No words can adequately describe the beauty of these photographs. They must be seen to be appreciated, and in seeing them the reader will comprehend the importance of aviation as a branch of sea power." R. A. Brown
+ Social Studies 35:330 N '44 110w

ELTON, WALLACE W., and others. Guide to naval aviation. 296p il $2.50 McGraw

623.746 Aeronautics, Military. U.S.—Navy—Air service 44-2340

"This book is a brief guide and elementary introduction to Naval Aviation for those who wish to know or need to know more about the background, organization, equipment, and operation of the United States Navy Air force. The text was written as a result of the authors' experience in teaching their course, An Introduction to Naval Aviation, at the Naval Air Station, Quonset Point, R.I., and is designed for the indoctrination of naval aviation officers." (Publisher's note) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:305 Ap 1 '44 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:3 Ja '44

ELWELL, CLARENCE EDWARD. Influence of the enlightenment on the Catholic theory of religious education in France, 1750-1850. 335p $3.50 Harvard univ. press

268.82 Religious education. Church and education A44-1288

"Catholic readers and others will read with interest and profit about those important changes in the system of Catholic religious education resulting from the Enlightenment in France. The most significant of alterations were those in organization and administration. Religious education and secular education were separated, the former remaining in the church, the latter being handed over to publicly supported schools. The author, who is professor of education in Sisters College, Cleveland, quotes freely in French." Library J

"The fact that this book is written with a cool precision which suggests the word 'thesis' is a guarantee of its accurate scholarship, and although on this account it may not have a wide appeal the thoughtful student of church history or of education will find valuable material in it for many an unwritten thesis." Margaret Williams
+ Commonweal 40:67 My 5 '44 700w

Reviewed by O. G. Lawson
Library J 69:116 F 1 '44 110w

EMBREE, EDWIN ROGERS. 13 against the odds. 261p il $2.75 Viking

325.26 Negroes—Biography 44-636

A collection of biographies of the following contemporary figures of the Negro race: Mary McLeod Bethune, Richard Wright, Charles S. Johnson, Walter White, George Washington Carver, Langston Hughes, Marian Anderson, W. E. B. Du Bois, Mordecai W. Johnson, William Grant Still, A. Philip Randolph, Joe Louis, Paul Robeson.

Am Hist R 49:801 Jl '44 100w

"It is regrettable that Mr. Embree, despite his vast store of knowledge about Negro leaders and intellectuals and despite the unusual vantage point he occupies as president of the Rosenwald Fund, should have produced such a romanticized book. This feeling of regret is all the more heightened upon the realization that the writer had extraordinarily rich materials at his disposal and he failed to present the many against the odds in a more meaningful and convincing manner." S. M. Strong

Am J Soc 50:159 S '44 800w

"This is an inspirational book and should be read and used as such. The author has made each of the thirteen a hero in his own right; each story is deeply appealing. It is the type of book that is needed to help America make a larger use of the gifts of its colored citizens." F. H. Hankins

+ Am Soc R 9:330 Je '44 200w

Reviewed by I. De A. Reid

Ann Am Acad 234:157 Jl '44 400w

Reviewed by Bucklin Moon

Book Week p5 F 20 '44 380w

Booklist 40:245 Mr 15 '44

Bookmark 5:16 My '44

Christian Century 61:209 F 16 '44 120w

Reviewed by W. C. Kernan

Churchman 158:17 Je 1 '44 210w

"While serving to destroy 'stereotype' Negro idea among adults, especially recommended for young people—inspirational for young Negroes, informational for young white Americans." D. R. Homer

+ Library J 69:120 F 1 '44 100w

New Repub 110:358 Mr 13 '44 120w

"The stories themselves are fascinating, and their value is increased by the way in which Mr. Embree has handled them. He is sometimes a personal friend, always a respectful observer, never the patronizing white brother." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p5 F 13 '44 950w

"Mr. Embree writes sympathetically of his subjects and deeply feels the prejudices and handicaps with which they have had to contend, but his prose often takes on an over-affectionate, soap-sudsy quality that is not improved by the presence of almost every cliché known to sociological man."

+ — New Yorker 19:87 F 12 '44 90w

Scientific Bk Club R 15:3 Mr '44 240w

"The book is an important addition to the library of those who wish to know something of the personal reactions of gifted Negroes to the caste system which American racial prejudice has built up during the past hundred years." L. B. Granger

+ Survey G 33:224 Ap '44 500w

Theatre Arts 28:442 Jl '44 600w

"This is not the book of a scholar, though Mr. Embree is that, but of a man whose work has caused him to know and like members of the Negro race and to want to tell the stories of persons who are or might be his friends. The result is an unusually interesting series of success stories, for their subjects are human beings, not paragons. The book should make further friends for these thirteen and for other 'Brown Americans.'" Mary Ross

+ Weekly Book Review p10 Mr 5 '44 750w

Reviewed by M. R. Davie

Yale R n s 33:547 spring '44 900w

EMERSON, GERTRUDE (MRS BASISWAR SEN). Voiceless India; rev. ed, with introds. by Pearl S. Buck [and] Rabindranath Tagore. 458p il $3 Day

915.4 India—Social life and customs. India—Social conditions 44-40068

"Gertrude Emerson's description of her life in one of India's 700,000 villages . . . first published in 1930 [Book Review Digest, 1930, 1931] and out of print for many years, has been thoroughly revised, and an introduction by Pearl Buck has been added." Commonweal

Booklist 40:287 Ap 15 '44

"Even reverence for life and warm fellow feeling cannot write a book like this. That requires a sincerity which does not strain for effects with words and an integrity which reports the truth as it reveals itself. These the author indubitably has. The result is a book which introduces to the reader those whom Tagore, in a beautifully written introduction to the English first edition, calls the 'unfortunate Indian villagers. . .'" H. E. Fey

+ Christian Century 61:925 Ag 9 '44 750w

Reviewed by Max Fischer

Commonweal 40:68 My 5 '44 280w

"The reappearance of 'Voiceless India,' with introductions by Rabindranath Tagore and Pearl S. Buck, is testimony to the essential permanence of the Indian way of life and also to the classical quality of the book. Changes have taken place in India since 1930 but they have been chiefly in the political sphere, and of politics the author has almost nothing to say." R. M. Lovett

+ New Repub 110:820 Je 19 '44 1100w

Reviewed by K. L. Mitchell

N Y Times p14 S 24 '44 550w

"This new edition of Gertrude Emerson's famous study, with prefaces by Pearl Buck and Rabindranath Tagore, is a storehouse of well digested, clearly presented information. Moreover, Miss Emerson reflects in her writing her sensibility and understanding. She is a trained economist and an excellent stylist, drawing upon monumental erudition and wide practical experience to buttress her conclusions." John Stigall

+ Pacific Affairs 17:500 D '44 210w

EMERSON, WILLIAM ROBIE PATTEN. Health for the having; a handbook for physical fitness. 146p $1.75 Macmillan

613 Hygiene SG44-27

Detailed and definite instructions on how to form healthful living habits in order to achieve greatest fitness for daily tasks. Partial contents: How well are you?; Underweight—its correction; Overweight—its correction; Are you habitually overdoing?; Does your school system make for health?

Reviewed by W. W. Peter

Am J Pub Health 34:799 Jl '44 230w

Booklist 40:246 Mr 15 '44

Bookmark 5:6 Mr '44

Social Studies 35:143 Mr '44 70w

"This book should interest everyone, but particularly persons who are in or approaching middle life. It is replete with practical suggestions for healthier and happier living." C. E. Buck

+ Survey 80:359 D '44 350w

EMERY, WILLIS LAURENS. Ultra-high-frequency radio engineering. 295p $3.25 Macmillan

621.384151 Radio—Short wave 44-7533

"A textbook for students of electrical engineering who have some knowledge of electronics. There are numerous problems involving the design of circuits and twenty-four experiments to test the results of the problems. Chapter headings include: Cathode-ray tubes and sweep circuits; Amplifiers; Square-wave testing and transient response; Ultra-high-frequency circuit elements; and Wave guides. A list of references is given with each chapter." N Y New Tech Bks

Library J 69:814 O 1 '44 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:48 Jl '44

ENGLAND, ROBERT. Discharged; a commentary on civil re-establishment of veterans in Canada. 468p 24s Macmillan [English publication]

355.115 Disabled—Rehabilitation, etc. Veterans—Canada 43-9309

"The author, a veteran of the last war and executive secretary of the Dominion advisory committee on rehabilitation, gives credit to the cooperation between ex-servicemen's organizations and government agencies in setting up Canada's system of rehabilitation, with little political exploitation. He describes the financial aid, medical care, education and vocational training, employment, and the veterans' land act. Text of legislation is in appendixes." Booklist

ENGLAND, ROBERT—Continued

Booklist 40:351 Je 15 '44

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:665 Jl '44 20w

Reviewed by John MacCormac
N Y Times p8 Ap 23 '44 220w

ENRIGHT, ELIZABETH (MRS ROBERT GILLHAM). Then there were five; il. by the author. 241p $2 Farrar 44-7330

The four Melendy children, Mona, Rush, Randy, and Oliver, still live in The Four Story Mistake (Book Review Digest, 1942) and in this story have a fifth member—Mark Herron who has been left alone by the death of a cruel guardian. In modern idiom and with considerable verve, the children live thru a gay summer, marred only by the absence of their father, who has a war job in Washington. For grades four to seven.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p12 N 12 '44 220w

Booklist 41:27 S '44

Boston Globe p36 N 29 '44 50w

Horn Bk 20:485 N '44 80w

"There is a certain guilelessness about Elizabeth Enright's stories—but they leave you with a warm and pleasant glow."
+ Kirkus 12:404 S 1 '44 150w

"Charmingly written story. . . Recommended for boys and girls ten to twelve years old." A. H. McGinity
+ Library J 69:885 O 15 '44 80w

"It is hard for one who has lived through 'The Saturdays' with the Melendys and helped them settle into 'The Four Story Mistake' to say anything really new about those four brothers and sisters. Admiration and affection are now taken for granted and the best news is that they are still very much themselves, only more so, for these children really grow in their various interests." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p24 O 8 '44 200w

New Yorker 20:90 D 16 '44 70w

Sat R of Lit 27:28 S 23 '44 500w

"It is a joyous book, shining with summer."
+ Weekly Book Review p8 N 12 '44 350w

Wis Lib Bul 40:149 N '44

ENTERS, ANGNA. Silly girl; a portrait of personal remembrance; il. by [the author]. 322p $3.50 Houghton

B or 92 44-3131

Impressions of the life and rise of Angna Enters, who has been designated a "one-woman theater." She tells of her childhood, her visits to relatives in Europe, her education, and her struggles to become a dancer, ending with an account of her successes.

"This book is touched with Narcissism. It is inevitably egocentric. But a touching naivete, an almost humble, completely honest approach to the fascinating world makes Angna Enters an appealing 'natural'—as charming in her way as Bemelmans, who shares at least two of her talents. This is one of the season's most unusual and most rewarding books." Sterling North
+ Book Week p2 Mr 12 '44 650w

Booklist 40:282 Ap 15 '44

Bookmark 5:17 My '44

Reviewed by Margaret Lloyd
Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 15 '44 600w

"This is a record of an artist's development and growth, the creation of a new form of art, recounted with feeling and understanding."
+ Kirkus 12:14 Ja 1 '44 120w

New Repub 110:541 Ap 17 '44 150w

"The autobiography of Angna Enters is a fascinating record. . . Part I of the book deals with her childhood. . . This is the warmest, most expansive part of the book. The second and longest part tells of her struggle to succeed in bringing her compositions from the wings onto the stage before an audience. . . These latter parts are a bit cloyingly flavored with the author's wholehearted admiration for Ange." Barbara Bond
+ — N Y Times p7 Mr 19 '44 600w

"Extremely light-fingered, quite pleasant, and, in those chapters that deal with the author's childhood, especially charming. Illustrations, some of them very nice ones, by the author."
+ New Yorker 20:95 Mr 18 '44 50w

"A not unusual, but nevertheless rather moving story. . . Miss Enters realizes that the theater has its limitations and she uses painting and writing to supplement her acting in expressing herself. That is what 'Silly Girl' is—a key to further understanding of her art, for the charming sketches and paintings which are liberally sprinkled through the book add immeasurably to the reader's enjoyment of the book." C. K. Bausman
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 26 '44 440w

"Silly Girl is not an autobiography. It is the story of an artist's life seen through a long perspective. The life happens to correspond in its major outlines and many of its details with the life of the author, but time and space, incident and emotion, success and hunger are telescoped or enlarged according to the artist's need at the moment of her writing any particular page of this book. It is this peculiar quality of sudden change or rearrangement of scale or focus which makes Silly Girl, as a whole, lack something of the truth of art, something of the illumination which makes literature out of facts, and yet it is the same quality that gives the book its charm and persuasion."
+ — Theatre Arts 28:382 Je '44 450w

Reviewed by Isabel Paterson
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Mr 19 '44 750w

Wis Lib Bul 40:69 My '44

EPHRAIM, FRITZ. Inorganic chemistry; [tr. by P. C. L. Thorne and E. R. Roberts]. 4th ed 921p il $9.25 Nordeman [28s Gurney]

546 Chemistry, Inorganic A44-1960

" 'Fourth edition, revised and enlarged, of a standard textbook on inorganic chemistry. Its characteristics are the presentation of a wealth of factual information based on the latest conceptions of physical chemistry and theoretical inorganic chemistry.' " Special Libraries

---

Reviewed by A. B. Lamb
Am Chem Soc J 66:503 Mr '44 130w

Reviewed by J. R. Partington
J Phys Chem 48:307 S '44 800w

Special Libraries 35:100 Mr '44

EPPSE, MERL RAYMOND. The Negro, too, in American history. rev & enl ed 591p il maps $3 Nat. publication co, box 445, Nashville 2, Tenn.

325.26 Negroes. Slavery in the U.S.
43-16896

Second edition of a book which first appeared in 1939. The present volume contains an added chapter, bringing the history of the Negro in America down to include the part he has played in the present war, to 1943. Index.

"It is time we stop writing histories of the Negro long enough to write a history of America that makes the Negro an integral part. Professor Eppse is not the person to write such a history, or for that matter to write any history. He lacks the scholarship, the historical perspective, and the clarity of expression for the undertaking. His is a Pickwickian approach. . . The photographs, in spite of poor engraving, add to the value of the book. A few of the historical prints are rare and interesting; several of the modern ones are well chosen. There is, however, no accounting for the selection of a considerable group of photographs." O. M. Stone
— + Ann Am Acad 236:223 N '44 500w

Booklist 40:214 F 15 '44

EPSTEIN, SAMUEL, and WILLIAMS, BERYL (ADAM ALLEN, DOUGLAS COE, pseuds). New Broome experiment; il. by Lee Townsend. 251p $2 Lippincott
44-7490

Account in story form of a scientific experiment on an American farm. The central characters are three boys and one girl, all of high school age, and a famous Jewish scientist. For high school pupils.

Booklist 41:93 N 15 '44

"A book for thoughtful teen age boys."
+ Kirkus 12:407 S 1 '44 170w

"Recommended. Ages eleven to fifteen years." Helen Skahill
+ Library J 69:1005 N 15 '44 80w
School & Society 60:175 S 9 '44 30w

"The story presents, with justice to both sides and in a spirit of understanding, one inferiority complex in collision with another. Before the effect has worn away the story has gone through experiments in cattle-raising and bacteria-fighting discoveries in the nature of penicillin that will deal with deadly bovine diseases."
+ Weekly Book Review p24 N 12 '44 250w
Wis Lib Bul 40:149 N '44

EPSTEIN, SAMUEL and WILLIAMS, BERYL (ADAM ALLEN, DOUGLAS COE, pseuds). Water to burn; il. by Juan Oliver. 271p $2 Lippincott
43-13638

"One of this author's characteristic stories for boys, combining a country-life background with some technical problem, in this case the building of a dam. Opposition from a neighboring farmer and problems in character adjustment add to the plot." Wis Lib Bul

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:823 O 15 '43 40w

"Well told, offering some good characterization and well-incorporated technical detail found in author's Dynamo Farm. Should be of special interest to boys in rural areas and those who are 'construction-minded.' For ages twelve and above." M. M. Clark
+ Library J 68:847 O 15 '43 100w
Wis Lib Bul 40:57 Ap '44

ERDMAN, LOULA GRACE. Separate star; decorations by Janice Holland. 200p $2.25 Longmans 44-3244

Story of Gail Warren's first year of teaching. On graduating from Normal School Gail had a chance to get a first-class position, but because she feared the position was coming to her because of a beloved aunt's influence, she turned it down and took instead a position in a small mining town. And at the end of the year Gail had no regrets over her decision.

Book Week p7 Je 4 '44 230w
Booklist 40:306 My 1 '44

"Pleasant tale which might have been more searching."
+ — Kirkus 12:99 F 15 '44 170w

"Despite the fact that the heroine's difficulties are solved too neatly by the explosion of the school furnace, the book provides sound career material. Its mild love interest will increase its appeal for younger unsophisticated girls." Eileen Riols
Library J 69:355 Ap 15 '44 70w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p20 Ag 13 '44 120w

"This story is not an outstanding one, but high school girls will enjoy it." P. H. S.
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 26 '44 60w

"The detail in this story is its best point, and the best that can be said of it is that it lives up to its title. For the true teacher's work goes in, 'each in his separate star,' where his work and his delight may be to 'paint the thing as he sees it for the God of things as they are.' This Miss Erdman, a successful teacher, knows." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Je 4 '44 400w
Wis Lib Bul 40:73 My '44

ERENBURG, ILYA. See Ehrenburg, I. G.

ERMINE, WILL, pseud. See Drago, H. S.

ERSKINE, JOHN. What is music? 212p $2.75 Lippincott
780 Music 44-9189

"The first 120 pages of Mr. Erskine's book are devoted to an elementary treatise on music, musicians and musical instruments. . . In the second half, however, he abandons the making of music to consider what music makes, or ought to make, in the life of a civilized country and specifically in the United States of America." Weekly Book Review

"A book of interpretation and practical value for music lovers, potential performers."
+ Kirkus 12:315 Jl 15 '44 170w

"Title asks good question, but book gives too many wrong answers. . . Mr. Erskine is a better observer of musical goings on than of music itself. Despite some real confusion in setting forth on one hand an overemphasis on performing ability and in belittling virtuosity on the other, Mr. Erskine gives some good advice. Not recommended nevertheless." Leonard Burkat
— + Library J 69:760 S 15 '44 110w

Reviewed by Cecil Smith
Sat R of Lit 28:30 Ja 20 '45 1400w

"In the second half . . . Erskine can be understood even by those with no musical appreciation and here he is shrewd, persuasive, eloquent and exceedingly amusing. Perhaps he is a thought malicious in spots and perhaps he is profoundly wise. At any rate he is well worth reading by any one interested, not necessarily in music, but in the development and enrichment of American civilization." G. W. Johnson
+ Weekly Book Review p5 N 12 '44 470w

ESCAPE from Königstein. 308p $2.75 Scribner
44-6935

Königstein is a seven-centuries-old castle on a mountain top, which had at one time been a museum. In the present war Königstein was made into a German prison for French generals and admirals. The novel describes life in this fortress, from which escape seemed utterly impossible. Thru the cleverness of a beautiful woman, wife of the custodian of Königstein, one escape was achieved, and the story of her sacrifice and of the escape forms the plot of the book.

"One of the most dramatic stories of the war so far. The author does not have to resort to any literary devices to produce a thrill on every page. All he has to do is give us a simple narrative; the subject matter itself takes care of the thrills." Edith Roberts
+ Book Week p2 Ag 20 '44 320w

Reviewed by Thelma Purtell
N Y Times p3 Ag 27 '44 400w

"The background and details of life at Konigstein are apparently authentic, being supplied by Michel Bernin, who was a prisoner there, and the story which has been woven around these facts is an interesting one which with a little stretch of the imagination might actually have happened." H. J. Sloan
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Jl 30 '44 330w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p12 Ag 13 '44 150w

ESCRITT, LEONARD BUSHBY. Regional planning. 263p il $5 Norton [12s 6d Allen, G]
711.3 Regional planning 43-14839

"An outline of the scientific data relating to planning in Great Britain." (Subtitle) Partial contents: Regional surveying; Preliminaries

ESCRITT, L. B.—Continued
of planning; The study of the soil; Agriculture and forestry; Land drainage, river and coastal works; Water supply; Location, size and scale of towns; Siting residential areas; Industries and municipal services; Ports; Highways. The author is an English engineer. Bibliography. Index.

"Mr. Escritt, himself a water and drainage expert, is at his most reliable when summarising the planning considerations in that specialised field. When he comes to summarising the considerations in the sociological field, he is inadequate and not free of unscientific prejudice. He gives, for instance, quite wrong impressions of the tenor of the Barlow Report and Lewis Mumford's Culture of Cities. Perhaps his bibliography reveals why his book does not live up to its ambitious specification. It is strong in works on engineering and descriptive geography, but oblivious of most of the planning literature of the last decade. Mr. Escritt can tell the student much about sites and much about construction, but is not so trustworthy on the needs and desires of the planner's client—the human community."
+ — Spec 172:90 Ja 28 '44 200w

"In this volume Mr. Escritt gives us a series of essays on such matters as the study of the soil, the water cycle, the siting of residential areas. They convey a great deal of information, very clearly put, and they should be very useful to students of planning. . . The side on which Mr. Escritt is least satisfactory is that of the social sciences."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p436 S 11 '43 480w

ESQUIRE (periodical). Jazz book; ed. by Paul Eduard Miller; introd. by Arnold Gingrich. (Smith & Durrell publication) 230p il $2 Barnes, A.S.
780.973 Jazz music. Musicians 44-9505

"This is a compendium of literature on the origins of jazz, with sketches of the musicians, and what they have played on what records, even to the companies and catalog numbers. A good book for those who 'read hot,' 'collect hot,' and 'listen hot.'" Christian Science Monitor

Booklist 41:166 F 1 '45
Boston Globe p16 N 15 '44 130w
Christian Science Monitor p13 D 23 '44 50w
Reviewed by W. J. Mitchell
Sat R of Lit 28:37 Ja 20 '45 750w

"The most ambitious feature about this year-book is the 'Musicians Bio-Discographies' containing biographies and important records of over 100 jazz musicians. This reviewer felt that some of the—to him—great were slighted; but in jazz matters taste and opinion often differ. The pictures are fine; scores of them, from the 1921 Erskine Tate orchestra posed studio shot (with instruments scattered all over the floor and the boys seemingly blowing their heads off in great cacophony), right up to action shots of Carnegie hall jam sessions." Thomas McEnroe
+ Springf'd Republican p4d D 31 '44 220w

ESTES, MRS ELEANOR. The hundred dresses; il. by Louis Slobodkin. 80p $2.50 Harcourt 44-8963

Story of plain, stupid-looking little Wanda Petronski, the butt of the other girls' teasing, and how it came about that Wanda did have "a hundred dresses, all lined up" in her closet at home.

"For me, this is one of the most important books of the year because it will help to mold the behavior and thinking of the children who read it. No young person who experiences this story—it is an emotional experience—and then talks it over with some understanding grownup will ever forget it."
+ Book Week p1 N 12 '44 350w
Booklist 41:94 N 15 '44

"No girl who reads it can ever again be cruel to anyone who is not as blessed with wordly goods as she is. There is no preaching in the story, but the reader gains a lesson in loving-kindness and understanding of his neighbor that can never be forgotten. It might be read by many adult women with profit."
+ Boston Globe p36 N 29 '44 60w

"There is a great artistry in both text and pictures of this tender story of little Polish Wanda. It says neither too much nor too little, but its effect is dynamic."
+ Cath World 160:279 D '44 30w

"A touching and lovely little story, one of those rare books with a hidden moral which does not preach, which seems perfectly true, and yet really is going to make the little girls who read it 'be more kindly affectioned one to the other.'" F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '44 150w
Horn Bk 20:485 N '44 100w

"This is off the track for the creator of The Moffats, but it is a story that might well be told to all generations. . . Simply told—without any preaching—the lesson will go home to any young reader. The Louis Slobodkin illustrations in delicate color are unusual and imaginative."
+ Kirkus 12:451 O 1 '44 130w
Reviewed by P. D. Edie
Library J 69:866 O 15 '44 70w
Reviewed by E. T. Dobbins
Library J 69:1004 N 15 '44 80w
Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p16 Ja 28 '45 200w
New Yorker 20:89 D 16 '44 50w

"Sensitive, intuitive, restrained—this slim little book will take its place with the books that endure." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 27:31 N 11 '44 300w
Springf'd Republican p4d N 5 '44 110w

"Beautiful in its softly colored, spacious pictures, beautiful in its understanding of child character and belief in the essential goodness of a child's heart, most beautiful in blending pictures and story in one harmonious whole, this is the most satisfactory collaboration of these two artists, each in his own medium."
+ Weekly Book Review p7 N 12 '44 500w
Wis Lib Bul 40:161 D '44

ETHRIDGE, WILLIE (SNOW) (MRS M. F. ETHRIDGE). This little pig stayed home; il. by John Groth. 240p $2.50 Vanguard
818 44-3547

Amusing anecdotal account of one woman's wartime life on the home front. The author lives in Kentucky, has one son in the war, a daughter studying to be a nurse's aid, and two younger children. This account covers one year—September 1942 to September 1943—during which time Mrs Ethridge learned to cope with furnaces, lack of oil, victory gardens, bond drives, ration cards, aid to Russia, and even a goat, all of which she takes in her stride.

Reviewed by Katherine Sanders
Book Week p11 Ap 9 '44 380w
Booklist 40:300 My 1 '44
Bookmark 5:10 My '44
Christian Science Monitor p11 My 13 '44 430w
Kirkus 12:41 Ja 15 '44 180w

"It was time somebody came right out and said that being a civilian isn't all beer and skittles. . . Most of this is recounted entertainingly and with good humor. Mrs. Ethridge suffers, from time to time, from a certain coyness. . . But her wartime ménage sounds far less dull and irritating than most." Jane Cobb
+ N Y Times p8 Ap 2 '44 360w

"Altogether a high-spirited book about lovable, amusing people." Page Cooper
+ Weekly Book Review p15 Ap 2 '44 450w
Wis Lib Bul 40:84 Je '44

ETS, MRS MARIE (HALL). In the forest; pictures by [the author]. [45p] $1 Viking

44-7727

Picture story book about an imaginative small boy who goes for a walk in the forest and is joined by a procession of forest animals, who cease their activities to follow a little boy with a horn. For children four to seven.

"'In the Forest' succeeds beyond a doubt, and if you want to prove it just try reading the story to some small child. You'll find yourself putting on command performances until you are weary, or until your young audience has learned every word, so that he can 'read' it for himself." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p16 N 12 '44 210w

Booklist 41:61 O 15 '44

Cath World 160:278 D '44 20w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '44 150w

Reviewed by H. L. Binsse

Commonweal 41:128 N 17 '44 10w

Horn Bk 20:474 N '44 40w

Kirkus 12:449 O 1 '44 90w

"The drawings are soft and lovely. There is a strange impression conveyed, as if one really moved through a great, dim forest." M. C. Skinner

+ Library J 69:862 O 15 '44 70w

"Just right for nursery school age. Recommended for all libraries." J. E. Wooster

+ Library J 69:1104 D 15 '44 60w

"Marie Hall Ets has given us that rare thing, a book of shared delight for adults and children. . . The text has rhythm and lovely cadence; there is real gaiety in the drawings." A. T. E.

+ N Y Times p10 N 12 '44 100w

"The creator of Mister Penny gives us a book this year that all good booklovers should present to the youngest child in the family. Like 'And To Think That I Saw It on Mulberry St.' and 'Magic Michael' it is exactly the sort of adventure that a child would imagine with no effort at all and with that rare and precious humor that so seldom survives childhood." M. G. D.

+ Sat R of Lit 27:28 N 11 '44 280w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p5 O 29 '44 350w

ETTLINGER, HAROLD. Fair fantastic Paris; drawings by Roger Duvoisin. 250p $3 Bobbs

914.436 Paris—Description 44-8038

Sketches of Paris before the war, with one chapter of jottings on the last days before France entered the war. It is a picture of a beloved city, painted with all its lights and shadows, and plenty of anecdotes of people, grave and gay. The author, who was an American newspaper man, died soon after finishing the book.

"This book comes out at the right time, when Paris once more is free, while she remains fair and fantastic. It is above all a testimony to the love, the genuine, authentic love Americans have for Paris." Andre Maurois

+ Book Week p3 S 10 '44 650w

Booklist 41:40 O 1 '44

"Many books about France and Paris, written by English or American journalists, sin either by a transparent pretentiousness, in the manner of Sisley Huddleston; or else by a kind of boozy nostalgia, almost equally insulting to the writer and to his subject. One is happy to report that Harold Ettlinger's book belongs to neither class. Composed in an attractive, happy-go-lucky idiom, evidently by a man who knew little or nothing of French history or literature, it does reveal a nice sensitivity to the special flavor and atmosphere of contemporary Paris which makes the reading a very agreeable experience." Cuthbert Wright

+ Commonweal 41:108 N 10 '44 420w

"Minor memories, deliberately non-political, and pleasant enough."

Kirkus 12:312 Jl 15 '44 130w

"Although Harold Ettlinger fell in love with Paris as candidly as any of us, his memoirs are singularly free from jambon du pays. Restraint and an honest search for the essence of a beloved city kept him to the straight and narrow path of faithful reporting. With some tenderness and skill he recaptures the habits and attitudes which made up the little Parisian. The light-hearted drawings by Roger Duvoisin are an integral part of what charms us here. History has attended to the dramatization of this book." Isabelle Mallett

+ N Y Times p7 S 10 '44 700w

"This is a frankly sentimental book, the only kind of book that does justice to the timeless spires and spirit of Paris. Victor Hugo wrote sentimentally of Notre Dame, Richard Le Gallienne of the Luxembourg. And now that the City of Light has been restored to the Parisians and to the world that claims it as a second homeland, 'Fair Fantastic Paris' is a timely book. Even readers who have never seen Sacré Coeur and the Champs Elysées will better understand why there had to be a Gare de Montparnasse for Compiègne." A. F. Wolfe

+ Sat R of Lit 27:12 S 30 '44 550w

"'Fair Fantastic Paris' is made up of many pictures, most of them gay and brilliant on the page. Reading it is like looking at an illustrated map of the city and seeing the streets suddenly filled with people, and hearing recognizable intonations of voice in speech and laughter. But Mr Ettlinger is too much the reporter to present merely a series of charming vignettes. He offers for sobering contrast more than a glimpse of the conditions which led up to the riots of 1934, of the sitdown strikes and the Front Populaire of 1936. By implication rather than by hearty underscoring he leads the mind inevitably to the fall of France in 1940." E. M. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p4d S 10 '44 440w

"It is a strange, almost a sinister thing in our present violent times to come upon a gentle, rambling, quaintly humorous book—and a book, of all things, about Paris of a decade ago!" Kay Boyle

+ Weekly Book Review p2 S 17 '44 600w

EULENSPIEGEL. Merry adventures of Till Eulenspiegel, by Thomas Yoseloff and Lillien Stuckey; il. by William Brady. 145p $2 Ackerman

44-21949

"Thomas Yoseloff and Lillien Stuckey have retold in easy, readable style thirteen tales of that nimble-witted rascal who is a perennial favorite with boys and girls, and William Brady's drawings are full of humor and details suggesting the period." N Y Times

"This version, while it does not replace Jagendorf's Tyll Ulenspiegel's Merry Pranks [Book Review Digest, 1938, under Jagendorf] is well done, both text and illustrations capturing the spirit of the traditional tale. Grades 5-7."

Booklist 40:324 My 15 '44

"This latest version of the Tyll legends is less satisfying than 'Tyll Ulenspiegel's Merry Pranks,' by M. Jagendorf, which appeared in 1938 (Vanguard Press). The latter volume contains nearly twice as many tales, the background is richer and clearer and the stories as Mr. Jagendorf retells them have a more convincing flavor of the medieval world to which Tyll belongs." A. T. Eaton

+ — N Y Times p17 Ap 2 '44 100w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 12 '44 140w

EVANS, ALLEN ROY. All in a twilight. 214p $2.50 Doubleday

44-40025

A simple story of the life of a pioneer Canadian farmer. The first part of the tale is told from the point of view of Emma, the wife, who isn't quite cut out for the life on the lonely prairie but is sure she has married a good man. The second part tells the story of Burl, the husband, after Emma's death.

EVANS, A. R.—Continued
Reviewed by Mildred Walker
Book Week p11 F 20 '44 420w
Booklist 40:251 Mr 15 '44

"The setting is the Canadian prairie and the basic pattern is familiar, but Allen Roy Evans has found fresh inspiration in the theme. He writes simply, and does not attempt to make his rather inarticulate characters more expressive of their emotions than one would expect them to be, thus giving them an eloquence of understanding deeper than speech." George Conrad
+ Weekly Book Review p6 F 13 '44 450w
Wis Lib Bul 40:70 My '44

EVANS, BERGEN, and MOHR, GEORGE JOSEPH. Psychiatry of Robert Burton. 129p $2 Columbia univ. press [13s 6d Oxford]

828 Burton, Robert. Melancholy A44-3464

"A psychiatrist and a professor of English here offer a fresh evaluation of Robert Burton's book which shows how close he came to modern psychological insight into mental and emotional disorder. It is the first full-length presentation of Burton's psychiatric theories in the light of modern psychological knowledge." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p2 D 24 '44 50w

"The two authors of the present study—one a professor of English and the other a psychiatrist—have performed a worthy service in discovering a new value in Burton without diminishing the one that was already recognized." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 61:1169 O 11 '44 750w

"An admirer of Charles Lamb will feel that Professor Evans, in his zeal to rehabilitate Burton's seriousness, does less than justice to Lamb when he speaks of his 'chatter' about the 'Anatomy'; Lamb's feeling about the miseries of childhood is close to Burton's, and one of his best statements of it (No. XII of 'The Popular Fallacies') reflects Burton directly. But the exception is unimportant—Mr. Evans has written a monograph that is a model of scholarly brevity, grace, and point." L. T.
+ — Nation 159:532 O 28 '44 420w

EVERS, HELEN, and EVERS, ALF. Fussbunny. [40p] il 50c Rand McNally
44-2951

Picture-story book for very young readers, describing a fussy little bunny who didn't like anything to eat, and how his clever mother cured him of his stupid habits.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p15 Ap 23 '44 200w
Kirkus 12:169 Ap 1 '44 80w
Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 Jl 16 '44 200w

EVLANOFF, MICHAEL. Nobel—prize donor: inventor of dynamite, advocate of peace. 190p il $2.50 Revell

B or 92 Nobel, Alfred Bernhard 44-2656

Biography of Alfred Nobel, inventor of dynamite, who was also the creator of the Nobel prizes for the promotion of science and literature and permanent peace.

Foreign Affairs 23:11 O '44 10w
Reviewed by Richard Match
N Y Times p14 Mr 12 '44 500w

"The story is surprisingly interesting throughout, even to the layman who might think technical facts about dynamite and ballistite would be difficult to understand. The author has given us more than a biography of an inventor, millionaire and pacifist; he has done a study of a family and the times in which it lived, steeped in French, German and Russian history and literature of the past century." H. L. Mitchell
+ Springf'd Republican p8 Mr 16 '44 400w

EWEN, DAVID. Men of popular music. 213p il $2.75 Ziff-Davis

927.8 Musicians, American. Music, Popular 44-9506

This book traces the evolution of American popular music during the last forty years, as told thru the careers of some of its exponents. Partial contents: King Oliver, Irving Berlin, Louis Armstrong, Duke Ellington, Paul Whiteman, Ferde Grofé, George Gershwin, Jerome Kern, Rodgers and Hart, Cole Porter, Benny Goodman.

"Ewen's book is an extremely minor contribution to the contemporary music library." P. E. Miller
— Book Week p10 Ja 14 '45 380w

"Mr. Ewen's book is stimulating. . . There are a bibliography and a list of suggested recordings. But why no index?" Cyrus Durgin
+ Boston Globe p19 D 6 '44 170w

"A fine job of tracing the evolution of American popular music of the century from the sentimental ballads of the early 1900's, New Orleans ragtime, and Dixieland, to the swing of today."
+ Kirkus 12:362 Ag 15 '44 170w

"The hot jazz fans will look in vain for many of their favorites. Coverage is not broad enough to supply even an almost satisfactory view of these spheres of musical activity. Material presented in Ewen's familiar journalistic manner." Leonard Burkat
Library J 69:881 O 15 '44 110w
Theatre Arts 29:64 Ja '45 200w
Weekly Book Review p11 D 31 '44 200w

EWEN, DAVID. Music for the millions; the encyclopedia of musical masterpieces. 673p $5 Arco

780.3 Musicians—Dictionaries. Music—Analysis, interpretation, appreciation 44-47054

"This compendium does not compete with Grove . . . but it makes easily accessible brief biographies (alphabetically arranged) of composers famous in musical history from Albeniz to Wolf-Ferrari, accompanied in each case by enough about his better known works to help a first listener to get more out of them, and enough about his part in music for the more thoughtful reader to place him in its great procession. . . There are the usual appendices, with a skeleton key to musical history and good reading lists for further use." Weekly Book Review

"In a volume as extensive as this there will naturally be many omissions and some inaccuracies. Ewen misleads his readers when he assures them that Bach composed his harpsichord concertos for the piano. . . So, too, Debussy's 'La Mer' was not 'completed at a country place in Burgundy,' but at Eastbourne, on the south coast of England. . . There are other errors, but they are not so flagrant as to detract seriously from the value of the book." Felix Borowski
+ — Book Week p15 O 29 '44 360w
Booklist 41:120 D 15 '44
Kirkus 12:492 N 1 '44 90w
Reviewed by P. H. Lang
— Sat R of Lit 28:35 Ja 20 '45 1200w

"Practical, sensible, sympathetic. . . For most radio audiences it will be quite sufficient. For many who think themselves unmusical it may be an introduction to enjoying good music, for the style is not only readable but ingratiating and recordings are recommended throughout."
+ Weekly Book Review p38 D 3 '44 280w

EWEN, DAVID. Tales from the Vienna woods; the story of Johann Strauss; il. by Edgard Cirlin. 216p $2.50 Holt

B or 92 Strauss, Johann, 1825-1899—Juvenile literature
44-9972

A biography of Johann Strauss written for young people. The appendices include a glossary, a list of Johann Strauss' works, a list of records, and a collection of Strauss themes. Index.

Booklist 41:126 D 15 '44
Cath World 160:281 D '44 50w

"Well and intelligently written." H. L. Binsse
+ Commonweal 41:128 N 17 '44 20w
Kirkus 12:482 O 15 '44 110w

"Recommended for older boys and girls." F. W. Butler
+ Library J 69:1106 D 15 '44 70w
New Yorker 20:91 D 16 '44 90w
Springf'd Republican p4d D 10 '44 280w

"Musical biographies for young folks have within middle-aged memory changed their character from something your music teacher lent you, hoping you'd read it, to books welcomed by any one who listens to good programs on the radio. This one deserves wide popularity."
+ Weekly Book Review p16 N 12 '44 350w

EXTON, WILLIAM. He's in the destroyers now; pictures courtesy U.S. navy. 224p $2.75 McBride

359.32 U.S.—Navy—Sea life. World war, 1939—Naval operations 44-3582

"Inside view of life on a destroyer, what these ships are doing in the Southeast Pacific, the North Atlantic and in support of the landings in North Africa. Lieutenant Commander Exton has served aboard a destroyer and knows whereof he speaks." Library J

Booklist 40:320 My 15 '44

"Interesting text and beautiful photographs exceedingly well reproduced."
+ Kirkus 12:138 Mr 15 '44 50w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:305 Ap 1 '44 60w
Springf'd Republican p8 Ap 20 '44 120w

EYRING, HENRY; WALTER, JOHN EDWIN, and KIMBALL, GEORGE ELBERT. Quantum chemistry. 394p $5 Wiley

541 Chemistry, Physical and theoretical. Quantum theory 44-2961

"An introduction to the application of the concepts of quantum mechanics to chemistry and to related problems in physics. A knowledge of calculus is necessary to an understanding of the book. Mainly for graduate students in chemistry." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"Into this book, just over an an inch between the covers, the authors have packed a large amount of basic theoretical material, much of it not elsewhere available except in special monographs and reviews. . . The presentation is of necessity condensed in style, but is skilfull and accurate (except for an occasional misplaced index or average sign), and no essentials have been omitted. The work will be valuable as a convenient general reference book for the student, and for this purpose has the merit that each chapter can be read by itself, sufficient back references being supplied to indicate where the necessary preliminary material may be found. As an aid to further study, a good bibliography is appended." A. S. Coolidge
+ Am Chem Soc J 66:1042 Je '44 160w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:205 Mr 1 '44 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:4 Ja '44

"The book is a reliable guide to quantum chemistry, but not an easy one. The authors say that they undertook to put into a systematic, condensed form the tools which have been found useful in efforts to understand and develop the concepts of chemistry and physics. In this reviewer's opinion, parts of the book suffer from excessive condensation—somehow, there is too much drive to get things done and too little stimulus for leisurely contemplation. Incidentally, the diagrams are too few; for example, although in the chapter on reaction rates the Eckart potential is discussed in some detail, it is not illustrated graphically." V. Rojansky
+ — R of Scientific Instruments 15:258 O '44 500w

F

FABRES, OSCAR, il. See Arabian nights entertainments. Arabian nights

FAIR, A. A. Give 'em the ax. 218p $2 Morrow 44-7491

Detective story.

Boston Globe p15 O 4 '44 40w
Kirkus 12:309 Jl 15 '44 60w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p12 O 1 '44 140w
New Yorker 20:83 S 16 '44 90w

"Very good."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:42 S 16 '44 40w

"Fine reading for Fair addicts and for Erle Stanley Gardner fans, too, since these authors have much the same outlook on life and literature. Amorous dalliance, business and the law crop up at strategic points, and every character, you might say, is good for an extra shudder. It's fast, surprising and often amusing." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p16 S 17 '44 100w

FAIRCHILD, HENRY PRATT, ed. Dictionary of sociology. 342p $6 Philosophical lib.

303 Sociology—Dictionaries 44-4755

"Herein one can find definitions of terms and concepts which form the working tools of sociologists. These definitions are stated simply and leave no question as to their meaning as they have been defined by some of the outstanding sociologists of the country. Such a book is a 'must' for college and secondary school libraries. It will be a great boon to teachers and students, librarians, research workers, social workers, guidance counsellors and all others who read and study about human relations." Social Studies

Reviewed by J. O. Hertzler
Am J Soc 50:244 N 13 '44 420w

Reviewed by Florian Znaniecki
Am Soc R 9:582 O '44 650w

"The general usefulness of this volume to sociologists and to students in related fields will scarcely be questioned. . . The editor and his collaborators should be commended for their courage and industry in undertaking the very large and difficult task of bringing together in dictionary form this formidable body of sociological concepts and expressions. It would hardly be expected that a pioneer work of this sort would not reveal many shortcomings. Later editions will unquestionably profit from the experience gained in preparing the first." S. D. Clark
+ — Ann Am Acad 235:168 S '44 600w

"A valuable and much needed contribution to the field of sociology." R. H. McF.
+ Social Studies 35:239 My '44 180w

"The book will probably confirm the opinion of persons who think sociology is a hodgepodge of terms and data largely 'stolen' from other disciplines and used in strange new ways. It is not likely to be very useful to professional sociologists nor will it commend sociology as a natural science to other scientists and scholars." Read Bain
— Survey 80:175 My '44 400w

FAIRFAX, BEATRICE, pseud. See Manning, M.

FALLS, CYRIL BENTHAM. Ordeal by battle. 186p $1.75 Oxford [6s Methuen]

355 War. Strategy. Tactics 44-1370

"An inquiry into the nature of modern warfare by the military correspondent of the London Times. Especial attention is paid to such matters as strategy, tactics, logistics, and leadership, and chapters on air and naval warfare are included." New Yorker

---

"Thoughtful and modest book, surprisingly thorough for its brevity." M. A. Fitzsimons
+ Commonweal 39:523 Mr 10 '44 380w

Manchester Guardian p3 N 24 '43 100w

"In every way, for the specialist as well as for the layman interested in war, this is a signal piece of writing."
+ New Repub 110:510 Ap 10 '44 90w

"This book should prove a useful refresher course for politicians and higher ranks." Murray Harris
+ N Y Times p21 Ap 16 '44 700w

"Interesting and informative, even for those not professionally interested."
+ New Yorker 19:87 F 12 '44 70w

"A stimulating book, a thoughtful book, one of those books which are precursors, upon which more thinking and writing can be done with profit." Fletcher Pratt
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:10 Mr 4 '44 800w

"There is neither obscurity nor triteness in Captain Falls's book. It is indeed written with admirable clarity, and practically every page will provoke the careful reader to thought. It should be of especial interest to those whose minds are being turned to the study of war by the grim reality of the present; they will find in it the skilful interweaving of 'this war' and 'war' which they require." S. H. F. Johnston
+ Spec 171:440 N 5 '43 550w

"It was more than a century ago, after years of reflection following the Napoleonic wars, that Clausewitz wrote down the fruits of his studies of past wars and of his experiences and observations in a continental war when Prussia had ground forces only. It is probably too soon to expect an integrated study along Clausewitzian lines of global war waged by modern means and technics on land and sea and in the air. 'Ordeal by Battle' adheres too closely to its prototype to cover modern war." L. B. Kromer
Springf'd Republican p8 F 8 '44 360w

"In these 'meditations'—as he calls them in the course of the book—The Times Military Correspondent has provided a miniature but very complete and up-to-date treatise on war and the modern methods of war. Based on practical knowledge as well as much reading and thought, it will be found a valuable guide to the many and varied factors which go to make up the most muddled of human industries."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p496 O 16 '43 950w

"'Ordeal by Battle' is not intended as the last word on military matters. It does, though, present an introduction to the study of war, a discussion profitable to professional and amateur alike." P. J. Searles
+ Weekly Book Review p13 Mr 19 '44 650w

FARBER, MARVIN. Foundation of phenomenology; Edmund Husserl and the quest for a rigorous science of philosophy. 585p $6 Harvard univ. press

142 Phenomenology. Husserl, Edmund A43-2661

"The bulk of Professor Farber's book is taken up with a condensed translation of the three volumes of the Logische Untersuchungen. It also contains a long account of Husserl's Philosophie der Arithmetik and of his early logical studies, and there is a concluding section which presents the author's evaluation of phenomenology, especially its later developments." J Philos

---

Am Soc R 9:343 Je '44 100w

"Farber's interpretation of phenomenology is responsive to criticism from every quarter and seems to be, apart from a few points, about as invulnerable and as promising as any could be. The public can be especially grateful for his fine translations from the Investigations, and for his careful account of Husserl's early studies and development. It is to be hoped that in another book he will expound the later stages of phenomenology." V. J. McGill
+ J Philos 41:48 Ja 20 '44 2400w

FARIS, NABIH AMIN, ed. Arab heritage, by Philip K. Hitti [and others]. 279p il $3 Princeton univ. press

915.3 Civilization, Arabic. Arabia—History A44-1926

"The volume contains a series of lectures by eminent specialists at the Princeton annual summer seminar of Arabic and Semitic studies. The lectures treat of aspects of Islamic history, literature, science and art, and of America's heritage from the Arab." Christian Century

---

Booklist 40:386 Jl 15 '44

Christian Century 61:670 My 31 '44 110w

Reviewed by D. H. Moseley
Commonweal 40:281 Jl 7 '44 700w

"It would be difficult to improve on Professor Ettinghausen's delightful essay on Islamic art, or on Professors Della Vida and Obermann's lectures on the cultural origins of Islam. The penetrating study of Al-Ghazzali, the greatest Arab theologian, shows how similar the best Oriental and Western thought can be. But the essays on Arab poetry and science made me wonder again why it is considered good form to discard canons of critical judgment when writing on Oriental culture." Albert Viton
+ — N Y Times p6 Je 11 '44 500w

Reviewed by P. J. Searles
Weekly Book Review p6 Jl 30 '44 350w

FARJEON, ELEANOR. Cherrystones; il. by Isobel and John Morton-Sale. 63p $1.25 Lippincott [3s 6d Joseph, M]

821 Children's poetry 44-7070

This volume of verses for young girls contains twenty-four poems on themes suggested by the old fortune-telling folk rhyme: rich man, poor man, beggar man, thief.

Booklist 41:43 O 1 '44

Cath World 160:280 D '44 20w

"Accompanied by line drawings in full accord with the imagination and charm of the flowing verses, this is a book to give real delight to older girls." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 20:381 S '44 60w

"Lilting, graceful, for teen age dreamers."
+ Kirkus 12:344 Ag 1 '44 40w

"Poems that hold the usual Farjeon beauty and magic. A charming book, with illustrations by Isobel and John Morton Sale, who did the same sort of thing for Martin Pippin in the Daisy-Field. Should be on every children's and young people's shelf." S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 69:764 S 15 '44 70w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p21 S 17 '44 160w

"It is a gracious gift to a young girl at any time, but especially now when real romance is hard to come by." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 27:27 S 23 '44 270w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 N 26 '44 250w

Wis Lib Bul 40:149 N '44

FARJEON, JOSEPH JEFFERSON (ANTHONY SWIFT, pseud). Greenmask. 253p $2 Bobbs 44-4617

Mystery story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p10 My 21 '44 70w

Booklist 41:24 S '44

"Here are mystery, adventure and romance presented by a master of the art of storytelling." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p14 My 7 '44 100w

"Agreeable."

Sat R of Lit 27:29 My 6 '44 40w

Times [London] Lit Sup p317 Jl 1 '44 60w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p18 My 14 '44 80w

FARKAS, ALADAR A. (OSCAR RAY, pseud.) Borrowed night. 262p $2.50 Doubleday

44-9915

A young Alsatian, conscripted to fight in the German army, memorizes the symptoms of traumatic neurosis, and is sent to a military hospital for observation. There he meets a half dozen other patients, some fakers, and at least one spy. The story of his precarious adventures and eventual escape follows.

Reviewed by Clip Boutell

Book Week p4 N 26 '44 270w

Kirkus 12:179 Ap 15 '44 170w

Reviewed by Warren Willcox

N Y Times p26 D 10 '44 320w

"Mr. Ray's story . . . is not too credible by any means. But, credibility aside, it is a mediocre yarn; staffed with all kinds of stereotyped characters (including a courageous, pretty, underground girl in nurse's uniform and a demonic Svengali), its denouement depends exclusively on the well-known smartie who knows all the answers." Robert Pick

— Sat R of Lit 27:20 N 25 '44 230w

"Mr. Ray makes these hospital scenes so tense and engrossing that you pay little attention to the characters as human beings, which is perhaps not surprising since some of them are Nazis." Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p24 N 19 '44 150w

FARMER, PAUL. France reviews its revolutionary origins; social politics and historical opinion in the Third republic. 145p $2.25 Columbia univ. press

944 France — History — Revolution — Historiography A44-1509

"Research tracing changes of historical opinion on interpretation of the French Revolution. Indicates the social experiences which controlled these shifts in judgment are still conflicting ideologies in modern France. Brief reviews of the best-known histories by succession of radicals, conservatives, republicans from Mme. de Staël in 1818 to Sagnac and Pariset in 1920 indicating that problems on causes and significance of the Revolution involve more than academic controversy." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"This little book is a contribution, not to the dispassionate study of the Revolution, but to 'social politics and historical opinion in the Third Republic. . . A capital study, scholarly in tone, quietly daring in thought." Albert Guerard

+ Am Hist R 50:116 O '44 650w

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick

Book Week p4 My 28 '44 90w

Reviewed by L. H. Carlson

Christian Century 61:1256 N 1 '44 750w

Current Hist 7:52 Jl '44 30w

Foreign Affairs 23:10 O '44 20w

"Timely study of elements of French political system important for consideration in plans for rebuilding Europe. Recommended for students of government or French history." D. E. Lucas

+ Library J 69:303 Ap 1 '44 140w

FARMER, WENDELL. Bicycle commandos; il. by Alice Harvey. 186p $2 Doubleday

44-9413

Mystery story for boys and girls in which a small band of children organize the Bicycle commandos and help an F.B.I. agent catch a saboteur.

Booklist 41:110 D 1 '44

Kirkus 12:450 O 1 '44 50w

"Suspense and adventure to entertain younger mystery enthusiasts." E. M. Gordon

+ Library J 69:1104 D 15 '44 50w

"A lively, realistic story."

+ Sat R of Lit 27:32 N 11 '44 30w

"This book is interesting for both boys and girls." James Mears

+ Springf'd Republican p4d N 12 '44 70w

"If this were for grown-ups it would be a sabotage shocker, being for ten-year-olds its excitements are enhanced by lively humor and kept going by constantly barking up the wrong tree."

+ Weekly Book Review p22 N 12 '44 200w

FARNHAM, MRS MATEEL (HOWE). The Tollivers. 240p $2.50 Dodd

44-8362

Some thirty years of life in a small town, called Otsego, is described in this story. The Tollivers were a flamboyant family, consisting of a mother and three startlingly beautiful daughters. Mr Tolliver only entered the picture twice, and then for brief intervals. But the three daughters delighted or shocked Otsego for many years; married well; caused scandals; and went their unorthodox ways. The narrator is Louise, the sensible daughter of the town judge, who aided, advised, and comforted various members of the family for years.

"The writing is typically feminine, which may be good or bad in your personal scale of tastes. Generally speaking, 'The Tollivers'—as a family and as a book—is the kind of a thing that can prove delightful for an evening." George Wiswell

+ Book Week p8 O 29 '44 310w

Booklist 41:77 N 1 '44

"There is a long succession of ready-made misadventures (a comic funeral and that sort of thing), which the author tries hard to make hilarious and which are on the level of humor of a not very mature boarding-school girl. The picture of an intensely social small town thirty years ago is, however, rather cozily done."

— + New Yorker 20:82 O 7 '44 90w

"All in all, the Tollivers have such engrossing adventures that the reader will find himself wishing that there was a family half as interesting living across the street." H. J. Sloan

+ Springf'd Republican p4d O 15 '44 350w

"Mrs. Farnham's touch is light, and the gay eccentricities of her characters mask the story's improbabilities." Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p16 O 15 '44 150w

FARNOL, JEFFERY. The king liveth. 273p $2.50 Doubleday [8s 6d Low]

Alfred the Great, king of England—Fiction

44-3945

Romantic tale of England during the days when Alfred the Great was struggling to save his kingdom of Wessex from the Danes.

Kirkus 12:103 Mr 1 '44 150w

Time 43:100 My 8 '44 550w

"Fact and fiction are here blended with all Mr. Farnol's accustomed skill."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p524 O 30 '43 120w

"The novel is filled with lusty action and gallantry, in this writer's familiar manner. Almost every speech begins with Ay, Yea, Nay, Ha, Ho, Aha, Oho or Verily. Verily, vocal exercises, methinks." Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p13 My 7 '44 80w

FARRELL, JAMES THOMAS. To whom it may concern, and other stories. 204p $2.50 Vanguard

44-5268

Thirteen short stories, vignettes and sketches. Most of the stories were written in the 1930's.

FARRELL, J. T.—Continued
Reviewed by Jack Conroy
Book Week p9 Je 4 '44 360w
Booklist 41:21 S '44
Kirkus 12:103 Mr 1 '44 190w

"This volume is more suitable for library purchase than his Short Stories, although that earlier work contains a far better representation of his special technique and skill." H. G. Kelley
Library J 69:354 Ap 15 '44 80w

"Most of the sketches make easy and often engaging reading, and none of them provides surprise ammunition for either this author's friends or foes. All but one of them, in fact, bear date lines indicating that the majority were first written in the early Thirties, and this being so, it is worth noting that the Farrellesque quality, impressive and irritating by turns, at any rate neither gains nor loses by the passage of time. . . Careless as some of these stories seem, and plotless as they all definitely are, Farrell has nevertheless evoked glimpses of human beings and living situations, made immense and intangible tragedies real." Kenneth Fearing
+ — N Y Times p4 My 28 '44 650w

"Even though Mr. Farrell does not appear entirely at home with these people or, for that matter, with the short story, this material adds a certain freshness to his writing."
+ — New Yorker 20:83 Je 3 '44 120w

Reviewed by P. V. D. Stern
Sat R of Lit 27:20 Jl 29 '44 230w
Springf'd Republican p4d Jl 9 '44 350w

"Many of the stories at hand evidently have been lying about for a number of years, awaiting the polishing-up process. . . One story, 'Omar James,' a forlorn tale of a man who goes to a burlesque show when his love affair mis-fires, might better have been left unpublished. . . Some of the later stories in the book are less apt to be stereotyped. . . The prize piece in the book—and also the longest—is Mr. Farrell's well known 'Tommy Gallagher's Crusade,' which first was published in 1939. This vivid account of the rise of a would-be storm trooper of the American variety must have been written at white heat. It represents Mr. Farrell at his best as a reporter and an artist, and is every bit as valid today as the day it was written." Herbert Kupferberg
+ — Weekly Book Review p13 Je 4 '44 600w

FARRINGTON, SELWYN KIP. Railroads at war. 320p il $4 Coward-McCann
385 Railroads—U.S. World war, 1939—Transportation 44-40188

A popularly written account of how American railroads have risen to the challenge of war conditions and needs.

Booklist 41:85 N 15 '44
Library J 69:1002 N 15 '44 40w

FAST, HOWARD MELVIN. Freedom road. 263p $2.75 Duell
44-40161

Historical novel based on the reconstruction period in the South following the Civil war, when for a few years Negroes and whites worked together in harmony. Gideon Jackson, the Negro leader, who rose from illiteracy to be a member of Congress, is the central character. The rise of Gideon, his efforts to help his people, the little settlement over which he presided is pictured. Then the Northern troops are withdrawn from the South, and disaster for the Negroes follows.

"In the writing of Freedom Road, Mr. Fast the historian has sometimes been outmaneuvered by Mr. Fast the moralist. The latter has pretty surely whitewashed the picture of the Convention in Charleston. It is hard to believe that there was so little unscrupulousness among the delegates—and that little voted down. Vindictiveness I am sure there was in plenty, but I think it would have been only human to have found it more evenly divided. The moralist in Mr. Fast reminds me at times of John Bunyan. His Gideon is a paragon whose integrity and courage are spotless white; his anti-christs, the planter Stephan Holms and Jason Hugar, are blacker than hell. What redeems this book is the sure narrative skill of the novelist when at last the forces of darkness, the Klan, are closing in." Edward Weeks
+ — Atlantic 174:127 S '44 360w

" 'Freedom Road' has two strikes against it from the start. It is the kind of book that makes you angry and makes you think; and it is about a current, pressing problem, despite its historic theme. Readers who want escape or pleasurable excitement will shun it. But any human being worthy the name will want to read this book, for all its grimness, because it is tremendously exciting, with that special excitement you get from fine fiction which shows simple people working out their destiny together. Anyone who has a grain of social conscience will want to read this book for its message of hope, its story of partial success and its challenge to the future." A. C. Spectorsky
+ Book Week p1 Ag 13 '44 1650w
Booklist 41:21 S '44

" 'Freedom Road' is passionate, bitter. Its characters emerge from the pages cleanly alive and genuine. As a shout against the cruelty of race prejudice in America, it reverberates. Yet one may ask himself, after turning the last pages, whether it is a novel which should have been written at all. To confuse Fascism, as that evil is known today in the world, with the unhappy melange of defeat, bitterness, hope, passion, prejudice, aspiration and fear which weaves through the tale of the American Negro in the more benighted parts of the South during the first few years after the Civil War, seems to this reviewer an extraordinary perversion of truth." J. M. Powers
Boston Globe p17 S 6 '44 550w

Reviewed by Eleanor McNaught
Canadian Forum 24:165 O '44 900w
Cath World 160:92 O '44 150w
Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Je '44
Commonweal 41:21 O 20 '44 20w

"Fast claims it is based on fact and young people are finding it a book to discuss and debate; though the setting is post Civil War, the problem is here and now."
Horn Bk 20:499 N '44 80w

"An important book which will find opposition and antagonism, particularly in the South."
+ Kirkus 12:236 Je 1 '44 300w

"Howard Fast, former page boy of the New York Public Library, has done it again! This time he has given us the most original novel yet published of the Reconstruction period in American history." L. D. Reddick
+ Library J 69:650 Ag '44 100w

"Having several times written in praise of the historical novels of Howard Fast, I regret having to report, now, my deep distaste for his latest book, 'Freedom Road.'. . I lack the knowledge to pass on the historical validity of 'Freedom Road.' But even if all Mr. Fast's historical facts can be documented, the novel strikes me as profoundly untrue because it bears no resemblance to human life under any circumstances. I am quite certain that no group of people—black, white, or mixed—could behave with the unmitigated virtue of Mr. Fast's Negroes." Diana Trilling
— Nation 159:219 Ag 19 '44 420w

"There is neither confusion nor stylistic nonsense in Howard Fast's 'Freedom Road,' which has at once the virtues and the defects of a cleanly written political tract. . . Mr. Fast has written a useful democratic tract for the times and anyone who desires racial equality is in his debt, but in his effort to counterbalance the distortions of the majority of the historians of the Reconstruction he has made overstatements, if not errors, of his own." George Mayberry
+ — New Repub 111:196 Ag 14 '44 600w

"This portrayal of a period in our history and of a man who learned the true meaning of freedom and the vigilance necessary to keep it, may not be Howard Fast's best book, and I say this only because of the high caliber of his other works, but it certainly is his most timely novel, for Gideon Jackson is as much a symbol of today and tomorrow as he was of yesterday." Bucklin Moon

+ N Y Times p5 Ag 27 '44 700w

"Mr. Fast's protagonist is occasionally shadowy, more a lyric symbol than a realized characterization, perhaps because he is a composite of 'several Negro statesmen of the time,' but this is a small fault in an otherwise successful and moving novel. In an after-word, the author documents his story for the benefit of those who might find it difficult to believe that such a period ever existed in the South."
+ New Yorker 20:58 Ag 19 '44 140w

"It is told simply in the simplest of human terms. These humble men and women, with their children and loves and graspings after the things that would make a good life for them, do not stand about as the supernumeraries of a historical pageant. Their existence is history; they are the parts of which it is the sum." N. L. Rothman
+ Sat R of Lit 27:11 S 23 '44 800w

"A magnificent and moving novel. . . In many ways 'Freedom Road' is as important and provocative a book as 'Strange Fruit.' It should be read by all those who are concerned with the future of America." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 27 '44 500w

Time 44:100 Ag 21 '44 600w

"Howard Fast's first novel of the reconstruction period, contains all the passionate belief in freedom, equality and the rights of man that has characterized his earlier books, as well as a fine understanding of the simple, uncultivated minds of a people with vision of a new world before it." Jennings Rice
+ Weekly Book Review p2 Ag 20 '44 1400w

Reviewed by Orville Prescott
Yale R n s 34:192 autumn '44 130w

FAULKNER, HAROLD UNDERWOOD. American economic history. 5th ed 784p il maps $3.75 Harper

330.973 U.S.—Economic conditions 43-14514

"This edition is rearranged and reset, and the results of research during recent years are included." (Booklist) For earlier edition see Book Review Digest, 1935. Bibliography. Index.

Am Hist R 49:354 Ja '44 40w
Booklist 40:97 N 15 '43

FAULKNER, HAROLD UNDERWOOD, and STARR, MARK. Labor in America. (American way ser) 305p il $1.60 Harper

331.88 Trade unions—U.S. 44-47684

A textbook for high school students tracing the history of trade unions in America chiefly in the twentieth century, and discussing the underlying principles and ideals of the labor movement. Partial contents: Why study labor?; The birth of the American labor movement; Rise of national unions and early efforts toward federation; The American Federation of labor; Decline of organized labor after the first World war; Labor and the New Deal; The structure and functions of unions. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 41:118 D 15 '44
School & Society 60:352 N 25 '44 50w

FAUSET, ARTHUR HUFF. Black gods of the metropolis; Negro religious cults of the urban North. 126p il $2 Univ. of Pa. press

289.9 Negroes—Religion. Sects 44-3761

"Mr Fauset presents an analysis of five contemporary Negro cults in the city of Philadelphia: Father Divine's Peace Mission movement, Mount Sinai Holy Church of America, the United House of Prayer for All People, Church of God (Black Jews), and the Moorish Science Temple of America. None are exactly alike, differing in ritual and commandments, but all are notable for the fact that they differ sharply from the fundamental Christianity which Negroes have adhered to for generations in imitation of white leadership. Even the Bible, traditionally the 'good book' of the little pine chapel, is not opened so frequently, and in some cases has been discarded." Springf'd Republican

Reviewed by E. C. Hughes
Am J Soc 50:159 S '44 240w

" 'Black Gods' is well written, and Fauset's ability in phrasing does much to compensate for a deficiency in scientific perspective. With regard to the data which it presents, however, it must be admitted that the book sketches only the bare outlines of five Negro religions in Philadelphia, and adds a few speculations concerning them. The author should, moreover, be taken to task for his attempts to maneuver several social scientists—Herskovits in particular—into a racialist position on the question of Negro 'religiosity'; an attempt from which may be inferred that Fauset's own conceptions of race and culture are somewhat hazy." R. A. Waterman
— + Ann Am Acad 234:156 Jl '44 390w

Reviewed by Carey McWilliams
New Repub 110:852 Je 26 '44 180w

"The visibility which World War II is giving to all phases of our interracial picture makes Dr. Fauset's authoritative and fascinating study of a single phase most timely; but I would caution white readers against smugness. Unfortunately, some of our white brothers and sisters from the backward parts of our nation are reacting just as fantastically, and far more bitterly, to their first contacts with the urban North." W. H. Baldwin
+ N Y Times p8 My 7 '44 700w

"Mr. Fauset has a considerate word for Mr. Herskovits' industry and fairness, but rejects the historical and psychological approach. This rejection, with a consequent overemphasis on the functional approach, and a provincial failure to make comparisons with Negro cults in the South, the West Indies, and the other Americas, are the most serious defects of a valuable study." Fletcher McCord
+ — Social Forces 23:115 O '44 500w

"A study of limited scope but of excellent direction. . . This study of cults . . . is of considerable importance. It is the first scholarly analysis of the Negro cults and while the field covered is not large the sample borings have brought up some startling facts." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p8 Mr 17 '44 650w

FEATHERSTONE, MARION, and MAACK, DOROTHY (HOWERTON). Elementary costume design. 188p il $3 Wiley

646.01 Costume design 44-4078

"[This textbook] is written primarily for the girl who is interested in becoming, through its study, a well-dressed woman. . . Rather than setting forth as guides for the amateur designer the principles of design as they are traditionally designated, [the authors] have analyzed the various ways interest in a costume may be achieved. This method was used because it presented the designing of clothes in a more forceful and more tangible manner to girls who may have had a minimum of training in art." Pref

"The book presents basic information . . . in a thoroughly practical and interesting style. . . Subject matter is adapted to college freshmen and would be excellent for an orientation course in home economics or for an introductory rather than a complete text in costume design. Not all chapters are presented equally well, and the book is limited in scope." E. C. Stevens
+ — J Home Econ 36:521 O '44 200w
School Arts 44:11a Ja '45 100w

FEDOTOFF WHITE, DIMITRI. See White, D. F.

FEENEY, LEONARD. Omnibus. 399p $3 Sheed
818 43-18459

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

Booklist 40:209 F 15 '44

"Father Feeney is not a Shelley or a Francis Thompson; he is not a Chesterton or a Belloc; but he is a facile writer of many moods—in turn charming, playful, serious, journalistic, controversial, philosophical, theological, mystical."
Cath World 159:187 My '44 180w

"The best essays in this miscellany are those in which Father Feeney writes of his family and his life as a boy. Then he achieves a directness and a simplicity lacking in his catechetical and expository essays in which are sadly combined the condescension of the schoolroom and the coy piety of the sacristy. . . By far the weakest papers in the book are those devoted to literature." Robert Ellis
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:27 F 12 '44 410w

FEIGL, FRITZ. Laboratory manual of spot tests; tr. from the German ms. by Ralph E. Oesper. 276p il $3.90 Academic press
543 Spot tests (chemistry) 44-1521

"Devoted to the special technic in chemical analysis based on the reaction obtained by bringing a single drop of the test solution in contact with a suitable reagent paper. Working methods, equipment and experiments are described, as well as the practical applications in testing rocks and minerals, industrial materials and biological substances. A final chapter deals with quantitative determinations by means of spot colorimetry. The book is designed as a text for students who have had some previous training in chemical manipulations and as a reference work for professional chemists." N Y New Tech Bks

"As a whole, the selection, arrangement, and treatment of material seems well done for teaching purposes. The smoothly reading translation renders American chemists indebted to Professor Oesper for making the information readily available. The book should prove valuable, not only for teaching but also as a source of ideas for practical analysis and research workers." M. G. Mellon + Am Chem Soc J 66:853 My '44 550w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:41 Jl '44

FEIKEMA, FEIKE FREDERICK. Golden bowl. 226p $2.50 Webb
44-8914

"Feikema tells the story of Maury Grant, a young Oklahoma farmer who, with others like himself, had turned into a roving bindle stiff following a trail of promise of work which never materialized. His trek westward brought him to the farm of Iver Thor, a Scandinavian who had settled in the golden bowl of South Dakota. . . When Maury Grant and his guitar arrived, Thor welcomed him as a person who would help him in the chores that would insure their staying on the place. . . Thor's daughter, Kirsten, plays an important role in the ideological conflict between the two men." Weekly Book Review

"Feikema is not yet ready for unqualified commendation. In general, the story he attempts is a little too big for its book covers. What it lacks, however, is not so much in the conception, which is what matters most, as in the telling—which time and labor can refine and strengthen. In the main what is the matter with the telling is that the author's notebook can be seen too plainly in his manuscript." Wendell Johnson
+ — Book Week p3 S 10 '44 550w

Reviewed by J. H. Preston
New Repub 111:573 O 30 '44 90w

"A well-worn admonition often given hopeful authors is to write about what they know. The advice is still good, and given Feike Feikema's talent, his lean, prodding prose, his knowing feel for the land, you get a moving, well-done first novel like 'The Golden Bowl.'" Andrea Parke
+ N Y Times p14 O 8 '44 430w

"Feikema is a poet as well as a novelist. His prose has a deep lyric quality which he sustains throughout the book. The songs that Maury sings, improvising on his guitar, are alive with the cadence of folk balladry." Rose Feld
+ Weekly Book Review p10 O 1 '44 600w

FEIS, HERBERT. Sinews of peace. 271p $2.50 Harper
382 Commercial policy. U.S.—Commercial policy. Investments, Foreign 44-9233

"Within the compass of this smallish but important book [the author] has given a penetrating, urbane analysis of the international monetary, investment, trade and raw materials problems and policies that will condition the economic context of the post-war world and determine whether a satisfactory outcome is evolved or the future is to be marred by domestic and international strife. The section on international monetary relations and proposals leads to a critical appraisal of the agreements reached at Bretton Woods against their historical prelude of the past couple of decades. . . The scope of this wise book embraces no less than the whole field of post-war economic issues that confront the nations of the world in their dealings with one another. Its close-packed, incisive pages range deftly over a succession of complex problems with a supple grace, blending historical background, concrete description and analytic reasoning." N Y Times

Reviewed by R. M. Weidenhammer
Am Econ R 34:925 D '44 700w
Kirkus 12:493 N 1 '44 160w

"With so rich a fare offered, it is perhaps ungracious to ask for more. But this reviewer for one would have liked to have Mr. Feis' views on the international aspects of the cartels, oil, air transportation and shipping problems. More serious, in view of the fact that Mr. Feis rightly regards reasonable trade practices as one of the main props of a better world, is the absence of discussion as to how a sane tariff policy can be 'sold' to our own people here at home. . . Sophisticated but never cynical or dogmatic, it steers its moderate course between hard-headed realism and tempered hope. Without startling 'theses' and trick solutions, it is pervaded throughout by a maturely civilized attitude. The intelligent layman could not hope to find a better guide through world economic chaos." A. D. Gayer
+ N Y Times p4 N 12 '44 1250w

"Here is an admirable treatise, clear, balanced, deeply informed, unprejudiced, a veritable model in its field. But the tragedy is that for much of the public which will finally decide these matters—the public of harassed housewives, tired miners, bored stenographers, redcaps, surgeons, chemists, technicians, absorbed, each in his own special task—for such a public, as Walter Lippmann remarked of the Bretton Woods report, it might almost as well have been written in Greek. Not that the book is involved or difficult (it is singularly clear) but because the big public has not learned even the meaning of the words an economist is obliged to use." Norman Angell
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:7 N 18 '44 900w

"A wise and timely book: wise, because in it is the distillation of his long and fruitful experience as teacher, scholar and economic adviser in the State Department; and timely, because it drives to the very heart of the perplexing problems of high employment and international economic collaboration. It is designed for statesmen and business men; one hopes that it will be read widely and its lessons studied. . . One has no desire to be captious; it is important, nevertheless, to indicate exactly for whom Mr. Feis is writing and also what he has left out of his presentation. He is not writing for the professional economist, nor is he writing for the growing group of persons who should be interested in international economic problems. The book is addressed to those who already have some elementary acquaintance with the subject, historically and analytically. Now that is a pity; for the popular prejudices and misconceptions about foreign trade and international investment are deep-rooted and widespread." L. M. Hacker

+ — Weekly Book Review p28 N 26 '44 1350w

FELSEN, GREGOR. Pilots all. 204p il $2.50 Harper
358.4 Aviators 44-9619

"Few people realize that there are more than twenty-five different kinds of pilots, each with a job so highly specialized that one pilot could not switch to another's work without special training. This book contains the stories of all of these pilots, of their training, and of their work in peace and in war." Publisher's note

Booklist 41:103 D 1 '44
Kirkus 12:452 O 1 '44 50w

"Because of style of writing and content, book is definitely for older boys. Recommended for young people." L. E. Cathon
+ Library J 69:1107 D 15 '44 70w

Reviewed by John Tunis
N Y Times p8 N 12 '44 60w
New Yorker 20:92 D 16 '44 30w

FELSEN, GREGOR. Some follow the sea; with a suppl. of Merchant marine photographs. 192p $2.50 Dutton 44-1667

This story of the Merchant Marine in wartime follows the adventures of Chris Holister, a seventeen year old boy who enlists in the service when the Navy turns him down.

Booklist 40:272 Ap 1 '44

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p12 Jl 27 '44 350w

"A most unglorified picture of life on a merchant ship, written by someone who knows whereof he writes. Good characterizations."
+ Kirkus 12:97 F 15 '44 130w
New Yorker 20:57 Jl 8 '44 90w

"George Felsen, who is serving now with the United States Marines, has written an informative as well as an exciting story. It gives an excellent picture of the lives, and the problems, of the men in the Merchant Marine. Fine photographs of ships and men illustrate the book." Muriel Gilbert
+ Sat R of Lit 27:35 My 13 '44 270w

"This is a story, but it is every word real and has thirty-two real pictures. Incredible as these adventures may seem to landsmen, they happen all the time in the merchant marine, where boys quit them not only like men but like supermen." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Je 4 '44 420w

FELSEN, HENRY GREGOR. See Felsen, G.

FENISONG, RUTH. Jenny kissed me. 181p $2 Doubleday
44-4099

Detective story.

"A well-cut and scintillating gem." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p11 Ap 16 '44 140w

"Best of the week."
+ Boston Globe p17 My 10 '44 30w

"Straight story of murder which is adequate enough, but lacks style. Not up to the usual Crime Club selection."
Kirkus 12:85 F 15 '44 80w

"Gwen Mattice, lady-on-the-make . . . was an alluring and amusing woman with a technique that makes Mata Hari look like a novice. More's the pity, then, that the plot demands her untimely death. The book never recovers from the loss of its best character, though the author's ingenuity keeps you reading to the end."
New Repub 110:542 Ap 17 '44 60w

"A story that you will enjoy and long remember." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p12 Ap 9 '44 100w

"Starts well enough and emotional content is potent throughout but solution is just a bit too sudden, although sleuthing is competent. Middlin'."
Sat R of Lit 27:26 Ap 8 '44 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p15 Ap 9 '44 80w

FENNER, PHYLLIS REID, ed. Princesses and peasant boys; tales of enchantment; il. by Henry C. Pitz. 188p $2 Knopf
398.2 Fairy tales 44-9752

Collection of folk tales, in each of which a beautiful princess is won by a brave peasant boy.

Booklist 41:126 D 15 '44

"Excellent collection of what is, probably, the favorite type of fairy tale."
+ Kirkus 12:430 S 15 '44 120w

"Since the sources from which these stories have been taken are those most likely to be found in every children's library in the land, the book is by no means recommended as a first purchase. Will be found as useful, however, as author's Time to Laugh, There Was a Horse and Giants and Witches and a Dragon or Two." M. B. Snow
Library J 69:1049 D 1 '44 60w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 21 '45 120w

FENTON, ALFRED H. Oliver Hazard Perry; il. by Gordon Hake. 249p $2 Farrar
B or 92 Perry, Oliver Hazard—Juvenile literature 44-9949

A somewhat fictionized biography of an early American naval hero. Written for young people, the book covers the whole of Perry's life from his birth to his death at the age of thirty-four, but its climax comes naturally with his great victory in the battle of Lake Erie in 1813.

Booklist 41:141 Ja 1 '45

"Good reference and supplementary material, though uninspired in style."
+ — Kirkus 12:436 S 15 '44 120w

"Readable and informative. Recommended for ages ten to fourteen years." L. G. Alger
+ Library J 70:36 Ja 1 '45 70w
Sat R of Lit 27:46 N 11 '44 30w

FENTON, CARROLL LANE. Weejack and his neighbors; il. by the author. 128p $1.75 Day
591.5 Animals, Legends and stories of 44-3161

Chapters on the life and ways of some of the little creatures of the fields and woods. Among the animals and insects are woodchucks, field crickets, garter snakes, cottontails, squirrels, chickadees, turtles, muskrats, and juncos. For grades four and five.

Booklist 40:323 My 15 '44

"Written in an easy style, with words that can be understood by those children to whom they are read, as well as the third graders who can do their own reading, they yet have Dr. Fenton's sound knowledge behind them. Well adapted to school use." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 20:205 My '44 70w

"Children of six and seven who live in the country and are interested in creatures of the fields and woods would thoroughly enjoy this read aloud; children of nine and ten could read it to themselves."
+ Kirkus 12:95 F 15 '44 150w

FENTON, C. L.—Continued

"Sketches are accurate and illustrative. Preface states that the text is easy enough for second and third grades but probably will be most used by fourth and fifth grades. Recommended." Mabel Spoon

+ Library J 69:404 My 1 '44 60w

"Simply written and full of accurate information. The type is large and inviting and the author's illustrations are engaging. Eight-year-olds will be able to read it and younger children will enjoy hearing it read aloud, though it lacks something of the charm and vividness of the books by Edith M. Patch, 'Holiday Meadow' and 'Holiday Pond' and the books which Miss Patch and Mr. Fenton wrote together." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p8 My 14 '44 100w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p5 S 10 '44 200w

FENTON, CARROLL LANE, and FENTON, MRS MILDRED (ADAMS). Land we live on. 88p il $2.50 Doubleday

551 Physical geography—Juvenile literature 44-5441

"Photographs and clear, simple text explain how the land came to be, the different kinds of land in different parts of the country, how it is changed by such agents as water, fire, dust storms and men, and how it can be used and conserved. This photographic picture book grew out of the author's radio program 'Science everywhere.' Grades 3-6." Booklist

"An interesting and informative book for children from 6 to 12." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p11 Je 18 '44 90w

Booklist 40:343 Je 1 '44

Kirkus 12:172 Ap 1 '44 90w

"Because of the high price, special subject and fact that bleed illustrations will be cut in rebinding, recommend only for larger libraries." L. K. Johns

Library J 69:555 Je 15 '44 70w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p5 Jl 30 '44 200w

Wis Lib Bul 40:111 Jl '44

FENWICK, E. P. Murder in haste. 251p $2 Farrar

44-6753

Detective story.

"An unusual story, not for those who like their mysteries to fit into formula A, B or C." Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p6 Ag 20 '44 140w

"Novel angles—not too well coordinated."

Kirkus 12:265 Je 15 '44 90w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p16 Ag 13 '44 120w

"Nice, sinister atmosphere makes up for a slightly shaky plot."

New Yorker 20:64 Ag 12 '44 90w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p14 Ag 13 '44 150w

FERGUSON, WILLIAM BURDER. Shipbuilding cost and production methods. 232p il $3 Cornell maritime

623.8 Shipbuilding 44-3137

"A part of this book is taken from the author's Estimating the cost of work, New York, 1915, but the major portion of it is new. Deals with shipyard organization, production control, material handling, incentives and rewards, the developing of an estimating section, as well as cost finding. The author is a well-known consulting engineer in shipbuilding." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 41:11 S '44

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 69:305 Ap 1 '44 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:12 Ja '44

FERNALD, MERRITT LYNDON, and KINSEY, ALFRED CHARLES. Edible wild plants of eastern North America. (Harvard univ. Gray herbarium. Special publication) 452p il $3 Idlewild press, Cornwall-on-Hudson, N.Y.

581.632 Plants, Edible 43-16660

" 'An illustrated guide to all edible flowering plants and ferns, and some of the more important mushrooms, seaweeds and lichens growing wild in the region east of the Great Plains and Hudson bay and north of Peninsular Florida.' In chapter I the plants are classified according to uses—purées and soups, cooked green vegetables, salads, pickles, marmalades etc. Methods of cooking are enumerated. In chapter II, poisonous flowering plants likely to be mistaken for edible species are presented, and key-characters, and habitat and range given. The third and longest chapter enumerates the full 1000 ferns and flowering plants of this region which are useful as food; the arrangement is by families following the sequences accepted by botanists. The book closes with descriptions of some of the more palatable mushrooms, and the most common of the poisonous, as well as certain seaweeds and lichens. Photographs and numerous outline drawings. Bibliography, list of illustrations, index." Bookmark

Bookmark 5:6 Ja '44

"Admirable and scholarly book. . . It is by far the most comprehensive and authoritative treatment of the subject." Richardson Wright

+ Weekly Book Review p24 O 24 '43 800w

FERNAND-LAURENT, CAMILLE JEAN. Gallic charter; foundations of tomorrow's France. 280p $2.50 Little

944.08 France—Politics and government. France—History. World war, 1939—France 44-5813

A review, in popular style, of French political history from 1870 to 1944.

Reviewed by M. W. Fodor

Book Week p4 Jl 23 '44 600w

Booklist 41:15 S '44

Current Hist 7:133 Ag '44 150w

Foreign Affairs 23:10 O '44 50w

"Much has been written about France—and this is probably not for a general market."

Kirkus 12:211 My 1 '44 150w

"Recommended to college and large public libraries." F. L. D. Goodrich

+ Library J 69:601 Jl '44 130w

Reviewed by Albert Guerard

Nation 159:243 Ag 26 '44 1000w

"In all its brevity it is a comprehensive study." Hans Kohn

+ N Y Times p3 Je 25 '44 1050w

"Somewhat sketchy. . . M. Fernand-Laurent, who was a member both of the Chamber of Deputies and of the Paris Municipal Council, draws up the usual indictment, compiles the usual list of traitors, including the collaborationist ones, and, except in a few brief and scattered places, says and reports practically nothing that is new."

New Yorker 20:68 Jl 1 '44 110w

Reviewed by Frederick Gruin

Sat R of Lit 27:6 Jl 8 '44 1100w

Springf'd Republican p4d Jl 23 '44 650w

Reviewed by Jay Allen

Weekly Book Review p4 Jl 2 '44 1500w

FERRELL, ELIZABETH, and FERRELL, MARGARET. Full of thy riches. 315p $2.50 Mill

44-4723

Romance of a fair-haired Quaker girl from Philadelphia, whose elderly husband took her to live in the oil country of what is now West Virginia in the 1860's. India Culpepper was not in love with her husband, but she fell violently in love with a handsome adventurer, Brian Kilpatrick. The denouement came with a rebel raid on the oil wells.

Booklist 40:355 Je 15 '44

"A full-bodied novel of the American scene—the period during the Civil War, just as the new state of West Virginia is in its birth pangs, and its inhabitants are writing industrial history in the new oil fields. The picture of the town mushrooming around the wells, with its quota of unsavory characters, with subplots involving Copperhead activities, is extremely well done."
+ Kirkus 12:104 Mr 1 '44 190w

"Moderately good." Margaret Owen
Library J 69:354 Ap 15 '44 70w

"Whenever the writers pause for a while in their conscientious but awkward labors and simply tell about the fresh, savage country, the smell of gas, the mud, the storage tanks illuminated by gas flares, the gushers and the dusters, the ambitious hill-billy and the servant girl who aims to get her a rich man, there is a flicker of life in the book. But the pungent setting deserves something better than the queer, girlish treatment they have, on the whole, accorded it." Catherine Brody
— + N Y Times p19 My 7 '44 320w

"This is a harmless package of clichés, designed expressly for the giftshop lending libraries." L. R. North
Sat R of Lit 27:13 Jl 8 '44 150w

Reviewed by Ander Hartshorn
Springf'd Republican p4d Je 25 '44 160w

"A lively period piece." Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p13 My 7 '44 80w

Wis Lib Bul 40:147 N '44

FERRIL, THOMAS HORNSBY. Trial by time. 105p $2 Harper
811 44-20091

Collection of poems by an Amercian poet, born in Denver, Colorado, who owns and edits The Rocky Mountain Herald. He writes of mountains and Indians, children, country editors, Pullman porters, and B-24s. His symbols are mainly of the West.

"The poems of Thomas Ferril are pretty special as presented in his latest book. . . In a way of speaking, he is a man with his mouth full of these United States, and his many variations on this quite monumental theme are at times sharp, at others beautiful and moving. As he says himself, he is not merely concerned with road-map poetry, which inventories American names and places, sights and sounds, or with passing off a glib catalogue in splintered prose for the stuff that Shelley hawked and Keats sold. Ferril is a close observer of much of the stuff that makes America." Peter Quinn
+ Book Week p8 Ap 2 '44 500w

Booklist 40:337 Je 1 '44

"A stimulating volume of poems." Pearl Strachan
+ Christian Science Monitor p13 Jl 29 '44 350w

Kirkus 12:87 F 15 '44 170w

"Mr. Ferril would do well to consider the dangers of his own position, particularly a consciousness, almost an affectation, of Westernism. Mr. Ferril's real gift, I think, lies nearer to the area of the ironic lyric, to the personal and the strange, not to the great open spaces." Rolfe Humphries
N Y Times p24 Ap 23 '44 200w

"Mr. Ferril's book of lyric poetry, Trial by Time, is the work of another craftsman who mistakes the poetic function. In much more pleasing verse than Mr. Nathan's, he eulogizes the American scene. He is also much more conscious of his own failure to come to grips with his time and gives this consciousness indirect poetic expression by emphasizing the unimportance of man in the Universe, and by turning the perspective of great time on today's events." Marian Castleman
Poetry 64:233 Jl '44 350w

Reviewed by W. R. Benét
Sat R of Lit 27:23 Ap 29 '44 230w

Wis Lib Bul 40:67 My '44

FERRIS, HELEN JOSEPHINE (MRS A. B. TIBBETS), comp. Love's enchantment; story poems and ballads; decorated by Vera Bock. 120p $2.50 Doubleday
821.08 English poetry—Collections 44-7546

A collection of story poems and ballads, designed for young peoples' reading. Partial contents: Lady Clare, by Alfred Tennyson; Robin Hood and Allen-A-Dale: an old ballad; The skeleton in armor, by H. W. Longfellow; The highwayman, by Alfred Noyes; La Belle Dame sans Merci, by John Keats; Lord Lovel: an old ballad; Lochinvar, by Sir Walter Scott.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p14 O 1 '44 160w

Booklist 41:27 S '44

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p14 O 12 '44 100w

"An attractive collection of romantic story poems. . . The choice was made from favorites acclaimed by many young girls, and the verse is of good quality in very instance." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 20:381 S '44 70w

Kirkus 12:344 Ag 1 '44 60w

"Recommended for young people's collections in libraries of all sizes." M. C. Scoggin
+ Library J 69:703 S 1 '44 70w

"If anyone has had any doubts about the literary taste of the rising generation this book should reassure them. It represents the collective taste of thousands of girls who have read and sung these poems and ballads with Miss Ferris, and it is just as sound a selection as any advocate of the good life could wish." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p18 S 10 '44 160w

"We have been waiting a long time for a book like this. It is a widely based, sensitive selection of the story poems that are, or should be, a part of 'growing up' for girls far and wide." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 27:46 N 11 '44 200w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p5 S 10 '44 200w

Wis Lib Bul 40:133 O '44

FERRIS, HELEN JOSEPHINE (MRS A. B. TIBBETS). Tommy and his dog, Hurry; il. by Ruth Wood. 130p $1.50 Doubleday 44-4921

Tommy had trained his dog, Hurry, to salute the flag, so that when his father came home on furlough he would have a surprise. But Tommy's little sister let the surprise out and soon Hurry was a member of Dogs for Defense. Grades three to four.

"This is one of my favorite books of the year for girls and boys from 7 to 10. I like it because it never lets you down for a single dull moment, but keeps a lively, suspenseful story moving right along without resorting to impossibly dramatic situations." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p11 Je 18 '44 220w

Booklist 40:359 Je 15 '44

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p8 Jl 31 '44 70w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:285 Jl '44 50w

"Good morale builder—and a credible might-be-true story for third and fourth graders."
+ Kirkus 12:170 Ap 1 '44 90w

"A pleasant family story with a background of war-time America not always found in books for third and fourth graders." M. M. Clark
+ Library J 69:555 Je 15 '44 80w

"It is a boy-dog story, touching as it is brave. Helen Ferris understands how children love animals and how they can, if need be, meet their loss like Spartans. . . The story will reward children beginning to read for themselves." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p9 Je 4 '44 350w

Wis Lib Bul 40:132 O '44

FERRIS, THEODORE PARKER. This created world. 140p $1.50 Harper

231 Creation. Man. God 44-2451

"This is the Protestant Episcopal 'presiding bishop's book for Lent.' . . The author disclaims being a trained theologian or a philosopher, but he swims easily in deep waters. Eschewing trivialities, the technicalities and the distinguishing doctrines of his own or any other denomination, he organizes his thought around these large topics: how the world started, how it has changed, how it is now, and man's relation to it, with a final chapter, bringing all to a focus, on how we can leave a better world for those who come after us." Christian Century

"The thought and language are alike clear, and the treatment is penetrating and helpful if not profound."
+ Christian Century 61:241 F 23 '44 110w

"Theodore P. Ferris is one of the youngest men who holds or has held a position of any such comparable importance in the Episcopal Church, and whether considered in relation to men of his own generation or to an older one, he is one of the ablest interpreters of Christian truth now in our ministry. Anyone who knows him would have been sure that a book written by him would be a good book, and that is exactly what this book is. It is transparently simple in style but it is never shallow as some writings which set out to simplify truth for the sake of so-called popular understanding tend to be." W. R. Bowie
+ Churchman 158:17 Ap 1 '44 480w

Reviewed by R. W. Schloerb
J Religion 24:297 O '44 150w

"As the text is based on lectures delivered at a Girls' Conference, the reader will find it popular in style, readable and convincing. It will perhaps be more helpful in buttressing the faith of believers than in convincing non-believers, and therefore is particularly appropriate for Protestants."
+ Kirkus 12:64 F 1 '44 240w

"Slight book of inspirational, religious reading directed primarily at youth." J. M. Brittan
Library J 69:158 F 15 '44 70w

"Dr Ferris's little book is a compact and beautifully written statement of liberal Christian faith for our time—a faith which is alive to the needs of the day, to the advances of cultural and scientific knowledge, and also deeply rooted in the historic tradition of Christianity. It is liberal in its understanding of the world and interpretation of the tradition, but it is not the kind of American Protestant liberalism which has discarded its background and no longer knows its true home." C. D. Kean
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 5 '44 650w

FETRIDGE, WILLIAM HARRISON, ed. Second Navy reader; with a foreword by Leland P. Lovette. 383p il maps $3.75 Bobbs

359 U.S. Navy. World war, 1939—Naval operations 44-6256

"Well-illustrated handbook on life, work and strategy on the part of the United States Navy in World War II. Told by naval authorities, junior officers, newspaper correspondents, military observers, etc. Of interest are chapters on submarines, the catapult, machine gun, the Seabees and 'Diary of the War at Sea' (Dec. 7, 1941-Feb. 20, 1944). Thirteen maps." Library J

"The book, like its highly prized predecessor, 'The Navy Reader,' [Book Review Digest, 1943] is profusely illustrated with photographs, diagrams and maps. Both the midlander and the coastal resident will be interested in the illustrations, and the diagrams clearly show the difference between, for instance, a task force and a battle fleet. Capt. Leland P. Lovette, U.S.N., the distinguished writer and naval officer, has written the foreword to Lt. Fetridge's new volume, which is a prize package for those who love the Navy." R. W. Clarke
+ Book Week p4 Ag 6 '44 320w
Booklist 41:8 S '44

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:700 S 1 '44 60w

"Lieutenant Fetridge deserves a high mark for the selections that he has made and the manner in which he has arranged the contents of his literary sea bag." Frederick Bell
+ N Y Times p24 S 24 '44 750w

"Altogether a fascinating and worthwhile volume which calls for another encore."
+ Weekly Book Review p21 Ag 27 '44 250w

FEUCHTWANGER, LION. Simone; a novel; tr. by G. A. Hermann. 238p $2.50 Viking 44-5840

The heroine of this story of the fall of France, a fifteen-year old girl inspired by reading books about Joan of Arc, commits an act of sabotage against the German invaders. Tho her collaborationist relatives contrive to save her from the Germans' revenge, they themselves insist that Simone must pay for her crime and at the end she is led away to imprisonment in a reform school.

Reviewed by Andre Maurois
Book Week p3 Jl 23 '44 550w
Booklist 40:390 Jl 15 '44

"An underdone, soggy piece of literary pot pie, likely to give indigestion to the more discriminating reader." L. L. Marchand
— Boston Globe p15 Ag 16 '44 240w
Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Je '44

"Lion Feuchtwanger is a skilful raconteur. . . Although he develops his new theme rather ably, rousing considerable interest in certain inhabitants of that French town, and achieving a certain emotional power, he is only partially successful in making the psychology and fate of Simone seem plausible. The never articulate fervor that inspires her is a purely secular fervor, with patriotism and her love for Joan as a patriot as her motivation. The book attains certain moments of real human pity; they are the story's high points."
+ — Commonweal 40:377 Ag 4 '44 600w

"A strange and rather hauntingly lovely tale, this story of a modern Joan of Arc. There are implications to the story which cut deeper than a mere outline of plot could indicate."
+ Kirkus 12:102 Mr 1 '44 250w

"Charming and beautifully written story. . . The Joan of Arc story is cleverly woven into the fabric of this novel. Ably translated by G. A. Hermann." L. R. Etzkorn
+ Library J 69:603 Jl '44 90w

"An interesting and well-conceived story, very capably translated." J. D. Beresford
+ Manchester Guardian p3 O 20 '44 180w

Reviewed by James Stern
Nation 159:444 O 14 '44 180w

Reviewed by William Poster
New Repub 111:468 O 9 '44 200w

"Had Mr. Feuchtwanger dealt with Simone on her own, this book might have been successful. As it is, he is determined that she should find her inspiration in Joan of Arc, and that the reader should chart his way through Simone's tortuous dream-world, which is dominated by her conviction that she herself has, in fact, become St. Joan." James Pope-Hennessy
— + New Statesman & Nation 28:306 N 4 '44 180w

"The tale is sympathetically told, with simplicity and economy of means. The characters of the townspeople are clearly defined, and when disaster comes, leaving them naked and stripped of all pretense, they are equally well revealed in their courage or poltroonery. The chapter in which Simone retraces Joan's trial, as though in premonition of her own, is most moving. That the book is not particularly French in feeling does not matter in a tale of human suffering that applies with bitter point to many countries in this world now." Anne Green
+ N Y Times p6 Jl 23 '44 500w
New Yorker 20:62 Jl 29 '44 90w

"All on the left are good; all on the right are bad: and if Simone herself is above and beyond party politics, as was her prototype Joan of Arc, she has, again like Joan, only the heroic and superb role of sacrifice and salvation. . . Once this criticism has been made, one can say 'Simone' is one of Mr. Feuchtwanger's best books, admirable not least in its brevity, in its firm sense of direction, and in the sharp, occasionally brutal characterization and analysis of motives. It is, so far as the author can compass that kind, almost a lyrical book." R. E. Roberts

+ — Sat R of Lit 27:6 Jl 29 '44 1200w

"This story has been handled simply and plainly on the whole, and it is really interesting and cut to a good shape. Mr. Feuchtwanger has always tended to over-describe, and to believe that repetition of adjectives emphasises rather than blurs characteristics—and against these faults his translator has not especially helped him here—but in the girl Simone he has created a real and convincing character, who goes her way and does what she has to do because of that sheer honest necessity in herself which he has projected without the least awkwardness of effort." Kate O'Brien

+ — Spec 173:392 O 27 '44 390w

"'Simone' is touching and beautiful, the more impressive because of the imaginative restraint and delicacy of phrasing Feuchtwanger has employed in the telling of her emergence from reality to the dream world in which Simone merges herself with the person of Joan. Here as in no one of his previous novels the author writes with a subtle and moving simplicity, and a compassionate understanding. By his very understatement Feuchtwanger increases the sensitive pathos of his story of Simone and enlarges the crimes of the collaborationists." L. S. Munn

+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 6 '44 700w

Time 44:96 Jl 31 '44 330w

Times [London] Lit Sup p497 O 14 '44 360w

"Mr. Feuchtwanger, experienced both in the long view of history and the magnifying glance of the artist, has never written a more tensely moving story than this simple 'Simone.' 'Simone' is not only a story; it is the author's sworn testimony that the true heart of France will beat again." Virgilia Sapieha

+ Weekly Book Review p3 Jl 23 '44 1000w

FICHTER, JOSEPH HENRY. James Laynez, Jesuit. 299p il $3 Herder

B or 92 Lainez, Diego 44-4704

"Two movements of vast and enduring importance in religious history involved Laynez—the organizing of the Society of Jesus and the defining of Catholic doctrine at Trent; and in both he played a conspicuous and honorable part, undertaking exceptionally difficult tasks as administrator, theologian, preacher. Despite his multiple gifts and highly diversified activities, Laynez led a well-balanced life, remaining 'a simple man in a complex age.' . . Although the name of Laynez inevitably recurs in any history of the Church, or indeed, of Europe during the sixteenth century, there has been until the present volume, no complete biography of him in English." Cath World

"Through methodical planning and careful execution of a difficult piece of work, Father Fichter has done well not only by his associates and his spiritual forefathers, but by the whole reading public as well." Joseph McSorley

+ Cath World 159:377 Jl '44 320w

"Unfortunately this first biography of Father Laynez in English cannot be recommended to the general reader. Exciting as is the subject matter, intellectually, spiritually and romantically, it is presented in purely factual form. Not one of the great characters comes to life—not even Laynez. Nor is there much of any attempt to animate them." E. V. R. Wyatt

Commonweal 40:282 Jl 7 '44 1250w

FIELD, CARTER. Bernard Baruch; park bench statesman. (Whittlesey house publication) 314p il $3 McGraw

B or 92 Baruch, Bernard Mannes 44-9160

Full-length, rounded and sympathetic biography of an American self-made millionaire who has served his country ably in two great wars and has been friend and advisor of both Republican and Democratic presidents. Index.

Reviewed by Sterling North

Book Week p2 N 5 '44 550w

Booklist 41:107 D 1 '44

Reviewed by Bradley Dewey

Chem & Met Eng 51:219 D '44 450w

"As a public servant and as a man one is forced to give unqualified admiration to Bernard Baruch. Never has there been the least hint that he took advantage of his position to further himself or his friends. Never has there been the least reflection on his personal integrity. And to these positive qualities of character must be added an insight and a wise shrewdness which have been of inestimable value to his country and indeed to the world. To get some idea of the truth of these statements, one could do far worse than read Mr. Field's journalistic biography which is most vividly and most interestingly put together."

+ Commonweal 41:131 N 17 '44 380w

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook

Current Hist 7:498 D '44 80w

Kirkus 12:358 Ag 15 '44 190w

Reviewed by A. B. Lindsay

Library J 69:696 S 1 '44 110w

Reviewed by R. L. Duffus

N Y Times p4 O 22 '44 1100w

"Carter Field, long a newspaperman of the Washington, New York, and world scene, has written the life story of Bernard Baruch with the agreeable directness of one who likes and esteems Mr. Baruch and who believes that the public shares his feelings. By appearances, both today and yesterday, he is pleasantly right. From the pages of the book emerges a person of quality and statesmanlike stature. It is only the subtitle of the book that is not quite adequate. The descriptive line might truthfully have been, A Man of Loyalties." E. G. Sisson

+ Sat R of Lit 27:9 N 11 '44 1050w

Springf'd Republican p4d D 31 '44 600w

"Mr. Carter Field has dealt with the life of his subject with a warm friendliness that is still this side idolatry. . . The author's approach to the mature phase of Mr. Baruch's career is that of a newspaper man who is familiar with the period and personalities involved. There is very little critical apparatus; a good deal of the material is not attributed to any source, and the usual difficulties of dealing with living men and living issues are apparent. But Mr. Field succeeds in making Mr. Baruch's present position comprehensible." H. W. Baehr

+ Weekly Book Review p40 N 12 '44 780w

FIELD, PETER, pseud. Smoking iron. 215p $2 Morrow

43-18853

Western story.

Booklist 40:253 Mr 15 '44

"A good yarn with a couple of new twists and plenty of powder smoke." Baron Ireland

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 2 '44 200w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p22 Ja 23 '44 50w

FIELD, RACHEL LYMAN (MRS ARTHUR PEDERSON). Prayer for a child; pictures by Elizabeth Orton Jones. [31p] $1.50 Macmillan

248 Children's prayers 44-47191

"Rachel Field's prayer for Hannah with a title page and illustrations in full color." Sat R of Lit

FIELD, R. L.—Continued

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p10 D 10 '44 100w
Booklist 41:127 D 15 '44

"This little prayer has a universal appeal, without regard to creed. It is concerned with the familiar things a child loves. The pictures have a freshness and childlikeness, which match the text perfectly. One of the most beautiful books of the year." Elizabeth Riley
+ Boston Globe p36 N 29 '44 40w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 D 11 '44 90w

"This is sure fire. One of the loveliest books of the season—a beautiful piece of bookmaking, with the delicate coloring of Elizabeth Orton Jones' exquisite drawings perfectly reproduced; and the text, a prayer actually written for one child, but appealing to all, touching as it does on things common to every child's understanding and experience."
+ Kirkus 12:449 O 1 '44 90w

"A perfectly beautiful book which children will want to own." M. C. Skinner
+ Library J 69:861 O 15 '44 40w

"It is a prayer, beautifully written and beautifully illustrated, bespeaking the faith, love, hopes and the trust of little children." M. A. Webb
+ Library J 70:35 Ja 1 '45 70w

"Here is childhood caught unawares, busy about its own affairs, artless and unselfconscious. The pictures and the prayer itself speak to children in a child's own language; older people will find this little volume beautiful, moving and deeply satisfying. A book for every household where there are children." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p6 N 12 '44 100w
New Yorker 20:80 D 16 '44 50w
Sat R of Lit 27:29 N 11 '44 20w
Springf'd Republican p4d D 3 '44 60w
Weekly Book Review p7 N 12 '44 300w

FIESER, LOUIS FREDERICK, and FIESER, MRS MARY A. (PETERS). Organic chemistry. 1091p il $8; college ed $6 Heath

547 Chemistry, Organic 44-6697

"The main theme of this book is the development of the fundamental chemistry of the hydrocarbons, alcohols, acids, and other classes of organic compounds. . . The most novel feature of the book is the inclusion of a number of chapters for optional reading dealing with significant applications of organic chemistry to technology and to the biological and medical sciences. These essay chapters . . . are interspersed throughout the book at such points as the subject matter can be fully understood. . . The rather extensive excursions into the two fields of applied science have so lengthened the book that an abridged edition has been prepared which covers most of the subjects presented in the large volume in a briefer form." Publisher's note

---

"The authors express their regret that lack of space did not permit them to give literature references throughout the book, but they offer instead pertinent reading references at the end of every chapter together with a series of well selected questions. Some very fine drawings of special equipment are presented in the first part of the book. The external appearance of the book is excellent. It has been carefully edited, but for some minor errors, well printed and handsomely bound. This text is an outstanding contribution to the chemical literature. It will be read with delight and treasured highly by students and teachers alike." Werner Bergmann
+ Am Chem Soc J 66:1802 O '44 950w

"This is a fine book, modern and up to date. The conventional arrangement is used, but interspersed are numerous essay chapters by Mrs. Fieser which deal with general topics of interest." L. I. Smith
+ Chem & Eng N 22:2127 D 10 '44 550w

"A great number of textbooks have stressed the systematic and classifying side of this field to such a degree that they make for poor reading, and only a few truly readable texts exist. This book by Fieser and Fieser is an exception. While it gives a clear and concise development of the fundamental chemistry of the various classes of compounds, it does it in such an easy way that the reader is kept spellbound." F. C. Nachod
+ Chem & Met Eng 51:194 N '44 200w

"One of the best books on the theory of organic chemistry and its applications."
+ Library J 69:814 O 1 '44 70w

FIFIELD, RUSSELL H., and PEARCY, G. ETZEL. Geopolitics in principle and practice. 204p maps $2.25 Ginn

320.1 Geopolitics. World war, 1939—Economic aspects. World politics 44-3428

"This is an instructive work concerned with geopolitics in a broad interpretation, rather than in the sense used by German writers. In format like a geography, it contains examples of geopolitics in various countries of the world, with details of the nations mentioned, including chapters on the three principal Axis nations. Evidently intended primarily for use in Army camps and schools, it is more or less general and elementary, and not a critical study." Current Hist

---

Reviewed by Robert Strausz-Hupé
Ann Am Acad 234:138 Jl '44 500w
Current Hist 6:357 Ap '44 80w
Foreign Affairs 23:4 O '44 10w

FIFTH mystery book; four short mysteries, by Philip Wylie [and others]. 304p $2.50 Farrar 44-920

Four short mystery stories not previously published in book form. Contents: Stab in the back, by Philip Wylie; Tape-measure murder, by Agatha Christie; The dead man's tale, by Hugh Pentecost; Murder buys a rug, by Ethel Gayle.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p5 Ja 9 '44 200w
Booklist 40:253 Mr 15 '44
Bookmark 5:20 Mr '44

"'Murder Buys a Rug' is by a new writer who will bear watching. . . She has a rich gift of characterization even though it sometimes borders upon caricature. In so far as the mystery is concerned, she leaves just a little too much to be explained in the last chapter. For all that, her story is not out of place in the distinguished company in which it appears." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p22 Ja 9 '44 100w

"Nothing staggering in this book, but it's the kind of thing you'd like to hand a house guest who isn't going to have time to read a full-length mystery."
New Yorker 19:80 Ja 15 '44 70w

"Not quite up to predecessors."
Sat R of Lit 27:21 Ja 15 '44 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p22 Ja 23 '44 130w

FIKE, LINUS R. No nation alone; a plan for organized peace. 96p $1.50 Philosophical lib.

321.022 International cooperation 44-3657

Outlines a plan for the postwar world, which is based on the interdependence of nations. The plan offers both "true internationalism and true nationalism at the same time." The author is now a lieutenant (jg) in the United States navy.

Reviewed by H. A. Larrabee
Ethics 54:308 Jl '44 110w
Foreign Affairs 23:3 O '44 20w

"Readers will find it provocative and stimulating."
+ Social Studies 35:192 Ap '44 50w

FINE, SHERWOOD M. Public spending and postwar economic policy. 177p $2.50 Columbia univ. press

330.973 U.S.—Economic policy. Finance—U.S. A44-2038

"An expert study of the principles and results of New Deal economic policies and the domestic and international economic problems to be faced after the war, with a recommended skeleton program. Though the treatment is definitely oriented toward the future, most of its pages are devoted to the years from 1933 to the outbreak of the war." (Christian Century) Bibliography. Index.

"The study might be criticized for its rather narrow confinement to issues and problems of a purely economic character. Political factors which are inextricably involved in the planning and execution of a public spending program under our form of government are for the most part merely recognized, not discussed. However, the author fully acknowledges the limitations of his work in this respect. As a timely analysis of the economic factors involved in public spending to achieve and maintain full production and employment, this is a most penetrating and thought-provoking work. It deserves the earnest attention of the professional student of public affairs, the government planner, the business man, and, above all, of those who determine in our legislative halls our public spending policies." J. E. Kallenbach

+ — Am Pol Sci R 38:999 O '44 750w

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick

Book Week p2 S 10 '44 170w

"The book is recommended for careful study by economists and thoughtful business men. It paints no rosy picture and points to no easy way through the period of postwar readjustment."

+ Christian Century 61:776 Je 28 '44 230w

Current Hist 7:53 Jl '44 80w

Foreign Affairs 23:10 O '44 10w

"Economists will be amply rewarded by a careful perusal of this book. The author demonstrates a genuine capacity for penetrating and original economic analysis. But he deals in too few pages with too many difficult problems, with the result that the issues are insufficiently explored to justify definite conclusions." Jacob Viner

+ — N Y Times p19 S 17 '44 200w

Reviewed by E. L. B. Curtis

Social Educ 8:379 D '44 750w

"Much research has been devoted in the last decade to the effects of fiscal policy on employment, business conditions and national income. The present volume is a contribution toward what might be called suggestive synthesizing of such work. While it will not be completely satisfactory to many experts in the field since it glosses over some details of analysis under terms like price maladjustment, it nevertheless presents a clear, readable exposition of this literature and suggests a ready direction through its complexities." L. R. Tripp

+ Social Studies 35:376 D '44 700w

FINER, HERMAN. T.V.A: lessons for international application. 289p il $2 (8s); pa $1.50 (6s) Int. labor office

627.1 Tennessee Valley authority. Regional planning

"[An] analysis of what is undoubtedly the largest project to date in regional, as contrasted with national, social planning. . . Of the 14 chapters, 13 are devoted to reviewing the problems confronted by the American T.V.A., the organization set up and the methods used in dealing with these problems, and the results obtained. . . 'The Problem of an International T.V.A.' is discussed in Chapter XIV." Am Soc R

"Some minor defects mar this admirable contribution to social science. There is no index. The first table on p. 244 gives statistics for four different years without naming the years. The first part of table 4 on page 245 is a mere repetition of the table on p. 205. But, despite such blemishes, this volume is indispensable to sociologists seriously concerned with social planning." Hornell Hart

+ — Am Soc R 9:709 D '44 450w

"This book should rate high as an accurate, discriminating, and comprehensive handbook on Tennessee Valley Authority policies and accomplishments and as one especially adapted to the use of those contemplating somewhat comparable developments, wherever they may be located." M. L. Cooke

+ Ann Am Acad 237:240 Ja '45 450w

Booklist 41:11 S '44

Reviewed by B. B. Seligman

New Repub 111:876 D 25 '44 500w

FINN, WILLIAM JOSEPH. The conductor raises his baton; with a foreword by Leopold Stokowski. 302p $3.75 Harper

781.63 Conducting (music) 44-6280

The founder and director of the Paulist choristers writes this discussion of rhythm, tempo, dynamics, a cappella polyphony in relation to conducting. For the choral conductor.

Booklist 41:37 O 1 '44

"Father Finn has, in this book, written for the trained musician, not the superficial student. . . As conductor of the Paulist Choristers, he speaks authoritatively but to a specialized few."

+ Kirkus 12:90 F 15 '44 120w

"Perhaps the most important contribution 'The Conductor Raises His Baton' makes is the introduction of the reader to the immense vitality and beauty of pre-classic music. A disgraceful number of church musicians ignore these periods entirely. It is therefore gratifying to see their importance set forth so favorably. No choral student should fail to study every page of the book. Not only will he gain in his understanding of techniques but he will be introduced to a wealth of great music and great names in music which if pursued will serve to stimulate an interest in the entire field of early church music." Harwood Simmons

+ Sat R of Lit 28:33 Ja 20 '45 700w

FISCHER, BERTHA (MARK) (MRS LOUIS FISCHER). My lives in Russia. 269p $2.75 Harper

914.7 Russia—Politics and government. Russia—Social conditions 44-4399

This autobiography of the Russian-born wife of an American correspondent is chiefly devoted to two periods—in 1922 and again in the years between 1927 and 1939—when she lived in Russia after years of exile in western Europe and America. Mrs Fischer writes with great love of her native land, with admiration for many of the achievements of the Revolution, but with disillusion and heartache over the trends of Soviet-Russian internal and foreign politics during the 1930s.

Reviewed by William Card

Book Week p4 My 21 '44 370w

Booklist 40:338 Je 1 '44

Foreign Affairs 23:13 O '44 20w

"In no other book have I read so vital and human a record of Russian schools and children, nor gained so telling a sense of the problems of keeping a home going, nor felt the contagion of the spirit of the young state—the despair as the state spiralled into the dangers of totalitarianism and bureaucracy and dictatorship. Her story ends with their readjustment to life in the United States, in 1938, and the terrible blow to all idealism with the Soviet-Nazi pact. Interesting and challenging reading, which fills some gaps in our knowledge."

+ Kirkus 12:158 Ap 1 '44 190w

" 'My Lives in Russia' will be called anti-Soviet by the professional Stalinists. It will be deplored by those who think that truth should have its closed seasons. But it is hardly a secret that Russia is a dictatorship—and in a sense Mrs. Fischer merely documents what

FISCHER, BERTHA—Continued
we already knew. Certainly her account of the purge and its shattering effect on human lives and character will win no converts for dictatorship and police rule. . . But just as certainly Mrs. Fischer's book, because it is pro-human, will generate understanding and affection for the Russian people." Margaret Marshall

+ — Nation 158:627 My 27 '44 1200w

"Mrs. Fischer's book is not only informative; it provides a model for our thinking about the USSR. She has the ability to look at two contradictory sets of facts at the same time. It is a gift that does not make for impressive generalizations but does inspire confidence. Mrs. Fischer makes no claims to omniscience, but she treats with so much respect the small sector of truth that is hers that it looms very large." Granville Hicks

+ New Repub 110:822 Je 19 '44 1200w

"Markoosha Fischer possesses the unusual characteristic of knowing Russian life as the average Soviet citizen leads it. It is a knowledge that has been acquired and could only be acquired by many years of residence in Russia completely apart from the hothouse atmosphere of embassies and hotels frequented by journalists and other foreigners. For a realistic description of Soviet daily life there is only one recent book that ranks with Mrs. Fischer's: John Scott's 'Behind the Urals.'" W. H. Chamberlin

+ N Y Times p6 My 14 '44 1150w

"The most illuminating document on the Soviet Union that I have read since Alexander Barmin's autobiography." Edmund Wilson

+ New Yorker 20:80 My 13 '44 2600w

Springf'd Republican p4d Je 4 '44 650w

Time 43:102 Je 19 '44 440w

"Appearing both for the defense and prosecution, Mrs. Fischer is one of those witnesses who convince you that the case is sure to keep the world jury out for a long time yet." Ernestine Evans

Weekly Book Review p2 My 7 '44 1550w

Wis Lib Bul 40:109 Jl '44

FISCHER, BRUNO. Hornets' nest. 216p $2 Morrow

44-1705

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p10 Mr 19 '44 90w

Kirkus 11:561 D 15 '43 70w

"Action-filled tale of mysterious deaths, fortune-hunting ladies, and super-tough gangsters. Exciting."

Sat R of Lit 27:22 Mr 4 '44 30w

"Mr. Fischer spins his amazing narrative with a straight face, but there can be no harm in taking it with a smile. Some of the characters are salty and entertaining." Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p10 F 27 '44 130w

FISCHER, BRUNO. Quoth the raven. 207p $2 Doubleday

44-9574

Detective story.

Boston Globe p19 N 8 '44 50w

Kirkus 12:385 S 1 '44 60w

"High marks for you if you can spot the guilty one. Perhaps the raven perched on the bust of Pallas may help you—and perhaps not." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p18 O 29 '44 120w

"Tree's solution of this puzzler may be frowned on by readers who have definite ideas about just what is and isn't cricket in a mystery. Others, who merely want things to move along briskly, will like it fine."

New Yorker 20:87 N 4 '44 60w

"Plentiful action, some good characters, and sinuous plot which takes unfair advantage at the end. Slightly irritating."

+ — Sat R of Lit 27:30 O 28 '44 40w

Springf'd Republican p4d D 3 '44 160w

"Though some may scoff at the persons who inhabit this tale, customers who demand surprise at any cost should be satisfied." Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p21 O 22 '44 110w

FISCHER, ERIC. Passing of the European age; a study of the transfer of western civilization and its renewal in other continents. 214p $2.50 Harvard univ. press

901 Civilization—History. Europe—Civilization A43-3208

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

"In order to write a book on a great subject one should either devote years of study and produce a work of Spenglerian proportions, or, following the example of Montesquieu's Persian Letters, he should write a small volume, packed with philosophic observations and tingling satire. The author has done neither." J. S. Schapiro

Am Hist R 49:456 Ap '44 470w

Booklist 40:232 Mr 1 '44

Canadian Forum 24:117 Ag '44 230w

"The book is an excellently written, clear study."

+ Current Hist 6:67 Ja '44 110w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:3 Ja '44 20w

"'The Passing of the European Age' is a book that seems either too long or too short—too long for a theoretical essay and too short for a detailed historical exposition. As for Dr. Fischer's conclusion, it seems to me valid but perhaps less important in its implications than the author seems to believe." Malcolm Cowley

New Repub 110:352 Mr 13 '44 330w

"Sidney Fay understates the case when in his foreword he calls the book 'not quite so pessimistic as the title suggests.' Compared with Spengler's 'Decline of the West' this is a hopeful book—if one may compare Fischer's brief and sober interpretation of contemporary currents with the visionary, if questionable, explorations of the German philosopher." Arnold Wolfers

+ N Y Times p8 F 13 '44 1050w

"The final chapter contains a brilliant and restrained analysis of the transition from Greek culture to that of the Hellenistic period, and finds that a great many of the tendencies of that time are at work today transforming European culture into a new world form. . . It is a thoughtful book upon one of the larger themes of history." J. L. Godfrey

+ Social Forces 23:115 O '44 550w

"However much one might be inclined to defend the potentialities of a reconstructed Europe along an enlightened path, one dares not lightly dismiss Mr. Fischer's thoughtful and provocative thesis of the 'passing of the European Age.'" Harvey Wish

Survey G 33:264 My '44 250w

FISCHER, MRS MARJORIE. Embarrassment of riches. 241p $2 Random house

44-3389

Light-hearted spy-and-adventure story. A young American professor of French at the beginning of a holiday cruise to the Caribbean, has two unforeseen burdens thrust upon him—the care of the sister of a former student, and an inheritance of two million dollars which he is in honor bound to turn over to the Free French forces.

"A well-written and entertaining tale." Elizabeth Bullock

+ Book Week p9 Mr 12 '44 180w

Booklist 40:304 My 1 '44

"Misses on six cylinders."

— Boston Globe p17 Ap 12 '44 40w

Kirkus 12:8 Ja 1 '44 80w

"Mrs. Fischer's first book in this field is a honey, with credible and likeable characters, amusing dialogue and lots of suspense. An auspicious debut." E. H.

+ New Repub 110:358 Mr 13 '44 70w

"This is an exciting book which sparkles and spins with its characters to a hair-raising finish." N. P. Lowenstein
+ N Y Times p15 Ap 16 '44 200w

"Brisk and diverting, but you have a feeling that the author is making up the plot as [she] goes along, chapter by chapter." Lisle Bell
+ — Weekly Book Review p14 Mr 26 '44 100w

FISCHER, MRS MARJORIE, and HUMPHRIES, ROLFE, eds. Pause to wonder. 572p $3 Messner

Short stories—Collections 44-41881

Collection of "stories of the marvelous, mysterious and strange." (Subtitle) "These range from modern versions of old fairy tales to Mark Twain's wonderful satire 'Captain Stormfield's Visit to Heaven,' through Forster, Lawrence, Yeats and 'Lady Into Fox' to Henry James' highly modern ghost in 'The Real Thing.' Unlike the Brothers Grimm, the editors have had no old ladies with marvelous memories to guide them. These tales were all written by writers to be read by readers. But they are folklore all the same. Here Mr. Fourteenth-Century Anonymous can meet Mr. Dooley, and both can be introduced to Mr. James. Here Ovid can tell Mr. Thurber how much he admires the modern handling of the supernatural." (N Y Times)

Reviewed by Phyllis Fraser
Book Week p5 Ja 7 '45 400w
Booklist 41:153 Ja 15 '45
Kirkus 12:540 D 1 '44 120w
New Repub 112:62 Ja 8 '45 90w

"Taste and imagination, added to some hard grubbing in libraries and second-hand bookstores, have enabled Miss Fischer and Mr. Humphries to create a kind of modern 'Grimm's Fairy Tales' for the English-speaking reader. Like the Brothers Grimm, they have included tall tales and anecdotes—Scotch, Irish, American—and a sampling of the myths—Indian, Celtic—classical and Christian—on which our common culture is based, and enough stories of fantasy and mystery to please everybody." Marjorie Farber
+ N Y Times p4 D 24 '44 900w

"A book full of excellent entertainment, fine writing, and first rate examples of the eternal freshness of man's imagination and sense of humor. There is nothing of the macabre or gruesome in this volume; the editors have had the good sense to realize that in relation to other forms of life man's situation is essentially comic, and their admirable taste has excluded the type of story which properly belongs in a commentary on surgery." Thomas Sugrue
+ Sat R of Lit 27:6 D 30 '44 900w

"The entire table of contents could be listed with enthusiasm, but among the more unusual and therefore doubly welcome inclusions are F. Scott Fitzgerald's classic about Benjamin Button, who was born an old man; Mark Twain's fantasy of 'Capt Stormfield's Visit to Heaven,' which never has had a wide circulation, and the entire Orson Welles broadcast of H. G. Wells's 'War of the Worlds,' a fairy story on the radio which did the impossible by starting a major panic." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d D 24 '44 330w

FISCHER, MARKOOSHA. See Fischer, B. M.

FISH, HELEN DEAN. Little book of colors; drawings by Catharine Smith. (Stokes bk) [28p] $1 Lippincott

44-8581

A little book presenting a practical method for teaching the primary colors to two and three year olds. Includes pictures to color in each of the primary colors.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p16 N 12 '44 90w
Boston Globe p36 N 29 '44 30w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 27 '44 60w

"There is a definite need for painting books which this meets, with the added value of an idea behind it. Actually, I cannot feel that children need to learn color through the medium of a book, but perhaps this could be considered as contributing to the sense of related colors, as the primary colors are brought together at the end in the rainbow. . . Cloth bound book, but it gives an impression of being cheaply made."
+ — Kirkus 12:517 N 15 '44 110w

Reviewed by E. G. Mullan
Library J 69:937 N 1 '44 70w

"It is a sound educational idea, also very pretty."
+ Weekly Book Review p34 N 12 '44 200w

FISHBEIN, MORRIS, and IRWIN, LESLIE WILLIAM. Health and first aid. 372p il $1.60 Lyons & Carnahan, 2500 Prairie av, Chicago 16

613 Hygiene. First aid in illness and injury SG44-252

"The authors have presented in the first section of this book basic facts regarding communication of disease and maintenance of health in simple language. . . Descriptions and illustrations of body structure and functioning are found throughout the book in relation to health problems. The second section is devoted to first aid, and adequate reasons are given for suggested procedures for meeting emergencies." Am J Pub Health

"The book was written for secondary schools, but in addition it will be found helpful for use in group discussion for adults. Tests that are printed at the close of each chapter are in line with the current interest in tests heard on the radio and practised by groups of all ages in most parts of the country. The book is attractively illustrated." M. P. Connolly
+ Am J Pub Health 35:66 Ja '45 180w

"The book would serve as an excellent text for high school students in hygiene or first aid. It would be a handy book, too, for a mother because of helpful discussions of hygienic measures for prevention of the spread of infections and treatment of simple wounds." Susanne Thompson
+ J Home Econ 36:596 N '44 120w

FISHER, CHARLES. The columnists. 317p $2.50 Howell, Soskin

920.5 Journalists 44-40077

Articles on some of the leading American newspaper columnists, written with some malice and only a little favoritism. Partial contents: Dorothy Thompson, cosmic force; The military experts; Lippmann, ex-liberal; Winchell likes privacy; Raymond Clapper; Pegler and venom; Ax-man Kent; Pearson and Allen go round; Quick, like Sam Grafton; The Broadway beat; Ernie (Pyle) of the warm heart.

"Fisher, in the cheerful, sloppy style of a newsman relaxing over a couple of drinks after work, thwacks the columnists on their vulnerable spots and provides a couple of hours of entertaining reading but he doesn't prove anything." Russell Maloney
Book Week p11 Ap 9 '44 270w
Booklist 40:282 Ap 15 '44

"This is a hilarious book. Of course it is easier to be witty panning than to be funny praising. Mr. Fisher takes pot shots at the boys and girls of the syndicates. At the same time most of what he says is fair." Dorothy Hillyer
+ Boston Globe p17 Ap 12 '44 300w
Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Je '44

"Enlightening and entertaining reading on figures in the public eye who themselves provide good copy. Direct hits, for the most part valid."
+ Kirkus 12:110 Mr 1 '44 180w

"Mr. Fisher tries hard to sneer at all the columnists, but, against his better judgment, a few kind words have managed to slip in for Raymond Clapper, Hanson Baldwin, Ernie Pyle and one or two others. He prefers to show celebrities slipping on the banana peels he strews around—and to infer from their con-

FISHER, CHARLES—Continued
tortions as they fall that said celebrities are obviously awkward dolts who don't know what they are writing about. . . If Mr. Fisher's idea was to write a book of wisecracks and funny stories about columnists, he has succeeded. In that event, I should like to add only that there is a good, balanced, informative and important book to be done about columnists, but this isn't it." Daniel Schwarz
— + N Y Times p6 Ap 9 '44 500w

Springf'd Republican p4d My 7 '44 550w

"Most of the pertinent facts in this book have already been printed in various magazines. In bringing them together, and supplying his own interpretations and innuendo, Mr. Fisher has given us a handy, iconoclastic volume of reference. Cockeyed and shallow but breezy, and doubtless useful to the Man from Mars, if he ever comes this way." Stanley Walker
Weekly Book Review p8 Ap 30 '44 650w

FISHER, IRVING, and MILLER, OSBORN MAITLAND. World maps and globes; with a foreword by Charles Seymour. 168p il $2.50 Essential bks.
912 Globes. Maps 44-8089

"Dr. Fisher and Mr. Miller, authorities on their subject, point out by description and illustration the distortion that appears in all flat maps, and they present a brand-new method of spotting this distortion at a glance. Considerable attention is given to the recent experiments with maps that can be folded into near globes, for these are the nearest to being accurate and are easy and pleasant to work with. In addition, Mercator's projection, 'shadow maps' of other projections, and various 'combination' maps are made clear to the reader through the text and in the maps and grids which accompany it. A special section of questions and answers is included." (Publisher's note) Index.

"Even with a 'global' war on our hands, it is not easy to think globally or to make our concepts of geography fit the sphericity of the earth. For those who wish to study the matter seriously, even in an amateur way, this book, with its many maps and diagrams, is a useful guide."
+ Christian Century 61:976 Ag 23 '44 150w

"Most of the map books which pretend to be nonmathematical do manage to sneak in a formula here and there. But Fisher and Miller depend on text and illustration alone, producing one of the best popular, yet authoritative, summaries of how maps are made."
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 D 9 '44 320w

Commonweal 40:307 Jl 14 '44 120w

Current Hist 7:227 S '44 40w

Reviewed by S. W. Boggs
Geog R 34:676 O '44 400w

Kirkus 12:296 Jl 1 '44 150w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:652 Ag '44 20w

"For an excellent popular discussion of the cartographer's problems 'World Globes' is just the book for the teacher and the man in the street. It ought to go far in enabling those who take little interest in geometry to judge the relative distortions of different projections and to dispose of wild inventions." Waldemar Kaempffert
+ N Y Times p27 Ja 28 '45 650w

"A compact and meaty little volume. . . It is entirely illustrated with brand new two-color drawings by William Briesemeister and others. They are precise to a fault and for years to come will provide (with or without permission) definitive source material for other books. My only quarrel with them is the selection of the second color, which is a vibratory nedick orange. The language is simple enough but does not compromise with precision." R. E. Harrison
+ Sat R of Lit 27:5 Jl 1 '44 300w

Survey G 33:329 Jl '44 150w

"The seventy illustrations are from the precise, professional hand of William Briesemeister and others of the Society staff. They are drawn with beautiful consistency of line, and wherever possible projections are related in scale to a one-inch globe, which greatly increases their effectiveness in displaying the comparative anatomy of projections. The drawings are also notable in that they show a brand new system of judging the relative distortion in different parts of a given map. . . This original and very welcome contribution is an outgrowth of Dr. Fisher's icosahedral map which divides the world into twenty identical equilateral triangles." R. E. Harrison
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Jl 9 '44 900w

FISHER, STEPHEN GOULD (STEPHEN GOULD, GRANT LANE, pseuds). Destination Tokyo. 226p $2.50 Appleton-Century 43-16717

The adventures of an intrepid American lieutenant on a secret mission to Japan. Lieutenant Quade is taken to Japan on a submarine, and detailed description of life on a submarine is part of the story.

Booklist 40:199 F 1 '44

"Steve Fisher has seen navy service himself, both on submarines and on the USS Idaho. Because of this background and his scenario writer's skill, his accounts of engagements and narrow escapes alike hold the excitement of the real." M. L. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 30 '44 380w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p16 Ja 16 '44 180w

FISHER, VARDIS. Golden rooms. 324p $2.50 Vanguard
44-47041

This is the second in the author's series of novels dealing with prehistoric man, the first being Darkness and the Deep (Book Review Digest, 1943). In this book the first half tells the story of Harg, a Neanderthaloid man who, of his kind, was the first to make fire. The second part has as its hero a man of the Cro-Magnons, who though a contemporary of Harg's, is much further advanced physically and mentally.

"Fisher's style is often redundant and lacks that degree of compression which makes for economy of structure and expression, but in 'The Golden Rooms' as in the earlier 'Darkness and The Deep,' Fisher's probings to primordial roots to discover the very fibers of human motivation make his latest work an effort of worth. It will require something more than a five-foot shelf to accommodate the necessary number of books required to permit Vardis Fisher (at this present rate of anthropological exploration) to reach the 20th century. However, it is to be hoped that the length of that prospect will not prove dissuasive to him, for his work so glows with good purpose as to warrant extension of it." R. J. Bender
+ — Book Week p4 D 10 '44 450w

Kirkus 12:410 S 15 '44 210w

"A wonderful picture of prehistoric days and ways, but brutal, realistic and gory. To be recommended with caution." L. M. Kinloch
+ — Library J 69:935 N 1 '44 70w

"Mr. Fisher's book is vivid reading, especially when he deals with hunting scenes. . . Whether it takes us nearer to understanding the life our species led before it had attained to the earliest agriculture, it is certainly a story of intense adventure. . . Any historian of paleontological studies would be able to date 'The Golden Rooms' and would note with interest how much that science must have grown since the time—nearly fifty years ago—when Wells attempted his composition of the material then available and Jack London made his picture. There are, however, a few assumptions in this, the latest reconstruction, which would seem to be behindhand in source material." Gerald Heard
+ — N Y Times p6 D 3 '44 1050w

"Good reading, even though novelized anthropology may not be your passion."
+ New Yorker 20:104 D 2 '44 90w
Time 45:99 Ja 15 '45 650w

"Vardis Fisher is full to the brim of his subject as those who have heard him talk it can attest. But quite apart from the merit or value of his theories and interpretations, it seemed doubtful that they would ever result in successful fiction, particularly since Mr. Fisher, although a serious and provoking writer, has never shown himself a skillful story teller. 'The Golden Rooms,' however (whether you like it or hate it), is not only a successful novel in the serious sense; it is also engrossing story telling." F. T. Marsh
Weekly Book Review p8 D 10 '44 950w

FISHER, WELTHY B. (HONSINGER) (MRS FREDERICK BOHN FISHER). Frederick Bohn Fisher, world citizen. 257p il $2.50 Macmillan

B or 92 Fisher, Frederick Bohn, bp. 44-1207

Biography, written by his wife, of an American Methodist clergyman who spent many years in India as a missionary and bishop of Calcutta. A friend of Gandhi, he was the author of a book about him: That Strange Little Brown Man, Gandhi (Book Review Digest, 1932).

"Will be the religious biography of the year unless some work of unexpected excellence appears between April and December."
+ Christian Century 61:498 Ap 19 '44 270w

"One naturally approaches a biography written by a man's widow with a mental question mark. Mrs. Fisher, however, has handled her devoted subject with fine good taste and has produced a really worth-while and delightful book." Mitchell Bronk
+ Crozer Q 21:185 Ap '44 300w
Kirkus 12:18 Ja 1 '44 160w
Reviewed by A. B. Lindsay
Library J 69:158 F 15 '44 100w

FITCH, FLORENCE MARY. One God; the ways we worship Him. 144p il $2 Lothrop

264 Worship—Juvenile literature 44-47761

"This is a simple account, illustrated with photographs, of the practices and beliefs of Jews, Catholics and Protestants. It is purely expository and intended to acquaint young Americans with the religions of their fellow citizens." Commonweal

"There is a really great need for this book. By explaining the services and customs of the religions of America, it instills in the reader a better understanding of the church which is not his own; an understanding not only of differences that are to be respected as he wants his own religion respected, but of the great, binding likeness which makes us all more closely kin than we sometimes realize." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p11 D 17 '44 400w
Booklist 41:156 Ja 15 '45
Commonweal 41:257 D 22 '44 40w

"This is a book which children of 8 and up can turn to for enlightenment upon those questions which often seem so puzzling, and it will be extremely helpful to teachers and parents because of its synthesis of information and as a guide to presenting both that information and the principle of tolerance." E. L. Buell
N Y Times p30 N 26 '44 200w

"This is the first time such a book has been attempted; it is possible to find details that might have been differently done. The point is that it has been done at all. For it took courage to produce this book; it will raise objections not because any of these three faiths has been misrepresented but because they have been represented side by side. Its publication seems to me to be, in its own devout and quiet way, an event. For I am of those who believe that the validity of the concept of one world—as yet new to the United States—rests upon the conviction that there is one God toward whom the world over, human hands may be lifted in pleading and in prayer." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 D 10 '44 550w

FITCH, ROBERT ELLIOT. Certain blind man, and other essays on the American mood. 181p $2 Scribner

917.3 U.S.—Intellectual life 44-705

"The American tradition is an essential part of the theme, including the democratic idealism which is more genuine than we are sometimes willing to admit, but the main topic is the current 'American mood.' The author's treatment is not free from the conventional scolding of America for its addiction to sanitary plumbing and safety razors as an evidence of indifference to the things of the spirit. But on the whole, his criticisms are keen rather than querulous and his suggestions are constructive. Dr. Fitch was born of missionary parents in China, has a B.D. from Union and a Ph.D. from Columbia, and is a professor of philosophy and religion in Occidental College, Los Angeles." Christian Century

Christian Century 61:277 Mr 1 '44 120w
Reviewed by E. E. Aubrey
Crozer Q 22:93 Ja '45 200w

"Prophet Fitch ends on a note of comfort and hope, as a helpful preacher should, but the dominant note of his sermons is one of severe, informed, unconventional criticism. The work is exceptionally enjoyable reading, whether one takes it to heart or not, for its combines wittiness, earnestness, and analysis in an eloquent style and to an extraordinary degree." H. W. S.
+ J Philos 41:391 Jl 6 '44 170w

"This is a book for serious-minded people who are spiritually ready for 'hard doctrine'. However difficult it may be for readers to put into practice the principles set forth in these essays, they will not find it difficult to follow his reasoning, which cannot be said of all professors of philosophy."
+ Kirkus 12:142 Mr 15 '44 240w
Library J 69:645 Ag '44 20w

"While Dr Fitch is penetrating in his criticism and relentless in his probing, he is neither bitter nor gloomy. He aims to contribute by means of this book to a spiritual awakening of such a nature that men will be led to face the facts of their existence and then to act on that basis. The book as a whole deserves praise, but there are some weaknesses. Dr Fitch is a good critic of culture, but he does not appear to know too much about political economy." C. D. Kean
+ — Springf'd Republican p10 Mr 7 '44 500w

"This group of highly readable essays constitutes a vigorous, realistic and astutely critical appraisal of certain dominant trends in contemporary thought. They reveal the underlying moral and spiritual bankruptcy which afflicts large sections of the modern world, including our own corner of it. Reading them in conjunction with the other books discussed, one finds in them a striking synthesis, in philosophical terms, of the spiritual needs of which the turmoil of our age is largely symptomatic." H. W. Hintz
+ Survey G 33:263 My '44 200w

FITT, MARY, pseud. Clues to Christabel. 221p $2 Doubleday [9s 6d Joseph, M] 44-7254

Mystery story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p10 O 8 '44 90w
Booklist 41:90 N 15 '44

"Finedrawn fare, of high quality."
+ Kirkus 12:329 Ag 1 '44 80w

"Arresting characters, excellent writing and an air-tight plot make this a perfect gem of crime fiction—the year's best psychological murder thriller."
+ New Repub 111:286 S 4 '44 50w

FITT, MARY, pseud.—Continued

"It is an enthralling story, utterly unlike the usual tale of murder and detection." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p18 Ag 20 '44 120w

"A well-written mystery, designed to divert rather than to put any great strain on one's deductive powers."

+ New Yorker 20:68 S 2 '44 100w

"A little on the long side perhaps, but never a dull moment for all that." John Hampson

+ Spec 172:460 My 19 '44 170w

"This book is for those readers who are more interested in a subtle character study written with distinction rather than in the familiar whodunit melodrama." E. S. B.

Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 27 '44 160w

"There is a very winning delicacy about the sadness of it all until the end, when the sentiment seems forced."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p237 My 13 '44 200w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p12 Ag 20 '44 150w

FITZGERALD, ROBERT. Wreath for the sea. 122p $2.50 New directions

811 44-2593

Volume of poems by a Harvard graduate, who is a classical scholar, translator, with a collaborator, of the plays of Sophocles and Euripides. While many of his images and titles are classical in implication, the author is not unmindful of the present.

Reviewed by H. P. Lazarus

Nation 158:520 Ap 29 '44 800w

"How good it is to read a book of poems not frantic with a message, not fancy with frilly fashions, using words gravely, for music's sake, or brightly, for that of image; literate without pedantry or affectation; sensitive without being neurotic or too full of nostalgia; moved but not excited; if not quite up to a pitch of high and joyous serenity, yet contemplative and calm, without complacence! How good, how rare; but these blessings are vouchsafed to us in Robert Fitzgerald's collection of poems, entitled 'A Wreath for the Sea.' Yes; and the modest title is not without its ironic implication." Rolfe Humphries

+ New Repub 110:324 Mr 6 '44 600w

"His observation is delicate but precise. He has a lyric gift which might easily have been diverted to petty uses. But the drawing back from tough reality, characteristic of the 'aesthetic' period of modern poetry, has been overcome. . . Fitzgerald's grasp of classic resonance and balance brings him out always on the side of simplicity; he is incapable of either rhetoric or bombast. His effects are sometimes rather muffled, but soon the expected translucence returns, and we are back in that humane region where the gravity of learning and the seriousness of art function, never out of sight of life." Louise Bogan

+ New Yorker 20:85 Ap 22 '44 200w

"Beyond any poet of my own generation, Fitzgerald seems to me to command the magic of evocative poetry; now in a phrase or line, now in a stanza, sometimes in an entire poem, scene and emotion are called up with a swiftness, an exactness, a poignancy so sharp and lovely and strong, that one is lifted past response to participation." W. T. Scott

+ Poetry 64:111 My '44 900w

"I don't like his translation of the farewell from Catullus as well as my own; but this book holds true and mature poetry of distinction, and I hope may lead many a reader back to his original 'Poems.'" W. R. Benét

+ Sat R of Lit 27:24 Ap 29 '44 140w

"There was no splash when Robert Fitzgerald's first and only other book of poems appeared almost ten years ago. . . Today we are more ready to appreciate his remarkable modulation and poise. The absence of trickiness, fever and 'drama' is a relief. The poems have color and vigor, a spry, confident intelligence constantly at work fusing picture, metaphor, emotion, reflection into deeply satisfying utterance. At times there is a touch of artificiality or super-refinement, but not often." Kerker Quinn

+ Weekly Book Review p10 Ap 30 '44 600w

Reviewed by Louis Untermeyer

Yale R n s 34:345 winter '45 70w

FITZGIBBON, RUSSELL HUMKE, ed. Global politics. 189p $2.50 Univ. of Calif. [15s Cambridge]

940.53144 Reconstruction (1939-). International cooperation A44-41

"'Lectures delivered under the auspices of the Institute of political geography, University of California, Los Angeles,' in 1942, treating some of the questions involved in world organization after the war. Discusses world federation, unity of all the Americas, Indian nationalism, the future of the Netherlands East Indies, the economic problem of a planned central Europe. Bibliography of suggested reading: p.183-189." Booklist

"In book form, and nearly two years after their delivery, these lectures by eleven political scientists, historians, educators, and a geographer present a rather miscellaneous aspect." H. S. Foster, Jr.

Am Pol Sci R 38:595 Je '44 380w

Booklist 40:266 Ap 1 '44

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:656 Jl '44 20w

FITZPATRICK, EDWARD AUGUSTUS. McCarthy of Wisconsin. 316p il $3.50 Columbia univ. press

B or 92 McCarthy, Charles A44-1122

Biography of Charles McCarthy, creator of the Legislative reference library of Wisconsin, who was a powerful influence in Wisconsin politics during the days of the older La Follette. Contains much of Wisconsin's history during the early days of the nineteenth century Index.

"To all students of politics and political history, this volume is highly recommended for careful study." B. A. Arneson

+ Am Pol Sci R 38:1024 O '44 480w

Reviewed by Belle Zeller

Ann Am Acad 235:148 S '44 650w

"Never prominent outside his own state and not really well known in Wisconsin, McCarthy has had an indirect influence on the whole nation. The story of his work and of his personal life is admirably told in Fitzpatrick's scholarly but readable biography." J. T. Frederick

+ Book Week p4 My 21 '44 110w

Booklist 40:340 Je 1 '44

Christian Science Monitor p12 Jl 15 '44 350w

Reviewed by Norman Thomas

Commonweal 40:90 My 12 '44 750w

Reviewed by A. B. Lindsay

Library J 68:890 N 1 '43 80w

"The story of the life of Charles McCarthy is one that should be written. It is a story of a great man. No one from the Badger state can read this book without pride in Wisconsin, and no American can read it without feeling proud of his democracy. . . Some may catch something of the ideal which guided McCarthy's life and which, in the book as in life, overshadows the man. For those, it can surely be said, this is as McCarthy would have wished it." G. C. Allez

+ Library Q 14:352 O '44 1500w

"Colonel Fitzpatrick's book is a dignified, vigorous, and always readable introduction to the career of an enlightened and warm-hearted man who might well serve as a model for the American public servant."

+ Nation 159:81 Jl 15 '44 300w

"As a protégé, and associate, Fitzpatrick participated in the career which he describes and is therefore remarkably well equipped to write with sympathy and understanding about one of the warmest, most beloved, and most useful public servants of our time. It is to be regretted that he has concerned himself almost exclusively with the public life of Charles McCarthy. In the opinion of the reviewer, Fitzpatrick does not acknowledge adequately the indebtedness of McCarthy and his friends to the elder LaFollette whose political achievements made possible the work of a great number of technicians." E. E. Schaattschneider
+ — Pol Sci Q 59:477 S '44 450w
School & Society 59:239 Ap 1 '44 40w

"A scholarly, stimulating and definitive biography of Charles MacCarthy, the noted political scientist." Cyril Clemens
+ Springf'd Republican p8 My 30 '44 500w
Wis Lib Bul 40:69 My '44

FIVE young American poets, third series, 1944. 215p $3 New Directions 811.08 American poetry—Collections
(40-29688)

"In this collection New Directions presents the work of five very promising young American poets—four North and one South American. Each is represented by some forty odd pages of verse, together with a brief essay on his personal theory of poetry, so that the volume is not so much an anthology as five books combined into one." (Publisher's note) Contents: I, well and civilian, by Eve Merriam; Poems, by J. F. Nims; Thirty-six poems and a few songs, by Jean Garrigue; The summer belvedere, by Tennessee Williams; From the equator, by Alejandro Carrión.

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Book Week p8 N 5 '44 650w

"New Directions is to be commended for having brought together five such promising writers, and for having given them the opportunity to show again the feeling for form and formative feelings of modern verse." James Wreford
+ Canadian Forum 24:240 Ja '45 1700w

"Jean Garrigue is the best of 'The Five Young American Poets.' Yet she, too, suffers in her own special way from the dominant fault of abundance not properly rationed into poems. Whereas Miss Rukeyser uses the social theme for background, and Miss Young her playful philosophy in a world of birds and animals, Miss Garrigue is intense with passion and outright concern, giving her verses a rich lyrical texture. Her work shows the Yeatsian influence strongly. . . In such poems as 'The Stranger' and 'The Circle,' Miss Garrigue reaches an authority of emotion which it is now her problem to maintain and excel. . . Eve Merriam, who is chary and has an ear for better advice, does not, however, possess the lyrical gift." Oscar Williams
+ — New Repub 111:534 O 23 '44 160w

Reviewed by Louise Bogan
New Yorker 20:74 Ja 13 '45 450w

Reviewed by Allan Block
Sat R of Lit 27:50 D 2 '44 1000w

"All in all 'Five Poets' is useful as a kind of workshop view of poetry-in-the-making, rather than as a finished gallery of excellence." Vivienne Koch
Weekly Book Review p41 N 12 '44 850w

FLANNER, JANET. Pétain: the old man of France. 53p pa $1 Simon & Schuster
B or 92 Pétain, Henri Philippe Bénoni Omer
44-7004

Reprint of four articles originally published as a "profile" in the New Yorker. The work combines a biography and character sketch of Pétain with what amounts to a brief summary of French history during the last eighty years.

"It is good for a France now within sight of liberation that this man has passed into senility and silence. Miss Flanner's book about him is incisive; its dispassionate clarity moves the reader to feel sadness rather than rancor over the deep tragedy told." W. F. Morse
Book Week p3 Jl 16 '44 380w
Booklist 41:19 S '44
Cath World 160:286 D '44 130w
Kirkus 12:227 My 15 '44 170w

"Written clearly and simply, without bias. Will be read by average adult borrower and might well be used by young adults." E. F. Kelly
+ Library J 69:601 Jl '44 70w

"Miss Flanner has struggled bravely to pump some interest into the old man, to collect the available anecdotes and retell some stories from the military histories. But apparently she was forced to conclude that Pétain was essentially a historical figure rather than a fascinating one and she has packed into her pages at least as much material about the times as about the man. As a result her work is a sketch of almost a century of French history as well as a miniature portrait of a soldier who may be chiefly remembered for his politics." Theodore Draper
+ — N Y Times p4 Jl 9 '44 950w
New Yorker 20:72 Jl 15 '44 50w

"A masterly analysis of Petain has been accomplished, which is so plausible an analysis of a personality that the wonderment at the marshal's part in France's abasement is lost, and Petain's route from St Cyr to Vichy seems an inevitable progression. Comic irony appears in the exchange of compliments between Charles de Gaulle and Petain during the twenties, and Miss Flanner does well to quote both men who represent today the divergence of French thought." L. S. Munn
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Jl 16 '44 750w

"Miss Flanner's publishers have gone a shade far in claiming that more than a 'full-length portrait' this book is a 'compact, miniature history of France's Third Republic.' But as a portrait it is superb. 'Full-length' it is, and also three and even four-dimensional. And it has the quality of a Goya." Jay Allen
+ Weekly Book Review p2 Jl 23 '44 650w

"The portrait she paints is impressionistic rather than photographic: much is left unfinished, yet it is alive and convincing." C. A. Micaud
+ Yale R n s 34:359 winter '45 260w

FLEDDERUS, MARY L., and VAN KLEECK, MARY. Technology and livelihood. 237p pa $1.25 Russell Sage 338.45 Industrial arts. Unemployment. Cost and standard of living 44-2875

"This piece of expert research furnishes a substantial backlog of facts concerning changes in industrial processes within the past three or four decades and their effects upon labor. The first main section deals with 'the nature of technological change in basic industries'; the second, with 'labor requirements and employment opportunities under the impact of technological change.' " Christian Century

Reviewed by M. L. Cooke
Ann Am Acad 233:250 My '44 550w
Booklist 40:278 Ap 15 '44
Christian Century 61:209 F 16 '44 120w

"This book should be widely read and it is hoped that the wisdom of its observations will result in the support of continued studies of the problems which the authors have posed for us." Walter Rautenstrauch
+ Pol Sci Q 59:141 Mr '44 850w

Reviewed by H. D. Lasswell
Survey G 33:424 O '44 500w

FLEISCHER, MAX. Noah's shoes. 160p $2.25 S. J. Bloch pub. co, 908 Guaranty bldg, Detroit 26
591.5 Zoology. Animals, Habits and behavior of 44-7306

"An ingenious mélange of facts about beasts, birds and creeping things, all brought together in an imaginative consideration of the problems they must have presented to Father Noah when

FLEISCHER, MAX—Continued
he tried to get them all into his ark and keep them alive and healthy till they could be safely disembarked in the post-diluvian world." Christian Century

Book Week p8 S 24 '44 60w
Christian Century 61:1171 O 11 '44 80w

FLEMING, CHARLOTTE MARY. Social psychology of education; an introduction and guide to its study. (Int. lib. of sociology and social reconstruction) 110p $2 Oxford [7s 6d Routledge]

370.15 Teaching. Social psychology [44-7317]

Handbook for educators, prepared in Great Britain. The book is in four parts: teachers and the pupils they teach; pupils belong to many groups; teachers are also persons; and learning is sometimes misdirected. Bibliographies at ends of chapters. Index.

"Excellent little book. . . A short book covering so much ground cannot go into detail. But it can steer the layman through the wood and indicate the more important trees. It is a question, perhaps, how far any layman can get the right approach from books alone. The writings of Freud, for example, seem to have produced among the intelligent more confusion and misunderstanding than clarity. But if it can be done this well-arranged, well-documented and simply written book will do it." T. C. Worsley
+ New Statesman & Nation 27:324 My 13 '44 480w

School & Society 60:256 O 14 '44 90w

"There seems to be some confusion about the type of reader for whom this sensible little guidebook is intended. Laymen may well be discouraged by the rather cumberous title, whereas competent teachers and those familiar with the outlines of current psychology will find much of it very platitudinous. Popularisers of sociology do valuable work, but they assume too readily that readers need bludgeoning into attention with a chatty technique too reminiscent of an advertisement. . . Dr. Fleming's book is sound and well worth reading, if only for the admirable book-lists at the end of each chapter."
+ Spec 173:22 Jl 7 '44 340w

FLEMING, DENNA FRANK. Can we win the peace? 112p $1 Broadman

940.531 World war, 1939—Peace 43-17303

Four lectures given before the Southern Baptist theological seminary. They are: Shall we lose the peace again? Can we create a workable economic democracy? Ways out of war; Steps toward peace. "Among the 'musts' of the world order to come, Dr. Fleming lists a world federation strong enough to keep the peace; coöperation of the English-speaking world, China, and Russia as the foundation of that order; the right of all states to their legitimate stake in the new order; the necessity of providing for peaceful change and of repressing aggression; and the permanency of the future world organization. . . In the final chapter the author stresses the obstacles which stand in the way of a stable peace. They are, among others, high tariffs, the danger of terminating lend-lease, imperialism, racial bigotry, a revived fascism, a threatened balance of power, and the short time remaining to organize the United States into a permanent force for peace." (Am Pol Sci R)

"The wide scope of the subjects and the paucity of space give an occasional appearance of a hortatory rather than an experienced approach to the problem. But this is only an appearance. No important subject is omitted, and all are treated comprehensively and soundly, even though briefly." C. E. Martin
+ Am Pol Sci R 38:391 Ap '44 500w

"A sober and sound evaluation of the problems standing in the way of a stable peace. . . While the book may not add much to the study of postwar reconstruction it will serve as a valuable challenge for a slowly awakening public." Sigmund Neumann
+ Ann Am Acad 233:225 My '44 200w

FLEMING, DENNA FRANK. While America slept; a contemporary analysis of world events from the fall of France to Pearl harbor. 269p $2; pa $1 Abingdon-Cokesbury

940.5373 World war, 1939—U.S. 44-1658

"Mr. Fleming as a news commentator broadcast over WSM the weekly summaries and analyses which are here preserved for the record. Factual statements of events are prefixed to most of the sections. The whole constitutes a reportorial and editorial survey of the eighteen months preceding America's entrance into the war. As the title clearly indicates, the point of view is that of one who thinks we ought to have entered sooner than we did—and thought so then." Christian Century

Reviewed by Vernon Van Dyke
Am Pol Sci R 38:603 Je '44 230w
Booklist 40:281 Ap 15 '44
Christian Century 61:277 Mr 1 '44 80w
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:660 Jl '44 30w
Kirkus 12:60 F 1 '44 100w
Reviewed by M. J. Messler
Library J 69:70 Ja 15 '44 110w

"As you read the record with the benefit of hindsight it is a reminder of how events have overtaken us, of how precarious was the margin by which we were enabled to catch up with them, and how much we owe to men like Fleming who insisted on waking us up. Excellent historical notes keep the reader in touch step by step, with the situation as it develops, and as Mr. Fleming tackles each issue." H. I. Brock
+ N Y Times p12 Mr 5 '44 480w

FLESCH, RUDOLF FRANZ. Marks of readable style; a study in adult education. 69p $1.85 Teachers college

158.84 Reading. Education of adults 44-40073

"A Ph.D. dissertation that studies the language elements that influence comprehension difficulty in reading, based on statistical experiments with reading-test lessons and magazine articles. The author has developed a new readability formula which may be used as a precision instrument for estimating the comprehension difficulty of a given text. A short manual for the use of this formula is included in the Appendix." School & Society

Booklist 40:277 Ap 15 '44
Reviewed by Evalene Jackson
Library J 69:500 Je 1 '44 650w

"Possibly because of the paper shortage or a small publication budget, the book is too brief. Its style is almost telegraphic, and in a number of places a fuller explanation or a richer statement of implication would have been desirable. Anyone who wishes to try out the formula, however, will find exact directions for doing so. Any valid appraisal of the formula itself must await its practical application in a number of situations, both as it is tested by itself and in comparison with other measures." C. O. Houle
Library Q 15:85 Ja '45 600w
School & Society 59:192 Mr 11 '44 60w

FLETCHER, MRS INGLIS (CLARK). Lusty wind for Carolina. 509p $3 Bobbs

44-8968

Historical novel about the Huguenot settlers founding a settlement on the Cape Fear river after the Peace of Utrecht. The central figures are Gabrielle Fountaine, daughter of a Huguenot weaver, and David Moray, a king's officer in disguise. Anne Bonney, the beautiful woman pirate, is one of the historical characters.

"A novel of high adventure and the high seas, of pioneer life, love, Indians and buccaneers, all well woven together and excellently written against a background of early American history. . . Both as history and pure entertainment, this book rates high. One exciting incident follows another, and there are no dull pages, particularly not for those who like historical minutiae. And lovers of happy endings will reap a rich and uninterrupted harvest." Otto Eisenschiml

+ Book Week p6 O 22 '44 450w

Booklist 41:108 D 1 '44

Boston Globe p30 N 29 '44 70w

"Historical - political - thesis - regional novel, substantial and substantiated."

+ Kirkus 12:327 Ag 1 '44 170w

Reviewed by Andrea Parke

N Y Times p14 N 5 '44 280w

"Miss Fletcher has the history of the section down cold, and the stock love story which she has draped over the exciting events of the period makes pleasant enough reading."

New Yorker 20:78 O 28 '44 80w

Reviewed by L. B. Hill

Springf'd Republican p4d D 3 '44 280w

"It is a story of exciting variety, and lusty, not merely prevailing, wind." David Tilden

+ Weekly Book Review p8 O 29 '44 370w

FLEXNER, ABRAHAM. Henry S. Pritchett; a biography. 211p il $2.75 Columbia univ. press [18s 6d Oxford]

B or 92 Pritchett, Henry Smith. Carnegie foundation for the advancement of teaching A44-152

Biography of an American educator and administrator. "Pritchett's competence as an astronomer, demonstrated by his remarkable achievements as a graduate student at a German university, led to his appointment as head of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, from which he passed to the presidency of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Andrew Carnegie then selected him to direct the newly established Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, which became Pritchett's especial creation." Weekly Book Review

"The biographer has not only succeeded in giving an excellent picture of the sheer accomplishments of Dr. Pritchett, but he has also brought out much of the personal charm of the man and has made clear his prodigious industry and the fine integrity of his mind and character, qualities which endeared him even to those who disagreed with him." J. R. Angell

+ Am Hist R 50:157 O '44 650w

"It is surprising that in so thin a volume the author has conveyed a sense of the man as well as of his work: his club life, sports and friendships. Although the book is illustrated with letters and reports, it is not slow reading, for the whole is written with warmth, brevity and unity." G. K. Chalmers

+ N Y Times p6 Ap 9 '44 600w

"The story of Pritchett's fruitful career is set forth crisply, but with sufficient fullness, in this memorable and informing biography by a distinguished younger colleague." G. F. Whicher

+ Weekly Book Review p20 Mr 5 '44 650w

FLEXNER, JAMES THOMAS. Steamboats come true; American inventors in action. 406p il $3.50 Viking

623.823 Steamboats. Fitch, John. Fulton, Robert 44-7758

History of the steamboat in America, the problems and successes of its inventors, and their forerunners, and the various stages in its advancement before it became a going concern. Bibliography. Index.

"It is quite true that Flexner puts more emphasis on the character and personality of the inventors than on the mere mechanics of steamboating, though his treatment of the mechanical end is thorough enough for the lay reader. And this is as it should be. Probably at no time in the history of major inventions, and within practically the same time span, have three men of more dissimilar character been bent so wholeheartedly on achieving the same end, and in no other instance have the quirks of personality had such devastating results. Flexner's scholarly but very pleasant book makes the most of the obvious contrasts. It should be said, too, that his bibliography and list of source material is one of the best I have ever seen in a book intended primarily for popular consumption." Harold Sinclair

+ Book Week p10 S 10 '44 450w

Booklist 41:54 O 15 '44

Kirkus 12:295 Jl 1 '44 210w

Reviewed by Eleanor Kidder

Library J 69:888 O 15 '44 110w

"Interesting chapters on the birth of the submarine and the personalities of Fitch, Rumsey and Fulton and their relation to their time and inventive urge. Documented."

+ Library J 69:1002 N 15 '44 70w

"All in all, this is an outstanding book, one that every student of American history should read." W. J. Lane

+ N Y Times p6 S 10 '44 1050w

"Excellent research, capable writing, and splendid illustrations."

+ New Yorker 20:83 S 16 '44 90w

"It is a fascinating if not an inspiring story, and Mr. Flexner tells it vividly." J. T. Winterich

+ Sat R of Lit 27:23 S 9 '44 270w

Springf'd Republican p4d N 5 '44 800w

"Excellent volume. . . Mr. Flexner has done his job so effectively and evaluated the whole story in such a critical, comprehensive and delightful manner, that the task will probably not have to be done again." R. G. Albion

+ Weekly Book Review p4 O 22 '44 1100w

FLOHERTY, JOHN JOSEPH. Behind the microphone. 207p il $2 Lippincott

621.384193 Radio broadcasting 44-9041

Story of what goes on behind the scenes at the big broadcasting stations. Covers the story of the beginnings of radio, and provides a practical introduction to possibilities of radio broadcasting as a career. Copiously illustrated. No index.

Booklist 41:103 D 1 '44

"Many amusing anecdotes of the gremlins that attack a broadcast. Material that will appeal to today's youngsters."

+ Kirkus 12:511 N 1 '44 110w

Library J 70:34 Ja 1 '45 50w

"An excellent chapter on 'Radio—a Vocation,' is especially timely. For adults and older boys and girls, and also for any vocational collection." G. E. Cartmell

+ Library J 70:36 Ja 1 '45 50w

"It is exciting, well planned, and it adds enormously to our knowledge of a vital factor in modern life."

+ Sat R of Lit 27:49 N 11 '44 40w

"It is not only a readable, informing and absorbing story, but it is a practical introduction to the operation and vocational opportunities of radio as a career."

+ School & Society 60:304 N 4 '44 50w

FLOHERTY, JOHN JOSEPH. Money-go-round; the strange story of money [il. from phot. and drawings by the author]. 189p $2 Lippincott

332.409 Money—History 44-3757

The history of money from earliest days to the present, set down in interesting, informal style suitable for high school students. Some part of general economics is included, the theme of the story being summed up in the last line: "Remember that money is merely a token of labor performed."

Booklist 40:323 My 15 '44

+ Cath World 159:381 Jl '44 140w

FLOHERTY, J. J.—Continued
Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p14 O 12 '44 70w

"John Floherty has the gift for organization of factual material into a form that is as good reading as an adventure story. And that is an achievement, with a subject that seems at first thought to be as dull as money. . . Additional value as a hobby book."
+ Kirkus 12:198 Ap 15 '44 110w
Special Libraries 35:422 O '44
Wis Lib Bul 40:111 Jl '44

FLORY, JANE. How many? [22p] col il pa 50c Holt 44-7128

"For the very young child to help him learn to count is an accordian-folding book in soft greens, blues, and pinks. Animals, birds, and different objects are lined up from one to ten." Library J

Boston Globe p36 N 29 '44 20w
Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 S 25 '44 50w
Kirkus 12:319 Jl 15 '44 80w
Reviewed by M. C. Skinner
Library J 69:862 O 15 '44 60w
Reviewed by L. M. Palmer
N Y Times p18 N 12 '44 40w

"The little book is unique in idea and format and should delight preschool children who are eager to understand the new world they discover day by day." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 13 '44 100w
Wis Lib Bul 40:132 O '44

FLOYD, OLIVE BEATRICE. Doctora in Mexico; the life of Dr Katherine Neel Dale. 270p $3.50 Putnam
B or 92 Dale, Katherine (Neel) 44-2808

Biography of an American woman, who spent many years in Mexico as a medical missionary. Katherine Neel graduated from the Women's Medical college in Philadelphia in 1898 and shortly after went to Mexico, where she lived and practiced, except during the Mexican revolution, until her death in 1941.

Booklist 40:303 My 1 '44

"The story of this missionary adventure is both colorful and inspiring. It is well written by an author who knew both the 'doctora' and the country in which she worked."
+ Christian Century 61:1419 D 6 '44 220w
Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '44
Kirkus 11:570 D 15 '43 80w

"Suitable for young people and adults." J. L. Ross
+ Library J 69:158 F 15 '44 80w

"The book is earnest and informative, the experiences recorded are serious ones, yet the dullness of the style and the lack of distinction in the author's presentation will make it hard going for the general reader."
+ — New Repub 110:510 Ap 10 '44 90w

"This naive yet lively biography is obviously written out of deep admiration for its subject. Without literary pretense, crammed full of homely detail, at once gay and earnest, it is the story of a good life that asked few questions." Mildred Adams
+ — N Y Times p4 Ap 9 '44 800w

"The direct and forthright genius which guided this noble woman's life and activities unhappily seems to have been denied the recorder of them. Miss Floyd brought much affection and sympathy to her work, but she was evidently unwilling to forego the temptation to be literary." Bess Jones
— + Sat R of Lit 27:58 Ap 15 '44 650w

"Though we learn many, many things about Dr. Katherine Neel Dale, we never get quite close enough to know Kate herself—to glimpse the inner life, the sources of power and personality that kept the candle burning whose [light] we see. The Doctora in Mexico was obviously the greater woman than Miss Floyd, for all her devotion to her task, has been able to reveal. She offers, however, an extremely good and abundant half a loaf." F. H. Bullock
Weekly Book Review p10 Ap 2 '44 1200w

FLYNN, JOHN THOMAS. As we go marching. 272p $2 Doubleday
973.917 Fascism. U.S.—Politics and government. U.S.—Economic conditions 44-1881

"Mr. Flynn's thesis is that despite the many differences in the character, customs, laws, traditions, and resources of the peoples of Italy, Germany, and the United States, this country has been drifting on the same currents and experimenting with the same political and economic measures which resulted in the establishment of Fascism abroad. Two-thirds of his book is a scholarly, sober, valuable examination of the rise of Fascism in Italy and Germany, one-third is an attempt to support his thesis by trying to prove that it not only can happen here but already has happened." (New Yorker) Bibliography. Index.

"Anyone familiar with the writings of John T. Flynn knows that he presents an argument cogently, clearly, and convincingly. The average reader, upon completing a perusal of this book, must feel uneasy, to say the least, about the future of America. Anti-Rooseveltians will say that here are exactly and accurately put the contentions they have been trying to make all along. The careful student of politics, acquainted with the long history of events and the complicated nature of the causes leading to fascist dictatorship, will undeniably feel that Mr. Flynn's diagnosis is all too simple." J. G. Kerwin
— + Am Pol Sci R 38:786 Ag '44 650w
Reviewed by Willard Shelton
Book Week p6 F 27 '44 380w
Booklist 40:232 Mr 1 '44

"The book may suffer at points from a one-sided selection of facts, but its total impact is undeniably powerful and alarming." Paul Hutchinson
+ — Christian Century 62:18 Ja 3 '45 210w

"'As We Go Marching' raises a number of key questions we must answer. It is a timely warning. What is hardly convincing is to criticize the direction of our present policy as severely as Mr. Flynn has done without giving the slightest inkling what other policy could have attempted to meet the depression, win the war and carry on in the postwar world. His failure to suggest even the barest outline of an alternative to our present course leaves Mr. Flynn open to a legitimate charge that he has provided here primarily a political campaign document."
Commonweal 39:449 F 18 '44 800w
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:661 Jl '44 40w
Kirkus 11:566 D 15 '43 260w

"This book will be considered political propaganda and controversial by many, but it deserves serious study." J. A. Sohon
Library J 69:116 F 1 '44 70w

"Some of Mr. Flynn's points make good sense when taken by themselves. He is sound on the subject of militarism as the only form of public spending that is supported by the conservatives. He is clear, if one-sided, in his long discussion of Italian fascism. He is less clear and even more one-sided when he talks about Germany; for in this case he is trying to prove that deficit spending was the cause as well as the essence of fascism. He therefore omits to say that the last chancellors of the Weimar Republic followed an opposite policy, one of economy and deflation, and that their failure to create work by spending government money was among the biggest of the errors that brought Hitler into power." Malcolm Cowley
New Repub 110:246 F 21 '44 1250w
Reviewed by John MacCormac
N Y Times p6 F 6 '44 800w
New Yorker 19:82 F 5 '44 140w

Reviewed by Hal Borland
Sat R of Lit 27:12 F 12 '44 1700w
Reviewed by Alzada Comstock
Springf'd Republican p7e F 27 '44 850w
Time 43:102 F 14 '44 650w
Reviewed by H. B. Parkes
Weekly Book Review p8 F 20 '44 900w
Wis Lib Bul 40:34 Mr '44

FLYNN, JOHN THOMAS. Meet your Congress. 157p $2 Doubleday

328.73 U.S. Congress 44-8636

Discussion of the Congress of the United States, with its faults and its virtues. The author takes the reader on a tour of this branch of the government, pointing out items of interest and little-known facts. Partial contents: The Senate; The House; Parties in Congress; In committee; How laws are made; The power of the purse; Congress and the States; Congress and the President; What's wrong with Congress? Contains a congressional quizz, but no index.

Reviewed by John Norcross
Book Week p13 O 22 '44 310w
Cath World 160:382 Ja '45 140w
Kirkus 12:360 Ag 15 '44 190w

"John T. Flynn has . . . produced that rare combination—a book that is instructive, readable and entertaining. What Mr. Flynn thinks about the Congress is subordinated to his primary design of telling what makes the machinery tick." Charles Hurd
+ N Y Times p4 O 15 '44 440w
Reviewed by H. W. Baehr
Weekly Book Review p18 O 15 '44 750w

FO, SUN. See Sun, K.

FOERSTER, NORMAN, ed. Humanities after the war. 95p $1.50 Princeton univ. press

378 Humanities. Classical education. Education, Higher A44-1513

"Seven critical essays on the humanities and their place in our civilization. Starts with Willkie's Duke University address. . . Further includes a defense of the arts, by W. M. Dixon, a reprint of Abraham Flexner's excellent lecture, 'Burden of Humanism' (1928) and contributions by Norman Foerster, Theodore M. Greene, Gordon Keith Chalmers and Roscoe Pound." Library J

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p2 Jl 23 '44 50w
Christian Century 61:498 Ap 19 '44 50w
J Philos 41:416 Jl 20 '44 450w
Reviewed by Rudolf Hirsch
Library J 69:116 F 1 '44 100w

"There have been many statements of the significance of the humanities, some of them classic. Most of the things said in the miscellany which Norman Foerster has compiled have been said before. Nevertheless they are said well and there is special interest in the men saying them and in the time in which they are being said." W. S. Lynch
+ Sat R of Lit 27:13 Ap 1 '44 470w
School & Society 59:208 Mr 18 '44 40w

FOLEY, DANIEL J. Garden flowers in color. 319p il $1.98 Macmillan

635.9 Flowers 43-16282

"Three hundred and fifty garden flowers, which have been successfully grown in gardens in eastern America, arranged in alphabetical order, and accompanied not only by a brief text giving cultural directions, and listing both common and botanical names but also by superb, authentic color photographs which will guide the amateur in planning color schemes and combining plants in beds or borders. A chapter is devoted to conditioning of soils, planting and care of annuals, the growing of perennials, flowering bulbs, trees, shrubs and vines, and methods of control of diseases and garden pests. Index." Bookmark

Bookmark 5:9 My '44

"A book of useful information and guidance for inexperienced gardeners especially." R. S. Lemmon
+ Weekly Book Review p18 Ap 30 '44 100w

FOLEY, MARTHA (MRS WHIT BURNETT), ed. Best American short stories, 1944; and the Yearbook of the American short story. 468p $2.75 Houghton

Short stories—Collections

Contents: The white boat, by Sidney Alexander; Señor Payroll, by W. E. Barrett; Notes of a dangling man, by Saul Bellow; The knot hole, by Dorothy Canfield; Like a field mouse over the heart, by Elizabeth Eastman; The good days and the bad, by Helen Eustis; The fishermen of Patzcuaro, by William Fifield; Strike up a stirring music, by Berry Fleming; More like a coffin, by Hazel Hawthorne; A local skirmish, by Noel Houston; Come dance with me in Ireland, by Shirley Jackson; The rented room, by J. W. Johnson; The Mohammedans, by H. J. Kaplan; The S.S. Libertad, by Eyre de Lanux; The female of the fruit fly, by William March; The ballad of the Sad Café, by Carson McCullers; Shoe the horse and shoe the mare, by Astrid Meighan; Exiles from the Creuse, by Mary Mian; Heart of Marzipan, by Edita Morris; "That in Aleppo once. . .", by Vladimir Nobokov; Neither here nor there, by Ruth Portugal; Lions, harts, leaping does, by J. F. Powers; All souls', by Gladys Schmitt; The veterans reflect, by Irwin Shaw; A return, by George Stiles; My Russian cap, by L. Z. Surmelian; Of this time, of that place, by Lionel Trilling; An afternoon, by Elizabeth Warner; The illumination, by Jessamyn West; God's agents have beards, by Emmanuel Winters; Biographical notices; The yearbook of the American short story, January 1 to December 31, 1943; Roll of honor; Distinctive volumes of short stories published in the United States; Distinctive short stories in American magazines; Addresses of American and Canadian magazines publishing short stories.

Booklist 41:58 O 15 '44
Reviewed by J. C. Cort
Commonweal 40:618 O 13 '44 850w
Kirkus 12:238 Je 1 '44 130w
Reviewed by Isaac Rosenfeld
New Repub 111:540 O 23 '44 1550w

"Miss Foley has perhaps been too careful to keep the war at a distance. In presenting only its disillusioning impingement upon the home front, she has doubtless been faithful to the bulk of published stories—and conservatively rejected, as beyond the province of fiction, the growing body of narrative based upon actual experience of the front lines. Any thoughtful observer can see that, out of this front-line reporting, a more invigorating short-story is emerging. In the present collection, the editor has unfortunately refused to emphasize this heartening trend." E. B. Burgum
N Y Times p6 S 17 '44 700w

"Miss Foley, in her introduction, laments the recent inclination of many of our most distinguished writers toward commercialized fiction, and points out that editors have had to depend on a group of new writers for really vigorous and original stories. The thirty authors she has assembled sustain the anthology's traditional quality."
+ New Yorker 20:81 S 16 '44 90w

"There is not a shoddy or glib story in the collection, but, as usually happens, one wonders why two or three of them should have been included in a collection of the year's thirty best. 'Senor Payroll,' by William E. Barrett, is mildly amusing, little more; and while Edita Morris's 'Heart of Marzipan' may mirror accurately the starvation even among children in Norway, it would have been more effective artistically if it had been written with a little more restraint." Jennings Rice
+ — Weekly Book Review p10 O 15 '44 850w
Wis Lib Bul 40:160 D '44

FOOTE, MRS KAY STEVENS. Walkabout Down under. 92p il $1.50 Scribner

919.4 Australia—Description and travel 44-7090

"A brief introduction to Australia. . . Here we find such curious creatures as the kookaburra bird and the duckbill platypus, and here are accounts of strange customs among the 'blackfellows,' the aborigines, a primitive people who never remain long in one place and whose 'walkabout' suggested the book's title. A chapter on Tasmania describes the fairylike beauty found in that island's bush, and tells the strange story of the now vanished people who inhabited Tasmania when it was first discovered and named Van Dieman's Land. The geography and natural resources of Australia are touched upon and something of its history is briefly told. The last chapter describes sports and amusements, cricket, sea bathing and football as enjoyed by young people and their elders, skiing in June, and Christmas, which falls on the hottest day of the year." N Y Times

---

Booklist 41:43 O 1 '44

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 30 '44 90w

"A book which is disappointingly written down to the audience. Sort of 'listen my children' tone of condescension. And yet the material is excellent, and the organization good."
+ — Kirkus 12:433 S 15 '44 60w

"It is enthusiastic, romantic, highly readable and verging on a Chamber of Commerce brochure and has made one reviewer plan to take the first peace-time boat there. For upper grades and the families of servicemen who want background. No index and one poor map." Gertrude Andrus
+ — Library J 69:818 O 1 '44 80w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p21 S 17 '44 160w

Springf'd Republican p4d S 10 '44 80w

Wis Lib Bul 40:150 N '44

FOOTNER, HULBERT. Rivers of the Eastern shore; seventeen Maryland rivers; il. by Aaron Sopher. (Rivers of America) 375p $2.50 Farrar

917.52 Rivers—Maryland. Eastern shore, Maryland 44-8257

This volume in the Rivers of America series, deals with the seventeen rivers, creeks or brooks which empty into Chesapeake bay from the western shore of the peninsula which separates the bay from the Atlantic. Known as the Eastern Shore because this part of Maryland lies east of the rest of the state, the countryside has a peculiar life and culture of its own. Stories and legends of the past are interwoven here into a picture of one section of America.

"The 17 sweet Aftons of the Eastern Shore flow gently, and gentle is the prose of their limning. Hulbert Footner never writes a sharp sentence; the rivers never take a straight course. The waters and the writer blend in a felicitously lulling effect; like the casual estuarial tides lapping the oyster boats, the book pats the reader with rhythmic friendliness. . . A mellow, nostalgic book, this is a welcome addition to the Rivers of America series." E. D. Branch
+ Book Week p3 N 5 '44 500w

Reviewed by W. F. Sands
Commonweal 41:81 N 3 '44 310w

"Pleasant reading—and more in the vein of regional literature than are some of the Rivers' titles. Somewhat limited public."
Kirkus 12:363 Ag 15 '44 150w

Reviewed by Hamilton Owens
N Y Times p6 N 5 '44 550w

"It is by long odds the most fascinating book about the Eastern Shore that has yet been presented, and one of the best in the series of which it forms a part." G. W. Johnson
+ Weekly Book Review p1 O 29 '44 1150w

FOOTNER, HULBERT. Unneutral murder. 245p $2 Harper 44-5766

Detective story.

"This is perhaps not Mr. Mappin at his best, but he's still very good indeed." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p10 Jl 16 '44 120w

Booklist 41:24 S '44

"Best of the week."
+ Boston Globe p19 Jl 5 '44 70w

"Good high adventure, slightly old-fashioned. Footner never quite gets past a certain naive amateurishness of style."
+ — Kirkus 12:184 Ap 15 '44 110w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p16 Je 18 '44 80w

"Entertaining espionage."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:38 Je 24 '44 40w

Times [London] Lit Sup p489 O 7 '44 90w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p15 Je 18 '44 60w

Wis Lib Bul 40:130 O '44

FORBES, ROSITA (TORR) (MRS A. T. MCGRATH). Gypsy in the sun. 384p il $3.75 Dutton [17s 6d Cassell]

B or 92 Voyages and travels 44-8138

Account of the author's travels covering the fourteen years from 1920 to 1934. During that time she went thru the Middle East, Turkey, Africa, England, the United States, the Balkans, and central and northern Europe, Central and South America. This is the first volume of the author's memoirs; the second volume is to be published in 1945. Index.

"This is a large treasure chest of souvenirs presented by a woman who reveals a fascinating personality as she writes." Edith Roberts
+ Book Week p4 N 5 '44 500w

Booklist 41:122 D 15 '44

Kirkus 12:460 O 1 '44 130w

Reviewed by M. C. Manley
Library J 69:882 O 15 '44 50w

"There is a lifetime and a world of interest here, and much of it the author conveys vividly, but the general tone is discursive and flighty." M. C.
Manchester Guardian p3 S 13 '44 100w

"Volume 1 of her memoirs is undoubtedly entertaining. The chapters on Central Europe in 1925 are particularly interesting, as she assesses their bearing on the present war. The desert adventures in Africa and Arabia are evidently her own favorites. The South American tours are chiefly curiosity prickers. If you are especially interested in any one region visited by Rosita Forbes you can probably dig up a book she has already written about it." Beatrice Sherman
N Y Times p12 N 26 '44 440w

Reviewed by Frederick Gruin
+ Sat R of Lit 28:31 Ja 13 '45 850w

Reviewed by Edrie Van Dore
Springf'd Republican p4d O 29 '44 380w

Times [London] Lit Sup p386 Ag 12 '44 1200w

Wis Lib Bul 40:159 D '44

FORBES, WILLIAM GORDON. Lubricants and cutting oils for machine tools. 90p il $1.50 Wiley

621.89 Lubrication and lubricants 43-16752

Brief manual on types of cutting tools and their lubrication, metal cutting, composition of cutting oils, application of cutting oils, with one chapter on skin infections from cutting oils. Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:62 O '43

FORBES, WILLIAM GORDON. Lubrication of industrial and marine machinery. 319p il $3.50 Wiley

621.89 Lubrication and lubricants 43-16622

"A general survey for engineers and others. About half of the chapters deal with general aspects of the subject such as: Distillation of lubricating oils; Dewaxing and effect of wax in lubricating oils; Effect of heat and pressure on lubricating oils. The remainder deal with the lubrication of specific types of bearings and machines, such as: Ball and roller bearings; Gas compressors; Diesel engines and Textile machinery." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 40:191 F 1 '44
Cleveland Open Shelf p3 Ja '44
N Y New Tech Bks 28:64 O '43

FORD, MRS ELISABETH. Amy Ferraby's daughter. 246p $2.50 Coward-McCann 44-3049

Character study of Caroline Ferraby, the beautiful and sheltered daughter of Amy Ferraby and her husband St John. Both Caroline's parents had been brought up in an aristocratic New York home, but after service in the Civil war and the loss of much of the family wealth, St John took his wife to live in Prairie Grove, Iowa. There Caroline was born, and brought up to regard herself as better than other Prairie Grove children. But the love of her life was Eben Isherwood, the Ferraby's young handyman. The course of that unhappy love and its sad ending is told in this novel.

Reviewed by Jack Conroy
Book Week p8 Mr 5 '44 80w

"The historical details are interesting, but not well integrated; the characterization is shallow, and the story of two women who sacrificed their men to snobbishness can hardly be taken as symbolic of a whole period in history." N. E. Monroe
— + Cath World 159:92 Ap '44 90w

"The local color is excellent and the characters well drawn. As for the plot, it has been written many times before, but those who like it can read it again." D. D. Lynn
Weekly Book Review p6 Mr 5 '44 420w

FORD, GEORGE HARRY. Keats and the Victorians; a study of his influence and rise to fame, 1821-1895. 200p $3 Yale univ. press

821 Keats, John A44-5797

"For twenty years after [Keats'] Roman death in the deep nadir of his reputation, it seemed that his virtues as poet could not survive the slings and arrows of what might have been, very literally, an outrageous fortune. . . [This study] explains the tribulations attendant upon Keats' survival, and graphs his steady rise to fame from the depths of the Eighteen Thirties to the peak he had attained by the hundredth anniversary of his birth." (N Y Times) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Book Week p44 D 3 '44 230w

"Scholarly, witty, well-dominated and eminently readable essay." Carlos Baker
+ N Y Times p8 D 31 '44 1000w

FORD, LESLIE, pseud. See Brown, Z. J.

FORD, ROBERT SPIVEY, and BACON, MARVIN AUGUSTUS. Michigan highway finance. 191p maps pa 75c Univ. of Mich.

625.7 Roads—Michigan 43-53258

"This volume is a study of highway financial policy in Michigan. It presents significant data about highway financing during the period in which the automobile came into prominence. Three periods in the history of highway financial policy are recognized: (1) the period prior to 1915, when highways were supported by statute labor, the general property tax, and, so far as city streets are concerned, special assessments; (2) the period from 1915 to 1932, when highway revenues were obtained from motorists, property owners, and the federal government; and (3) the period since 1932 in which the major part of the highway financial burden has been shifted from property owners to the owners of motor vehicles, and in which there has also been increased financial participation by the federal government." Am Econ R

Reviewed by D. P. Locklin
Am Econ R 34:413 Je '44 650w

"Robert S. Ford and Marvin A. Bacon relate the familiar story of the development of a state highway system, with particular emphasis on fiscal policy. In this case, the state is Michigan, but in general outline it might be almost any other state. . . This study is No. 12 in a series of governmental studies conducted by the Bureau of Government of the University of Michigan, and it maintains the high level of competence in research and objectivity in presentation which has been established by previous publications in the series." R. V. Shumate
+ Am Pol Sci R 38:397 Ap '44 380w

FORGY, HOWELL MAURICE. And pass the ammunition; ed. by Jack S. McDowell. 242p il $2.50 Appleton-Century

940.545 New Orleans (cruiser). World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 44-4362

The chaplain of the U.S.S. New Orleans describes his experiences at Pearl Harbor and later when his ship was badly damaged, but managed to get to Sydney, Australia—even tho minus her bow.

"There is strength in this book, spiritual as well as material, and one of its virtues is the deepening of the author's faith brought by his experiences and associations. What he calls 'a very practical war' taught him that 'Christ was not an idealist; He was the world's greatest realist.' " W. F. Morse
+ Book Week p11 My 28 '44 180w
Booklist 40:353 Je 15 '44
Christian Century 61:831 Jl 12 '44 80w

"The small volume is an intimate picture of life aboard an American warship during the war in the Pacific. And the No-Boat's part in it must become part of American history." M. W. B.
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Ag 19 '44 270w

"The third of the chaplain books of the year, and the best of the trio, with considerably more substance for the general reader in both action and human interest."
+ Kirkus 12:207 My 1 '44 140w

"A must book for all libraries." M. E. Clark
+ Library J 69:303 Ap 1 '44 60w

Reviewed by F. J. Bell
N Y Times p16 Ag 20 '44 460w

"Most of the narrative is straightforward and terse."
+ Weekly Book Review p18 My 28 '44 170w
Wis Lib Bul 40:128 O '44

FORMAN, SAMUEL EAGLE. Our republic; a brief history of the American people; rev. and enl. by Fremont P. Wirth. 952p maps $4 Appleton-Century

973 U.S.—History 44-4747

"S. E. Forman's book has been a textbook for colleges and has been frequently reissued during the past twenty years. Dr. Wirth has given it thorough revision and has brought it down to 1942. It is not so 'brief' either—just over 1,000 pages, of which more than 900 are on the federal period. The political aspect of the history is most fully treated. Social and cultural factors, though not neglected, are kept definitely in the background." (Christian Century) Index. For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1922.

Christian Century 61:564 My 3 '44 80w
Current Hist 6:515 Je '44 30w

FORMAN, S. E.—Continued

"It has many excellent suggestions for teachers, contains an extensive bibliography, and an excellent index. Teachers at the secondary level will find this edition more usable than the previous ones."

+ Social Studies 35:288 O '44 50w

FOSDICK, HARRY EMERSON. Great time to be alive; sermons on Christianity in wartime. 235p $2 Harper

252 Sermons. World war, 1939—Addresses, sermons, etc. 44-9198

Twenty-five sermons, preached by the minister of the Riverside church, New York city, between the time of Pearl Harbor and the early summer of 1944.

Booklist 41:101 D 1 '44

Boston Globe p31 N 29 '44 30w

Christian Century 61:1355 N 22 '44 80w

"Preachers will find delight in this example of the best homiletic craftsmanship. And Dr. Fosdick's name will extend the market to the layman."

+ Kirkus 12:499 N 1 '44 160w

"These inspired messages from the voice of a great Christian teacher touch the lives of hearers and readers in countless ways. They deal with the horrors of war and importance of a real peace, yet express hope in the ultimate solution of our many problems through Christian faith and loyalty to our ideals. Well worth purchase by most libraries. Highly recommended. Should be required reading for all Americans." L. R. Etzkorn

+ Library J 69:882 O 15 '44 90w

"Roughly, the qualities which make his sermons good reading are his lucidity, his skill in the art of illustration, and the gnomic flavor that spices his prose. With the felicity of a nineteenth-century essayist he illustrates his arguments, then neatly ties them up with conclusions which often make quotable epigrams. He is never long-winded; his writing is precise, disciplined and above all clear. With such tools his twenty-five sermons are carved." Calder Willingham

+ N Y Times p5 N 5 '44 650w

"The principles of Christ's teaching are set forth inexorably, to be rejected at the hazard of death for our world. Never has Dr. Fosdick been so stern, and at the same time so prophetic, as in these sermons. There is not a word of despair in his discourse. Faith is still triumphant. But the challenge sounds like a trumpet, to be answered by nothing less than the whole gospel of Christ." J. H. Holmes

+ Weekly Book Review p38 D 3 '44 350w

Wis Lib Bul 40:156 D '44

"Dr. Fosdick's style is remarkably lucid and always interesting. His figures of speech and his apt illustrations are touched with genius. But deeper than all this is the moral earnestness of his Christianity which, rejecting conventionality and expediency, consistently and heroically proclaims that a gospel of love can and must function in our life. The world has long recognized that Dr. Fosdick is a liberal man. These sermons, preached in war time, reveal him a man of heroic Christian faith." J. C. Schroeder

+ Yale R n s 34:367 winter '45 550w

FOSTER, ELIZABETH. Dirigo Point. 214p $2 Houghton

44-40039

A modern love story. Jasmin Hawthorne, in love with Tony Carteret, was taken by her mother to the family camp in Maine. Jasmin's parents had been divorced for many years, and it was to avoid another crisis in their lives that Mrs Hawthorne went to Maine. But in Maine the lives became even more tangled, before the hint of mystery was cleared up and Jasmin and Tony could marry.

" 'Dirigo Point' has much to recommend it. It is civilized entertainment, gracefully, skillfully presented. Interest develops at the outset and rises with a steady crescendo that is well sustained to the very last page." Dorsha Hayes

+ Book Week p4 F 20 '44 450w

Booklist 40:253 Mr 15 '44

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse

Manchester Guardian p3 O 27 '44 70w

"In spite of the silly plot, it all sounds pleasant and fresh, and it also has quantities of fine Maine weather."

+ — New Yorker 19:86 F 12 '44 80w

Reviewed by E. S. Holsaert

N Y Times p18 F 13 '44 280w

"Miss Foster weaves an intricate web with skill and tenderness—gossamer and engaging; in the course of its unravelling two love stories reach their fulfillment and Jasmin is given a rather terrifying insight into the lives of her mother and father and the blind misconceptions whereby people rush to destroy their own happiness. A living part of the story is the air of Maine which it breathes; one can smell and feel and taste it." H. C. Beachboard

+ Sat R of Lit 27:23 Mr 11 '44 250w

Reviewed by H. L. Mitchell

Springf'd Republican p7e F 27 '44 200w

" 'Dirigo Point' might help to pass a lazy summer afternoon. Unfortunately, a winter of reality is upon us, and Miss Foster's story of society neuroticism in the Maine woods pales somewhat in its light." Margaret Parton

Weekly Book Review p6 F 27 '44 450w

Wis Lib Bul 40:55 Ap '44

FOSTER, MRS GENEVIEVE (STUMP). Abraham Lincoln's world; il. by [the author]. 347p $3 Scribner

909.81 History, Universal—Juvenile literature. Lincoln, Abraham 44-8160

"This book continues the method of presenting history used in the author's George Washington's World. With Lincoln's life as the outline she takes each period and tells of events happening at that time." Library J

"This is the only way in which history should be taught. Genevieve Foster's books belong on the shelf of every young person and on the desk of every teacher."

+ Book Week p1 N 12 '44 350w

Booklist 41:62 O 15 '44

Boston Globe p36 N 29 '44 70w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p4 D 14 '44 230w

"The story reads smoothly and vividly and will be welcomed, as Genevieve Foster's George Washington's World was, for its value to children in school and out."

+ Horn Bk 20:488 N '44 80w

"I liked this better than George Washington's World—it seems better keyed to the age group, and without being simplified, it manages to create a better integrated picture of what is going on in the world during Lincoln's lifetime than was achieved in the earlier book."

+ Kirkus 12:433 S 15 '44 90w

"Very vivid and in popular style, it will help orient the child to the period. Will be particularly useful for nineteenth-century history of American continents. Well indexed. Illustrations by the author are charming and arresting. For junior high and up." Marian Cumming

+ Library J 69:887 O 15 '44 60w

"Lincoln himself would have found this book absorbing reading; more of its facts would have been completely new to him than will be new to the high school age readers for whom this volume will still offer an exciting experience." Dorothy Kunhardt

+ N Y Times p20 N 12 '44 350w

Sat R of Lit 27:48 N 11 '44 50w

Reviewed by Cyril Clemens

Springf'd Republican p6 N 24 '44 390w

"Once more Genevieve Foster performs an important service to our children's sense of history. . . [This book] makes better reading than her first book because Lincoln makes better reading than Washington and because his time comes nearer our own."

+ Weekly Book Review p10 N 12 '44 500w
Wis Lib Bul 40:161 D '44

FOSTER, H. W., and BACON, E. V. Wealth for welfare; foreword by Donald Tyerman. 174p maps $4.25 (12s 6d) Macmillan
330.942 Great Britain—Economic policy [43-15682]

"The Colonial Welfare and Development Act of 1940 inaugurated a new policy, whereby the financial resources of Great Britain, albeit on a small scale, were to be enlisted in aid of enterprise socially profitable to the dependent Empire. The authors of this . . . study have made this principle their starting point and expanded its implications on a gigantic scale. They treat as practically the first responsibility of government after the war the utmost possible development of the material resources of the Empire, beginning on the sound foundation of a regenerated agriculture; and although in the first place they apply their doctrines only to the colonial Empire, the implications are profound for the whole life of the Mother Country itself, and indeed of the Commonwealth and the world." Times [London] Lit Sup

"At a time when the colonial question is being discussed widely, this book, with its concrete suggestions for imperial development, will be read with interest." R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:501 Ap '44 50w

"No brief summary can do full justice to the book's width of vision and grasp of detail. It deserves study if only as a reminder of the magnitude of one of the greatest problems a world at peace again must face." A. S. W.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 S 8 '43 200w

"An engaging mental exercise is to sit in one's armchair and plan a brave new world. Messrs. Foster and Bacon indulge in this entertainment with a skill, a grace, a wealth of fact and an elaboration of detail which most armchair gymnasts do not conspicuously possess. . . Many of us share the burning dislike of poverty and waste and destruction, under which large colonial areas suffer and stagnate, and the writers have done well to draw attention to these problems and to provide us with many striking facts. It is good, too, to be challenged with the immensity of the task and the need for planning on a scale hitherto undreamt of. But, as the authors themselves so wisely remark, 'Projects must be both economically and politically feasible.'" Rita Hinden
+ — New Statesman & Nation 27:12 Ja 1 '44 470w
Times [London] Lit Sup p206 Ap 29 '44 600w

FOUTS, EDWARD LEE (EDWARD LEE, pseud). A fish for murder. 204p $2 Doubleday 44-5200

Detective story.

"There's a passage or two which drag a bit and the ending may make you say 'Well, now! Really!' but you will nevertheless receive double your money's worth. Make way for Edward Lee." Elizabeth Bullock
+ — Book Week p8 Ap 9 '44 180w
Kirkus 12:86 F 15 '44 60w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p12 Ap 9 '44 100w

"Entertaining."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:26 Ap 8 '44 40w

"Though the conclusion is against union rules, the hullabaloo is readable enough, thanks to the author's easy way with words and Red's wide-eyed, enthusiasm about the whole thing." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p15 Ap 9 '44 100w

FOUTS, EDWARD LEE (EDWARD LEE, pseud). Needle's eye. 187p $2 Doubleday 44-9630

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p6 D 31 '44 90w
Boston Globe p15 D 27 '44 50w
Kirkus 12:459 O 1 '44 70w

"The character studies of the various persons involved are well done, and they show plainly where the author's sympathy lies. He is all for the unions and against the unfair practices of the employers." I. A.
N Y Times p36 N 26 '44 100w

"Diverting."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:52 D 2 '44 40w

"'Cops and capitalists and Communists going round and round,' says Red, and that just about describes it." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p26 N 26 '44 120w

FOUTTS, JAMES CLAIRE, ed. American library laws; comp. with the assistance of the Ohio statewide lib. service project, Work projects adm. and pub. under a grant of the Carnegie corp. of New York. 2d ed 1247p $10 A.L.A.
021.897 Library legislation 44-40047

"A basic tool for present and postwar revision of library laws, sponsored by the League of library commissions. Includes all laws in force in June 1941. This edition is limited to the United States; covers federal legislation as well as that of states, territories, and dependencies. Among the new developments are certification, state aid, and regional libraries." Booklist

Booklist 40:254 Mr 15 '44

"The huge compilation remains essentially a collection of laws in force, with no attempt to evaluate the relative merits of the bewildering variety and types of law. However, as the most up-to-date and comprehensive compilation of its kind in existence, it remains an invaluable tool for the benefit of all library workers." L. M. Nourse
+ Library J 69:301 Ap 1 '44 1000w

"It is unfortunate that this work is out of date before it is printed. It is hoped that supplements or a digest service may be planned to make good its deficiencies and to keep it up to date." F. L. Tolman
Library Q 14:249 Jl '44 750w

FOWLER, MRS ELIZABETH. Standing room only. 195p $2 Dodd
940.545 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, English 44-2006

The account of the author's wartime trip from West Africa to Miami. Shortly after the ship she was traveling on left the convoy, it was torpedoed by a German submarine. After that she spent ten days in a small lifeboat with thirty-four men. Then came her harrowing experiences in getting from the Barbados Islands, where they were landed by their rescuers, to the United States, where she was reunited with her small daughter.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Van Deusen
Book Week p4 Mr 19 '44 300w
Booklist 40:249 Mr 15 '44

"It amounts to genius when you can write about heroism and have it seem as commonplace as boiled potatoes and as satisfying. Some of the heroism belonged to the author and it is all the more to her credit that she wrote a calm, interpretive and frankly honest account of every minute of the dreadful hours spent in that open lifeboat."
+ Boston Globe p19 My 17 '44 170w

"Furnishes intensely absorbing reading. Recommended." S. E. Sherman
+ Library J 69:116 F 1 '44 110w

FOWLER, ELIZABETH—Continued

"This is no movie 'Lifeboat' in which ideologies conflict and love affairs crackle. It is no sugar-coated saga, but realism with retchings, a tight, terse tale of war drama where each swell of a wave is matched by the surge of a human emotion." Lucy Greenbaum

+ N Y Times p6 Mr 12 '44 700w

"The fact that much of Mrs. Fowler's experience has been made familiar by the movies, as well as by books about the same sort of adventure, does not detract from the interest of her story. She tells it, except for an occasional indulgence in Hemingway tough talk, very well."

+ New Yorker 20:82 Mr 4 '44 130w

"It makes almost unbearable reading at times but in the forthright directness of its telling it becomes so vivid and exciting that once begun it is impossible to put it down." M. S. Ulrich

+ Sat R of Lit 27:23 Ap 8 '44 550w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 5 '44 410w

"Mrs. Fowler's simple narrative of suffering and endurance holds an impact of suspense and conflict that few plays achieve." Rose Feld

+ Weekly Book Review p10 Mr 12 '44 850w

Wis Lib Bul 40:68 My '44

FOWLER, GENE. Good night, sweet prince. 477p il $3.50 Viking

B or 92 Barrymore, John 43-18571

A detailed biography of John Barrymore, by a newspaper writer whose friendship with his subject dated from 1918. Contains considerable material on the actor's family background. No index.

"Good Night, Sweet Prince is in fact, the most moving theatrical biography I have come across since Nijinsky's Diary. But it is not a sad book. It is a strong book, fluently and sympathetically written, yet pulling no punches. . . Fowler's firsthand reporting of Barrymore's death has the simplicity of great writing. Good Night, Sweet Prince is highly recommended for the general reader as well as the theatrically inclined." Schuyler Watts

+ Atlantic 173:123 F '44 360w

"Gene Fowler has written a tender and boisterous book which is both restrained and ebullient. It is urbane and occasionally naive; it is hard-boiled and sentimental. It is entertaining and dismaying. Somewhere the shade of Barrymore is laughing in the wings." Sterling North

+ Book Week p2 Ja 16 '44 650w

Booklist 40:182 Ja 15 '44

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '44

"This volume should have wide audience appeal and is recommended for general purchase as well as for theater collections in college and public libraries." George Freedley

+ Library J 69:30 Ja 1 '44 80w

Reviewed by J. W. Krutch

Nation 158:255 F 26 '44 1000w

Reviewed by Stark Young

New Repub 110:248 F 21 '44 1300w

"Gene Fowler has fashioned not a pale cloak to cover a dead figure but a bright arras to hang behind a vital one. . . Apart from the momentum of the fine and simple writing, it is responsible, meticulous regard for truth that makes this biography a four dimensional image of the man. Carefully, factually, Gene Fowler has set down everything that he knew about his friend." Patricia Collinge

+ N Y Times p6 Ja 16 '44 900w

"The language of Mr. Fowler has no structure and no harmonics. It is something that is exhaled like breath or exuded like perspiration. And yet the fuzzy raffish style of this book has its special appropriateness to the subject; it is a literary equivalent for the atmosphere in which the events take place. What we get here is the folklore of the Barrymores. . . Gene Fowler, with his word-slinging jargon and his husky-throated sports-writer humor, is the right person to tell this story, which might otherwise never have been told; and his book contains a most entertaining collection of funny theatrical anecdotes, phantasmagoric binges, and what would in the days of the Knickerbocker bar have been described as 'gorgeous yarns.' " Edmund Wilson

+ New Yorker 19:58 Ja 22 '44 2250w

"A tasteful, affectionate, and impeccably accurate book which provides an eminently readable tale, and has remarkably freshened a familiar story by unleashing a flood of soundly documented facts, and enhancing these facts with illuminative anecdotes. . . To read 'Good Night, Sweet Prince' is to know the rare and tragic man that was John Barrymore." S. M. Berger

+ Sat R of Lit 27:5 Ja 8 '44 900w

"For what audience, one wonders, did Gene Fowler think he was writing the book called Good Night, Sweet Prince. . . Not for theatre-lovers surely; little space is given to Barrymore's theatre years and this chiefly to anecdotes, since the author has the cynical scorn of real theatre which the world of Hollywood assumes in its own defense. Not for sensation-lovers, for the book—although maudlin enough—is too sordid, repetitive, too full of trivia to be even mildly exciting. Not for those who want the honest record of an artist's life, both its heights and depths, for even if every fact is exactly as stated, the author's point of view seems habitually distorted."

— Theatre Arts 28:126 F '44 800w

"Mr. Fowler has absented himself from felicity for a considerable while to tell his friend's story, unsparingly but with a gusty tenderness. It is an extraordinary tale, both in its details and its implications. . . Mr. Fowler's book lacks a chronological list of Barrymore's roles, on stage and screen, and it needs documentary evidence from the best contemporary criticism of Barrymore's best acting achievements. Sometimes, too, he fictionalizes episodes he could have known or remembered only in their externals. But perhaps that is not a fault, for it is thus he communicates the Rabelaisian gusto and mad whimsicality of his extraordinary subject." W. P. Eaton

Weekly Book Review p4 Ja 9 '44 950w

Wis Lib Bul 40:37 Mr '44

FOX, GENEVIEVE MAY (MRS RAYMOND G. FULLER). Army surgeon; il. by Forrest Orr. 243p $2 Little

Beaumont, William—Fiction 44-2499

Fictionized biography of Dr William Beaumont written for young people. Beaumont, an early nineteenth century doctor is remembered for his researches in medical sciences, especially in regard to the action of the gastric juices which he studied thru "a hole" in the stomach of his often unwilling collaborator, Alexis St Martin.

Booklist 40:288 Ap 15 '44

"A human interest story that will prove of general interest to older boys and girls." M. M. Smith

+ Library J 69:356 Ap 15 '44 80w

"This is a rather specialized subject for a young people's biography, but here in slightly fictionized form it makes fascinating reading for any one with an ounce of interest in medicine. Non-technical in style, human in approach, it dramatizes those dull pages in our physiological textbooks concerning the digestive tract . . . and it vitalizes the questing spirit of an oldtime country doctor who was never content with near horizons." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p6 Mr 12 '44 280w

"Genevieve Fox's style is as brisk as the story. Beaumont's monument at Mackinac, telling of 'those experiments upon St. Martin which brought fame to himself and honor to American medicine' is a marker in scientific progress; the exasperating details of this curious collaboration make a story no one interested in human nature will readily stop reading." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p5 Mr 12 '44 450w

Wis Lib Bul 40:88 Je '44

FOX, GRACE IMOGENE, and MERRILL, KATHLEEN GRUPPE. Folk dancing in high school and college; drawings by Charlotte St John. 89p $2.50 Barnes, A.S.

793.31 Dancing—Folk and national dances 44-40216

"The purpose of this book is to present a collection of interesting and colorful folk dances for adults and 'teen age boys and girls. . . The number of dances included will serve as a minimum content for a high school folk dance unit, or for a semester college course in folk dancing." (Pref) There are directions and music for seventeen European and seven American dances. Contains a list of recordings, a glossary, and bibliography.

Booklist 41:135 Ja 1 '45
Weekly Book Review p24 D 10 '44 150w

FOX, SIDNEY ALBERT. Your eyes. 199p $2.75 Knopf

617.7 Eye. Eye—Care and hygiene SG44-99

"Dr. Fox has translated the terms used by the ophthalmologist into everyday language for the layman who is sufficiently interested to want to know what his eye difficulty is (if he has one), its cause, what can be done about it and, in particular, how it might have been prevented. It is evident that from his experience as an instructor of ophthalmology in the School of Medicine of New York University (Dr. Fox is now a major in the Medical Corps of the Army of the United States) he realizes that to be of value material must be presented in a form that can be assimilated by the learner." (Am J Pub Health) Index.

"Very timely book." Winifred Hathaway
+ Am J Pub Health 34:998 S '44 750w
Booklist 40:336 Je 1 '44
"Excellent basic book."
+ Kirkus 12:133 Mr 15 '44 150w

FOX, WILLIAM THORNTON RICKERT. The super-powers; the United States, Britain, and the Soviet Union; their responsibility for peace. 184p $2 Harcourt

940.53144 Reconstruction (1939-). World politics. International cooperation 44-6449

Analysis of present and postwar international problems, and arguments for close collaboration among the United States, Great Britain and Soviet Russia as essential for lasting peace. The author is Research associate at the Yale Institute of International Studies. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by H. D. Hall
+ Am Pol Sci R 38:1013 O '44 700w
Reviewed by Willard Shelton
Book Week p8 O 1 '44 250w
Booklist 41:74 N 1 '44
Commonweal 40:377 Ag 4 '44 500w
Foreign Affairs 23:3 O '44 30w
Kirkus 12:290 Jl 1 '44 190w
Reviewed by F. L. Schuman
Nation 159:384 S 30 '44 900w
Reviewed by Albert Guerard
New Repub 111:163 Ag 7 '44 700w
Reviewed by Hans Kohn
N Y Times p23 Jl 30 '44 700w
Reviewed by R. M. MacIver
Sat R of Lit 27:20 N 4 '44 700w

FRAENKEL, ERNST. Military occupation and the rule of law; occupation government in the Rhineland, 1918-1923. 267p $3.50 Oxford

341.3 Germany—History—Allied occupation, 1918-1930. Military occupation 44-47946

"[This] is both a history and an analysis of methods of military occupation of the Rhineland after the last war. Mr Fraenkel admits that his study cannot serve as a blueprint after this war, since many conditions will be different, but it can be suggestive and admonitory. . . The volume is divided into two sections, the first dealing with the armistice period, November 11, 1918, to January 10, 1920; the second, 1920 to 1923." (Springf'd Republican) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p2 N 5 '44 20w
Booklist 41:146 Ja 15 '45
Reviewed by R. A. Brown
Springf'd Republican p8 N 17 '44 380w
Reviewed by Frances Witherspoon
Weekly Book Review p32 D 3 '44 550w

FRAENKEL, OSMOND KESSLER. Our civil liberties. 277p $3 Viking

323.4 Civil rights. Liberty 44-4180

"A lawyer's book for non-lawyers, about the Bill of Rights and the sections of the Constitution that touch upon it." New Yorker

"This is a timely and informative volume on a subject of increasing interest to the educated public as well as to students of political science. . . While this well-written book makes good reading for the public for which the author intended it, it is not a work of general entertainment despite the effort of the publishers to give it that semblance by placing at the end of the volume a list of 'authorities' which are cited to the pages of the text in lieu of notes appended to definitely indicated passages. This novel practice occasionaly leads to confusion and to the omission of expected justifications, besides wasting the reader's time." E. S. Corwin
+ — Am Pol Sci R 38:1216 D '44 1050w
Reviewed by H. A. Freeman
Ann Am Acad 236:190 N '44 550w
Reviewed by Leo Shapiro
Book Week p3 My 28 '44 600w
Booklist 40:351 Je 15 '44

"What Mr. Fraenkel's 'philosophy' of law is it would be difficult to say merely on the basis of his book. The reviewer would suggest that at least a few of his obiter dicta are, if not alarming, at best confusing." G. G. Higgins
Commonweal 40:162 Je 2 '44 650w
Current Hist 6:515 Je '44 80w

"A comprehensive, up-to-date and expert study. . . [The author's] approach is thoroughly liberal, though never radical, but unfortunately, though he is never legalistic, his presentation is too academic for the lay public for which the book is designed. He seems studiously to have avoided the more intimate and dramatic presentation the topic demands."
+ — Kirkus 12:112 Mr 1 '44 130w
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:402 My 1 '44 100w
Reviewed by William Seagle
Nation 159:387 S 30 '44 900w

"It is unfortunate that Mr. Fraenkel refuses to deal with the freedom-of-speech questions inherent in the seditious-conspiracy case against 29 defendants now being tried in a Washington court. . . He fails to translate democratic aspirations into institutional terms or operational rules which make freedom practicable in a society that is undergoing change from one economic structure into another. Aside from these and some other shortcomings, 'Our Civil Liberties' fills a gap which has long existed. For it is primarily a book for the layman seeking an over-all view of the status of the civil-liberties problem in all its phases, from religious liberty, freedom of speech, searches and seizures, self-incrimination and trial by jury, to equal protection, suffrage and habeas corpus." H. H. F. Eulau
+ — New Repub 110:824 Je 19 '44 420w
Reviewed by H. S. Commager
N Y Times p6 Ag 27 '44 1250w

"Mr. Fraenkel isn't altogether successful in making some of the legal matters he covers clear, but his book nonetheless should be of great value to all those who would like to have a better understanding of the political cornerstone upon which our democracy rests."
+ — New Yorker 20:83 My 27 '44 60w

FRAENKEL, O. K.—Continued
"A valuable and interesting discussion of the rights guaranteed to Americans by certain sections of the constitution, notably by the first 10 amendments." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p8 Je 16 '44 550w

Reviewed by R. A. Brown
Survey G 33:468 N '44 380w

"In a compact, lucid book Mr Fraenkel has clarified material which is confusing to all but meticulous students of the subject. He has done this so directly and simply that the book is interesting, sometimes exciting, reading not only to the lawyer familiar with these problems, but to the layman as well." A. G. Hays
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Je 11 '44 850w

FRANCIS, ROBERT. The sound I listened for. 79p $2 Macmillan 811 44-5948

A volume containing some sixty lyrical poems by a New England poet.

"Graceful, gentle lyrics."
+ Kirkus 12:129 Mr 15 '44 90w

"A miscellaneous collection of lyrics always runs the risk of monotony, since it lacks the progression and relation of narrative or dramatic verse. But on the whole Robert Francis reveals technical fluency, fastidious imagery and a sensitive ear for the musical association of words." Ulrich Troubetzkoy
+ — N Y Times p26 Jl 9 '44 440w

"It's true that I hear through Mr. Francis the voices of many other poets—not only Emily Dickinson but the Frost of Three Woodchoppers and the Robinson of If We Had Known. But I also hear his own voice and it seems to be both simple and sincere." Milton Hindus
+ Poetry 63:226 Ja '44 210w

"There is nothing derivative here, though Robert Francis is quick to respond to many of the stimuli which have stirred other New England poets. Mr Francis has his own idiom, as natural as a man's casual speech, but bright with the imagery that is eloquent to all." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 20 '43 220w
Springf'd Republican p4d Jl 23 '44 350w

"This new book of poems . . . makes excellent reading for those who like genuinely skilled lyrics with a New England background. It is inevitable that many of Mr. Francis's poems should bring to mind Robert Frost (though they stem more directly from Emerson) because of their similarities in setting, observation and technical resolution. Francis, however, uses a more pervasive symbolism than does Frost. And very often, hard on the heels of direct, realistic statement, there is a metaphysical-rooted interpretation." Ruth Lechlitner
+ Weekly Book Review p36 D 3 '44 350w

Reviewed by Louis Untermeyer
Yale R n s 34:345 winter '45 140w

FRANK, KARL BOROMAUS (PAUL HAGEN, pseud). Germany after Hitler. 240p $2 Farrar 940.5314443 Reconstruction (1939-)—Germany. World war, 1939—Peace. Germany—Politics and government 44-405

A former Austrian anti-nazi discusses the necessity for the utter defeat of the German armies and the destruction of the Nazi state; the problem of handling the economic, social and political chaos in Germany after the war; the strength of the underground movement; the guilt of the German people and the punishment of war criminals.

"Germany after Hitler is a shrewd, penetrating analysis of a fundamental problem. It is full of sound observations, and it should be read by all students of the German problem." J. K. Pollock
+ Am Pol Sci R 38:800 Ag '44 750w

"Paul Hagen's book [is] distinctly polemical, packed with ideas beyond number, all set forth in richest detail and at considerable length." W. F. Kruse
+ Book Week p5 Ja 30 '44 320w
Booklist 40:210 F 15 '44
Christian Science Monitor p10 Mr 11 '44 550w
Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '44

Reviewed by Edward Skillin, Jr.
Commonweal 39:427 F 11 '44 280w

"Penetrating analysis of German history and excellent contribution to texts on 'What to do with the Germans.'" D. F. Lucas
+ Library J 69:30 Ja 1 '44 140w

Reviewed by Keith Hutchison
Nation 158:226 F 19 '44 440w

Reviewed by H. H. F. Eulau
New Repub 110:292 F 28 '44 390w

Reviewed by W. R. Deuel
N Y Times p5 Ja 30 '44 440w

Reviewed by Edmund Wilson
New Yorker 19:84 F 12 '44 750w

Reviewed by H. E. Fried
Pol Sci Q 59:443 S '44 1100w

"Mr. Hagen's book, though it should find a respectful hearing on account of the deep and moving sincerity of its author and the justice and common sense of some of his suggestions, will unfortunately not allay the deep fears in the hearts of the friends of peace and human liberty everywhere, including Germany." Hans Kohn
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:9 F 5 '44 950w

Reviewed by J. S. Roucek
Survey G 33:222 Ap '44 250w

"The questions Mr. Hagen has treated are so varied that it is impossible even to summarize them all. He has done his work conscientiously and well. Even those who disagree with him in detail will agree that he has given us the best treatment yet available of the difficulties which those who hope to establish democracy in Germany must face and overcome." Christian Gauss
+ Weekly Book Review p3 Ja 30 '44 1950w

"Penetrating little book." V. M. Dean
+ Yale R n s 33:746 summer '44 600w

FRANK, STANLEY, ed. Sports extra; classics of sports reporting. 282p $2.75 Barnes, A.S.
796 Sports 44-40207

"Edited by one of the top sports writers of the nation and includes, from William Hazlitt to Quentin Reynolds and from Jack London to Bob Considine, fifty newspaper accounts of famous sporting events written by reporters as they happened. Here Dempsey is slugging those left hooks into Tunney at Chicago; Westbrook Pegler is savagely apologizing to Hitler at the Olympic Games in Berlin; Sande boots in the winner at the Kentucky Derby; the Emperor Jones makes his grand slam at Ardmore." N Y Times

---

"The writing in general is of such high caliber, the material so engrossingly presented, that interest in sports is not a prerequisite to keen enjoyment." Jack Conroy
+ Book Week p29 N 12 '44 270w
Booklist 41:103 D 1 '44

"A collection of writings on sport which makes a constructive contribution to the charting of America's changing attitude."
+ Kirkus 12:415 S 15 '44 170w

"Maybe the reason your kid—and you too—will like this book is because history is more exciting than fiction." J. T.
+ N Y Times p8 N 12 '44 120w

"Taking them by and large, yesterday's sports stories are as dead as yesterday's newspaper—and sometimes a great deal deader. Nevertheless, this little collection ought to be useful to young newspaper men and to students in schools of journalism. Here they can see how sports writing has developed—often but by no means invariably for the better—and if they are bright they can see what to avoid. Mr. Frank furnishes brief but useful biographical notes of each writer. He has some sensible remarks to make on the evolution of sports writing." Stanley Walker
+ Weekly Book Review p10 D 24 '44 430w

FRANK, WALDO DAVID. The Jew in our day; with an introd. by Reinhold Niebuhr. 199p $2.50 Duell

296 Jews. Jews in the U.S. 44-7739

"An argument that the Jews are different from other Americans, including those whose forebears were Italian, German, Irish, and Slavic. This difference, in Mr. Frank's opinion, is not racial but lies in the Jews' inheritance of the great body of Jewish tradition. . . The essays that make up Mr. Frank's book are all in some way expressions of this point of view, and throughout his discussion he calls upon the Jews to recognize and admit their difference by enacting (the italicization is his) it in their social behavior. Only thus, he believes, can the Jew be saved from 'the shame in his heart.' " New Yorker

"This is a thoughtful and thought-provoking book. There is an excellent preface by Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr. Although I disagree with both the author and Dr. Niebuhr on some important points, nevertheless, in its grand lines, I think the thesis of the author is correct. I only hope that the Christians who read it will transpose the key of the work and find in it the record of their own failures." F. E. McMahon

+ — Book Week p7 S 24 '44 500w

"There is something a little indecent—if that's the proper word—about a Gentile's reviewing this provocative series of casual, but related, essays on the American Jew. It's as though a man were to listen in on a family quarrel in the next apartment and then come over, on his own invitation, to embarrass his neighbors by offering to serve as an arbitrator. Better by far were he to look to his own soul and trust to the sacrament of time to heal the family's differences. Which is to say that Waldo Frank has entered a serious indictment of his fellow-Jews in the United States, and in all of the democracies, which presumably cannot but lead to a family quarrel. May it be a friendly argument which will issue in ever more intimate and more fruitful charity." G. G. Higgins

Commonweal 40:475 S 1 '44 850w

Kirkus 12:246 Je 1 '44 170w

"Highly recommended." G. O. Kelley

+ Library J 69:648 Ag '44 130w

Reviewed by W. H. Auden

Nation 159:355 S 23 '44 1250w

Reviewed by Isaac Rosenfeld

New Repub 111:250 Ag 28 '44 1150w

"Mr. Frank has never been the easiest writer in the world to read, and his prose has the treacly quality characteristic of his work, but he and Mr. Niebuhr have, between them, written a searching and civilized book."

+ — New Yorker 20:58 Ag 19 '44 280w

"So far as the Jews are concerned—and Mr. Frank's mystique concerns itself with them—the suffering is so gigantic that it makes the author's high-sounding phrases not only irrelevant but, in an abhorrent sense, frivolous. At least three million of us Jews have been butchered in Europe and Mr. Frank proposes that we survivors save ourselves by wearing loincloths. However, luckily for the reader, Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, in his introduction to the volume, has furnished a wise and gentle corrective to the ensuing nebulosities. By keeping Dr. Niebuhr's wisdom in mind the reader will keep his feet on the ground." Marvin Lowenthal

Weekly Book Review p8 Ja 14 '45 1200w

FRANKEN, ROSE D. (LEWIN) (MRS WILLIAM BROWN MELONEY). Outrageous fortune; a drama in three acts. 198p $2 French

812 44-3842

A serious drama by the author of Claudia, discussing some of the social problems of our day, chiefly racial intolerance and sexual abnormality.

"An important even if unresolved play. Serious drama groups will like it for production. Recommended."

+ Library J 69:460 My 15 '44 40w

"Miss Franken's play, 'Another Language,' of a good many seasons ago had many fine qualities; and her more recent 'Claudia' was not without its merits. 'Outrageous Fortune' tries for something more difficult and profound. We should at least be grateful for the intention and should hasten to add that the lines here are more intelligent and blessed with more point than in most Broadway dramas. The whole event is literate at least, and for earlier portions of the play highly promising." Stark Young

— + New Repub 109:686 N 15 '43 850w (Dramatic criticism)

FRANKLIN, ADELE, and BENEDICT, AGNES ELIZABETH. Play centers for school children; a guide to their establishment and operation. 153p il $1.50 Morrow

362.71 Play schools 43-51308

"Based on experience in New York City in conducting all-day neighborhood schools which provide recreational activities for out-of-school hours. Idea may be adaptable in larger communities, where there are many working mothers." (Wis Lib Bul) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 40:89 N 15 '43

Bookmark 5:5 Ja '44

"This inspiring little book is more than a guide to the establishment and operation of after-school centers; it is a richly documented narrative of children's delighted response to a recreation program set up to meet their needs, to challenge their interest and to absorb their energies." Catherine Mackenzie

+ N Y Times p20 F 6 '44 600w

Wis Lib Bul 40:7 Ja '44

FRANKLIN, PHILIP. Methods of advanced calculus. 486p $4.50 McGraw

517 Calculus 44-6764

"Prepared by a professor of mathematics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, this volume is suitable as a text for a course in advanced calculus, or as a reference tool for practicing engineers. A sound knowledge of elementary calculus is assumed. In order to limit the size of the book the author has not included proofs for many of the theorems. Exercises are appended to the chapters, and the answers are furnished. There is a brief bibliography." N Y New Tech Bks

Library J 69:1002 N 15 '44 10w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:45 Jl '44

FRANKLIN INSTITUTE, Philadelphia. Meet Dr Franklin. 234p $2.50 The institute, Benjamin Franklin parkway & 20th st, Philadelphia 3

B or 92 Franklin, Benjamin 44-3209

"A series of talks . . . [first] printed individually in The Journal of The Franklin Institute during the past two years." (Foreword) Contents: Meet Dr Franklin, by Carl Van Doren; Benjamin Franklin as a scientist, by R. A. Millikan; Self-portraiture: the autobiography, by Max Farrand; Dr Franklin as the English saw him, by Conyers Read; Franklin's political journalism in England, by V. W. Crane; Benjamin Franklin: student of life, by R. E. Spiller; Molding the Constitution, by G. W. Pepper; Benjamin Franklin, "philosophical revolutionist," by Bernhard Knollenberg; Looking westward, by Gilbert Chinard; Benjamin Franklin: the printer at work, by L. C. Wroth; Benjamin Franklin: adventures in agriculture, by C. R. Woodward; Dr Franklin: friend of the Indians, by J. P. Boyd; Concluding paper, by Carl Van Doren.

Reviewed by Carl Becker

Am Hist R 50:140 O '44 1250w

Booklist 41:19 S '44

Christian Science Monitor p12 S 16 '44 50w

FRANKLIN INSTITUTE—Continued

"Benjamin Franklin, as mirrored in this pleasant and useful little book, beckons us back to a more humane civilization." Albert Guerard

+ Nation 159:20 Jl 1 '44 700w

"This book clearly indicates that the average American's picture of Franklin though many-sided, still does less than justice in that it emphasizes his practicality, astuteness and familiarity with worldly affairs. 'Meet Dr Franklin' adds rich details and new vistas, and in doing so makes exciting reading."

+ Springf'd Republican p6 My 23 '44 440w

FREDBORG, ARVID. Behind the steel wall. 305p $3 Viking

940.5343 World war, 1939—Germany 44-2540

A report on conditions inside Germany by a Swedish journalist who served as a correspondent in Germany from February, 1941 to the spring of 1943.

Reviewed by John Lindberg
Am Hist R 50:120 O '44 500w

Reviewed by F. M. Marx
Ann Am Acad 234:142 Jl '44 650w

Reviewed by A. C. Spectorsky
Book Week p5 Ja 16 '44 1500w

Booklist 40:180 Ja 15 '44

Bookmark 5:12 Mr '44

Reviewed by Martin Dell
Canadian Forum 23:284 Mr '44 1050w

Reviewed by Joseph McSorley
Cath World 158:601 Mr '44 270w

"Arvid Fredborg, a young, observant and obviously intelligent Swedish correspondent, went to Berlin shortly before Pearl Harbor. He has recently come out and lifted the shroud of mystery with an extraordinarily plausible and revealing account of what he saw and heard and felt behind what he called 'The Steel Wall.' As one of the American correspondents who chronicled events in Germany before the declaration of war and to whom the scene he describes is familiar, I am a little baffled by his personal approval of one or two Nazi officials who had seemed to me offensive and dangerous, particularly Karl Boehmer. . . Also Mr. Fredborg's brief concluding recommendations for post-war treatment of Germany strike me as singularly immature. . . But when Mr. Fredborg acts as a reporter, which he does through the bulk of his book, what he says carries the full ring of truth and of good reporting." J. C. Harsch

+ — Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 29 '44 650w

"The book is packed full of detail and is, therefore, highly informative, yet it manages to remain interesting throughout. . . It is not necessary to agree with [the author] that Europe can return to monarchy on a large scale without becoming reactionary and abandoning the advance of democracy, in order to find much that is sound in his advice as well as stimulating in his reporting." William Agar

+ Commonweal 39:403 F 4 '44 550w

"It is excellently done, making even, logical reading. . . 'Behind the Steel Wall' may not reveal much in the way of inside secrets, but it does give a detailed picture of life inside Germany." Roy Hillbrook

+ Current Hist 6:160 F '44 1100w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:663 Jl '44 40w

"Recommended for all libraries." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 69:30 Ja 1 '44 100w

"It is valuable to look at Europe's agony from the Swedish angle. . . He pays more attention to the currents and undercurrents of Balkan affairs than do most British and American correspondents and so gives a fuller picture of the European scene. His book has its own place in the mounting mass of war literature." A. S. W.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Je 21 '44 250w

Reviewed by H. H. F. Eulau
New Repub 110:293 F 28 '44 210w

"Mr. Fredborg's book already has been a sensation in Sweden, where it was first published in September. And although it is not likely to be a comparable success here, it merits, and is certain to have, a large reading public. . . Mr. Fredborg is better at describing Germany and Europe as they are than he is at picturing them as they should be. At the former, he is very good indeed." E. M. Earle

+ — N Y Times p3 Ja 16 '44 1350w

Reviewed by Edmund Wilson
New Yorker 19:82 F 12 '44 270w

"A highly interesting book. . . As a conscientious observer who makes no hazardous guesses, Mr. Fredborg insists that Germany is not yet beaten, although she will be. . . Mr. Fredborg has his ideas about a future peace, too—although the value of the whole book does not lie in its ideas." Konrad Heiden

+ Sat R of Lit 27:9 Ja 15 '44 1700w

"This book will be good for us, written as it is by a neutral, who is also a conservative European. . . The position of Germany's allies and satellites is considered with sure penetration as well as the conditions in conquered countries, including the activities of the underground and of partisans."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 15:3 Mr '44 450w

"One surprising fact about Mr Fredborg's report becomes apparent almost immediately: Although he was in Berlin for almost two years after American correspondents left, and his report might thus be expected to have startling news, it is curiously enough less noteworthy for its revelations than for its confirmation of what already has been rumored. . . So while Fredborg's book does not come as a sensation, it does bring with it a basis for belief in those little stories at the bottom of page 1 which have no blessing from government offices yet which seem to mean so much. And even more important, his book fills in the picture which has been but dimly outlined before." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 16 '44 600w

Time 43:102 Ja 24 '44 600w

"Hr. Fredborg is a shrewd judge, a painstaking seeker after the truth and a courageous critic. His book is an illuminating contribution to the record of our times."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p229 My 13 '44 1250w

"This book by the Berlin correspondent of the 'Svenska Dagbladet' is a valuable continuation of that running report on war-time Germany which a number of American reporters began. It carries on where they left off and therein lies its chief interest. . . As a reporter, Mr. Fredborg is often fascinating. As a political commentator, he is more difficult to follow." W. L. Shirer

+ — Weekly Book Review p3 Ja 16 '44 2050w

"Fredborg left Berlin as an ardent anti-Nazi; yet one may doubt whether he grasped the full meaning of the world revolution of which it is only a part. Otherwise, he would not be satisfied with his own suggestions for allaying this world upheaval by restoring monarchical institutions in Central Europe and re-establishing the old Austro-Hungarian empire. But however one may criticise his ideas of the future of Europe, the description of Germany 'behind the steel wall' is realistic, penetrating, and convincing." Sigmund Neumann

+ — Yale R n s 33:568 spring '44 550w

FREDENTHAL, DAVID, il. Of men and battles. See Wilcox, R.

FREDERICK, JOHN TOWNER, ed. Out of the Midwest. 405p $3.50 McGraw

810.8 American literature—Collections 44-3971

Anthology of prose and poetry, fiction and non-fiction, all featuring the Midwestern section of the United States. Partial contents: Night diary, by Ben Hecht; Rock, church rock! by Arna Bontemps; Cities of the lakes, by Walter Havighurst; Discovery of a father, by Sherwood Anderson; Aunt Hanner's surprise, by D. T. Lutes; Hoss sense and nonsense, by Abe Martin; Girl reporter, by Edna Ferber; Neighbour Rosicky, by Willa Cather; North Dakota ballgame, by Wallace Stegner; The Congressman from Missouri, by Thomas Benton; Country town sayings, by E. W. Howe; Bugle Ann, by MacKinlay Kantor; Neighborhood morning, by Paul Corey; Cook county, by Archibald MacLelsh; On the building of Springfield, by Vachel Lindsay; Ancestral Iowa, by Paul Engle; The hill, by E. L. Masters; Literature with roots, by F. L. Mott.

"The reader will find spirited writing and insight in this useful anthology. Its value is sharply limited, however, for it omits history, biography, historical fiction, and poetry, writers whose work does not belong 'primarily to the new movement since 1910,' even the writings of such authors as Rölvaag and Lewis."
Am Hist R 49:808 Jl '44 120w

"John T. Frederick is, himself, a regional writer and a regional product. He is close to the earth of the Midwest, being a farmer on land he cleared himself. He is close to the people of the Midwest, having lived and taught among them all his life. The short, helpful biographical sketches which Frederick has written before each of the works in his anthology are useful—but many of them could justly have included, were it not for Frederick's modesty, '. . . and it was John T. Frederick who gave this author his start.' " A. C. Spectorsky
+ Book Week p1 Ap 23 '44 1500w
Booklist 40:337 Je 1 '44

"Any reader can find in these four hundred pages a poem, a sketch, a story or a biographical note that will appeal to him. . . Each section of the country has its history, its tradition, its glories, but Professor Frederick's volume makes it hard to believe that there is any section of the United States more colorful, varied or articulate than our often maligned Middle West."
+ Commonweal 40:42 Ap 28 '44 600w

"With the emphasis on the working people, whether urban or agricultural, on the miscellany of foreign elements, this makes representative and substantial reading. One could wish that the editor had balanced his selections with a little more narrative value, a little less descriptive value, for the result is less keyed to popular interest, less readable than Perry's anthology of the Southwest (Roundup Time), partly because it reflects the sturdy, sober virtues of the region rather than its drama."
+ — Kirkus 12:83 F 15 '44 200w

"Not everything nor everybody, of course, is here. Nevertheless 'Out of the Midwest' sheds more illumination on that great midregion of our nation, reveals more about its culture and promise, than any other book now available to the inquiring reader. It is as Midwestern as a water-tower." Oscar Cargill
+ N Y Times p16 My 7 '44 480w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
Sat R of Lit 27:24 My 13 '44 750w

"John T. Frederick's rounded life probably has a good deal to do with the excellence of his new anthology of regional writing. . . It is a very fine job he has done; his catholic taste and wide knowledge of the field has produced, moreover, a deeply satisfying, richly entertaining volume. There are those readers who, once bored or repelled, are twice shy of sheaves of regional writing. They will not find yawns and irritation in this one." Marshall Bragdon
+ Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 22 '44 650w

FREEMAN, DOUGLAS SOUTHALL. Lee's lieutenants; a study in command; v. 3, Gettysburg to Appomattox. 862p il maps $5 Scribner

973.7 U.S.—History—Civil war. Confederate states of America—Biography (42-24582)

The final volume in the author's monumental history of the army of northern Virginia and the men who were its leaders. The present volume covers from Gettysburg to Appomattox. Select critical bibliography. Index. For earlier volumes see Book Review Digest, 1942 and 1943.

Reviewed by R. E. Danielson
Atlantic 174:133 D '44 1300w

"The author's 'R. E. Lee' often floundered under a load of detail, but in this book the narrative is rarely overburdened. The multitude of personalities gives a sober military history something of biography's lure. And always there is the realization—itself a compelling spur to interest—that one is reading a truly great book." P. M. Angle
+ Book Week p3 O 22 '44 750w
Booklist 41:56 O 15 '44
Christian Science Monitor p16 O 17 '44 430w

Reviewed by Paul Kiniery
Commonweal 41:84 N 3 '44 420w

"This final volume sustains the record of vitality extraordinarily maintained throughout, and traces the heartbreaking details of the collapse of the Confederacy. . . The completion of a brilliant work."
+ Kirkus 12:356 Ag 15 '44 170w

Reviewed by H. A. DeWeerd
+ N Y Times p1 O 8 '44 1600w

"Through his enormous knowledge and study and a lifetime's proximity to his subject, Dr. Freeman is able to bring the bloody drama of the Civil War, and the men who played big and little parts in it, to life. The critic who said that 'Lee's Lieutenants' was as exciting as a novel was not indulging in book-review talk-talk. There are portrait photographs of the principal actors and excellent maps for those who like to follow battles with an index finger."
+ New Yorker 20:85 O 14 '44 100w

"This volume, like its predecessors, contains excellent informative appendices, a good critical bibliography, and a satisfactory index. The examination of evidence to show that Gettysburg was not lost because of poor reconnaissance of Cemetery Ridge is persuasive, the elaborate study of what happened to Lee's lieutenants after the surrender a real contribution. This book has the further merit of enabling one to document his predilections on Lee or almost any of his generals, whatever these might happen to be. The author still employs a plethora of detail, but the present volume is not so overstuffed with minutiae as some of the battle chapters of the Lee opus, particularly those on Gettysburg. Nevertheless, it is amazing that so long a work should sustain the interest as well as this does." G. F. Milton
+ Sat R of Lit 27:11 O 21 '44 1350w

Reviewed by L. B. Kromer
Springf'd Republican p4d O 15 '44 900w

"At last we take our leave of the goodly company of the Army of Northern Virginia. . . With Mr. Freeman as our guide and interpreter we have known them now for ten years, and through him they shall be known as long as men are stirred by the record of noble things." Henry Commager
+ Weekly Book Review p1 O 8 '44 2100w
Wis Lib Bul 40:159 D '44

Reviewed by D. M. Potter
Yale R n s 34:360 winter '45 850w

FREEMAN, HARROP ARTHUR, ed. Peace is the victory. 253p $1.50 Harper

341.04 Peace. International law and relations 44-6269

"A challenging group of religious leaders, journalists and educators set down their conviction that it is not force in any form but dynamic good will alone that offers the valid base for a lasting peace." (Weekly Book Review) Contents: The affirmation—a faith for our times, by J. H. Holmes; The problem—what causes war? by Kirby Page; The trend—the historical imperative of civilization, by A. J. Muste; How to plan for peace, by A. W. Palmer; The substance of reconstruction, by Hiram Motherwell; They cry for help! by Clarence Pickett; World co-operation—a political must, by H. E. Fosdick; A new international order—functional or constitutional, by Theodore Paullin; A new international law—coercive or responsive, by H. A. Freeman; A new economics—man centered or machine centered, by Robert Stevens; Europe—from dynamite to dynamic, by O. G. Villard; Asia—the acid test, by E. S. Jones; The Americas—Chasquis or Mitimaes? by Devere Allen; This is victory, by the editor.

FREEMAN, H. A., ed.—Continued

Booklist 41:74 N 1 '44

"A glance at the names of the thirteen contributors to this carefully organized symposium would give assurance that it is a pacifist pronouncement and that it represents pacifism on its highest level of insight and intelligence."
+ Christian Century 61:904 Ag 2 '44 170w

"It is refreshing to find a book so thoughtful, so tolerant, and so free from prejudice as this one is. More writing of this kind is needed to educate humanity away from its present reliance on self-destructive means of settling international differences." E. S. Brightman
+ Crozer Q 21:369 O '44 200w

"Timely, because of the current discussion of international police, this is a volume which the thoughtful will not wish to overlook." Frances Witherspoon
+ Weekly Book Review p7 S 3 '44 550w
Wis Lib Bul 40:128 O '44

FREEMAN, MRS MAE (BLACKER), and FREEMAN, IRA MAXIMILIAN. Fun with chemistry. 58p il $1.25 Random house
540 Chemistry—Juvenile literature 44-8348

Simple experiments which may be made at home by a beginner, and with materials found in the home. Illustrated with photographs.

"The boy who enjoyed Mae and Ira Freeman's 'Fun with Science' will have an equally good time with this. He'll not only be able to conduct experiments which will look like magic to the uninitiated, but he'll be learning about chemistry as well." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p20 N 12 '44 90w
Booklist 41:94 N 15 '44

"Illustrated with admirably clear photographs." H. L. Binsse
+ Commonweal 41:129 N 17 '44 20w

"An excellent book for any boy or girl who is interested in the subject. . . There is clarity of text, and simplification without any semblance of condescension."
+ Kirkus 12:452 O 1 '44 110w

"The book is heartily recommended, particularly for home ownership, for alert, inquisitive boys between ten and thirteen." Miriam Snow
+ Library J 69:938 N 1 '44 70w
Sat R of Lit 27:49 N 11 '44 20w

FRENCH, MRS MAIDA (PARLOW). Boughs bend over. 246p $2.50 Doubleday
44-2706

Saga of a settlement of American loyalists, who had fled from Albany, at the close of the Revolution, to their grants in the Canadian forests. The first tragedy is the loss of the five-year-old son of the van Doorn's. Life in the forest settlement is not easy, and the lost child's mother proves a problem, but by the time Colin van Doorn returns to his home, five years later, many difficulties had been overcome and the settlement is flourishing.

Reviewed by Jack Conroy
Book Week p8 Mr 5 '44 90w
Booklist 40:304 My 1 '44

"Mrs. French has written a story full of characters and action, and has made the forest background, ominous yet potentially rich, an integral part of the narrative. John van Doorn and his capable, pink-cheeked little wife, Abigail, are substantially embodied, but most of the other characters, though well-conceived, are not fully developed, and the valuable store of history implicit in the settling is not utilized to the fullest imaginable degree. The story is one for swift, though agreeable, reading." W. K. R.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p12 Ap 8 '44 600w
Kirkus 11:557 D 15 '43 160w

"The author might have fashioned a saga of the difficult readjustment of an upper-class family to rude pioneer existence. Or a regulation historical novel based on imposing research and built around famous figures and incidents. What she has written, after skillfully sketching in an authentic background, is a modest frontier melodrama, which, in most particulars, might as well have happened in Kentucky or Oregon as Upper Canada." Richard Match
N Y Times p20 F 27 '44 420w

"The book is a moderately good short mystery drama, somewhat expanded with matters of frontier technique." Phil Stong
Sat R of Lit 27:20 Mr 18 '44 180w

"If Miss French is a beginning novelist, she ought to grow into a good one. Her characters have substance and probability; she enjoys telling her story and she has a fine touch for suspense. She doesn't overload her tale with historical matter, and undoubtedly she loves the country she describes." Edrie Van Dore
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 12 '44 330w

"This novel is based on records in possession of the author, direct descendant of those who migrated to the valley of the St. Lawrence, and is valuable supplementary reading as well as interesting fiction." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p14 Mr 26 '44 150w
Wis Lib Bul 40:55 Ap '44

FRENCH impressionists and their contemporaries represented in American collections; pref. by Edward Alden Jewell; photo research and biographies by Aimée Crane. (Hyperion bk) 191p pl $5.95 Random house
759.4 Paintings, French. Impressionism (art) 44-8686

Historical appraisal of the Impressionist movement, written by the art critic of the New York Times, followed by brief biographical sketches of some of its leading exponents, and their works. Contains 52 full color plates, and 100 illustrations in black and white, representing the works of 23 artists. Bibliographies.

Booklist 41:91 N 15 '44

"Beautiful piece of bookmaking—one could wish for more of the reproductions in color, but the photography is excellent. . . Good gift choice."
+ Kirkus 12:358 Ag 15 '44 110w

"Recommended for art collections and art libraries." H. R. Forbes
+ Library J 69:696 S 1 '44 110w

Reviewed by Clement Greenberg
Nation 159:480 O 21 '44 600w

"Mr. Edward Alden Jewell, of The New York Times, has contributed the preface to a book of the French Impressionistic painters that suggests at once a series of happy presentations—a book in sum that will serve as a gift. Along with the well disguised significance and profundity of the Preface, the whole of it makes for delightful entertainment. . . Most of all Mr. Jewell, exhibited thus as a critic and historian of painting, has a poetic and lucid insight by which he never fails to perceive that the final value of a work of art is an inner thing, not a matter of schools or classifications, and is to be tested always by the consecration and the poet's dream." Stark Young
+ New Repub 111:571 O 30 '44 420w

"This is a valuable book. . . Let's have more books about such men as these (not to mention a number of American painters equally deserving), now that Mr. Jewell and Miss Crane have served up for us once again the repas célèbre." J. D. Morse
+ N Y Times p23 O 1 '44 500w

"In an oddly cautious preface, Mr. Jewell spends so much time disavowing popular misconceptions about the theories of the Impressionists as a group that he seems at times to be disavowing the artists themselves."
New Yorker 20:87 O 14 '44 100w

FRENKLEY, ALEXANDER. Stones of glory—stones of France. 140pl $6 Int. univ. press
720.944 Architecture—France 44-51298

Collection of photographs of the architectural beauties of France. Includes an introduction by Jacques Maritain, and short notes on the photographs.

Booklist 41:149 Ja 15 '45

"Despite a certain crudity of letterpress, due to the paper shortage, this collection of photographs by Mr. Frenkley is well worth its price, especially for those professionally interested in the history of French architecture. 'Stones of Glory,' moreover, is no mere collection of photographs of venerable buildings, some of them taken from various candid camera angles, but (as Mr. Frenkley's introduction shows) it may be considered a kind of hymn to fallen and risen France, chanted with the aid of the photographic art." Cuthbert Wright
+ N Y Times p12 Ja 14 '45 650w
New Yorker 20:118 D 9 '44 40w

"An unpretentious book, without claim to any scholarly interpretation. It is frankly a picture book in which the photographs are allowed to tell their own story, with the soaring tower of a cathedral or the proud arc of a bridge as eloquent accent." E. M. B.
Springf'd Republican p4 Ja 2 '45 160w
Weekly Book Review p14 Ja 28 '45 100w

FREUD, ANNA. See Burlingham, D. T. and Freud, A. Infants without families

FREUD, ARTHUR. World without nations. 208p $2 Hobson bk press, inc, 6 Main st, Cynthiana, Ky.
321.041 Nationalism and nationality. International cooperation. World war, 1939—Peace 44-1182

"National states being the root of evil, the author . . . abolishes them in favor of several supranational states." Foreign Affairs

"The reader will find little guidance in these pages to assist in clarifying his ideas concerning nations and nationalism and their proper role in the postwar world." L. A. Mander
— Ann Am Acad 236:175 N '44 200w
Foreign Affairs 23:3 O '44 20w

FREUND, PHILIP. The young Greek and the Creole. 271p $2.50 Pilgrim house 44-7918

"A collection of short stories. . . In sharp contrast to today's naturalistic and sociological writing, these stories are concerned with rendering, often in allegorical terms, the emotional and spiritual 'essences' of life rather than with projecting its contemporary substance." New Yorker

" 'The Young Greek and the Creole' presents not a giant among short-story writers, but a pale if earnest aesthete, who, though he has a fine style and the commanding means with which to say something, seems content rather to pose eternal questions and then leap tenuously and gracefully away from their answers. One feels that Philip Freund could tell remarkable and memorable short stories, but that always the philosophic concept is of primary concern, so that all his stories wash away into a disappointing nebulosity which is all the more unfortunate in consideration of his stylistic ability." August Derleth
Book Week p15 O 1 '44 320w
Booklist 41:153 Ja 15 '45

"Short stories, of somewhat austere distinction, of place, of mood, of allegory, of character, of incident. . . For the discriminating reader of short stories, these have a certain unworldly polish, a voluntarily isolated approach in which form and content are consciously studied."
+ Kirkus 12:347 Ag 15 '44 130w

"The short stories in 'The Young Greek and the Creole' are extremely puzzling. Conceived and written in the grand manner, they fall strangely short of grandeur; they have the touch of the master, yet they are simply not masterly. The fact is that Mr. Freund is so consciously traditional that his stories seem anachronistic, pompous, even false, and his volume raises once more the question of the proper relation of the contemporary writer with the past. For despite his very real gifts, Mr. Freund is the gifted imitator rather than the gifted pupil; he has studied his masters too slavishly, and his mind is on his ideal of a story instead of on what he wants to say." Diana Trilling
Nation 159:444 O 14 '44 240w

"In a season of reproductions, the present volume of short stories is of the genuine, hand-painted variety. As a writer Mr. Freund possesses a most essential and enviable attribute—the ability to translate philosophical and moral ideas into story ideas. . . After reading the critics' notices of Mr. Freund's earlier book of stories, 'The Snow,' I was puzzled at first by their references to the author as a 'genuine stylist' who 'handles English like a classic writer of the old school.' But then I remembered O. Henry, another fine storyteller, who might be considered as a classic writer of the old school. The present stories are descended from an artistic and philosophical branch of the O. Henry family, bred, possibly, with a cross-strain of Isak Dinesen." Marjorie Farber
+ N Y Times p10 O 1 '44 440w
New Yorker 20:77 S 9 '44 180w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p4d Ja 7 '45 470w

"Something of the esthetic philosophy of Walter Pater, so remote from the immediacy of present-day writing, seems to animate Mr. Freund's book. He has a liking for the careful phrase, for calculated beauty, for irony which kills without a sting. He is concerned with attitude alone. While there is no doubt that he is a writer, born with the need to tell what he sees and to tell it with all the polish and flavor he can command, he is still searching for the truth in a labyrinth and has not yet found the straight open road which leads to the human heart." Virgilia Sapieha
+ — Weekly Book Review p6 S 10 '44 800w

FREY, AUSTIN ROGERS. Fundamentals of radio communications. 393p $4 Longmans
621.384 Radio 44-2677

"A text for intermediate and advanced students. The chapters cover: Resonant circuits; Thermionic emission and diodes; Grid-controlled vacuum tubes; Voltage amplifiers; Power amplifiers; Oscillators; Modulation and demodulation; R-F transmission lines; Radiation. References to pertinent literature are given in footnotes." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:305 Ap 1 '44 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:11 Ja '44

"This book is probably intended as a text for a third-or fourth-year college course in electrical engineering. The subjects treated are numerous and well selected, and the student who has the necessary mathematical background should acquire a good introduction to electronics. The book might not be desirable in many adult education classes because of the free use of the calculus throughout, and the fact that, in the interests of mathematical detail, the author uses so much space in developing equations that he has little space left for a discussion of practical design factors, which enables the student to go ahead and design successful amplifiers to meet his own particular specifications." D. C. Kalbfell
R of Scientific Instruments 15:262 O '44 500w

FRIEDMANN, WOLFGANG. Crisis of the national state. 197p $3.75 (12s 6d) Macmillan

320.15 State, The. Nationalism and nationality. International cooperation 43-22879

"This book is a . . . survey of economic history, showing the rise of the national State and the development of conditions inside it which are leading to its transformation. This line of thought is in accordance with that of the great Marxist writers of Russia but without the dogmatism which is generally found in Communist quarters. The national movements of the nineteenth century in Europe against the feudal empires of Austria, Turkey, and Russia were inspired by people with the ideas of liberal democracy. But these same national States, when they attained their freedom, began in many cases to oppress their own national minorities. . . Mr. Friedmann seems to envisage the spread of multi-racial States like Soviet Russia, regional federations in Europe, and the development of free democratic commonwealths like the British Empire and the United States." Manchester Guardian

Reviewed by C. J. Friedrich
Am Econ R 34:601 S '44 1500w

Reviewed by M. Q. Sibley
Am Pol Sci R 38:563 Je '44 650w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:489 Ap '44 40w

Reviewed by M. P. Price
Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 7 '44 180w

"Dr. Friedmann's book is stimulating and important." Norman MacKenzie
+ — New Statesman & Nation 26:321 N 13 '43 950w

"Mr Friedmann's book is too brief to be more than an outline or syllabus of so vast a theme, the argument is not always in perfect focus, and the style is dull. But there is a good deal of penetrating comment and the essay is definitely worth reading." T. P. Peardon
+ — Pol Sci Q 59:314 Je '44 330w

Special Libraries 35:100 Mr '44

"Any discussion of what to do with the world that is based on the belief that nationalism is a passing phase, now moving off the world stage, seems to me to be so misconceived in its view of the world that even the useful, practical parts of the project will be much less useful than they would have been if Dr. Friedmann, for instance, had been willing to accept the grim facts of the present world and see what could be done to mitigate their ill consequences instead of inventing a world that, (in my opinion) either never existed at all or died not later than 1914." D. W. Brogan
Spec 171:534 D 3 '43 650w

"Mr. Friedmann's political psychology is debatable; but there is much penetrating analysis of the causes of modern international dislocation, and the whole book is worthy of careful attention."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p614 D 25 '43 850w

FRIENDLY, ALFRED. Guys on the ground; with a foreword by Walter H. Frank. 170p il $2.50 Duell

940.544973 U.S. Army air forces. Air service command. World war, 1939-Aerial operations 44-7320

The "guys" are the men who repair the damaged airplanes which come back from war missions, apparently ready for the junk pile. The book is a collection of articles and anecdotes about these ground crews, their difficulties and ingenuity.

Reviewed by W. F. Morse
Book Week p10 Jl 30 '44 90w

Booklist 41:8 S '44

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Je '44

"Interesting human material on the Joes who make an air force possible, and the first book in that field. Not a dry recital of facts but a live portrait of men and their work."
+ Kirkus 12:228 My 15 '44 170w

"Designed to give the men who keep the planes flying the credit due them, this book is too pedantic to appeal to any but those about whom it is written. Recommended for Army Air Force libraries only." A. M. Davis
Library J 69:601 Jl '44 70w

Reviewed by F. S. Adams
N Y Times p4 Jl 30 '44 850w

Springf'd Republican p4d Jl 16 '44 70w

"Captain Friendly's account of the guys on the ground who 'furnish and fix' is a heartening story in the midst of a devastating war, for they are builders and not destroyers." George Polk
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 13 '44 600w

FRIES, ADELAIDE LISETTA. Road to Salem. 316p il $4 Univ. of N.C. press

B or 92 Ernst, Anna Catharina (Antes) 44-2329

Chronicles the life of Anna Catharina Antes, born in 1726 and died in 1816. She was a Moravian deaconness, born in Pennsylvania, who in 1753 went to the North Carolina wilderness to join others of her sect in the settlement of Salem. This story of her life is based on Anna Catharina's diary begun in 1803, and filled out with other documents on the period.

"Dr. Fries, for many years custodian of the Moravian Records of North Carolina and now archivist of the southern province of the Moravian church, is quite the best qualified person to have prepared such a book, and she has done it with exceptional skill and enlightenment." A. M. Arnett
+ Am Hist R 50:180 O '44 260w

"Adelaide Fries has built all the material into a narrative so rich in atmosphere and sustained in interest that it has much of the quality of a very good historical novel. Her work is extraordinarily deft and sensitive and possesses both warmth and integrity. Reading 'The Road to Salem,' one really does add to his life a genuine and intimate experience of one neglected and most interesting part of our American past." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p9 F 20 '44 320w

Booklist 40:266 Ap 1 '44

N Y Times p20 Ap 16 '44 600w

"There was drama and excitement in almost every phase of her simply written story. But she did not undertake to write an exciting document. Miss Fries in expanding it has emphasized none of its dramatics. What is preserved in this book is not merely the details of living Anna Catharina recorded but the essence of the good life she lived and the splendid spirit of goodness she brought to living." Jonathan Daniels
+ Sat R of Lit 27:22 Ap 1 '44 600w

"Miss Fries has had the rare good sense to perceive that the fine quality of her material lies in its clarity and simplicity. She has resisted the temptation to over-elaborate the plain tale of the simple German girl. The result is a genuinely artistic book—anything but realistic, to be sure, but with the unreality of the devotee, which we call unworldly. It is radiant beyond our common experience, but radiant with celestial light, not tricked out with tinsel." G. W. Johnson
+ Weekly Book Review p10 Ap 30 '44 700w

FRINGS, MRS KETTI (HARTLEY). God's front porch. 121p $2 Morrow 44-1336

Fantasy in which Corporal Pinky Harrison, killed in North Africa, makes his way into the outer courts of Heaven, finds it very much like home, and finally becomes reconciled to exchanging his beloved Martha and life on earth for God's Front Porch.

Reviewed by Peter De Vries
Book Week p9 Mr 12 '44 350w

"The writing is good, but both the author and her characters seem to have strayed into the wrong milieu. One can't be kittenish about heaven—or about foxholes either." N. E. Monroe
— + Cath World 159:92 Ap '44 160w

"A small bit of fantasy with humor and comfort. . . Slight—popularly styled."
Kirkus 12:4 Ja 1 '44 100w

"With such a fanciful tale one can hardly criticize any effects the author uses. One can only judge whether or not those effects ring true—whether the mood is held and enhanced. Although Mrs. Frings brings some highly individualistic and ingenuous touches to her book, it lacks a certain sensitive simplicity. She has become too intrigued with the way she tells her story. It needs that intangible touch that can make even the most extravagant imagery breathlessly real and moving." Andrea Parke
N Y Times p19 Mr 12 '44 390w

"This simple, sentimental excursion into fantasy will certainly delight many readers, and there is no good reason why a reviewer who is something less than delighted by it should treat it with anything but kindness. . . It is even possible that readers who are capable of being comforted by an adolescent's conception of deity may, in addition to pleasant reading, find in this book the comfort that the publisher promises." B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 27:17 F 26 '44 800w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 F 27 '44 450w

FRISBIE, ROBERT DEAN. Island of Desire; the story of a South Sea trader. 234p $2.50 Doubleday

B or 92 South Sea islands 44-7369

Autobiography of a South Sea trader who lived many years on Danger Island four hundred miles from Samoa. The first part of his tale tells how he wooed and won the island girl, Desire, and of how she became his wife and of their life together. The second part tells of the adventures of the author and his four children after Desire's death, particularly of their experiences in a hurricane.

"Even more remarkable than his portraits, it seems to me, are his descriptions, which are no interruption to his narrative, but a dramatic part of it. An accomplishment most writers only dream of." Edith Roberts
Book Week p4 Jl 30 '44 400w
Booklist 41:19 S '44
Kirkus 12:243 Je 1 '44 170w

"The author has a gift for savoring simple, sensuous pleasures as well as for the enjoyment of Montaigne or some other philosopher. He has, too, a knack for applying modern psychology to the management of his cowboys, and respect and awe for inanimate things. A keen and colorful book, full of solid entertainment and happy release for almost any reader." Barbara Bond
+ N Y Times p7 Jl 16 '44 440w

"His story, completely out of this warring world, provides some of the best reading for pure enjoyment that has turned up for many months, and supplies as well a description of a hurricane that couldn't be bettered." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 31 '44 440w

Reviewed by Arna Bontemps
Weekly Book Review p8 Jl 30 '44 600w

FRISKEY, MARGARET. Corporal Crow; pictures by Lucia Patton. [32p] $1 McKay 44-3445

Picture-story book for ages five to seven. It describes the adventures of Colonel Crow and the recruits he is training to save the farmer's corn by eating the beetles. One small recruit does such valiant service that he is rewarded by being made a corporal.

"This picture book for the 5 to 7 ages is heaps of fun." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p4 Je 4 '44 150w
Kirkus 12:216 My 1 '44 60w

"An amusing picture book which will give young children their much-desired soldier story in a new setting. Attractive format and many illustrations." Olive Brain
+ Library J 69:505 Je 1 '44 60w

FRISKEY, MARGARET. Tad Lincoln and the green umbrella; pictures by Lucia Patton. 94p $1.75 Oxford

Lincoln, Thomas—Juvenile literature 44-9757

A story of a little boy who didn't want to go to Washington to live in the White House and be a president's son. However, Tad's father convinced him that it was his duty to go along to help protect his mother and the climax of the story tells how Tad did just that.

"One of the best Lincoln books we've had." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p11 D 17 '44 100w
Booklist 41:141 Ja 1 '45
Kirkus 12:520 N 15 '44 90w

"Tad's charm is brought out in his mischievous pranks and the comradeship with his father. Of particular interest is the description of the Lincoln family's first journey to the White House." Nelle McCalla
+ Library J 70:35 Ja 1 '45 60w

FRITCHMAN, STEPHEN HOLE. Men of liberty; ten Unitarian pioneers; with il. by Hendrik Willem Van Loon. 180p $1.75; student's ed $1 Beacon press

922.81 Unitarianism—Biography 44-5181

"Simple but well studied biographies of ten liberal thinkers who may be called Unitarians, in a not too strict sense of the word. Servetus, Faustus Socinus and Francis David were sixteenth century leaders. John Biddle was a seventeenth century English exponent of the doctrines of the Racovian Catechism. Priestley, Jefferson, Channing, Emerson and Parker need no introduction. Magnus Eiriksson was a nineteenth century Icelandic independent. The book was written especially for young people." Christian Century

Christian Century 61:646 My 24 '44 100w
Weekly Book Review p15 Je 25 '44 180w

FROST, FRANCES MARY. American caravan; il. by Lee Townsend. (Whittlesey house publication) [64p] $1.75 McGraw 44-9099

The adventures of an American family, traveling thru the forty-eight states via car and trailer in pre-rationing days. The story is told in rhyme, with small pictures in place of some of the words. For ages eight to twelve.

"I can't see any particular excuse for this being handled the way it is handled. A 'rebus in verse' it is called, but somehow I cannot see children of this age group (and younger children would have no comprehension of the text) liking the substitute of pictures for words. . . As verse, it is negligible."
— Kirkus 12:480 O 15 '44 170w

"The tiny pictures and dancing rhymes will set any child old enough to read, or just to look and listen, to discovering that geography can be fun." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p12 N 12 '44 100w

"Children have fun with rebuses, and this is a thoroughly entertaining one, in good, rattling rhymed verse."
+ New Yorker 20:89 D 16 '44 90w

"Covering more states than pages, the story will have chiefly a tantalizing effect, leading its readers young and old alike to looking up more information, in bigger books, about Paul Bunyan, the Oregon Trail, Old Faithful, and the Continental Divide—like other landmarks and heroes, mentioned only by name. But it makes a suitable and entertaining Christmas book for the 8 to 12-year-olds." E. V. D.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d D 10 '44 170w

FROST, S. E., ed. The world's great sermons. 395p $1.98 Blue ribbon bks.

252 Sermons 43-17477

"Nearly one hundred sermons (short or shortened) are presented, covering the whole

FROST, S. E., ed.—Continued
range of Christian history and a wide diversity of views, Catholic, Protestant and Jewish. The early Fathers are included; Abelard, Bernard, Francis and Wiclif for the Middle Ages; and the master minds of the Reformation. About one-third of the space is devoted to living preachers. . . A few lines of biography are devoted to each preacher." Christian Century

"This is an excellent collection and a good introduction to a study of preaching through the ages."
+ Christian Century 61:179 F 9 '44 80w

"Most of the sermons are in digest form, and will be the more attractive to the average person because they can be more quickly read. Many a reader will find that this book will serve him as an introduction to areas of Christian thought new to him, and to figures in the history of the church whose significance he may wish to follow farther. The selection of current masters of the pulpit is well chosen." J. R. Shepler
+ Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 11 '44 200w

FULLER, EDMUND. John Milton; pictures by Robert Ball. 238p $2.50 Harper
Milton, John—Fiction 44-6866

A fictionized biography of John Milton, emphasizing the man himself as "an exciting human being," rather than placing emphasis on his writings. For older boys and girls and adults.

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 D 28 '44 150w
Horn Bk 20:479 N '44 150w

"A composed, balanced biography of John Milton, which is almost wholly the life of the man and not a new interpretation thereof, but it is well handled and with as much warmth as a rather forbidding subject permits."
+ Kirkus 12:244 Je 1 '44 190w

"Since the greatness of Milton rests on his poetry, not his pamphlets, many may feel that the emphasis is misplaced. May prove useful in making his era better understood by older boys and girls, but they deserve a more penetrating portrait of this tragic figure." Eileen Riols
Library J 69:887 O 15 '44 70w
Sat R of Lit 27:46 N 11 '44 50w

"The story is not fictionized, and though conversation is freely used, it is such as would naturally rise from circumstances faithfully related. Staunchly, even militantly Protestant, it is 'the story of an exciting human being.' "
+ Weekly Book Review p16 N 12 '44 500w
Wis Lib Bul 40:150 N '44

FULLER, EDMUND, ed. Thesaurus of epigrams. 382p $1.98 Crown
808.8 Epigrams. Toasts 43-17752

Collection of epigrams and toasts chosen from literature over a wide span of years from the ancient Greeks to Bob Hope. The compiler says the epigram is "inevitably inclined toward irreverence, deflation, and cynicism." Arrangement is by subject, with cross references.

Booklist 40:193 F 1 '44
Reviewed by E. C. Richards
N Y Times p10 F 6 '44 360w

"Mr Fuller's selections are widely chosen in time and sources, and pleasantly varied. . . Such a potpourri is an excellent reminder to anyone that the fundamentals of human experience, and men's reactions to them, haven't changed very much in 20 centuries. The publishers predict that the book will be helpful to speakers, writers, lawyers, ministers and teachers. No doubt it will, producing many a deft allusion and sparkling 'extemporaneous' after-dinner speech—without credit to Mr. Fuller."
Springf'd Republican p8 F 3 '44 280w

FULLER, SAMUEL MICHAEL. Dark page. 250p $2.50 Duell
44-9240

Psychological murder story in which the detective is a newspaper reporter.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p2 S 10 '44 230w

"An attempt at originality which just misses being a good yarn."
Kirkus 12:384 S 1 '44 80w

"Aside from a rather clumsily handled romance, it makes a fascinating story." Isaac Anderson
+ — N Y Times p18 Ag 27 '44 90w

"A tricky story, highly overwritten, but a pleasant change from orthodox detection."
+ — New Yorker 20:68 S 2 '44 90w

"Full marks."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:23 S 2 '44 40w

"Try as we would, we did not enjoy this peculiar tale of crime as much as we had hoped, though we hasten to add that it has found high favor in other quarters. . . The suspense is strong. The style is something fierce." Will Cuppy
— Weekly Book Review p15 S 10 '44 80w

FURMAN, ABRAHAM LOUIS. Air force surgeon. 252p $2.50 Sheridan
43-13680

A small island in the Pacific is the scene of this story. A handful of American marines hold the island against the Japs until help comes. A doctor and a nurse arriving by Clipper help when the island hospital is bombed, and a Broadway dancer, rescued after floating some days on a raft, plays an important part.

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p29 O 3 '43 200w

"It's a fast-moving novel."
Springf'd Republican p7e D 19 '43 90w

FURMAN, ABRAHAM LOUIS, ed. Armchair companion. 367p $2.50 Gold label
Short stories—Collections 44-47307

A collection of 20 modern short stories selected from current popular magazines.

Booklist 41:140 Ja 1 '45

"Armchair—rocking chair—for relaxation."
Kirkus 12:326 Ag 1 '44 160w
Springf'd Republican p4d D 31 '44 110w

FURMAN, ABRAHAM LOUIS, ed. Second mystery companion. 410p $2.75 Gold label 44-47148

"All but one of the stories in this anthology are fiction; the exception is 'The Master of Murder Castle,' a factual account by John Bartlow Martin of the career of H. H. Holmes, the mass murderer of the Eighteen Nineties. The other entries are of varying quality, some very good indeed and others mediocre. The most amusing one in the lot is also the shortest: 'The Bed Chamber Mystery,' by C. S. Forester." N Y Times

Kirkus 12:385 S 1 '44 60w
Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p18 N 5 '44 100w

"A worthy successor to 'The Mystery Companion' which brightened the lives of whodunit fans last year." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d D 10 '44 130w

FUX, JOHANN JOSEPH. Steps to Parnassus; the study of counterpoint; tr. and ed. by Alfred Mann; with the collaboration of John St Edmunds. 156p $3 Norton
781.4 Counterpoint 44-40022

"Originally written in Latin in 1725, Gradus ad Parnassum, a famous book on counterpoint is now given its first faithful translation into English by Alfred Mann, though an English version of 1791 condensed it and omitted the majority of the original musical examples. The instruction takes a dialog form between the master, Palestrina, and his pupil. Ernest Newman says of the Gradus, 'The house he (Fux) built remains, and will remain as long as counterpoint is studied.' Bibliography: p.149-151." Booklist

Booklist 40:230 Mr 1 '44

"This is not a book for laymen, but is one-in-a-hundred for students and teachers of counterpoint. It is easily the simplest, clearest, and most charming presentation of the subject in our language. Widespread use of it would go a long way toward wiping out the dryness and unreality that, too long and too often, have surrounded the experience in living beauty that counterpoint can and should be. The work will be of value also to teachers and students of musical history or analysis." Randall Thompson

+ Sat R of Lit 27:33 Ja 22 '44 900w

"The dialogue reads clearly and naturally and the examples are transposed into the treble and bass clefs with the originals indicated at the side. The subject-matter is only of academic concern but the opportunity of having a historical document of such interest will be appreciated by a wider circle of musical people."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p455 S 16 '44 220w

G

GABRIEL, GILBERT WOLF. I got a country. 432p $3 Doubleday

44-7328

A novel of Alaska in wartime. The chief characters are three soldiers who travel north in the same ship but otherwise have little in common, either in their pasts, their present pursuits, or their futures.

Reviewed by Ralph Peterson
Book Week p5 S 3 '44 650w

Booklist 41:41 O 1 '44

Kirkus 12:262 Je 15 '44 250w

"There is plenty of good material in this novel, but the result is neither a real delving into the lives of its characters nor a smooth, fast-moving narrative of action." Michael Ravenna

+ — N Y Times p5 Ag 27 '44 440w

"Neither brilliant nor clever in the accepted sense 'I Got a Country' is solid and written with an amazingly clear understanding of the differences in men who become soldiers, and their reaction to so revolutionary a change in their lives. Some of it is not pretty, but Mr. Gabriel has not written a 'good war book.' He has brought his reportorial inquisitiveness to bear upon a segment of the American army and has shown the men of that army both developing and disintegrating under the stress of non-combat war, and has made it all very real." L. S. Munn

+ — Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 27 '44 750w

"Gilbert W. Gabriel has written a solid, richly-textured novel of Army life as seen from the inside. Somewhat overlengthy in execution and deliberate in pace, it more than counterbalances these faults by the depth of its character insight and the sense it evokes of complete participation in the experiences of its people." Jennings Rice

+ — Weekly Book Review p2 S 3 '44 900w

Wis Lib Bul 40:147 N '44

GAER, JOSEPH. Everybody's weather. (Stokes bks. for boys and girls) 96p il $2 Lippincott

551.5 Weather—Juvenile literature 44-4766

Photographic picture book, with simple text, about the weather, showing pictures of people who are much interested in the weather and why they are interested; things everybody can learn about the weather; kinds of clouds; manifestations of weather; and the work of the United States weather bureau. For grades four and up.

"Since most of us, whether we are young or old, spend a good part of our lives worrying and talking about the weather, a book which contains practical information on so fascinating a subject is welcome indeed. . . A great many excellent photographs illustrate points made in the text and add to the book's value. 'Everybody's Weather' will interest the whole family, and it should be especially useful to school-teachers." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p11 Je 18 '44 180w

Booklist 40:359 Je 15 '44

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p12 Jl 27 '44 120w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:292 Jl '44 90w

Kirkus 12:233 My 15 '44 130w

"A unique and delightful book, interesting and informative, with beautiful and dramatic photographs and brief texts, that make it clear why weather is so important to all of us."

+ School & Society 59:352 My 13 '44 30w

Wis Lib Bul 40:111 Jl '44

GAER, JOSEPH. First round; the story of the CIO Political action committee; with a foreword by J. Raymond Walsh. 478p il $2.50 Duell

329.01 Congress of industrial organization. Political action committee. U.S.—Politics and government—20th century. Campaign literature, 1944 44-51287

"This book consists primarily of pamphlets written for and published by the CIO Political Action Committee whose story it tells. . . Included are the famous pamphlets 'This is Your America,' 'The People's Program for 1944,' 'Jobs for All,' 'The Negro in 1944,' and such practical guides to political action as the 'Speakers Manual,' 'O Woman's Guide' and 'What Every Canvasser Should Know.' " New Repub

"In both its dedication and conclusion it is apparent that the author is completely committed to the philosophy and work of the P.A.C. This fact, however, should not be regarded as a criticism of the contribution rendered by the author. Too often it is forgotten that the only people who are completely objective and nonpartisan are those wearing tombstones instead of hats. The informed American citizen striving to get the facts about the P.A.C. will find 'The First Round' illuminating." S. D. Alinsky

Book Week p3 D 24 '44 500w

Booklist 41:146 Ja 15 '45

Boston Globe p15 Ja 3 '45 230w

"It is not only a sourcebook but an eloquent monument as well to labor's part in last November's election campaign."

+ New Repub 111:877 D 25 '44 90w

Reviewed by Warren Moscow
N Y Times p4 Ja 7 '45 700w

"Political analysts for months will debate the effectiveness of the PAC. Only one thing is certain, the PAC made history and should have a place in its pages. There is room for the recording of its story. . . Joseph Gaer, a former PAC staff-member, government employee, and writer on subjects ranging from the Biblical to social security, has tried to create such a record in his book 'The First Round, The Story of the CIO PAC'. He has failed because he has turned out a 'quickie.' Most of the volume is devoted to the many slick leaflets released by the PAC. . . The rest of the book reads as though it had been written from a complete collection of PAC handouts. The book is filled with many benign pictures of Mr. Hillman, and occasionally there are some good shots of other CIO leaders, but Mr. Gaer does not tell the full, objective story of the PAC." Victor Riesel

— Sat R of Lit 28:8 Ja 13 '45 1600w

GAER, JOSEPH—Continued

"An intensely interesting and provocative book. And a valuable book, within the limits of a partisan presentation. It was hastily put together just before and after the election. It is not objective, nor even a complete official account of PAC's far-flung labors and achievements. It does give the high lights of PAC's origin and growth." Marshall Bragdon

+ — Springf'd Republican p6 Ja 13 '45 400w

Reviewed by Philip Taft

Weekly Book Review p4 Ja 7 '45 1350w

GAITHER, MRS FRANCES ORMOND (JONES). Red cock crows. 313p $2.75 Macmillan

44-4612

A novel of Mississippi in 1835, described as it appeared to a Northern school teacher, Adam Fiske. Things move along smoothly in this cotton growing community, but Adam is aware of an undercurrent of unrest among the Negroes, and when an insurrection breaks out, even the sympathetic Yankee nearly loses his life.

Reviewed by Sterling North

Book Week p2 My 21 '44 180w

Booklist 40:355 Je 15 '44

"The book is tense and dramatic, full of vivid, authentic details, and in its sustained imagination and truth to human nature would be hard to equal in modern fiction." N. E. Monroe

+ Cath World 159:476 Ag '44 270w

"The author's handling of voodooism, if nothing else, would make the book worth reading, although her talent for narrative and for character portrayal is marked." E. R. L.

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 8 '44 500w

"A convincing picture of the wildfire of freedom for a people, fanned by a fanatic, and creating hysteria, murderous and insane."

+ Kirkus 12:80 F 15 '44 210w

"A skillful job, very slow at first, but with mounting tension through the Negro trials. Not for popular reading." L. M. Kinloch

+ — Library J 69:404 My 1 '44 100w

"'The Red Cock Crows' is a fast-paced and at times melodramatic story, but it is no more melodramatic than the actual slave revolt on which it was based. Mrs. Gaither knows her material; she gives a truthful picture of plantation life, and she shows how insurrection, spreading like fire in a coal seam, could undermine a normal and not untypical Southern slaveholding community and consume it in a raging inferno of hatred and bloodshed." P. V. Stern

+ N Y Times p6 My 21 '44 700w

"A good story and an intelligent, if not profound, study of the master-slave psychology."

+ New Yorker 20:78 My 20 '44 220w

Reviewed by Frank Daniel

Sat R of Lit 27:20 My 27 '44 850w

Social Forces 23:238 D '44 170w

"Mrs. Gaither portrays the creeping terror and mounting horror of 'that one incredible week' without moralistic finger-pointing. Her people, black and white, behaved as they had to behave in the social climate of the time and place. What happened had to happen. For why it had to happen, read those first six pages of 'John Brown's Body'; for what came of it, read 'Strange Fruit.' They are all of a piece. History marches on." Gertrude Springer

+ Survey G 33:332 Jl '44 320w

"It's a good book, rich in atmosphere and absorbing in its rush of events." R. Y. Williams

+ Weekly Book Review p4 My 21 '44 800w

Wis Lib Bul 40:110 Jl '44

GALL, MRS ALICE (CREW), and CREW, FLEMING H. All the year round; pictures by Else Bostelmann. 48p $1.25 Oxford

Animals, Legends and stories of 44-7518

Eight short stories about small animals of wood and pond. There are two stories for each season of the year. For ages five to eight.

Booklist 41:62 O 15 '44

Kirkus 12:401 S 1 '44 50w

"These authors are particularly successful in conveying accurate information in an interesting way. Their style of writing is fine for reading-aloud purposes. All the Year Round is no exception. It is a small nature book designed to be read aloud to little children." M. F. Cox

+ Library J 69:885 O 15 '44 70w

"This charming little volume with its eight stories (two for each season) of raccoon, groundhog, turtle, downy woodpecker and others is an excellent book for children to own." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p21 Ja 21 '45 140w

Wis Lib Bul 40:132 O '44

GALLATIN, ALBERT EUGENE. Sir Max Beerbohm: bibliographical notes. ltd ed 121p pl $7.50 Harvard univ. press

012 Beerbohm, Sir Max—Bibliography

A44-1840

"Bibliographies of Beerbohm's works, including lists of introductions which he has written for books, and of uncollected and unpublished writings, caricatures and plays. Some hitherto unpublished plates are appended." Publisher's Weekly

"This excellent bibliography is of something more than scholarly interest, since it contains a dozen drawings by Beerbohm, hitherto unpublished, and collects some unfamiliar documents connected with his career as a playwright."

+ New Yorker 20:83 My 20 '44 50w

"One must say that the printing of the bibliography is much too expensive. . . The result is a certain bloated appearance which does not become a bibliography. Such a book should be readable but compact, since it is first and last a work of reference. And as such the book is of importance, for Max is, as Barker observed, one of those men of our time so intimate a part of the social scene that as with 'Winnie' and 'F. D. R.' the world tends to familiarity without impudence. His work endures not because of intrinsic importance but because it is a record of our times." C. P. Rollins

+ — Sat R of Lit 27:18 Jl 8 '44 360w

Times [London] Lit Sup p600 D 9 '44 850w

GALLUP, GEORGE HORACE. A guide to public opinion polls. 104p $1.50 Princeton univ. press

301.154 Public opinion polls A44-2292

"The questions skeptics ask about the polls and how they are answered. The technique is now perfected to the point where four hundred replies will give an indication of American public opinion within eight percent of complete accuracy. The usual poll reaches 2,500 to 5,000 people and is 98 percent accurate. The secret lies in reaching representatives of all major adult population groups." Commonweal

"The distinguished author designed the book for service as a reference work and not as a definitive study. As such, it merits a high rating. The special student will either know the subject-matter of the volume or will search for it elsewhere. For the inexperienced undergraduate, the casual reader, the person who reads while he runs, this is a commendable volume." C. W. Shull

+ Am Pol Sci R 38:1025 O '44 230w

Am Soc R 9:717 D '44 50w

Reviewed by William Albig

Ann Am Acad 236:221 N '44 600w

Reviewed by Sterling North

Book Week p2 Jl 23 '44 270w

"Dr. Gallup's answers are highly satisfying. They are specific, frank and simple. He makes no extravagant claims. . . His discussion of specific questions is concise and yet gives adequate concrete detail. All in all, this book fulfills its general purpose of information admirably." J. T. Frederick

+ Book Week p2 N 5 '44 400w

Booklist 41:8 S '44

Commonweal 40:332 Jl 21 '44 90w

Foreign Affairs 23:7 O '44 20w

Reviewed by M. C. Manley
Library J 69:553 Je 15 '44 80w

"Mr. Gallup's answers are sometimes perfunctory, but for the most part they are adequately informative. This little book is for the layman, not the expert. It gives a clear, succinct account of the methods employed by the American Institute of Public Opinion and other opinion-testing agencies, of the problems they face and of the services they render." R. M. MacIver

+ — N Y Times p3 Jl 2 '44 600w

Social Studies 35:284 O '44 200w

Reviewed by Elmo Roper
Weekly Book Review p6 Jl 23 '44 1100w

GAMOW, GEORGE. Mr Tompkins explores the atom. 97p il $2 Macmillan

541.2 Atoms 44-3651

"Companion volume to Mr. Tompkins in Wonderland (1940). Series of dreams showing what one would see and how one would have to act if he were of atomic size. Illustrates 'Maxwell's demon,' behavior of electrons, and atom smashing. These dreams are followed by simple lectures on reality of atoms, constitution of the atom, Dirac's theory of holes in empty space, and the interior of atomic nucleus." Library J

Booklist 40:313 My 15 '44

Christian Century 61:465 Ap 12 '44 120w

"Excellent, simple presentation of modern concepts of constitution of matter." J. A. Sohon

+ Library J 68:666 S 1 '43 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:30 Ap '44

Reviewed by Mitchell Wilson
N Y Times p20 My 14 '44 320w

"Professor Gamow evidently believes that by presenting his message in the words of the simple Mr. Tompkins, who knows nothing about physics, he will reach an audience that is no wiser. It may be so. Yet to this reviewer the not always successful attempts at humorously depicting Mr. Tompkins's state of mind are a hindrance rather than a help in explaining the atom's intricacies." Waldemar Kaempffert

+ — Sat R of Lit 27:44 Ap 15 '44 380w

"This book will be just as successful as its predecessor. It translates into everyday language the vast store of information now available concerning the components of the atom. No longer need such items as the Pauli-principle, Dirac's electron-ocean, nuclear fission, the neutrino, and the meson remain outside the pale of after-dinner conversation."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 15:4 Ap '44 300w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p12 Ap 23 '44 390w

Wis Lib Bul 40:107 Jl '44

GANN, ERNEST KELLOGG. Island in the sky. 181p $2.50 Viking

44-6034

Story of an airplane, the Corsair of the Army transport command, and her crew of five. The ship is forced to make a landing in the uncharted wastelands of northern Canada. The terror, the courage, and the emotions of the men are all pictured during the anxious time until their rescue is assured.

Reviewed by W. F. Morse
Book Week p4 Jl 23 '44 270w

Booklist 41:21 S '44

"It happens on certain rare—all too rare—occasions that there comes to a reviewer's desk a book of such vitality, such power and such essential literary perfection as to make normal standards of measurement seem clumsy and inadequate. Such a book is 'Island in the Sky.' Here, unpretentiously, a poetic mind has, with superb discipline, told an absorbing story in fourth dimensional terms." L. L. Marchand

+ Boston Globe p15 Ag 9 '44 500w

Horn Bk 20:499 N '44 50w

"This is the story of how men won against the north. Starkly told,—another contribution to the understanding of total war."

+ Kirkus 12:221 My 15 '44 170w

"Mr. Gann's story is based upon a true incident. There is none of the high poesy of St. Exupéry, but there is fine straightforward prose that is as clean as a gull in flight." F. J. Bell

+ N Y Times p6 Jl 16 '44 480w

"Mr. Gann tells his story and portrays his people with an economy of words and emotion that mark the poet of the air. Only a creature with the earth-clinging instincts of a groundhog could fail to be stirred by it." Rose Feld

+ Weekly Book Review p5 Jl 16 '44 950w

GARBUTT, MRS KATHARINE (KENDIG). Baby Orang and Junior; pictures by Bernard Garbutt. (Nursery bks) [20p] 85c Houghton

44-6127

Pictures and simple text, for beginning readers, describing the adventures of two jungle babies, an elephant and an orang.

"Illustrated with crayon drawings by Bernard Garbutt, it has been skillfully planned to use only a simple basic vocabulary and yet tell an amusing little story." F. C. Darling

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Je 26 '44 100w

"Delightful humor."

+ Kirkus 12:276 Je 15 '44 40w

"Recommended for boys and girls from seven to nine." A. H. McGinity

+ Library J 69:607 Jl '44 120w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
N Y Times p20 Jl 16 '44 80w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p5 Ag 20 '44 70w

Wis Lib Bul 40:132 O '44

GARDINER, FREDERIC MERRICK. Dynamite Duncan, U.S.N; the career story of a naval officer. 258p $2 Dodd

44-8367

Story of the present war, for older boys. It is the adventures of two young naval officers on a heavily armed fleet oiler and later on a destroyer. Altho the characters are fictitious, the author based this story on his own experiences.

Cath World 160:286 D '44 30w

Reviewed by H. L. Binsse
Commonweal 41:128 N 17 '44 10w

"Timely and interesting."

+ Kirkus 12:375 Ag 15 '44 90w

"While the story is not particularly well written, the authentic background with its information about naval strategy and its Navy slang expressions will undoubtedly interest boys who like the Navy." G. E. Joline

Library J 69:1006 N 15 '44 70w

GARDNER, ERLE STANLEY. Case of the black-eyed blonde. 217p $2 Morrow

44-8970

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p50 D 3 '44 90w

Booklist 41:109 D 1 '44

"Best of the week."

+ Boston Globe p12 N 22 '44 50w

Kirkus 12:385 S 1 '44 50w

GARDNER, E. S.—Continued
"All that is really necessary to be said about this story is that it has plenty of swift action and plenty of Perry Mason's usual finagling, together with a startling finale." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p18 N 5 '44 80w

"Fast, tough, and practically impossible to distinguish from all the other books in this series. That is probably just what Gardner fans want."

+ New Yorker 20:96 N 18 '44 80w

"The best Perry Mason yarn in several seasons. Plot, dialog, situations—all interesting, and story gets outside regular 'pattern' to advantage."

+ Sat R of Lit 27:26 N 4 '44 40w

Springf'd Republican p4d N 19 '44 120w

"This Perry Mason story is certain to panic the Erle Stanley Gardner clientele on all counts, and the plot should hold even those who are horrified at the kind of people this author writes about." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p21 N 5 '44 120w

GARDNER, ERLE STANLEY. Case of the crooked candle. 220p $2 Morrow
44-4331

Detective story.

"Perry, in one of those now famous courtroom scenes, solves the case by being considerably cleverer than anyone else. Gardner's millions (literally) of readers will find it up to par." Elizabeth Bullock

+ Book Week p10 My 7 '44 70w

Booklist 40:356 Je 15 '44

"Best of the week."

+ Boston Globe p19 My 31 '44 50w

"Perry Mason is a favorite with lawyer whodunit fans, for he is dependably sound, though often on the ragged edge. And Gardner's market is a steadily growing one."

+ Kirkus 12:155 Ap 1 '44 130w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p12 My 14 '44 60w

New Yorker 20:92 My 13 '44 90w

"Another good Gardner."

+ Sat R of Lit 27:40 My 13 '44 40w

"Recommended without qualification as just dandy." B. I.

+ Springf'd Republican p4d My 14 '44 220w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p18 My 14 '44 100w

GARDNER, ERLE STANLEY. D. A. calls a turn. 216p $2 Morrow
44-380

Detective story.

"Lively entertainment. Dependable but not superior Gardner." Elizabeth Bullock

+ — Book Week p7 Ja 30 '44 180w

Booklist 40:253 Mr 15 '44

"It all has to do with a murder case that is meant to look like an accident and might have been accepted as such but for some clever detective work by the D. A. Mr. Gardner has in Doug Selby produced a character worthy to stand alongside the one and only Perry Mason." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p8 Ja 30 '44 80w

"This provides Gardner fans with the devious kind of plot which they demand and which, in this case, would be excellent if things were more fully explained at the end."

+ New Yorker 19:80 Ja 29 '44 70w

"Grade A."

+ Sat R of Lit 27:26 Ja 29 '44 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 30 '44 140w

"Contains typical Gardner characters and an ingenious plot, but not Perry Mason." Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p14 Ja 30 '44 250w

GARDNER, MAC. Mom counted six. 267p $2.50 Harper
44-4610

This family chronicle novel tells the story of the Hollys—Gramp and Gramma, Pop and Mom and the five children—who lived in a mill town on the West coast. The story is told chiefly from the point of view of the youngest child, Brooke, whose adolescent love affair with the boy, Kip Toby, occupies the last third of the book.

Reviewed by Edgar Main

Book Week p3 My 14 '44 270w

Booklist 40:355 Je 15 '44

"There is laughter and sorrow, and a just distribution of emotional problems. Most of all, there is understanding and humor in this account of a family. This is a 'Harper's Find' and yours if you're lucky." Elizabeth Watts

+ Boston Globe p19 My 17 '44 220w

"This is good,—a first novel which is candid, compassionate, occasionally original, ultimately moving."

+ Kirkus 12:78 F 15 '44 260w

"Mac Gardner has written a fine first novel, a family story, brilliantly alive, with a keenly humorous slant. Freshness is its outstanding quality." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p7 My 14 '44 280w

"An ineptly titled but vivid American family chronicle, written with humor and charm. . . The novel will undoubtedly warm the hearts of thousands who don't care passionately about style and syntax."

+ — New Yorker 20:89 My 13 '44 90w

Reviewed by N. L. Rothman

Sat R of Lit 27:27 Je 3 '44 280w

"The author's loving treatment of the Holly family, individually and collectively, makes delighted reading, but when she introduces Kip, he never quite comes to life despite a certain noisy vitality and brashness with which he is endowed. . . 'Mom Counted Six' is young, zestful and appealing. The Holly family need not be ashamed of its place in the pageant of American-life-in-books of which they are a part." E. M. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p4d My 14 '44 280w

"There is enough humor in this book to recommend it solely for that; the competence and beauty of the writing by themselves make the book worthwhile; the author's understanding of complicated individuals is remarkable; but most important of all, the book presents a story of a family as a group which is rare in its tenderness, its insight, its subtlety and its common sense." Barbara Klaw

+ Weekly Book Review p4 My 14 '44 750w

GARLAND, JOSEPH. Youngest of the family; his care and training. rev ed 182p il pl $2 Harvard univ. press

649.1 Infants—Care and hygiene. Infants—Nutrition
A44-253

"Dr. Garland's practical, concise guide to the care and training of infants and small children is written primarily to help new, inexperienced mothers. It includes well-organized and carefully indexed sections on prenatal care, development of the baby, feeding, clothing, discipline and mental hygiene —also a table giving symptoms and regulations for the control of the more communicable diseases." (J Home Econ) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1932.

Reviewed by M. E. Wegman

Am J Pub Health 34:902 Ag '44 100w

Reviewed by R. F. Hamilton

+ J Home Econ 36:362 Je '44 80w

Social Forces 23:237 D '44 30w

Springf'd Republican p7e F 20 '44 110w

GARNER, JAMES WILFORD. Studies in government and international law; ed. with a biography, by John A. Fairlie. 574p $7.50 Univ. of Ill.

320.8 Political science. International law and relations. U.S.—Politics and government 43-16401

"Some of the more important scholarly pieces by an eminent American political scientist, for many years a professor at the University of Illinois." (Foreign Affairs) "A short biography, very appropriately including an account of the development of political science at the University, is followed by a twelve-page list of Professor Garner's publications. The bulk of the collection comprises reprints of eleven studies in government and seventeen studies in international law, published between 1901 and 1938." (Am Pol Sci R)

Reviewed by F. A. Ogg
Am Hist R 49:520 Ap '44 320w

Reviewed by Llewellyn Pfankuchen
Am Pol Sci R 38:393 Ap '44 550w

"Advanced students in government and political scientists generally will be interested in this collection of Dr. Garner's more notable articles and essays. The work of editing has been admirably done by Dr. Fairlie, a long-time colleague and friend." J. T. Young
+ Ann Am Acad 231:182 Ja '44 700w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:5 Ja '44 20w

GARRETT, MRS EILEEN JEANETTE (LYTTLE). Awareness. 308p $2.50 Creative age

133.07 Psychical research. Consciousness. Spiritualism
43-15460

"Eileen J. Barrett is a medium whose honesty and objective attitude toward her own powers have contributed valuable evidence to the modern study of psychic phenomena. Both in England and America she has for many years cooperated with investigators. . . Most of Mrs. Garrett's book is made up of observations from her own experiences as a mystic, a trance medium and a healer." Weekly Book Review

Reviewed by H. M. Sherman
Book Week p20 D 5 '43 500w

"Because her presentation of this material is orderly, scientific and extremely literate, the book is a most worth-while contribution in its field." Thomas Sugrue
+ Weekly Book Review p20 Ja 23 '44 700w

GARRETT, GARET. A time is born. 234p $2.50 Pantheon bks.

330 Economic conditions
44-4551

"Taking a look into the future, Mr. Garrett, formerly the chief editorialist of the Saturday Evening Post, comes to some novel and unconventional conclusions. The most important of these is that modern chemistry, which is working more magic than the medieval alchemists ever dreamed possible, has destroyed the distinction between have and have-not nations by making sources of raw material universally available. It is therefore conceivable, according to Mr. Garrett, that one of the chief causes of international friction may now be eliminated and that a new and completely different kind of world society may come out of what he describes as alchemic technology." New Yorker

"This unusual book could only have been written by an American, with such ardent optimism in the midst of a somber crisis, with an amateur's daring simplification of problems about which the learned specialists have written whole libraries, with the calculating imagination of a big business mentality. Here is economic history from paradise lost when all things became 'full of labor,' to the vision of a paradise regained by world-wide harmony. All this is written not in the style of scholarly textbooks, but rather in that of a lyric. Though I am sure that Garrett is very much less than wholly right in his analysis and his predictions, his book seems to me both exciting and inspiring." Max Fischer
+ — Commonweal 40:114 My 19 '44 750w

Reviewed by John MacCormac
N Y Times p12 Je 4 '44 700w

"Mr. Garrett leaves many things out of consideration, and seems never to have heard of politics, but he does have an original, if limited, point of view."
New Yorker 20:90 Ap 22 '44 160w

Reviewed by W. S. Lynch
Sat R of Lit 27:30 My 20 '44 500w

"The reader may differ with Mr Garrett on ultimate conclusions; but he will never be bored. On the title page appears these words: 'It has happened many times before that a time was born and died. If this one lives it will be an Age.' Therein lies the challenge of this book—a challenge to hard and straight thinking and informed speculation. One wishes for Mr Garrett's stimulating work the widest possible reading." R. N. Fuller
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ap 30 '44 650w

Reviewed by Albert Guerard
Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 13 '44 1550w

GARRETT, HELEN. Angelo, the naughty one; pictures by Leo Politi. 40p $2 Viking 44-8277

Picture-story book about a little Mexican boy who did not like to take baths and what happened to him on the day of his sister's wedding.

"Leo Politi, who is fast becoming one of my favorite artists for children, has done the extremely funny pictures. The whole family will have themselves a time with this." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p21 N 12 '44 120w
Booklist 41:79 N 1 '44

"Gay, humorous pictures with a Mexican background make an engaging book."
+ Horn Bk 20:473 N '44 80w
Kirkus 12:450 O 1 '44 60w

"Recommended." A. M. Anderson
+ Library J 69:938 N 1 '44 50w
Sat R of Lit 27:29 N 11 '44 20w

"If you know a very little boy, say four or so, who is allergic to water, these gay, affectionate, colored pictures are indicated; a little girl of this age who likes water will love the funny, merry tale and the gay processions and parties shown in its illustrations." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 O 8 '44 250w

GARRETTE, EVE. A political handbook for women. 219p $2 Doubleday

342.73 U.S.—Politics and government—Handbooks, manuals, etc.
44-6351

"Beginning with the Constitution and what about it, the outline explains why we have political parties, what they have stood for and how independent voters who do not vote at all unless interested in the issues at stake often decide elections when they do. Organization of the party, Congressional, state, local county and precinct committees, how the President is elected, how to get out the vote, or write to your Congressman, voting qualifications by states and questions and answers on what a voter should know, make most of the manual, in which brief but emphatic attention is given to morals in politics." Weekly Book Review

Booklist 41:8 S '44

"Not only for women. . . Many men—not politically minded—will find this informative and useful."
+ Kirkus 12:243 Je 1 '44 170w

"For a small volume, entertainingly written, there is an abundance of factual information about our system of government." Dorothy Stephenson
+ N Y Times p12 Jl 30 '44 280w

GARRETTE, EVE—Continued

"As a cookbook is invaluable to the bride, so Miss Garrette asks her readers to consider [this] handbook a sort of 'Fanny Farmer in politics.' To increase palatability she has made her chapters brief, with much information in outline form, and seasoned it with wit and humor." E. W. Anderson

+ Springf'd Republican p4d O 8 '44 280w

Weekly Book Review p12 Jl 30 '44 250w

Wis Lib Bul 40:125 O '44

GARST, DORIS SHANNON. Custer, fighter of the plains; il. by Harve Stein. 174p $2.50 Messner

B or 92 Custer, George Armstrong 44-3430

"The life of General George Armstrong Custer, American cavalry leader who fell with every member of his troops in the Little Big Horn massacre by the Sioux Indians. Not outstanding but readable; especially suitable for slow readers. Bibliography: p.165-167. Includes a chronology of Custer's life. Grades 6-9." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 40:343 Je 1 '44

"A stirring biography of a great soldier."

+ Kirkus 12:173 Ap 1 '44 130w

"A very readable biography. . . Recommended." A. M. Anderson

+ Library J 69:465 My 15 '44 60w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

N Y Times p11 Jl 2 '44 110w

Wis Lib Bul 40:163 D '44

GARST, DORIS SHANNON. Jack London, magnet for adventure; il. by Hamilton Greene. 217p $2.50 Messner

B or 92 London, Jack—Juvenile literature 44-7774

Biography of a famous writer of adventure stories who was an adventurer on sea and land himself. Written for young people the book is sympathetic in tone but does not gloss over London's failings as man and writer.

Booklist 41:79 N 1 '44

Kirkus 12:436 S 15 '44 150w

"This frank chronicle of a great writer should help young people apreciate the inward struggle of an inconsistent nature." F. W. Butler

+ Library J 69:939 N 1 '44 70w

Reviewed by William Simons

Springf'd Republican p4d N 12 '44 110w

GARTH, DAVID. Bermuda calling. 197p $2 Putnam

44-6126

Spy story of the present war. The hero is Zachary Taylor Rowland, an American lawyer, on vacation in Bermuda. But Zach is also a member of the U.S. military intelligence, whose investigation of something "fishy" almost costs him his life, while he is in process of investigating a Nazi spy plot.

Booklist 41:24 S '44

"Best of the week."

+ Boston Globe p15 Ag 30 '44 80w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p21 Jl 23 '44 90w

"All right, even though not too plausible."

+ New Yorker 20:64 Jl 29 '44 50w

Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 13 '44 160w

"This is good routine entertainment without much lift in the telling." Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p12 Jl 30 '44 150w

GARWOOD, DARRELL. Artist in Iowa; a life of Grant Wood. 259p pl $3.50 Norton

B or 92 Wood, Grant 44-47905

Biography of the Iowa artist, Grant Wood, who died in 1942. Includes a list of his important paintings, and an index.

"Darrell Garwood's biography of Grant Wood is a plain and sympathetic chronicle, almost as anecdotal as Vasari's lives of the Italian Renaissance artists but written in a casual, journalistic style. It is descriptive rather than analytical, intimate rather than formal. From it emerges one of the most interesting and significant figures of modern American art, one whose work with that of Benton and Curry represents a high achievement in regional painting. No reader can leave the chapters on the inception of 'American Gothic' and the history of the Stone City Art Colony without a finer appreciation of Grant Wood as a craftsman and as a sincere worker for the cause of art." J. T. Flanagan

+ Book Week p3 D 10 '44 800w

Booklist 41:138 Ja 1 '45

Christian Science Monitor p14 D 20 '44 500w

"A friendly, appreciative portrait of Grant Wood both as an artist and a native Iowan."

+ Kirkus 12:526 N 15 '44 170w

"Mr. Garwood has done an engrossing job, the better for its simplicity. No one can supply the 'why' of Grant Wood, but here is a very large measure of the who, what, when and where. It is a fascinating record of an American life, a life that from swimming hole to membership in the American Legion should have been 'typical.' Touched as it was—however briefly—by genius, it was infinitely more." C. B. Palmer

+ N Y Times p3 D 31 '44 1200w

New Yorker 20:68 D 23 '44 130w

"An excellent job of reporting, a book that is lively throughout and fascinating in parts, a straightforward, concise narrative written with no pretensions to literary distinction. But the book, however excellent as a truthful record, reveals only the externals of the subject." Thomas Craven

+ — Weekly Book Review p3 D 3 '44 1200w

GATES, DORIS. Trouble for Jerry; il. by Marjorie Torrey. 179p $2 Viking

44-9336

"This is about Jerry, but it is also about Sarah, the Sarah who had a great Idea, now grown older. It seemed to Jerry worse than awful that a dude girl should come to the ranch where he fancied himself a thorough-going cow-hand, and he meant to make Sarah properly humble. But as things turned out Sarah knew a few things about riding, though she did have only a burro. Altogether, Jerry didn't have a very comfortable summer, but before it was over he found he could make friends with a girl, even if she were determined." (Horn Bk) For grades four to six.

Booklist 41:110 D 1 '44

"Marjorie Torrey's expressive drawings are delightful."

+ Horn Bk 20:481 N '44 80w

"Jerry can be an exceedingly irritating small bundle of male attributes, and his psychological growing pains are not sufficient to catch and hold the attention of the below teen reader, I'm afraid."

Kirkus 12:402 S 1 '44 100w

"Marjorie Torrey's delightful illustrations add greatly to the western flavor. It should appeal to boys and girls nine to twelve years of age." Elizabeth Johnson

+ Library J 69:1049 D 1 '44 70w

GATTI, ATTILIO. Mediterranean spotlights. 184p il maps $2.50 Scribner

914 Mediterranean sea—Description and travel. Italy—Description and travel

44-9080

"[This] is the story of the civilization that borders the Mediterranean Sea. . . Through the lips of Nikolaos Kalokastros of Candia on the island of Crete we hear the epic tale of Crete itself, of Greece, and the little islands of the Aegean Sea. We go to Turkey and to Palestine. . . We see North Africa and Gibraltar, southern Italy and Sicily as they were centuries ago and as they are now. . . We go up through Italy to Rome, Florence, and Venice. . . It is illustrated with exceptionally good and well selected photographs." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 41:110 D 1 '44

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p4 N 16 '44 130w

"An excellent supplementary aid for schools and camp libraries."
+ Horn Bk 20:490 N '44 70w

"Beautifully and profusely illustrated. Recommended for junior high age." Elizabeth Burr
+ Library J 69:1051 D '44 60w
+ Sat R of Lit 27:48 N 11 '44 230w

"Any boy who reads war news finds Commander Gatti's latest travel book fascinating, but let him not hope to keep it to himself when his elders are around. Handsomest of its series of 'World Background Books,' it maintains their standard of excellence in photographs and lavishness in their number, and strikes a new high in personal appeal."
+ Weekly Book Review p26 N 12 '44 300w
Wis Lib Bul 40:159 D '44

GATTI, MRS ELLEN MORGAN (WADDILL). Exploring we would go. 302p $3 Scribner

916.75 Kongo, Belgian 44-40081

An account of the author's first expedition to Africa, in the 1930's, with her fiancé, who later became her husband. They went into a tabu section of the Belgian Kongo, in search of the okapi, and the story of their search, includes the story of Tzamboho, the Gattis' jungle estate.

"A New York business woman fell in love with Count Attilio Gatti, went with him to Equatorial Africa to hunt okapi for the London Zoo, and lived for years in the jungle. These are obviously the materials for an interesting and enjoyable story, and that is precisely what this book is." J. T. F.
+ Book Week p4 My 14 '44 140w
Booklist 40:302 My 1 '44
Bookmark 5:16 My '44
Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Je '44
Kirkus 12:40 Ja 15 '44 170w

Reviewed by Aline Benjamin
N Y Times p18 My 28 '44 280w

Reviewed by W. M. Altree
Springf'd Republican p4d Je 11 '44 850w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p14 My 21 '44 450w
Wis Lib Bul 40:68 My '44

GATTY, HAROLD. Raft book; lore of the sea and sky. 149p il pa $3.25 George Grady press, inc, 445 W. 41st st, N.Y. 18

527 Navigation 43-13455

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

Booklist 40:207 F 15 '44

"'The Raft Book' offers something delightfully different and refreshing in navigation. This formerly difficult business of finding one's way on the seas Mr. Gatty has made understandable to the layman, and interesting into the bargain." T. L. Thurlow
+ Geog R 34:348 Ap '44 480w
Library J 69:118 F 1 '44 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:66 O '43

"This book should be read and acquired by all those using the sea or air in any capacity today. It will give them a lift, fill their minds with new ideas they have never thought of before, and in the end may save them from death some time. As for readers who stay on the ground, it unfolds a stimulating and informative story, especially on the score of Polynesian navigation; which in its way was the greatest and most adventuresome navigation the world has ever seen." Lincoln Colcord
+ Weekly Book Review p5 F 27 '44 1700w

GAULLE, CHARLES ANDRE JOSEPH MARIE DE. Speeches. 189p $1.75 Oxford

940.5344 World war, 1939—France—Free French movement 45-736

"On June 17, 1940, Marshal Petain, in the name of the French government, asked the Germans for an armistice. The following night General de Gaulle, in London, made his first appeal to the people of France to continue the fight. Regularly throughout the months following the fall of France, the general spoke by radio to his own people and to those in other countries. This volume includes all the speeches which he made between June 18, 1940, and December 28, 1942." Publisher's note

Booklist 41:137 Ja 1 '45

Reviewed by Walter Millis
Weekly Book Review p3 Ja 14 '45 1250w

GAUVREAU, EMILE HENRY. Wild blue yonder; sons of the prophet carry on. 386p $3 Dutton

623.746 Aeronautics, Military. U.S. Army air forces 44-6728

"Americans will perhaps never know how weak were their defenses before Pearl Harbor; but part of the picture is gradually being revealed, and it is frightening. . . [The author] undertakes to tell the partly concealed story of that unpreparedness and its causes, especially our neglect of airpower. He reports and reviews the opposition of many military men and industrialists to any strengthening of our aviation defenses, which they felt would 'seriously interfere with munitions industry.' Only when Germany and Japan showed what airpower could do, was America aroused. Luckily, Russia and Britain were able to hold on until 'miracle of production' could be performed." (Springf'd Republican) Index.

"He is a special pleader for a separate air force, but has not convinced me that it would accomplish all that he claims for it, particularly since co-ordination of air and other forces has been shown to be so important in recent combat. His suggestion, however, that the President's cabinet of the future include 'a Secretary of Defense over a single Department of War with the best men available under him to head three separate and co-equal divisions for Air Army and Navy' certainly deserves consideration." Frederic Hudson
Book Week p3 Ag 27 '44 360w
Booklist 41:11 S '44
Kirkus 12.270 Je 15 '44 250w

"Recommended reading for all persons interested in the problem of postwar security." J. H. Berthel
+ Library J 69:648 Ag '44 110w
Library J 69:1002 N 15 '44 40w
New Repub 111:254 Ag 28 '44 120w

Reviewed by F. S. Adams
N Y Times p22 Ag 20 '44 600w

"Mr Gauvreau offers documentary evidence of the neglect and machinations that brought us so close to disaster. A reviewer without much knowledge cannot confidently and precisely appraise this book. Perhaps it is oversensational, emphasizing the stupidity—and worse—in our recent aviation history. Yet to this reader 'The Wide Blue Yonder' seems a fearless treatment of a thorny subject, circumstantially done." M. J. J.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 20 '44 950w

GAYN, MARK J. Journey from the East. 426p $3.75 Knopf

B or 92 Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. East (Far East) 44-3433

Autobiography of a foreign-news editor of Time, who was born of Russian parents in Barim, China, near the Mongolian border. His education was received in Chinese, Soviet, and English schools, but his A.B. degree was gained at Pomona college, California, and his B.Sc. from the Columbia School of journalism. His career as a journalist began when he joined the staff of an English language paper in Shanghai in 1928. He has also been Far Eastern correspondent of the Washington Post, and has served as editor of the Domei news agency, a post he resigned when Japan invaded China in 1937. Index.

GAYN, M. J.—Continued

Reviewed by J. N. North
Book Week p11 Ap 23 '44 600w
Booklist 40:317 My 15 '44

"The author of The Fight for the Pacific has thoroughly recapitulated a life in the Orient, a retrospective evaluation which has the feel of authoritative knowledge, intimate experience in countries lived in, wide participation in events chronicled, and a vital curiosity concerning the people about whom he writes. It makes an interesting contribution to current background material on the East."
+ Kirkus 12:110 Mr 1 '44 250w

Reviewed by Byron Dexter
N Y Times p4 Ap 16 '44 1100w
New Yorker 20:91 Ap 22 '44 90w

Reviewed by L. K. Rosinger
Pacific Affairs 17:347 S '44 210w

"This story of Gayn's parents is a literary masterpiece. But it has greater significance, for it reveals the rare human background of the author, a background which enabled him to perceive almost instinctively the pulse and the greatness of the revolution of Asia. . . All those who are still in doubt about the deadly seriousness of the coming battle of the peace in Asia should read this book. Perhaps it is sometimes too pessimistic and does not stress enough the hopeful features in China's revolutionary picture. But it cannot be denied that Gayn's analysis of the future of China's vast, poverty-stricken stratum of peasantry or of Japan's industrialized masses as part of a future Asiatic society is sound and thought-provoking. 'Journey from the East' is more than a skilful study by a newspaperman, it is a human document and a serious warning which should not go unheeded." H. W. Weigert
+ Sat R of Lit 27:24 My 6 '44 900w

Reviewed by Frederick Reinstein
Springf'd Republican p6 My 8 '44 650w
Time 43:102 My 15 '44 750w

Reviewed by Victor Keen
Weekly Book Review p3 Ap 16 '44 1000w

GEGENHEIMER, ALBERT FRANK. William Smith, educator and churchman, 1727-1803. (Pennsylvania lives) 233p $2.50 Univ. of Pa. press [15s 6d Oxford]

B or 92 Smith, William 43-12707

"This book, the seventh volume of Pennsylvania Lives, relates the life and career of 'the spirited Scottish clergyman who had such a deep influence on American education.' An important period in the history of education in the United States. Indexed." School & Society

"To write a balanced biography of this stormy petrel of Pennsylvania is a most difficult task. The provost's great-grandson, Horace Wemyss Smith, essayed it in 1887-80 and produced a monumental example of misdirected filial piety. Mr. Gegenheimer has ably rectified this error in his urbane, temperate, and well-written biography. Although he takes no sides, his attitude toward his subject is properly sympathetic." Carl Bridenbaugh
+ Am Hist R 49:499 Ap '44 400w
School & Society 58:64 Jl 24 '43 50w

GEHMAN, HENRY SNYDER, ed. See Davis, J. D. Westminster dictionary of the Bible

GEISTER, EDNA. Keep them laughing. 98p $1.50 Harper

790 Entertaining 44-6191

"In a little book which will be of interest to other recreation leaders, Miss Geister tells something of her own experiences in handling crowds and meeting situations. Not another game book, although games and stunts from her other works are referred to." Wis Lib Bul

Kirkus 12:187 Ap 15 '44 110w

Reviewed by W. F. Grueninger
Survey 80:359 D '44 130w
Weekly Book Review p13 Jl 9 '44 250w
Wis Lib Bul 40:126 O '44

GELLERMANN, WILLIAM. Martin Dies. 310p $3 Day

351.75 Dies, Martin. U.S. Congress. House of representatives. Special committee on un-American activities. Communism—U.S. 44-5179

"Dr. Gellermann, a member of the faculty of Northwestern University, has explored Mr. Dies' political career and activities with careful attention, especially during the period covered by the past six years of Dies' chairmanship [the committee on Un-American activities]. It is the author's view that Dies used his committee as an agency to carry out his own private war not only against Communist and Fascist groups and individuals, but against every exponent of liberal ideas who collided with the Dies conception of Americanism." (Boston Globe) Index.

"Skillfully, with scant comment, Prof. Gellermann lets Dies develop his own ideology in his own words. The full-blown demagogue and irresponsible persecutor the record discloses does not seem to me a bad man, or even an insincere man, but a bewildered man, confused by progress, sick with mistrust. . . Frantically intolerant, Dies and his kind—as Prof. Gellermann makes clear—call tearfully for tolerance. Professing fairness, they are grossly unfair. . . When the present world conflagration has burned itself out, we may hardly expect to find that Diesism has died. This book gives the techniques. It should be read as a record and a warning." Russell Lord
+ Book Week p4 Je 18 '44 800w
Booklist 41:9 S '44

"Extraordinarily able study. . . This is a must book for everyone attentive to the drift of political thought in contemporary United States." J. H. Powers
+ Boston Globe p17 Je 14 '44 320w

"Mr. Gellermann's book is worth reading because even with Mr. Dies retired and two members of his committee already defeated by the organized labor vote this summer, it could happen again in these United States that other 'isms' could be cloaked under the garb of 'Americanism.' " M. H.
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Jl 11 '44 450w

Reviewed by Carroll Kilpatrick
New Repub 111:52 Jl 10 '44 270w

Reviewed by R. L. Duffus
N Y Times p6 Je 11 '44 450w

"Even though Martin Dies will retire to Texas next January, Mr Gellermann's study is of permanent value. For the conditions which Mr Dies exploited will not retire with him, and there may well be other congressmen who will try to use the same tricks. 'Martin Dies' is an excellent textbook with which to guard against them."
+ Springf'd Republican p6 Je 27 '44 330w

"Gellermann has performed a real public service in presenting this interesting picture of an amazing Congressional exhibition." A. G. Hays
+ Weekly Book Review p14 Jl 16 '44 1250w

GELLHORN, MARTHA ELLIS (MRS ERNEST HEMINGWAY). Liana. 285p $2.50 Scribner

44-743

Liana, a beautiful mulatto, is first mistress and then wife to the richest white man on one of the French islands in the Caribbean. A young Frenchman, the teacher on the island, is engaged by Liana's husband, to teach her to read. Liana and Pierre fall in love, but the time is 1942 and Pierre feels he must return to fight with the Free French. Deserted and lost Liana chooses her own way out.

Reviewed by Lucy Tompkins
Atlantic 173:131 Mr '44 330w

"Anyone who pays attention to a writer's style and becomes excited over economy of language or the quick, swift stab of a well-turned sentence won't be able to lay this book aside. It runs through the mind like a broken melody, and plays upon the black keys. It is a delicate and yet a proud thing, and in Miss Gellhorn's hands it is an effortless and entirely spontaneous creation, as if she did nothing more than allow it release. This author won her spurs as a correspondent; she should earn lasting laurels as a creative writer." G. H. Freitag
+ Book Week p6 Ja 16 '44 340w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse
Manchester Guardian p3 D 22 '44 90w

"On the surface, or even several layers down, 'Liana' is not much more than another stereotyped, not-so-lush-as-it-could-have-been narrative of tropical miscegenation... Still, there are reverberations from Miss Gellhorn's simple story . . . which must be recorded on the credit side of the ledger; it is always a good thing when a novel gives off more effects than can be readily accounted for." Diana Trilling
— + Nation 158:104 Ja 22 '44 240w

"This is a delicate psychological situation which Conrad, for example, would have developed with circumspection; but most of Miss Gellhorn's novel is devoted to blackening her villain, and her last chapters hardly give him time to take off his mustache." Mark Schorer
— New Repub 110:286 F 28 '44 270w

"With this new novel, Martha Gellhorn establishes herself as an honest and intelligent writer who has something to say and knows how to say it well. 'Liana' has certain agreeable qualities of maturity and emotional understanding which are not always to be found in even the best modern art, still a predominantly male affair... With all her respect for an understanding of emotion, Miss Gellhorn has made the mistake of writing too much from the intellect." Marjorie Farber
+ — N Y Times p4 Ja 16 '44 650w

"Miss Gellhorn makes her characters, each shut in his separate loneliness, seem credible and sometimes touching and she has done no harm to a not unfamiliar plot."
New Yorker 19:66 Ja 22 '44 90w

"The moral and physical values of Miss Gellhorn's world, as displayed in 'Liana,' the only book of hers that I have read, are not unfamiliar; nor are the accents and thrusts of her style... A minor complaint may be recorded against a dubious practice:—that of sparsely peppering with French phrases the conversation of a novel in English, in which everyone is assumed to be speaking French... Influences and minor complaints aside, however, Miss Gellhorn, before she is done with Liana the girl and 'Liana' the novel, gives you something by which to remember both character and author." B. R. Redman
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:6 Ja 22 '44 750w

"Martha Gellhorn is an expert story-teller and a masterly creator of atmosphere. She would be the last to say that 'Liana' is a great novel. It is well done and tightly wrought, with the element of suspense skillfully maintained. It is good theater entertainment of merit for a winter evening." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 16 '44 280w
Time 43:100 F 7 '44 800w

"Allowing for all that belongs to the romance and colour of the tropics, this is in many ways an intelligent and thoughtful piece of story-telling. . . The whole affair, though frankly lush, is nothing like so unreal as might be supposed, and, in point of fact, Miss Gellhorn exhibits the workings of sensual passion in all three characters with lively and telling force. Indeed, the triangular theme as a whole is handled quite persuasively up to a point. But so much love, or so much love in the tropics, is apt to wear thin, and to escape from the obvious the author has recourse in the end to twists and turns of drama that carry little conviction."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p633 D 30 '44 480w

"With her new book, 'Liana,' Martha Gellhorn takes her place as an accomplished novelist. She writes clean and polished prose, tells a compelling, tender story, and portrays her characters with a maturity that holds sophistication and poignancy... The story moves with a sort of splendid sultry grace and ends on a note of tragic inevitability." Rose Feld
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ja 16 '44 1000w

GENTILE, DON SALVATORE. One-man air force; as told to Ira Wolfert. 55p il $1.25 Fischer, L.B.

940.544 World war, 1939—Aerial operations. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 44-8667

Personal reflections of the Piqua, Ohio, boy who destroyed thirty German planes and was called by General Eisenhower "a one-man air force." This story was told to Ira Wolfert, war correspondent for North American Newspaper Alliance, when the two were bunk-mates in England.

"Using the tough, poetic, terse, highly descriptive argot of the flier, the Piqua ace gives the layman the vicarious thrills and chills of combat flying. His description of one terrific dogfight over the treetops in France—when he ran completely out of ammunition—has the quality of an almost paralyzing nightmare. The Wolfert Gentile team has kept the book short, brilliant and provocative." Sterling North
+ Book Week p2 Ag 27 '44 1000w
Booklist 41:16 S '44
Christian Science Monitor p13 O 7 '44 100w

"A completely personal story which is handled with a simplicity and sincerity which makes good reading."
+ Kirkus 12:338 Ag 1 '44 90w

"Hardly a full-fledged book, with its fifty-five pages, it is still a neatly contrived bit of biography which catches the spirit of the death-defying encounters it relates; shows what makes a great flier, and how he ticks." A. M. Davis
Library J 69:648 Ag '44 80w

"Some of the writing is more literary than you would expect from a 24-year-old fighter pilot, whose language it is supposed to be. But out of the whole comes a clear picture of a wild kid who always wanted to fly, who was afraid, and still is, but who learned to be a killer without liking it much—a kid who had supreme confidence, and answers truthfully the questions everyone would like to ask a fighter pilot." Foster Hailey
+ N Y Times p1 Ag 13 '44 1200w

"A truly great story of an outstanding flyer among the millions of youthful Americans who are winning this war." George Polk
+ Weekly Book Review p3 Ag 27 '44 300w

GEORGE, ROBERT ESMONDE GORDON (ROBERT SENCOURT, pseud). Carmelite and poet; a framed portrait of St John of the Cross, with his poems in Spanish, by Robert Sencourt. 278p il $3 Macmillan [15s Hollis & Carter]

B or 92 John of the Cross, Saint (Juan de Yeppes) 44-4231

"Mr. Sencourt, taking advantage of the researches of earlier scholars (notably Peers) and thoroughly studying the available sources, has written a beautiful account of the mystic's life and a wholly sympathetic interpretation of his work. His book bears the Nihil obstat and Imprimatur of the ecclesiastical authorities. The inclusion of St. John's extant poetry (20 pages) in Spanish is a valuable feature." Christian Century

---

Reviewed by W. T. Walsh
Cath World 159:373 Jl '44 850w
+ Christian Century 61:564 My 3 '44 130w

GEORGE, R. E. G.—Continued

"If Saint John's portrait is less vivid than one longs for, one must remember that this great Doctor of the Church was a shy and elusive person. . . Mr. Sencourt makes excellent use of the works of modern authorities on the life and works of Saint John: Father Bruno, Father Crisógono and others; one wishes that he had employed Mr. E. Allison Peers's translations of Saint John's verse as well as those of his prose, which he quotes often, but this is, perhaps, a personal preference." D. H. Moseley

+ Commonweal 40:67 My 5 '44 550w

Reviewed by J. W. Brush

Crozer Q 22:81 Ja '45 700w

"It is a full-length portrait sketched with careful attention to details by loving hands. It pictures for us the life and work of the great Spanish mystic and poet, the contemporary and disciple of St. Teresa, and a very life-like portrait it is."

+ Kirkus 12:166 Ap 1 '44 100w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis

Library J 69:403 My 1 '44 70w

Library J 69:646 Ag '44 40w

"Mr. Sencourt's book about St. John of the Cross is loving, long, and labored: there is a good deal of repetition in it, and it is most interesting when the saint is quoted directly. The quotations, moreover, are generous, and several of the poems are given in the original Spanish. In interpreting the spiritual ideas of St. John of the Cross Mr. Sencourt is painstaking and elaborate: what is needed, beyond what is there, is the sudden flash of illumination, the quick and radiant intuitive phrase; but that is not Mr. Sencourt's way." Rolfe Humphries

+ — Nation 158:712 Je 17 '44 420w

"Though I disagree with Mr. Sencourt's psychology and metaphysics, I gladly confess my great indebtedness to the sinewy effort and the great learning of his appreciative book. It is fortunate that his poetic perception is subtle and intuitively swift." Ralph Bates

+ New Repub 111:771 D 4 '44 1400w

"As the biographer and interpreter of an exceedingly rarefied and complex subject, Mr. Sencourt does not appear to possess the necessary power; his hand makes weak though pretty gestures; it seldom grasps with strength. He calls his portrait of St. John 'a framed portrait'; but, alas, the portrait within the frame soaks away as though it were painted on a foundation of kapok." V. Sackville-West

— + New Statesman & Nation 26:389 D 11 '43 550w

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

N Y Times p19 Je 11 '44 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p594 D 11 '43 2050w

GEORGE, RUSSELL D. Minerals and rocks; their nature, occurrence, and uses. 595p $6 Appleton-Century

549 Mineralogy. Rocks 43-6763

"A reference book that is designed also for use in advanced courses in economic mineralogy and related subjects. In anticipation of increasing utilization of all sources of metals, it includes many minerals of lower metallic content than those now used as ores. The author is Professor Emeritus of Geology at the University of Colorado and was for many years the State Geologist of Colorado." (N Y New Tech Bks) Glossary. Index.

"Professor Emeritus George has succeeded to a remarkable degree in his endeavor to 'survey the whole field of earth materials.' Some twenty-five years ago he wrote a similar but smaller volume for the Colorado Geological Survey. Thus the present work represents a ripe accumulation of the long life of a successful field geologist. The publishers have done a very creditable job in compressing so much typographically pleasing information into 1¼ inches on the bookshelf." D. J. F.

+ J Geol 52:359 S '44 450w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:28 Ap '44

GERAUD, ANDRE (PERTINAX, pseud). Gravediggers of France. 612p maps $6 Doubleday

940.5344 World war, 1939—France. Gamelin, Maurice Gustave. Daladier, Edouard. Reynaud, Paul. Pétain, Henri Philippe Bénoni Omer. Laval, Pierre 44-7223

"Famous French journalist writes what is by far the most complete story of the fall of France we have, or can expect to have until the war is over. Detailed analysis of the men and forces responsible for the tragedy of France, with special emphasis on, and indictment of, Gamelin, Daladier, Reynaud, Weygand and, particularly, Petain and Laval, chief of the gravediggers, but also considerable treatment of scores of lesser men involved." Library J

"This is far and away the most authoritative and informative account of the French military and political collapse and of the establishment of the feeble Vichy dictatorship." W. H. Chamberlin

+ Atlantic 174:133 N '44 850w

'This book is what I might term an indispensable Baedeker, not only because of its breadth and insight but also because it presents a vivid picture of what France has contributed, and will still contribute, to the world. This large, 600-page, meticulously documented volume, because of the pithiness of its comment and the wealth of its information not only in the political and psychological field but also in the more mysterious domain of the 'Intelligence Service,' at times reads like a novel by Balzac, while certain passages are almost reminiscent of Agatha Christie." Genevieve Tabouis

+ Book Week p3 S 3 '44 800w

Booklist 41:16 S '44

"This is the inside story of the fall of France in all its infinite complexity, told as only the supreme journalist of France could relate it. . . Pertinax marshals the relentless facts without apology, with acid contempt, yet with a massive objectivity that is the superb achievement of his impartial journalism." L. M. Lyons

+ Boston Globe p15 Ag 23 '44 550w

"Students of French history will find an enormous amount of accurate and partly new information spread over the more than 600 pages of 'The Gravediggers.' But they will be left somewhat bewildered by the innumerable details and anecdotes Pertinax has accumulated to illustrate his story. Not all of these are important, and their accumulation makes his book sometimes cumbersome reading. Moreover, Pertinax, though a great journalist, is no historian or sociologist. Students who want to discover the more general reasons for the French collapse will have to complete their research by turning to the books of other French authors." E. K.

+ — Christian Science Monitor p12 Ag 25 '44 600w

Commonweal 40:570 S 29 '44 1200w

"Though the author does not pretend that this is definitive history it is inevitably going to be one of the prime sources on which future historians will rely, for the author's wide knowledge of the events and persons he describes is unsurpassed."

+ Foreign Affairs 23:10 O '44 110w

"It is a scholarly book, a book rooted in thorough and intimate knowledge of every phase leading to French defeat, and presented by a journalist who knows what salient facts to use, and how to give them the objectivity they need to convince the readers."

+ Kirkus 12:205 My 1 '44 430w

"Vastly important to anyone wishing to understand the French defeat. Story is complex and going is difficult, but well worth the effort. Highly recommended for adult libraries." G. W. Wakefield

+ Library J 69:554 Je 15 '44 110w

Reviewed by Lilian Mowrer

Nation 159:299 S 9 '44 1150w

"If Pertinax's book has any faults more serious than excessive length and a tendency to repeat itself, one of them is the emphasis it puts on the role of a relatively few individuals in determining the fate of a great nation... But, to some extent at least, all this is quibbling. For Pertinax does not pretend to have written more than an 'essay,' and his title makes no pretension that the book is a rounded history. Yet it is the most complete history of France in the war years we have had, or are likely to have until many more documents have become available and many more memoirs have been written, published and digested. It is a truly monumental work, one which is destined to replace almost everything else that has so far been written on the subject. Hereafter only historians and specialists will have to read the others; everyone else can safely content himself with Pertinax." Varian Fry

+ — New Repub 111:497 O 16 '44 2050w

Reviewed by Theodore Draper
N Y Times p1 Ag 20 '44 1200w

"[The book's] thoroughness tends to work against it, for while the political skulduggery that helped undermine the Third Republic is of the utmost importance to the narrative, the detailed manner in which Mr. Géraud sets it down sometimes obscures the sequence of events. The numerous other books on this subject have naturally taken the edge off much that Mr. Géraud has to say, and a lot of people will probably find fault with certain of his conclusions, but his examination of his chosen segment of history is just about the best yet."

+ — New Yorker 20:64 Ag 26 '44 150w

"It is too early to expect a definitive history tracing and evaluating the events that were responsible for the French disaster of 1940... Yet no future history will record or appraise the bewildering catastrophe of France without leaning heavily on the amazing account given by Pertinax in his 'Gravediggers of France.' Here is a work so broad in its scope, so penetrating in its analysis, and, above all, so authoritative in its authorship that no one is qualified to express a serious opinion on the collapse of France who has not read and digested it thoroughly." J. S. Badeau

+ Sat R of Lit 27:22 S 30 '44 1150w

"Pertinax has brought forth a work on the key tragedy of our age that is so distinguished —in scope, authority, insight and style—that it may discourage for years to come the luckless professional historians who will be having access to the diplomatic and military files. Within a matter of weeks after the appearance of the French edition (Les Fossoyeurs), it had acquired the stature of a major historical contribution, practically the definitive job on the events leading up to the military disaster, the collapse of the Third Republic, the ignoble armistice and the 'counter-revolution' of Bordeaux and Vichy, as the author calls it." Jay Allen

+ Weekly Book Review p1 Ag 20 '44 2100w

Reviewed by C. A. Micaud
Yale R n s 34:357 winter '45 700w

GEREN, PAUL. Burma diary; drawings by Cyrus Leroy Baldridge. 57p pa 50c Harper

940.542 World war, 1939—Burma. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-17900

" 'More a diary of the spirit than of actual events' is a correct characterization of this little booklet. But there is a recital of numerous events from the morning the first bombs fell on Rangoon through the six succeeding months, when innocent native peoples in multitudes were slaughtered, although they were as ignorant as the cattle about them as to why death should be raining on them. Paul Geren draws vivid pictures of scenes that tore his heart... But his diary is chiefly a record of his meditation and introspection as he was stunned by what he saw and felt." Crozer Q

"No more remarkable or stirring little book has come out of the war... Most of the widely publicized one-man's-view stories of campaigns, and even those personal narratives which stress the religious experience gained in foxholes and on rafts, sincere as they are, seem superficial compared with the deep insights and sensitive interpretations of Burma Diary."

+ Christian Century 60:1271 N 3 '43 160w

Reviewed by J. H. Franklin
+ Crozer Q 21:89 Ja '44 250w

"A short book but a gallant one, and an interesting book for anyone to read who has read Seagrave's Burma Surgeon... In its very simplicity—almost naivete—it makes inspiring reading."

+ Kirkus 11:527 D 1 '43 170w

GERMANN, ROBERT F. Jitter run; with drawings by Elsa. 215p $2.50 Morrow 44-365

Gaily satirical chronicle of a well-to-do, shiftless southern family, the Jitters. The family is large—six legitimate and five illegitimate sons and daughters—and one or more of them are in hot water all the time. A fugitive from justice comes to swell their ranks, and in rescuing Paul from the clutches of the law the joy becomes unconfined.

Booklist 40:235 Mr 1 '44

"The Jitters are shiftless and no-count but gay and amusing. The chances are that you will like them in spite of yourself and follow with happy attention their ingenious and unscrupulous plans for outwitting the law." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p19 F 13 '44 360w

"As slapstick satire of recent literature from the late Confederate States, the book is certainly a vigorously flung piece of custard pie in the face of William Faulkner et al. Altogether it is a ripsnorting and rootin-tootin tale but its level of ludicrousness is always so high that there is hardly room for a real laugh to rise above it. It might be funnier if the lazy Jitters didn't work quite so hard at the business of being ridiculous all the time." Jonathan Daniels

Sat R of Lit 27:17 Ap 8 '44 300w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p6 F 13 '44 480w

GERSCHENKRON, ALEXANDER. Bread and democracy in Germany. 238p $2.75 Univ. of Calif.

330.943 Germany—Economic conditions. Agriculture—Germany. Reconstruction (1939-)—Germany 44-40013

"The present essay is concerned with the problem of the German Junkers in the peace settlement after this war... The primary purpose is to show, first, how, before 1914, the machinery of Junker protectionism in agriculture, coupled with the Junker philosophy delayed the development of democratic institutions in Germany; and second, how the Junkers contrived to escape almost unscathed the German revolution of 1918 and how this fact contributed to the constitutional weakness and subsequent disintegration of the Weimar Republic. The main conclusion of this analysis is that democratic reconstruction of Germany after the victory of the United Nations and insurance of world peace call for a radical elimination of the Junkers as a social and economic group." Pref.

"Dr. Gerschenkron's knowledge of political and social history is distinctly spotty and, on the whole, quite shallow. This accounts for many misleading oversimplifications, fatal misunderstandings, and factual inaccuracies. Carried away by honorable emotions, he preaches a sentimental sermon in political religion, based on postulated catchwords, axiomatic platitudes, and exasperating generalizations... Dr. Gerschenkron has overshot his mark and may have defeated his purpose. Nevertheless, if disentangled, there is much that is sound and solid in his book." Hans Rosenberg

— + Am Hist R 50:117 O '44 650w

Booklist 40:205 F 15 '44

Current Hist 6:164 F '44 50w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:497 Ap '44 50w

GERSCHENKRON, A.—Continued
Reviewed by A. W. Griswold
J Pol Econ 52:365 D '44 950w

Reviewed by H. H. F. Eulau
New Repub 110:293 F 28 '44 150w

Reviewed by F. L. Schuman
N Y Times p6 Jl 9 '44 370w

"Mr. Gerschenkron states that the establishment of democracy in Germany depends on a great many factors, and in his book he purposely deals with only one aspect of the problem, namely, the position of the Junkers and the agricultural policy in its relation to democracy. His excellent analysis of this question will greatly contribute to the understanding of this particular problem and might be helpful in shaping the post-war policy." Antonin Basch
+ Pol Sci Q 59:440 S '44 1400w

"Occasionally the author goes too far in his attempts to make the Junkers appear responsible for Hitlerism: the Nazi mentality and philosophy did not grow in East Elbia alone, nor was the success of National Socialism due to the support of only one group. Nevertheless the study is highly valuable; it should be perused by all those who want to see postwar Germany grow not the bread of hatred and destruction, but the bread of democracy." Alfred Werner
+ — Survey G 33:258 My '44 600w

GERSHOY, LEO. From despotism to revolution, 1763-1789. (Rise of modern Europe, v10) 355p il $4; text ed $3 Harper

940.22 Europe—History 44-5542

The theme of the book "is the rise and fall of enlightened despotism in eighteenth-century Europe, and its point is that revolutions are made before they break out. . . In his brisk pages we find not merely the well known figures of Frederick and Catherine and Voltaire and Rousseau, but detailed accounts of reform, and resistance to reform, in Portugal, Spain, the Germanies, the Italies, Russia, the Scandinavian countries, England and France. The upshot of this survey is that good will is not enough; that intelligence added to good will is not enough, and that even the powerful self-interest of new classes striving for authority is not enough to avert reaction and hence revolution. The threefold process of pioneering, apparent failure and catastrophic success seems normal to the history of nations as it is in art and invention. Put in another way, war and revolution seem to be the regular devices we prefer for institutionalizing change." (Weekly Book Review) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Willard Shelton
Book Week p3 Jl 16 '44 90w

Current Hist 7:132 Ag '44 60w

Reviewed by René Albrecht-Carrié
N Y Times p8 S 3 '44 1000w

"In an easily readable and often truly eloquent style the political, social, and intellectual movements of the late eighteenth century are integrated here into a meaningful and well-ordered picture. It is not without topical interest for students of American history; for it was this Europe of the enlightenment and its imperial and dynastic conflicts which helped, politically and intellectually, the birth of the United States." Hans Kohn
+ Sat R of Lit 27:20 Ag 12 '44 1000w

Social Studies 33:336 N '44 30w

"In the belief that enlightened despotism was a Europe-wide movement and that its history forms a characteristic phase of Western development toward liberalism and democracy, Mr. Gershoy has done a very thorough piece of research and comparison." Jacques Barzun
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ag 13 '44 1150w

GESSNER, ROBERT. Treason. 383p $2.75 Scribner

Arnold, Benedict—Fiction 44-2104

A historical novel dealing with the character of Benedict Arnold and the reasons which led him to betray his country. The story is told partly from the point of view of one of Arnold's young aides, who begins by being a hero-worshiper and only reluctantly and at the end becomes convinced of the truth.

Booklist 40:318 My 15 '44

"Robust recreation of an always fascinating episode of the American Revolution—the story of Benedict Arnold. . . With pace and parallels for today—a satisfying story."
+ Kirkus 12:106 Mr 1 '44 100w

"'Treason' is authentic as to history and vivid in detail. Mr. Gessner has a marked ability for evoking the impact of reality. . . In choosing one of Arnold's actual aides as the character whose sympathies shall mediate to us our No. 1 traitor, the author has taken a good way to warm his sinister portrait. But by this approach he has also accepted, from the standpoint of fiction, certain severe limitations. The narrative, after getting off to a bold, free start, seems in its later unfolding to be fettered by facts." Frances Gaither
+ — N Y Times p5 Mr 12 '44 600w

"The most striking feature of 'Treason' is its topicality. Perhaps the author stresses too hard the parallelism between the 1770's and our day, but the likenesses are startling and depressing. . . The contemporaneousness may be overdone a bit for some readers, but it is, on the whole, effective." R. A. Cordell
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:28 My 20 '44 550w

"In the past American history books, at least school history books, have shown a tendency to treat Arnold's as an isolated case. This, of course, was entirely untrue. The Colonies swarmed with Tories. . . By placing Arnold in this milieu of selfishness, greed, luxury and moral flabbiness, Mr. Gessner succeeds in making his final act of treason seem inevitable. Moreover, he transforms him from the traditional bogyman of American history into a credible and at times even sympathetic human being, without ever becoming his apologist or attempting to extenuate his guilt. It is something of an achievement." Jennings Rice
+ — Weekly Book Review p6 Mr 12 '44 700w

GHEON, HENRI. Secrets of the saints. 406p $3 Sheed

922.244 Vianney, Jean Baptiste Marie, Saint. Thérèse de l'Enfant Jésus, Saint. Alacoque, Marguerite Marie, Saint. Bosco, Giovanni, Saint 44-7980

"The book contains, complete and unabridged, the following works by Henri Ghéon: The Secret of the Curé d'Ars; The Secret of the Little Flower; The Secret of Saint Margaret Mary; The Secret of Saint John Bosco. All of these were translated by F. J. Sheed, with the exception of The Secret of the Little Flower, which was translated by Donald Attwater." Publisher's note

---

Reviewed by L. M. Gruss
Book Week p11 S 24 '44 250w

Cath World 160:284 D '44 70w

"All are good and M. Ghéon's tribute to the Curé d'Ars attains great heights."
+ Commonweal 40:596 O 6 '44 60w

"It is very good reading for the pen of H. Gheon is swift-moving and pointed, and the translations by Frank Sheed and Donald Attwater are well done."
+ Kirkus 12:506 N 1 '44 130w

GIBB, GEORGE SWEET. The whitesmiths of Taunton; a history of Reed & Barton 1824-1943. 419p il $3.50 Harvard univ. press

739.23 Reed & Barton, Taunton, Massachusetts A44-288

"This is the eighth in the series of Harvard Studies in Business History under the editorship of Professor N. S. B. Gras. The author . . . is a native of Taunton with a broad background in jewelry and silverware. Most of the documentary source material has been deposited in the Baker Library. . . Mr. Gibb has confined himself rather closely to Reed and Barton and its predecessors; and other concerns and industries play such a small role that the work is truly a biography of the firm.

The author's predilection for design finds expression in a profusion of plates and other illustrations." Am Econ R

"Many economists will undoubtedly be disappointed because Mr. Gibb approaches topics such as the tariff or competition with a point of view common among American business men, and that he has found so much that is good in Reed and Barton. Nevertheless, the book deals with a most interesting subject and represents a good job in organization, exposition, and illustration." T. S. Berry
+ Am Econ R 34:365 Je '44 1100w

"This book is a straightforward and ably written history of the Reed and Barton Company from its beginnings in 1824 to the present." G. R. Taylor
+ Am Hist R 49:756 Jl '44 750w

"An unusually full and well-rounded history of this concern's growth and business policies." C. W. Wright
+ J Pol Econ 52:279 S '44 1100w

"Rare is the reader who will select for entertaining reading a history of a manufacturing organization with which he, his family, and his community have had no associations. But one need not have been born in Taunton or be anything more than an average reader to derive enjoyment and a deeper insight into American business problems in the nineteenth century from a reading of The Whitesmiths of Taunton, a history of Reed and Barton and its predecessor companies." L. I. Laughlin
+ New Eng Q 17:452 S '44 650w

Reviewed by F. T. Howe
Springf'd Republican p7e F 6 '44 550w

GIBBINGS, TERENCE HAROLD ROBSJOHN-. See Robsjohn-Gibbings, T. H.

GIBBONS, STELLA (MRS ALLAN BOURNE WEBB). The bachelor. 319p $2.50 Dodd 44-8232

Into a quiet, well-to-do home in Hertfordshire, where the middle-aged family try hard to ignore the war, there comes a disturbing influence, a lovely, exotic young refugee from an occupied Balkan state. In pursuit of a secret goal, Miss Annamatta has to fight hard with Miss Fielding but in the end she vanquishes her hostess and carries off the prize, Miss Fielding's bachelor brother.

Reviewed by Dorothy Sparks
Book Week p14 O 1 '44 360w

"The story unwinds itself in a pleasant manner. The characters, with the exception of Vartouhi and Richard, are a little inclined to be stock creations rather than flesh and blood individuals, but they manage to keep your interest all the same."
+ Boston Globe p17 O 11 '44 180w

Reviewed by Lena Ruppert
Library J 69:698 S 1 '44 70w

Reviewed by Wilfrid Gibson
Manchester Guardian p3 O 6 '44 60w

Reviewed by James Pope-Hennessy
New Statesman & Nation 28:306 N 4 '44 180w

"Stella Gibbons writes with a controlled but devastating irony. This book is comic, but it has not ignored the tragic features." Marguerite Young
+ N Y Times p6 S 17 '44 650w

"The book is well written, but the ingredients have been mixed before with more dramatic and more comic results."
+ — New Yorker 20:80 S 16 '44 90w

"Though the conclusion of the book is somewhat improbable and fairytaleish, it is all so gay and delightful that the reader doesn't want to quibble about whether they could really have lived happily ever after. . . Miss Gibbons has [also] invested her fairy tale with overtones of social implication and human relationships; she has neatly impaled on her pen a certain type of hypocrisy and self-righteousness, and there is a great deal of deft characterization and gentle satire. 'The Bachelor' is thoroughly charming, and the many admirers of the author will find it up to expectations." S. H. Hay
+ Sat R of Lit 27:24 O 7 '44 650w

"Some parts of this book are not as coolly projected as to accord perfectly with the whole; the Richard and Alicia idyll is too rosily viewed for commonsense, and Betty, Richard's mother, is a shade dull in her suitable sweetness. But the poor, blundering bachelor himself, his bullying sisters, his nice old cousin—all these run dead true to form; and Vartouhi is more than a match for the lot of them, and carries off a well-earned triumph." Kate O'Brien
+ — Spec 173:344 O 13 '44 300w

"This is a witty, tender and beguiling story." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p4d S 24 '44 280w

Times [London] Lit Sup p485 O 7 '44 480w

Reviewed by Iris Barry
Weekly Book Review p4 S 24 '44 650w

GIBBS, HENRY (SIMON HARVESTER, pseud). Epitaph for lemmings. 292p $2.50 Macmillan [8s 6d Rich] 44-47042

"The principal actors in this story of the British Secret Service are Roger Fleming and Stephen Murray. The former is the leader of a group whose task it is to run down the spies and saboteurs who are trying to hamper the war effort by destroying food dumps. Murray is a former Commando fighter who has just been transferred to Fleming's unit." N Y Times

---

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p11 D 17 '44 130w

"Lively spy hunt."
Boston Globe p12 N 22 '44 50w

Kirkus 12:330 Ag 1 '44 80w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p20 N 19 '44 120w

"A good variation on a fairly threadbare theme."
+ — New Yorker 20:96 N 18 '44 70w

"Fair."
Sat R of Lit 27:15 D 23 '44 30w

Springf'd Republican p4d D 17 '44 160w

"The author has rung in quite a bit of tall toxicology and some judicious comment upon continental films. Readable in spite of the addled effect and personae who may rub you the wrong way." Will Cuppy
+ — Weekly Book Review p41 N 12 '44 110w

GIBBS, SIR PHILIP HAMILTON, ed. Bridging the Atlantic; Anglo-American fellowship as the way to world peace; a survey from both sides. 274p $2.75 Doubleday [7s 6d Hutchinson]

327.73 U.S.—Relations (general) with Great Britain. Great Britain—Relations (general) with U.S. Reconstruction (1939-) 43-18539

Symposium on relations between Great Britain and the United States. Contents: The common ideal, by Sir Archibald Sinclair; The American people, by Sir Philip Gibbs; Anglo-American relations: a survey, by Viscount Samuel; American post-war policy: barriers to mutual understanding, by Harold Callender; The bridge of ideas: British and American novelists, by Frank Swinnerton; The way to world recovery, by F. W. Hirst; Mother of parliaments, by Sir Percy Harris; The hope of federation, by Lord Davies; The world is round, by Nora Waln; World court, by Sir Cecil Hurst; The social services of Britain, by Megan Lloyd George; What they think of each other, a Mass observation report; American medley: an English girl's impressions, by Antonia Bell; Freedom of the skies, by P. F. M. Fellowes; Inside isolationism, by Robert Waithman; Americans in England, by E. C. Cutler; The spirit within us, by Ulric Nisbet; Biographical notes.

Reviewed by E. V. R. Wyatt
Commonweal 39:450 F 18 '44 800w

GIBBS, P. H.—Continued

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:494 Ap '44 20w

Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 21 '43 200w

"This collection of essays is not just another in a series of transatlantic gestures. It is free from the evangelistic taint which made other pleas for better understanding so unpalatable on both sides of the water. No obstacles to Anglo-American friendship are glossed over, and the things the two nations have in common are not ornately embroidered. The whole is a realistic, sincere, and refreshingly frank discussion of the bonds of friendship and of the differences that color relations between the two English-speaking peoples." G. H. E. Smith

+ N Y Times p14 Ja 30 '44 800w

"'Bridging the Atlantic,' if not an unqualified success, is a well-meaning and earnest contribution toward Anglo-American understanding and the cause of world peace. Taken as a whole, it leaves something to be desired, but some of the contributions are excellent." W. H. H.

+ — Springf'd Republican p8 Ja 18 '44 500w

Reviewed by H. W. Hintz
Survey G 33:262 My '44 280w

"Despite its title, this is a predominantly English symposium. Only two residents of the United States are contributors (out of seventeen) and only two others are Americans by birth. This want of balance is reflected all through the book. Mr. Callender and Mr. Waithman make useful contributions to our understanding of the American attitude to us and to the question of world organization. . . But taken as a whole, this symposium is marked by that determined optimism, that refusal to see the facts of the case, that bland assumption of common understanding that does more harm to the cause of Anglo-American relations than a dozen violent speeches in Congress or bitter articles in the Chicago—or London—Press."

Times [London] Lit Sup p314 Jl 3 '43 600w

Reviewed by H. B. Parkes
Weekly Book Review p6 F 6 '44 550w

GIBSON, HUGH. Road to foreign policy. 252p $2.50 Doubleday

327.73 U.S.—Foreign policy 44-7506

The author, who has had long experience in the United States diplomatic service, has here attempted to examine the reasons why, as it seems to him, our foreign policy is inadequate and to suggest a plan for its improvement.

Booklist 41:9 S '44

"Hugh Gibson's book on America's foreign policy is in some respects the most refreshing that has come to this reviewer's eye since the flood of literature on the subject started. It is modest in its approach; there is no dogmatism in its language and its 'constructive' suggestions are anything but another 'blue print' in the prevailing fashion. But in the urbane phrases in which Mr. Gibson reviews the scene there is wrapped some devastating criticism of current trends of thinking, expressions of which fill the press and crowd the air, and it is in this respect that his book is most useful—if people will only read it with attention." T. F. Woodlock

+ Cath World 160:84 O '44 700w

"Mr. Gibson writes with a cheerful acerbity which makes his every chapter exceptionally good reading." Paul Hutchinson

+ Christian Century 61:1023 S 6 '44 1100w

Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 2 '44 350w

Reviewed by J. N. Moody
Commonweal 41:42 O 27 '44 480w

"His definitions and distinctions are intelligently presented—often surprising—always informative. His criticisms are soundly sustained by facts. His general thesis is sometimes weakened by slightly cheap digs at the administration."

+ — Kirkus 12:268 Je 15 '44 170w

"Mr. Gibson, who is always keen-witted and clever, and who sometimes is brilliant, has written a book which precisely fits its title. He does not tell us (except in very general terms) what our foreign policy should be. He does tell us how he thinks we can best reach a sound foreign policy. . . The best part of this book is not in the tartly destructive passages—or in the highly controversial pages in which Mr. Gibson assails the Russian policy toward the Baltic States and attacks the Administration for supine acceptance of Stalin's designs. Its best elements are its constructive proposals." Allan Nevins

+ — N Y Times p4 Jl 23 '44 1600w

"Mr. Gibson's book is eclectic, and therefore of most uneven value. In spots, it is a wise and mature commentary on American foreign policy and diplomacy, but the total effect of the book is marred by the leitmotiv of partisanship which imputes most of our current difficulties to the shortcomings of the present administration." Grayson Kirk

— + Pol Sci Q 59:601 D '44 950w

Times [London] Lit Sup p578 D 2 '44 500w

"In dealing with the machinery needed to create and execute a foreign policy, Mr. Gibson is on firm ground. He has had ample experience with the faults and virtues of American diplomatic procedure and can describe them with clarity as well as with a certain acerbity born of rueful familiarity with the American attitude toward its foreign service. Unfortunately, however, he has also introduced, either by way of illustration or simply as obiter dicta a number of reflections on foreign policy which tend to drag his book back into that very arena of controversy which he apparently intended to avoid. This makes for regrettable confusion in a book which has a very real value." H. W. Baehr

+ — Weekly Book Review p4 Ag 13 '44 1000w

Wis Lib Bul 40:125 O '44

GIDE, ANDRE PAUL GUILLAUME. Imaginary interviews; tr. from the French by Malcolm Cowley. 172p $2 Knopf

848 French literature—History and criticism 44-8537

This volume is made up of articles first published in Le Figaro during the winter and spring of 1941-1942. In the form of dialogues with an imaginary journalist, the author sets forth his ideas concerning a variety of literary matters and underlying this, often in disguised form, his reactions to the state of France under German domination. "With the exception of three added passages, to which attention is called in footnotes, the translation is based on the French text of Interviews Imaginaires published in New York by Jacques Schiffrin and Company." (Introd)

Reviewed by W. D. Clark
Book Week p26 N 12 '44 650w

Booklist 41:149 Ja 15 '45

Christian Science Monitor p14 N 30 '44 350w

Reviewed by Louise Bogan
Nation 159:526 O 28 '44 1600w

Reviewed by Harry Levin
New Repub 111:570 O 30 '44 1500w

"The pieces are written in the form Gide has taken for his own—the interior dialogue, a sort of perpetual examination of conscience. As form it is faintly irritating, though Gide is never pompous and often witty, but the 'dialogue' at times becomes conscious trickery, a false conversational see-saw." Catherine Maher

N Y Times p7 F 13 '44 320w (Review of French edition)

"'Imaginary Interviews' is Gide's apologia since it expresses, with a certain amount of necessary mystification, the author's reaction to this German war and the humiliating fall of his native country. To many a reader it may seem nothing more than a volume of erudite little essays; but to me it has revealed, for the first time in my experience, the definite grandeur of André Gide." Cuthbert Wright

+ N Y Times p25 Ja 21 '45 900w

"These interviews deal mainly with literary matters, but, by various, unobtrusive devices, they conceal, as the editor points out, the unmistakable indications of an intransigent attitude toward the Germans—an exercise in which Gide, with his relish for the equivocal, his sly love of betraying the reader, must rather have enjoyed engaging. It may make the foreign reader uncomfortable to find himself participating thus in even the temporary humiliation of French thought, compelled to express itself through subterfuge, but the dialogues add to one's respect for Gide. One can consider him overrated: he is a good but surely not a great writer; and yet be glad of the reassurance that one derives from his persistence, in his seventies, in continuing to play his rôle in the teeth of the Nazi occupation—in remaining both independent and articulate." Edmund Wilson

+ New Yorker 20:78 N 4 '44 750w

"To begin with, I must admit that Mr. Cowley's conception of translation is one with which I can feel little or no sympathy. It might work between kindred and equally exalted talents—Poe and Baudelaire, for instance—and it has its place, of necessity, in all translated poetry; but it seems to me that in modern prose of the western European language group there is no need to paraphrase, to add, and to substract. All Mr. Cowley had to do was to translate Gide; instead, he has deliberately chosen to paraphrase. . . The book itself has merit enough to rise above the unfortunate system of its translator." Vincent Sheean

+ — Sat R of Lit 27:9 O 21 '44 1100w

Reviewed by H. E. Woodridge

+ Springf'd Republican p4d D 3 '44 550w

"Save for the admirable introduction to 'Goëthe's Dramatic Works,' which occupies but twenty-five pages of the book, there is such pettiness, such weary irritation, such querulousness voiced here that Gide has clearly no part at all to play in France's spiritual renaissance." Kay Boyle

— + Weekly Book Review p5 O 29 '44 1500w

GILBERT, ANTHONY, pseud. See Malleson, L. B.

GILBERT, PAUL THOMAS. Egbert and his marvelous adventures; pictures by H. A. Rey. 103p $1.50 Harper

44-8652

Collection of nonsense stories about a small boy named Egbert, who has eight encounters with animals—a seal, an elephant, a Dee, a hyena, and a mastodon, among others.

"The gift of writing nonsense for children is a rare one, as a good many writers have discovered. Paul Gilbert possesses that gift and he puts it to good use for enchanted young readers." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p5 N 12 '44 230w

Reviewed by H. L. Binsse

Commonweal 41:127 N 17 '44 20w

Kirkus 12:431 S 15 '44 90w

"These stories have an irritating sameness to the adult, but probably children will love them, as they do the Bertram stories which they strongly resemble." Gweneira Williams

+ — Library J 69:1004 N 15 '44 70w

GILBERT, STEPHEN. Landslide. 249p $2.50 Knopf [7s 6d Faber]

A44-4769

A fantastic story laid in a remote hamlet of western Ireland a hundred years ago. A landslide uncovers the eggs of prehistoric monsters, an unprecedented hot summer sun hatches them out and a jungle grows up around them, all to the great bewilderment of the peasantry. The narrator of the tale is a boy of twelve living with his father and mother and grandfather on a lonely farm near the sea.

"This is a difficult book to talk about. At worst, it's a ridiculous melange of make-believe and easy philosophizing about the worthlessness of Man. At best, it's a beautifully sustained satire in fantasy, ringing with overtones and recollections of Swift, St. Francis and Barnaby. The mildly anticlerical attitude and the pagan mysticism may remind you, too, of Yeats and the other Irish writers who whisked themselves straight back to the Golden Age of leprechauns and pixies. Personally, I liked the book, once I got into it." E. J. Cronin

+ — Book Week p7 Ja 9 '44 360w

Booklist 40:213 F 15 '44

"Like Mr. White's, Mr. Gilbert's attack is grounded as much on learning as on love; although, unlike him, he depends not at all upon parody or anachronism for his effects. His description of the means of communication between the beasts and their human allies—certainly the crux of the story—seemed to me not only fascinating but possible; and his language is at all times singled by his material, and is simple and unadorned. Writing in the first person, from the exact viewpoint of a normal twelve-year-old boy, the author is still able to project that most delicate of qualities, compassion; the essence which must arouse both sadness and joy in the reader at one and the same time. I think his book is a rare and memorable one." Kappo Phelan

+ Commonweal 39:598 Mr 31 '44 420w

"Irish fantasy with an elusive charm which will appeal to those who like Dunsany and Francis Stuart—a fairy tale for grown-ups, with a philosophical as well as poetical thread running through it."

+ Kirkus 12:22 Ja 15 '44 200w

"The story has many delicious moments, but I could not help feeling that such a writer as James Stephens, for instance, would have managed to give the preposterous affair a more racy verisimilitude." Wilfrid Gibson

Manchester Guardian p3 F 26 '43 80w

"It is the kind of novel that might easily have degenerated into farce. That it retains the right mood is perhaps due to the author's mind which, with some envy, I imagine must have something of the child in it. The whole story, while told in the words and with the skill of an adult writer, has the direct simplicity and belief of a child, the air of reality and gravity which can make a visionary world as credible as the real world." D. C. Russell

+ N Y Times p5 Ja 16 '44 380w

"Mr. Gilbert writes a clear and simple prose and has the rare gift of imposing belief on his readers, unless they are altogether deaf to fantasy." R. E. Roberts

+ Sat R of Lit 27:21 Ap 8 '44 340w

"Stephen Gilbert has a lively and adventurous imagination; he handles his characters, both man and animal, with skill and sensibility. His exposition of Father Binyon's dilemma, with all its implications, is done with sensitive care. The dragons and sea-serpents, the land- and sea-scapes are satisfying and delightful. The whole conception of his book has a poetic and tender beauty, and it is given conviction by the charming and witty characterisation of the boy Wolfe. A first novel of unusual freshness and ability." John Hampson

+ Spec 170:300 Mr 26 '43 300w

"Mr. Gilbert has told this story very charmingly, but with comparatively little humour—possibly a deliberate omission since even now it becomes strongly reminiscent at times of Alice in Wonderland, and he is evidently concerned that his account should not spill over into the merely ridiculous. Mr. Forrest Reid, to whom the book is dedicated, finds in it 'the freshness and poetry of nature,' but that seems slightly irrelevant praise for such an adventurous fantasy as this."

Times [London] Lit Sup p89 F 20 '43 300w

"I am not sure about Stephen Gilbert's literary values, his use of words. In this, his first novel, there is a limitation of style that may or may not be deliberate. He is confined in the role of a reporter upon practically angelic happenings, a common man obliged to record what has upset a village. But what he has given proof of is his conscientious sincerity and ability to fulfill his intention—in this instance an enchanting purpose which withdraws his readers from a wartime world far back into a prehuman domination that was, by strict comparison, full of sweetness and light." Kathleen Coyle

GILBERT, STEPHEN—Continued

+ Weekly Book Review p3 Ja 16 '44 600w

GILL, CHARLES A. World republic. 119p $1 Dorrance

321.041 Peace. Nationalism and nationality. International cooperation 43-16099

"A proposal to supplant the many nation-states with a single centralized federal republic." Foreign Affairs

"The author realizes that 'to many people this proposal will appear as revolutionary, while to others it will appear merely foolish.' Count this reviewer as a member of both classes."

— Christian Century 60:1271 N 3 '43 110w
Foreign Affairs 23:4 O '44 10w

GILL, ERIC. It all goes together; selected essays. 192p $3.50 Devin-Adair

824 44-5319

"As a sculptor and wood engraver, no one knew better than Eric Gill the joy of creation and the satisfaction of beginning and finishing a piece of work himself. It is upon this theme of creation and joy in one's work that Mr Gill's collection of essays is founded. He maintains that the restlessness and discontent of this present age is due in a large part, if not entirely, to the fact that industrialism has deprived man of satisfaction and pleasure in his work, reducing him to 'a subhuman condition of intellectual irresponsibility.' Man is today merely a machine attendant." Springf'd Republican

Booklist 41:56 O 15 '44

"The twenty-eight reproductions of the author's work in design and lettering add greatly to the interest of a book whose appeal will be for the few rather than the many—but for that few not a thing to be missed." Katherine Brégy

+ Cath World 159:474 Ag '44 270w
Commonweal 40:209 Je 16 '44 360w

"Gill was not a prolific writer, but what he wrote had point and punch. . . This little volume of selections is a bracing antidote for the false gospel of 'free enterprise,' an elixir for those who watch with dismay the growth of 'Fordism' and force. The essay on 'Five Hundred Years of Printing' is the best thing written in the anniversary year: his essays on clothing are sound even if heterodox; his repeated emphasis on personal responsibility is salutary. No doubt the book will have a limited audience, but I believe it is the most stimulating book of the year." C. P. Rollins

+ Sat R of Lit 27:18 Jl 8 '44 360w

Reviewed by C. K. Bausman
Springf'd Republican p6 My 29 '44 380w
Weekly Book Review p23 Jl 23 '44 450w

GILL, JAMES PRESLEY, and others. Tool steels. 577p il $6 Am. soc. for metals

672 Tool steel 44-3398

"Intended for the users of tool steels rather than the metallurgist, this work offers theoretical and practical information concerning the more commonly manufactured tool steels. The manufacture, testing, properties, selection, heat treatment, effect of alloying elements of tool steels are discussed. Die steels for hot and cold work, and high speed steels are dealt with at some length. An extensive classified bibliography is included." N Y New Tech Bks

"In a 530-page digest, the authors have skillfully condensed and correlated the great, unwieldy mass of information published over a period of years and dealing with the manufacture, testing, classification, heat treatment, properties, and proper selection of the more commonly used tool steels. . . The whole is well indexed and an extensive bibliography is included."

+ Chem & Met Eng 51:196 N '44 70w
Library J 68:960 N 15 '43 60w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:32 Ap '44

GILMAN, STEPHEN. What the figures mean. 127p il $2.50 Ronald

311.2 Statistics 44-3083

"An informal, common-sense guide to the interpretation and use of business figures. The author outlines practical methods of analyzing business reports, formulating standards, and interpreting the results of business investigations." Management R

Library J 69:462 My 15 '44 10w
Management R 33:241 Jl '44 30w

GILMAN, WILLIAM. Our hidden front [phot. by the author]. 266p $3 Reynal

940.53798 World war, 1939—Alaska. World war, 1939—Aleutian islands 44-4401

Account of the American war effort in Alaska, stressing the road building program, and the expansion of airways into the far North. Map on end papers. No index.

"Alaska is out of the news at present, but it has lost none of its present and future importance. William Gilman's 'Our Hidden Front' is a necessary book that rightly sets out to inform the public of its immediate past in both peace and war, and its potentialities." W. F. Morse

+ Book Week p11 My 28 '44 150w
Booklist 40:338 Je 1 '44
Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 9 '44 420w
Foreign Affairs 23:8 O '44 20w
Kirkus 12:130 Mr 15 '44 260w

"Lacks the warmth one expects from humanized reporting and the drama that the situation demands. The confusing introduction of political and diplomatic problems weakens what otherwise would be a sound factual report. The author's insistence on realism in our diplomacy when his own ideas are open to challenge on many counts causes this reader to recommend his book with reservations." Rice Estes

+ — Library J 69:402 My 1 '44 100w

Reviewed by Marcus Duffield
Nation 158:739 Je 24 '44 300w

Reviewed by R. L. Weaver
New Repub 111:21 Jl 3 '44 120w

"This is an important book. It is a book to make you mad, to frighten you with the facts about the war's mismanagement at Washington —and to make you proud of the boys who did the fighting and stuck it out until the danger had passed." Jim Marshall

+ N Y Times p16 Je 4 '44 650w
Wis Lib Bul 40:128 O '44

GILPATRIC, GUY. Mr Glencannon ignores the war. 157p $2 Dutton

44-6668

Mr Glencannon, Scotch chief engineer of the S.S. Inchcliffe Castle, which ship is at Pandalang when the Japs arrive, tries to forget the war by drinking all the Scotch he can lay hands on. Instead of forgetting he becomes actively involved when captured by the Japanese, who think he is a British admiral. With the help of an American officer, Mr Glencannon helps considerably in foiling the Japs.

+ Book Week p8 Ag 13 '44 150w
Booklist 41:22 S '44
Kirkus 12:354 Ag 15 '44 130w

"Gilpatric's storytelling has Hollywood flexibility and makes summer entertainment for casual readers." H. S. Taylor

Library J 69:650 Ag '44 80w

Reviewed by C. V. Terry
N Y Times p12 Ag 20 '44 480w

"A humorous book about the tragic events of the early days of the Japanese war may seem premature—it's the sort of thing we'll be turning out at a great rate when the conflict is over—but it is most welcome, and it indicates an early recovery from the shock of our inadequacy and complacency at the time of Pearl Harbor. When we have corrected our mistakes to the point where we can look back and laugh at ourselves for having committed them, we are doing all right." Thomas Sugrue
+ Sat R of Lit 28:28 Ja 13 '45 500w

"Mr Glencannon ignores the war with surpassing success through every page of Mr Gilpatric's book. Read it yourself. If, for a couple of hours, you do not succeed in ignoring it also, there is little hope for you." M. A. MacDuffie
+ Springf'd Republican p4d Ag 13 '44 280w

"A summer pick-up for those who cannot get too much of an unquenchable hero." Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p12 Ag 13 '44 100w

GIRL'S daily life; written by Adelaide Laura Van Duzer [and others] ed. by Benjamin R. Andrews. 646p il col pl $2.75; educ ed $2.12 Lippincott

170 Girls. Conduct of life. Hygiene. Clothing and dress 44-5423

"This text, intended for use with high school girls, is a completely revised and reset edition of the book by the same authors entitled Everyday living for girls (1936). Covers health, food, clothing, home management, business and social behavior, leisure time, marriage as a career, and citizenship. Normal format and well illustrated." (Wis Lib Bul) Reading list for each section. Index.

"Questions and activities at the end of each section will aid both teacher and pupil. An up-to-date bibliography completes each unit. Although it is primarily a textbook for junior and senior high school girls, some units could well be used in boys' classes. Although the book can not adequately treat any one of the many subjects contained in it, the authors have tried to select the most pertinent facts and so offer a well-rounded course for the girl soon to leave high school." Lucile Alexander
J Home Econ 36:657 D '44 180w

"Excellent handbook—too bad it has such an old-fashioned sounding title."
+ Kirkus 12:454 O 1 '44 60w

"Although full index and bibliographies accompanying each unit give book some reference value for young people's collections, it is better buy for school than public libraries. Not for general reading." M. C. Scoggin
Library J 69:1006 N 15 '44 80w

Reviewed by G. C. Kaynor
Springf'd Republican p4d D 10 '44 220w
Wis Lib Bul 40:157 D '44

GIRVAN, MRS HELEN (MASTERMAN). White tulip; il. by Gertrude Howe. 280p $2 Farrar 44-700

Mystery story for older girls, with England and Holland in the 1630's for a background. The heroine is a sixteen-year-old English girl, kidnapped and taken to Holland, under the impression that she is her brother, for Milady Elspeth was dressed as a boy when she was stolen.

"Here is a fine historical novel for girls laid against the background of picturesque Holland in the time of Frans Hals. . . Spoiled, gay, courageous young Elspeth makes a lovable heroine and I can't imagine the girl of today who will not follow her adventures with interest and delight." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p15 Mr 26 '44 200w
Cath World 160:282 D '44 20w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 13 '44 90w

"Special interest for older girls. Recommended." Sylvia Fredrick
+ Library J 69:207 Mr 1 '44 100w

"Though its beginning is overwritten and not very convincing, the story soon hits its stride as a colorful and engaging period piece for older girls." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p7 Mr 26 '44 180w

"In this, her first historical novel, Helen Girvan has shown, as she did in 'Felicity Way,' her love for growing things. She makes the cultivation of tulips so real and so vital that the reader is completely captivated." Muriel Gilbert
+ Sat R of Lit 27:77 Ap 15 '44 300w

"Helen Girvan has been from the first a stand-by for those who must provide girls with 'mysteries' repaying to some degree the reading time girls put into them. She now uses this technique in what might be called historical adventure if there were not so much more mystery in it than history." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 F 6 '44 180w
Wis Lib Bul 40:73 My '44

GIRVIN, HARVEY FRANK. Strength of materials. 357p il $3 Int. textbook

624.17 Strains and stresses. Strength of materials 44-2205

"An introductory textbook for college courses. The author is Professor of Applied Mechanics at Purdue University." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:205 Mr 1 '44 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:12 Ja '44

GITHENS, THOMAS STOTESBURY, and WOOD, CARROLL E. Food resources of Africa. (African handbooks) 105p maps pa $1.50 Univ. of Pa. press [9s 6d Oxford]

338.1 Agriculture—Africa. Food supply—Africa 43-16501

"A systematic summary of the available facts and figures supplemented by several charts and maps. This is number three in the series of 'African Handbooks' being prepared by the Committee on African Studies at the University of Pennsylvania." Foreign Affairs

Reviewed by N. D. Houghton
Am Pol Sci R 38:407 Ap '44 90w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:502 Ap '44 40w

GITTELSOHN, ROLAND BERTRAM. Modern Jewish problems. 267p $1.25 Union of Am. Hebrew congregations

296 Jews—Political and social conditions 44-183

"A textbook for Jewish high school classes and youth groups. The problems discussed are such as: whether Jewishness is a matter of race, religion or nationality; why and how Jews should resist assimilation; intermarriage (against it); anti-Semitism and what can be done about it (nothing, apparently, on the Jewish side); the importance of a thoroughly Jewish education; and various aspects of Zionism. Many questions are raised, selections expressing various points of view are appended to each chapter, and discussion is encouraged." (Christian Century) Bibliography. No index.

Booklist 40:261 Ap 1 '44
Christian Century 61:114 Ja 26 '44 80w

GLASSTONE, SAMUEL. Theoretical chemistry; an introduction to quantum mechanics, statistical mechanics, and molecular spectra for chemists. 515p $5 Van Nostrand

530.1 Quantum theory. Mechanics, Statistical. Spectrum analysis 44-6886

"Quantum mechanics, statistical mechanics and molecular spectra and the applications of these subjects to practical chemical problems. No higher mathematics needed than elementary calculus and differential equations." (Library J) Index.

GLASSTONE, SAMUEL—Continued

"Every book on theoretical chemistry must make some compromise between rigor and readableness. 'Theoretical Chemistry' is written at the level of capable graduate students in chemistry and ought to appeal to a wide circle. The emphasis, as the author indicates, is on the how more than on the why of theory. Most of the material of the book just didn't exist in the early twenties, so that older chemists will find much that they missed in graduate school." Henry Eyring
+ Chem & Eng N 22:2127 D 10 '44 300w

"It is my opinion that the book should be more valuable as a reference book for use by a reader already familiar with the topics discussed than as a text book for the instruction of the newcomer to the field. The presentation of most of the topics is too brief and condensed to carry much meaning to the reader who is approaching the subject for the first time; such a reader would be well advised to make use of other books, in which only one of the several topics treated by Glasstone is taken up, with a greater discussion of the experimental background for the theoretical treatment." Linus Pauling
Chem & Met Eng 51:222 D '44 310w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:700 S 1 '44 30w

GLEIT, MARIA, pseud. See Gleitsmann, H.

GLEITSMANN, HERTHA (MRS WALTHER VICTOR) (MARIA GLEIT, pseud). Pierre keeps watch; il. by Helene Carter. 211p $2 Scribner
44-6599

Story of the underground movement in France, written for ages nine and older. The hero is a thirteen-year-old boy, who guards the village herds and saves the animals from the Nazis.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p15 O 29 '44 240w
Booklist 41:79 N 1 '44
Cath World 160:282 D '44 10w

"This story of a brave shepherd boy of our own time is warm with love of home and bright with the hope of victory from Nazi rule." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 20:377 S '44 100w
+ Kirkus 12:197 Ap 15 '44 210w

"A nice balance is kept between patriotic necessity and innate gentleness. Pierre's growing understanding of the war and his village's part culminate when the troops are withdrawn for the Italian front. Spacious outdoor drawings maintain a pastoral atmosphere in spite of present turmoil. A not-too-violent war book for Junior High." Marian Cumming
+ Library J 69:654 Ag '44 110w

"This is the newest and, so far as action is concerned, the strongest of a series of books which portrays wartime life in various of the United Nations." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p14 Jl 30 '44 160w

"The author, who knows France well, has avoided the many pitfalls of stories of this type. She is not trying to teach American children about French customs, nor does she appeal unduly to their emotions. The hatred of the Nazis is not overdrawn. The patriotism of the people of Croix St. Nicholas is not grandiloquent. Here, in brief, is a good story, full of life and touched with poetry. It is restrained and it has a sense of proportion which is typically French." B. W. Schaffer
+ Sat R of Lit 27:28 S 23 '44 310w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p5 Ag 6 '44 400w

GLENN, GARRARD. Army and the law; rev. and enl. by A. Arthur Schiller. 203p $2.75 Columbia univ. press [18s 6d Oxford]
355.133 Military law 43-13661

"A revision of a 1918 book [Book Review Digest, 1919] which omits some obsolete material and adds information relevant to the present situation. It does not treat of the laws of war nor in general of rules governing internal affairs of the army, but deals with the army in relation to the common law which governs the general public. There are two chapters on military law in occupied territory." (Booklist) Table of cases. Index.

Am Pol Sci R 38:189 F '44 180w

Reviewed by F. G. Munson
Ann Am Acad 232:224 Mr '44 550w
Booklist 40:214 F 15 '44
Christian Century 60:1233 O 27 '43 250w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:495 Ap '44 20w

"This is, as a whole, an excellent and up-to-date, study, as useful to the specialist in military law as to the general lawyer, and by no means without interest for the international lawyer." J. L. Kunz
+ Pol Sci Q 59:150 Mr '44 370w

GLUECK, SHELDON. War criminals, their prosecution and punishment. 250p $3 Knopf 341.3 War crimes 44-47372

Analysis of the problems involved in the punishment of the Fascist war criminals. The author is professor of criminal law and criminology at Harvard. Partial contents: Violations of law by Axis nationals; Legal liability for atrocities; Courts for the trial of war criminals; An international criminal court; Liability of heads of state; Acts of state; Orders of a military superior; Caption of accused; Punishment and correction. Index.

Booklist 41:133 Ja 1 '45

"Interesting but limited."
Kirkus 12:526 N 15 '44 180w

"The book is a great scientific achievement and deserves wide reading not only by the jurist but by the layman. Glueck presents his case vigorously, but he never allows passion to interfere with his considered judgment. With a mind broad and unbiased enough to grasp the great human issue involved he pleads for justice. 'The homes and factories of Europe and Asia laid waste by Axis aggression and greed are the least of the human possessions to be restored; the most precious thing to be salvaged from the ruins is man's hard-won heritage of justice through law.' " A. C. Wyler
+ Nation 160:51 Ja 13 '45 360w

"This cool-headed view is not going to win over any of the hotheads, particularly those who regard the total destruction of the German and Japanese peoples as both proper and desirable, nor will it alter the fact that nearly all the survivors of German and Japanese brutality will be much more interested in vengeance than in the proprieties of the law. It does lay down the basis for a sound and civilized procedure, however, and demonstrates, fairly conclusively, that justice need not be either blind or soft."
New Yorker 20:54 D 30 '44 230w

"Of all the multiplicity of books and articles dealing with the post-war world, this small volume by Harvard University's noted Professor of criminal law and criminology should be basic. Surely the subject is a burning one, vital not only to statesmen but to intelligent laymen as well. Dr. Glueck has performed an amazing feat in presenting such a complex problem in a most readable and engaging manner."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 16:2 Ja '45 480w

"In reading this book one cannot fail to remark upon two striking characteristics of the Anglo-Saxon—the desire to do justice and the desire to do it on the basis of legal principle. Sheldon Glueck, professor of criminal law and criminology at Harvard University, has written a thoughtful, well documented, well reasoned book on the basis of which we can rationally bring these men to trial." A. G. Hays
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Ja 7 '45 1250w

GLUECK, SHELDON, and GLUECK, MRS ELEANOR (TOUROFF). Criminal careers in retrospect. (Harvard law school studies in criminology) 380p $3.50 Commonwealth fund

364 Crime and criminals—U.S. Criminal anthropology 43-17001

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

"Those interested in the administration of criminal justice and in the elimination of ancient trappings in its peno-correctional system should discover here material infinitely helpful in the creation of reforms. Those who have undertaken the task of functioning in the preventive field would here be given useful tools with which to do their work." E. J. Lucas
+ Am J Pub Health 34:195 F '44 1050w

"This volume cannot be read. It must be studied. It points in the only obviously intelligent direction to which our correctional philosophy should be oriented. That is its misfortune." J. P. Shalloo
+ Am Soc R 9:584 O '44 1000w

"The reader will find in this book the high quality of scholarship, the prodigious industry, and the distinction characteristic of all books written by the Gluecks." E. D. Monachesi
+ Ann Am Acad 232:221 Mr '44 900w

"Despite shortcomings, the series now completed is a magnificent work. Theoretically, it shows the possibility of combining the case study method with the statistical method which usually are considered to be irreducible antagonists. Practically, it points to the possibility of significant improvements in the management of criminal justice without wholesale destruction of the existing system which is more often than not demanded in programmatic works on penology and deprives them of any practical significance." N. S. Timasheff
+ — Columbia Law R 44:291 Mr '44 500w

Reviewed by P. W. Alexander
Harvard Law R 57:588 Ap '44 1400w

Reviewed by P. R. Busey
Social Educ 8:335 N '44 320w

Reviewed by L. M. Brooks
Social Forces 22:465 My '44 800w

"While some accredited crime statisticians will quarrel with the accuracy of parts of the data presented by the authors, it is believed that this latest book will prove to be highly significant and useful to correctional workers and students. In presenting this new work the Gluecks have placed us yet deeper in their debt." R. A. Chappell
+ Survey 80:99 Mr '44 370w

Reviewed by Eugene Kahn
Yale Law J 53:379 Mr '44 1650w

GOEHRING, EDWARD P. Marine piping handbook for designers-fitters-operators. 662p il $5 Cornell maritime

623.85 Pipe fitting 44-1066

"An extensive and practical treatment intended both for instruction and for reference use. The author is an engineer in charge of piping design for the New York Shipbuilding Corporation." (N Y New Tech Bks) Glossary of shipyard terms and abbreviations. Index.

Booklist 40:229 Mr 1 '44

"Useful for trainees and supervisors."
+ Library J 69:118 F 1 '44 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:65 O '43

GOFFIN, ROBERT. Jazz; from the Congo to the Metropolitan; introd. by Arnold Gingrich [tr. by Walter Schaap and Leonard G. Feather]. 254p $2.50 Doubleday

781.5 Jazz music 44-2504

Serious study of the evolution of jazz music "from the Congo" to the present, by a Belgian who has been an admirer of jazz for some years, and published a book, Aux Frontiers du Jazz, widely known abroad. Bibliography. No index.

Reviewed by S. I. Hayakawa
Book Week p6 F 20 '44 700w

Booklist 40:247 Mr 15 '44

"An interesting job for a special market."
+ Kirkus 11:564 D 15 '43 160w

"Any person in his fifties has lived through the entire history of jazz. A music so young cannot have all of its early history set down without much more research and clarification. Until an encyclopedia of jazz is written, Mr. Goffin's book has a place on a shelf along with such works as 'Jazzmen,' 'Hot Jazz' and 'American Jazz Music.' This pioneer in the study of jazz has many things to say." R. E. Berry
+ N Y Times p5 F 27 '44 340w

Reviewed by Henry Steig
Weekly Book Review p10 Mr 5 '44 500w

GOFFIN, ROBERT. White brigade; English version, by Charles Lam Markmann. 199p $2 Doubleday

940.53493 Belgium—History—German occupation, 1940- 44-40007

The story of the underground movement in Belgium, as told by a former Brussels lawyer now an exile in America. He describes the movement chronologically, using pseudonyms where the persons are still alive.

Booklist 40:194 F 1 '44

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:497 Ap '44 20w

Reviewed by Marcus Duffield
Nation 158:398 Ap 1 '44 240w

Reviewed by H. H. F. Eulau
New Repub 110:387 Mr 20 '44 160w

Reviewed by Catherine Maher
N Y Times p8 Ja 16 '44 600w

"Goffin's record of the underground is written quite calmly, with almost historical detachment, and it is for that reason a document all the more impressive." R. L. North
+ Sat R of Lit 27:32 F 5 '44 600w

"Mr. Goffin has described well the German hell. But he has pictured even better the spirit of these men of the little country of Belgium who do not want to be enslaved, degraded, thrown back into bestiality—who do not want to become—Germans." Philippe Barres
+ Weekly Book Review p2 F 6 '44 1000w

GOHDES, CLARENCE LOUIS FRANK. American literature in nineteenth-century England. 191p $2.50 Columbia univ. press

810.9 American literature—History and criticism. Literature, Comparative A44-1777

"The first study of the reception American books had in England during the last three-quarters of the nineteenth century. Since this was the time that American literature reached its first flowering, it is important to understand the profound influence that the interchange of English and American books had upon the American writer. Dr. Gohdes analyzes the economics of the situation—the book trade—discusses the periodicals, traces the growth of the popularity of American humor, shows the influence of the critics, and gives a detailed case history of the distribution of one American author's books in England. He has chosen Longfellow as an example, for his poetry was actually more popular in England during that period than Tennyson's or Browning's." N Y Times

"Professor Clarence Gohdes' American Literature in Nineteenth-Century England is a tantalizing book. It gives a great deal but withholds much. . . Yet, within the framework chosen, the author has done careful work, except perhaps in dealing with that pitfall of all authors, the 'influence' theme, where one's imagination can easily be misled by similarity in the ideas of men working upon an interest common to all humanity. The discussion of influences, however, occupies very little space." E. L. Bradsher
+ — Library Q 15:86 Ja '45 1150w

GOHDES, C. L. F.—Continued
"In his preface Dr. Gohdes modestly says that his book is intended 'primarily for specialists in American literary history, for students of the Victorian age, and for political historians who are particularly interested in Anglo-American relations,' but anyone who cares at all about the development of American literature will find it fascinating." P. V. Stern
+ N Y Times p16 Je 11 '44 400w

"Mr Gohdes's thesis is an interesting one. His book is not of the sort generally thought of as 'readable.' It bristles with facts, figures, footnotes and appendices. Yet it is agreeably written withal, and it will repay the serious student of letters who wishes to know how Brother Jonathan came marching home to John Bull." Alexander Cowie
+ — Springf'd Republican p8 Je 2 '44 650w

GOING, CLAYTON G. Dogs at war; with an introd. by Lowell Thomas. 179p il $2.50 Macmillan

355.424 Dogs, War use of 44-9216

Account of the use of dogs in the various branches of service in the World war. Describes the founding of Dogs for defense, the K-9 corps, and the selection, training, and uses made of the dogs. Contains stories about some outstanding dogs.

Reviewed by Peter Quinn
Book Week p7 D 31 '44 280w

Booklist 41:85 N 15 '44

"Sure appeal in subject matter, but rather flatly handled in a record of canine courage in the present war. . . Plain prose lapsing into sentimentality less individualized, humanized approach than Dempewolff's Annual Reveille. Plus market for junior consumption."
Kirkus 12:418 S 15 '44 120w

"Recommended." M. E. Clark
+ Library J 69:812 O 1 '44 40w

Weekly Book Review p18 D 3 '44 120w

GOLDBERG, REUBEN LUCIUS. Plan for the post-war world. 41p il $1 Watts, F.

741.5 Caricatures and cartoons. Humor, Pictorial 44-9510

About thirty cartoons showing the famous perpetrator of weird invention at the business of planning a "brave new world" in which he eliminates divorce, dishwashing, hat-check girls, etc.

"Comic interlude to relieve the tensions of overstrained planners of postwar betterment."
Christian Century 61:1355 N 22 '44 60w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p5 D 3 '44 50w

GOLDSTONE, LAWRENCE ARTHUR (LAWRENCE TREAT, pseud). Leather man. 247p $2.50 Duell

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p6 D 31 '44 230w

"Best of the week."
+ Boston Globe p15 D 13 '44 50w

"Even distribution of suspicion and suspense for a closely interlocked situation, well styled."
+ Kirkus 12:488 N 1 '44 90w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p28 N 12 '44 100w

"A story which doesn't do justice to the local legend on which it is based."
— New Yorker 20:96 N 18 '44 90w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p29 N 19 '44 80w

GOLLOMB, JOSEPH, and TAYLOR, ALICE. Young heroes of the war; il. by Nedda Walker. 239p $2.50 Vanguard

940.53161 World war, 1939—Children 43-18196

Stories of young patriots from many lands, all of whom have done their part in thwarting the axis powers. The children range in age from six to seventeen, in lands from Yugoslavia and Norway to China. Grades five-to-eight.

"This is one of the best true-account collections for young people that has so far come out of the war. Here, presented with Joseph Gollomb's knack for story-telling, are true tales of boys and girls of many countries who have proved themselves valiant in the face of disaster." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p11 Ap 30 '44 180w

Booklist 40:256 Mr 15 '44

"These inspiring records are given in a way that will interest old and young alike." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 20:104 Mr '44 80w

"This would be a sound selection among war books for the children's room of a library that must choose books to last. Intensely timely, it will be after the war a stimulus for youth and a heartener to older people who distrust the resources of the human race." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ap 2 '44 300w

GONELLA, GUIDO. World to reconstruct; Pius XII on peace and reconstruction; tr. by T. Lincoln Bouscaren. 335p $3.50 Bruce pub.

341 Pius XII (Eugene Pacelli) pope. Reconstruction (1939-). Peace 44-34486

Commentary and interpretation by an international lawyer of Pius XII's pronouncements on plans and fundamentals of world peace. Originally published in the official organ of the Vatican, L'Osservatore romano.

"This is not a book to be read hurriedly or finished in a few hours. It is a deep study of world conditions as seen by His Holiness, and of solutions to world problems. It should be invaluable to those who will sit at the peace table after the war, and to all those public officials who are really seeking to better the condition of their people." Eddie Doherty
+ Book Week p4 Jl 9 '44 270w

Commonweal 41:22 O 20 '44 30w

School & Society 60:48 Jl 15 '44 70w

Reviewed by Cyril Clemens
Springf'd Republican p10 S 21 '44 170w

"This is both a timely and a timeless publication. . . Signor Gonella, the author, is the editor of the Osservatore Romano, and the book appeared first as a series of articles in that paper, between January and May, 1942. Each article was personally approved, and many were actually annotated before they appeared, by the Pope himself; and their courage, indeed their audacity, is the more remarkable when it is remembered that they were published first under the Fascist regime, with the Germans in possession of the Eternal City."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p506 O 21 '44 600w

GONZALEZ PENA, CARLOS. History of Mexican literature; tr. by Gusta Barfield Nance and Florence Johnson Dunstan; with an introd. by Angel Flores. rev ed 398p $4 Univ. press in Dallas

860.9 Mexican literature 44-938

"This is a useful and all-inclusive reference book on Mexican literature by a novelist, scholar, philologist, fellow of the Mexican Academy, a former member of the faculty of the National University and at present the editor of one of the most important newspapers in Mexico City. Dr. Peña divides the literary history of his country into several periods and devotes chapters to the historians, the poets, the novelists and the playwrights of each particular epoch, giving a well-balanced account of their achievements and the influences, both foreign and domestic, that molded their thought and style. In addition he weaves into the text concise bibliographical sketches with lists of the important works of the authors mentioned." N Y Times

Booklist 40:248 Mr 15 '44

"It is a valuable reference book, a handy outline, but it does not pretend to give us a feeling for or an appreciation of the different literary movements or the spirit and style of the authors. It is a useful collection of cold facts, but it is not, as its subtitle would have us believe, 'an interpretation of men and ideas.' " Louisa Byles

+ — Cath World 160:87 O '44 370w

Reviewed by E. L. Tinker
+ N Y Times p18 Mr 26 '44 600w

"The translation of this important source book is skilful and the University Press in Dallas merits praise for producing a work of first importance for students of Latin American culture and for librarians everywhere." Betty Kirk

+ Sat R of Lit 27:41 Je 17 '44 600w

"Useful, well-made book. . . There is crowded into this one volume a great deal of useful information, often placed against a program of social progress."

+ Theatre Arts 28:255 Ap '44 430w

GOODHUE, CORNELIA. Journey into the fog; the story of Vitus Bering and the Bering sea. 179p $2.50 Doubleday

B or 92 Bering, Vitus Jonassen 44-494

In the second quarter of the eighteenth century Peter the Great ordered Vitus Bering, a Danish sea captain, to cross Siberia, follow the coast by boat, and after finding a known settlement, to return to St Petersburg and make a chart of his course. This is an account of the hazardous expeditions which followed on that order, of the terrible struggles of Bering and the men who accompanied him, against cold, storms, starvation, and scurvy. Altho ending in death and disaster for many of these men, the expedition also opened the way for the Russian fur traders.

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p4 Ja 9 '44 350w

Booklist 40:234 Mr 1 '44

"Sailing 'through fog to fog, by luck and log,' charting the last of the unsailed seas, the simple Danish captain assumes heroic proportions. Obviously, this account of his great ordeal has added interest in a time when the Aleutians that he visited have come into the news." W. K. R.

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 14 '44 550w

"Of that voyage into ghostly and gale-ridden seas, perhaps only a Coleridge or a Melville could do justice. Miss Goodhue's account is written in a plain, schoolbook style that does not at any point match the drama of its theme. But the drama cannot be quenched. The book is valuable—if only for the reason that it might drive abler imaginative minds to the same sources that she used—particularly F. A. Golder's authoritative 'Bering's Voyages.' Meanwhile she has given the reading public an interim account of an extraordinary episode in heroism." Theodore Strauss

+ N Y Times p6 Ja 16 '44 1050w

"This amazing journey, the dramatic results of it and the significant voyages of Bering in the next five years furnish as fine a theme for a popular historical work as could be imagined. But it will have to be treated by another hand and in another fashion; the reader does not want his history so highly fictionalized as to obscure most of the facts. A book like this is only an aggravation." Lincoln Colcord

Weekly Book Review p8 F 6 '44 750w

Wis Lib Bul 40:37 Mr '44

GOODRICH, LLOYD. Winslow Homer; pub. for the Whitney museum of American art. 241p 63pl $7.50 Macmillan

B or 92 Homer, Winslow 44-7780

"Mr. Goodrich's book consists of a biography which carries a running comment on the painter's achievement, 20 pages of reminiscences by John W. Beatty, never before published, a chronology, an excellent bibliography, an index and 63 pages of reproductions, all in black and white." Commonweal

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p2 O 1 '44 600w

"Mr. Goodrich's scholarship is of a higher level than that which generally characterizes American writing on American art. His style is readable and easy, and no better book could be imagined for a person who would like to know something about art but who is repelled by esthetic cant and who knows nothing of the technical aspects of the subject."

+ Commonweal 40:592 O 6 '44 1550w

"This is necessarily an artistic, rather than a personal, biography, because of Homer's retiring, inarticulate character, and as such does justice to the dominant themes in his progress, the qualities of his work, the fundamental changes in his styles."

+ Kirkus 12:333 Ag 1 '44 170w

"If a library does not own William H. Downes' Life of Winslow Homer (1911) or Kenyon Cox's Winslow Homer (1914), it will want to purchase Lloyd Goodrich's biography of this superlative American painter. It is a human, friendly study of a delightful American, New Englander to the core, as well as an analysis of the work of the distinguished artist." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 69:760 S 15 '44 110w

Reviewed by F. O. Matthiessen
New Repub 111:530 O 23 '44 550w

"Lloyd Goodrich's book on Winslow Homer is finely perceptive throughout. His consideration of the artist's career is critical, not just factual; and the biographical side is treated with sympathetic understanding. Homer lives in these pages as a person, never as a mere name. . . The reproductions, covering all important aspects of Homer's work from beginning to end, are excellent." E. A. Jewell

+ N Y Times p3 O 1 '44 850w

"Homer, one of the great men in nineteenth-century American painting and one of its more complex personalities, treated with really distinguished insight and understanding."

+ New Yorker 20:87 O 14 '44 90w

"The study has almost the quality of a friend writing about a friend, so deeply is the author steeped in all that Homer did and aspired to do. . . A chapter titled 'Recollections of an Intimate Friendship,' by John W. Beatty, follows Mr. Goodrich's text. Perhaps it was impractical to do so, but the present reviewer could not but feel that had these recollections been quoted if, and as, apropos, in the main body of the book, a more useful purpose would have been served. . . In any event, Mr. Goodrich's own text gives as complete and sympathetic a study of Winslow Homer as anyone could ask for." H. H. F. Jayne

+ Sat R of Lit 27:52 O 14 '44 1050w

"For many years Lloyd Goodrich has been at work on a critical biography of Winslow Homer, and now the finished product is before us. Mr. Goodrich deserves, in addition to such material rewards as may be his, a distinguished service medal of some sort not only because he has rendered full justice to a great artist but also because he has succeeded in writing an interesting book about a most difficult subject." Thomas Craven

+ Weekly Book Review p3 D 17 '44 1200w

GOODWYN, FRANK. Magic of Limping John; a story of the Mexican border country; with il. by Grace Greenwood. 275p $2.50 Farrar 44-5717

Story of Mexicans in Texas at about the turn of the century. Limping John, gambler, horseman, and fiddler, gains the reputation of being the Devil, and his fame spreads. Finally he becomes convinced of his own wizardry, and the results are both comic and tragic.

"Goodwyn has found in our own Spanish Southwest the same spell which W. H. Hudson and R. B. Cunninghame Graham discovered among the Spanish of South America. Although perhaps not the stylistic equal of Hudson or Cunninghame Graham, Goodwyn is as much the artist as they. He knows how to mix the ingredients of humor and tragedy in the proportions that man lives them and he knows how to serve them so that the proportions constantly whet the appetite." J. A. Brandt

+ Book Week p3 Jl 30 '44 500w

GOODWYN, FRANK—Continued

Booklist 41:22 S '44

"Episodic tale that has the naive qualities of the narrative it presents—that embodies the Mexican characteristics and the prose poetry of their legends. There's a touch of the humor of Steinbeck—additional material on the paisanos."

+ Kirkus 12:21 My 15 '44 170w

"Told with the crudeness, wit, realism and beauty of simple people. Too slow-moving to attract a wide public, this has an old-world charm and a fundamental appeal." E. L. Lewis

+ Library J 69:603 Jl '44 60w

"Mr. Goodwyn has devoted his considerable literary skill to his background, painting it in with such sure strokes that we can see and smell the forlorn little village of Los Puentes and feel the shimmering heat." N. B. Baker

+ N Y Times p6 Jl 30 '44 320w

"Around this odd, entirely convincing and circumstantial story of a man who found himself a reluctant god, Frank Goodwyn has built up a charmingly atmospheric little novel of a strange pocket of our big Southwest." F. H. Bullock

+ Weekly Book Review p3 Jl 30 '44 750w

GORDON, CAROLINE (MRS ALLEN TATE). Women on the porch. 316p $2.50 Scribner

44-4503

Psychological novel. Catherine Chapman, on discovering her husband's infidelity, leaves him in New York and returns for a time to her ancestral home in Tennessee. Here for a few weeks she lives a half-hearted life, falling in love with a cousin, and becoming involved with the strange existence of her other relatives. Her husband's arrival brings some semblance of normal life, and husband and wife return to New York together.

"It is not that the style is difficult—any sensitive reader would be refreshed by its intricacies—that will prevent 'The Women on the Porch' from having a wide appeal, but that the characters, despite their differences in age and gender, are all neurotics. The only one in the lot who has enough heart to win a race is Red. He's a horse." Marion Strobel

Book Week p3 My 21 '44 550w

Booklist 40:355 Je 15 '44

"It seems to matter very little what happens to any of the characters, since they seem to have been hopelessly damned in their several ways from infancy. Jim Chapman does on occasion come through, have perceptions we can share and by his own thoughts sometimes illuminate our common experiences. Miss Gordon's most sensitive writing occurs in the passages devoted to Chapman. . . 'The Women on the Porch' is an interesting, sometimes baffling and provocatively philosophical book, but not quite as heroic as it might have been in its picture of man's fate." Lorine Pruette

+ — N Y Times p6 My 21 '44 500w

"It is in her talent for creating by suggestion that Miss Gordon's distinction lies. Catherine lives, the three old women of the plantation live, even the glum Negro cook lives, not because the author tells much about them but because she makes you feel more than she tells. It's hard to say why, with her admirably direct style and an understanding of her characters that is reminiscent of Katherine Anne Porter, Miss Gordon has not turned out a wholly satisfactory novel. Perhaps it is because, although a sense of tragedy pervades the book, she seems in the end afraid of tragedy."

+ — New Yorker 20:81 Je 3 '44 400w

"For those who love fine and evocative writing, the kind of writing that reaches surely to the springs of individuality at the same time that it ranges far out to the periphery of experience, this novel of Caroline Gordon's will prove a rare treat. For the sake of the things they will find in it, they will forgive its limitations, the fact, for example, that the story it tells is very slight and that even this slight tale is told neither consecutively nor thoroughly." N. L. Rothman

+ — Sat R of Lit 27:24 My 27 '44 500w

Springf'd Republican p4d Je 4 '44 270w

Time 43:99 My 22 '44 470w

"There is a sharp sense of the land, as of the people who inhabit it, in 'The Women on the Porch,' and a nice touch in the handling of animals. . . The cottonwoods and the sycamores, the dew-wet brambles and the dust-deep country road, the kitchen garden with its snap-beans tangled and choked by the crowding morning glory vines, the white fog from the branch at night, and a thousand and one other touches of observed and loved reality contribute to Miss Gordon's novel a beauty and a naturalness that give excellent antidote to the strangeness of some of its events." F. H. Bullock

+ Weekly Book Review p3 My 7 '44 550w

GORDON, DONALD ALEXANDER. Statement; poems. 95p $2 Humphries

811 44-156

"Don Gordon's poems speak in the tone of political and economic urgency. His is a world of 'children in gas masks,' 'gauze and iodine,' 'the speckled corpse,' and 'faces blank as cartridges'. . . His volume, presuming to trace an entire era in our historical experience, begins with a few poems on the sea, wind, time, and the atom. . . The next section portrays a world gathering itself for crisis—poems on the unemployed, a hunger strike, underground and martial movements. . . The third section is a group of 'death masks'—portraits of Marx, Mussolini, Hirohito, etc.; this is the time when the poet's house turns from 'ivory to stone.' " Poetry

"Mr. Gordon is trying hard to make feeling and meaning out of his subject, to keep the imagination from being clipped short by the topical; but Statement is too accurate a description of its own contents. To make this statement an experience, the writer relies too heavily on the descriptive adjective. . . Much more than that must be done with statement; it must not be decorated with imagery, it must arise out of it." Mona Van Duyn

Poetry 64:171 Je '44 420w

"He has a few passages of magnificent language, as language: 'Underground 1935.'. . But in general he is a little pretentious, even bombastic, and not lucid." L. T. Nicholl

— + Sat R of Lit 27:24 N 25 '44 140w

GORDON, GEORGE STUART. Letters, 1902-1942 [comp. by Mary C. Gordon]. 247p il $3.50 (10s 6d) Oxford

B or 92 A44-290

A volume of intimate personal letters written by an English scholar who was president of Magdalen and Vice-chancellor of Oxford. The letters, covering the years from undergraduate days to the year of his death, include many addressed to M.C.B., his fiancée and later his wife, who has edited this collection.

"The letters are mostly brief, but they are the letters of a master of style, and while they deal largely with literature they also contain comments—generally shrewd and sometimes profound—on life as well as literature. Whatever he writes—even the most fugitive note—shows the craftmanship and finish of his writings; indeed his passion for craftmanship and finish partly explains his reluctance to print." Ernest Barker

+ Manchester Guardian p3 S 15 '43 300w

"Mrs. Gordon tells us in her Preface to these letters that her husband warned her with humorous sagacity against attempting a biography. Whether others will neglect his warning remains to be seen. But here at least we have a portrait, drawn quite unconsciously by himself, in which the quality of the man as well as the course of his career from undergraduate days to his death, when President of Magdalen, are zestfully revealed."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p397 Ag 21 '43 1100w

"Letters like these could do away with autobiography and largely take biography's place—but there are few such letters as these."

+ Weekly Book Review p15 Ag 6 '44 250w

GORDON, GEORGE STUART. Shakespearian comedy, and other studies [ed. by E. K. Chambers]. 158p $2.50 (7s 6d) Oxford

822.33 Shakespeare, William A45-661

Posthumous volume consisting of twelve essays from the works of an English scholar and professor. Contents: What is comedy?; Shakespeare's answer; The dislike of comedy; Shakespeare the Englishman; Shakespeare's periods; The world of the comedies; Shakespeare's women; Shakespeare's clowns; The Tempest; Othello, or the Tragedy of the handkerchief; A note on the world of King Lear; Shakespeare's English. Index.

"The eponymous eight mainly remind us sorrowfully of what Gordon might have done. As an achievement they are disappointing. The best is the first, an exposition of the virtues and the shortcomings of Meredith and Bergson as expositors of the comic idea. Here is Gordon the man who was at home both with men and books, the scholar who was on familiar terms with the world, the academic who insisted on remaining human, the realist who refused to let the neatness of abstract thought blind him to plain experience. But none of the other papers on comedy really develop this promising ground plan." H. B. Charlton

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 Je 21 '44 400w

Reviewed by J. W. Krutch
Nation 160:50 Ja 13 '45 360w

"Shakespearian Comedy is a posthumous volume made up of a series of papers which [the author] himself had not thought ripe for publication as a philosophic statement of the essence of Shakespeare's comedies. He was right. The papers which deal with Shakespearian comedy are adumbrations of what would have been an aesthetic of comedy if time and the affairs of the world had given Gordon the opportunity to formulate it. The design of the book he was not spared to write is clear in his first chapter, which is an examination of the essays by Meredith and Bergson." H. B. Charlton

New Statesman & Nation 28:60 Jl 22 '44 240w

Times [London] Lit Sup p308 Je 24 '44 800w

Reviewed by S. C. Chew
Weekly Book Review p16 Ja 21 '45 600w

GORDON, MANYA (MRS SIMEON STRUNSKY). How to tell progress from reaction; roads to industrial democracy. 320p $3 Dutton

331 Government ownership. Labor and laboring classes. Socialism 44-8049

"The author of Workers Before and After Lenin searches out the direct roads to industrial democracy. Reviews briefly the schemes of the earlier utopians and discards them. Examines the progress made in the twentieth century in United States, Great Britain, Sweden and Russia. Concludes that Britain will lead the way in the postwar years, followed by United States and Sweden. Decides against government ownership of utilities and industry but favors public ownership of utilities, a healthy labor movement and a modified free enterprise system in industry. Recommends an increased use of co-operatives." (Library J) Index.

"The book is well planned, excellently written, and full of vital information for the student of social problems. But the title is misleading. It suggests a methodological analysis which will clearly indicate future direction. In this it is disappointing." Paul Pigors

+ — Ann Am Acad 237:237 Ja '45 550w

Booklist 41:101 D 1 '44

Commonweal 40:616 O 13 '44 350w

"Generally recommended for its bearing on problems still to be faced." J. H. Berthel

+ Library J 69:882 O 15 '44 110w

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr
Nation 159:480 O 21 '44 150w

New Repub 111:637 N 13 '44 210w

"In her argument, which is always cogent and often compelling, Miss Gordon slants away from certain crucial questions. . . But Miss Gordon is not downcast by her thorough investigation of what has been happening to the workers of the world in the twentieth century. Her hopes are high and her faith is strong, as she looks ahead. . . Some who read this volume will dissent from its implicit definitions of progress and reaction, but they will be constantly enlightened, often at points where they least expected, to discover that little fact which makes the difference." J. A. Krout

+ — N Y Times p5 O 8 '44 1100w

"While the reviewer finds much in this book with which he does not agree, he recognizes it as an honest statement of the views of a disillusioned radical who has preserved her ideals. That there are many who will agree with her is certain, and among them quite a number of the intellectual leaders of the country. As an antidote for the false notions that the United States has made less progress than Russia and that the thirties were for this country a period of retrogression, this book has great values indeed." E. E. Witte

+ Pol Sci Q 59:619 D '44 1550w

Reviewed by H. D. Gideonse
Sat R of Lit 27:10 O 21 '44 800w

Reviewed by L. M. Hacker
Weekly Book Review p14 O 15 '44 1000w

Wis Lib Bul 40:157 D '44

GORDON, RUTH. Over twenty-one; a comedy. 149p $2 Random house

812 44-5839

The scene of this modern comedy is the living room of a bungalow in Palmetto Court, in Miami, Florida. The chief character, Paula Wharton, is the wife of an ex-newspaper editor, now in training at Tetley Field for the Army air force.

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p2 Jl 30 '44 600w

Booklist 41:13 S '44

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Je '44

Kirkus 12:227 My 15 '44 20w

"The actress has written a fat part for herself—and why not?—and good parts for other players, held together by a rather contrived plot, the purpose being to get all the fun possible out of the predicaments wives find themselves in when they try to live in bungalows at the gates of officers' training camps. Miss Gordon gets a lot of fun out of them and deserves her success, but she leans pretty heavily on ice-cube trays that stick and similar devices."

Weekly Book Review p12 Ag 20 '44 100w

GORDON, VIRGINIA. A man should rejoice. 360p $2.75 Presbyterian bd.

44-21226

"This story of the Mississippi valley in the days of Black Hawk is a tribute to the spirit of the restless men and resolute women who carved homes out of the wilderness. Despite blizzard and drought, hostile tribes and blighted crops, they raised new harvests and new babies. The essence of the narrative is the companionship of a man and a woman who reap the rewards of shared hardships and sustaining faith." Weekly Book Review

"Blood and thunder are in this novel in plausible quantity, but for the most part it is a homely every-day record for which the reader weary of super-thrills will be grateful." Edith Roberts

+ Book Week p4 Ap 23 '44 360w

Kirkus 12:103 Mr 1 '44 170w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p13 My 7 '44 70w

Wis Lib Bul 40:110 Jl '44

GOREN, CHARLES HENRY. Standard book of bidding; introd. by W. Somerset Maugham. 299p $2.50 Doubleday

795.41 Contract bridge 44-9061

"First complete book dealing with all systems of bidding in contract bridge. By a winner of 19 national championships." (Boston Globe) Quiz at end of each chapter.

Booklist 41:86 N 15 '44
Boston Globe p31 N 29 '44 20w

"Now that the conflict between systems has subsided, this should prove a good basic book on the subject of bidding in contract bridge."
+ Kirkus 12:359 Ag 15 '44 90w

GORIS, JOHANNES ALBERTUS. Belgium in bondage; introd. by James Hilton. 259p $2.75 Fischer, L.B.

940.53493 Belgium—History—German occupation, 1940-. World war, 1939—Belgium 44-40008

Description of the conquest of Belgium by the German army, and the struggle for existence which has been going on ever since. Partial contents: Belgium's position in the allied world; Farming under the Nazis; How to plunder and how to punish; The common people in the fight; Muzzling Belgian spiritual life; Belgian Congo's fight; The government-in-exile and the allies; Feeding or starving the occupied countries; Nazis or Germans; American primers for Europe; The refugee looks at the United States.

"A fascinating book, abounding in wit, humor and knowledge, and written with the sincerity of a true world-citizen." H. L. Reich
+ Book Week p4 F 6 '44 230w
Booklist 40:194 F 1 '44
Commonweal 39:428 F 11 '44 50w
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:663 Jl '44 30w
Kirkus 12:42 Ja 15 '44 250w
Reviewed by H. H. F. Eulau
New Repub 110:387 Mr 20 '44 160w

"Although M. Goris operates under the same handicap as the author of 'The White Brigade'—understandable caution in disclosing many specific details of Belgian patriotic activity—and although his book is a collection of essays rather than a series of news reports, he does disclose some startling bits of information not widely circulated before." Catherine Maher
N Y Times p8 Ja 16 '44 400w

"'Belgium in Bondage' has a double interest: not only can the American reader find out what he wants to know about Belgium but he will also find interesting opinions and reactions of a European refugee on America." Robert Goffin
+ Sat R of Lit 27:24 F 12 '44 500w

"To this grim subject Mr Goris brings some of the wit and humor with which Belgians try to make their lot lighter, and also to prepare for the day of liberation." Jacques Ducharme
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 23 '44 650w

"For those readers—though perhaps they are mostly talkers—who fear that European civilization is over and done with, this book is a perfect antidote." Ernestine Evans
+ Weekly Book Review p3 F 6 '44 650w

GOSHAL, KUMAR. People of India. 375p il $3 Sheridan

954 India—History. World war, 1939—India. India—Politics and government 44-40147

"[The book] is divided into four parts, the first two of which are devoted to the history of India. In some 123 pages, the author strives to recapture India's past, from 5,000 B.C. to 1857 A.D., from the Indus civilization recently uncovered at Mohenjo-Daro near Karachi to the so-called Sepoy Mutiny. The effort is necessarily sketchy, but none the less praiseworthy, since it provides the reader with a much-needed background and prepares him for the pages directly dealing with the present controversy between the Nationalists and the British bureaucrats." (Sat R of Lit) Bibliography. Index.

"The book is richly informative and carefully documented. As a fresh and intelligent interpretation of India, it will rank high." Sudhindra Bose
+ Am Pol Sci R 38:1028 O '44 340w
Reviewed by Mason Olcott
Am Soc R 9:710 D '44 380w
Reviewed by Sudhindra Bose
Book Week p2 My 21 '44 310w
Booklist 40:374 Jl 1 '44
Bookmark 5:12 My '44
Current Hist 7:53 Jl '44 80w
Foreign Affairs 23:15 O '44 20w
Kirkus 12:128 Mr 15 '44 130w
Reviewed by T. A. Bisson
Nation 159:159 Ag 5 '44 750w

"A healthy-minded and well-written case."
+ New Repub 110:857 Je 26 '44 180w

"There is much complaint of Government 'repression,' but nothing whatever is said about the disorders, incitements and assassinations provoking it. And there is a painful lack of frankness about the equivocal attitude to the war effort shown by Gandhi and his followers. The outstanding weakness of the book, however, is its ambiguity and reticence on fundamental issues. For all his animosity toward Britain and the policy of pragmatic constitutionality, the author gives us no hint as to what juridical entity, what 'competent receiver' should take over from Britain." C. H. Driver
— + N Y Times p18 Je 4 '44 900w
Reviewed by Malcolm Pitt
Pacific Affairs 17:499 D '44 210w

"The admirable chapters on India's industrialization and the consequent trade union movement in that country can also be attributed to Mr. Goshal's preoccupation with economic determinism. But the Marxian angle is also a weak point of the book. It imposes too rigid a frame of reference on the author to interpret fairly and squarely the uncommon Indian movement led, for a long time, by the unique personality of Mahatma Gandhi. Some of the explanations of recent events, therefore, sound farfetched to a student of India." Krishnalal Shridharani
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:16 Je 10 '44 600w
Reviewed by Cyril Clemens
Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 5 '44 410w

"The title of Mr. Goshal's book is misleading. It has the propaganda value of playing down the much emphasized diversities in Indian society, but actually the book is a history of Britain in India told from the Congress viewpoint. The book is open to criticism in giving undue weight to the present significance of the trade union movement and the Kisan Sabha, but as these seem to be the brightest spots on the horizon it is only natural that Mr. Goshal should underscore them. The book's value for American readers lies in the author's ability to translate Indian custom into local terms." Virginia Thompson
+ — Weekly Book Review p5 Je 11 '44 1550w

GOSSETT, MARGARET. Children's picture cookbook; designed by Elizabeth Dauber. 47p $1.50 Scott, W.R.

641.5 Cookery—Juvenile literature 44-8289

Simple pictorial cook book for beginners. Each step is illustrated in the making of lemonade, various kinds of candy, cocoa, French toast, date sticks, apple sauce, ginger snaps, bacon and eggs, sandwiches, fruit pie, cookies, icing, etc. Includes some facts on substitutes, how to measure, and first aid.

"Here is a book to rid mothers of the headache of teaching daughters to cook. After a few sessions alone with the 'Picture Cook Book' the young lady will be ready to take on a Sunday night supper for herself." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p10 N 12 '44 180w

"Calculated to turn the most un-domestic child into a zestful and successful cook."
+ Cath World 160:280 D '44 40w

"A good beginner." H. L. Binsse
+ Commonweal 41:129 N 17 '44 10w
Commonweal 41:256 D 22 '44 50w

"I think this is an achievement. If anyone had told me that a cookbook for very small children could be made almost self-explanatory, I'd not have believed it. But here it is."
+ Kirkus 12:401 S 1 '44 190w

"This is a real achievement." V. W. Schott
+ Library J 69:886 O 15 '44 70w

GOUDGE, ELIZABETH. Green Dolphin street. 502p $3 Coward-McCann
44-40169

Long romantic novel scened in the Channel Islands and New Zealand. Two beautiful, but wholly unlike sisters, daughters of an Island aristocrat, fell in love with the same man. After he joined the navy the sisters waited ten years before William made his decision, and then thru a slip of the pen, he sent for the wrong sister to join him in New Zealand. Nearly forty years later, when William and his wife returned to the island, the truth came out, and the three were reconciled.

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p2 S 3 '44 450w
Booklist 41:22 S '44

Reviewed by Dorothy Hillyer
Boston Globe p15 S 20 '44 380w

"From any angle 'Green Dolphin Street' is a thoroughly absorbing story."
+ Commonweal 41:279 D 29 '44 420w
Kirkus 12:260 Je 15 '44 250w

Reviewed by Charles Marriott
Manchester Guardian p3 N 10 '44 100w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 159:444 O 14 '44 30w

"Most of the punches are telegraphed; like the author's view of life, they seem to come right out of the Victorian hope chest. But the few chapters dealing directly with St. Pierre are alive with beauty and a sense of the pictorial line and poetry of background. Miss Goudge writes from her heart when she describes these islands, as we can see from her fresh-tinted picture of Militia Day and the choosing of a village Flower Queen, or of the picnic that ends with Marguerite's climb to the convent." William Du Bois
+ — N Y Times p5 S 3 '44 440w

"A soundly conceived, well-constructed historical tale, diligently supplemented by poetic observations that hit the reader with all the force of a wet sponge. The book, which skillfully sets forth some absorbing adventures in the Channel Islands and New Zealand of the nineteenth century, would have been more effective, and certainly more readable, had the author been more willing to let the moral implications of her story speak for themselves."
+ — New Yorker 20:66 S 2 '44 140w

"A judicious pruning of her most exuberant passages would have aided the book, but, nevertheless, the reader can only view this newest contender for best-selling honors with awe and respect, and wish it as many scores of thousands of readers as it can find, and finally as many breathless and emotionally damp audiences as the producer can draw into the movie theaters. Another whirlwind has struck the literary world. We can only hope that the enormous prize it has won will not induce its promoters to call it the greatest novel of the day." Harrison Smith
Sat R of Lit 27:7 Ag 26 '44 1750w

Reviewed by V. Sackville-West
Spec 173:440 N 10 '44 600w

Reviewed by E. P. Werby
Springf'd Republican p4d O 8 '44 390w

"The prize-winning novel lacks the sterner virtues of good literature, but it is tasty as a marshmallow, and practically written in Technicolor."
Time 44:95 S 4 '44 1050w

"It is the New Zealand scenes, in the early years of British colonization of that country, which are the making of the novel. They are well imagined, though the descriptions themselves are rather pedestrian. The rest is an undistinguished mixture of conventional romantic incident and a conventional moral piety. Still, one is filled all through with admiration for the author's steady perseverance, which will reward the indefatigably non-skipping with a nice long read."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p563 N 18 '44 360w

"A right romantic tale, set in strange places, not without violence, crowded with real people, it moves from scene to scene through evocations of loveliness explicit as stage directions. To touch but one of them, Midsummer Day on the island provides not only an episode of vivid beauty, but a moment such as a star might covet and every young woman in the audience desire." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ag 27 '44 900w
Wis Lib Bul 40:147 N '44

GRAF, DONALD THORNTON. Data sheets. 779,17p il $5 Reinhold
690 Building—Handbooks, manuals, etc.
44-3770

"Data sheets formerly in Pencil Points 1932-1942 plus several hundred others on manufactured products and index make this a valuable reference book. Among 8 classifications are: Structural Design, Planning Data, Construction Details and Furniture and Furnishings covering such divers subjects as Venetian blinds, boilers, water lily garden pool and pipe rail fittings." Library J

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:606 Jl '44 60w
N Y New Tech Bks 29:21 Ap '44

GRAFTON, CORNELIUS WARREN. Rope began to hang the butcher. 309p $2 Farrar 44-2809

Detective story.

"Grafton has smoothed off several uneven corners that were apparent in 'The Rat Began to Gnaw the Rope,' and has raised his standard of excellence a notch or two. The result is a book that shows him to be an up-and-coming author who can write well, fast and evenly." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p10 Mr 19 '44 180w
Booklist 40:342 Je 1 '44
Kirkus 12:30 Ja 15 '44 50w
New Repub 110:478 Ap 3 '44 60w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 Mr 19 '44 120w

"Fast and at times quite funny."
+ New Yorker 20:96 Mr 18 '44 70w

"Very good."
+ Sat R of Lit 27:24 Mr 25 '44 40w

"Mr. Grafton's works sort of fall into the Erle Stanley Gardner school. Your money's worth." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p15 Mr 19 '44 100w

GRAHAM, MRS ALBERTA POWELL. Thirty-one roads to the White House; il. by George Avison. 239p $2.75 Nelson
923.173 Presidents (United States)—Juvenile literature
44-5466

Brief, simply-worded accounts of the boyhoods of the thirty-one American presidents from Washington to Franklin Roosevelt.

Kirkus 12:278 Je 15 '44 90w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Burr
Library J 69:816 O 1 '44 70w

"A pleasant modern example of the 'boys that became famous' type, this series of sketches will be welcomed by libraries, especially in schools where children range from ten to fourteen." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Jl 23 '44 200w

GRAHAM, BENJAMIN. World commodities and world currency. 182p $2 McGraw

338 Commercial products. Money 44-8971

"The general subject of this study is world planning for raw materials. More particularly, it seeks to develop the possibilities of the reserve or stockpile technique for achieving the goals of expansion and reasonable stability in the postwar economy. The author's chief purpose will be to present and expound a concrete plan directed toward these ends. Thus the book is essentially the application to the international sphere of the proposals he developed in Storage and Stability, published in 1937." Pref.

Reviewed by R. M. Weidenhammer
Am Econ R 34:925 D '44 700w

Library J 69:1002 N 15 '44 40w

GRAHAM, EDWARD HARRISON. Natural principles of land use. 274p il $3.50 Oxford

333.7 Land utilization. Agriculture Agr44-202

Study of the value of applying biological principles to the management of farm lands, forests, and wild life. The author is chief of the biology division of the Soil conservation service. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p2 Jl 2 '44 90w

" 'Natural Principles of Land Use' is rather for rural or regional planners, for full-fledged farmers or for anyone interested in an intelligent, fully rounded approach to producing on the land. Yet the book is non-technical in presentation; it includes a handsome and inspiring series of before-and-after halftones, and certain bits of information that would be fascinating to anyone."
+ Commonweal 40:158 Je 2 '44 550w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 69:606 Jl '44 40w

Reviewed by A. C. Cline
New Eng Q 17:620 D '44 480w

"The material in the book is generally available, for it is written in plain language, with numerous excellent photographs, skilfully paired to convey their message almost without explanation. Yet there are few professionals who will not learn much that is new and freshly presented." P. B. Sears
+ Sat R of Lit 27:19 Je 17 '44 700w

School & Society 59:384 My 27 '44 20w

Scientific Bk Club R 15:2 Ag '44 360w

Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 29 '44 280w

"Students of wildlife management, ecology, conservation and managers of farms and estates will be grateful to Dr. Graham for having brought together with keen understanding so large a body of information to discover and illustrate 'Natural Principles in Land Use' as they contribute to human welfare." C. Lowdermilk
+ Weekly Book Review p10 S 24 '44 1050w

Reviewed by A. W. Griswold
Yale R n s 34:171 autumn '44 360w

GRAHAM, FRANK. McGraw of the Giants; an informal biography. 265p il $2.75 Putnam

B or 92 McGraw, John Joseph 44-3963

An informal biography of John J. McGraw, who for thirty years was manager of the New York Giants. Illustrated with photographs. No index.

Booklist 40:340 Je 1 '44

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '44

"This is not only grand biography of one of the most colorful figures in American sports, but also a running commentary on all the important baseball events of McGraw's career. . . This is more thrilling reading than Graham's Lou Gehrig—grand escape reading today."
+ Kirkus 12:130 Mr 15 '44 110w

"In 'McGraw of the Giants' one of the ablest of sports writers, Frank Graham, has set down the life and works of one of the greatest of baseball managers, and any discussion of it might as well begin with the flat statement that no fan—no Giant fan, particularly—can think of going without it." J. K. Hutchens
+ N Y Times p4 My 21 '44 850w

"Mr. Graham has done an excellent life of an American immortal, studded with amusing anecdotes, inside stuff and adding up to a realistic appraisal."
+ Weekly Book Review p10 My 7 '44 200w

GRAHAM, FRANK DUNCAN. Audels pumps, hydraulics, air compressors. [1672p] $4 Audel

621.2 Pumping machinery. Air compressors. Hydraulics 43-15395

"A practical guide covering theory, construction and operation of modern pumps, hydraulic machinery, air compressors and blowers; fully illustrated for engineers, mechanics and operators, with questions and answers" (Subtitle) "Detailed information is given in simple language and for the most part in question-and-answer form. The book contains numerous diagrams to explain basic principles and typical machines. Considerable space is given to installation, maintenance and repair." (N Y New Tech Bks)

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '44

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:1006 D 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:68 O '43

GRAHAM, GARRETT. Banzai Noel! 159p $2 Vanguard

940.5496 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 44-3734

A forty-five-year-old captain in the marines writes of his experiences on a ship headed for Guadalcanal, in the fighting there, and on later assignments. He is known as a "retread" because he was a flier in the first World war, but his activities and his sense of humor prove that there can be plenty of life in a retread.

"Usually when a man sits down to write a book about the war, three stars suddenly sprout upon his shoulders, and despite his hitherto good sense, he immediately becomes a military 'expert.' Men quite normal in every other way lose all sense of perspective and, what is more deplorable, all sense of humor. Capt. Garrett Graham is, praise be, one of the exceptions. He is neither pretentious, profound nor dull. If the fates had dropped Mark Twain on the dreary island of Guadalcanal, this is the kind of book he might have written. . . If you have a son in the Marines you'll get to know him a little better by reading 'Banzai Noel.' " Quentin Reynolds
+ Book Week p3 Ap 9 '44 700w

"Breezy, sometimes bawdy contribution to the miscellany of battlefront accounts."
Kirkus 12:56 F 1 '44 120w

" 'Banzai Noel' is a personal history that, for two reasons, differs from the familiar pattern. First, it is devoid of heroics and highly colored adjectives, and second, it is written by a marine. . . The story is fast-moving and humorous, it has a refreshing change of pace, and it is free of platitudes and hokum." F. J. Bell
+ N Y Times p5 Ap 9 '44 380w

"The pages are full of chuckles, occasionally a trifle on the rowdy side, but marines are said to be that way at times. But the humor is deep and genuine—the kind of humor which somehow enables American men to endure the incredible tensions of battle and keep on fighting without having to become fanatics." Marcus Duffield
+ Weekly Book Review p2 Ap 2 '44 330w

GRAHAM, GWETHALYN. Earth and high heaven. 288p $2.50 Lippincott

44-7997

"A tender, moving love story that sets out a challenge to prejudice. Its central drama concerns a young woman journalist and a soldier about to go overseas. They fall deeply in love but there is a serious obstacle to their marriage. Erica Drake lives with her parents, members of an established, conservative Canadian society: her father, who worships her, is a crotchety individualist. Marc Reiser is a young Jewish lawyer from a small town. . . The fact that the background of the story is the city of Montreal, uneasy battleground of conflict between French-Catholic and English Canadians, adds point and tension to the situation in which Erica and Marc are involved. . . It is Marc's brother, a doctor, sure of himself and of the value of his work, who appears belatedly on the scene to cut the knot." Weekly Book Review

---

"Occasionally the prose style of Earth and High Heaven falls far short of rhetorical excellence; at its worst it is repetitious and preachy. But the power of the story is in the thorough realism and maturity of probing into delicate human relationships which it achieves. The preaching is generally done in the natural course of action by a character involved in it. The repetitiousness creates such an effect of 'world-weariness' that it might be a deliberate and successful technique. And the uneven prose includes many passages of ripe human wisdom and singular beauty." Isabel Currier

+ — Atlantic 174:145 D '44 550w

Reviewed by Sterling North

Book Week p2 O 8 '44 450w

Booklist 41:77 N 1 '44

Boston Globe p30 N 29 '44 50w

"I found this absorbing reading, controversial in subject matter, but saying something that needs to be said, and saying it through a story that almost never descends to the level of a polemic."

+ Kirkus 12:346 Ag 15 '44 220w

"'Earth and High Heaven' is tasteful and sensible. I think it will be read widely, and that will be a very good thing." Diana Trilling

+ Nation 159:443 O 14 '44 90w

Reviewed by J. H. Preston

New Repub 111:573 O 30 '44 110w

"This is the age-old story of true love triumphant in adversity. If there is nothing original in Miss Graham's plot, she manages to hold one's interest consistently and to build a live feeling of sympathy. Of course, you know perfectly well that Erica and Mark will come together in the end, even before the end. But Miss Graham writes suavely, contrives her people vividly and immerses you in the social life of Montreal—which isn't very different, after all, from the society of any of the older cities of our eastern seaboard. The novel is adult and sophisticated without being glittery." A. D. H. Smith

+ N Y Times p6 O 15 '44 400w

New Yorker 20:81 O 7 '44 130w

"It is skilful, mature work. Miss Graham has a good ear for conversation, a true flair for dialogue, and a saving sense of humor even when she is serious. She can do a small social scene (as John Marquand can) so that it suddenly becomes pointed and unforgettable." R. C. Benét

+ Sat R of Lit 27:9 O 7 '44 950w

"Miss Graham gives us vivid glimpses of social and professional life in Montreal. Her characterisations are lively and convincing, the portrait of the sensitive hero being especially well done." John Hampson

+ Spec 173:464 N 17 '44 340w

"This is great writing, and it is well worth plowing through the boggier stretches to reach these heights." E. M. B.

+ — Springf'd Republican p4d O 8 '44 440w

"Whether one is absolutely convinced of the logic of the conclusion is perhaps not important. The tone of the book as a whole is so clear and so just, the characters are so human, the central theme is so admirably developed, that it calls for entire respect. Its message is not a comfortable one but serves, sharply, to remind us that it is hardly logical to be engaged in a great war against intolerance and oppression if we continue to endure and often practice those same evil principles at home." Iris Barry

+ Weekly Book Review p3 O 8 '44 850w

Reviewed by Orville Prescott

Yale R n s 34:382 winter '45 220w

GRAHAM, SHIRLEY, and LIPSCOMB, GEORGE DEWEY. Dr George Washington Carver; scientist; il. by Elton C. Fax. 248p $2.50 Messner

B or 92 Carver, George Washington—Juvenile literature 44-40095

Biography of the famous American Negro scientist, George Washington Carver. The book covers the whole of his life, from his difficult boyhood, to his years of great success, and that recent day when a Liberty ship was named for him. Book contains a chronology; recipes for miscellaneous dishes from peanuts, a bibliography; and index. For high school age.

"This biography of George Washington Carver, written for young people in their teens, should rank with Rackham Holt's biography of Carver. The material in great part is fresh, since much more of Carver's life [as] a boy is presented, and many of the incidents selected from his later life do not appear in the earlier book." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p11 My 7 '44 400w

Booklist 40:323 My 15 '44

"There is inspiration in the poignant picture the authors paint of Carver. . . Readers with an interest in scientific research will find the chapters dealing with Carver's experiments and discoveries of especial interest; but what remains with us when we close the book is not an impression of many services rendered mankind by his knowledge of science, but the spirit of the man, his quiet dignity, innate simplicity, and childlike faith in God." H. A. Masten

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 My 11 '44 340w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Je '44

Reviewed by H. L. Binsse

Commonweal 41:128 N 17 '44 10w

"The two authors have done well by young people in making the life of George Washington Carver available in this form." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 20:290 Jl '44 80w

"An excellent and essentially readable portrait of a man who might have become a great musician or painter, but who chose instead to give his life to 'making something where there had been nothing.'"

+ Kirkus 12:100 F 15 '44 170w

"The story of a man, a great American, simply, sincerely, sympathetically written." K. H. McAlarney

+ Library J 69:506 Je 1 '44 110w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

N Y Times p11 Jl 2 '44 160w

"Three talented Negroes have given us an outstanding biography of the great scientist, George Washington Carver. Their book has the simplicity and dignity that is necessary to interpret Dr. Carver accurately to the public. Because he was so shy, modest, and reticent, people have very often called him eccentric. The authors have dispelled this idea and they have given their readers a closer, more sympathetic picture of the tall, stoop-shouldered, shabby old gentleman who became the close friend of Henry Ford and Thomas Edison." Augusta Baker

+ Sat R of Lit 27:36 My 13 '44 320w

"In Dr. George Washington Carver, Scientist, Graham and Lipscomb accomplish the seemingly impossible. They present a book which is written in a popular, almost lyrical vein which is yet a searching character study." F. B. Washington

+ Social Forces 23:220 D '44 1650w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p5 Je 25 '44 300w

Wis Lib Bul 40:88 Je '44

GRAJDANZEV, ANDREW JONAH. Modern Korea [pub. for] Int. secretariat, Institute of Pacific relations. 330p maps $4 Day

915.19 Korea 44-47020

A survey of the history and the economic and social conditions of Korea since its annexation by Japan. The author's object is to set forth the facts upon which to base an answer to the questions: Has Japan really benefited Korea during the last thirty years? and What should be done with Korea by the peacemakers after Japan's defeat?

Booklist 41:138 Ja 1 '45

"This is an authoritative handbook of a country which is little known but which must be thoroughly understood by those who determine the postwar arrangements in eastern Asia."

+ Christian Century 61:1480 D 20 '44 90w

GRANNAN, MARY EVELYN. Just Mary stories; combining Just Mary and Just Mary again; il. by Georgette Berckmans. 152p $2 Putnam

Collection of stories about everyday affairs, for reading aloud to younger children. The stories were originally told by the author over the Canadian broadcasting corporation network.

"Children will enjoy the stories occasionally, but they are too fanciful for continuous or frequent reading." Olive Brain

Library J 70:70 Ja 15 '45 70w

Springf'd Republican p4d Ja 14 '45 80w

GRANT, MRS DOROTHY (FREMONT). Margaret Brent, adventurer. 293p $2.50 Longmans

Brent, Margaret—Fiction 44-8361

Historical novel of Maryland under Calvert rule, during the years 1638 to 1649. The heroine is Margaret Brent, a friend of the Calverts, and a staunch Catholic.

Cath World 160:283 D '44 180w

"As a scrupulous student of history, Mrs Grant has indicated the source material to which she has had fortunate access and has warned readers about the liberties which she has taken with chronology and with incomplete records. Her very carefulness can explain the handicap under which the first chapters move. . . Happily, Mrs. Grant triumphs fairly soon over the obviousness of her exposition and some self-conscious archaism; then the novel is swift-moving, confident narrative. She is particularly skillful in giving memorable, quick completeness to the dramatic incidents in the eleven tense years the Brents spent in Maryland; and she keeps her many characters distinct and individually interesting." O. B. White

+ — Commonweal 41:108 N 10 '44 350w

Kirkus 12:371 Ag 15 '44 110w

"Mrs. Grant has given a conscientious and detailed account of the life in the St. Maries settlement. She has been more successful with her historical data than with her romance. Margaret is the best-drawn character; the others never acquire a vital, full-bodied reality. Yet there is a readable story here for those interested in Maryland's early history and the little band who fought in a new country for religious freedom." Andrea Parke

+ — N Y Times p27 O 22 '44 200w

Springf'd Republican p4d Ja 7 '45 250w

"There is a certain quaintness about the book which adds flavor to history, and the figure of Margaret Brent is full stature, a devout Catholic and a dauntless woman." Lisle Bell

+ Weekly Book Review p20 O 22 '44 90w

GRANT, FREDERICK CLIFTON. Earliest Gospel; studies of the evangelic tradition at its point of crystallization in writing. 270p $2.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury

226.3 Bible. New Testament—St Mark 44-36

"Dr. Frederick C. Grant, Professor of Biblical Theology in Union Theological Seminary, New York City, here sets forth for us the results of many years of scholarly study of 'The Earliest Gospel,' which is now universally admitted to be the Gospel of Mark." Christian Science Monitor

"In a quite distinctive manner this is an epochal book on the origin and comprehensive interpretation of the Gospel of Mark. That is to say, the twelve lectures here published in a single volume clearly summarize the major advances in Marcan research in the most recent period, and do so with critical evaluations, and frequently with drastic revisions that are of primary importance." H. R. Willoughby

+ Christian Century 61:275 Mr 1 '44 600w

"Professor Grant's book provides an important and stimulating contribution to the study of the earliest of the Gospels." T. L. L.

+ Christian Science Monitor p8 F 5 '44 700w

"This book will prove a veritable encyclopedia of information regarding certain matters which, though they may be commonplaces among the erudite critics, are some of them quite revolutionary to non-experts like the reviewer." W. L. Caswell

+ Churchman 158:15 F 1 '44 550w

"This is an able and important volume. The author, Frederick C. Grant, long known to critical circles, whose name, too, is destined to be perpetuated in the work of his son, brings to the study of Mark and of the earliest gospel tradition a lifetime of scholarship. . . It is a stimulating book not without inconsistency, repetitious in places, and somewhat disjointed. Like many of its kind, in settling some questions, it raises others." C. M. Cherry

+ — Crozer Q 21:168 Ap '44 1700w

Library J 69:645 Ag '44 30w

GRANT, HUGH DUNCAN. Cloud and weather atlas; foreword by James H. Kimball. 294p il $7.50 Coward-McCann

551.57 Clouds. Weather 44-7942

"The purpose of this book is to translate into everyday language the all-important story of clouds—their part in analysis of the elements and in forecasting the continual changes in the drama of the weather. To that end the photographs are of prime importance, and in order to devote space to them, much interesting material has perforce been omitted and some of the discussions may seem more dogmatic than strict scientific accuracy would warrant. Wherever possible, in order to complete the discussion and facilitate further research, references have been made to more detailed studies." Introd

Booklist 41:72 N 1 '44

" 'Clouds and Weather Atlas' is a good book to have handy, especially at the summer cottage, so that someone can run quickly and settle the argument as to just what kind of cloud is looming up in the southwest, and what it is likely to do." G. R. Stewart

+ N Y Times p24 Ja 14 '45 360w

" 'Cloud and Weather Atlas' fills a long felt need for a reference which is comprehensive for both the meteorologist and the layman yet simple enough to make possible the classification and meaning of cloud formations. Mr Grant, who is former superintendent of the meteorological service of the British royal navy, has compiled an atlas which will be invaluable to all who need to know the impending weather —the mariner, the aviator, the farmer and others." M. J. J.

+ Springf'd Republican p6 O 15 '44 220w

Weekly Book Review p11 D 17 '44 180w

GRAUBARD, MARK AARON. Man's food, its rhyme or reason. 213p $2.50 Macmillan

641.1 Food. Nutrition 43-17485

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

"Mr. Graubard has expanded a series of informative articles which originally appeared in the labor press, inclosing them between rather unevenly written general remarks. The original material is fascinating and compact and will no doubt be a revelation to laymen." J. W. Bennett

+ — Am J Soc 50:165 S '44 950w

Booklist 40:207 F 15 '44

Bookmark 5:7 Mr '44

"The author, a research associate in the Department of Biology at Clark University, approaches his subject with knowledge and a strong social conscience. It is his social conscience which gives the book its unique quality. To study dietetics as a branch of physiology is one thing; but to apply such knowledge to the feeding of men, women, and children is quite another. . . The general criticism of the book is that the writing is somewhat awkward. . . But there are also professional inaccuracies which cannot go unchallenged. . . On the whole [however], Graubard has written a challenging book, and it deserves wide attention." Benjamin Harrow

+ — Nation 158:284 Mr 4 '44 850w

Social Studies 35:143 Mr '44 20w

"For high school boys and girls the book is interesting, first, because it has been written for labor organizations, which takes it out of the classroom type of book. Secondly, its approach is different from that of other books on nutrition for it makes pupils feel that they are dealing with a world problem. The style of the book is easy. The author makes no attempt to obscure meanings through the use of technical terms unfamiliar to the man in the street." A. E. Dashiell

+ Social Studies 35:282 O '44 240w

Survey 80:143 Ap '44 260w

"It is unfortunate that, notwithstanding all the fascinating facts Mr. Graubard has brought together, he is not a particularly effective writer. What he has to say is tremendously important, he speaks with respectable authority, and his post-war suggestions are highly stimulating." Stanley Walker

+ — Weekly Book Review p15 Ap 23 '44 600w

GRAVES, ROBERT. Wife to Mr. Milton; the story of Marie Powell [Eng title: Story of Marie Powell]. 380p $2.75 Creative age [10s 6d Cassell]

Milton, John—Fiction 44-47871

In the form of a detailed diary the novel tells the story of Mary Powell, first wife of John Milton. Mary, or Marie as she calls herself, was sixteen when she married, and John was thirty-three. The laughter-loving girl and the stern Puritan made an unhappy marriage, which is described up to the last few weeks before Marie's death, when she was twenty-six.

Reviewed by W. D. Clark

Book Week p3 D 24 '44 1100w

Reviewed by G. C. Bartter

Boston Globe p15 D 13 '44 600w

"Robert Graves, author of I. Claudius, has the gift for fleshing the bare bones of history. This isn't a book for a wide general market, but discriminating readers will find it a real discovery."

+ Kirkus 12:523 N 15 '44 250w

"Mr. Graves's new novel is an interesting, very readable book but a highly disconcerting one. For it is not, in the usual fashion, a neutral exercise of the historical imagination. Erudite and a great respecter of historical exactness in matters of language, social behavior, and the like, Mr. Graves is no respecter of historical persons. He has not only a political ax to grind but a personal ax to wield. 'Wife to Mr. Milton' is in large portion a hatchet-job on the memory of Milton. By the time King Charles has lost his head, one of England's greatest poets has also lost as much prestige as Mr. Graves can possibly deprive him of." Diana Trilling

Nation 159:751 D 16 '44 650w

Reviewed by William Poster

New Repub 112:28 Ja 1 '45 240w

Reviewed by Philip Toynbee

New Statesman & Nation 25:145 F 27 '43 280w

"Mr. Graves' gifts as a creative historian enable him to clothe these bare bones in flesh and blood, though one would say that the quality of the clothing varies. He seems more at home with those characters he has largely to invent than with those about whom more factual details are available. . . Marie tells her own story in an admirable, if somewhat restrained, imitation of seventeenth-century prose. . . Once Marie is married to Milton, however, both she and her story lose a good deal of their vitality." Carlos Baker

+ — N Y Times p5 N 26 '44 800w

"An expert, continually interesting novel. . . The author writes extremely well, and the book has historical as well as literary value, Mr. Graves being one of the few, the very few, contemporary historical novelists who have ever got beyond (or, for that matter, as far as) the 'Ben Hur' stage."

+ New Yorker 20:97 N 25 '44 180w

"Mr. Graves, succeeding with his plan of giving the wife's point of view—and she is lively, amusing and honest enough, it must be said—yet allows no depth of question. He states the genius of the impossible husband, gives us all the known facts, and leaves him planté. We never feel, any more than the wife, Marie Powell, did, the poet, the pitiful, gigantic immortal, behind the preposterous prig. But perhaps no novelist could get over the human difficulties Milton raises—and anyway here is plenty of information and plenty of solid life and entertainment." Kate O'Brien

Spec 170:132 F 5 '43 350w

Springf'd Republican p4d D 31 '44 400w

"One can imagine that Milton was a difficult husband, that something of gloom of soul and Puritan travail of sense made him even a forbidding lover, that Mary Powell may have undergone most of the usual trials and tribulations of the wives of the great. . . But Mr. Graves is not content with that aspect of the matter. He has found it necessary to guy Milton, if we may say so, in preposterous fashion, reducing him to the stock figure of the ranting, long-nosed Puritan of farce. It will hardly do. That the story is told in the first person by a Mary transformed into a pertly knowledgable miss need not matter overmuch. . . There seems neither sense nor sensibility in this extravagant ridicule of the man, and sometimes of the poet, Milton."

Times [London] Lit Sup p53 Ja 30 '43 480w

"Perhaps Milton has been hated by as many people as have loved him. . . But few have ever represented him as a little man and in Mr. Graves's portrait it is only as little and mean that he appears. Milton himself was a better artist than that. He knew eminence when he saw it even if it was 'bad eminence.' And the present-day writer who would attack him should follow the method of 'Paradise Lost.' If Milton was a villain he was a mighty one. Perhaps he was a Lucifer rather than a Michael. But he was certainly not a scheming little boor." J. W. Krutch

— Weekly Book Review p6 D 10 '44 1250w

GRAY, GEORGE WILLIAM. Science at war. 296p $3 Harper

355 War. Science 43-16432

For descriptive note see Annual for 1943.

Bookmark 5:6 Mr '44

"It is always a relief to find an author on scientific subjects who not only presents facts, but ties them together in an integrated picture, in contrast to the more usual product which closely resembles a series of library abstract cards distributed more or less at random. Not only does Mr. Gray do a fine piece of work in presenting an integrated and sensible picture of present activities; he also works in the historical roots of many developments that have been in the making for many years or even centuries." C. C. Furnas

+ Chem & Met Eng 51:225 F '44 600w

Eng N 132:127 Mr 9 '44 160w

N Y New Tech Bks 29:11 Ja '44

GRAY, G. W.—Continued

"Mr. Gray's book is interesting to physicists and may very well be recommended by them as reading matter for their lay associates." H. A. Barton

+ R of Scientific Instruments 15:254 O '44 600w

"A book that is important not only for its report on science at war but for its significant words on how 'these vastly enhanced resources of knowledge, methods, skills and equipment can serve the citizen as they have served the warrior.'" A. H. Compton & others

+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:1 N '43 1400w

Wis Lib Bul 40:22 F '44

